> Am constantly watching the advertising department on the lookout for things I can use and usually turn to it the first thing. May butt in again sometime and I hope that I am not taking up your time that could be used more profitably somewhere else.

Evidently he has profited by what he has read, for the program shows results. We cannot understand the fight with the newsdealer when it is possible to not only save money but receive the paper sooner by subscribing.

It Puzzles Him.

Just now we are watching a small town man. He thinks that the easiest way to fight opposition is to give two five-reel features each day and he cannot understand why people like the other two shows better. He cannot understand that people like the other houses because the show seems better and that the show seems to be better because they are not all tired out after the show is over. They do not realize this nor does he, but with twice as much he is doing only a half business.

Write Ups.

The Orpheum, Fort Wayne, Ind., is running a series of write-ups of its advertisers, which certainly does not have the effect of reducing the number of advertisers. The Orpheum takes rather a small space for its own use, but the chatty way in which the stuff is written makes it work powerfully. There are chats about the orchestra and the singers, and the program editor seems to realize that a picture theater is something besides a barn with a screen at one end and a projection machine at the other. He tells about the house and shows that there is something besides films to a picture entertainment. In passing, they got out an unusually neat cover for the Christmas issue.

Used Telegrams.

A. V. Hilton, of the Grand, Lewiston, Idaho, has been trying out the fake telegram, and as the stunt was new in the town he cleaned up with it. The regular "Send" telegraph form was used for the message, but the envelope was done in imitation of the regular Western Union covers, but called "Western Nuone." In a hurry it looked about the same and probably no one noticed that this envelope opened at the side instead of the top. The message purported to be from Jesse Lasky and urged the recipient to see "The Explorers" at the Grand. Only about four hundred were sent out, as these went to a select list and were delivered by the regular Western Union messengers, which gave the scheme greater force. It is probable that the four hundred, properly addressed and delivered worked to better effect than a thousand or two not addressed. Mr. Hilton put it through carefully and so convincingly that the whole town took the joke.

Mr. Hilton asks for comment on a second day advertisement for the same attraction. Since it was a second day advertisement, there should have been some effort to capitalize the hit of the day before. Instead he gives a straight advertisement, well written and well displayed. As an advertisement it is distinctly good. The use of a twelve point border in a single column advertisement is a little daring, but it is effective and there is not enough very black type in the text to affect the display value of the border. This is the risk that is run. Nothing will put up an ad so well as a big black border, provided that all the rest of the advertisers on that page do not also use B.B.B. as well, but if the advertisement is small in either dimension and crowded with type then it looks like a mess. Mr. Hilton evidently knows this for he uses the space for the border and gets more in the column because now he can use smaller type and more of it and yet get the same display.

Here is a little point of interest that probably Mr. Hilton never thought of. For that matter not one advertising writer in a thousand might get it. He tells in a paragraph that "The Explorer" is a story of Central Africa. Below he boxes in the announcement of a Paramount scenic, merely saying, South American Travelogue. Some stupid people are apt to get the impression that "The Explorer" is a South American travelogue, and this in spite of the definite announcement just above and the enclosing panel rule. This is not a criticism. It is merely a comment on the danger of rear end collisions.

We should like to see more of Mr. Hilton's work. Evidently he has a good eye for values.

Rules and Things.

S. Schultz who is an old time exhibitor and exchange man, is now managing the Vernon, Worcester, Mass. He sends in a couple of programs for comment. Mr. Schultz has done his share better than has th printer, and we take it that this is what he wants commented upon. If he will compare the two programs he will note that, on the front page, the one for January 17th shows better than the one for the previous week. This is because use of the break rule and the added paragraph in the earlier program makes a poor division of the space. It would be well to hold the single bank and the waved line instead of two point rule. The inside pages are split with two advertisers on each page. These advertisements are set in panels, which is good practise, but the printer has used rule for the top and bottom lines of the panels and fancy border for the sides. The effect is poor. The day's program should be enclosed in the two point rule, the panel being the same rule all four sides. The advertisements should be given panels of the light waved rule or left without frame. It is good practice to frame the advertisements to keep them out of the way of the program, but is better to frame the program in heavy rule and the advertisements in a light line. Then the program stands out better. It would probably help to run a piece of rule under the dated days, to bring these into prominence; to spell out the names of the days. A good combination would be two point rule and a ten point light italic letter, not too much condensed.

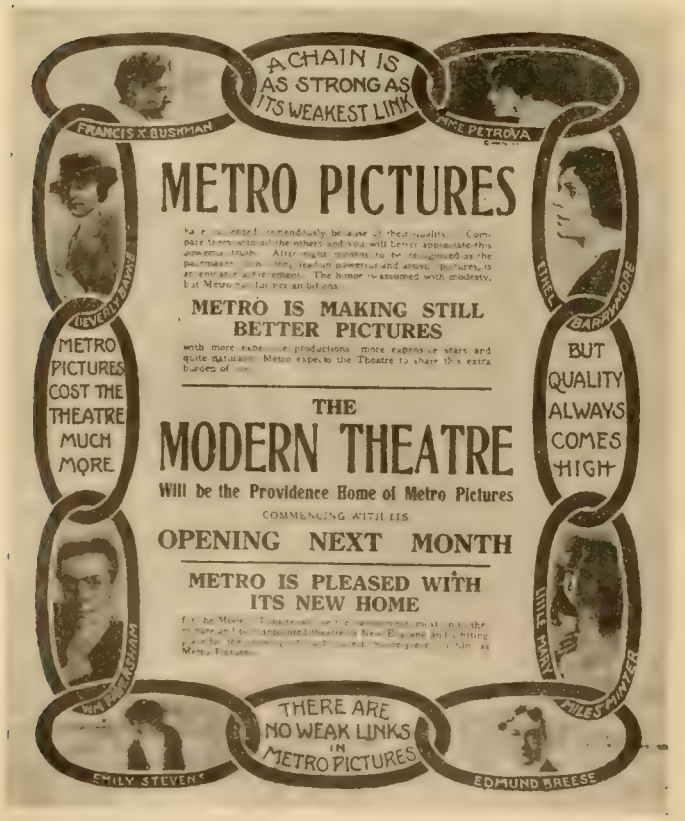
Here is something that the house is not supposed to have anything to do with, and that is the grammar and expression in the merchants advertisements. At the same time, since it is the house program, it might be possible to make a tactful suggestion when the advertisement is received. A laundry, for instance, announces that it is "Equipped with the latest and most modern machinery to do laundry work with." A hint that by cutting off the extra words they could get a better display would obviate the necessity for telling them that the other words are silly. It is not supposed that their machinery is for other than laundry purposes. Another advertisement reads: "Vulco powder, 15 cents a bag, will save you $2 worth of coal." It should read: "Vulco powder. (Period) A fifteen cent bag will save you $2 worth of coal."

It is no concern of the exhibitor how an advertiser misuses his space, and yet the public will be able to blame the house and not the advertiser. Every program manager should try to help his advertisers for his own sake.

"Service Beyond the Films."

We are used to the national advertising campaigns for the films, but Metro is doing more. William E. Furber, press man for the Metro's Boston representation, sends in a quarter-page advertisement from a Providence paper to show how Metro starts them off. The idea of the frame, in connection with the legend in the top link, is so good that it is



A CHAIN IS AS STRONG AS ITS WEAKEST LINK
FRANCIS X BUSHMAN
MME PETROVA
METRO PICTURES
METRO IS MAKING STILL BETTER PICTURES
METRO PICTURES COST THE THEATRE MUCH MORE
BUT QUALITY ALWAYS COMES HIGH
THE MODERN THEATRE
Will be the Providence Home of Metro Pictures
COMMENCING WITH ITS OPENING NEXT MONTH
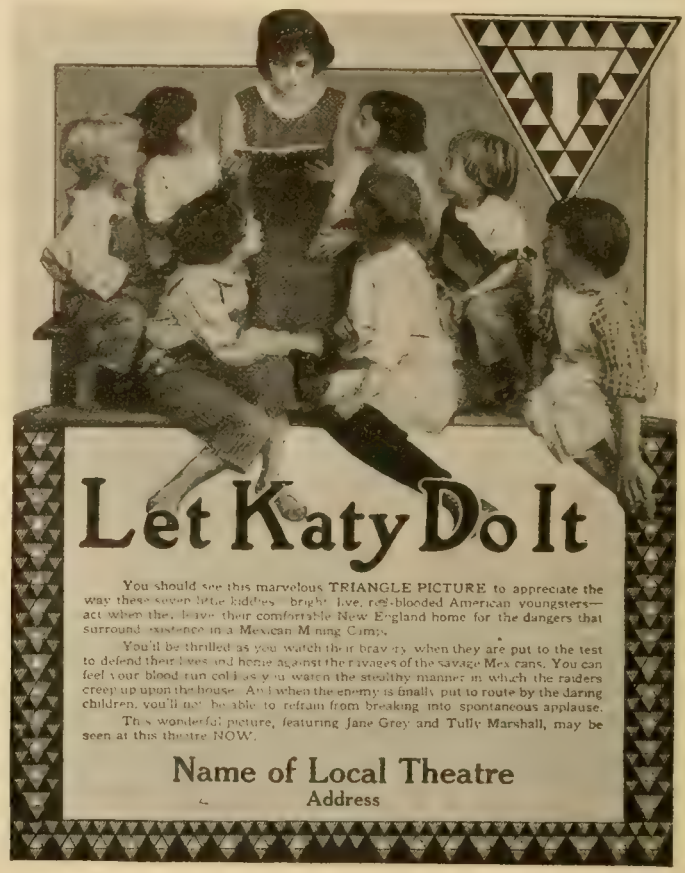
METRO IS PLEASED WITH ITS NEW HOME
THERE ARE NO WEAK LINKS IN METRO PICTURES
EMILY STEVENS
EDMUND BREESE

passed along. The advertisement of a company is apt to help the house more than its own first advertisement. There is a suggestion conveyed that the company is actively interested in the house and will use its best endeavors to see that the house is well supplied with attractions. It is not merely that the house has the Metro program. It's a certification that Metro knows it and is interested.

Triangle Getting in Line.

Triangle has swung into line with exhibitors' first aids in the form of mortised advertisements for newspaper use. These are so framed that all you have to do is to order the electro and send it to the paper, which will set in the name and other matter for your house. You get the services of highly trained advertising men at less than what it would cost you to have a rough sketch made, and you get not only the text but a cut and the characteristic Triangle border. It looks like a theater advertisement and not a makeshift. There was a time when manufacturers offering this service made their prices show a profit, but now they are put out at less than the cost of the single electrotype. Cut work costs eight to twelve cents a square. A cut about fifty squares costs $1.85. This is a three-column cut 115 lines



Let Katy Do It
You should see this marvelous TRIANGLE PICTURE to appreciate the way these seven little kiddies—bright, live, red-blooded American youngsters—act when they leave their comfortable New England home for the dangers that surround existence in a Mexican Mining Camp.
You'll be thrilled as you watch their bravery when they are put to the test to defend their lives and home against the ravages of the savage Mexicans. You can feel your blood run cold as you watch the stealthy manner in which the raiders creep up upon the house. And when the enemy is finally put to route by the daring children, you'll not be able to refrain from breaking into spontaneous applause.
This wonderful picture, featuring Jane Grey and Tully Marshall, may be seen at this theatre NOW.
Name of Local Theatre
Address

deep. A hundred line cut one column wide costs only forty-five cents. The three-column cut is reproduced here.

With the advertising helps now offered there is no excuse for a manager not using the papers intelligently. It may seem an expense to purchase cuts, but it is in no way an expense if the use of properly prepared advertising brings a return all out of proportion to the cost of the material, and most managers will welcome the chance to obtain properly displayed material. It is worth that much merely to step from under the clutch of some job compositors.

Evidently Resumed.

We spoke lately of the old bulletins issued by the Saxe enterprises of Milwaukee. This was some time ago, one of the first. Very evidently they have revived the old idea for numbers nine and ten of volume one of the Saxe Weekly have come to hand. It is a twelve page and cover, slightly under nine by twelve inches. Like its progenitor, its first duty seems to be to entertain and its second to advertise. It is read, and because it is read and not merely looked at, it carries the fullest advertising value. Only one page is taken for the detailed program, the rest is reading, a part of which is designed to create interest in the attractions. The cover is a special design in black and one color. It is attractive both in appearance and matter.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid. $2.00

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Inquiries.

Questions concerning the writing (but NOT the marketing) of photoplays will be replied to without charge if addressed to the Photoplaywright Department and accompanied by a fully addressed stamped envelope. Questions must be typewritten or written with pen and ink.

Questions as to the financial standing of concerns or the probable markets for specific or certain styles of stories cannot be answered.

In no case and under no circumstance will any manuscript or synopsis be handled and if sent will be returned without reply.

A list of addresses of producing companies will be sent if the request is made direct to the publication office, but not where request is made to this department.

Time Jumps.

COMPARATIVELY few persons seem to understand why time jumps are barred from frequent use, and they seem to believe that it is the length of elapsed time and not the frequency of the jumps that is prohibited. One writer even wants to know if he can vision the first two reels to escape a time jump of fifteen years.

Time jumps are disturbing merely because they interrupt the action, and, as a leader "Fifteen years later" is no more disturbing than one that reads "Fifteen minutes later." There is a greater objection, however, in that the time jump of great length means also a change in circumstances. Things are about the same at the end of fifteen minutes as they are right now, but much may happen in fifteen years that must be explained before the story can be understood. Almost always the leader must be followed by from two to ten scenes, and perhaps other leaders establishing essential facts. Then the story proceeds.

There can be no very great objection to a story that jumps ahead ten or twenty years, if there is but one jump, but the story that covers that period by two year advances is to be shunned, because each time there must be a pause in the story while explanations are made. This is what brings the time leader and time jump into disrepute. Your story is going along swimmingly and suddenly it jumps ahead two years. You explain a few facts, run a couple of scenes of real action and then announce that it is three years later. Once more you have to pick up the threads of the story in half a dozen explanatory scenes and then it is five years later and you are hard at work again telling what has happened. That sort of story cannot interest.

If your story positively requires that you advance the action, and you have a couple of intermediate stops between now and fifteen years later, it is even better to vision back for the intermediate facts and make the one long jump than to dribble the story along from year to year. It is entirely possible to keep your story to the present, and it should be done. Most of the time the excessive jumps are due to your inability to get enough plot out of one period, which means that your plotting faculty is still undeveloped.

Competition.

How can we hope to sell the products of our imagination when men who have lived fiction try to break into the game. Look at this letter:

> "I am writing a book of my life, from 8 to 60 years, in which is a wonderful thrilling romance. I am a designer by trade; have lived in twenty-two of the United States; I have two wives living; am the father of twenty-seven children. I have photos and data of twenty-four tragedies in my life; I have been wealthy in my time, but am now broke and in jail awaiting new trial in January, 1916. I have been charged, tried and convicted of murder three times, the pending new trial being on a trivial charge."

This is from a real letter the Sterling company received the other day. They are not going to use the stuff, because they know that true stories are seldom good. There is still hope for the imaginative.

Half Reels.

A correspondent asks for the addresses of companies buying half-reel comedies. We know of no company in the market for short lengths at present. Will others please take notice?

The Picture Eye.

A correspondent opines that she has the picture eye, but says:

> I think I have the "picture eye," as it is called, as every idea that comes to me is a living, walking, talking one, but in place of seeing the action on a white screen I see it always in its natural environment, be it in a room, the desert, a street, in a boat or wherever it happens to be, but the principal action is never spread. I see it all with a straight-ahead look. When I try to think of a room on the screen and place my action in it I immediately lose freedom of thought. Is this a fault I must overcome—must I always try and put my action in a set or location in place of the natural one?

This is not the picture eye. It is more a mirage, a fancied seeing of action. If the correspondent really had the picture eye, she could see the action and write down the action as she sees it. Possibly she does not really see the action or perhaps cannot write the action she sees, but if she really has the picture eye, then she can see the action, not once but as many times as she oks at it.

Perhaps though she finds her own solution when she says that she tries to put her action in a set or location in place of the natural one. We cannot imagine what she means unless it is that she seeks to transplant the action. Surely if she can see action in a room she can write the action in the room and leave it to the producer to build a set to fit the action. She should not try to think of a room on the screen. Let her look into the room in her imagination and write the action she sees there. That is all she has to do.

Practise.

Writes a lady:

> Personally, I feel that I have learned the mechanical part of technique and I certainly never lack for plots. At the present stage my work is an excellent example of that "labored development" and "evident effort" which you mention in a recent article. Of course I know your answer to that, but I wish to be as efficient as possible. I want to do the best I can in the very shortest time. It worries me to feel that I am in a rut or constantly repeating mistakes. I like my characters and I like my plots when I begin, but when the play itself is finished I wish to offer my humblest apologies to them both for such poor expression.

Precisely. Practice and work and no hurry. That is the only way. The first dog house we ever built was a horrible thing and we apologized to the dog and kept him down cellar instead of in the kennel. The last (our fifth) is a canine palace even to the number over the door in aluminum figures. Building four dog houses taught us how to build the fifth. You may need to write more than four plays before your characters stop calling you names, but it is all practice whether it is dog houses or scripts.

One Reels.

There is a very small market at present for one-reel stuff. The demand is all for five-reel stories that really are worth five reels. We hesitate to make this statement because there are enough incompetents already doing only the five-reel stuff when they still should be practicing on ones, but they do not matter so much as the others who are writing and mailing out one-reel ideas with small chances of acceptance.

Universal is scarcely in the market, as so many of their directors are supposed to supply their own ideas. Mutual offers a very small market and only a few of the licensed companies are in the market for that length at present.

The reason for this is very simple. Many one-reels were made up ahead before the demand turned to the features. Just now the ones are used only to round out a program.

This is a false position and there will come a swing back in the course of time just as the slapstick story went away and came back again and was again sent to the discard. Two or three years from now there will be the same demand for slapstick as there was a year ago. In the same way there will come again a demand for one-reel stories.

In the meantime you must master the one-reel before you can write two-reel scripts and must do twos before you can hope to do fives. Then you must actually write the action for five-reel stories and become familiar with this form before you can hope to market the synopses for five reels that constitute the present demand.

The present popularity of the five-reel is largely based upon the fact that one feature can be advertised to better advantage than five titles. That is all.

Overweight.

We don't know from his letter whether he is joking or not, but the correspondent who sends in a tale of woe and remarks that it cost him eighteen cents to send out his script is advised that he is about three ounces overweight for a five reel script in full. No editor can get the strength to become interested in a nine-ounce script.

Jones' Book.

Marc Edmund Jones is privately circulating a feature photoplay that costs too much to produce; at the present, at any rate. Having had one experience with a script that went home with someone else, he has had this printed for copyright purposes as a story. The idea is rather too expensive for general use, but as a matter of record, credit Mr. Jones with being the first.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 126.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theatre managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

Suppose your mercury arc rectifier tube became sluggish and hard to start, and that small bubbles appeared in the mercury. What would you conclude, and what would you do? Can the reactance of a mercury arc rectifier be used as an economizer, and is it as efficient as the regular economizer when used that way?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 120.

The Roll of Honor on question 120 consists of the following names: Jos. H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; E. J. Wilson, St. Joseph, Missouri; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, New York; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; A. H. Cuff, Gravenhurst, Ontario; Walter Collins, Tiffin, Ohio; H. G. Crose, Gary, Indiana; Leon Brantley, Nacogdoches, Texas; F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas; Walter E. Bryner, Springfield, Illinois; B. J. Fenton, Fernandina, Florida; E. E. Elmer, Auburn, Rhode Island; P. R. Dey, Winnipeg, Canada; Bert Carlson, Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Maryland.

It was a rather difficult matter to determine as between the replies of Brothers Crose, Wilson, Fenton, and Elmer. I have, however, concluded to publish the replies of both Fenton and Elmer.

Friend Crose sent in a very excellent reply, but it was long, rather technical, and, on the whole, while his answer was very complete, I think the others are more understandable.

Reply to Question No. 120.

By B. J. Fenton, Fernandina, Fla.

The Question:

What do you understand by the expression "my machine cuts 50 per cent. of the light?" What do you understand by a "6 to 1" intermittent movement? What relation is there between the speed of the intermittent movement and the proportions of the shutter blades? What relation is there between intermittent speed and flicker?

The Answer:

(a) What do you understand by the expression "my shutter cuts 50 per cent. of the light?"

(b) What do you understand by a "6 to 1" intermittent movement?

(c) What relation is there between the speed of the intermittent movement, and the proportions of the shutter blades?

(d) What relation is there between intermittent speed and flicker?

(a) In a one-blade shutter this would mean that the blade was just one-half the circle, in a two blade shutter, each blade would be one-fourth the circle, and in a three blade shutter each blade would be one-sixth the circle, with all the blades and spaces of equal size.

(b) It means that, in each cycle the intermittent sprocket is stationary six times as long as it is moving. To prove it: turn the fly wheel forward until the intermittent movement just barely starts to move, then on the rim of the fly wheel, opposite some point on the frame, make mark No. 1. Turn the fly wheel forward until the intermittent movement is just completed and make mark No. 2, then forward again until intermittent movement is just starting again, and make mark No. 3. If the machine is so geared that the fly wheel makes one revolution to each intermittent movement, No. 3 will be right where you started and you will find that the distance one way between marks Nos. 1 and 2 is six times as great as when measured the other way.

(c) The shutter blade should be of such size as to just cut off the light during the movement of the film across the aperture. Any larger blade would mean less light without any added benefit, hence the faster the intermittent movement, the narrower the blade may be.

(d) Yes, the speed of the intermittent movement would affect flicker because as the speed increases we are able to cut down the width of the main blade, and perhaps add another flicker blade without increasing the total area of all the blades, or at least utilize a greater percentage of the light and a better proportioned shutter, and thus the rapidity of the intermittent movement would operate to decrease flicker. We could get the same results (as regards flicker) with a one blade shutter as with a three blade, but we would have to run the machine three times as fast.

Flicker is caused by the alternations between light and darkness, and the more rapid the alternations, and the nearer equal the periods of light and darkness, the less noticeable the flicker.

Reply to Question No. 120.

By E. E. Elmer, Auburn, R. I.

By "my shutter cuts 50 per cent. of the light," I understand that only one half, or 50 per cent. of the total c. p. emanating from the arc reaches the screen. In other words, 50 per cent. of the light coming from the front of the objective lens is cut off and lost by reason of the shutter. For instance: if you have a 12x16 foot picture, and are using 40 amperes, projecting the film without a shutter you would have a screen illumination of

$$\frac{\text{40 amperes}}{\text{12x16 feet}} = \frac{40}{192} = 5/24 \text{ amperes per square foot.}$$

But if the shutter cuts 50 per cent. of the light we will have only 50 per cent. of that, or 5/48 amperes per square foot.

A movement is said to be a "6 to 1" movement when the intermittent is in motion six periods and at rest one period. For instance: Given sixteen pictures to the foot and running one foot per second, and a 6 to 1 movement the intermittent would be in motion 1/112 of a second, and at rest 6/112 of a second. There is a very close relation between the intermittent movement and the shutter blades, since the faster the movement, the narrower the blades may be, thus enabling us to secure a better balanced shutter. But it must be borne in mind that if the movement is too fast, complications are set up, such as excessive strain on sprocket holes of the film, fast wearing of the star and cam by reason of the rapid movement, and a general shaking and loosening of the mechanism for the same reason.

Intermittent speed bears directly on flicker, in that the shutter must revolve once every time the intermittent moves. Now the slower the movement of the intermittent, the wider the shutter blade must be, hence conditions are set up which throw the shutter out of optical balance, and render the dark periods visible to the eye—"flicker."

WAYSIDE NOTES.

The Editor of this Department is making an extended tour, visiting the various manufacturers of projection apparatus, generating plants and allied accessories pertaining to the projection end of the moving picture industry with a view of obtaining information at first hand of the progress made during the past year.

We believe that the results of this trip will not only bring the Moving Picture World into closer relations with our friends the accessory manufacturers but also enable the Projection Department to render in the future even more valuable assistance than in the past to those of our readers who bring to us, for solution, their projection perplexities.

The following impressions, collected enroute by Mr. Richardson, have just reached us and will be followed by further installments in subsequent issues.

In Schenectady.

Schenectady is some village, and the Schenectady men a bundle of very live wires. They welcome the stranger with outstretched hand and—knock his block off if he does not behave reasonably well. For history sets forth the fact that Schenectady likes just one thing better than a scrap, and that's another, bigger scrap.

Now don't get me wrong. The boys may relish a lively bout but they don't go around looking for some one to knock a chip off their shoulder, and moreover they have, in the parlance of railroading, headed in on the right track.

The union has thirty members and those thirty believe firmly in good salaries and good working conditions; also they believe in giving high class service in return, and to that end let no opportunity slip to improve the technical side of their profession.

The union has a unique arrangement. Within it has been formed a society which also contains members of the stage employes local, and this society has club rooms, with pool and billiard tables, comfortable chairs, writing and card tables, etc. The society gives lectures on matters of interest to operators at intervals, besides supplying a comfortable place to rest and for sociability between the men.

On my arrival in the home city of the General Electric the hand of Brother V. Tullock wigwagged signals of welcome, followed promptly by explanation that he was the only Simon-pure, real honest to gosh moving picture man in Schenectady not at that time actively engaged in assisting at the daily harvest of dimes.

Tullock is quite a warm number at the welcome-to-our-city stunt. Imagine a tall, scrawny, narrow, bony two-legged he-critter. Well Tullock is not by any stretch of the imagination any of those things, but he is a reg'lar welcomer all right, all right.

At eleven o'clock Brothers L. Mynderse and John Sandborn appeared and we adjourned to the I. A. headquarters; pretty nifty headquarters, as I have told you, where all the Schenectady operators and several of the managers were assembled; also R. E. Russell and G. H. MacClellan of the Rectifier Sales Department answered roll call.

The doings consisted of talks by President Frank Finch, who presided, Messrs. Russell and MacClellan and the various managers, and your more or less humble servant; incidentally the kind things said of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD and the Projection Department gave me a bad case of the blushes, and, knowing me, you can imagine how really enthusiastic their remarks must have been.

It was a cold, blustery, snow-stormy night, and in his remarks Russell raised a laugh by saying: "I came near not arriving at all. I turned the crank of my fliver for one full reel before the show started and the titles in that reel raised the temperature of the surrounding air seven degrees."

I am proud of one thing. Some manager present said, after my talk, that he "had learned things and been brought to a realization of the error of his ways" to some extent at least, and one raised a laugh by saying: "I admit I have the rottenest projection equipment in this town, and the best operator, but you can bet he'll have new machines just as quickly as the express company can get them here"—so at least I did do some good. I did not intend to stop in Schenectady, but the boys wrote insisting upon it, and now I'm glad that they did.

(To be continued.)

Cleveland Poet.

Ira E. Price, Cleveland, Ohio, sends in some verses. I have not space for the whole thing, but here is some of the best of it:

Friends say, "Pretty soft, Mr. Op, for you,
In your warm little six by eight hole;
Your vexations and worries would just about fill,
The space taken up by a mole."

"What a pipe," they say, "You sure picked a cinch;
What a wise little choice you made,
When you drew from life's deck a position
You insist upon calling a trade."

They wink in a manner becoming to sages
Call our luck a surprise to the wise of the ages
If into a mud hole we happen to drift
They swear we'd crawl out with gold in our grip.

All of which gives Brother Price the right to wear the button M. P. U. in his coat lapel. P. S.—M. P. U. stands for member Poet's Union Machine Trouble.

Vernon Hicks, Marion, Illinois, says:

> I am enclosing a letter sent the General Film Company's St. Louis office, and their reply to my manager. Perhaps I was wrong in writing as I did, but I have not admitted it yet. The patches I sent in were from ½ to ¾ of an inch wide, holes not matched, and they would not go through the machine and stay on the sprockets. The film came direct from St. Louis and was not on circuit. Have just read, with much interest, Miss Thomas' letter on inspection. Needless to say I heartily agree with the lady and with yourself. And now for a little trouble. Am using a Power's Six A machine about four or five months old. Recently there was a little trouble, and I went to the wrong place first to fix it. Thought it was in the intermittent sprocket, and found it was not. I adjusted this, and now when I have no film in the machine it runs smooth and quiet, but with the film in it makes a noise, though some films will run quietly enough. Was talking to another operator and he says he has the same trouble, and cannot remedy it. I have both your Handbooks, and am waiting for the next one.

With relation to the St. Louis Exchange, there have been many kicks with regard to inspection from this exchange, and I believe it is up to the General Film to remedy the fault, which undoubtedly is chargeable directly to the manager of the St. Louis branch. I don't like to publish these things, but when an exchange manager continues to commit the same offense, regardless of protest made by operators and managers, why it is time to take action. I know the General Film Company does not approve of anything of this kind, and desires to have its film sent out in the best possible condition. There is no question about that, and, I believe, taking their exchanges as a whole, they come as near getting results in film inspection as anybody. The St. Louis exchange, however, seems to be in urgent need of a little good, stiff order direct from headquarters to mend its ways, so far as inspection be concerned.

As to the film trouble, when a film which makes a noise is going through a Power's 6, first look and see if it seats between the rollers at the lower end of the apron. If it don't, using a punch and light hammer, spread the rollers a little further apart. This can only be done by striking a sharp blow on the shoulder of the rollers so as to bend the ears of the apron sidewise. If the film seats between the rollers all right, then try bending both rollers an equal distance ahead, and if this does not help, try bending them back, keeping them equi-distant from the lower sprocket, or, in other words, square with the film. This is the most likely seat of the trouble you describe. If it is in the intermittent, then, old man, you will just simply have to try adjusting the same until you eliminate the noise—if it can be eliminated, but I am inclined to think the trouble is in the apron.

Business Agent Honored.

At the last meeting of M. P. M. O. Local Union No. 306 (New York operators) the editor had the pleasure of presenting to Business Agent Harry Mackler, in behalf of his many friends in the local, a really magnificent token in the shape of a loving cup.

Brother Mackler has secured the confidence of the membership of 306 by reason of the fact that his official actions as business agent have not only been clean, but they have been vigorous. His reports show work accomplished.

It is an unfortunate fact that many business agents seem to get the idea that the office is merely created for the purpose of providing them with a salary for looking wise. Mackler, however, is not of the "look-wise-only" variety, though, at that, he is a pretty wise guy all right, all right.

The job of business agent in New York City is almost anything but a bed of roses. The territory is widely scattered, and although there are nearly a thousand places of amusement using moving pictures; also, as I have before pointed out, there is about every nationality of the human family, all of which adds to the difficulty of business agenting.

In closing the editor wishes to compliment Brother Mackler, and to say that we believe that he will continue to deserve the confidence of his friends in the future as he has in the past.

A Very Genuine Puzzle.

Los Angeles, California, sends in the following brain exerciser:

> Am using two Power's Six A lamps, with ¾ and ⅝ inch carbons. In order to get a round spot I am obliged to set my upper carbon half the width of the lower carbon to the right side. If I put them in line the way they should be, the arc burns on the right side of the carbons and makes my spot one-sided. Pull 60 amperes of 110-volt current from three-wire service. Every operator in the city, using over 40 amperes, is having same trouble, and it has got us all going. Can you help?

The brother does not say what the current is, but I presume they are taking current from the Southern California Edison Company, which corporation furnishes both A. C. and D. C., for both day and night service; 50 cycle, single and three-phase alternating. Assuming that you have made a correct statement of facts, there seems to be but one possible explanation, namely: you are using alternating current at the arc, and either by coiling the lead wire up inside the lamphouse, or in some other way have created a magnetic field on one side of the arc, which blows the arc over to one side. I think the condition you name could only be caused by what is known as "magnetic blow." It is a well known fact that if a magnet be placed near an electric arc it will blow the arc away from it, and if close enough, or strong enough, will actually blow the arc out, or, in other words, push it off the carbons. It hardly seems possible that several operators would be having this particular trouble all at the same time, but, I, nevertheless, do not see any other cause for such a condition, always provided you have stated things correctly.

Later: Sent carbon copy of reply to Los Angeles, who comes back with the following:

> No, your reply does not apply. The thing is, as you say, "a brain exerciser." I have exercised mine on it for about a year, and so have some of the other Los Angeles men. I am using Edison D. C., No. 6 feed wires to the lamp. All the power service in the city gives the same trouble, and what makes it the more puzzling is that anything under 40 amperes burns O. K., but over 40 Mr. Arc walks over to the right and stays there. If you could see the carbons after running a reel, and the way they must be lined to get a round spot you certainly would scratch your head.

Well, I give it up and pass it along to those who wish to tax their brains on a seemingly unsolvable problem.

Hits the Spot.

G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana, sends answer to Question 119, and says:

That editorial of yours entitled, "The Year's Progress," surely did hit the spot. I believe, as you say, the operator of today is beginning to be looked upon as a man of brains, and that this change of attitude on the part of the Powers That Be is very largely due to the work of the projection department and its editor, whom I hope this letter finds in good spirits and health.

All of which is passed along with proper modesty and no comment, except many thanks for the good wishes.

A Sample.

The following is one of the several letters received from locals in the past few days:

Mr. F. H. Richardson, New York City: Dear Sir:—It is with great pleasure that I learn of your trip to the West and your offer to address such locals as are on your route. Everyone of the boys in Local 337 appreciates this great opportunity of meeting and listening to one who has done so much for their profession, and we consider ourselves lucky that we are located geographically so that it should not be difficult to make arrangements to have you with us on your first jump from Schenectady. Utica is 94 miles from Schenectady, and is located about central between that town and Rochester. We are rather proud of our local here (about 30 members), and have, at the time of writing (today), just arrived at conditions that are nearly perfect. Today every theater in Utica has a signed agreement with this union; every theater is employing the required number of operators as called for in in this agreement and every man in Local 337 is working. But you probably realize that our conditions are, at this time, rather unique, particularly when I explain that only two years ago, last month, there were only four union operators employed in Utica. Seven out of eleven houses at that time employed non-union operators. There was no agreement with the managers and no wage scale (only a minimum wage of $15.00 per week). Today we have a wage scale ranging from $15.00 to $21.00 per week, no man working over eight hours (the majority working not over six hours); a number getting above scale; all apprentices registered and controlled and the union slide run in all houses. These results have not been accomplished without a lot of hard work, but the officials of Local 337 have always tried to use diplomacy instead of "strong arm" methods, and be it said to our credit, we have never had a lockout, strike, or been obliged to pull a man out in the accomplishment of these results. In this we have been aided by all of the members striving for proficiency in projection, to give the management of a house more than they pay for, and by the fair-mindedness of most of the managers; and last, but not least, I do not believe there is a member of No. 337 who does not appreciate the help they have had from F. H. Richardson, not only in an educational way, but the tremendous influence of the fearless stand taken by the Editor of the Projection Department in the standard paper of the trade for better working conditions and organization for the operators.

Trusting that you will honor Local 337 with your presence, and that I may receive a communication from you by return mail that will mean the appointment of that committee on arrangements, I remain, sincerely yours, G. H. Humphrey, Sec'y, Local 337, Utica, N. Y.

I am printing this particular letter because it is worthy of study by quite a few earnest, well-intentioned unions which are not pursuing the best tactics, and a very few who are pursuing tactics which merit outright condemnation.

Here is an organization which has, in the opinion of Yours Truly, not only started right, but has continued right. It has substituted brains, argument and diplomacy for knock-em-down-and-drag-em-outedness. It has realized, and acted upon the idea, that increased pay and better conditions go hand in hand with increased efficiency, and that's the right idea; also, it is the idea that will win out in the end. True, it might, under other circumstances, have been necessary for the local to enforce just demands by a strike, even as it may yet be necessary to do that very thing in Utica—though let us hope not. But the point is just this: granting the necessity, under some conditions, for the strike, it is, as I have often pointed out, a weapon only to be used as a VERY LAST RESORT, after every other possible avenue of effort has been fully tried and has failed. And right here let me say that I'll gamble nine perfectly good iron men against a warty doughnut that men who have the brains to conduct their business as the members of Local 337 have conducted their's, will put up one peach of a stubborn fight, should it ever come to that. In closing let me add that I firmly believe in fighting when your demands are just, and you cannot get them considered in any other way; also (whisper) I'm a pretty reasonably good scrapper myself when they leave me no way out except by the Battle Route. But I don't, don't, DON'T believe in going around with a chip on my shoulder looking for trouble. I'd much rather get what I want without a fight, and find that, as a general proposition, one usually can. I shall certainly stop in Utica. Unions which seek better salaries and better conditions will do extremely well to ponder on Utica's plan of better salaries—better work, or increased salary—increased efficiency.

Endorses Our Opinion.

C. S. Stuckey, Edmonton, Alta., Canada, says:

I wish to endorse your statements as regards the diameter of lenses now in use being too small. Was surprised when I investigated and found the area of the light ray overlapping the lens all around. I would like to see you stir up some of the operators of Western Canada. There are many good operators out this way, and it seems to me some of them ought to be on the Roll of Honor. However, I suppose I had better not say too much as I have been a little slack in that line myself, but here is a reply to 120.

Yes, Brother Stuckey, you are not the only operator who would be "surprised" if he made an investigation of that particular kind. In order to make such an investigation it is only necessary to put the picture in focus on the screen, and then, having first removed the film, remove the objective lens and place a piece of ordinary white writing paper inside the mechanism at exactly the same distance from the aperture that the back combination of the objective occupied, supporting it temporarily in any convenient way. With the Simplex machine it may be necessary to remove the tube or casing which covers the light ray in order to make an adequate test. I venture to say that the light loss at this point alone is costing the moving picture industry of the United States and Canada at the least calculation one thousand dollars per day, and it can and probably will reach far beyond that figure.

Guaranteed Attendance 1,600.

From the Leavenworth United States Penitentiary comes the following, the name being, for obvious reasons, suppressed:

It will undoubtedly seem strange to receive a letter from a U. S. Penitentiary on the subject of projection, but not even being in prison can prevent some of us from keeping on at the game, even though it be under difficulties. Our little show here in the prison (guaranteed attendance 1,600 weekly) would doubtless surprise many projection experts. We have a 120-foot throw, with approximately a 15-foot picture, using a Power's hand-driven 6A and 220 volt D. C. through a rheostat. Operating room, 9x12x7, lined with galvanized iron and equipped with shutters a la the "Bible." The only thing we haven't is a subscription to the World, but have hopes for that in the near future. Have been experimenting with shutters lately. Enclosed are two drawings, unfortunately free hand, illustrating a shutter idea in two different ways. * * * We are running Paramount and World features, secured through the kindness of Mr. A. J. Renoe, our deputy warden, and Mr. E. C. Graham, our chief engineer, both of whom exercise their utmost endeavor to please the "boys behind the wall." Mr. Graham is in active charge of all mechanical and electrical engineering in the institution; also he is superintendent of the power house, which is in itself a large item. Last week we ran "The Man From Mississippi," and it brought down the house. The writer, who is an old correspondent of the department, and who has had a good deal of experience in the game, can honestly say that he has never seen a more appreciative audience in any theater than that we have here.

It is but natural that the "audience" would be "appreciative," since I suppose the pictures are about the only form of amusement available. I am indeed glad to see prison authorities recognize the fact that simply because a man has committed a crime, possibly on the impulse of the moment, and punishment has been meted out, it does not necessarily follow that he should be treated like a mad dog. As a matter of fact I believe it is generally conceded that some of the worst criminals in the world are walking about our streets, enjoying life to the fullest extent, while we not only confine but punish with the utmost rigor others who have made but a comparatively small dent in society's laws; also there is always the possibility that the man in the penitentiary is innocent. Witness the fact that not long ago, right here, if I remember right, in New York state, it was discovered that a man who had been confined in the penitentiary for more than twenty years was entirely innocent of the crime for which he suffered. What did we do? Pay him at least the money value for those twenty years? Not so you could notice it. We gave him a cheap suit of clothes, five or ten dollars in money, and turned him loose, which means that society after putting an innocent man in jail for twenty years was too cowardly to asssume even the financial burden of its error and pay the man at least a fair cash valuation for the time. Well, that has nothing to do with projection, so I suppose we had better cut it short, though I could write a young book on it. The shutter idea is not new. Those things have been tried, tried and re-tried long ago. The advantages of such things, according to our best authorities, is practically nothing, or, in other words, is largely imaginary. Sorry, old man, but that's the fact in the case. The Nicholas Power Company tried out those particular schemes years ago, and I don't believe there is to-day a possible shutter pattern that has not been thoroughly tested.

Several Things.

G. L. Smith, Smithsburg, Maryland, writes:

I infer you to mean that the smaller the objective lens diameter the farther apart your condenser and aperture would have to be. Am I right or wrong? That does not seem to work out on my proposition at all, however. If I get the condensers more than 15 inches away from the aperture the picture becomes blurred. Can you tell me what causes it? Also is there any rule by which you can find the focus of any condenser? This spring we opened our show and purchased one hundred Electra cored carbons. We, however, once in a while find a carbon that does not make as good light as others. The light seems to jump around a good deal. Is it the fault of the carbon, or the A. C. arc? Will carbons lose their quality with age? Our lamphouse is electrically charged and I am obliged to use a rubber door mat to stand on. Would you recommend an incandescent arc lamp for moving picture projection on a nearly straight throw of 53 feet on an 8-foot picture? We are using a stage curtain, the back of which is painted with screen paint, the same being outlined in black. Do you know what the price of the new Handbook will be, and what will be its weight, as I wish to have one sent by parcel post.

Yes, the smaller the diameter of the objective the farther back must your condenser be to avoid light loss, but you must change the focal length of your condensers when you pull the lamphouse back. For the extreme distance shown in Table No. 1, October 16th issue, two 7½ condensers are required. Certainly you can measure your condensing lens. Pin a piece of white paper on a wall opposite an open window, preferably in a room having but one window. Hold the lens in front of the paper screen and focus a distant outdoor scene thereon. Measure the exact distance from the flat side of the lens to the screen, when the picture is in sharpest focus, and then turn the lens around with the other side toward the screen, re-focus the scene and again measure from the screen to the flat side. Add the two measurements together and divide by 2; the result will be the focal length of the lens, as near as you can get at it. But be sure to have the lens perfectly clean, and get the scene in as sharp focus as you can. Very likely the trouble was caused by imperfect core in the carbon. No, carbons do not deteriorate, but if kept in a very damp place they should be thoroughly dried before using. If you have a ground in your lamphouse you should remove it. It may be due to faulty insulation in the carbon arms of the lamp, or carbon dust settling on the insulation, also it may be that a strand of asbestos wire is touching the lamphouse wall or floor at some point. Find out where the trouble lies and remedy it. As to the "incandescent arc lamp," why, my dear sir, I never heard of such a thing. If y u mean an incandescent lamp, it is quite possible that you will before long be able to project a pretty good 8-foot picture with the incandescent lamp, but I think that will be very close to the limit in size—that is to say, if you want a fairly brilliant picture. As to the Handbook, don't know what the price will be yet, and the weight does not make any difference as the price will include the postage.

He Has Trouble.

R. Prom, Milton, North Dakota, says:

Ever since I started in the game I have been reading the department, and have derived much good therefrom. I am, however, new in the game; also am in trouble. Until lately my Power's Six has projected a good steady picture, but now it, the picture, jumps up and down on the screen, not enough to spoil the show, but just sufficient to irritate those who notice it. At times the picture moves sideways also. The machine stands very steady, and I am sure the fault is in the mechanism. Please let me know as soon as the new Handbook is ready.

The chances are, Brother Prom, that your mechanism has become worn. Try shaking your intermittent sprocket shaft up and down and see if the bushings are not worn. You have not told me what kind of movement it is. If the picture moves up and down four times to every revolution of the machine crank the indication is that either your intermittent sprocket shaft is sprung (very unlikely) or the intermittent sprocket out of round, or dirt on the face of the intermittent sprocket. If the jerking is irregular it might indicate worn bearings, sprocket teeth, loose tension springs or worn cam or cross. The side movement is probably due to end motion in the intermittent sprocket, which can be eliminated by moving the collar on the intermittent sprocket shaft. I cannot tell you just what to do to eliminate the end motion unless I know the number of your machine, because, whereas the collar used to be on the right hand side it is now on the left, or vice versa, I have forgotten which. In describing trouble of this kind, you should be very careful to tell me just exactly what the movement consists of. Examine your intermittent sprocket, using a condensing lens as a magnifying glass, and if the teeth are undercut, or appreciably worn, you should get a new one. In which case I would suggest that it might be the better scheme to arrange with the Nicholas Power Company to send you a loan head, and send yours back to the factory for a thorough overhauling, or if only the intermittent seems to be worn then you might get a new framing carriage, and return the old one for repairs.

He Has Studied.

Walter Collins, Tiffin, Ohio, writes:

Enclosed find answers to questions 118 and 119. I have studied the questions and answers ever since their publication began, and now think it is about time to shoot in some of my own. Have been operating for five years, and reading the department for the same length of time, but this is my first effort to break in. The Lyric Theater, this city, is where I make the wheels and reels go round, and have been doing so for the past thirty-eight months, running two Power's Six A motor-driven projectors. We have a 12½-foot picture at 78 feet, and ¼-size Gundlach lens 5¾ E.F., pulling 35 amperes D.C. According to the new lens dope I should have a lens 1 15 16 inches in diameter, or a half-size lens stopped down. Am using two 7½ condensers and getting even illumination with the above named lenses, although they are wasting a great deal of light, due to their small diameter. My library consists of the following: your Handbook, and nearly all the projection departments for the last three years, which latter is in itself a Handbook, Hawkin's Electrical Guides (six of them), and Hallberg's Motion Picture Electricity. I am anxiously awaiting the new book, and if it is so much better than the old one it must be some book. Don't think I imagine half of this will get into print, but the outburst had to come some time, and now it is out of my system; five years is a long time to wait, you know.

Well, old man, it very nearly all got into print after all, and that too when there is a world of stuff piled up waiting publication. Why? Well, I could not tell you myself just the elements which determined the publication of any given letter. Sometimes it is a matter of balance." You see the editing of a successful department is not such an ingrowing cinch as it looks. It would be comparatively easy to write a department which would be read only by such men as Woods and Dolliver, of San Francisco, Codding of Cleveland, Griffiths, of Ansonia, La Grow of Albany, Armstrong, of Ashland, Martin, of Los Angeles, and men of that type; also it would be easy to write a department to be read only by the operator of small attainment in the way of projection knowledge. But it is up to me to edit a deparment which will please everyone, at least fairly well, not be too "dry," and which will not mortally offend any of the many powers that be, all of which means the exercise of considerable care and such good judgment as I may possess. The Woods type of men may look at a certain letter and say "what in the name of Gehenna did he publish that thing for?" It does not appeal to the high-class operator at all. On the other hand, the high-class, technical article written for the Woods men would not appeal in the least to the other chap and—there you are.

It is entirely possible that you will get even illumination under the conditions you have, but as you say, you are wasting a lot of light, and light, dear heart, is a somewhat expensive article. The use of the terms "quarter" and "half size" is out of date. State diameter in inches, gentlemen, and we will then know exactly what you mean. Yes, I think you will find that the new Handbook is some book, all right, though I say it as "oughtent."

A Fine Thing.

Detroit, Michigan, says:

The projection department certainly is a fine thing. I read it with much interest and from it derive great benefit; also your Handbook is something which no real operator can afford to be without. No matter how much he may know he cannot fail to receive benefit from that particular book. And by-the-way I want a copy of the new one as soon as it is ready. Enclosed find subscription for one year, and can I secure copies of the World containing the light ray experiments?

Yes, Detroit, you can get the light ray experiment numbers by remitting the sum of sixty cents to the Moving Picture World, asking for the copies covering September 18th to October 23d inclusive. Watch the columns of the World for announcement of issue of Handbook. Have just finished numbering the cuts—317 illustrations, as against 175 in the second edition. The Light Ray Dope will be in the new book.

THE NEW HANDBOOK

In reply to many inquiries received from our friends, we beg to announce that the third edition of the Motion Picture Handbook will be ready for mailing to purchasers early in March. The price has not yet been determined.

Definite information as to price and exact publication date will be given in an early issue.

THE CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.
17 Madison Ave., New York City

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

Fading Out Devices.

The modern cameraman finds it necessary in order to keep up with the times to have at his disposal a number of devices which, a few years ago, were seldom, if ever, used.

Many beautiful effects which, when properly used, add a greatly enhanced value to the beauty of the photography and lend to the capable director a variety of effects hitherto not at his command may be obtained by a few comparatively simple devices.

In the old days it was seldom that even the common fade out was used. Today there is scarcely a picture in which the simple fade out does not occur at least once, and generally several times. On account of the number of different devices used in securing similar or nearly similar effects there has been a confusion in the nomenclature used in designating the different effects; therefore it will not be amiss to explain briefly in this regard the terms used and the means of distinguishing between the various effects and the apparatus by which they are produced.

Fade-out and fade-in: these terms are open to the criticism of being too general in their application, but being the oldest form of an effect in motion pictures and having the sanction of long usage designate respectively the even fading of the entire picture within the frame to blackness and the general transformation of a picture filling the entire frame from total obscurity to brightness.

This effect may be obtained in several ways: first, by closing the iris diaphragm in the lens while turning; second, by a dissolving shutter; third, by a graduated screen; fourth, by chemical means.

The first method is probably the commonest, but is open to the objection that most iris diaphragms do not close entirely and that it is therefore impossible to make a complete fade, especially in a brightly lighted location. There is also the objection that, as the diaphragm closes, the depth of focus increases and there is a very perceptible sharpening of the focus as the image darkens, giving the unpleasant suggestion that the scene was not as sharply focused as it could have been.

No matter what stage of development has been reached in the attainment of artistic (?) effects by the "fuzzytype" school of still-photography, cinematography has not yet reached the stage where "fuzzytype" results can be tolerated in the picture. The psychology of vision permits one to view a motionless landscape or a still life through half-closed eyelids for the attainment of an artistic effect, but a moving object demands open-eyed attention and sharply focused eyes to delineate its contour and the inability of the eye to sharpen the definition of an out-of-focus picture results in an irritation to the eye which is not only a mental abomination, but an actual and harmful physical eye-strain. On the other hand, razor-blade sharpness in every plane of a motion picture is not always essential nor is it natural. The human eye only discerns clearly those objects which are in the plane on which it is focussed, and it is an insurmountable law of physics that no lens should be in focus at all distances, whether it is a photographic objective or the cornea of the human eye. Let us not forget, however, that the human eye has a lens of extremely short focus and accommodates itself almost unconsciously so that in taking near objects with a large apertured objective the fuzziness of a distant background is very much greater to the longer focussed wide apertured lens objective than it is to the human eye and that the selection of a background very close or very dark gives a much better effect than the exaggerated mushiness of a brilliantly lighted distant background.

The shutter fade-out gives the best effect, as the image fades uniformly and completely away. The shutter fade-out is a mechanical device by which, while the shutter is revolving, one blade advances over the shutter opening until it is entirely closed, thereby gradually decreasing the successive exposures from normal to nothing. Its range being always the same renders it much superior to the diaphragm fade out, as the diaphragm fade out may be from the largest aperture at one time and from F 16 at another, and it is practically impossible to give a properly graded fade out from a small stop, as the arc of movement from a small stop to closure is too short.

The Bell-Howell camera is practically the only well-known make of camera in which the shutter dissolve or fade out, as it is variously known, is incorporated in the original instrument. Such a shutter can be installed in any make of camera by a competent mechanic, and while the cost will probably range around a hundred dollars or more, no photographer who has used one would part with it for twice its cost. A shutter fade out may be either hand operated or automatic. In the hand operated shutter dissolve the shutter opening is controlled by a lever with a graduated arc which indicates the shutter opening. The automatic dissolve is operated by a push button which throws in a clutch on a screw which operates the shutter, while a dial indicator shows the closing or opening of the shutter blades. It is open to the objection that it works at one speed only, and consequently produces a fade out of only one certain length, while a hand operated dissolve may be varied to any desired extent.

The graduated screen fade-out is not much used and consists of a strip of glass sliding in a race or grooveway as close in front of the lens as possible. This strip of glass varies in intensity from clear glass at one end to complete opacity at the other. To make one of these strips, place an unexposed contrast plate in a holder in the dark room and insert the slide into the holder just far enough to cover about one inch of the plate. Place it facing a distant incandescent lamp and have some one turn it on at a word of command, at which time slip the slide home slowly and evenly. On development you will have a plate clear at one end where protected by the slide, with a deposit increasing in density to the other end. With a good glass cutter this can be cut into several strips, each wide enough for your purpose. Cut another similar strip of clear glass for a cover and bind or cement them together to protect the graduated screen. Slip the clear end in the groove in front of the lens and take the scene which you wish to fade out through this. When the fade out is to occur, slide the glass strip slowly across the lens until the opaque portion covers the aperture.

In using the graduated screen it is essential that a hood be used which prevents any stray light from falling on the screen or there will be a decided degradation in your negative, due to light scattered by the screen.

The chemical method of producing fade outs is a last resort, as it is a very difficult matter to obtain an evenly graduated fade out, owing to the uneven action of the chemicals. It is a very valuable aid to have in reserve, however, as a fade out may be placed anywhere it is thought desirable after a picture is taken.

To produce a chemical fade out make up one of the following formulas:

Cyanide of potash	1 oz.
Water	20 oz.

or

Ferricyanide (red prussiate) of potash	1 oz.
Water	10 oz.

The first formula works better and quicker, but is a very deadly poison and should be used with extreme care.

To use either formula wrap a piece of rubber cloth about the roll of film which is to be reduced, leaving the end on which you are to work projecting about a foot longer than the fade out you intend to make and fasten securely with rubber bands.

To 4 oz. of the cyanide of potash solution add just before using 3 dr. of tincture of iodine, or if you use the ferricyanide solution take 4 oz. of it and add it to an equal quantity of plain 1 to 4 hypo solution. Place whichever solution you are about to use in a saucer or other shallow dish and have ready a tray in which you have placed an equal quantity of acid hardener solution and water. This acid hardener and water acts as a short-stop in case your reducing solution should act too quickly.

Lay a clean board or a long strip of glass or even the back of a large tray in the sink and place the end of the film down the incline with the end which is to be darkened at the lowest point. Then with a swab of absorbent cotton dipped in the reducing solution, commence to swab the lower end of the film with the solution, gradually working upward, so that as you come to the roll the reducer has less and less time to work upon the emulsion. If you are not familiar with this procedure it is well to experiment a few times with waste strips of negative before attempting to produce a chemical fade out on a valuable negative. If you have carried the process through correctly the reducer will have dissolved away the picture entirely at the lower end of the film, leaving it perfectly clear, from which will be a succession of faint images gaining in strength up to the point where they join the roll and the fade begins. Immerse this quickly in the acid hardener to stop the action of the reducer, which will otherwise continue for some time if not checked; although plain water may be used as a check, it does not stop the reducing action at once, and must be applied before the reduction is quite complete.

In case the formula for hardener is not at hand, it may be mixed up according to the following formula:

Water	5 oz.
Sodium sulphite (desiccated)	½ oz.
Acetic acid No. 8	3 oz.
Alum, powdered	½ oz.

The Dissolve: The dissolve is a combination of a fade out and fade in, lapped over one another. The effect is that of a scene gradually disintegrating and dissolving to another. This effect is attained by fading out, and then with the lens covered turning the film back to the point where the fade out began and then fading in the succeeding scene so that the following scene is fully faded in at the expiration of the fade out. This may be done by any of the methods described under the Fade-out, but in the case of a chemical dissolve it becomes necessary to overlap two pieces of film where the fade out and fade in occur, which occasions a great deal of trouble in printing, on account of the extra thickness of film and the trouble caused by re-winding a negative with this overlap, which can only be cemented at one end because if it is cemented at both ends the rolling up of the negative will cause a buckle in the film at the second joint because whichever film in the dissolve is on the outside of the roll will prove too short to encircle the roll, having to circumscribe a larger diameter.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Where there are a number of prints to be made from a chemical dissolve it is often advantageous to make a dupe negative of the dissolve portion and cement that into the negative in place of the cumbersome overlap.

Circle-in and Circle-out: Also called circle vignette or round dissolver. As the instrument with which this effect is produced is an iris diaphragm it is sometimes miscalled "Diaphragm in" and "Diaphragm out," but this term should not be applied to it because it confuses it with an entirely different effect caused by diaphragming in and out with the lens diaphragm which produces a fade-in or fade-out.

Fig. 1.—Circling-In Device.

The circling-in instrument or outside diaphragm is mounted upon the end of an extensible lens hood and produces the effect of the image disappearing at the corners of the frame, gradually diminishing in a circular form to a round dot, which also disappears in blackness. The sharpness or diffusion of the edges of this circle are determined by the distance between the outside diaphragm and the lens and also by the lens aperture used. The nearer the outside diaphragm is placed to the lens the more out of focus it becomes and consequently the softer the gradation of the edge of the circle. This instrument of late has come into extensive use, not only for circling in and circling out, but also for isolating the expression of any particular character in the close up from the background, in which case after focusing upon a close view of the character at the stop used, the outside diaphragm is gradually closed until everything except the features to be shown are obliterated by the iris blades.

Figure No. 1 represents a device for this purpose fixed upon a camera.

Square Closing Dissolve: This effect is very much the same as the preceding one, with the exception that the form of dissolve is that of a diminishing square instead of a circle. Such a device is illustrated in Figure No. 2.

Curtain Dissolve: In a curtain dissolve the effect is similar to that of drawing a curtain down in front of the scene or may be varied by the effect of a curtain descending to meet a rising screen in the center of the frame. Such a device is illustrated in Figure No. 3. This device is shown in combination with the circle-in device, either of which may be used independently of the other, or the curtain device may be turned at right angles and be used to close the picture like two sliding doors, or the plates may be used independently for double exposure work by being set by hand, giving the divided stage whereby one actor may play a dual role in the same scene.

Fig. 2.—Square Closing Dissolve.

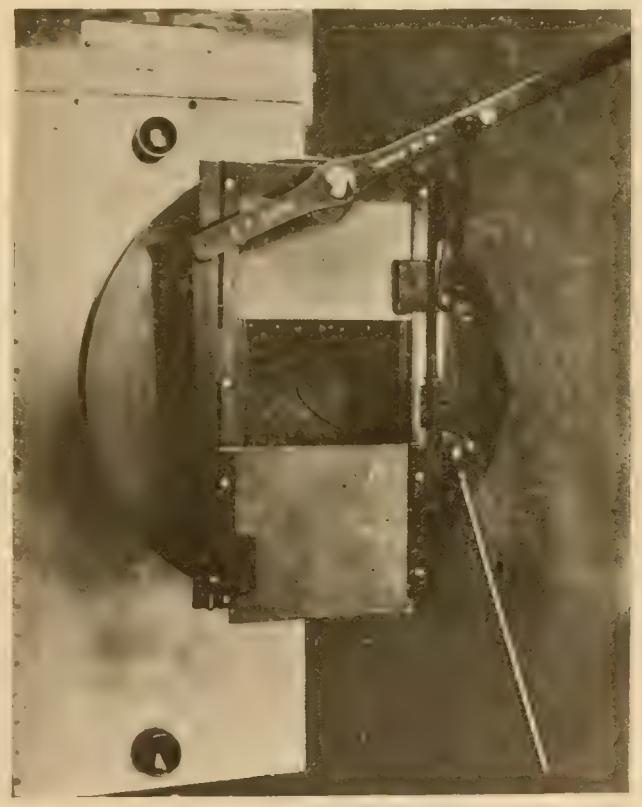

Fig. 3.—Curtain Dissolve.

The Square Closing Dissolve and the Curtain Dissolve, as shown in the illustrations, are two separate devices, but either one could have easily been altered so as to combine all of the effects of the two different pieces of apparatus. It is scarcely necessary to draw attention to the fact that the square and curtain closing dissolve require sharper outlines than the circling-in device and should therefore be used at their fullest extension from the lens.

Figure 4 is the side view of Figure No. 3.

Double Exposure: The effects possible to produce by double exposure are of such infinite variety that it is only possible to treat them in a general way, leaving to the ingenuity of the individual photographer to attain such effects as may occur to his imagination. Double exposures may be divided into two large general classes, the first of which is the split or divided stage double exposure, and the other the spirit or vision double. In the split or divided stage double, the scene is divided in any way desirable by a mask inserted either in the lens hood or in the aperture plate at the frame opening. As a mask plate inserted before the frame opening produces a hard, sharp division line, it is generally used where such a sharply defined line is advantageous, such as the double exposure of a portrait in the frame or of a reflection in the mirror, etc. The mask inserted in the lens hood, however, gives a diffused dividing line which blends easily with the second exposure, as for instance, where a character plays a dual role the dividing line in the room or other set blends so nicely with the second exposure that the line of demarkation between the two exposures is imperceptible. In the second class called the spirit or vision variety of double exposure no mask is used for the first exposure, and a mask may or may not be used for the second. It is necessary that that section of the frame or picture where the vision is to appear should be in subdued lighting such as heavy shadow or very dark background, so that when the second or vision exposure is made the first exposure will not be so heavy or intense as to obliterate the second or vision image.

As film which has already been acted upon by the light in the first exposure is not as sensitive as in its virgin state, it is necessary, unless the vision is to be very slight indeed, to increase considerably the exposure for the vision, especially where the outlines of the vision are cut off by a double exposure mask since the mask acts not only as a mask but also gives the effect of closing the lens diaphragm.

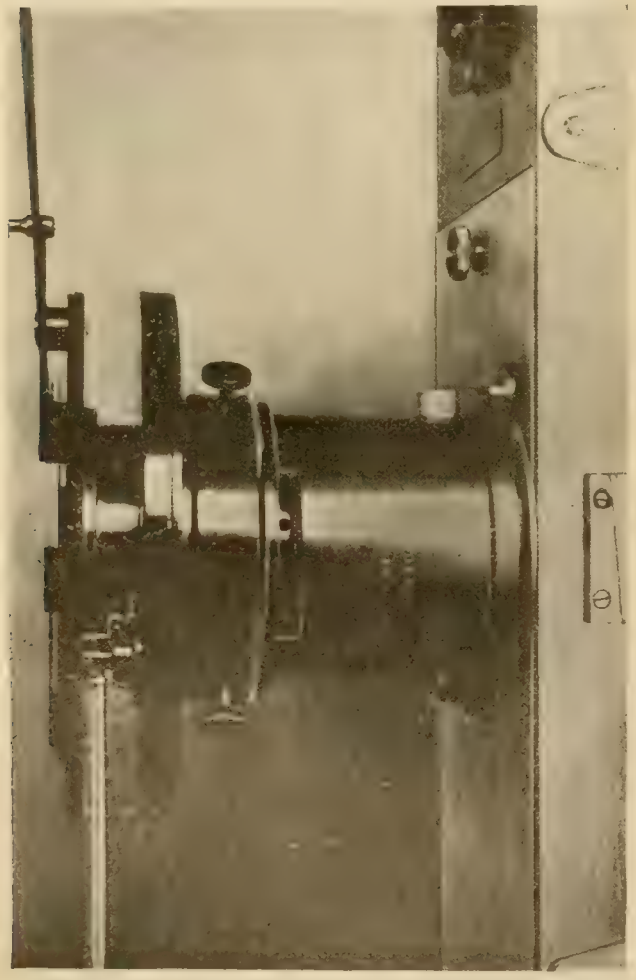

Fig. 4.—Curtain Dissolve and Circling-In Device.

Figure 5 shows a double exposure box attached to the lens hood provided with grooves and holder for carrying masks which may be cut from stiff black paper in any required shape or size.

Williamson Junior Camera.

Williamson Camera, Ogdensburg, N. Y., comes with the following troubles:

As I am a constant reader of your valuable magazine, I wish to ask you a few questions. I am a free lance photographer doing local work and also some weekly news events and have a Williamson Junior Camera. I realize it is a cheap camera, but I get perfect results from it with the exceptions of two things, and I cannot get away from them. Once in a while I have a scratched film and I know it comes from the aperture plate, but cannot remedy it. Do you think I could glue some velvet on same and remedy it? I was thinking of taking two strips of thin velvet and glueing them on each side where the perforations are and have the picture part clear of everything. The pieces would be about one-eighth of an inch in width. Would this help it any?

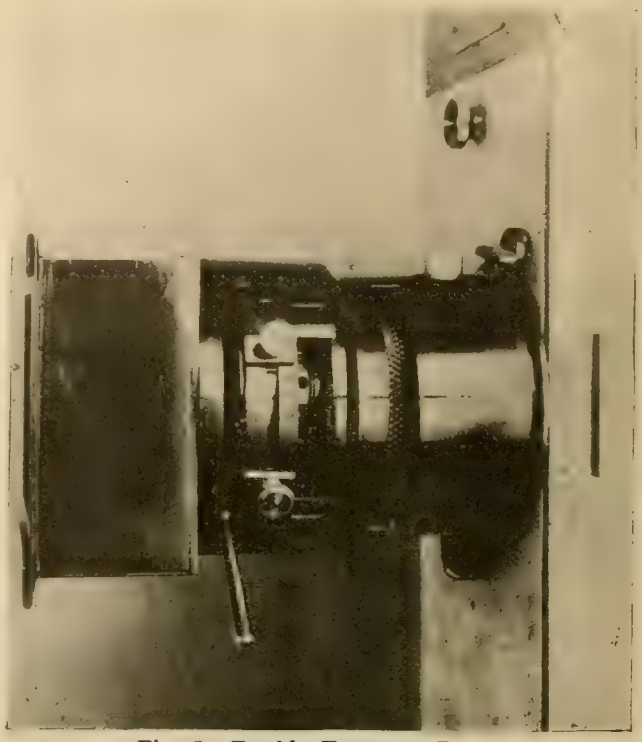

Fig. 5.—Double Exposure Box.

Another one of my worst troubles is that the bottom magazine does not always take up. I can crank all day in the house with old film in it and it works all right, but when I want to get some event of importance, it winds all up in the camera. It is a spring belt and I have already cut about one inch of it off and made it tighter. It slips on the bottom pulley. It seems to work all right until the magazine gets almost full, then it starts and then again it will work fine. Please tell me what the trouble is? I read in your magazine that other camera operators are having trouble with static. I am not bothered with it at all and I have taken some pictures as cold as twenty degrees below zero. I do not even use X-back film. According to Brother Lawrence of Oakland, California, in January 8th World, there cannot be any electricity in me.

You might try the scheme you suggest with the velvet or better still, take the camera apart and get a machinist to mill out with a milling cutter a space an inch wide and one-thirty-second or a little less deep, from the center of the track beneath the gate to within a quarter inch of the frame opening above and below so that the film will not touch the aperture plate except on the perforated edges and just at the frame opening.

Smooth it carefully with rouge cloth and clean frequently while using and lubricate the aperture plate very lightly each time you load with a little vaseline or three-in-one oil.

Loose fitting take-up magazines are frequently the cause of take-up trouble with small cameras. This may generally be remedied by a small thumb screw inserted in the back of the camera to engage with a small plate tapped and threaded for the screw let into the back of each magazine. When the magazine is in place, it is fastened rigidly by engaging the thumb screw and tightening it. If you are handy with tools, you can do this for yourself very satisfactorily.

Be sure and make certain that the spindle of each magazine is thus held in perfect alignment with the arbor of the take-up pulley and that the groove in the take-up pulley has not been worn so smooth that the spring belt fails to "bite" properly.

EACH DEPARTMENT

Of the Moving Picture World is edited by an expert with practical experience in his particular field. Do you follow them closely? Each issue is full of meat. A file of the Moving Picture World constitutes a valuable addition to your working library.

Why not obtain back issues in bound volume form?

Volume 26, 2474 pages, closely indexed, now ready. Price, $1.50.

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.,
17 Madison Ave., New York City.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by Clarence E. Sinn and S. M. Berg

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS concerning any phase of the work of the orchestral leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

Mr. Berg would be pleased to hear from those leaders and musicians who are using the Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets which he prepares for the V-L-S-E, Metro, World, Equitable and Mutual feature releases as to their practical usefulness and assistance in playing the pictures. He also invites any criticisms or suggestions from those interested in the work for their improvement for the service of the film.

MUSICAL SETTING FOR "FOR A WOMAN'S FAIR NAME."

Released February 28 by the V-L-S-E-, Inc.

Suggestions Prepared by S. M. Berg.

By special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.

THIS "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of V-L-S-E films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "For a Woman's Fair Name" were prepared by Mr. Berg, who is associated with the Photoplay Department of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-titles (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Pierce's wife, Vivien, newlywed, and McGregor, a friend, are found in rather suspicious, though strictly honest, circumstances by Bolles, Pierce's secretary, who is a dope fiend. McGregor loves Alicia, Pierce's sister, and so does Bolles, so he threatens to reveal everything to Pierce unless McGregor keeps away. Bolles, repeatedly rebuked for his attentions, shoots Alicia by mistake when in a half-crazed condition. McGregor is accused, and in order to protect Vivien, who was at his home when the shooting occurs, he does not deny the charge. Bolles' mind gives way and he kills himself after Pierce has choked the truth out of him. Receiving proof of his wife's innocence, Pierce forgives her and McGregor declares his love to Alicia, who recovers from the shot.

The whole character of this picture is dramatic and the music should be subdued and expressive.

The THEME selected is "Oh, that we two were Maying."—Nevin.

Time schedule: five reels (about 4,700 feet), 70½ minutes.

Time.		Sub titles or descriptive cues.	Music.
	D	Opening.	Oh that we two were Maying. (Allegretto—Nevin. Con espressione) (THEME)
2¼	T	At home after their honeymoon.	A Woman's Word—Fysher. (Valse lento)
4¼	T	Bolles calls on his half brother.
6	T	When McGregor sees his brother.	Legende—Friml. (Moderato)
9½	T	"Eyes off, McGregor."
10	T	Blowing it in while it lasts.	Celtic Dance—Bullard. (Andante)
11½	T	—"Let's ride out into the country—"
12½	T	"In fair or foul weather—"	Agitato No. 3.*
14	T	"Say, who is she?"	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
15½	T	"Know them? You bet. That's my half-brother and his wife."	Prelude—Jarnefelt. (Allegro quasi allegretto)
19¼	T	"Why did he call me Mrs. McGregor?"
20¼	T	In the morning.	Agitato No. 4.*
21½	T	"Come, it will make it worse to explain."	Aria (F" Minor)—Schumann. (Andante cantabile)
24¼	T	Approaching shadows.
25¼	T	The new secretary.	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
26	T	"Mr. Bolles, my secretary."
27½	T	"Bob, do you approve of that?"	Madrigal and Valse lente. (L'Enfant prodigue)—Wormser.
31	T	McGregor becomes a constant caller.
32	T	"It may hurt you to listen to me—"	Enchanted Hour—Mouton.
35	T	"Mr. McGregor was provoked."	(Andantino)
37	T	"If you don't love me, why did you—"	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
39½	D	When McGregor returns home.	Kamenoi Ostrow—Rubinstein. (Moderato)
42	T	"I'd like to speak to you, Sir."
43	T	"So I'm discharged because I love Alicia?"	Dramatic Allegro No. 1.
43½	T	"Ask your wife."
45¼	T	"I am going away and I wanted to say good-bye."	Auf Wiedersehen—Romberg. (Moderato)
47¾	T	"So you are going away?"
48¾	T	"Oh, we're listening, are we?"	Love's Torment—Caruso (Valse lento)
50	T	"Go on tell him. I'm tired of it all.'
51¾	T	"I can't let you go, Alicia loves you."	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
52½	T	"Have you seen Mrs. Pierce?"
53¾	D	When Pierce walks outside on the lawn.	Agitato No. 2.*
54¾	T	McGregor's servant traces the shot.	Adagio Cantabile from the B minor Sonata—Strauss.
57¼	T	"He couldn't have fired the shot."
59	T	After a three days' fight for Alicia's life.	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
61	T	Doubts and fears.
62	T	"McGregor has failed to establish an alibi."	Mignonette—Friml. Allegro scherzando)
63¾	D	When Pierce finds his wife on the lawn bench.
65¼	T	In the crazed mind of Bolles—	Chant sans paroles -Friml. (Andante)
66½	T	"Bob, I have come to tell you."	Hurry No. 1.*
67¾	T	"Yet, I did it. I killed Alicia and now I'll kill you."
68¼	D	Shot.
69	T	When all that had been doubted had been explained.	Repeat: Oh that we two, etc. (THEME)
70½	T	The End.

Note: For the convenience of readers of the Moving Picture World a price list of the numbers suggested in the above cue-sheet is to be found in G. Schirmer's advertisement on page 1568.

How to Prepare a Musical Setting.

By S. M. Berg.

Many inquiries have been addressed to the editor in regard to how to prepare a musical setting for a picture when, by some unforseen circumstance, neither a score nor a musical suggestion cue sheet has arrived before or with the film. For this reason an attempt will be made to give some guides along this line to those musicians who are anxious to fittingly portray the character of the film, but who have not had the experience to assemble the proper music.

The first thing is to have the picture run at a normal speed and without making anything more than mental notes carefully note the character of the story, viz.: Whether the action is dramatic or light comedy, western, mining or feudal, and also the nationality of the characters. For instance, if it is a western picture and there happens to be an Indian character introduced, it does not follow that Indian music is oppropriate. Should it be a drama with one character that adds a touch of comedy here and there, it does not give license to noisy popular music. A feudal story may be intensely dramatic with possibly but one exciting moment.

In first viewing the picture what should be striven for is to get an idea of the general atmosphere, deciding whether or not a theme is adapted to it. Those associated with the highest ideals of music for the picture are all agreed that the theme is an appropriate musical conception to a story but care must be taken in choosing the scenes where it is to be played. Note whether the leading character has a love interest for another character; a child, a sweetheart or a wife, and at scenes where they are together or when one has a vision of the other the theme can be used to advantage. Then the theme should be varied, that is, it might be played as a violin solo at one scene, cello solo at another, cornet muted at another and so on.

After viewing your picture the first time, having decided upon the character of the story and have selected some fitting theme, view your picture again, taking note of all sub-titles. A picture player will discover within a very short time of his being associated with the business that a change of music is frequently needed and no sub-title is available to act as a warning cue. In such an instance as this he must create what the writer has named a "descriptive cue," which is a description of the action going on. Let us suppose a woman is seated in the dusk sewing under the light of a lamp, or idly rocking herself, or playing the piano, when a face is seen at the window or a hand appears through the curtains. Then a door slowly opens and the scene continues showing some form of burglary. There would be no warning sub-title saying that the burglar is now coming, so it is for the musician to then write an abbreviation of this action and be prepared with some mysterioso suitable to the character of the action. Then again at the end of such a scene there may be a struggle, a murder, possibly only a burglary with the leading character having no knowledge of what is happening. When the scene is over some warning must be given to again change the music. If no title is available a description of action must again be noted.

A fault with many players of the pictures is to overdo the music. Leaders and musicians must remember that an audience wants to hear pleasing music, that at the same time is fitting and portrays the action. Let us imagine we are cueing a picture that had several scenes where dancing was taking place so that we were compelled to play a good deal of dance music.. In such a case as this we must select the balance of the music to act as a foil for what we are forced to play in order to create a pleasing combination. Nothing is more monotonous than to sit and listen for an hour or more to airs of one character as in such a case as mentioned above. Some pleasing intermezzos or solos for any particular instrument would lend variety to the musical program. We all, at times, have to handle those lively western pictures which call for a considerable amount of allegro movements. Some leaders will, for a picture of this kind, simply bunch together a number of these motives wherein had they used discretion in noting the scenes of slower action and interposed some pleasing number when the scene had changed, and an allegro movement was really needed, it would result far more pleasing and effective.

Certain manufacturers are producing a kind of feature pictures which are morbid and intensely dramatic almost all through the five reels. Particular care must be taken not to overplay these pictures. At the really vital points where this is needed it will heighten the illusion to play some Chopin prelude or andante movement so long as some appropriate number had been previously played. If one insists on playing morbid music all through, the effect of pathos, when required, is lost. The motion picture industry is still young, and none of us can say that we are prepared for every situation, but careful thought will materially help to solve the daily problems.

An important member of a theater orchestra is the drummer, and if he uses discretion and has a slight vein of humor, his services are invaluable. A short time ago there was released by the Vitagraph Co. of America a five-reel comedy drama, entitled "What Happened to Father," featuring Mr. Frank Daniels as "Father." At almost every scene in which Mr. Daniels appeared there was a brush of some kind lying handy, and if he did not discover one nearby, as a last resort, he brought one from his pocket and started to brush his hair. In preparing the cue sheet for this picture the writer suggested that during this action the drummer should attempt to create some scratching noise which would bring out the humor. In order to see how this was carried out he visited two theaters. At one the drummer totally ignored the action and much of the "artistic" comedy was lost to the audience. At the second theater, however, there was one of those fellows who are not above accepting an idea, and he was prepared with a couple of pieces of sandpaper which he adroitly manipulated in these scenes. Needless to say he got a great deal more laughter than the other drummer did. It is not the big efforts of musicians that are appreciated, but these little touches which bring to the audience the human interest portrayed on the screen. At a scene of a child touching the piano the orchestra should be stopped and a few bars played disjointedly by the pianist. In fantastic action sometimes a harp and lute can be well duplicated by piano and clarinet. A storm cloud, pattering of rain, train action or a steam whistle if followed in moderation will materially help to bring out those hidden possibilities of a picture and give to the audience a little more of its true worth. Musicians should realize that if they will try to carry out such suggestions the security of their positions will be greatly increased and reciprocation on the part of the manager will be in the form of a larger salary for the man that is able to utilize the common sense with which most of us are gifted.

METRO COMPANY IN SAVANNAH.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, with a company of twenty-five other principals, have gone to Savannah, Ga., where they are at work on the sensational Metro wonderplay, "The Wall Between," one of the most pretentious productions ever attempted by Metro. Besides the Metro players five hundred regular army soldiers will be used, together with 1,500 negroes who will appear in battle scenes between United States soldiers and an uprising among the blacks of Nicaragua.

To obtain correct and realistic settings for some of the scenes the Metro Company has arranged to use both interiors and exteriors of Fort Servian, near Savannah. Scenes will be photographed in the grounds of the fort, and some of the most important action preceding the battle scenes will be made in the officers' quarters. Gatling guns will be used and scores of horses. Mr. Bushman has taken along two of his own thoroughbred horses, which he keeps at his country estate, Bushmanor, near Baltimore. He will ride one of the horses in "The Wall Between," and Charles Prince will ride the other.

"The Wall Between" will be produced under the direction of John W. Noble, who is a graduate of West Point, and who served seven years in the United States Army. He will be assisted by William "Bill" Bailey. Among the many interesting features will be several allegorical scenes, including a reproduction of the famous painting, "The Spirit of '76."

In addition to Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne, the supporting cast includes Charles Prince, Helen Dunbar, John Davidson, Edward Brennan, Sidney Cushing, Thomas Brooks, Alice Gordon and other well-known players.

Bluebird Creates New Film Star

GENERAL MANAGER M. H. HOFFMAN, of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., will exploit a new film-star in "The Grip of Jealousy," to be released February 24 in the Bluebird program. Louise Lovely is her name—and she's all that. She came to Joseph De Grasse, director for Bluebird, only three months ago for work as an extra; although in Australia, whence she had just arrived, she had acquired quite an enviable reputation as a dramatic player upon the stage.

Louise Lovely.

Mr. De Grasse saw possibilities in her, and cast her for a rather important role in one of his productions. Before she had taken more than a half dozen scenes he was convinced that she was adapted as very few women are for motion picture work. Her type of beauty fits her eminently for the screen, and the camera, which is so cruel to many extremely beautiful women, is more than kind to her.

In the cast of her first picture she was known by her stage name, which by the way is her family name, Louise Carbasse. It was decided by the powers that be that the family name of Carbasse was a needless handicap to fasten upon such a lovely actress, and the Bluebird Company wrote to her, asking if she would not adopt the name of Louise Lovely as her screen name. She readily consented to this, and from now on she will be known as Louise Lovely.

DAVID POWELL JOINS KLEINE FORCES.

David Powell, whose work was so strikingly effective in "The Dawn of Tomorrow," has joined the forces of George Kleine. Mr. Powell will be cast for the role of Richard Freneau in the coming Rupert Hughes' novel in which Billie Burke and Henry Kolker will be featured. Mr. Powell has had a long and successful career on the stage and screen. In 1905 at His Majesty's theater in London, he played with Sir H. Beerbohm Tree. Later he supported such stars as Miss Ellen Terry, Sir J. Forbes Robertson and Holbrook Blinn. He has interpreted leading roles for Arthur Hammerstein, Charles Frohman, David Belasco and Klaw & Erlanger in such productions as "Outcasts," "The Hyphen," "The Trap" and "The Fallen Idol." His screen successes include "The Fatal Card," "One of Our Girls," "The Dawn of Tomorrow" and "Fine Feathers." "Mr. Powell's rare dramatic ability and his exceptional adaptability to the part of Richard Frenau in the new Billie Burke novel, induced us to secure him," said George Kleine. "We have a wonderful cast for this picture."

DEATH OF NED REARDON.

Ned Reardon, for the past two years in Eastern Universal Productions, died February 4th at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, after a gallant eight weeks' fight with pneumonia. The body was shipped to Mr. Reardon's mother in Boston for burial. Ned Reardon played most exclusively with King Baggot. He was a very versatile screen actor and before joining the Baggot company had appeared in Edison pictures, previous to which he had had a long experience on the stage. One of his most notable Universal pictures was "The Corsican Brothers," the famous Baggot double-exposure feature. Mr. Reardon was unmarried. His last Universal appearance was with Mr. Baggot in "Almost a Papa." The Universal Heights studios sent a massive wreath to the services at Boston.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Kleine Highly Commends the Harry Watson Comedies.

GEORGE KLEINE paid the city a brief visit last week, arriving Saturday, Feb. 19, and returning to New York by the Twentieth Century the following Monday. During a short interview I learned that the company making the Billie Burke serial is at present in Palm Beach, Fla., where the members will remain four weeks. They are securing some fine scenes in that vicinity which will appear in the first two episodes. Quite a number of the episodes have already been finished, Mr. Kleine stated.

A flood of applications for contracts is coming in from all parts of the country, but Mr. Kleine stated that no contracts are being made at present. Quite a number of offers have been received from exhibitors who have signed blank contracts, leaving the amounts to be filled in by Mr. Kleine.

The date of the opening release has not yet been decided upon, but it will, in all likelihood, be around May 1.

Mr. Kleine is particularly interested just now in the Harry Watson comedies. The first set of ten one-reelers is nearly completed, and these will be released to regular picture houses in March, after having had a preliminary run in a few of the finest houses throughout the country.

Owing to the fact that Harry Watson was an unknown quantity as a film comedian, Mr. Kleine wished to demonstrate that these comedies would make a pronounced hit in the best theaters. His expectations are being fully realized and the impression has already been created that they are the best type of comedies since the early days of the industry. They possess those qualities that give snappy entertainment and at the same time they are clean and wholesome.

Mr. Kleine points to the fact that a feature of the making of these comedies is the great condensation of incidents and well sustained action. Every reel has been compressed from an original length of from 3,000 to 5,000 feet, so that every foot of film has its snap and ginger. Because of this quality it can be readily seen that one can view them again and again and be thoroughly entertained. One of the advantages resulting from this is that it makes possible the booking of these comedies in competing houses, it making little matter which house has shown the latest released comedy first.

Mr. Kleine paid a hearty tribute to the director of the Watson comedies, in acknowledgment of the universal, not to say extraordinary, originality shown in their making, as almost all of the business of the action is the director's own invention. This director is Louis Myll, who was in Italy with Mr. Kleine while he was producing "Du Barry." Mr. Myll was with David Belasco for nine years. He had not directed films until he took up Harry Watson, his position previously in the film business having been that of manager of productions.

Interesting Interview on the Condition of the Pacific Coast Trade.

R. W. Horn, for many years with the Kleine Optical Company, and now special traveling representative of the Nicholas Power Company, arrived in the city Tuesday, Feb. 15, and will remain for several weeks.

Mr. Horn has held his present position for a year and a half, and most of the time has been spent on the Pacific Coast. He is familiar with the field there from San Diego to Vancouver, B. C., and claims that he has seen every exhibitor in San Francisco and Los Angeles in the interests of his company. He is, therefore, in a position to give an accurate description of the condition of the trade in Pacific Coast territory.

"Without any doubt the most perfect projection in the United States is found on the Pacific Coast," says Mr. Horn. And this is accounted for by the statement that all the operators in high class theaters are, practically, electrical engineers and receive high pay. Some of the operators in the best theaters in San Francisco are paid as high as $40, $50 and $60 per week. "They are high class men and a credit to the trade," Mr. Horn told me, with an air of enthusiasm.

In San Francisco at the present time there are 116 moving picture theaters, and in some of them the owners have spent as much as $4,000 in the equipment of a single operating room, where three machines and a dissolver are used in the same room. Power machines are used in a majority of houses in the Golden Gate city, Mr. Horn said, without any attempt to exaggerate.

Mr. Horn had charge of the Nicholas Power Company's booth at the exposition during its entire run. He kept a tab of the daily calls at the booth at that time, and at the close found that the daily average calls made by exhibitors was 215. These people came from all parts of the world. Especial interest was taken in the booth display by Japanese and Chinese exhibitors. Quite a number of the visiting exhibitors were from South America. "All spoke in high terms of the Power's 6 and 6A machines," Mr. Horn assured me. He also stated that the machines stand high in the favor of exhibitors from Vancouver to San Diego.

The exhibiting department of the trade is in a healthy condition all over the Coast territory. Admission prices run from 10 to 50 cents for programs of seven reels, on an average. Very few five-cent theaters can be found.

Mr. Horn was accompanied to Chicago by W. W. Lewis, also a traveling representative of the Power Company. From Chicago as headquarters, Messrs. Horn and Lewis will operate in middle western territory, from Pittsburgh to Denver.

Mr. Horn concluded the interesting interview with this voluntary statement: "Wherever I have traveled, I have never found an exhibitor who was not a subscriber to The Moving Picture World."

The Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company.

Watterson R. Rothacker announces that hereafter his company will be known as the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, the successor of the Industrial Moving Picture Company of Chicago.

In explanation, Mr. Rothacker states that the primary reason for this combination is that various companies have been formed and named to trespass upon the name "Industrial," and, as a direct result, the trade has in several instances been confused, and in a number of specific cases people have actually done business under the impression that they were dealing with the Rothacker Company, whereas, as a matter of fact, they had been misled by a name intended to trade upon the prestige gained for the name "Industrial" by the Industrial Moving Picture Company of Chicago.

The Industrial Moving Picture Company was formed six years ago by Mr. Rothacker, Carl Laemmle and R. H. Cochrane, and has the signal distinction of being the first company in the world to specialize in moving picture advertising. The Rothacker-Industrial Company is generally acknowledged as the pioneer and leading specialist in this field.

Another reason given for the new title of the company is that with the opening of the new Rothacker laboratory and studios in Chicago, the scope of the Industrial Moving Picture Company will be largely increased and extended so as to include moving picture production and activities which are beyond the merely industrial field.

Mr. Rothacker desires to give publicity to the fact that the Industrial Moving Picture Company, as an Illinois corporation, will be continued and maintained, and that violators of its corporate rights will be vigorously prosecuted.

The policy and plans of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company will be given in detail to the trade when the formal opening of the new laboratory and studios is officially announced, which will be very soon, probably about April 1.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Essanay has signed William Gillette to appear in his well-known plays, "Sherlock Holmes" and "Secret Service." Mr. Gillette will begin work on the first of these in the near future.

* * *

I. Van Ronkle, Chicago manager of V-L-S-E, Inc., has resigned his position to accept the Chicago management of the Bluebird Photo-Plays, Inc., with headquarters at 107 N. Dearborn street. Mr. Van Ronkle will assume his new duties on Monday, February 21.

* * *

A. F. Heineman, lessee and manager of the Memorial Opera House, Valparaiso, Ind., called last week and subscribed for the World. The Memorial Opera House seats 900 people and is modern in every respect. An admission of 15 cents is charged for mixed features, such as Metro, World, etc., the program consisting of six reels. Valparaiso has a population of about 9,000, and has three moving picture theaters. Mr. Heineman reports very good business. He announces his intention to build a new moving picture theater in Valparaiso that will seat about 1,000 people, and which will probably be named the Strand. When this theater is completed, pictures exclusively will be shown, while the Memorial Opera House will become a road show and vaudeville theater, of which Mr. Heineman will still be manager.

* * *

Leo. R. Ursini, operator of the Orpheum theater, Aurora, Ill., paid us a visit last week, and purchased a copy of Hallberg's Motion Picture Electricity. Mr. Ursini is a member of the Moving Picture Machine Operators, Local No. 221, I. A. T. S. E.

* * *

It reminded me of old times to see A. D. Flintom in the city last week. Mr. Flintom is president of the Kansas City Feature Film Co. in Kansas City, Mo., and he reported favorable business conditions in his vicinity. Mr. Flintom combined business with pleasure during his trip, and was accompanied by Mrs. Flintom.

* * *

W. O. Stevens, owner of the Eagle theater, Princeton, Ill., paid a short visit to the office last week. Mr. Stevens appeared to be much concerned over the difficulties experienced in securing pictures of a sufficiently clean character to please his patrons. In this connection he stated: "Without The Moving Picture World, I would not attempt to run my business. I would get out of it." Mr. Stevens offers programs of five reels at 10 cents, and, of all makes, he prefers the product of the V-L-S-E, Inc. Princeton has a population of 4,000 people, and the moving picture goers are very financial in their estimate of the morality of pictures. The Eagle seats 300 people.

* * *

The second annual ball of the Showmen's League of America was held at the Lexington Hotel, this city, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 16. The gathering was large and the event was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

* * *

"The Clarion," an Equitable feature in five parts, heads the current week's program at the Ziegfeld. Carlyle Blackwell, supported by Marion Dentler, Charles Mason and other prominent players, is the star. A continuation of "Musty Suffer's" experiences as a bell-hop is also on the bill, with Harry Watson in some of his inimitable, mirth-provoking situations.

* * *

L. W. Atwater, sales manager of the Precision Machine Co., Inc., paid the city a visit last week, and was so busy that he had no time to say more than "Howdy?" to me and quite a number of other acquaintances who were glad to meet him.

* * *

Jones, Linick & Schaefer announce that work on the razing of the old building on the site located on State street, between Jackson boulevard and Van Buren street, will begin about March 1. Immediately thereafter the erection of the Rialto theater will begin, and the house is expected to be finished about October 1. The structure will have a ground plot of 100 feet square and will be five stories in height, the entire front on State street being of white terra cotta and granite. The yearly ground rental of the plot will be $65,000; and the cost of the building is estimated at $350,000. A sum of $40,000 has already been paid for the cancellation of leases in the old building.

* * *

A company was organized last week under the title Elmendorf Travel Talks for the purpose of distributing Dwight Elmendorf's travel subjects in two-reel installments, with lectures. Fifty such releases are now ready for release and others will be added as fast as needed. Mr. Elmendorf also purposes to issue, in connection, a series of nature study films. Associated with Mr. Elmendorf in the company are Dr. Albert Lowenthal, of this city, and Wm. Cadoret, of Kankakee, who owns the Le Petite theater in that city. The officers of the company are in the Schiller Building. With the advent of the Burton Holmes travelogue series, released in connection with the Paramount features, and the completion of arrangements for the release of the Elmendorf series, exhibitors will be enabled to bring to their patrons in the smaller cities these fine educational subjects, from which they have been barred in the past.

* * *

F. L. Fraser, part owner, with E. J. Degenhart, of the Princess and Palace theaters, Mendota, Ill., paid a call last week. Mr. Fraser reports improving business. His programs at the present time consist of V-L-S-E, Celebrated Players, Fox and General Film. Five and 10 cents are charged for regular programs, and 10 and 20 cents on feature nights. Mr. Fraser renewed his subscription for the World.

* * *

Walter W. Evans, Jr., special traveling representative for the Precision Machine Co. (Simplex), has arrived in the city from a trip to Detroit, Milwaukee and through adjacent territory, and states that it was very successful from the trade viewpoint. He will remain for some time in the Chicago field, where prospects are attractive at present. He installed a Simplex in the Harrison technical public school shortly after his return.

* * *

The film rental department of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association has moved its offices from the Majestic Theater Building, on Monroe street, Chicago, to the Mallers Building, at the corner of Wabash and Madison street. Manager Adolph M. Eisner is in charge of the office in suite 512 Mallers Building, and is prepared to furnish his customers some fifty odd multiple reel features besides a long list of carefully selected single reel comedies, some peculiarly interesting travel subjects and a single reel dance feature entitled "Adelaide and Hughes in Modern Dances." Mr. Eisner has a wide acquaintance among Chicago exhibitors through his long experience as an exchange manager for the General, the Mutual, and as manager of the E. L. K. office at the time that company was founded, and now that the film department of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association is prepared to take on other customers than the regular vaudeville houses it has long been supplying, it is expected that Mr. Eisner will considerably increase the business of the film rental department.

* * *

In an article in the current number of the Biblical World, Shaler Mathews, dean of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, says in part: "When the success of a church depends on a paid choir or a moving picture machine, that church is ready either for regeneration or burial."

* * *

"The Adventures of Kathlyn," in eight reels, will be the attraction at the Fine Arts theater, this city, for an indefinite run, beginning Saturday evening, February 19. The big film serial has been boiled down to about one-fourth its length, and Frank Cruickshank, who has control of the run, believes that he has a sure winner. An orchestra of 35 pieces, it is promised, will furnish special interpretative music, and a Hindoo atmosphere will prevail throughout the presentation. The ushers will appear in Hindoo garb, and the decorations, both on the exterior and the interior of the theater, will be of Hindoo origin. If the venture at the Fine Arts theater proves a success, the revised edition of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" will be presented in all the large cities in the United States. Great interest is taken in the result, as this big serial was the first, and the most successful of its kind, introduced.

* * *

Colin Campbell, dean of the Selig directing corps, arrived in Chicago Friday, February 11, from Los Angeles. He immediately engaged in conference with William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, regarding completed plans for the production of "The Crisis." Several Selig stars will arrive later in Chicago from the West, and a number of interior scenes of this film drama will be taken in the Chicago studios. Later, St. Louis, Vicksburg and other cities will be visited to make the exterior scenes.

* * *

I have just received a letter from my old friend, George H. Hines, lessee and manager of the Auditorium theater, South Bend, in which he states that business is prosperous and that he has installed his two new Edison machines, costing $600 each. He also enclosed a check for one year's subscription for the World for Charles Vollmer, one of his operators at the Auditorium. But the best news in the letter states that preparations have been made for the building of the Lyda, a new structure that will seat 2,200 people, and named in honor of Mrs. Hines.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

BALBOA STARS SHINE AT HOTEL VIRGINIA BALL.

One Hundred Horkheimer Players Attend Annual Society Festival of Famous Long Beach Hostelry.

ONE of the most successful society events in Southland this season was the Annual Ball at the Hotel Virginia, Friday evening, February 11.

A brilliant array of prominent men and beautiful women had assembled for this occasion, and that the affair was such taken by Balboa Players in the evening's entertainment.

By courtesy of President H. M. Horkheimer of the Balboa Company, three magnificent "Tableaux Vivants" were put on by the Balboa players. The first of these tableaux was called the "War of the Nations," in which was represented all the crowned heads of the belligerents. The second tableaux was a scene from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the third living picture visualized the "Spirit of '76." As a grand finale the "Spirit of 1916" was charmingly portrayed by dainty Miss Ruth Roland.

More than one hundred Balboa players took part in these tableaux, which were staged by Business Manager Norman Manning and costumed from the wardrobes of the Balboa Company.

Charming Corenne Grant as the Indian girl "Pocahontas" was declared to be the most beautiful woman at the ball.

Daniel Gilfeather, made up as "Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria," was the most realistic. Other very good make-ups were Charles Dudley as "Abraham Lincoln," Ray Rockett as "Uncle Sam," and Frank Erlanger as "Victor Emanuel."

The most gorgeous of all the costumes was worn by Harry Harvey in the make-up of "Captain Courtesy." Henry King as Balboa typified the company.

The players in the picture from left to right are—first row: Makato Inokuchi (Emperor of Japan), Norman Manning (Punchinello), Daniel Gilfeather (Frances Joseph, Emperor of Austria), R. Henry Grey (Prince Mirko of Bulgaria), Charles Dudley (Abraham Lincoln), Corenne Grant (Pocahontas), Henry Stanley (Hans Brinker), R. R. Rockett (Uncle Sam), Frank Erlanger (Victor Emanuel, King of Italy), Andrew Arbuckle (Little Eva).

Second row: Harry Harvey (Capt. Courtesy), Reaves Eason (clown), Ruth White (Spanish girl), Joyce Moore ("Red Circle" girl), Frank Mayo (the Roumanian crown prince), Philo McCullough (Grand Duke Sergius of Russia), Bruce Smith (Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany), Henry King (Balboa), Bert Ensminger (Magyar noble), Gordon Sackville (Albert, King of Belgium).

After the ball was over a supper dance was given for the Balboa people. Manager Nestle of the Virginia Hotel said that this was the most successful affair ever held at the hotel.

V-L-S-E Finds Home.

The service of the V-L-S-E, including all the big features, has found a first run permanent home in Los Angeles. Manager J. W. Anderson of the popular Clune's Broadway theater announced this week that the house will open on the 21st with the newest features from this big line.

Mr. Clune is going to spend considerable in entirely remodeling and improving the building. There will be a large new electric sign, with "Home of V-L-S-E Pictures" across the top. The whole house will be given a thorough overhauling prior to the opening.

Mr. W. Fay Lynch, special representative of the Essanay, arrived in town last week and will leave shortly for a round-about return to the home office in Chicago. He reports business as being good all along the line, but says that here it seems to be somewhat better than throughout the middle states.

Board of Trade Meets.

The California Committee of the Moving Picture Board of Trade of America met Tuesday evening and held a busy session. It was decided to enlarge the committee to about fifteen, taking in the publicity men from the large companies, and a few others. The duty of the committee is to look after the interests of the entire industry, and so far some interesting things have been done. Mabel Condon, chairman, presided, and welcomed one new member, M. G. Jonas, manager of the Universal publicity department, the others present being Kenneth A. O'Hara, J. C. Jessen and Clarke Irvine.

Group of Balboa Players at Hotel Virginia Ball.

Actors' Fund Campaign Starts.

The first gun in the big battle to make the allied public forces surrender their jitney ammunition was fired here this week when a large number of stage and screen stars appeared in person at most every house in town on Monday evening. During the week players from everywhere appeared at many theaters, urging the public to donate. At the outset the cash rolled in when the tax was put on at the box offices. For one week the percentage lasted, five or ten cents being added to the price of every ticket sold. A goodly sum was realized in this way.

Friday evening at Levy's cafe, the place where photoplayers always meet, a benefit dinner was served, bringing in another little wad for the big fund. Actors from the Mason Opera House did some stunts for the generous public, and not a table was to be had, as everyone had reserved them before the announcement had been out a day.

Additional names have been added to the original California committee, the list now including, besides Jesse L. Lasky, chairman, and Will Wyatt, vice-chairman, Thomas H. Ince, De Wolff Hopper, Mack Sennett, H O. Davis, F. E. Woods, E. D. Horkheimer, Thomas Persons, Charles F. Eyton, B. H. von Klein, Clarence Drown, J. A. Quinn and Clarke Irvine. E. T. Boyd is secretary and publicity director for the committee.

The Los Angeles people are very appreciative, and are boosting every event that the committee plans. The Mayor, Hon. Charles E. Sebastian, has put his shoulder to the wheel and is helping along with the whole city to make the campaign of the California committee a great success, and if the other events pan out as well as the first, the disabled and aged thespians will surely benefit greatly in the future.

American Opens Publicity Office.

The Flying "A" firm has established a permanent publicity department at their Santa Barbara studios. A letter from Don W. Rayburn, manager of the department, says that a plan will be put through whereby special press pictures of the principals of each company, not the ordinary stills, but costume photos taken in the studio and out on location, will be sent out each week, together with live and up to the minute studio news. This sounds good, so we may expect some exciting tales from the north.

Brevities.

Al Kaufman, erstwhile pugilist, but now a fistic actor for the films, appears in "The Bruiser," a blooded five-reel picture produced by the American, featuring Billy Russell, the champion athlete of the northwestern studio. The story is from the machine of William Parker. Charlotte Burton plays the girl. The piece is in the hands of Charles Bartlett, who is now directing the biggest scenes, fights between the boxer and Russell, who, by the way, is no slouch when it comes to the padded hands and the once overs and unders, and so on, according to the rooter on the ringside.

* * *

William M. Seabury, counsel for the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, arrived in Los Angeles this week, after a much delayed trip across the continent. He attended the Washington fireworks when the crafty censor bill was given a ride in the Congressional scenic railway.

* * *

The Pathe News man, reporter, cameraman, booster, student and everything that a news weekly man must be to get the stuff for the film newspaper, arrived home from his war trip into Mexico. He stayed home long enough to get a pair of shoe laces and a can of film, then hurried off to shoot the big dam break back of San Diego, which swept hundreds of farmhouses away and did other damage.

* * *

"The Love Pirates," the story by George Bronson Howard, is progressing nicely at the Kalem plant, Director James W. Horne now being engaged on the sixth episode. Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby are doing some excellent work in this picture.

* * *

"Free speech, free press and a free stage have always been ideals of the American people. Then why not a free screen?" That is the start of the text of a trailer that Horkheimer Brothers attach to Balboa films. Everybody ought to do it and when the fight against censors starts preparedness will have been cast off for the fighting condition.

* * *

Manager Tally of the Broadway theater which bears his name, recently did a novel stunt which appealed to the patrons of his popular house. One Sunday afternoon it rained very hard, and the line awaiting to see "The Great Divide" was standing partly under awnings and partly under the dripping sky. Mr. Tally promptly pressed into service every umbrella in the office and made his employees, himself, and the World man also, stand beside the line with opened umbrellas and protect the patrons as they passed in. This caused many smiles and remarks of "Some service," "This is certainly thoughtful," and so on. The live exhibitor is surely to be found in Los Angeles.

* * *

The Pathe Exchange is moving this week to its new quarters on Film Row along with the many other exchanges. Manager B. E. Loper has gone to considerable expense in fitting up the new store, and the exhibitors will find it much nicer than the former headquarters. "The Red Circle," made by the Balboa, is booking well, as are the big Pathe pictures.

* * *

L. K. Dewein, cameraman on local duty for the Hearst-Vitagraph news picture, this week filmed a novel model of a clever invention. A local man built an automatic fire escape to be fitted to the stables of large commercial houses. The device is shown working. The fire alarm, automatically operated by a thermostat, opens the stall doors, slaps the animals on the back, and makes them exit hurriedly from the building which is supposed to be on fire. The pictures are very good and quite interesting.

* * *

Report comes that H. E. Aitken, president of the Triangle, is in town to look after the western business of the big three concern.

* * *

George Beban, who starred in "The Alien" and other Ince pictures, is another arrival in the film capital to work in Morosco pictures.

* * *

William Duncan surely is the original traveling man. In his three latest parts he has had quite a bit of traveling to do. "Bill Peters' Kid" took him to the Mojave desert; the Curwood feature, just finished, was staged for the most part in the snows of Big Bear, where Rollin Sturgeon's entire company was snowed in for several weeks; and now the serial in which he is to carry the main lead will, in all probability, take the company to the tropics, including Panama. Meanwhile that big red car of Bill's sits in the garage and runs up bills.

* * *

Some time ago when William Desmond, who is a prominent member of the Inceville forces, was the bright star with the Oliver Morosco stock company, a friend of his took a visitor from the middle west to see Desmond act. During the interval the visitor was informed by the friend that Desmond was the original of "Desperate Desmond." "Gee," said the fellow, "ain't that wonderful, but he looks so handsome up there." "Sure," answered the friend, "that's his clever make-up; he is a terribly desperate looking fellow off the stage." Anyone who knows good looking Desmond Hill will appreciate this.

* * *

At the Vitagraph, William Wolbert is starting work on a pretentious serial of fifteen episodes. The material is "The Hearts of Three," by Jack London, picturized by Charles Goddard, and will feature William Duncan. An excellent cast is being assembled in his support, the only female part being assigned to Carmen Phillips. The locale of the story is Panama and plans are being made for extensive travel.

* * *

Dave Smith is starting production of a clever little one-reel comedy by Joseph F. Poland, featuring Mary Anderson and Webster Campbell.

* * *

Another brilliant writer has been added to the large staff of Thomas H. Ince. The newest addition to the writer's room is Harris Merton Lyon, the well-known short story writer, who was signed several months ago by Mr. Ince to write exclusively for the NYMP firm. Already he has prepared a number of scripts which will be immediately turned over to the producing department.

* * *

Mabel Van Buren, who will be remembered as the girl in "The Master Mind," produced by the Lasky company, and whose latest work in Ramona makes her one of the most popular of the day, has returned to the Lasky studio and is playing in a picture with Blanche Sweet. The story is by Henry Seaton Merriman, and is called "The Sowers." William C. De Mille is the producer. Theodore Roberts, Thomas Roberts, Thomas Meighan and Camille Astor are in the cast.

Here is a funny twisting of names that we heard the other noon while out on the street. Two youngsters were hurrying past and one was talking speedily and here's what he said: "An' they had a fight, too; one was that big fellow, —you know, with the curly hair—Warrington Kerrigan—and, gee, how he fought!——"

* * *

Donald Crisp has ably demonstrated that a man can play an excellent heavy, change his makeup and be a president, then play leading roles, and finally don puttees and tortoise specks and be a real director. His work in handling "Ramona," the Clune cinema-theatrical presentation of the famous California story, shows well his ability. Everywhere the piece is advertised, the name of Donald Crisp adds much to the value of the film. He certainly put in some wonderfully artistic scenes.

THE DAY IT RAINED
THE MOVIE ACTOR ON SALARY WELCOMED THE RAIN— WHILE THE MORE HUMBLE BROTHER ON "EXTRA" DIDN'T EAT THAT DAY-
THE FARMER SAYS THE RAIN IS WORTH $5.00 A DROP-BUT IT COSTS THE MANAGER $5.00 A DROP.
THE RAIN CAUSES TROUBLE AND WOE
RAIN? I SHOULD WORRY-
BALBOA FEATURES
MORAL: ITS A HARD RAIN THAT ISN'T WET.
DUDLEY

Charlotte Walker's next appearance in Lasky films will be in "The Woman and the Law," a thrilling drama from the pen of Hector Turnbull, the author of "The Cheat." Frank Reicher is the director.

* * *

Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid will shortly begin rehearsals on "Behind the Mask," a feature from the scenario by Cecil D. de Mille and Jeanie MacPherson. The picture will be produced by Paul Dickey.

* * *

Blanche Sweet is now rehearsing a photodramatic version of Henry Seaton Merriman's story "The Sowers," under the personal direction of Wm. C. DeMille.

* * *

A professional motion picture projecting machine has been presented to the Manual Arts High School by the students of the winter '16 graduating class, as a remembrance of their four years' work in the school. At an assembly held yesterday noon the machine was used for the first time. The pictures shown were produced by Bob Wagner, art instructor at the High School. The story of the picture was written by Mr. Wagner, and his two sons played the principal roles.

* * *

S. S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Mfg. Company, was in Los Angeles this week.

* * *

The light may come and the light may go—But Cupid can always see to do his shooting in the coast film town. This time it is Eugene Pallette, of Selig's, and he married Miss Ann Slater. We extend the World's best wishes.

* * *

Richard Stanton is driving a milk wagon! This does not mean that the well known actor and producer of the "Graft" serial has taken up this job for a living, it is merely that he does all this in the twelfth installment of "Graft," when he and his friend are fighting the milk trust. Of course, his action leads to a big fight and when Dick starts scrapping the people opposite him have to keep mighty busy or else they are likely to be hurt. "Graft" is going along splendidly with some fine acting by Jane Novak and the Universal players.

* * *

Harry Mestayer is working in a six-reel picture version of "The Prince Chap," at the Selig studio. This film is to be made a big feature.

* * *

Here's what living in sunny California does for you—

William Duncan tells this one on himself: While in Bear Valley with the Vitagraph company with R. S. Sturgeon, he suffered two days from intense cold and especially about the ears—he just could not keep them from freezing. At the end of the second day George Holt said to him: "Why did you not pull your ear flaps down?" Duncan had been wearing a seal-skin cap with ear flaps, but he had forgotten all about them.

* * *

Theater Notes.

The Blue Bird Photoplays, Inc., has taken over this week the Walker Auditorium. This house has been successively called the Mozart, Neilsen, and the Brooks theater. It will now be called the Blue Bird Photoplay House.

The theater will open under the new management February 20, and present the big feature productions put out by the company. Extensive alterations will be made under the direction of Henry Silverman, who, Tuesday of this week, received a wire from Carl Laemmle, appointing him as managing director.

Lloyd Hamilton, Ethel Teare and Bud Duncan.

The Ham Company is producing a one-reel comedy for this release written by Messrs. Hamilton and Duncan. Ham and Bud's adventures in an effort to buy kisses from a pretty girl auctioning them at one dollar each at a charity bazar with their entire bank account of but eighty cents, and later their honest endeavor to earn the required amount in an oyster factory, offer many situations which these two comedians have made the most of. Miss Norma Nicholls played opposite Mr. Hamilton and altogether this comedy should be the best of the release.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

THERE has been considerable talk lately about the decline of the motion picture business. There has been a decline. Go along Broadway and you will find a decisive decline. The out-of-town shows are showing better than they have for years. Hackett is doing so well in the Criterion that they couldn't find the "S. R. O." sign and the house painter was obliged to make one: "No More Room." Hackett is a fine fellow, but he must not try to make popularity on the basis that he could not find the "S. R. O." His "Macbeth" is great, Viola Allen is also great. But why knock? Both have been in pictures. Hackett and Viola. There is a run there.

* * *

Why allow the press agent to say they could not find the "S. R. O." in the house and they were obliged to have one made?

* * *

Hackett is good. So is Viola. But why hit at the pictures?

* * *

Why, as the song says: "Bite the hand that fed you?"

* * *

The man with money and the man with (I was about to say ambition) is the man who takes a theater. He is the scout for the—well, he knows.

* * *

Now, what have the motion picture people to do with this? Only one thing. Keep moving.

* * *

Take recent developments. First, you have against you the clerical body, the head of which is located in Washington. He is the head of an "international" movement to reform the globe. For the past three years he has been trying to reform the moving picture business. When brought before the committee he said he also had been trying to reform the "dramatic stage." We challenged him then to show when he had made a move in that direction. We challenge him now to produce his bill before Congress, or any other body. He cannot produce even a draft of a bill.

* * *

This "International Representative" dare not show his resources. If he does I will personally confront him and show that most of his expenditures for the past two years have been made on the "censorship" proposition. I will personally face him and his Brooklyn "ally" and show the two of them that in this fight they are not what we Americans call "on the level."

* * *

I have had a holy mother and father, I respect the cloth. But I hate men who work under cover.

* * *

This sanctified man who has been conducting the Federal bill under the cover of "International" reform. He is one I speak of. What has he done internationally or otherwise? He is a preacher relieved of his pulpit. He may be a college graduate. But a preacher, nevertheless. He went into college and "felt the call." Why did he not stick there? Did his power in the pulpit fail? Perhaps his power of saving souls was so great that certain influences felt that he should be a politician. Some preachers sometimes think that the $800 and found it not enough. And most preachers feel that after they get out of college that the people are bound to support them.

* * *

It is there where we find storerooms turned into missions. There we find the humble workers. Next door to them we find the "cheap" moving picture shows. We see the people flocking in to see the pictures, but you don't see them going into the "chapels." Why? Because the "goods" are not there.

* * *

I am standing now upon the principle that the moving pictures have done more to-day than any movement of the church workers has accomplished. That is a broad statement. Take Greater New York, for instance. Go along Third avenue, from Eighth to Fourteenth street. True, the police have wiped out the "San Souci" and other places—but the population remains the same and for more than every "cafe" with the "for rent" sign you find a moving picture place. True, the picture may not be up to the standard as picturized by the reformers, but such as they are they closed what the reformers could not close. Now, admitting, that the pictures in some of these places are not what they should be, what are the reformers in that locality doing? Instead of reporting to the police department they are holding their weekly meetings and sending their stipends to the support of the "International Bureau for Reform." Their intentions are right, but the result and effect are misguided.

* * *

For instance: Take the International Bureau of Reform. If service of three years is directed against motion pictures, including telegrams, railroad, hotel and other expenses, what is left, outside the salaries of the chief and his assistants? There is some money spent there.

* * *

Now, come down to an honest-to-goodness plane. Why not have an investigation of this International Reform Bureau? It may be shrouded by privacy. It may be a private organization, but since it has taken such a prominent part in public affairs perhaps the public has a right to inquire into its operation. So far as we know, the Rev. Dr. Crafts is an honorable and upright man, as well as the men behind him. But since the body he represents has become "International," it might be well (now that preparedness has become an issue), to find out just where this "International Reform" stands.

* * *

I have in my mind's eye that if this so-called bureau was investigated we would be better able to know who are the true preachers for the salvation of souls. It may be that some people who are drawing big salaries and getting more than the required amount of notoriety would be back "pulpit pounding." Of course, those who have been fortunate enough to make wealthy marriages are not included. They used to be wide spoken at one time. Now they use (what the criminals say) stool pigeons.

* * *

In professional circles some statements made by the writer would be considered "raw," but they are only what is reflected by the looking glass. They are truths. It is not slime, nor mud. It is a representation of facts—a controversy of a statement by certain clergymen that "moving picture houses are the sink of the devil."

* * *

The assertion I deny and I defy support of the libel. The Rev. Dr. Crafts, of Washington, cannot show it, even with the support of his arch-conspirator in Brooklyn.

* * *

Who ever heard of the International Reform Bureau before the motion picture gave Dr. Crafts an opportunity to get busy? When challenged before the Congressional Committee he stated that he had for years been striving to reform the stage. I challenged him then, and I challenge him now, to present a bill in conformity with his views.

* * *

Let the sponsor of the fight against motion pictures show what he has done in International Reform. He can't claim anything for England, because the war conditions brought about all that prevails there. What has he, or his society, done in Belgium or France? What have they accomplished in Berlin or Petrograd? What had Dr. Crafts to do?

"BIGGER, BETTER BUSINESS" (FINN).

Joseph H. Finn, president of the Nichols-Finn Advertising Agency, Chicago, has released a brightly written and tastefully printed brochure entitled "Bigger, Better Business" in which he discusses a number of subjects interesting to advertising men and men interested in advertising, previously published editorially in the Chicago Herald. The Moving Picture World is in receipt of a copy and acknowledges the courtesy. Mr. Finn has left his imprint of genius upon the advertising plans of the Mutual Film Corporation.

THOMAS JEFFERSON IN UNIVERSAL PICTURES.

This week to the roster at Universal City was added the name of Thomas Jefferson, star of the spoken and of the silent drama. His first role was a lead in William C. Dowlan's production of the film version of Isabel Ostrander's fiction story, "Lavina Comes Home."

World-Equitable Engagements

Jane Grey and Mollie King Added to the Galaxy of Stars.

TWO important engagements of noted feminine stars were made this week by the Triumph-Equitable and World-Equitable Corporations. Through General Manager Arthur H. Jacobs of the Triumph Company, Jane Grey, a permanent player of the company, will make her first appearance on the screen on the World program in a dramatization of the well-known fiction vehicle, "Man and His Angel," in which she will be supported by Henri Bergman, last seen in a feature in a Metro production.

Jane Grey began her stage career with a small repertoire company, touring, and finally reached New York. One day she applied to Paul Scott, dramatic agent, and while she was sitting in his office Fred Belasco telegraphed from Los Angeles for a leading woman. Miss Grey was sent on, owing to lack of talent at that particular time, and although it was for but two weeks, at a salary of $100 a week, to appear in the Belasco Stock

Jane Grey.

Mollie King.

Company at the Burbank theater, she was retained for twenty-seven weeks at a salary of two hundred a week, and returned to New York after her engagement there, to become leading woman for David Belasco in a number of that producer's successful plays, including "The Concert" and "The Temperamental Journey."

Miss Grey's most recent appearance on Broadway was as one of the featured players in Williard Mack's virile Broadway production, "Kick-In," in which she co-starred with John Barrymore.

It took a considerable amount of persuasion on the part of Mr. Jacobs to induce Miss Grey to sign a long time contract with the Triumph-Equitable concern, owing to the glowing prospects offered by various producing managers who wanted to secure her services for forthcoming productions during this and the season of 1916-17. Jane Grey has a vivid personality, and her now established dramatic potency has created a wide vogue for this little player; and that her efforts in the silent drama will be of equal importance and equally as attractive as has been her great array of triumphs in the spoken drama is a foregone conclusion.

Following "Man and His Angel," Miss Grey will be seen in "The Surrender," a different type of story from anything that she has yet been screened in, and in which she will be supported by a superb cast of screen players under the supervision of George A. Wright.

The most important engagement of the World Film Corporation, allied, of course, with the Equitable, and of which the Triumph Film Corporation is a producing subsidiary, was the signing this week of the dainty and exquisitely charming dramatic and musical artiste, Mollie King.

Miss King is the youngest member of a well-known theatrical family, being the sister of Charles King, for many years a vaudeville favorite with his partner, Elizabeth Brice, the team being known as Brice and King. Miss Mollie King's sister, Nellie, is also a vaudeville headliner.

Although only eighteen years old, Miss Mollie King has to her credit many years of actual stage experience. In fact, her theatrical debut really was made when she was carried on the stage as an infant.

Her first real stage work was in an important child's part with Miss Maxine Elliott in "Her Own Way." Miss King was then seven years old and made a big hit in both New York and London. While still a child, she became famous through her work in "The Royal Family" and "The Little Princess," after which she toured with the late Denham Thompson in his vaudeville sketch, "Joshua Whitcomb."

When through school, Miss King acted as understudy for Miss Brice in "The Winsome Widow," playing the star's part on many occasions. She was then fifteen years old. Then followed a season in vaudeville with her sister, Nellie, and an engagement with the "Passing Show" at the Winter Garden. After this she was featured in the support of Sam Bernard in "The Belle of Bond Street."

Miss King made her motion picture debut in the World Film Corporation's production, "A Woman's Power," in which she is starred. Her work in this picture was so remarkable that the World-Equitable heads immediately engaged her on a three-year contract to star exclusively under their management. This eighteen-year-old star has begun work on her second picture at the Paragon studio at Fort Lee, N. J., under Director Frank Crane. This picture is temporarily entitled "The Lily" and is said to have a powerful scenario and affords the dainty, charming Miss King every opportunity to enhance her already brilliant reputation.

"Mishaps of Musty Suffer"

Last Episode of An Unusual Series of Comedies Finished by Kleine.

THE final episode in "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" was completed at the Kleine Bronx studios last week, following the return of Harry Watson after an enforced vacation of some weeks. The famous comedian is delighted to be again at work despite his somewhat enfeebled condition due to a serious surgical operation.

Harry Watson.

Another factor that has gone a long way toward the present happy frame of mind is the unexpectedly warm reception accorded his comedies. No one knows better than a comedian the doubtful character and prospective reputations of unreleased comedies, and "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" have been in work since last July.

In the opinion of the Kleine forces, Watson will shortly prove the most popular comedian in film. Already the former Ziegfeld "Follies" comedian has been hailed by numerous film critics as the rarest find in film, and unhesitatingly predict the early eclipse of his possible rivals. His cleanly humor, versatility, imagination and natural native funniness, coupled with his easy good nature and willingness to learn, are rapidly winning him a name second to none in his chosen line of work.

"The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" have taken the public by storm, judging from the extraordinary amount of bookings reported by all Kleine offices last week. These include scores of the finest picture theaters in America which ordinarily close their doors to rough-and-tumble, slap-stick comedians. In fact, the intention of the Kleine Company to plant the Watson comedies in the best theaters everywhere, is evident from the character of houses solicited under a new and novel advance-of-release-date booking plan. It was thought that theaters of this class would prove the acid test and effectually demonstrate the possibilities of "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" series.

The comedies comprise ten in number and while most theaters play one a week, their sudden popularity induced a number of them to exhibit as many as three episodes in a single week. This has necessitated a doubling of the number of positive prints and several paper re-orders.

Sothern to Appear in Pictures

Vitagraph Secures Him for a Series of Four Special Feature Subjects.

PARTLY because he believes that the silent is a step ahead of the spoken drama, and partly through an intense desire to see himself as others have seen him on the legitimate stage, Edward H. Sothern, foremost Shakespearean actor on the English-speaking stage today, is the latest to succumb to the lure of the once-despised pictures.

This is regarded as the most important in significance since the pictures began to rival the spoken drama in interest.

Edward H. Sothern.

Other legitimate players have deserted the legitimate under the spell of money lure and other considerations, but when a man of Sothern's prominence in theaterdom consent to appear on celluloid the final breastwork of the enemy is down and the pictures can now consider themselves the conqueror of the legitimate.

"Up to recently," said Mr. Sothern in confirming the announcement that he had signed a contract with the Vitagraph Company of America, "I regarded motion pictures as comparatively unimportant as compared with the speaking stage. I considered the screen's limitations as regards the voice of the actor as being too great a handicap. How on earth, I thought, could the immortal Shakespeare be produced without the speaking of every one of his lines!

"I am convinced now, however, that the combined use of sub-titles and lip movements will more than offset this handicap. Then I considered the tremendous scope in the matter of scenic portrayal, and I am now on my way to become a picture actor.

"In the legitimate theater I appear before several hundreds—possibly a thousand or two—six nights a week, for a matter of forty weeks. In pictures I am told I will appear before hundreds of thousands every afternoon and every evening. The temptation was too strong."

Sothern signed the contract with the Vitagraph after he had announced that he would retire from the stage at the end of the present season.

Mrs. Sothern (Julia Marlowe) is not to be seen with him on the screen.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, in confirming the announcement, said that his company would produce four feature films with Mr. Sothern in the lead and that one of the films would be a specially written story for the famous actor.

"He will begin work about May 1 and will continue through the summer, or until the four are completed. Some of the famous stars of our company will support him, among them being Anita Stewart, Edith Storey and Lillian Walker."

The Sothern films will be shown in New York first, under the Vitagraph's special direction, as in the case of "The Battle Cry of Peace." It is expected that by that time the company will again control a Broadway playhouse.

Sothern's appearance under the Vitagraph standard makes the fifth legitimate player of international fame to act for that company. Miss Edna May, of "Belle of New York" fame; Frank Daniels, king of comic opera comedians; Charles Richman and Joseph Kilgour are already acting in the Vitagraph productions.

H. COOPER CLIFFE TO SUPPORT ETHEL BARRYMORE.

H. Cooper Cliffe, who was last seen on the Metro program in support of Ethel Barrymore in "The Final Judgment," and who has since been starred by another motion picture company, has returned to the Metro ranks, and will again be seen in support of Ethel Barrymore in "The Kiss of Hate." This is a strong, five-part feature dealing with the persecution of the Jews in Russia.

Noted Players in Vitagraph Pictures

Well Known Stage Favorites Have Leading Parts in Releases for Week of Feb. 27.

ROBERT EDESON heads a list of prominent photoplay stars to be seen in Vitagraph's releases for the week commencing Feb. 28. Lillian Walker, Harry Morey, Mary Anderson, Evart Overton, Bobby Connelly, Hughie Mack, William Duncan, William Dunn and others, figure prominently in film vehicles that make splendid use of the personality and ability of these players. The program for the week balanced with two dramas and two comedies.

By far the most important release recently announced by the Vitagraph is "For a Woman's Fair Name," presenting as it does a problem that is due to arouse editorial discussion throughout the country. It presents a new phase of the odd argument as to how far a man should sacrifice love and reputation in order to protect the name of a married woman, regardless of the fact that she is innocent of wrong-doing. Robert Edeson has one of the best character roles of the career as Pierce; Harry Morey rises to exceptional heights as McGregor; William Dunn proves his claim to histrionic ability as the dope fiend, and Eulalie Jensen shows herself to be an actress of skill and technique in a difficult role.

Scene from "For a Woman's Fair Name" (Vitagraph).

"La Paloma" a Broadway Star Feature in three parts, released on March 4, is a contribution from the Coast company of the Vitagraph, featuring little Mary Anderson and William Duncan, produced under the direction of William Wolbert. Mary and Duncan are cast as two immigrants, whose ignorance of the pitfalls and dangers of this country, lead them to error. The former is coveted by a wealthy factory owner and in saving her, the father is charged with murder.

The duration of time in the one-reeler, "Her Bad Quarter of an Hour" is just fifteen minutes, but things happen thick and fast. The film features Lillian Walker and Evart Overton under the direction of Courtlandt Van Deusen. A love affair almost goes on the rocks through a misunderstanding.

In "Tubby Turns the Tables," Hughie Mack wields a vacuum cleaner in a way that foils two villains who are trying to swindle a banker out of thousands of dollars. The cleaner sucks the money into its bag and a thrilling chase ensues in which Hughie is pursued through dizzy heights an finally plunges from the roof of a sky-scraper to Broadway, using an umbrella as a parachute. The film was directed by Lawrence Semon and written by him in collaboration with Graham Baker. Both are cartoonists and apply their knowledge of comic situations to good advantage. The one-reeler is released Feb. 28 and also contains 300 feet of "Odd Acquaintances." This film shows feathered and furred folk in strange companionship, and is of real interest to young and old.

BIOGRAPH COMEDIES IN DEMAND.

Requests from exchanges for an advance showing of the reissues of Biograph comedies, featuring Mabel Normand, Charles Murray, Mack Sennett, Fred Mace and Ford Sterling, have been so numerous that Gus Mohme left New York on February 20 to visit exchanges in the following cities: Chicago, Milwaukee, Des Moines, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Wilkes-Barre.

Australian Notes.

DURING the past month Australian producers have been very active and one big picture has been released. This is the initial production of the Vita Corporation, which has its headquarters in New Zealand. The head director is Raymond Longford, who was associated with Fraser Films for some time. This picture is a five-reeler, entitled "A Maori Girl's Love," featuring Lottie Lyell, who has appeared in many Australian pictures. As a dramatic production it could have been condensed into three reels; the story is inclined to drag in places, but it has some very interesting scenes of Maori life. Producer Longford was also able to get several Maori girls to take small parts, and the result is highly satisfactory.

* * *

Post Mason, who recently resigned from Australian Films, Ltd., is at the head of a new picture company, with well-known vaudeville favorites in the leading roles. The first release is entitled "The Martyrdom of Nurse Cavell," and will be released very soon. Vera Pearce, perhaps the foremost Australian on the vaudeville stage here, appears as Nurse Cavell. Miss Pearce had the female lead in that famous Australian photoplay "The Shepherd of the Southern Cross," in which Arthur Shirley attained great popularity.

* * *

The new Australian Picture Palace, which is soon to be opened, will be one of the finest theatres in Sydney. The building alone costs £25,000 (125,000 dollars). The fittings are most elaborate. The woodwork of the wainscoting is of Queensland maple, while Australian black marble has been employed for the facing of the solid interior works and the lobby. This stone reflects the full strength of the electric lamps as would the best mirrors. The walls of the lobby are beautified by plaster of paris, modelings of artistic design, and the dress circle staircases are of Australian red and white marble.

* * *

Neither Broadway Universal Features nor Metro Pictures have reached Australia yet. This is a big chance for some enterprising firm. Australia can boast of nearly two thousand picture theaters. Good features are much in demand, especially those with well-known motion picture stars in the leading roles. Stage stars are well liked, but owing to their names not being familiar with Australian audiences, their worth is not recognized until they have appeared in several productions here. Strong dramas are well liked, but the general public is extremely partial to a big feature comedy when assured of a good laugh. For instance, "Tillie's Punctured Romance" broke all attendance records everywhere.

* * *

Equitable features are going strong in Sydney. "The Warning" is considered one of the best pictures yet shown in this city, and all critics are favorably commenting upon it. "The Labyrinth" will be shown at the Crystal Palace next week.

* * *

J. C. Williamson, Ltd., next release is a screen adaptation of the £1,000 Australian prize novel "The Pioneer," by Kathleen Suzanna Prichard. This company has been out of Sydney for some time to get the proper atmosphere, and great efforts are being made by all concerned to bring the standard of this production up to that of imported American films.

* * *

The Crystal Palace authorities recently conducted a contest among their patrons to ascertain what was considered the best picture shown at their theater. "My Old Dutch," which was released in the States by Universal, came easily first, and was followed by "The Escape," "The Outcast," "The Avenging Conscience" and "Tess of the Storm Country," in that order.

* * *

Next Monday, Waddington's Ltd., will present a screen adaptation of Geo. M. Cohan's famous stage success "Get-Rich-Quick Wallinford." Fred Niblo and Josephine Cohan, stars of the legitimate stage, famous both here and in America, retain the same roles in the picturization of this famous comedy as they introduced to Australian audiences on the speaking stage several years ago. Fred Niblo would acquit himself well before the camera in this, his initial venture.

* * *

Photoplays shown here during the past three weeks include "The Rosary," (V. L. S. E.); "The Warning" and "The Better Woman," (Equitable); "What Happened to Jones," "M'liss" and "Wildfire" (World); "Cinderella," "The Dawn of a To-morrow" and "The Only Son" (Paramount). "The Dawn of a To-morrow" has received the most adverse criticism of any Pickford feature yet shown in Sydney.

TOM. S. IMRIE.

Howard Irving Young Joins Metro.

HOWARD IRVING YOUNG, one of the most promising of the younger group of successful scenario writers, has been added to Metro's staff of writers, and will devote all his time with that company, making adaptations from books, plays and unfinished manuscripts. Mr. Young will work directly under the supervision of Harry O. Hoyt.

Howard Irving Young.

Mr. Hoyt, who has written more than four hundred scenarios, and is the highest salaried writer in the profession, will, in the future, devote all his time to original manuscripts.

Mr. Young was graduated from the New York University two years ago, but before leaving the university he had written and sold a number of scenarios. Until recently he was associated with Kalem as a special writer and film editor. While with that company he wrote many of their best features including "The Call of the Dance," for Yancsi Dolly, "The Apaches of Paris," "The Net of Deceit," "The Pitfall," and "The Lotus Woman," all original scripts. He is also the author of "Hearts in Exile," which he wrote for Clara Kimball Young.

Before joining Kalem, Mr. Young was with the Reliance Company, and for a brief time was associated with the Crystal Film Printing Company. He has had considerable experience in several departments in the making of motion pictures, and with Metro will be given every opportunity to display his talents, both in making adaptations and in producing original manuscripts, which he will do when not engaged in the picturization of other writers' ideas.

HORKHEIMER WROTE IT.

Somewhere in the East a news paragraph found its way into some publication implying that "The Red Circle," the continued screen story of heredity and romance, now running, was an adaptation of a former stage success. The Balboa Company which is producing the film play immediately started an investigation. It found that some time ago certain stock companies put on a piece which was a mixture of graft, politics and anarchism. Because of the latter element it was called "The Red Circle." The Balboa production is nothing like this. The germ idea originated with H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the producing company, who gave it to Will M. Ritchey, his chief scenario writer. Mr. Ritchey developed the story, in a novel manner. The releasing agency of Pathe reports "The Red Circle" going better than any preceding continued screen story.

Ruth Roland, one of the screen's most lovable stars, who plays the lead in this picture, had a funny experience the other day while chugging along in her motor going to a location where a scene for "The Red Circle" was to be made. Suddenly the machine stopped. Although she is as expert as the average repairman, Miss Roland couldn't make it resume. Along came a man with a team, sympathizing with her plight, he towed the car to its destination a few miles away. "Can you beat that," Miss Roland observed later on, "to meet a good Samaritan on the way to Alhambra?" (Explanation: In Southern California very few people are supposed to travel in that direction).

EDUCATIONAL NOTES.

From Chattanooga, Tenn., comes the report that the Chicago and Gulf Transportation Company are preparing to make a moving picture showing conditions along the Mississippi River during the flood season.

* * *

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

"A Woman's Power"

Brady-World Film Production in Which Molly King is Starred—A Story of Mountaineers.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

CONSIDERING that Molly King's training as an actress has been for the most part confined to musical comedy productions, she adaps hersalf to the stellar role of "A Woman's Power" very creditably. It is not a particularly difficult part, but enough to reveal the likable traits of a pretty and seemingly talented young woman, whose manner is natural and expressive. If Miss King does not do more in this screen version of Charles Melville Buck's novel, "The Code of the Mountains," it is largely because of the construction of the story, which keeps a young mountaineer much in the foreground, rather than the girl who brings about his reformation. At all events, Miss King will be admired, and in her next picture no doubt will receive a part of greater consequence.

Scene From "A Woman's Power" (World Film).

"A Woman's Power" is a photoplay of average quality. The theme is conventional—the elevating effect of an unselfish woman's influence—and in the main the manner of its handling is not novel. To begin with, there is a feud between mountaineers, resulting in a murder and the conviction of a youth, who acted according to the code of his kind. Henceforth the purpose of his life is to kill the man on whose testimony he was found guilty. The story goes on to tell how this determination was altered, largely because of the humanizing influence of Minerva, a mountain girl, who drags herself out of the mire of slothful ignorance in which she was born, and partly because of happenings in the Philippines, when American troops were engaged in subjugating the Filipinos. As a private, Newt Spooner comes to realize the worth of his commander, who chances to be his enemy of long standing.

The atmosphere of scenes staged in or near the cabins of the mountaineers is convincing, and the types of ignorant men of the hills appear true enough to live. Director Robert W. Thornby was less uniformly fortunate in suggesting conditions in the Philippines. Audiences have become so accustomed to views of actual warfare that a photoplay imitation, however spirited, is apt to appear a bit unreal. Then there is a disillusionizing juxtaposition of scenes in the part of the picture showing the clash between the Americans and the natives. What seems to be a Filipino village, with people, houses and trees in accord, alternates with bits of woodland such as might be found near New York. The contrast in foliage is unmistakable.

Douglas MacLean gives an intelligent performance as Newt Spooner, E. M. Kimball makes a commanding figure of Falkins and others in the picture are competent.

All Star Cast in "Badgered."

"Badgered," a single reel drama soon to be released by the Selig Company, contains a conclusion which comes as a complete surprise. An all-star cast including Harry Mestayer, Grace Darmond, Al W. Filson, James Bradbury and Edith Johnson are introduced.

"The Shrine of Happiness"

Attractive Gold Rooster Play, in Colors. Jackie Saunders featured as wayward mountain maid.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

SHARING honors with Jackie Saunders in this attractive five-part production from the Balboa studios, are William Conklin and Paul Gilmore. It is seldom that Miss Saunders has been seen to better advantage than in "The Shrine of Happiness"; the ease with which she handles the character of the impulsive child of the hills making the role doubly attractive. In spite of a rather unprofessional construction, the story holds the interest to the end, because both author and director have taken special care to conceal the exact character of the climax until its actual arrival.

As the story runs, a prospector dies leaving his motherless daughter with nothing but a letter to Clark, a former partner now living in San Francisco, accompanying which were some Indian beads. Clark had been rescued from the death grip of an Indian by the prospector, and from a feeling of deepest gratitude to her father received with kindness the girl who had journeyed miles on foot, fleeing from an attack of two strange men. The girl is sent to boarding school, and is afterward placed in an unhappy position by being loved by both Clark and his younger brother. The self-sacrificing spirit of the older brother adds to her unhappiness, for, although knowing that she is in love with him, he favors her marriage to his brother who is younger than he. The day of the wedding the bridegroom discovers that the bride-elect loves his brother, and explaining matters in a note to the bride, disappears, leaving his promised wife to his brother.

The film has been delightfully colored, and is wholesome and pleasing in character.

On Biograph Schedule

"The Indian" Has Spectacular Scenes—"What Happened to Peggy," a Two-Reel Offering.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

"The Indian."

PICTURES such as "The Indian," a three-reel drama of the western frontier, are not often made to-day. Probably it cost considerably more than many five-part features and the money went into the production rather than into the payment of large salaries to a few prominent players. There are moments when this photoplay suggests some of Griffith's famous western pictures, and although it lacks the fine touches that distinguished the work of the master director, one finds much to please the eye and to stir the imagination in the graphic scenes of warriors on the warpath, murdering settlers and battling with United States soldiers.

Scene From "What Happened to Peggy" (Biograph).

Almost the entire first reel is devoted to the offensive operations of a numerous tribe. The settlers, using their wagons as bulwarks, fight in vain to hold off the Indians, who, in turn, give way before the troops. These scenes, perfectly photographed, have great depth and carry the thrill of conflict.

Their spectacular value is increased by the burning of the wagon train and the tepees in the Indian village.

Of the story in this production little need be said. It is quite conventional and one does not need to inquire too closely into the probabilities of a plot devised to meet the requirements of western melodrama. The first and second reels are strong and the intervening one, with scenes laid in Washington, suffices in supplying the connecting links of the story. Linda Arvidson is winsome as the daughter of an army officer and among others in a numerous cast, Alfred Paget and Charles Perley are conspicuous.

"What Happened to Peggy."

The first reel of this two-part picture is somewhat overburdened with sub-titles and explanatory letters, but after a time, when the story gets fairly under way, there is enough entertaining action, even if the experiences of Peggy resemble those of many young photoplay heroines who have preceded her. Having left boarding school and gone to visit a wealthy friend, events are so arranged that she is suspected of a theft committed by a woman posing as a lady's maid. Peggy is placed in an unpleasant predicament before the mistake is discovered. The picture reaches its most exciting moments in the chase prior to the capture of the thief, played in convincing fashion by Claire Macdowell. Vola Smith and Jose Ruben are other members of the company capably directed by Walter Coyle.

Two Bluebird Releases

"Rupert of Hentzau" is Elaborately Mounted—"The Grip of Jealousy," a Story of the South.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

"Rupert of Hentzau"

THE popularity of Anthony Hope's "The Prisoner of Zenda" justified a sequel, which the author provided in a novel called "Rupert of Hentzau." "The Prisoner of Zenda" was one of the first multiple-reel photoplays to be made in this country, and now, after a lapse of a number of years, we receive the continuation of the colorful romance in an elaborate picture, produced in England under the direction of George Tucker, with Jane Gail in the character of Queen Flavia and Henry Ainley, an English actor, in the dual role of the King of Ruritania and Rudolf Rassendyll.

There is much to commend in these five reels that evidence a determination to give the story every advantage to be derived from picturesque backgrounds of a kind that could not well be duplicated in this country. Scenes such as the coronation are magnificent; nothing is lacking in the furnishings or the costuming of the great number of court attendants, and even in less pretentious passages of the romance we find a care for detail that seemed to take no account of the cost when certain effects were needed. The burning of the hunting lodge in the last reel, for example, is spectacular in the extreme, obviously costly, and of value in preparing for the denouement of the plot.

In point of fast, generally melodramatic action, the screen version of "Rupert of Hentzau" leaves nothing to be desired and the story offers plenty of complications to keep things moving for five reels. The romance of Queen Flavia, who loves the man who played king and not the king himself, is followed readily enough and with considerable interest, but an assembling of the scenes in a manner necessitating fewer subtitles, would have benefited the production. The picture is introduced by several wordy explanations that an audience may have difficulty in digesting, and even when the story is under way, inserts are frequent, totalling something over eighty in all.

Scene from "Rupert of Hentzau" (Bluebird).

Miss Gail plays the queen with dignity and feeling. Mr. Ainley is successful in portraying the contrasting natures of the king and his physical double, whereas other parts are in competent hands.

"The Grip of Jealousy"

In this melodrama of the South of some fifty years ago, there is effective characterization and not a few of the scenes are given a thoroughly artistic presentation; but the picture in its entirety is likely to leave a vague, rather unsatisfactory impression. It lacks clearness and the driving force of a big story that grips an audience and holds the attention without conscious effort. The many characters are likely to become confused, an unfortunate circumstance that must discount the effect of scenes very well handled, if considered individually.

A long standing feud between two southern families is taken as the basis for the story. One of the daughters in the Grant household is secretly wedded to Jack Morey, she dies in giving birth to a child and her sister places it under the care of an aged negro, Uncle Jeff, who believes that it was born to his own daughter. He accounts for the baby's white skin by naming Lacey, a brutal plantation overseer, as the father. In later years, when Linda has become an attractive young woman, the struggle centers between Lacey's son, in his effort to possess her, and Linda's aunt, determined upon the girl's freedom, even if she has to sacrifice herself by marrying Lacey.

Whatever criticism the construction of the story may suggest, no fault need be found with the staging and the impressive acting in many of the scenes. In artistic photography, made possible by perfect lighting, the picture reaches its highest point with the showing of a cabin on a lonely road, the light in the window glowing through a deluge of rain. The effect is remarkably natural. Lon Chaney brings out all the ugliness in the character of Lacey, Marcia Morse makes a sprightly girl of Linda, Walter Belasco as Uncle Jeff gives an excellent character sketch, whereas, Louise Lovely and Grace Thompson appear attractive as the Grant sisters.

"The Fool's Revenge"

William T. Hooker Plays Role of Tragic Clown in Story of Modern Life in Five Reels by the William Fox Company.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THERE are some who hold that a critic's whole duty is to tell whether or not in any piece of art the maker's intention has been realized. But a critic whose object is to foretell as well as possible, and by the rules a critic has at hand to help him, what the public is going to think about a piece of art has a different work before him. Within limits any conceivable situation is legitimate provided the artist's intention is human.

In this offering, "The Fool's Revenge," a five-part picture by the Fox Company, with William T. Hooker in the leading role, the artist perhaps has got his intention over. It is a well-directed picture with many skillfully handled and often beautiful scenes. The acting, though not absolutely even, is as a whole, mighty good. Yet, when we have watched the picture through to the end and have seen one painfully distressing situation followed by another and every one of them made effective, we wonder what was the intention of the maker of it. We might suspect that he would say, "To exemplify the text Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord." If that is the answer, his intention does not get over; for he continually forgot his object. In trying to crowd five reels with climaxes he has lost his way. The story is clearly continuous, but in his accenting of this and that he has obscured its inner significance. If he did not intend to give his picture significance, he must have wanted merely to distress his audience and in that case he has amply succeeded.

There are scraps of humor in the picture and these were appreciated by the spectators. They were few and far between. The sense of its not being worth while will be marked in the mind of those who look in art for a true reflection of their own humanity. The thing that the picture does is to provide a few jabs to the mind's jaw. No art that deals with deep and painful human moments without significance as a whole can be wholesome. This is an unwholesome picture.

First of "Sis Hopkins" Comedies

Kalem Presents Rose Melville in a One-Reel Comedy, "A Leap Year Wooing."

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE revival of "Sis Hopkins" would be welcomed by the public under almost any circumstances. Of course the screen can not give us just the same "Sis" that the stage did, for it will be remembered that much of her comedy lay in her queer manner of expressing herself. Of this latter the screen version of Sis is bereft, save as the sub-titles may be made to assist. We have still, however, the same uncouth country girl, with her tightly braided pig tails, and her lower extremities clothed in comical untidiness. There is the same gingham pinafore, the same uneven skirt, the same clod-hopper shoes, and all of the funnyisms of makeup that belong to the "Sis Hopkins" that most of us have known.

It is a pity that more pains have not been taken to provide a good story for the initial presentation of these one-reel comedies of which much has been expected. The opportunities for the exploitation of the talents of the star are somewhat scarce. As the story runs "Sis" is the kitchen maid in the home of a young woman whose sweetheart is very attentive. "Sis" remembering that it is leap year is inspired at the sight of the lovers to look up a man for herself. She therefore advertises for a husband, and in consequence the daughter of the house is besieged with men of all descriptions, and her own sweetheart is dismissed for a handsome pretender, who afterward is discovered to be a crook for whom the police are looking. A serious situation is saved by Sis who opens an unaddressed note intended for her young mistress and appropriates its contents to her own case. So while the bride is waiting disconsolately at the church for a bridegroom that fails to put in an appearance, Sis heavily veiled has her place in an automobile by the side of the crook whom she unintentionally causes to return and face the charge of the police in the home of his bride-to-be. Sis then flies to the arms of her own lover who has been stewing in a silk hat and frock coat while his lady love unwittingly eloped with another.

Scene from "A Leap Year Wooing" (Kalem).

"For a Woman's Fair Name."

Vitagraph Drama in Which Robert Edeson Heads Excellent Cast—Acting Better Than Story.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

PROVIDING one stops to consider the premises on which this drama is reared, there is danger of becoming aggravated by the characters concerned. They appear so fearfully dense. Time and again a few words of quite simple explanation would clear the entire situation, but they are not spoken until the story has run its five-reel course. To introduce aparently intelligent people and then force them into obvious stupidities is hardly the way to build a convincing photoplay, even when the plot reveals the technical adroitness to be expected from a writer of Marguerite Bertsch's expertness.

"For a Woman's Fair Name," superbly acted and admirably staged, is wanting in just one essential quality, that of plausibility. Here is the situation confronting an audience. A woman of irreproachable reputation goes for a moonlight automobile ride with McGregor, a trusted friend of her husband. The machine turns turtle and Vivien, slightly injured, is carried into a road house. Her companion's half-brother, a blackmailing dope fiend, who chances to be enjoying a convivial party at the resort, seizes the opportunity to menace his relative. He registers at the hotel for Mr. and Mrs. McGregor and henceforth is credited with the ability to cause a disgraceful scandal.

Scene from "For A Woman's Fair Name" (Vitagraph).

The trouble with this foundation for a long series of emotional disturbances is the weakness of the blackmailer's case. The natural procedure after the accident would have been to notify the husband, and even if this had not been done, a subsequent disproval of the man's assertions appeared moderately easy—certainly the attempt would have been preferable to the tacit acceptance of so much unhappiness.

But there is a chance, rather a good chance, in fact, that many in an audience will take the characters created by Robert Edeson and his associates without analyzing motives. The acting is emotionally vital and the scenic equipment of the picture is at once attractive and in perfect taste. Although Mr. Edeson's opportunities are not great until the concluding reel he never appears in a scene without contributing something to its interest. His personality has a rare quality of magnetic strength.

No less essential to the production is the intense performance of Eulalie Jensen as the wife; then we find an entirely charming ingenue in Alicia, as played by Belle Bruce, and an acceptable lover in Harry Morey's portrayal of McGregor. William Dunn is consistent to the last detail of manner in his playing of the drug-crazed Bolles. With so much to commend in the acting and in Harry Davenport's production, one may overlook the deficiency noted in the story.

"The Scarlet Road."

A Powerful Photodramatic Story of the Bright Lights, by George Kleine, Discreetly Shorn of Objectionable Realism, Ably Directed and Well Acted.

Fair Laughs the Moon and soft the zephyr blows,
As o'er Life's wave the gilded vessel goes,
Youth at the prow and Pleasure at the helm.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THE didactic story usually falls short of the mark, because preachment is an offense when out of place. "The Scarlet Road" is in strong contrast to such a type, because the experience of the leading character of the story impresses its lesson without any show of attempting to teach the spectator, he or she being taught unconsciously and in a most emphatic manner.

Scene from "The Scarlet Road" (Kleine).

I can fearlessly cite this filmed story as an example of how risqueness can be avoided without impairing the dramatic strength of certain scenes, which, without a nice observance of the proprieties, might have become spectacles for the prurient minded. And I would remind the reader that, notwithstanding the lurid title of the film, the screen shows nothing that can be reasonably construed as an offense against good taste.

The story can lay claim to originality in many respects. I have never read nor seen one like it on the screen. The character of Harry Tremaine (Malcolm Duncan) is of an unusual type. Here we have a young man, who has been circumspect in his life up to his twenty-fifth birthday, supporting himself and his old father (as he believes), who lives a lonely life in an old cabin, out in Montana, by hard work in an office in New York. Head bookkeeper and trusted employe, he works early and late. One night a messenger brings an important telegram and Harry carries it to the head of the firm, who is taking supper at the Cafe de Paris, a gay resort for the upper ten, where the cabaret is in high favor. There he meets a famous cabaret dancer, and the prosaic current of his life is suddenly changed.

A day afterwards he is notified that his father had died and left him $200,000. Then begins a season of high life, in which the cabaret dancer and her dancing partner figure prominently. They fleece him of his money in various ways, and he is penniless in a few short months. Owing to his wild career on Broadway he fails to find employment or assistance; but a hard-headed old gentleman, while refusing aid, hands him a letter from his father which he had been instructed to deliver, under just such conditions as then existed. Harry is instructed in the letter to go out to the old cabin in Montana and there he will find a way out of his difficulties. He beats his way on freight trains to the spot and, on gaining entrance, finds a hangman's noose dangling from the ceiling. Horrified and angry at the callousness of his dead parent, he swears that he will yet make good. Then he beats his way back to New York.

How he kept his vow and married the girl of his choice, whom he had neglected in his mad infatuation for the cabaret dancer, is absorbingly told in the pictures.

Malcolm Duncan plays the part of the young spendthrift with fine abandon and snap, as the occasion demands. The feverish elation of Harry over his fortune of $200,000 and its reckless waste are most realistically shown. The manful way in which he gets even on the cabaret singer and her accomplice, and the reconciliation with his little sweetheart, Alice Holbrook, are also true to the life and very satisfying.

Miss Della Connor, as Alice Holbrook, is delightful. It is the most important role she has had since her appearance in the cast of "Stop Thief," and she sustains it with nice art and winsome manner. Miss Anna Nilsson gives a forceful impersonation of the cabaret dancer, her simulation of the wiles of that feminine vulture being especially pronounced. Her dancing is exquisite, and she has in John Jarrott, who appears as the cabaret partner of Betty Belgrave, a fitting opposite. Miss Ina Shepard, in the motherly role of Mrs. Holbrook, gives a pleasing characterization.

The release was made Feb. 16, through Kleine-Edison.

Two Equitable Dramas

Roy McCardell Deals with Vital Subject in "The Question"—Mary Boland Starred in "The Price of Happiness."

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

"The Question."

UNPLEASANT truths, legitimately exaggerated for dramatic emphasis, are presented in Roy L. McCardell's story of a —not the—social evil. He argues, in effect that dogs, however smooth their coats and long their pedigrees, are poor substitutes for babies and that it behooves wives to allow nature to take its normal course. If they do not; if they dodge the responsibility of increasing the world's population, why no one need be surprised if a home loving husband looks elsewhere for a mate. In the case of Dogs vs. Babies, Mr. McCardell gives the decision to the latter.

"The Question" is a more than ordinarily acceptable picture because it deals frankly with a theme of contemporaneous interest. There is enough point and truth to the story to lend a touch of ironic humor, and it is conceivable that a few of the scenes will assist foolish women in seeing themselves as others see them. The moral tone of the story is sound, the dramatic quality is more than passable, the production is marked by rich settings and the acting is effective.

First place is given to Marguerite Leslie, a good type for the character of the society infatuated woman, whose friends are birds of the same feather. When she is about to be married and wants a boy and a girl to act as page and flower girl at the wedding, she appeals to the women of her own set in vain, for not one of them has been blessed with children. But they all have dogs upon which to lavish a misdirected mother instinct. Ralph Tudor, a young business man, knowing Grace for what she is, rather foolishly marries her although he has realized the charm of the altogether womanly stenographer in his office. The break comes after the marriage, when Tudor becomes disgusted with his wife and her dogs and elopes with the stenographer. Mr. McCardell arranged a moderately happy ending by permitting the death of Ralph's soul mate and allowing the wife to adopt the motherless child. The denouement appears a bit forced, but is not altogether unreasonable. Clara Whipple looks well as Anna Lee and plays the part with feeling, whereas George Anderson gives a sincere interpretation as the husband.

Scene from "The Question" (Equitable).

"The Price of Happiness."

Content with the simple things of life is the price of happiness, if one may accept the evidence of this photoplay, produced by the Triumph Corporation, with Mary Boland in the role of a wife who learns the lesson in time to profit by it. The picture, so far removed from probabilities, yet accurate and realistic in the presentation of scenes of New York, especially New York cabarets, suggests a modern allegory. It offers an obvious and effective contrast between virtuous thrift and alluring luxury. For a time the heroine sees only the enticements of wealth, and is almost ready to succumb when the shallow mockery is disclosed.

Scene from "The Price of Happiness" (Equitable).

The dramatist went to a humble dwelling for his two chief characters, a shoemaker and his wife, a surprisingly well dressed and pretty woman. Bertha, once a sewing machine girl, meets three former friends, who have prospered beyond her fondest dreams—one as the wife of a wealthy man, another as an opera singer and a third, described as having discovered "the easiest way." The four young women and their male companions have a number of gay reunions, during which Bertha comes to envy the superior advantages enjoyed by her former associates. Her shoemaker husband makes a pair of shoes for each of Bertha's friends and in delivering them, Bertha witnesses three distinct tragedies. After this she is perfectly content to return to her poor and honest family.

The central theme of the story is clearly developed and the dramatic incidents, if somewhat episodic in themselves, all contribute to driving home the argument. Settings are appropriate. Miss Boland seems to have been more concerned about looking her best than dressing like a shoemaker's wife, but at all events she succeeded in being continuously attractive. The support given by David Wall and others was efficient.

Triangle Program.

"Bullets and Brown Eyes," Five-Reel Kay-Bee; and "Better Late Than Never," Two-Reel Keystone.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"PRESENTING Bessie Barriscale" is announced as a raison d'etre, and it is certainly the principal one. Bariscale of the wondrous eyes and gracious ways, so wantonly feminine at one moment, so exquisitely so at another, a dainty, yielding exponent of non-resistance in the presence of assertive man, a cunning schemer behind his back, withal tender in his worst extremity, she impersonates, not so much this or that individual member of her sex, but the sex itself. In that art she is almost supreme, one of the most remarkable screen actresses of today, so effective in certain roles as to be in a class by herself.

"Bullets and Brown Eyes" presents other merits than those of Barriscale, but it contains so much that is jarringly theatrical and artificial, that it is almost stripped bare of illusion. Manly William Desmond, of strong and attractive personality struts about from beginning to end in one of those Huzzar's suits which may be tolerated in Prisoner of Zenda, but which are highly operatic when shown among armored motor cars, motorcycle squads and modern artillery. He is perpetually seen with hand on hip, sustaining the white shoulder cloak, his white tights absolutely spotless after a long and dusty cavalry ride, as incongruous among men in modern uniforms as a stage gypsy wearing satin slippers and silk stockings getting out of a rude wagon on a dusty road.

Continental soldiers keep their head-coverings on in church but one would think them so many southern gentlemen in this play. Then, while very few in a mixed audience realize that the military commands in Los Angeles phraseology are not exactly the thing, that sort of carelessness, and the inattention to Continental military formality, and the mixture of modern and opera-bouffe uniforms do not constitute artistry. There are many animated military scenes, of the kind Ince made famous, and the support is generally good, but the story would not approach the Kay-Bee standard but for Brown-Eyed Betsy B.

Scene from "Bullets and Brown Eyes" (Triangle).

"Better Late Than Never" is a mildly amusing farce "presenting" William Collier. He does so well that he deserves to be presented with a medal for carrying the whole play on his shoulders. There is a painful lack of suddenness in the appearance of this or that humorous situation which has much of the same effect on an audience as a lot of preparatory laughter before a joke is told. The director should be presented with one of those mottos neatly embroidered on perforated cardboard, "Let Us Not Anticipate."

Scene from "Better Late Than Never" (Triangle).

"The Uplift"

An Underworld Photoplay in Three Reels, Written and Directed by Clay M. Greene.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE fate of two sisters, daughters of a criminal, who has brought them up to be sneak thieves, forms the leading motif of Clay M. Greene's three-reel photoplay. As Mr. Greene has been given a good cast and allowed to produce his own scenario, he has had every incentive to turn out a specimen of his best work. The result justifies his choice as playwright and producer. He states his proposition clearly at the opening of his story and adheres closely to the work in hand all through the picture. Dealing with criminals and the underworld, he shows complete understanding of their manner of life, and has reproduced his scenes with convincing effect.

Peg, the elder of the two sisters, first determines to reform, but finds her path beset with difficulties. After a disheartening struggle, she is glad to enter a convent and find peace. Tot, the younger girl, is more fortunate. She is a bright little thing, whose success at picking pockets goes a long way toward supporting the family. A mission worker meets the girl and takes her to the Uplift Society. For the first time in her existence, Tot is shown the better way and determines to follow it. Being an energetic young person, she does not rest until her father and her sweetheart—also a thief—are members of the Mission.

Scene from "The Uplift" (Lubin).

The acting in "The Uplift" is always adequate. Helen Greene has the character of Peg and plays it with deft character touches. Her makeup, physical qualifications and mental attitude fit the part admirably. Helen Weir is the Tot. She forms a striking contrast to Miss Greene in method and person, and makes Tot just the quickwitted, engaging little rascal intended by the author. Other excellent character types are contributed by George Clarke, Francis Joyner, and Clarence Jay Elmer. Walter Law, Arthur Forbes and Bessie Marmeine give a good account of the straight roles.

"The Blacklist"

A Gripping Drama, Depicting Industrial and Social Wrongs with Blanche Sweet in the Leading Part.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

THE early scenes of this Lasky feature are of extraordinary power. The types are perfectly chosen. Rarely has the screen shown a more convincing character than the cunning fanatic who wields such power in the councils of the "Red Brotherhood." The contrasts in our social life, the inequalities in the state's treatment of capital and labor, the excesses of brutality in the domains of monopolistic corporations, the hate and despair engendered by social injustice —all these things are shown with consummate art.

Scene from "The Blacklist" (Lasky).

The feature is finished on a somewhat smaller scale than the first two reels indicated. While the plot was plausible and abundantly rich in dramatic materials the acting of Blanche Sweet did not bring out its fullest value. Miss Sweet has learned much, but certain delicate shades in emotion are still somewhat beyond her power. There were touches of pathetic humor in her part which appear but faintly under her handling. The support of Miss Sweet was excellent. The part of the brutalized, servile and cowardly mine-guard was rendered with special skill.

The spectacular parts of the feature were highly satisfactory. All through the feature there was felt that deep psychological knowledge which together with the technical perfection characterize most of the Lasky plays.

"The Iron Claw"

Opening Episodes of Pathe Serial Promise a Story of the First Quality—Thrills Aplenty and a Few Laughs.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

PRACTICE has made the Pathe company notably proficient in the production of serial photoplays. Through long experience, beginning with the renowned "Perils of Pauline," directors and scenario writers connected with Pathe have learned the difficult art of telling a story in installments so that each release is complete in itself, yet an essential part of an extended plot.

Seemingly, they have found it wise to make each reel interesting, quite as if it were expected to stand on its own merits. Protracted expositions are avoided, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the necessary exposition—the introduction of the characters and a clear outline of their relationship—is incorporated in the dramatic action. Such, at least, is the impression left by the first two episodes of "The Iron Claw" that bids fair to become the most popular serial made by Pathe.

If past performances are a safe token of the future, we should say that a winning combination is engaged in producing this story of mystery and thrills. The author, Arthur Stringer, is blessed with an astonishingly fertile imagination. For many years he has been contributing weird stories to American magazines, and he may be counted upon for just the quality of ingenuity required in a photoplay of this character. George Brackett Seitz, who is putting the stories into scenario form, has revealed his competency on previous occasions. Edward Jose is one of the most artistic directors making pictures in America, and the screen has brought forth no more daring heroine than Pearl White.

"The Vengeance of Legar," in two reels, opens the serial at a rapid pace. It is here that we notice the expertness with which interest is aroused in the story of the girl, Margery Golden, who is kidnapped when a child and reared by the vengeful Jules Legar—"The Iron Claw." In scenes of the most vivid kind, we see enough of the past of the characters to comprehend their motives. The plot is original in conception and the action, while entirely free from padding, is complete enough to escape appearing fragmentary. It will be an unresponsive audience, indeed, that does not respond to the horror of Legar's punishment when his arm is crushed and his face is branded with a hot iron. More thrilling still are the flood scenes, the inundation of an entire island and the escape of Margery Golden.

In the second episode, "The House of Unhappiness," Creighton Hale appears for the first time, and it soon becomes evident that as the secretary to Enoch Golden, Margery's father, he is destined to play an important part in the picture. Mr. Hale strikes a new note in interpreting the hero of a melodramatic serial. With good looks and an engaging personality to begin with, he apparently intends making Manley a normal young man blessed with a sense of humor, as well as the spirit of adventure. His incidental bits of comedy business scored with the invited audience at the American theater.

Scene from "The Iron Claw" (Pathe).

Much of the excitement in these two reels is produced by Legar's use of an electric ray projector, which enables him to set buildings on fire. It is largely a picture of burning structures, until Manley discovers the location of the projector and the conspirators are driven into the open. Sheldon Lewis makes a terrifying person of Legar; Miss White plays with her accustomed ease, and curiosity is aroused by the occasional appearance of a figure called "The Laughing Mask." No exhibitor need fear "The Iron Claw."

"The Happy Masquerader"

Three-reel American that Has Entertaining Values—Features Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE situation which develops out of a joke pulled off by a group of club men, in which one of them, a young millionaire, wagers that he can prove that true happiness has its being within the individual is a good one. A chauffeur is called in from the street and persuaded to change places with the young millionaire for the space of two months, and complications naturally occur. The chauffeur who is a widower with a little girl, whom he has treated brutally, finds an opportunity to follow his natural inclinations when he is invited to the home of Hudson, a man who is indebted to the millionaire's father. In an endeavor to force Hudson's beautiful young ward to marry him, in lieu of the debt, he is overtaken by the expiration of the allotted two months, and arrested for embezzlement. In the meantime Hudson's ward has fallen in love with the young millionaire in his chauffeur disguise, and marries him unknown to her guardian.

Scene from "The Happy Masquerader" (American).

The story has been given nice treatment by the director, Thomas Ricketts, and will be found unusually entertaining. Winnifred Greenwood who appears in the role of Hudson's ward is charmingly gowned, and plays with the same winsome personality that always characterizes her work. Edward Coxen in the title role does excellent work, and George Field plays the double-dyed villain in his usual energetic manner.

"Poor Little Peppina"

Miss Pickford Appears to Advantage in an Interesting Story—Picture Notable for its Staging and Types.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IN the name role of "Poor Little Peppina," Mary Pickford is seen to advantage in the Famous Players' release of March 2. The subject was shown at the Broadway for the week of February 20. While the picture will be in five parts as released on its regular program, in its special runs it is longer. The print shown at the Broadway was in six parts; it would seem there might be several troublesome quarters of an hour in store for the one delegated to cut out of it a thousand feet. For the picture contains strong interest all the way, with abundance of action and relevant incident.

The story, which was written by Kate Jordan, gives to Miss Pickford the kind of role in which she has found her greatest success—that of a waif. As the girl reared by Italian peasants following her abduction from her American parents; on shipboard attired in her fosterbrother's clothes; in America buffected by fate in the shape of counterfeiters, and in the conclusion, when restored to her parents she is seen garbed as a young woman of wealth, Miss Pickford is at her best. It is an all-around characterization, one that will be enjoyed by the player's admirers.

Sidney Olcott, the producer, too, is at his best—in his staging and general direction, but notably in his selection of types. The last remark applies whether we are speaking of the Italians or the New Yorkers—and especially of his detectives, both superiors and subordinates. The scene of the working of the third degree, when the arrested counterfeiters confess to their abduction of the child fifteen years before, their confrontation by the father and mother of Peppina and the reunion of the family all these incidents provide a series of situations of real dramatic power.

Jack Pickford as Beppo, the son of the foster-parents of Peppina, is a factor in the support of his sister. Eugene Scene from "Poor Little Peppina" (Famous Players).

O'Brien is the assistant district attorney who befriends Peppina. W. J. Carleton is a convincing chief of police. On the Italian side of the story marked atmosphere is contributed by Antonio Maiori, Caesare Gravina, N. Cervi, Mrs. Maiori and Francesca Guerra.

"Poor Little Peppina" should in popularity rank as one of Miss Pickford's "six best sellers."

"The Pool of Flame"

Five-Reel Red Feather Production Featuring J. Warren Kerrigan in Well-Known Role of Soldier of Fortune.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS production in five reels covers an entertaining episode in the career of Terence O'Rourke, gentleman adventurer, portrayed by J. Warren Kerrigan, who also appeared in a series of features in the same role.

The action centers about a valuable diamond, known as the "pool of flame," which has some time before been stolen from the head of a Buddhist idol in Rangoon, India. The motive, as may be seen, is not a new one, but the number is pleasing and uniformly attractive in photography and presentation. The opening reels move along without any specially strong dramatic effect, yet with a good hold on the interest all the while. The last reel comes up with a strong climax, which sets the heart beating rapidly.

Scene from "The Pool of Flame" (Red Feather).

The story is by Louis Joseph Vance and the scenario adaptation by F. McGrew Willis. Kerrigan has his usual appeal in this part and Lois Wilson is attractive as Princess Beatrix, with whom Terence is in love. Harry Carter, Maude George, Bertram Grassby and Frank MacQuarrie all have important parts.

Terence fights a duel early in the narrative, having pulled a man's nose for snooping about his rooms too freely. The visit of Beatrix is well handled and there are some commendable humorous touches in this reel. This helps decidedly where the plot situations are already familiar to the average observer, as happens in this case.

The opening scenes are at Monte Carlo, and a fairly good suggestion of the famous gambling resort is achieved. Later the story switches to India, and it is here that Terence rounds up the missing jewel and sees that it is properly replaced in the forehead of the idol.

Picture Theater Equipment Co. Make Two Notable Installations.

One of the recent installations made by the Picture Theatre Equipment Co., of 19 W. 23rd street, New York City was in the Lafayette High School at Buffalo, N. Y. This included a motor generator set complete, with supplies for the projection of moving pictures and stereopticon views for the benefit of the pupils. The second installation to which we have reference was made in the Bronx Union Y. M. C. A. This also included a complete projection outfit.

Pathe's "The Iron Claw" to Be in Fourteen Episodes.

A unique tribute has been paid "The Iron Claw," Pathe's new serial. Exhibitors were so impressed with the strength of the cast and the excellence of the first episode shown them privately that a large majority have requested Pathe to make the serial in fourteen episodes instead of twelve. These requests have come from all over the country. Consequently it is announced that the serial will be in fourteen episodes.

Frank Daniels as Mr. Jack.

The first of the series of comedies produced by the Vitagraph Company, featuring Frank Daniels, of comic opera fame, is now ready for release. In them, Daniels is presented in the role of Mr. Jack who undergoes a number of humorous adventures, under the guiding pen of Paul West who wrote the comedies, and under the capable direction of C. Jay Williams, who produced the multi-reel films in which Daniels made his first bow to the motion picture public. V-L-S-E will release them.

Pioneer Acquires Rights for "The Little Orphan."

The Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, 130 West 46th Street, have acquired the territorial rights for New York State and Northern New Jersey for the new production entitled "The Little Orphan," featuring the child Bernhardt of the screen, Em Gorman. This is a modern drama of intense heart interest, in five parts. Baby Gorman certainly distinquishes herself as a dramatic artiste in this production.

Lampson Books "Race Suicide."

A. T. Lambson, the energetic exchange man of the northwest, who through his own efforts and recognition has recently incorporated the Reelplay Feature Company, with offices at 1019 Eastlake Avenue, Seattle, Wash., has purchased the big, six part, motion picture attraction "Race Suicide" from Jos. W. Farnham, as the leader in his program of features de luxe, which he will book to the theatres of the territory of Oregon, Wash., Idaho and Montana.

Novelty Slide Moves.

The Novelty Slide Company, which was practically evicted by a fire which damaged the offices occupied by it at 67 West 23d Street, New York, announces that it has taken new offices at 115-117 East 23d Street, in the same building with the Universal and Pathe Exchanges. The telephone number remains the same—Grammercy 3672.

"Peanuts and Power" (Beauty).

Carol Halloway, John Sheehan and John Steppling have just dropped through the principal roles of another "Beauty" comedy—"Peanuts and Powder." Imagine peanuts being used to make destructive projectiles. This must seem far fetched. Yet it is a very serious fact in this play. It is at least sufficient to be the cause of a desperate duel at Monte Carlo. Proof of the above can be seen on the screen in a short time.

"The Waif" (American).

Vivian Rich, the charming American (Mutual) star, will be seen in a very appealing role, the foundling in "The Waif," a three-part drama soon to appear. Miss Rich plays the role of a little girl, a runaway from an orphanage, who is adopted by a farmer. The girl's gratitude is given an unusual test. She sacrifices her own good name to save the honor of the daughter of her benefactor.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 13, 1916 (Selig), Feb. 14.—Feeding a baby camel at the Selig Zoo is the feature picture. Other items: Carnival at Tampa, Fla.; Archbishop Mundelein, Chicago; six dead in Brooklyn, N. Y., fire; English soldiers at Salonica, Greece; Miss Reba Potter, model for Canadian coin; flood, Newport, Arkansas; new life-saving suit, Washington, D. C.; natives drilling, Manila, P. I.; National Ski Meet, Glenwood, Minn.; Harvey Hall, winner of the contests; President Wilson at Topeka, Kan.

A SONG FROM THE HEART (Lubin), Feb. 14.—Not particularly original as to plot, this one-reel drama, written and directed by Paul Powell, has a strong romantic interest. The picture is also provided with variety of action and contains a number of well drawn characters, which are ably played by Melvin Mayo, L. C. Shumway, George Routh, Berdie Priest, Velma Whitman, Mae T. Prestell, Leona McLean, and Eva Kinney.

YOU'RE NEXT (Vitagraph), Feb. 14.—Yes; that's the answer, the leading character in this one-reel comedy is a barber. Wally Van plays the part. He also plays a joke on his boss and the rest of the town by passing himself off as a lady barber, and has a close shave from being stripped of his finery by the wives of his male customers. The comedy was written by Aaron T. Bishop and contains the regulation Wally part. Nitra Frazer and Charles Eldridge are Mr. Van's principal support, although Wally relies a great deal on a blonde wig and other female fixings. An amusing picture.

HAM TAKES A CHANCE (Kalem), Feb. 15.—This one-reel comedy marks the return of Lloyd V. Hamilton to active service, following his severe accident last summer. The offering is a rapid-fire comedy, in which Ham gives a remarkable exhibition of knife-throwing, Bud being the target. Ethel Teare is also a member of the cast. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of February 12, page 976.

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK (Essanay), Feb. 16.—Chicago is the subject of this clever cartoonist's pencil, and his drawings of the leading points of interest in the Windy City have decided merit. Views of the petrified forest of Arizona complete the reel.

A MOLAR MIX-UP (Kalem), Feb. 16.—Bud Duncan, Ethel Teare, Jack MacDermott, Myrta Sterling and Gus Leonard comprise the cast in this one-reel comedy, written by C. Doty Hobart. As a dentist's assistant, Bud injects life and movement into the situations with the help of a number of electric wires. A fairly good tumble-about farce. Produced by William Beaudine.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE (Selig), Feb. 17.—Diki Diki, the dwarf ruler of one of the Philippine Islands, who executes a native dance, is the feature of subject in No. 14. Flood at Pine Bluff, Kan.; English soldiers leaving Vernon, France; Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago; launching of large oil ship, San Francisco; Secretary Garrison, Washington; Major General Hugh Scott, Washington; Marjorie Sterrett of Brooklyn, N. Y., who started the battleship fund; blazing oil well, Humble, Tex., and Walter L. Massie, scientist, of Providence, R. I., are among the other news items.

ONE TOO MANY (Vim), Feb. 17.—Babe Hardy and Billie Ruge lead the list of sprinting comedians in this one-reel farce. The somewhat familiar young man who is forced to borrow a wife and a baby before the arrival of his uncle, is the character assumed by Mr. Hardy. His histrionic equipment enables him to amply fill the role. The picture is a good example of the Vim brand of quick-fire farce.

THE GUIDING HAND (Kalem), Feb. 18.—This one-reel drama, written by Howard Irving Young, has a simple plot, an aged butler and the two sons of the old man's former employer being the principal characters. The story rings true and has a wholesome atmosphere all through. Richard Purdon, Arthur Albertson, Robert Ellis and Dallas Tyler form an excellent cast.

IN ARCADIA (Vitagraph), Feb. 18.—W. A. Tremayne is the author of this one-reel comedy, played by William Dangman, Ethel Corcoran, Kate Price, Edward Elkas, James Dent, and William Dunn. The story deals with the experience of a young couple who take a bunaglow in the country, remain one night, and return to Harlem. An amusingly truthful picture.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 14, 1916 (Vitagraph), Feb. 18.—Senator Chamberlain; N. Y. National Guards in winter drill; Japs of California send horse as Coronation gift to Emperor; crash of "L" road, New York; Sons of Veterans honor Lincoln, Boston; Chicago school children unveil Lincoln monument; Eastern Association of Skaters, Newburgh, N. Y.; three steamers burn, Brooklyn; latest fashions; Ski Meet; bread line, N. Y.; dog show, Palm Beach; slide in Prospect Park, Brooklyn; big fire, Fall River, Mass.; animated cartoon.

A TEMPORARY HUSBAND (Lubin), Feb. 19.—Most wives object to lending their husbands. The married lady in Mark Swan's one-reel comedy is strongly opposed to such an arrangement, and makes things lively for her better half and the maiden lady who borrows him for the afternoon. Mr. Swan's photoplay is full of innocent fun and is capitally acted by Billie Reeves, Carrie Reynolds, Margaret Moore, Jessie Terry, and Mimi Yvonne.

THE PERILOUS SWING (No. 67 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Kalem), Feb. 19.—The title of this one-reel "Hazard" does not overstate matters in the least. Helen catches her lariat on the end of a railroad bridge as it is lifted upward, and swings out over the river, landing on the other side in time to baffle the train wreckers. Excitement is not allowed to slacken speed all through the reel.

General Film Company Specials.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE, NO. 4, 'The Mark" (Essanay), Feb. 14.—A review of this installment of the Essanay serial appeared in the issue of February 19, page 1147. In many respects No. 4 is the most interesting two-reel of the story so far shown. It throws new light upon the character of the heroine and the events leading up to the murder.

THE BLACK ORCHID (Selig), Feb. 14.—A romance of military life in India, this three-reel drama by Mrs. Owen Bronson has a jealous woman for the leading character, who turns a tiger loose on the trail of the hero when he spurns her love. The black orchid plays but a small part in the development of the plot. The picture is a good specimen of its class of photoplay, and is excellently played by Kathlyn Williams, Wheeler Oakman, Edith Johnson, Earle Foxe, Grace Darmond, Harry Lonsdale and Lillian Hayward. T. N. Hefferon has directed the picture intelligently, the scenes in India being cleverly produced.

HIS WHITE LIE (Biograph), Feb. 15.—Produced with care and well acted by Claire McDowell, Charles Mailes, Gretchen Hartman and Charles Perley, this two-part drama holds the attention despite the somewhat obvious nature of the story. It concerns a man who accepts the blame for a crime he did not commit and at a critical time is cleared by a woman's confession.

GOLD DUST (Essanay), Feb. 15.—The plot of this two-reel photoplay is not remarkable, but the better side of human nature is brought out with telling effect, and its moral is driven home without any unnecessary preaching on the part of the author. Thomas Cummerford plays the part of an aged bookkeeper around whose fate the story revolves. He gives a fine portrayal of the role. Nell Craig, Edmund F. Cobb, John Cossar, and Patrick Calhoun are the remaining members of a thoroughly good cast.

PIQUE (Biograph), Feb. 16.—A three-part adaptation of Augustin Daly's play of the same name, directed by Lawrence Marston with William Russell, Jack Drumeir, Gretchen Hartman, Isabel Rea, Franklin Ritchie and Thomas Jefferson in the cast. The photoplay, generally romantic in tone, introduces some interesting scenes photographed on board a man-of-war and in a navy yard. Altogether a very fair offering.

Bluebird Photoplays.

THE GRIP OF JEALOUSY (Bluebird), Feb. 28.—In this story of slavery days in the South there are a number of effective scenes, but the picture, as a whole, is not especially impressive. Able performances are given by Marcia Moore, Lon Chaney, Walter Belasco, Louise Lovely and Hayward Mack.

RUPERT OF HENTZAU (Bluebird), March 6.—An elaborate adaptation of Anthony Hope's novel, a sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," is offered in this production made under the direction of George Tucker. The romance of love and adventure is very well acted by Jane Gail and Henry Ainley; there are scenes of swift action and no little melodramatic excitement and the settings are in excellent taste. Unfortunately the picture is over-burdened with sub-titles.

Fox Film Corporation.

THE FOOL'S REVENGE (Feb. 20).—Five-reel offering. A sensational story, well directed and ably acted. Its incidents are very distressing and one will feel that so many hideous experiences pictured without any clearly marked moral intention give needless pain without recompense. Perhaps some were entertained; but it is hardly an enlivening offering. Ampler review will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 59 (Mutual), Feb. 17.—One of the most interesting items of this number is the launching of the floating hospital at Wilmington, Del., gift for St. John's Guild, New York. There is also shown the wreckage of the schooner "Aberdeen" in the surf off Golden Gate Park; oldtime fiddlers' convention at Atlanta, Ga., and the colossal statue to be erected to the Titanic heroes in Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., getting the finishing touches from its creator, John Horrigan.

AT THE END OF HIS ROPE (Vogue), Feb. 17.—A slapstick comedy that is rather amusing. Rube in love with Madge sees an opportunity to win a sum of money for a matrimonial venture through catching a bandit known as Slick-Fingered Matt. A rough-and-tumble chase ensues which is more or less amusing.

TOO PROUD TO FIGHT (Cub), Feb. 18.—An interesting sample of farce comedy with George Ovey featured. A girl with three "steadies" is the pivot around which the plot moves, and Jerry is the trouble starter. This picture will be found very satisfactory for the majority of audiences.

THE BATTLE OF CUPIDOVITCH (Beauty), Feb. 20.—In this comedy an amusing situation arises over an argument on the war which takes place between the fathers of two young people who are anxious to wed. The severing of diplomatic relations between the families whose homes are separated only by a low stone wall, causes the lovers to resort to strategy in order to carry out their original plan of marrying each other. The failure of the outposts to do their duty gives the young couple the desired opportunity to elope. The comedy is a good one.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 23 (Gaumont), Feb. 20.—"The Florida Keys and Key West," including what is known as Long Key, leading to the wonderful fishing camp of that name, are shown in this number. The fishing of sponges and tortoises is also an interesting item. A thorough insight is given into the manufacture of tortoise shell combs, showing every stage through which they pass in the course of manufacture. On the same reel with "Keeping Up With the Joneses."

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Gaumont), Feb. 20.—This time cartoonist Harry Palmer sends Pa and Ma McGinis to have their fortunes told, each unknown to the other. They accidentally meet, and of course this leads to great consternation for both parties.

TOO MUCH MARRIED (Beauty), Feb. 23.—Not an especially commendable film. A man who has quarreled with his young wife gets a letter from his rich uncle, saying that he is coming to visit him and is prepared to give him a start in life. On finding that his wife has left him he introduces the new cook who has her baby with her, as his wife. This situation contains various vulgar suggestions that would stand elimination.

PERKINS PEACE PARTY (Falstaff), Feb. 24.—An unhappy professor, who cannot get along without quarreling with his wife, decides to go to Europe and stop the war. He and a friend start on a vessel, but are forced to scrub decks and do other hard labor. He returns to find his wife waiting with a horsewhip. The idea is a quietly amusing one and is quite pleasingly worked out.

COOKING HIS GOOSE (Beauty), Feb. 27.—In some respects this offering is a unique one, for instance where cartoon work is allowed to end the story. The plot of the play concerns the matrimonial venture of Ima who loves pie almost as well as he loves whiskey. After his marriage he discovers that his lady love has deceived him with regard to her culinary capabilities. The picture is only fairly entertaining.

RUSTY REGGIE'S RECORD (Falstaff), Feb. 29.—A banker studies hypnotism and thinks he has converted his would-be son-in-law into a tramp. But the tramp turns out to be Reggie, a badly wanted yeggman. This is quite amusing in a quiet way and worked out without any unpleasant scenes.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

I ACCUSE (Mutual Masterpicture de Luxe, Gaumont, No. 71), Feb. 21.—A five-part production based on a story that is hardly sufficient for five reels of film. The effort to adapt it satisfactorily has not met with very large success. The players headed by Alexander Gaden have done their best with the scant opportunities afforded them. The plot of the story as presented in the production is so confused that it would be difficult to give it a brief and definite outline.

DOUBLE CROSSED (Mustang), Feb. 25.—A three-part production directed by Thomas Chatterdon, and featuring himself and Anna Little. The production has an interesting story, not unlike many others, but giving a strong outline to the character of the woman who believes that her husband, in spite of his seeming neglect, is the best man after all. Jack Richardson plays the role of Lemp, a ne'er-do-well, who is given a lift by the big western ranchman, and rewards his kindness by trying to break up his home. In spite of a little padding that is evident the production will be found interesting.

THE HAPPY MASQUERADER (American), Feb. 29.—A three-reel production directed by Thomas Ricketts, and featuring Winifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen. This production is well produced and entertaining. The story tells how a young millionaire and a chauffeur agreed to change places for the space of two months. During this time the real chauffeur tries to appropriate money belonging to the millionaire in the shape of a debt owed by the millionaire's father. The expiration of the allotted two months saves the situation, places the chauffeur in the hands of the police and unites in matrimony the two principals of the play. George Field plays the role of the chauffeur.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

PUDD'N HEAD WILSON (Lasky), Jan. 31.—Theodore Roberts is presented in this Mark Twain drama, based on the finger print theory and gives a most convincing portrayal. The characteristic atmosphere adds to the merit of the film. A thoroughly capable cast is in his support. Photography and settings are all that can be expected. This feature was reviewed in last week's issue.

TENNESSEE'S PARDNER (Lasky), Feb. 3.—Well directed and finely enacted by Fannie Ward, "Tennessee's Pardner" is sure to prove highly successful as a feature of western life in the days of '49. There is a unique touch of Bret Harte's humor carefully injected. Jack Dean deserves praise for his performance. The interior and exterior settings present the true western style. For an extended review see last week's issue.

NEARLY A KING (Famous Players), Feb. 10.—John Barrymore is featured in this five-part subject. As was outlined in the extended review of this subject, on page 1315 in the issue of February 26, Mr. Barrymore makes much of a not overstrong role. The picture contains quite a bit of comedy and will make an interesting release.

THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE (Lasky), Feb. 14.—The most outstanding element of this film is the flawless portrayal of Theodore Roberts as the leader of a band of moonshiners. The feature as a whole is good, but does not measure in full the story. Charlotte Walker is at all times convincing and others in the cast do good work. The locations are well chosen and settings and photography excellent. For an extended review see last week's issue.

POOR LITTLE PEPPINA (Famous Players), March 2.—Mary Pickford in this strong five-part subject has an all-around role, one furnishing her with opportunity for the display of versatility. The subject is reviewed at length on another page of this issue.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS, NO. 12 1916 (Pathe), Feb. 9.—Among the most interesting items of this issue are, the wounded in the Vosges being conveyed to the hospitals on sled stretchers drawn by ski runners, an English cycle corps conveying wounded soldiers to the hospitals, the ruins of the parliament buildings at Ottawa, Ont., which were gutted by fire, bob sledding at Locust Valley, L. I., and the last of the trappers of the Cumberland Mountains still pursuing his trade at Smoky Mountain, Tenn.

SIBERIA, THE VAST UNKNOWN (Photocolor), Feb. 14.—In two reels of film an excellent idea of the northeast coast of Siberia is given. Several groups of eskimos are shown on land and in their omiaks on the water. Also fine views of the Arctic ocean after the ice has broken in the spring are given. This film will be found entertaining and instructive.

LUKE FOILS THE VILLAIN (Phunphilms), Feb. 14.—This is farce comedy that is fairly entertaining. As in too many instances where farce comedy is concerned there are vulgar touches that might well be eliminated, such as an accidental lifting of a woman's skirts. We do not doubt that this elimination would be made before it reached the public eye. The film is otherwise unobjectionable and amusing.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

THE SHRINE OF HAPPINESS (Pathe Gold Rooster Play), Feb. 18.—In this five-part production from the Balboa studios Jackie Saunders is featured as an unsophisticated child of the hills, daughter of a prospector. Playing opposite her is William Conklin, while Paul Gilmore plays male juvenile lead. The story is a wholesome one telling of how the girl at the death of her father goes to the home of her father's former partner, is educated, and loved by the partner and his brother. The older man tries to be self-sacrificing, but the younger brother about to marry the girl discovers her love for his brother and gives her up to him. The film is prettily colored and generally pleasing, in spite of the fact that the construction of the story is not altogether professional.

THE IRON CLAW (Pathe), Feb. 28.—The first episode of the new Pathe serial directed by Edward Jose, and featuring Pearl White, Sheldon Lewis and Creighton Hale, is a thrilling sample of what each of the twelve two-part episodes of the serial is expected to be. One of the remarkable situations of this episode shows the flooding of an estate through the machinations of the villain. This is a realistic bit. There is great promise in this opening chapter. The story on which the serial is based was written by Arthur Stringer and adapted by George Brackett Seitz.

Signal Film Corporation.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ("A Close Call"), Feb. 28.—"A Close Call" proves to be an exciting episode in which Helen and her automobile actually drive over a twenty-foot embankment and a runaway box car is precipitated from a high bridge to the ground below, thereby avoiding an accident to a passenger train that is due. The episode is nicely developed and evinces no inconsistencies.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

CUPID TRIMS HIS LORDSHIP (Nestor), Feb. 28.—An Al E. Christie comedy, featuring Lee Moran, Betty Compson, Eddie Lyons and others. The young traveling salesman outwits Lord Cranberry, who aspires to the girl's hand. The latter turns out to be Dirty Jim, the counterfeiter. This makes an amusing light comedy and is well presented.

SOME HEROES (Imp), Feb. 29.—This comedy number features Victor Potel, Ed Sedgwick and others. The fire chief and chief of police are rivals. The burlesque fire scenes are good. The number is amusing throughout.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE LAW (Joker), Mar. 2.—A knockabout number, featuring Gale Henry, Wm. Froney, Milburne Moranti and Lillian Peacock. The girl goes on the stage and later becomes a lady barber. The scenes are rough, but there is considerable amusement of its kind.

IN THE HEART OF A SHELL (Rex), Mar. 3.—A number featuring Baby Early and Elsie Albert. The opening scenes are not very appealing, but the incidents at the close do much to make the film a success. The little girl on the beach has a dream in which a good fairy steps out of a shell. This leads to the child's discovery of a lost diamond ring.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

DAD'S DOLLARS AND DIRTY DOINGS (L-KO), Feb. 27.—A two-reel low comedy number, featuring Alice Howell as a country girl who goes to the city. She gets a jag on in a cabaret, drinking milk punch, and falls into the toils of a villain, from whom her country lover eventually saves her. This is laughable in places, but the humor is of a vulgar type in almost every instance. The number has some few good points, but is unfortunate in its general tone.

LORDS OF HIGH DECISION (Red Feather Photoplay), Feb. 28.—A five-reel screen adaptation of a novel by Meredith Nicholson, featuring Cyril Scott, Joseph Gerard, Mildred Gregory, Margaret Shirvin and others. The hero's father is a mining magnate, who preaches good conditions for the laboring man and practices something else. The hero loves a girl, whose father was crushed in business by his own. This develops some big situations in the way of strike, but these, while well presented, have not a great deal of novelty in them. The night photography makes a good feature. There is not enough suspense in this to make it an exceptional production, particularly as the type of story has been done so often.

THE MILK BATTLE (Universal Special Feature), Feb. 28.—No. 12 of the "Graft" series. Bruce and Tom Larnigan have dropped out of the series in this number, at least temporarily, and Richard Stanton, in the part of Robert Harding, carries on the fight against the trusts. He exposes the milk combine, the president, Burrows, being accidentally stabbed at the close. The number is not as strong as some of its predecessors, but carries the interest fairly well in certain scenes.

THE EYE OF HORUS (Gold Seal), Feb. 29.—Fourth episode of "The Journals of Lord John," in three reels. In this number a Miss Parsons is intrusted with a valuable jewel to bring to Lord John. This jewel is the mate to one in Maida's possession. Miss Parsons is thrown into a cataleptic condition by the Egyptian and his sister, who also make an attack on Lord John's life. The latter escapes and afterward resuscitates the girl by use of a pulmotor. The number has a certain vagueness in the opening scenes, but becomes very interesting later along. Lord John's struggle with the Egyptian at the close is exciting.

BLUE BLOOD BUT BLACK SKIN (L-KO), Mar. 1.—A two-reel low comedy number, done entirely in black face. Louise Orth, Ray Griffith, Dan Russell and others appear. The action consists largely of rivalry over a dusky belle, to whose hand the village barber lays first claim. He deals in turn with numerous rivals, not hesitating to employ his razor when necessary. In the end the girl marries a man whom he had not suspected of intimacy with her. This makes quite a pleasing burlesque number. While the scenes are of a rough, acrobatic sort, they are free from any great vulgarity. The closing scenes are of a riotous sort.

THE HEART OF BONITA (Laemmle), Mar. 2.—A two-reel number, by Lynn Reynolds, featuring Myrtle Gonzales, Val Paul, Fred Church and others. The tropical settings are very good and the atmosphere good. The plot is of a romantic nature, not entirely clear in places, though quite dramatic. The young American is about to be shot, during an insurrection, because he will not tell where the gold is hidden, but Bonita comes to his rescue. This is not very novel, taken as a whole, but has numerous points of merits.

THE ONE WOMAN (Bison), Mar. 4.—A three-reel number, featuring Edna Maison, Thomas Delmar, the author, and Douglas Gerrard. This pictures the story of a girl known as Princess Poppy in Chinatown. The settings in the Chinese section are taken in a real district of the sort. The story is one of a secret service man's efforts to round up some smugglers. It has a good atmosphere and, while not strong dramatically, maintains a good hold on the interest. The Princess Poppy and the secret service man prove to be former sweethearts.

V-L-S-E, Inc.

FOR A WOMAN'S FAIR NAME (Vitagraph), Feb. 28.—Finely acted by Robert Edeson, Eulalie Jensen, Belle Bruce and others, this drama may be counted upon to make an impression, although the premises of the story are not entirely credible. Harry Davenport supplied an excellent production from a scenario by Marguerite Bertsch.

World-Equitable.

A WOMAN'S POWER (Brady), Feb. 21.—Adapted from Charles Melville Buck's novel, "The Code of the Mountains," this five-part drama offers some interesting scenes of life among mountaineers. Molly King, making her first appearance as a World Film star, gives an appealing characterization of a mountain girl who betters her condition in life. Part of the action is supposed to transpire in the Philippines. A release of average quality.

THE QUESTION (Equitable), Feb. 21.—An interesting story by Roy L. McCardell, who holds up to scorn selfish society women who refuse to do their duty as wives and mothers. Marguerite Leslie, in the leading role is ably supported by Clara Whipple and George Anderson. A picture likely to be well received.

THE PRICE OF HAPPINESS (Equitable-Triumph), Feb. 28.—A drama with a strong moral lesson pointing the folly of envy. Mary Boland plays the wife of a shoemaker, who is discontented with her lot until she finds that the apparent happiness of her wealthy friends is all a sham. An interesting offering.

Miscellaneous.

THE HEART OF NEW YORK (Claridge Films, selling on State Rights), Mar. 1.—This five-part story of the metropolis was written and directed by Walter Macnamara. On the initial title frame Mr. Macnamara is credited with being the producer of "Traffic in Souls." Of course, this is a mistake, as Mr. Macnamara was the writer and George Tucker the producer of that stirring melodrama. "The Heart of New York" devotes many hundred feet to the introduction of the characters. The story in its development and denouement fails to arouse deep interest or create marked suspense. Robert T. Haines has the lead and in his support is a large cast. The photography is excellent and artistically tinted. There are interesting views of New York running through the picture.

THE MINUSA COMPANY CELEBRATES A YEAR OF HARD WORK.

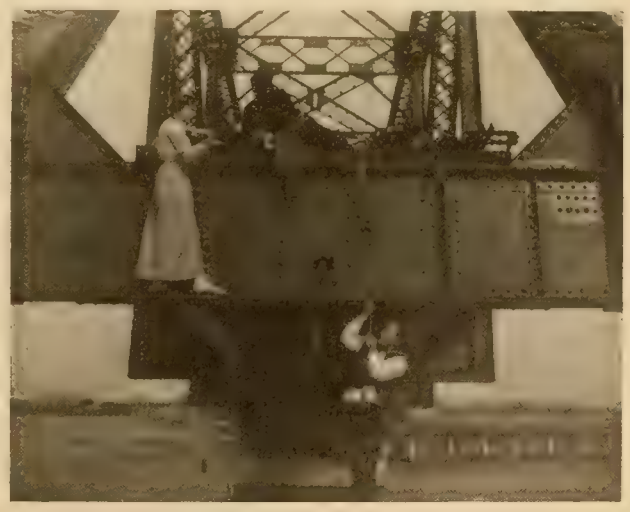
The officials, directors, and employees of the Minusa Cine Products Co. of St. Louis were treated by their company to a banquet and entertainment at one of the large downtown cafes in St. Louis on Saturday evening, Feb. 12. This date was not only the anniversary of the birthday of the emancipator, but likewise celebrated a year of hard work on the part of the Minusa Cine Products Co. It has been a very successful one for this organization and the many favorable telegrams that were received from their various dealers throughout the United States gave the officials great encouragement. Music and cabaret entertainment completed the evening and everyone felt that they had spent an evening of real genuine entertainment.

NEW PLAYERS FOR HORSLEY ORGANIZATION.

A peculiar situation in connection with the production of "The Love Liar," an exceptional romantic drama now in the process of picturization at the David Horsley studio in Los Angeles, is the fact that of all the important parts in the play only two are male characters. These are David McCare, a famous violinist known as "the love liar," played by Crane Wilbur, and Ludwig, McCare's valet and an old broken down musician, played by Fred Goodwins. All the others concerned in the story are female characters. They are Lucy Payton, Mae Gaston, Nan Christy and Gale Landdon, and they play respectively the first, second, third and fourth love of "The Love Liar."

PATHE HAS NO SHORTAGE OF RAW STOCK.

A story of the "yellow" sort recently appeared in a theatrical magazine to the effect that Pathe had cut down its program because of shortage in raw stock. J. A. Berst, Vice President and General Manager of Pathe, when the story was brought to his attention, promptly stamped it as a gross mis-statement. "As a matter of fact," said Mr. Berst, "Pathe has enough stock on hand to last four months without getting any at all from Europe. The only stock we cannot get is non-inflammable. When our present stock of celluloid film gets low we anticipate no trouble in replenishing it."



Scene from "The Haunted Station" (Kalem).

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"DEFENSE OR TRIBUTE?"

Great Peace Film Released by Public Service Film Company —A Plea for Preparedness.

AS A PLEA for preparedness, in the form of a motion picture, nothing more convincing nor striking has probably been offered to the American public than the five-part drama "Defense or Tribute?" released by the Public Service Film Company. The drama rests its plot, with great cleverness, upon both ancient and modern supports. We are shown the shades of the Fathers of the United States revisiting the earth and considering the grave peril of their country. Their places are taken by a council of modern patriots who discuss the supreme question of the hour and the drama then starts in real earnest. We see the Jews suffering at the hands of their conquerors. The Romans under Caesar conquer Gaul. Again, in the day of chivalry military might triumphs over right. Italian Revolutions and the French Terror are illustrated in all the ferocity of their bloody happenings.

A less sanguinary note is touched when we come down to modern times. We have presented to us many wonderful views of the progress and prosperity of the United States in picture form, and the audience is asked point blank whether it wants this happy and natural condition of affairs to continue or not. The training of large bodies of soldiers, the building of battleships and submarines, is advocated. President Wilson, Admiral Dewey, Theodore Roosevelt are quoted in the film. A dramatic effect is produced by the introduction of the "Charge of the Light Brigade." Will the United States chance similar blundering, we are asked? Where does our country stand? What must we do? These are questions that are asked in the picture.

The conclusion of the Board, discussing the question, is that all possible support financial as well as moral be given to the President, in this specific effort, a preparation to assure peace.

"THE DESPOILER" (Essanay).

Strong action and intense emotional parts are found in this three-reel photoplay. It carries an unusually strong cast, featuring four Essanay leads—Bryant Washburn, Warda Howard, Darwin Karr and Edward Arnold.

The dramatic climax comes between Mr. Washburn and Mr. Karr, father and son in the picture, when they meet after years, the father protecting a girl whom the son is trying to blackmail. The father is unaware that the man is his son, although he knows the boy has become a crook. In a desperate battle the father slays the boy and is commended by the police for ridding the city of a notorious and dangerous character. But the man is torn with paroxysms of grief over the fact that it is his hand that ends the life of his own son. Edward Arnold and Warda Howard play the parts of the lovers, over whom the fear of the blackmailer constantly looms and who are made happy by his death, unaware that the man who freed them was torn with anguish because of the deed.

Scene from "The Despoiler" (Essanay).

"THE UNCUT DIAMONDS" (Selig).

Fritzi Brunette and Frank Clark score in "The Uncut Diamonds," a Selig drama written by Emma Bell and produced by Wm. Robert Daly. This will be released through General Film Service on March 4th.

Jen, a beautiful girl of the underworld, while in jail, meets Wilbur Gordon, assistant district attorney. Through the instrumentality of the district attorney and his sweetheart, Reina Grayson, Jen is given employment in the home of John Grayson as a maid to Reina. Jen is visited by Chuck Wilson, a former crook. That night a large number of uncut diamonds disappear from the Grayson home. Of course, suspicion is fastened upon Jen and Chuck Wilson because of their former criminal records. Then Wilson proves that John Grayson, while walking in his sleep, gave Wilson the diamonds asking him to care for them, and that Wilson placed them in a vase. The diamonds are discovered there, and Jen and her lover are exonerated.

Scene from "The Uncut Diamonds" (Selig).

There are many beautiful exterior and interior scenic effects in this unusual film.

IVAN COMPLETES "THE IMMORTAL FLAME."

The newest Ivan production whose locale is laid in Washington has just been completed, Director Ivan Abramson and the entire company returning to New York a few days ago. Then the last few exteriors, employing the Riverside Park and Pennsylvania Station were made and the latest screen drama from the pen of Ivan Abramson was finished.

All in all this is the most propitious offering as yet from the Ivan Film Productions. It employed an all star cast with such notable artists as Maude Fealy, Paula Shay, Joseph Burke and James Cooley under the direction of Ivan Abramson. "The Immortal Flame" is scheduled for release as the Ivan feature for March, but the New York theater, a Marcus Loew house, in order to make certain of obtaining first run on Broadway, has booked it in advance of completion for February 29th at an exceptionally high price.

MILLER BROS. OFFER SHOW OUTFIT FOR PICTURES.

The 101 Ranch Wild West Show outfit now wintering at The 101 Ranch at Bliss will probably be converted into a motion picture outfit until the opening in the latter part of April. The show will begin rehearsing the 20th of February and already the performers and other members of the big aggregation are beginning to gather at the Ranch. It struck Col. Joe Miller as a good idea to use the outfit for pictures until the opening and, while as yet there has been no contract closed, Mr. Miller says he has already several offers but will not be ready before the 1st and is anxious to make a permanent contract for the entire Summer, as the show leaving will not interfere with the continuing of producing, as the Ranch has sufficient surplus equipment to operate several companies.

Dallas Pictures Spring Surprise

Announce Secret Completion of "David Garrick" in Films—Dustin Farnum in Title Role.

A TELEGRAM from the Pallas Pictures studio, Los Angeles, announces that this concern has just completed an elaborate production of "David Garrick" the famous classic which has been produced time and again on the speaking stage since 1864, when E. A. Sothern created the title character in England.

The production of "David Garrick" in films has been going on for the past several months at the Pallas studios, but has not been made public because of the fact that contemplation of its filmization was evident among other producers. Not even the members of the New York offices of the company were aware of the fact that the staging of this famous subject was under way for the screen.

In the title role of the Pallas Pictures version, Dustin Farnum is presented in a part for which he is well suited as will be realized by the many thousands who are familiar with this subject. The chief part of "David Garick" has proved irresistibly attractive to many successors of the elder Sothern and only several weeks ago his famous son opened in a revival of the celebrated play with great success, at the Booth Theater, New York City. The part of the actor pursued at first by love and then himself in love with the young girl is one of appeal to every actor.

BOOKING RECORDS SMASHED.

Booking records went overboard when in less than a week (six days to be exact) George Kleine booked 1925 days for his comedy, "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer." This was accomplished, too, without advertising, but through a novel plan for advance of release date showings. There had veen very little said or written about "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," but all that was needed was for an exhibitor to sèe the comedy—and a booking followed. Now that March 1st has been decided upon as a releasing date, the Kleine studio force and branch offices expect to be fairly swamped with bookings.

"The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" is a delightful comedy in series, ten in all, one each week. Critics viewing the advance showing were more than kind toward it—they were even mildly extravagant in their praise.

"A CORNER IN COTTON" (Metro).

"A Corner in Cotton," with Marguerite Snow in the stellar role and an all-star cast, will be released on the Metro program during the week of Feburary 21. This five-part production is an extra release for Metro for that week, as "The Price of Malice," a Rolfe-Metro picture starring Hamilton Revelle, will also go out on the Metro program at the same time. "A Corner in Cotton," which was produced by the Quality Pictures Corporation, deals with the story of the daughter of a Wall street broker, who becomes interested in settlement work. She learns of conditions among the poor cotton mill employes in the southland and goes there to learn conditions at first hand. She obtains a position in the mill and her singular beauty attracts the attention of the foreman, who attempts to force his attentions upon her. She is rescued by the son of the owner of the mill, and a strong friendship develops between them. The owner of the mill is the sworn enemy of the girl's father, whom he characterizes as "the Wolf of Wall street." When the broker learns of this, he attempts to ruin the southern planter, by forcing a corner in cotton on the exchange. The girl breaks this corner and succeeds in bringing the two men together with a better understanding of themselves and of the conditions under which they live. This bond is further strengthened when the son and daughter of the two men announce their engagement.

Scene from "A Corner in Cotton" (Metro).

There are scores of thrilling situations in this production, and many excellent scenes photographed in the picturesque southland. Beside Miss Snow the all-star cast includes Frank Bacon, Helen Dunbar, John W. Goldsworthy, Lester Cuneo, Zella Call, Wilfred Roger, Howard Truesdell and William Clifford. "A Corner in Cotton" was produced under the direction of Fred J. Balshofer.

"THE GIRL AND THE GAME" (Signal).

Bumping over the ties of a western railroad track, Helen Holmes drives an automobile at fifty miles an hour, speeding after a runaway box car, and unaided, rescues three men who are being rushed to certain injury or death. This is the big thrill that takes place in the ninth chapter of the story entitled "A Close Call."

Scene from "The Girl and the Game" (Signal).

"Many of the film-going public seem to entertain the idea that the making of motion pictures of this kind is merely a pleasant pastime for which the actors or actresses receive fabulous sums of money," explained Miss Helen.

"Well, perhaps to some that applies; but in the filming of our stories, there is an element of reality—frequently lives in danger—that would compel any human being to dare almost anything to effect a rescue.

"In chapter nine, for instance, Mack (McGowan) Leo and Farley (playing Spike, Storm and Rhinelander in the story) were all in that box car racing down the track at terrific speed. I was supposed to catch up with the car and run along close behind it while the three men jumped over my head into the tonneau.

"If I had failed in my task, what would have been the result? They would all have risked their lives either in jumping or going over the embankment with the doomed car.

"You see, it is all real to me; and I believe it would kill me if any of our boys were injured through any failure on my part to do my duty."

"THE MASTER SMILES" (Knickerbocker).

Emmy Wehlen, the famous Metro star is to play the lead in a Knickerbocker Star Feature, through the courtesy of Scene from "The Master Smiles" (Knickerbocker).

Rolf Photo Plays, Inc. She is supported by Howard Estabrook, a well known player.

In "The Master Smiles" we see an over-ambitious father and a society-maddened mother, and the certain effects on their child, who grows into womanhood with her destiny long shaped in her shadowed environment at home.

The drama shows Satan, the "god of the White Lights" smiling on his helpless puppets as they act out their parts in his most attractive sets on the stage of life. The drama follows out a different line from the usual "white light plot," and ends with a question put to the audience by the grinning god, "who wins?" and the god of glitter and gold turns away, as though thinking it unnecessary to end the drama, as he is more interested in the beginnings than the effects of action permeated with his master smile. Released March 3, on the General Film program. In three strong acts.

"THE GRINNING SKULL" (Selig).

"The Grinning Skull" is a Selig multiple reel drama, released through General Film Service on Monday, February 28th. An all-star cast contributes to the realism of this psychological drama, which depicts social sycophants. Eugenie Besserer enacts an unusual character role in the part of Madame Ward

Scene from "The Grinning Skull" (Selig).

Howe, an ambitious woman, whose sole hope is that her daughter shall marry money, no matter who the man that possesses it.

The San Francisco earthquake has an important bearing upon the development of this plot. The quake scenes are realistic in the extreme. The earth trembles; business blocks and the homes of the rich and poor alike crumble and fall, and there is a thrilling rescue when a man buried underneath the debris is finally saved. There is not a dull inch of film in this three thousand feet of plot, counter-plot and love interest.

"THE YAQUI" (Bluebird).

With Mexico and the "Mexican situation" in everybody's mind, and the matters concerning the relations with this country and Mexico filling columns in practically every newspaper that is printed in this country, "The Yaqui," a Bluebird Photoplay, is timeliness itself, issued at just this juncture, and set for release March 19.

Scene from "The Yaqui" (Bluebird).

Those who witness "The Yaqui" will get a clear idea of the kind of people "Uncle Sam" must contend with if matters in dispute ever get beyond the tentative condition of "watchful waiting." It will be a fine thing for belligerent Americans to see the class and style of people they must fight against if the "jingo's" dominate the situation to an extent that ends in warfare.

One of the sensational incidents, is an execution, by the military authorities of the chief tribesman of the Yaqui Indians, a role played by Hobart Bosworth. The firing squad is shown lined up for action, while the Yaqui Chieftain stands beside the open grave that has been dug for the reception of his corpse.

When the signal is given for the Yaqui's death, one man of the squad sends a bullet straight to the forehead of the Indian. Backward he falls, into his own grave; the Mexicans cover the corpse with earth, and the camera cuts off further details.

The next incident pictures the frenzied work of the man who has shot the Yaqui; as he madly digs the earth from out the grave and then lifts the body of the Indian in his arms. The Yaqui has been simply stunned by a bullet especially fixed to render him senseless and not kill him; he had been buried alive and was now being restored to go on with the vengeful work of the Yaqui tribe in their feud of hate against the Mexican military.

"THE BRIDESMAID'S SECRET" (Essanay).

This photoplay deals with a phase of metropolitan life of today and shows the pitfalls that lurk in the path of the innocent girl of small towns. It is also a satire of the morals of fashionable young men who expect to wed girls of impeccable character. There is a touch of the white slave evil in the story, but it is handled with great care and delicacy while losing none of the force of the moral lesson.

The young girl from a country town is invited by her friend in the city to become her bridesmaid. Arriving in the city she finds that there is nobody at the train to meet her. Unaccustomed to the ways of the metropolis, she is lured by a man with a cab, who promises to take her to her friend's home. He takes her to a house where she is locked in a room.

That night the bridegroom gives his farewell bachelor party in which all become hilariously intoxicated. They finally wind up at the house where the girl is imprisoned and the bridegroom staggers into her room. He tries to attack her, but falls, striking his head and rendering him unconscious. The man having locked the door and dropped the key, the girl is unable to escape. Hours later the man comes to himself and is horrified at the situation. The girl tells him who she is and appeals to him to help her escape. He promises to do this if she will never mention where she saw him. She promises and he takes her to the home of his fiancee, leaving her on the porch. She sees him on the night of the wedding and is horrified to find that he is the man that is to wed her friend and that her lips are sealed. John Lorenz, in the role of the bridegroom, does excellent work.

Scene from "The Bridesmaid's Secret" (Essanay).

"HER INVISIBLE HUSBAND" (Universal).

Matt Moore and Jane Gail will shortly be seen in a really different comedy. The title is "Her Invisible Husband," in one role, written by Samuel Greiner and produced by Matt Moore.

The story centers about Harry, his wife and mother-in-law who visit Delilah, the magic marvel who can render herself invisible at will. Her wonderful exhibition impresses him deeply. After his return home, his imagination is further stimulated by a few glasses of firewater. He collapses in a chair, bottle in hand and drowses off.

The next day he visits Delilah, and asks her for a keepsake. The malicious sorceress presents him with a ring that renders him invisible without his knowing it. Strange things come to pass. People walk all over him, mistaking him for the air. They plaster his face with mortar, step on his corns and sit down on him, considering chairs he occupies vacant. His supposed absence alarms his wife. She telephones to police headquarters and is promptly informed that a suicide tallying with her description is in the morgue. Soon Harry has the pleasure of witnessing his own funeral from a window of his own home. He beholds his wife mourn for him, then forget him and fall in love with somebody else. Things reach a crisis when he witnesses the wedding ceremony and sees the couple retire behind closed doors.

It is high time for him to find out if he isn't really a ghost. He decides to shoot himself. If he is really dead, a bullet more or less couldn't hurt. The crash awakens him. He finds himself very much alive, sitting in his library chair, the baneful bottle in his hands. The firewater has been the cause of his hallucination. Moral: The last glass pickled him, hence, avoid the last glass.

Scene from "Her Invisible Husband" (Universal).

"THE HAPPY MASQUERADER" (American).

There are few film stars who possess a more alluring or charming screen personality than Miss Winnifred Greenwood, whose latest impersonation is that of Elsa Dean in the three-part "Flying A" drama, "The Happy Masquerader."

Miss Greenwood is not an advocate of the theory—"marry a man to reform him"—but, "if you love the man and he needs reforming, do it before you marry him," and she declares it can easily be done if a woman's love for a man is the right sort.

Further—her role in "The Happy Masquerader" gives her an excellent opportunity, with the support of her leading man, Edward Coxen, to prove that "happiness lies within"; it isn't a question of money and luxury.

Elsa's inheritance is lost in speculations by her guardian, although she is not advised of this fact. She falls in love with a man who is masquerading as penniless, while, as a matter of fact, he is wealthy. Her sweetheart has changed places with a chauffeur to prove to the latter that money is not required to make happiness.

Scene from "The Happy Masquerader" (American).

The story illustrates well the characteristics which either destroy or produce happiness and contentment, and the acting of Miss Greenwood and her supporting cast is such as will add much to her already abundant success.

This drama is to be released on the Mutual program February 29th.

MILDRED GREGORY IN "ACCORDING TO LAW."

Miss Mildred Gregory will shine on the screen next month as a Gaumont star in the five-reel feature, "According to Law." This is to be released March 6 as a Mutual Masterpicture. The most prominent member of the supporting company is Howard Hall, who has been specially engaged for the part of the heroine's husband. Miss Gregory has the role of a young wife who is selfishly self-centered. She cares more for her own social diversions than she does for her husband's happiness when the two are brought into direct conflict.

Scene from "According to Law " (Gaumont).

"According to Law" is an unusual story, even for the screen which has sought so thoroughly for out-of-the-way situations. Written by Paul M. Bryan and Joseph H. Trant, it tells of the evils of butterfly society life where the wife does not miss the baby arms that should cling about her neck. The photo-drama goes through a divorce court, although this phase of the heroine's life is introduced only for a few scenes. Not more than is absolutely necessary is shown, since it is the aim of the Gaumont company never to portray life in its sordid aspects except when such scenes are essential. Then they are handled with both delicacy and restraint.

In the cast supporting Miss Gregory are E. K. James, Alan Robinson, Madison Weeks, Albert Macklin, John Reinhard, Charles W. Travis, Helen Marten and Mathilde Baring. Many of the scenes are being taken in the Everglades. Director Richard Garrick has been fortunate in finding locations that give added charm to an already strong story.

"THE ARTIST'S MODEL" (Vim).

Robert Burns and Walter Stull, in the Vim, "Pokes and Jabbs" series are distinguishing themselves for their originality. Their comedies always spring some new situations. Among their best is "The Artist's Model." This comedy includes no beautiful female model, rather, Pokes himself is the model, driven to it by straitened circumstances, while the girl Ethel is the struggling artist. Ethel's picture is a failure, debts accumulate, and Pokes endeavors to aid her in her escape from her quarters, where rent is long overdue. All went well until Jabbs the baggage man butts in. The trunk of Ethel is mistaken for the trunk of gold, being shipped at that time to a local bank. The trunk is stolen by crooks, Jabbs overpowered. The trunk is found to contain a half alive landlord, but the gold saved, while Pokes, Jabbs and Ethel have exciting experiences in their chase for the supposed treasures of Ethel. Date of release, March 3, on the General Film service.

Scene from "The Artist's Model"

"THE SOUL MARKET" (Metro).

"The Soul Market," a five-part Metro wonderplay, produced by the Popular Plays and Players, with Mme. Petrova in the stellar role, will be released on the Metro program February 28. The story deals with a musical comedy prima donna, who becomes weary of the methods of wealthy men who barter with young girls of the stage, tempting them with a life of luxury and ease. The prima donna views the theater and the high life attending, as being a "soul market," where young girls are bought and sold the same as they were in the days of ancient Babylon. She is brought to this realization when she is about to give herself over to a man of wealth, rather than marry the young man she loves. There are many striking scenes in this production, including an allegory showing a Babylonian slave market where girls were sold to the highest bidder. The scenes in and around the theater were made at the Princess theater, New York City. Chorus girls from the Hippodrome were used in the ballet scenes, and a score of beautiful show girls from "Stop! Look! and Listen!" appear in the restaurant scenes. These were photographed in Murray's restaurant, in West Forty-second street.

Scene from "The Soul Market" (Metro).

In addition to Mme. Petrova, the strong supporting cast includes Arthur Hoops, Wilmuth Merkyl, Gypsy O'Brien, Evelyn Brent, Fritz deLint, Fraunie Fraunholz, and other well-known stage and screen artists. The production was directed by Francis J. Grandon.

FROM BROADWAY TO THE SCREEN.

Fresh from its big success as one of the most delightful comedies ever seen on Broadway is the screen production of Anne Warner's mischievous story, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," announced as the feature Biograph release in the regular service for the week of March 13. Rarely has the gospel of youth been so attractively presented as in this rollicking story of the old woman who grew young again by smoothing out the troubles of others. Her nephew's love affair with the housemaid who wasn't what she seemed to be, and the entanglement with the girl from Kalamazoo, who passed for what she was not, provide the dramatic interest which heightens the whimsical comedy of Aunt Mary's rejuvenation. Gertrude Bambirck does some of the best work of her career in the character of the housemaid. Kate Toncray has the title role and is always right in the middle of it.

Completing the Biograph program for the week of March 13 are the two reel subject, "A Grip of Gold," and "The Lady and the Mouse," a re-issue directed by D. W. Griffith. Quick action, suspense and a strong, well-knit story afford abundance of opportunity for good acting in the first-named subject. Claire McDowell and Jose Ruben head the cast. The winsome Lillian Gish is seen at her best in the appealing little drama of the girl who couldn't bear to kill a mouse.

"OVERALLS" (American).

Another of those pulsating five-part American-Mutual Masterpictures is coming—"Overalls." As the title might suggest, the story concerns the romance of a young Western construction camp foreman in love with a wealthy girl—who is Rea Mitchell. William Stowell as the foreman is a red-blooded Western character.

"THE HEART OF TARA" (Horsley).

After featuring them in separate releases for the past few months, David Horsley has brought Margaret Gibson and William Clifford into one company and will co-star them in early forthcoming five-reel productions. The first of these is "The Heart of Tara," which is scheduled for release March 4 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

Besides Miss Gibson and Mr. Clifford there are in the cast other players whose names are familiar to motion picture patrons and whose work has always been acknowledged as of the highest order. Among these are Sherman Bainbridge, a recent addition to Mr. Horsley's organization and a former member of the Universal forces; Miss Marie James, recently with Quality-Metro; Walter Spencer, Marvel Spencer, Edward Alexander, Edward Roberts and Gordon Russell. From this list of names it may readily be seen that from the standpoint of acting "The Heart of Tara" will be all that can be desired.

In other respects the production will be on a par with the acting. The story—a romance of India by Theodosia Harris—has a deep underlying motive of much power, and interest in it has been nicely sustained by careful treatment. The settings and locations, all of which are laid in India, lend a charm that adds to the story's effectiveness.

A number of exceptionally thrilling moments have been obtained through the introduction of rare feats in animal acting by the Bostock animals.

PHOENIX FEATURE FILM CORPORATION.

The Phoenix Feature Film Corporation from its branch offices in the Union Trust building, Ellsworth, Me., is fast becoming a dominant factor in Maine picture circles. This company of which Messrs. C. H. Duffy and E. L. McEvoy are principal officers, is handling a service of independent Feature Films and the progress made by the Ellsworth office of the corporation during the month it has been open under the aggressive management of E. B. Tinker has been phenomenal. Among the most popular features of this company might be mentioned "All for a Girl" in which Miss Renee Kelly is the star. This picture is of particular interest to Maine exhibitors inasmuch as the story Rupert Hughes has written is of a Maine girl and the scenes are mostly laid in a small village.

"PATTERSON OF THE NEWS" (Universal).

King Baggot and Edna Hunter will next be seen in a play that takes the spectator from the Tenderloin districts of New York to the stock markets, the inviting Bohemian restaurants and the fashionable residences. Mr. Baggot plays the part of a reporter with all his well known ability and his part radiates with a fine touch and atmosphere such as is so much evident in his pictures. He is very ably supported by Edna Hunter, who plays the leading female role. The story is that of a banker who loses a million in a wheat pit and rather than face failure, appropriates securities from the bank, but as he is about to depart with his daughter, the reporter halts him and accuses him of attempting to defraud the people who had placed confidence in his bank, denounces the banker, and says he regards it as his duty to remove from society the menace he represents, a man who endangers the funds of small depositors. Then the reporter learns that the girl he loves is the banker's daughter. As she enters, he promises to keep his information to himself provided the banker makes restitution. Later he falls in real love with the daughter and finally places the engagement ring on her finger as the picture fades out.

Scene from "Patterson of the News" (Universal).

"Patterson of the News" is in two reels, written by Harry Dittmar, and was produced by Harry McRae Webster. The cast includes, besides Mr. Baggot and Miss Hunter, Howard Crampton, Joe Dailey and Bert Busby.

"THE HEART OF NEW YORK" (Claridge).

"The Heart of New York," a five-reel production, and the first release of Claridge Films, Inc., which introduces in this picture the premier screen debut of Robert T. Haines, who will be remembered in powerful stage roles as leading man in "The Darling of the Gods," "The Spendthrift," and others.

The story depicts three homes of three distinct classes of modern life. A child is born. A boy is born to a poor working man, John Madden, in his East Side home. A daughter is born to the city editor of one of the daily papers, Eustace Miles, and a son is born to John Brown, a wealthy but unscrupulous politician. The children are next shown at nine years of age in their respective schools. The plot of the story begins when the three have grown into young manhood and womanhood and are working out their lives in their particular class.

Scene from "The Heart of New York" (Claridge).

Bill Madden, the poor man's son, is now foreman in a construction work, with great ambitions to become a lawyer. Mary Miles, the editor's daughter, has become a beautiful young woman. The politician's son, a product of his class, is vicious and degenerate.

Mary Madden, Bill's sister, working in a department store, attracts the attention of Victor Brown, the wealthy young renegade. She repels all his advances. To show he is the stronger and for revenge, he kidnaps her, drugs and takes her to an undesirable house, where she is saved by a previous victim of the degenerate.

In the meantime, Bill Madden has obtained an education in law, and gets his degree. He frustrates the efforts of a heroin peddlar to sell his obnoxious drug to children, and is thus brought into touch with Mary Miles, who thanks him for what he has done for humanity. He upholds his class in their fight against environment, corruption and the high cost of living, which bears so heavily upon them. This incites the hatred of the politician, John Brown, who instructs a gunman to shoot him.

Victor Brown meets Mary Miles, is attracted by her beauty, and forces his attention upon her. Bill sees him and interferes, and the gunman, hired to kill Bill Madden shoots Victor accidentally, and escapes unseen. Bill is arrested for the murder. In the court room, the gratitude of a poor woman, whom the young lawyer had defended, and who witnessed the actual murder, reveals to the court the real circumstances. When John Brown finds that he is the instigator of his own son's death, he dies from a stroke of apoplexy.

Bill, now a hero, receives the nomination for the representative of his district. He also wins the editor's daughter for his wife. A good moral story.

"RACE SUICIDE" FOR OHIO AND KENTUCKY.

Awake to the value of the title and interest which the people have demonstrated in the theme selected for the production "Race Suicide," the six part motion picture attraction which is being marketed upon a territorial basis by Jos. W. Farnham, Frank L. Greenwald, Sec'y and Treas. of the Exclusive Photoplay Service, Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, made a special trip last week to New York City, to complete negotiations for the purchase of the territorial rights on this production for the states of Ohio and Kentucky.

RELEASE TWO HORSLEY FEATURES IN A WEEK.

Two five-reel David Horsley productions will be offered as Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, releases during the week of February 28. On Monday, the 28th, will be released "A Law Unto Himself" and on Saturday, March 4, "The Heart of Tara" will be distributed.

PATHE NEWS SCORES A SCOOP.

Another instance of live newspaper methods applied to a motion picture news film was given by the Pathe News on Wednesday, Feb. 16th. A fire, supposed to be incendiary, destroyed on that morning several ships lying at a pier in Brooklyn, all of which were loaded with supplies for England. A Pathe cameraman assigned to cover the fire got his pictures while the ships were still burning. All the processes of developing, printing and editing were rushed through at high speed, and a special edition of the Pathe News containing the pictures were shown that same night on Broadway. Solicitor A. W. Smith of the Pathe New York Exchange, placed it in the best theatres, including the Strand, Broadway and New York.

VARIETY SUCCEEDS GREATER NEW YORK.

Announcement is made by Louis Rosenbluh, former manager of the Greater New York Film Rental Company, that that exchange which was recently sold to the General Film Company, will be supplanted by the Variety Films Corporation, which occupies the same offices on the seventh floor of 126 West 46th Street, New York. Variety will handle the product of all independent companies not otherwise provided for. Mr. Rosenbluh is manager of the new concern; he says that "this is no blue sky scheme to start a never to be realized program, but a solid business proposition offering the services of the most experienced film men in the exchange business." Producers who have pictures of true worth are requested to communicate with Mr. Rosenbluh.

NE'ER-DO-WELL FOR THEATERS IN THE WEST.

M. Rosenberg, president of the Northwestern Feature Film Company, of Portland, who recently purchased the rights for "The Ne'er-Do-Well" for Washington, Oregon and Montana, reports a two week's record breaking run at the Clemmer theater in Seattle, and a one week's run at the People's theater in Portland. Both these theaters will play return engagements.

"GOING UP" (Cub).

"Going Up,"' the Cub Comedy scheduled for release through the Mutual offices on February 25 may well be termed a "comedy with thrills." Much of the action resolves itself from the fact that Jerry, the principal character, carries a suitcase which contains high explosives instead of money as he and Slim, his partner, suspect. Jerry attempts to make away with the gold alone and deprive Slim of his share but that angular worthy sticks hot on Jerry's trail determined not to be outdone. The chase finally leads to the water front and Jerry, seeing no other means of escape from his irate friend, jumps aboard a seagoing liner just as it is about to depart. For a few moments he thinks himself safe when suddenly the explosives go off and Jerry, crew, pasengers and all are blown into the ocean while the vessel slowly settles itslf in the bottom of the deep.

The foregoing brief synopsis presents an idea of the wealth of material offered and it may be said that Director Milton Fahrney has not failed to take advantage of his opportunities.

Scene from "Going Up" (Cub).

As a result this Cub release is said to be one of the most amusing and enjoyable of the twenty-odd releases made to date.

George Ovey plays Jerry and gets the most out of the part, while his company which includes George George, Louis Fitz-Roy, Jefferson Osborne, Arthur Mund, Henry Jackson, Gordon McGregor, Louise Horner, Janet Sully and Robert Kenyon lends him excellent support.

ETHEL TEARE IN "WHEN HUBBY FORGOT."

Vivacious Ethel Teare, who has been made a full-fledged star through the new Kalem Wednesday Ethel Teare Comedies, is given a role that fully befits her in "When Hubby Forgot," a single reel issue scheduled for March 8th. When it is considered that Ethel Teare's rise to stardom has occured in the space of a year, the strength of her captivating personality is clearly apparent. Ethel charms through a naive manner, without self-consciousness, and a spirit bubbling over with joyous delight in her work. The ability to wear bewitching gowns in a natural and graceful manner is another Ethel Teare asset.

Scene from "When Hubby Forgot" (Kalem).

In "When Hubby Forgot" the Kalem comedienne is blessed with an absentminded hubby whose blunders keep house in a whirl of excitement. A forcible reminder prevents hubby from forgetting his wife's birthday, however, and he sets out to buy a necklase for her. The task of selecting one with his unaided masculine instinct is difficult, and he welcomes the chance passing of Miss Pretty, a charming "Friend of the family." Everything would have been all right had not Ethel happened to see the two together and then go home in a fit of raging jealousy.

To make matters still worse, hubby then places the necklace in a secret hiding place until the following day which is wifey's birthday. Of course, hubby then forgets where he has hidden the necklace. Affairs are later complicated further by a sneak thief who happens along, and a covetous maid who borrows the necklace to "make the other girls jealous."

It is the plan in all the Ethel Teare Comedies to have a fully developed plot rather than a succession of patched-together incidents. Victor Rottman, a well known screen juvenile, is playing the principal roles opposite the pretty star.

"THE IMMORTAL FLAME" (Ivan).

"The Immortal Flame" is the latest drama especially written for the screen to come from the hand of Ivan Abramson. Like former Ivan productions which have come from the same hand, it will endeavor to drive home a strong moral lesson. In the case of "The Immortal Flame" Ivan Abramson shows that true love is as deathless as the soul itself. It is based on a four line poem which emanates from his mind, as follows:

"The love that rules without a sword,
The love that binds without a cord;
Not life, not death; not fame nor claim,
E'er may suppress th' immortal flame."

The story deals with an office holder with political ambitions whose daughter is in love with a young musician. Her father's future in the balance, she sacrifices her personal desires for her parents and marries the man on whom her father's future hinges. The result is naturally a tragedy. The musician also marries another woman. The musician later becomes famous and since no children have come into his life, his wife adopts a little one who is the joy of their existence. Fate and the premiere of the musician's opera bring him to Washington and here he again meets his first love. Both realize they are mismated and that love cannot be bought or sold—the only price of love is—love.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Popular Pictures Corporation, a corporation just formed under the laws of the State of New York, is located at 218 West 42nd Street. No announcement has been made as yet as to the officers or the plan of operation, except that Andrew J. Cobe will be prominently identified with the new company.

NOTES OF THE TRADE

THE Detroit Theater Equipment Company, of 154 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., has been appointed distributor of Speedco Arc Controllers in the State of Michigan and the American Slide Company at Columbus has been appointed for the State of Ohio.

* * *

Colin Campbell, Dean of the Selig producers, together with a number of Selig stars are expected to leave Los Angeles in the near future for Chicago where they will work in "The Crisis." Scenes for this forthcoming spectacular production may also be taken in St. Louis and Vicksburg, Miss.

* * *

Ten World and Equitable companies are working at various places outside the studio. Frank Sheridan, under the direction of John Ince, is working in "The Struggle," at Para, Brazil. Holbrook Blinn, is at Jacksonville, Florida, staging "The Unpardonable Sin," Robert Warwick and Frances Nelson have left for the south to produce "Velma." Frank Powell is producing "The Chain Invisible" at Havana, Cuba. Harry Handworth and a company of thirty players are working at Saranac Lake on "The Question," in which Marguerite Leslie plays the leading role. Edna Wallace Hopper, Charles J. Rose and Muriel Ostriche are in the Adirondacks, working in the first scenes in "Who Killed Simon Baird," while S. E. V. Taylor is producing "Passers By" with Charles Cherry and Mary Charleson at Mount Kisco.

* * *

The new one hundred thousand dollar laboratory on the Lasky grounds is now completed and machinery is being installed. It is expected Alvin Wykoff will permit the studio to visit his pet child the latter part of the week. According to the report of the Eastman Kodak representative who is installing the machinery, the Lasky plant will be the most complete in the country.

* * *

"The Touchstone" is the title of a five-reel picture, Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, now being produced by Director Edwin Middleton of the Gaumont (Mutual) studios at Florida. Iva Shepheard, Earl C. Schenck, Helen Marten, John Reinhard, Henry Pemberton, Olive Trevor and James Levering are in the cast.

* * *

Charlotte Walker, the Lasky star, just finished the production of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille.

* * *

Philip Hahn, a new Metro player, appearing in support of Mme. Petrova in "Playing With Fire," played a prominent role in the Passion Play, at Oberammergau. He played the role of the Christ in the Famous Players production of the Passion Play.

* * *

"The Bruiser" is the title of a forthcoming Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, which will give "Big Bill" Russell an opportunity to display his brawn and muscle to the best advantage. He will play the role of a leader of longshoremen, in a play which champions the cause of the workingman against society. Mr. Russell is supported by Roy Stewart, Lizette Thorne, and George Ferguson. Charlotte Burton plays opposite Mr. Russell.

* * *

Julius Steger, the dramatic star, who will soon be seen in "The Blindness of Love," a new Metro wonderplay, plays the role of a delightful old itinerant piano tuner.

* * *

Mae Murray, the Lasky star, has begun rehearsals on the production, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," under the direction of James Young. She will be supported by Tom Foreman, James Neill and other prominent members of the Lasky organization.

* * *

Ethel Barrymore, the Metro star, will next be seen in "The Kiss Of Hate," a story of tyranny and persecution in Russia, by Mme. de Grissac.

* * *

Jesse L. Lasky, president of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., expects to arrive from New York about the middle of the month and it is expected upon his return that several important announcements will be made concerning the Lasky company's plans for this summer. He will also take charge of the arrangements for the monster Actors' Fund benefit which will be given the latter part of March.

* * *

Mabel Taliaferro, who will be seen in the stellar role in "Her Great Price," on the Metro program, has a role similar to the ones that made her famous in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and "Polly of the Circus."

"The Pawn of Fate" with George Beban has been completed by World Film and will be released by that concern within the next few weeks. "The Pawn of Fate" is even a greater picture than either of Beban's former film vehicles.

* * *

Producer William Robert Daly is hard at work upon "At Piney Ridge," a five reel subject which features Miss Fritzi Brunette. This dainty lady is admirably cast as Cindy Lane. Mr. Daly was starred in this play for two seasons.

* * *

Gail Kane, the Equitable Girl, has completed the desert scenes in "Her God" and is en route back to New York. "Her God" will be an Equitable release early in March.

* * *

A group of the prettiest chorus girls now appearing in "Stop! Look! Listen!" with Gaby Deslys, at the Globe theater, were used in one of the striking scenes in "The Soul Market," the Metro play in which Mme. Petrova is starred.

* * *

Kitty Gordon, who recently completed her first screen production under the direction of the World Film Corporation, is now to appear for the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation, and will be seen shortly in an important visualization of a former stage sucess.

* * *

Virtus R. Scott, assistant director on the Metro staff, and who recently completed "The Lure of Heart's Desire," starring Edmund Breese, and "The Soul Market," starring Mme. Petrova, was formerly a driver of racing cars, and for three years participated in racing events.

* * *

Aaron Hoffman is now engaged in writing all the photodramas in which Mme. Petrova, the Metro star, appears.

* * *

Robert Warwick and Francis Nelson are at Jacksonville, Florida, staging "Velma" the first co-starring vehicle of this duo under World Film's direction.

* * *

Gypsy O'Brien, who recently made her debut in motion pictures, playing a prominent role in "The Soul Market," began her stage career as a famous beauty in the London Gaiety Company in London.

* * *

Bert Adler has returned to his desk at Universal Heights after a three weeks' siege of grippe. It was Bert's first visit to the sick list in five years.

* * *

Frank Glendon, who appears with Hamilton Revelle in "The Price of Malice," a Metro wonderplay, was formerly a dry goods clerk in Butte, Montana, before he became a leading man.

* * *

Frank Powell and a company of thirty-four players, headed by Bruce McRae, have returned from Cuba where they have been filming "The Chain Invisible" for Equitable.

* * *

William Cowper, character leading man with Metro, who recently finished playing the role of Mary Miles Minter's father in "Dimples," was the champion welterweight pugilist in the English navy when a young man.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

BERKELEY, CAL.—A two-story moving picture theater is being constructed for Cohn Brothers on Adeline street. The building will cost approximately $40,000.

Woodland, Cal.—The progress is the name of a moving picture theater recently opened by L. Parlen.

West Haven, Conn.—S. A. Woltoff, 67 California street, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 100 by 120 feet, to cost $20,000.

Winder, Ga.—J. L. Saul will erect a two-story moving picture theater, 30 by 100 feet, to be operated by L. Love. Upper floor will be fitted up as offices.

New Castle, Ind.—R. A. Cannan has taken over the Theatorium.

Michigan City, Ind.—The Vaudette theater is now being conducted by C. J. Coyle and Henry Paff.

New Hampton, Ia.—Extensive repairs have been made to the Idle Hour theater.

Onawa, Ia.—John Hendum has converted a store property into a modern moving picture theater. It has been leased by H. B. Skow and will be devoted to the exhibit of high-grade pictures.

Hutchinson, Kans.—Campbell & Son have the contract to remodel store building into modern moving picture theater for C. B. Yost. The work will represent an expenditure of about $10,000.

Orono, Me.—The Orono theater has been leased by Frank A. Owen, of Bangor, Me.

Searsport, Me.—Green & Parker has disposed of their interest in the Union Hall theater to A. P. Hopkins.

Baltimore, Md.—Vincent A. Valentini plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 32 by 90 feet, to cost $15,000.

Benson, Minn.—T. C. Peterson who recently leased the ground floor of the Aldrich Hotel, has equipped it as a moving picture theater.

Benson, Minn.—Leo McDermott plans to remodel a business property into a modern two-story moving picture theater and lodge rooms. There will be several stores on the ground floor. The alterations will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Northfield, Minn.—The Lyric theater has been redecorated.

Rochester, Minn.—C. F. Fischer will convert a store property into a modern moving picture theater. About $10,000 will be expended for the improvements.

St. Paul, Minn.—B. M. Schneider plans to erect a commodious fireproof moving picture theater at 176 East 7th street, to cost about $75,000.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Aberdeen Amusement Company has opened a moving picture theater on Selby avenue. It has been named the Aberdeen.

Wadena, Minn.—The Cozy theater has been taken over by Charles Calkins.

Waterville, Minn.—The building recently purchased by W. S. Buck, has been converted into a modern moving picture theater.

West Brook, Minn.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Dixie theatre.

St. Louis, Mo.—A new addition has been built to the Marquette theater at 18th street and Franklin avenue and the seating capacity increased.

Butte, Mont.—M. A. Berger has opened a moving picture theater in the Mantle block.

Great Falls, Mont.—The Imperial theater has been taken over by L. E. Freeman. The house has seating capacity of 500.

Wymore, Neb.—The Lyric theater is now being conducted by H. H. Dimmitt.

Albion, N. Y.—Robert Harris plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 59 by 140 feet, to cost $15,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Rose Mandel, 1,617 Sheepshead Bay road, plans to build a three-story moving picture theater, to cost $20,000.

Hankinson, N. D.—Paul Kunert has disposed of his interest in the Gem theater to Frank Woskie.

Tulsa, Okla.—C. U. McCarty is reported having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater, 67 by 125 feet, to cost $50,000.

Hershey, Pa.—M. S. Hershey has plans by C. E. Urban, Lancaster, Pa., for a three-story theater building, to cost $100,000.

New Castle, Pa.—James Passius and Augustus Caravasios have opened a moving picture theater in the Buchanan block.

Reading, Pa.—Carr & Schad, 748 Penn street, will erect a one-story moving picture theater, 65 by 270 feet, to cost $150,000.

Madison, S. Dak.—M. H. Colgrove and Mulvey Brothers are planning to erect a two-story moving picture theater, store and apartment building, 60 by 100 feet, to cost $15,000.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Thomas Wilcox is planning to erect a brick and concrete moving picture theater, 40 by 100 feet, at A and 9th streets. It is to be completed by about April 15.

Galveston, Texas.—The Crystal Palace Company has let the contract to the Gilsonite Construction Company, Dallas, to erect a moving picture theater, bathhouse and pavilion at Tremont street and Boulevard.

Stephenville, Texas.—Chaucer Carver, manager of the Majestic theater, will erect a modern moving picture theater, having seating capacity of 500. The front of the building will be constructed of terra-cotta.

Kenosha, Wis.—Louis Plous and M. Plous, 152 Market street, plan to convert a business property into a modern moving picture theater. Between $10,000 and $15,000 will be expended for the alterations.

Milwaukee, Wis.—E. C. Bracken, 753 East Johnson street, will erect a fireproof moving picture theater, 100 by 132 feet, to cost about $100,000.

Richland Center, Wis.—Allan D. Conover, Tenny block, Madison, Wis., is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theater, 36 by 132 feet.

$1.25 Per Dozen NIAGARA GEM SLIDES, any time during March. Now is your chance to stock up. Send for catalog and get your order in early. Usual price April 1st.
NIAGARA SLIDE COMPANY Lockport, N. Y.

That's What Helps

Laugh the Censorship Craze out of court.

THE SPECIAL SERVICE

of

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

trains the machine guns of ridicule on the censors. Our article, "If Shakespeare Fell Among the Censors," has been reprinted by the daily press everywhere. Here is a list of some of the papers which used the article and thus helped to create

Sentiment Against Censorship

The editors of the papers named below are entitled to our thanks for spreading the truth about censorship.

New York Sun	Miner, Butte, Mont.
New York Times	Phoenix, Muskogee, Okla.
New York Tribune	Tribune, Minneapolis
Harper's Weekly	Reflector, Greenville, N. C.
Springfield Republican	Ledger, Birmingham, Ala.
Post-Telegram, Camden, N. J.	News, St. Paul
Pittsburgh Post	News, Galveston, Tex.
Chattanooga (Tenn.) News	Boston Christian Science Monitor
Herald, Syracuse, N. Y.	Times, Washington, D. C.
Herald, Salt Lake City	News, Dayton, O.
Detroit (Mich.) Tribune	Spokane Review, Spokane, Wash.

Mr. Exhibitor, your local paper may be willing to print it. We send it to you free of charge as part of

OUR SPECIAL SERVICE

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

No Nova Scotia Censors

A New Bill Would Have Compelled Canadian Distributors to Open Offices in Halifax to Have Films Locally Censored—Halifax Exhibitors Organized by Toronto Exchange Men, Make an Effective Protest.

By W. M. Gladish, Toronto Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA.—A censorship tangle in the Canadian Province of Nova Scotia, on the Atlantic seaboard, has been straightened out through the timely action of Canadian exchange men, including several leading film company managers of Toronto, and a real victory has been scored by the photoplay interests. The story is this:

Compel Opening Halifax Offices.

A bill was introduced at the Provincial Legislature to provide for a system of censoring by which all film companies would be compelled to open branch offices at Halifax, the capital of Nova Scotia, for the convenience of the proposed censor board, and to pay business and censor fees in addition. The moving picture field in the Maritime Provinces is limited and has been well covered by the branch offices at St. John, New Brunswick. The exchange men declared that the branches in that city were not making money and threatened to withdraw from the two Eastern Provinces altogether if they were compelled to maintain two branches.

Organized and Won Point.

Mr. F. R. Lennon, of Toronto, assistant general manager of the Canadian Universal, and Mr. Phil Kauffman, Toronto, general manager of the Famous Players, hastened to the scene and organized the local film forces with the result that a delegation of seven film moguls waited on the Government to ask for changes in the proposed law. In addition to the two officers named the deputation included Mr. C. A. Kerr of the Mutual, Mr. E. A. Langley, representing Pathe films; Mr. A. McArthur, of the General Film; Mr. G. A. Margette, St. John's manager of the Universal, and Mr. Harry Price of the Famous Players.

As a result of the arguments presented, the Provincial authorities decided that it would not be necessary for branch offices to be opened in Halifax and the first-run customer of a film exchange is to represent the distributing company at the censor board. To save time and trouble, the Province has also agreed to accept the decision of two other Canadian Provinces with respect to the showing of any particular film, providing it has been passed by two other provinces. Otherwise a film will have to be censored especialy for Nova Scotia. There will be no censoring necessary for the stocks of films now within the province. Film exchanges are to pay an annual tax of $200 to the province and the censor fee is to be $1 per film. No city will be allowed to impose municipal taxes on the film exchanges. The new conditions go into effect immediately.

"WAKE UP" IN CANADA.

Charles R. Rogers, of Buffalo, has secured the Canadian rights for the English recruiting feature, "Wake Up," which was produced in England by the Eclaire Company with the assistance of the Imperial military authorities and the Boy Scout Association. Mr. Rogers has laid plans for the exhibiting of the feature in all the large theaters of Canada and, for the present at least, it is being handled through the United Photo-Plays Company, Limited, 37 Yonge street, Toronto. Mr. Rogers contemplates the opening of an office at Toronto, however, for the releasing of the picture. The first showing was screened at the Grand Opera house, Toronto, during the week of February 14th.

"Battle Cry of Peace" Comes Here.

"The Battle Cry of Peace," the great Vitagraph feature, has been imported into Canada by Manager Gookin of the new V-L-S-E branch at Toronto. Although primarily an American historical subject, Mr. Gookin anticipates that the picture will be readily accepted and widely viewed by Canadians.

Maurice Kauffman Goes to Montreal.

Maurice Kauffman, of Toronto, a road representative of the Mutual Corporation, has been transferred to the Montreal branch of the same company, where he will serve in the same capacity.

Toronto Picture Men Dance.

Four hundred tickets were sold for the first semi-annual confetti dance of the Toronto Moving Picture Protective Association, which was held in Academy hall, Bloor and St. Clarens avenue, on Friday night, February 18th.

Summoned for Frozen Exit.

Toronto, Ontario.—When a police official examined the two exits of the moving picture theater at 24 Arthur street, Toronto, which is owned by Ernest Steinhardt, he found one of the doors frozen tight. Steinhardt was summoned to court, but no action was taken when he explained that the door had been fixed to open in all kinds of weather.

Manager Stonge Making Good.

Toronto, Ontario.—Entirely on his own initiative, Mr. F. Stonge, manager of the "U-Kum" theater, Toronto, has greatly increased the revenue from his house by making a number of changes in the theater itself and in the policy. The theater was brightened with fresh decorations; the orchestra was augmented and a wider variety of films are being shown, with the result that Mr. Stonge was enabled to advance the price of admission from 10 cents to 15 cents. He has also made a successful test in newspaper advertising.

Good Exits Win Special Favor.

Toronto, Ontario.—The Gem theater of this city has been granted a permit by the city to enlarge its seating capacity, although the building in question does not conform to the civic by-law which requires fireproof construction for houses with over 500 seats. Leniency was exercised by the city authorities, however, because of the existence of several good exits.

BUFFALO REEL FELLOWS.

New Club Formed for Film Men, Managers, Exchange Men, Etc.

By Billy Bison, Buffalo Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Reel Fellows Club was organized at the Hotel Statler, Buffalo, Monday night. This organization is composed exclusively of all exchange men, including managers, road men and office employees. The club will meet once a week for social and business purposes. Business ideas will be interchanged and the various phases of exchange work will be discussed. This new organization promises to be a winner if one may judge from the success of the first meeting. The list of officers will be given later.

Best "Girl and the Game" Booker.

B. J. Brandon is representing "The Girl and the Game" department of the Mutual at Buffalo. Mr. Brandon announces that according to word received from his home office, the Buffalo headquarters are leading the list of all the branches in the booking of this feature. In specifying the standing of the local office, Mr. Brandon said: "This lead refers to the last three orders of merit, numbers three, four and five for bookings per print copy."

TAKES OVER FAMILY THEATER.

Harold B. Franklin, manager of the Lyric theater, has assumed control of the Family theater, which adjoins the Lyric at Washington street and Lafayette square, Buffalo. Mr. Franklin reopened the Family Saturday. The house was entirely refurnished and redecorated and in addition there was installed a large Wurlitzer organ.

At Shea's Hippodrome.

Isador Moses, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo's largest moving picture house, has added a harpist to his orchestra, which now numbers twenty-one pieces. Mr. Beazley, who has played important engagements in England, has been appointed organist. The programme is changed twice a week. Miss Philomena Cavanaugh, who knows newspaper work from every angle, puts over plenty of good Hippodrome copy in the Buffalo press. Manager Moses' assistant is A. J. Amm and Robert Evers is his stage manager.

New Victoria's Festival Week.

E. L. Hyman manager of the New Victoria theater Grant and Ferry streets, Buffalo, this week fittingly observed the first anniversary of the opening of that house. He was given free rein to get the newest and biggest screen productions in New York for anniversary week. Each evening a birthday festival was carried out with an enlarged symphony orchestra in special recital. The New Victoria was opened by Mitchell H. Mark on February 20th, 1915, with a heavy attendance.

Fred Zimmerman Goes to Victor.

Fred Zimmerman, formerly with the Queen City Film Co., has been appointed road man for the Victor Film, Buffalo. Mr. Zimmerman is well known among Western New York exhibitors and he is reporting favorable business.

Fire Laws and Safe Films

Massachusetts' Strictly Enforced Fire Ordinances Have Given Much Trouble to Pathescope Company with Its Non-inflammable Film—Gets Freedom in State Only to Find that Boston Is Not Included.

By William Flynn, Boston Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BOSTON, MASS.—Massachusetts laws are strict and anyone who thinks they can be battered down in ten minutes is sadly mistaken. Eugene P. Cornell, treasurer of the Pathoscope Company can testify to that. He has been trying to get a bill through the legislature for some time to allow the use of the Pathoscope "miniatures" in buildings of second and third class construction and his path has has been anything but one of roses even though his cause is a good one.

Perhaps nowhere in this country or in Europe are the building and fire hazard laws and regulations governing the exhibition of moving pictures as rigid as they are here in Massachusetts. These laws and regulations went into effect in the days when non-inflammable films were unknown and the public mind was filled with the combustion loving properties of the ordinary moving picture films. Hence the troubles of Mr. Cornell and his Pathoscope "miniatures."

After an urgent plea before a legislative committee by former Senator Claude L. Allen, representing the Pathoscope Company, and several exhibition tests and experiments in one of the hearing rooms of the State House to show that the films used by the Pathoscope Company in its school, church, and home, propaganda are non-inflammable, a law was finally passed by the legislature allowing these films to be used in buildings other than those of first class construction. After the law had been passed and the legislature had adjourned the Pathoscope people discovered that they had overlooked something.

This something was the fact that the much sought law did not include the City of Boston and the Pathoscope people were informed that their machines and films were barred. As a result Mr. Cornell petitioned for further legislation this year to take care of the situation in Boston. Mr. Allen, again made his appearance at the State House, this time before the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs and reiterated his plea of a year before and at the same time extolled the virtues and fire despising qualities of the Pathoscope outfit and told of its great benefit as an educational asset to any church or school. Nobody appeared in opposition to the measure and the matter was taken under consideration by the committee. The fate of the proposition is still uncertain at this writing.

The petition of Mr. Cornell was a further amendment to an existing law governing the use of moving picture films in Boston and provided that nothing in the act "shall be construed to prevent the use in buildings of second or third class construction of any cinematograph or similar apparatus operated only with cellulose acetate films not more than one inch and one fourth in width and using only an inclosed incandescent lamp."

OPERA AND FILMS AT PARK.

Linking grand opera with motion pictures of the first water and still make enough money to more than support the expensive double program in addition to a high class orchestra, is something that few managers in this territory can boast of, but this has been accomplished by Thomas Soriero of the Park theater. Mr. Soriero also has the distinction of having the Boston police "on the neck" at practically every performance to see that the aisles of the theater are kept clear and the auditorium is not overcrowded.

It is a common sight any evening at the Park to see a policeman in full uniform standing at the door holding up a line of people who are trying to get in to see the performance and this situation has been brought about through the unceasing efforts of Mr. Soriero to elevate moving picture exhibitions to a higher plane in Boston. The stage settings at the Park have been made over and the fountain which formerly spashed in the centre of the stage has been eliminated and supplanted by a rose garden effect which dominates the entire setting.

The playhouse has also been reseated, The aisles have been changed and under the new order of things the seating capacity has been increased. The theater's lighting effects have also undergone a complete change and the auditorium is now amber lighted throughout. This was one of the failures of the Park theater to which Manager Soriero has given considerable thought owing to the complaints that have been made against the lights that were formerly used and which are said to have been a strain on the eyes of the patrons.

This question of lighting effects is something that was not confined to the Park theater alone. It is true of many other moving picture houses in Boston and local managers who find their attendance dropping off would do well to give this matter some attention. The Park theater is running Paramount and Metro features and David of Romsky, one of the grand opera soloists on Manager Soriero's staff, is much in demand at several of Boston's most exclusive clubs.

Gets "Whirl of Life" Rights.

Louis B. Mayer of the American Feature Film Company, who handles the Metro features in New England has purchased the New England rights of the "Whirl of Life" in which the Vernon Castles are starred. Mayer has just returned from a tour of the South and he and his assistant, Thomas B. Spyre, are hard at work arranging bookings for the new number which promises to go big in this territory. The film rights were purchased from the John Cort Film Company through Mr. Joseph M. Gates.

Fred J. Lovett Visits.

Fred J. Lovett, manager of the Royal theater, Providence, R. I. was in Boston last week looking over some first run features that he intends to show in his own house. He dropped in to see several of his friends in this city and said that moving picture things in Providence at the present time were pretty good.

THE CHIC AT MILO, MAINE.

By John P. Flannigan, Bangor Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

MILO, ME.—Paul P. Peakes is the manager of one of the finest little theaters in eastern Maine, The Chic, a photograph of which is shown above. This theatre at Milo was built in 1913 and early became a money maker. It is artistically finished inside and out and shows excellent taste on the part of its designer and proprietor. Mr. Peakes is using General Film service and is open three nights a week. In the spring he plans to run six nights a week.

Three Incorporations.

Agusta, Me—William P. Gray of Lewiston is president and treasurer of the newly organized Princess Theater Company. The clerk is James A. Connellan of Portland, and the directors William P. Gray, James A. O'Brien, and Lowe W. Wrenn of Lewiston. The same officers appear in the Mystic Theater Co. and the Majestic Theater Co. It is understood that the theaters represented are the Princess at Berlin, N. H., the Majestic at Rumford and the Mystic at Lewiston.

Making the Palace Pay.

Bangor, Me.—Charles M. Stern, Maine manager of the Universal Film Co., with headquarters at Bangor, is managing the Palace theater on Exchange street, Bangor. The Palace has had quite a few ups and downs in the past few years, but under Mr. Stern's able management, it seems to be coming to the front in good style.

The Dawn Stays Bright.

South Brewer, Me.—E. B. Wilder, who opened the Dawn theatre at South Brewer last August, reports that he has no regrets after making the venture, and finds that Universal service is very satisfactory. He is using Broadway features and "Graft." He is running three nights a week now and later in the season will be open six nights a week.

New Home in Brooks.

Brooks, Me.—Pearl Crockett is shortly to open a house in Brooks. He will use General Film service, and has purchased a Power's 6 A from the Bangor branch of the General.

Arthur Allen With Mutual.

Portland, Me.—Arthur Allen, formerly manager of the Palace theater at Bangor, has taken a position as booker with Mutual Film Company at Portland.

Bangor Mutual Branch.

Bangor, Me.—William Green, local manager for Mutual is planning to open branch headquarters in Bangor in the near future.

Grand Gives Short Leave.

Dexter, Me.—T. J. Libby, proprietor of the Grand theater here has leased it to Frank Allen, of Rockland, who has just taken possession. Mr. Allen will not run pictures, but will conduct it as a roller skating rink for six months, after which time Mr. Libby plans to renovate the house entirely, making it one of the nicest and prettiest theaters in the state. D. Roy Graig, who has been managing the Grand theater at Dexter during the past six months, has made many friends in that town and conducted the theater successfully.

Bangor Program Notes.

Triangle pictures will be seen in Bangor, Me., for the first time, in the near future, at the Bijou theater.

The Park theater, Bangor, is using the "Graft" serial of the Universal company.

Bangor Business Notes.

Manager Sawyer of the Opera House at Jonesport Maine has taken on General Film service and another manager to sign contracts with manager Geo. A. Newhall at Bangor is, Wm. P. Gray manager of the Bijou theater, Lisbon Falls. Mr. Gray runs a chain of theaters including the Majestic at Lewiston, a house at Rumford, the Colonial at Augusta, the Princess at Berlin, N. H. and a house at Portsmouth, N. H.

John Goodwin, proprietor of the Acme Amusement Co., was in Bangor last week calling on his friends in the film trade and reports that business is much better than it was this time a year ago especially at his Augusta and Hallowell houses.

THEATER OWNERS FINED.

Schenectady Men Plead Guilty to Admitting Children to Theaters.

By E. O. Weinberg, Troy Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Proprietors of five moving picture theatres in Schenectady were arrested on Feb. 15 on charges of violating the penal law in having permitted children less than sixteen years of age to attend performances in their theaters.

The accused were John L. Mynderse of the American theater Edward B. Hayes of the Brandywine theatre; John J. Walyker of the Lincoln theater; Stone J. Berstrom of the Majestic theatre and Emmanuel Rosen of the Broadway theater They pleaded guilty and were fined $10 each.

NEWARK NEWS LETTER.

By Jacob Kalter, Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Competition Causes Burglary.

NEWARK, N. J.—For the purpose of preventing the exhibition of "Dante's Inferno" in the Lyric theater, Bayonne, N. J., James J. Corbett, of 147 North Seventh street, and Walter Connelly, of 24 Chestnut street, operator and manager, respectivly, of the Palace theater, a competitor of the first house, stole the reels early Monday morning, Feb. 14. The two men admitted their guilt Wednesday morning in the First Precinct Court, and were held in $500 bail each for the grand jury.

"Dante's Inferno" is a four-reel production valued at $3,000. The print, in the possession of Samuel O. Siegel, manager of the Newark Film Exchange, 195 Market street, from whose offices the reels were stolen, is said to be the only good copy in existence. Siegel had rented the film to the Lyric management in consideration of a $100 daily rental. The accused men said they had no intention of exhibiting the film or of selling it, the sole reason being as explained previously. Together with the reels, two number eight sheets and one number three sheet had been taken. A steel carrying-case was utilized in packing the film.

Bruhns Takes Empire.

West Hoboken, N. J.—C. Bruhns is the new owner of the New Empire theater, 106 Paterson Plank Road, West Hoboken. He succeeds James M. Barker.

Monticello's Anniversary.

Managers Harry De G. Robinson and Edward H. Burns of the Monticello theater, Monticello and Harrison avenues, Jersey City, were the recipients of hearty congratulations during the observance of their second anniversary week.

Pictures at Hillside.

Moving picture shows are being given in St. Catherine's Parochial hall, King street, Hillside, N. J.

Majestic a Picture House.

The Majestic theater, formerly one of the highest-classed legitimate theaters in Jersey City, has been turned into a picture house. The house, located at Grove and Montgomery streets, is under the management of Frank E. Henderson.

Yudkin Buys Parkview.

Frank B. Yudkin is the new owner of the Parkview theater, Watson and Badger avenues, Newark. Mr. Yudkin took possession Monday evening, Feb. 14.

Paterson House Bankrupt.

The Imperial Amusement Company, which operates a moving picture house at 67 Main street, Paterson, filed a petition in bankruptcy at Trenton with liabilities amounting to $2,004.51, and assets of $1,500.

Hoffman in Newark.

General Manager M. H. Hoffman, of the Universal Film, paid a visit to the local Universal office Tuesday, Feb. 15. Mr. Hoffman, together with Lee Gainsborg, local manager, looked over several sites for the proposed new headquarters of the Universal.

Cut Big "Peace" Film

Pitt Theater at Pittsburgh Visited by State Censors Who Cut Several Important Scenes from "The Battle Cry of Peace"—Manager Patch Gets Ahead of Censors by Having Players Act in Deleted Scenes.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA., February.—The representatives of the state board of censorship have for the second time descended upon the Pitt theater, Penn avenue and Seventh street, Pittsburgh, where the "Battle Cry of Peace" is being shown before thousands daily, and eliminated a number of important scenes from the picture. When J. Stewart Blackton's film spectacle was passed upon by the board before being released in this state, the climactic scene was condemned and removed.

When it was brought to Pittsburgh recently a private showing was given at the Pitt theater for members of the National Security League, National Guardsmen and members of the moving picture trade. W. M. Patch, manager of the house, proceeded to carry out a plan that showed the fallacy and ridiculous element in the censorship system.

Mr. Patch introduced living players onto the stage and depicted in tableau form the climactic scene that had been banned by the board, which has no jurisdiction over the ligitimate drama. This was omitted, however, at the public showings of the picture. In their latest raid on the film, the censors eliminated the scenes leading up to the climax, thus weakening the action still further. Mr. Patch has merely engaged more players, reconstructed the sketch and is now producing most of the scenes eliminated.

PRES. HERRINGTON BACK.

Fred J. Herrington, president of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of America, returned to Pittsburgh on Friday after a trip to the Middle West and expressed himself as being highly gratified over the evidences of team-work among the exhibitors throughout that part of the country and the results being secured there. President Herrington attended the Oklahoma state convention at Oklahoma City, February 14 and 15, and was impressed with the enthusiasm and cooperation displayed in the work that came before those meetings. On account of matters demanding his attention in the East, he returned by way of Chicago and did not meet the exhibitors at St. Louis, Mo., as he had planned to do. President Herrington left Pittsburgh almost immediately upon his arrival, to attend the Screen Club Ball at New York, and expects to be present at the New York state convention at Albany, March 1 and 2.

Enthusiastic About the Ball.

The rousing success of the first annual ball of the Pittsburgh Screen Club will continue for some time to be a live topic of conversation about the trade. All agree it had highly beneficial results for the business throughout this territory, to say nothing of the big boost, financially and otherwise, it has given the Club. These points were brought out at the enthusiastic and largely-attended meeting Sunday afternoon, February 20, at the Screen Club headquarters, Cameraphone building.

Metro Players Visit Theaters.

On the day following the Screen Club Ball, the Metro stars who attended, Mary Miles Minter, Marguerite Snow, Grace Valentine and Ann Barnes, appeared in person at the Rowland & Clark theaters throughout the city. The Belmar, the Regent, the Strand and the Arsenal, the four big theaters of Messrs. Rowland and Clark, were crowded to overflowing. On Tuesday the Metro stars left for New York. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Miller, who attended the New York Screen Club Ball Thursday and a meeting of the Metro board of directors Friday.

James Steele Heads Local Famous Players.

Another shakeup took place recently in the executive offices of the Famous Players Film Service here. J. S. Nordlie, who has been general manager for the past four months, discontinued his connection with the company, and James Steele has assumed direct supervision of the various branches at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit and Indianapolis.

Photoplay Theater Sold.

Meadville, Pa.—The Photoplay theater, Meadville, formerly owned and operated by James Urquhart and R. A. Whistler, has been purchased by Herman P. Wier, of Greenville, Pa. Mr. Wier took possession immediately.

Buys Luna Theater.

Brackenridge, Pa.—J. A. Hummel, who formerly ran the Opera House at Shinnston, W. Va., has sold that theater to George Wilkinson and purchased the Luna theater at Brackenridge, Pa. The Luna is now undergoing extensive improvements, inside and out, and will present a very handsome appearance when completely remodeled. A new Simplex machine has also been installed. Mr. Hummel has contracted for Paramount, Metro and Fox service, each of which will be shown two days weekly.

Regent at New Castle Reopened.

New Castle, Pa.—The Regent theater, formerly the Park, at New Castle, has been reopened after being extensively remodeled by its new owners. It was purchased about a month ago by Charles Freeman and M. Marks, who have spared no expense in making the house one of the finest in that section. Metro's "What Will People Say?" proved a big attraction for the opening and the attendance was large.

New House at Connellsville.

Connellsville, Pa.—A new moving picture theater of modern type is to be erected in the near future on Pittsburgh avenue, Connellsville, Pa., by Messrs. John Wishart and C. A. Wagoner, of Dunbar, Pa. The house is to be two stories high, of brick, hollow tile and steel construction, and will cost in the neighborhood of $12,000. Bids are now being taken.

Business Notes and Changes.

Jeannette, Pa.—The Princess theater, at Jeannette, has recently installed a Style K Wurlitzer organ.

Pittsburgh.—The Park View theater, Forward avenue, Pittsburgh, has been purchased by Paul J. Lersch from its former owner, John Road. A number of improvements are contemplated by Mr. Lersch.

Burgettstown, Pa.—George E. Thomassy is receiving bids for the erection of an up-to-date moving picture theater here. The theater is to be a two-story brick and will cost about $6,000.

Hazelwood, Pa.—The Acropolis theater, Hazelwood, has been equipped with a Wurlitzer organ Style CX. Max Steinberg, the manager and owner of the house, states that both he and his patrons are delighted with the improved music.

New Kensington, Pa.—The Alhambra theater, New Kensington, has been purchased by Messrs. Snow and McCoy from its former owner George McLaughlin. The new owners have taken charge and report good business.

Bad Checks and Fake Ads.

District of Columbia Bill to Punish Fraudulent Advertising Has Passed the House —What the Bill Provides For—Favorable Report on Bad Check Bill With Its Severe Penalties.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There are several matters now pending in Congress which are of great interest to those engaged in the motion picture business in the District of Columbia. Chief among these are the two District measures to prohibit fraudulent advertising and to prohibit the giving of checks which can not be honored. The former is very wide in its scope and has just been passed by the House of Representatives, while the latter has been favorably reported to that body with the recommendation that it be enacted into law.

Promising Films They Cannot Get.

The attention of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD correspondent has been called on a number of occasions to cases where theaters have advertised certain films for future exhibition, where it is claimed that the exhibitors had entered into no contracts for the rental of the same and knew that they could not secure them, and there have been other misrepresentations against which competing and other exhibitors have complained. The passage of this law by the Senate will mean that exhibitors and all other business men will have to be more cautious in their statements and it is believed by all that it will be a very good thing for the business. A fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or both, is provided for violations of section one of the bill, which reads as follows:

The Bill on Advertising.

"It shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person, firm, association, corporation, or advertising agency, either directly or indirectly, to dispaly or exhibit to the public in any manner whatsoever, whether by handbill, placard, poster, picture, film, or otherwsie; or to insert or cause to be inserted in any newspaper, magazine, or other publication printed in the District of Columbia; or to issue, exhibit, or in any way distribute or disseminate to the public; or to deliver, exhibit, mail, or send to any person, firm, association, or corporation, any false, untrue, or misleading statement, representation, or advertisement with a fraudulent intent to deceive, mislead, or induce any person, firm, association, or corporation to purchase, discount, or in any way invest in or accept as collateral security any bonds, bill, share of stock, note, warehouse receipt, or any security; or with the fraudulent purpose to deceive, mislead, or induce any person, firm, association, or corporation to purchase, make any loan upon, or invest in any property of any kind; or use any of the aforesaid methods with the fraudulent intent or purpose to deceive, mislead, or induce any other person, firm, or corporation for a valuable consideration to employ the services of any person, firm, association, or corporation so advertising such services."

Bad Checks as Payment.

The exchange managers have been complainants of long standing against the practice of some few who persist in giving checks when there are insufficient funds on deposit to their credit to cover the face of the same. This is true all through this territory, but the bill applies only to the District of Columbia. The bill provides "That hereafter it shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person, with intent to defraud, to use or endeavor to use any check, draft, or other similar paper, by whatever name it be known, to procure from any other person, firm, association or corporation any money or other thing of value, when the maker of such check, draft or other similar paper knows, or should know, that at the time the money or other thing of value is gotten he has not to his credit with the bank, trust company, financial institution, person, firm, association or corporation upon which it is drawn, sufficient available funds to pay such check, draft or other similar paper.

"Sec. 2. That it shall be unlawful in the District of Columbia for the maker of any check, draft, or other similar paper, with intent to defraud, to withdraw from the bank, trust company, financial institution, person, firm, or corporation upon which the check, draft, or other paper aforesaid has been drawn, so much of the available deposit which he had with the person or institution of deposit as not to leave a sufficient sum to fully pay the check, draft or other paper theretofore drawn against such fund, person, or financial institution.

"Sec. 3. That it shall also be unlawful in the District of Columbia for any person other than the maker of said check, draft, or other similar paper to use said check, draft, or other similar paper with fraudulent intent to procure any money or other thing of value fom any person, firm, association or corporation.

"Sec. 4. That the making, drawing, uttering, or any attempt to have honored or paid such check, draft, or other similar paper as aforesaid, shall be prima facie evidence of intent to defraud.

A Misdemeanor and a Felony.

"Sec. 4. That anyone violating any of the provisions of this Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, if the amount of such check, draft, or other similar paper fraudulently used as aforesaid be under the sum of $20; and, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not less than ten nor more than thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. If the amount of such check, draft, or other similar paper shall be $20 or more any one violating any provision of this Act shall be guilty of a felony; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine of not more than $200, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court."

The prosecutions under the proposed law are to be in the local police court upon information filed by the United States district attorney for the District of Columbia or one of his assistants.

THE HOME THEATER.

The latest addition to the motion picture field in Washington is the Rome theater, located near the corner of Twelfth and C streets, Northeast. This is an exceptionally attractive house and it will be more fully described in a forthcoming issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD. It has a seating capacity of approximately five hundred, is roomy, comfortable, and handsomely decorated. E. J. Dolan is the lessee and manager.

TAKES NEXT DOOR THEATER.

Austin H. Brown, manager of the Washington theater, has just secured control of the Regent, which adjoins his property. The former has a seating capacity of 350, while the accommodation of the latter is for 370.

In commenting upon his venture, Mr. Brown states: "I will be in mighty good shape now, having two theaters which practically adjoin each other, to handle the large volume of business which is available in my neighborhood. This will be particularly true during the summer months. We have a park having a seating capacity of seven hundred. Naturally, during previous summers, in the event of a sudden shower, we were unable to accommodate all of these people in the closed house, but this will not be the case in the future. Further, when we run the big features, if desirable, we can show in the park and in the two houses and thus accommodate about fifteen hundred people. I am having the interior of the house remodeled and the front repainted. A new screen is being installed, and the machines will be replaced by new ones. I am well pleased with the opportunity to secure control of the Regent and feel sure that the business we will do will be most satisfactory." The Regent was formerly operated by Harry Given.

MANAGER'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Charles Plunkett, manager of the Plaza theater, on Ninth street, Northwest, is reported to have had a very narrow escape with his life recently when an automobile which he was driving plunged over a thirty-foot embankment at a sharp turn in the road at Michigan avenue and First street, Northwest.

He was on his way home after having given a motion picture exhibition at a private home, and was alone in the machine at the time of the accident. The point where the machine left the road was poorly lighted, and Mr. Plunkett reached for the switch to turn on the big headlights. As he did so, the machine jumped and fell at the foot of the embankment. Mr. Plunkett was thrown some little distance out of the machine and escaped with some few slight bruises, a wrenched back and a bad shock.

Manager Greenburg Back at the Empire.

After an absence of nine months, Samuel Greenberg is again back at the Empire theater, on H street, near Ninth street, Northeast, he having regained possession of the house. It is to be remembered that last year Mr. Greenberg dissolved partnership with Louis Atkinson, the latter retaining the management of the Empire. Mr. Greenberg is again being greeted by his old friends in the Northeast section, where he has always been a very popular manager. The Empire is being renovated both within and without in preparation for the coming season's business.

Tom Moore Gives Show to Boys.

The Strand theater on Saturday last was crowded with school boys between the ages of twelve and sixteen years when a private exhibition was given them of "The Battle Cry of Peace." Arrangements for the affair were made with Tom Moore by a prominent member of the women's section of the Navy League. It is to be remembered that this film broke all records in the District of Columbia, for it was the only production that ever had a three weeks' run.

Community Motion Picture Bureau Growing.

W. D. Foster, president of the Community Motion Picture Bureau, of Boston, Mass., has been spending some little time in this territory arranging for booking contracts with the various Y. M. C. A. institutions, churches and schools. The business of this organization is largely growing. It is covering pretty thoroughly a large number of points in New England, New York State and Pennsylvania, and is reaching out into the Southern territory. Arrangements are also being made by Mr. Foster, while on this trip, for distributing agencies. The bureau already has field agents who solicit business in North and South Carolina, Maryland and Virginia.

Solve Theater Explosion in Wooster, O.

Wooster, O.—After several weeks' investigation by the police of Wooster, O., J. B. McCormick, owner of the Alhambra theater at that place, was arrested charged with causing explosions which wrecked the Wallace theater, a rival moving picture house, owned by H. H. Ziegler.

McCormick purchased the Alhambra about a year ago, and shortly after the Wallace was opened, causing a substantial falling off in the receipts at the other house, by reason of a more favorable location. This, it seems, according to McCormick's confession as reported by the police and subsequently made in open court, drove him to desperation, and his attempts to destroy the rival house followed. The first explosion occurred on December 19, but although it bore suspicious evidences of an outside agency, the local authorities finally came to the conclusion that it was caused by natural gas. McCormick stated that he used thirty sticks of dynamite on this occasion as well as in causing the recent explosion on February 12, when eleven of the thirty sticks failed to explode.

McCormick also confessed to having stolen two projecting machine "heads" from the Lyric, another Wooster house, in order to prevent its opening on a certain occasion, and then atoned for the theft by lending Manager Mott, of the Lyric, one of his own projectors.

The police state that they managed to fasten the crimes on McCormick through evidence discovered in his room above the Alhambra. The dynamite, it is stated, was stolen from a local hardware house.

Censor Is a Fixture.

Motion picture exhibitors all over Ohio are interested in the recent ruling of State Attorney General Turner, holding that the three members of the State Board of Censors are in the unclassified list of the civil service and not subject to examination and appointment from eligible lists.

According to this ruling Governor Willis has no power to prevent Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, of Columbus, from continuing to serve on the board.

State Censor Report

Pennsylvania State Board of Censors Makes Its Annual Report to Governor Brumbaugh—Films Passed and Banned—Fees and Fines—Board Does Not Heartily Commend Melodrama—Believes in Church and School.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—In a recent report made to Governor Brumbaugh, of the State of Pennsylvania, the board of censors recommend amendments to the state laws governing the supervision of moving picture films so that they may have greater authority over films shipped into Pennsylvania from other parts of the country, the power to confiscate objectionable films and to be enabled to bar all seals except that of the Commonwealth from pictures exhibited within the state.

The report covers the period from May 17, 1915, when the board assumed work [illegible] new act, until November 30, 1915, and makes note of 11,146 inspections, collections of $27,035.50 in fees and $3,965 in fines, condemnation of 169 films and elimination of parts of 6,450 pictures. In addition the board required the making over of many films and, as they claim, saved the producers and exhibitors, thousands and thousands of dollars in the form of needless expenditure.

Criticism is made of many of the advertisements shown by the moving picture trade and theaters and the report declares that "the Board cannot believe that the moving picture theater is a medium for teaching the youth of Pennsylvania moral lessons through melodrama, which it could much better obtain through the old channels in the church or school, nor will it be turned from its way by appeals for freedom to lay bare or advertise the sordid relationships of life in the name of literature or the dramatic art."

Strand Theater to Show Films.

Stroudsburg, Pa.—A meeting of the directors of the Houston Realty Company, owning the Stroud theater in East Stroudsburg, Pa., was recently held to install a first class moving picture service in the Stroud theater.

Stewart M. Swartwood, who has managed the playhouse very successfully during the past few months, was retained by the directors for another period and given instructions to purchase any equipment essential to a first class moving picture theater. The road shows will not be entirely forsaken, but the film productions will be given a great deal of attention and it is thought that the people who patronize the theater will be heartily in accord with the policy of exhibiting feature films.

Harry Weber Takes the Palace.

Hagerstown, Md.—A change in the management of the Palace theater, Hagerstown, Md., was shortly put into effect when Hary Weber, the popular exhibitor of Roanoke, Va., took charge of the theater under the transfer of the lease from Ernest Westfall, who has been manager for a number of years.

Mr. Westfall, who has become manager of the Maryland theater, found it necessary to relinquish control of the Palace owing to his many duties at the Maryland.

Mr. Weber's lease of the theater will run until April, 1917, the time of expiration of Mr. Westfall's lease.

After all, there is only one moving picture paper that you really need, and this is IT, conducted by the largest and most experienced staff of editors and correspondents.

Ticket Corporation Gets Charter.

The Moving Picture Ticket Corporation of Delaware was recently granted a charter under the laws of the state for the purpose of increasing the attendance at moving picture theaters through the method of universal moving picture tickets. The new concern has been capitalized at $500,000, David Simon, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Allen Kander, of New York city, and Franklin L. Mettler, of Wilmington, Delaware, being the principal incorporators.

Censor Cases Dismissed.

Norristown, Pa.—The cases against various moving picture exhibitors of Norristown, Pa., before Magistrate O. F. Lenhardt, in which they were charged with failing to show the State seal of censorship, were all recently dismissed, with three exceptions. The management of the Lyric theater were ordered to pay $5 fine and cost for one violation and the management of the Colonial theatre $10 fine and costs for two violations.

New Producing Company.

Camden, N. J.—The Monmouth Film Corporation, of Camden, N. J., was recently granted a charter under the laws of the state of New Jersey for the purpose of conducting a general manufacture of moving picture productions. The new concern has a capital stock of $2,500,000, J. D. Baker, Leighton P. Stradley and F. Stanley Sourman, all of Camden, N. J., being the principal incorporators.

Triangle at Keith's.

Jersey City, N. J.—In conjunction with Keith vaudeville, Keith's Jersey City theater has introduced the Triangle Fine Arts pictures. A special setting has been constructed, and a new type of screen has been installed so that the clearest and best projection will be possible.

Cleveland License Bill

Local Exhibitors' League Through Its Attorney Makes Strong Protest Against New Meyer License Ordinance—Now Before the Council—Attorney Sawyer Tells Council of Exhibitors' Difficulties—Another Hearing.

By Hurbert Persons, Cleveland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CLEVELAND, O.—Efforts of the city Council to pass an ordinance fixing a fee of $3 a year for moving picture theaters for each 100 seats, are occupying the attention of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League officials. Thus far, Councilman Smith is the only city official openly opposing the measure, which was introduced by Councilman Meyer. According to Meyer it will produce sufficient revenue to provide for a motion picture theater inspector and pay for special service in the way of inspection, which contends picture theaters in Cleveland are now getting.

The exhibitors declare this "special service" is a myth and assert they are not even given the service that ordinary taxpayers receive.

A public hearing on the ordinance was held in the council chamber the afternoon of February 16, before the License committee of the Council. At that time B. J. Sawyer, attorney and president of the League, appeared and made a strong address against the ordinance.

Sawyer told the committee members that despite popular fiction, owners of motion pictures are not loaded with diamonds, but are required to do hard work for every cent they make.

"I will frankly say that the picture show busines is not making money," Sawyer said. "The average picture theater, on the contrary is either losing money or breaking about even. No one knows what the future will be. Admission fees have remained stationary while expenses have soared."

Sawyer refuted Meyers assertions that the picture men get special service from the city. He declared that fire wardens seldom visit picture theaters and that the theaters do not even get the service that ordinary business houses receive in the way of rubbish collection.

Another hearing on the ordinance will be held February 23.

WANT TO RAISE RATES.

The advisability of increasing admission prices in Cleveland motion picture theaters, was discused at the last session of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League. The exhibitors declare that their expenses have greatly increased exchanges are demanding advance payment for films and admission prices are stationary.

It has been suggested that the ten cent houses will be forced to raise their prices to fifteen cents and the five cent houses to ten cents. No decision has been reached as yet.

The principal business in addition to the price discussion, was over the negotations with the club women on their model program idea.

Kentucky Censor Bill

New Bill Before State Legislature to Censor Film Watched by League—It Is Now in the Hands of the Committee on Public Health and There Is Not Much Danger of Its Being Brought Out Before Adjournment.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Louisville Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

LOUISILLE, KY.—President Dittmar of the Louisville Photo Play Association, and the Kentucky Moving Picture Exhibtors' League, has wrttten to Frankfort, Ky., for a copy of House Bill No. 482 which was introduced by Representative Ryans, of Louisville, on Monday, February 14. This bill provides for the inspection of all moving picture films before they are displayed and otherwise regulating moving-picture theaters. The bill has been referred to the Committee on Public Health, of the House.

Mr. Dittmar in an interview with the correspondent of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD stated that he was watching the matter closely, but that he did not fear any trouble would result from this censorship bill as it has been introduced so late that there is small probability of its coming up before the legislature adjourns, as over half of the sixty day period has already expired. There are hundreds of bills to be brought up before this one, and unless it is taken out of the regular order in which the bills are filed it will be next to impossible for it to be acted on.

New Manager for Grand.

M. Switow, of Louisville, has given up the active control of the Grand theater, of New Albany, Ind. It has been taken over by the New Albany Amusement Company, which also operates the Kerrigan theater, of that city. In order to acquire the controlling interest in the Grand the New Albany Amusement Co. has increased its capital stock to $75,000. The Grand and Kerrigan theaters were completed at practically the same time, that being a little over two years ago. Charles Miller has been named as manager of both houses. Mr. Switow will be a member of the reorganized company, but will not be connected in any way with the active management.

Takes Louisville by Storm.

"The Birth of a Nation," with the support of Mayor John H. Buschemeyer and the press, started its first Louisville performance as scheduled on Monday, February 14, at Macauley's theater. The film took Louisville by storm and even in the morning hours long lines of people were waiting to buy reserved tickets for the show.

Princess Theater Burns.

Henderson, Ky.—The Princess theater, of this city, caught fire at 3 o'clock of the morning of February 13 and burned to the ground. Several buildings in the neighborhood were in danger, but the fire was kept from spreading. The loss is estimated at about $15,000, and it is understood was not insured.

The Princess was built about two years ago by Judge W. Allen Kinney and other Louisville interests, including Wm. Beverly Wheeler, later owner of the Bijou, of Louisville. These men sold their interests in the theater several months ago.

Sunday Shows are Needed.

At Owensboro, Ky., Mayor Hickman recently presented a resolution to the City Council providing that the colored moving picture theaters be allowed to operate on Sunday. A colored minister had stated that while he did not concur in the movement he did not object. Mayor Hickman was of the opinion that the negroes would be better off at the picture house than in frequenting dives and the theaters were given premission to operate hereafter on Sunday.

Triangle on Fourth Ave., Louisville.

The Novelty theater, of Louisville, is now showing the Triangle program on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week. These pictures are the first run pictures which were shown some weeks ago at the Walnut theater, operated by the same interests. Under this arrangement the films which were formerly seen on Walnut street may now be seen on Fourth avenue.

Kentucky Theater Changes.

Shelbyville, Ky.—J. S. Purnett, of Jeffersonville, Ind., proprietor of the Majestic theater, of Shelbyville, Ky., has cancelled his lease on the property, and sold his fixtures and equipment to George Mann, of Bardstown, Ky., who is now removing them with the intention of later installing a showhouse at Bardstown.

Carlisle, Ky.—The Orpheum, of this place has been opened under the management of John Archdeacon, B. M. Ewell and C. M. Thomas. Admission has been placed at five cents. The Lyric theater, of Carlisle, is showing a number of excellent bills accompanied by good music at five cents.

Pikesville, Ky.—John A. Bentley has made arangements to open a new moving picture theater here. This theater will be called the Royal and will open about April 1. Mr. Bentley will be the manager.

Clay, Ky.—E. L. Rakes, of Sturgis, Ky., has made arrangements with the owners of the Dreamland theater, of Clay, whereby Mr. Rakes takes over the management of the theater and will change its name to "The Princess."

Corbin, Ky.—W. W. Sawyers and Jess Mershon are preparing to open a new moving picture house here in the near future. It is understood that the house will have a seating capacity of about 300.

James T. Hennegan Heads International Film

Cincinnati Local Film Producing Company Has New Active Head— Promises a Series of Comedies and Dramas with Local Talent.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Cincinnati Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CINCINNATI, O.—The organization of the International Film Products Co., of Cincinnati, has been materially strengthened, in anticipation of an expansion of the company's activities, by the addition of James T. Hennegan as active head. Mr. Hennegan, who was formerly a resident of Cincinnati, has had a varied experience in the production of film. It is announced that the company, under the direction of Mr. Hennegan, will begin the production of a series of pictures, both comedies and dramas, using Cincinnati actors and Cincinnati settings. The company's studio facilities are already excellent, and it has proved them by its success in the production of educational pictures for some months past. The personnel of the acting force can readily be secured through the Five-A Studios, Rex Weber's company, which is already affiliated with the International in some respects. Altogether, the company as now organized seems to have excellent prospects in the matter of actual production, in view of its facilities and of the experience of several of the men connected with it.

C. E. Holah Goes to V-L-S-E.

The latest in Cincinnati Film exchange swaps and changes is the parting of the ways with the Pathe organization and C. E. Holah, its local manager for many moons, and his installation as manager of the "Big Four" V-L-S-E exchange around on Seventh street. The change was a good deal of a surprise in local film circles, but Mr. Holah felt that the move was worth while, and made the change accordingly, effective February 21. Mr. Shrader, formerly manager of the V-L-S-E office, left only a short time ago for Detroit. So far no announcement has been made of Mr. Holah's successor at the Pathe exchange, P. Niland, his assistant, remaining in charge in the interim, with the rest of the force. S. E. Shurtleff has been in charge of the V-L-S-E office since former Manager Shrader left.

A Sunday Opening Fight.

Alliance, O.—The thriving town of Alliance has been split wide open by a fight for and against Sunday moving picture shows. The thing started, or was started over again, when an ordinance was introduced in the council repealing an ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows, and inferentially, permitting them. The church element, which in Alliance, as in most small towns, fights innocent amusements, because there is nothing really vicious to fight, promptly opened its guns on the repealing ordinance; and the more liberal element, with equal promptitude, indicated that it favors Sunday shows. The fight is still on, with the outcome dubious, but apparently favoring the enactment of the ordinance.

New Lyric Wins Praise.

Urbana, O.—The Lyric theater, recently completed at Urbana, received high praise from the Ohio department of public buildings, under the jurisdiction of which all theaters come. The department, after a thorough inspection of the theater, passed it without a single suggestion for its improvement from the standpoint of fire prevention and the accommodation of audiences, commenting very favorably on the electrical wiring and the protection booth, and on the width of the aisles and the roominess of the seats.

Theatorium Changes Hands.

Sandusky, O.—The very first moving-picture house which did business in Sandusky, O., the Theatorium, which made a fortune for the late Charles E. Reark, its proprietor, has at last changed hands, Mrs. Reark disposing of it to Gus Dildine, formerly county assessor. The house is still a good money-maker, notwithstanding the fact that it has for several years had warm competition from the several new theaters opened up in Sandusky.

Louis Baum on the Job.

Manager Louis Baum, in charge of the Cincinnati office of the World Film for the past two or three weeks, signalized his accession to authority in the Queen City by getting his Clara Kimball Young feature, "Camille," into the Family theater, Manager I. Libson's Vine street house, for a half-week's engagement. It so happened that the Family had an open date, and Manager Baum got it in clever fashion.

MICHIGAN NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Changes Among Exhibitors.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Thomas Graham is having constructed at Michigan street and Grand avenue in this city a moving picture theater seating 600, which will be opened some time in the spring.

Grand Lodge, Mich.—Manager Wilcox is now in control of the Crystal theater here, having purchased the interest of his partner, Mr. Bush.

Portland, Mich.—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Rice have purchased the Temple theater at Portland from Fred R. Patterson.

Lenox, Mich.—Carl Duncan, of Kilbuck, O., who has purchased the Family theater of this place, is increasing the capacity from 130 to 200. He will show five and six reels at ten and fifteen cents. A new Simplex machine has been installed.

Bay City, Mich.—Fire damaged the moving picture theater at Thirty-second and Broadway in Bay City, operated by Percy Ralph and Michael Payette, causing loss of about $1,500.

Traverse City, Mich.—Elmer Derr and Hoyt Coddington, of this place, have purchased the Martin moving picture theater at Manton, Mich.

Marlette, Mich.—Lee Atkins has opened the Rest-a-while theater.

Hudson, Mich.—Pierce Mitchell, of Jackson, Mich., has leased the Majestic theater here, from S. O. Baker.

Hancock, Mich.—Ben Gettleman has sold the Savoy theater here to Napoleon and Frank Ongie.

ILLINOIS NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BARRY, ILL.—T. D. and T. J. McVay, of Barry, have purchased the Grand Opera House at Jacksonville, Ill.

Macomb, Ill.—Oscar Carlson and Arthur Potts are the new managers of the Gem theater at this place.

Woodstock, Ill.—J. C. Miller, owner of the Princess theater at Woodstock, will open about March 1 his new theater north of his present location, using it about three nights a week for the overflow crowds from the Princess.

Aurora, Ill.—The Fox theater has gone over to pictures except Sunday, when vaudeville is used.

Warsaw, Ill.—The Frazer moving picture theater has been opened here.

Oregon, Ill.—Robert Weik and Roy Cratton, of Rochelle, have purchased a moving picture theater here.

Illinois Brevities.

Staunton, Ill.—Local films made by the Local Feature Film Producing Company of New York were shown at the Labor Temple in Staunton, Ill. The Labor Temple has taken on the Triangle Service for Saturday and Sunday nights. The New York company also filmed Litchfield, Ill., for the Lyric theater.

Urbana, Ill.—Women's clubs and other organizations are back of the Saturday children's shows at the Colonial theater.

Oak Park, Ill.—Manager Hodgson, of the Oak Park theater, has reduced his prices on Triangle films Wednesday and Saturday nights to twenty cents for reserved seats.

Cairo, Ill.—Flood sufferers near Cairo, Ill., were aided when the Gem theater allowed the Salvation Army to give a benefit.

Monmouth, Ill.—Manager Dolly, of the Patte theater here, has cancelled all vaudeville and will play pictures. The variety business has been poor.

Galesburg, Ill.—"When Johnnie Goes to dren in Galesburg, Ill., were the guests of the West theater to see "The Battle Cry of Peace."

East Moline, Ill.—"The White Sister" was shown at the Majestic theater in East Moline, Ill., under the auspices of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Galesburg, Ill.—"When Johnnie Goes to War," a home-talent photoplay was made in Galesburg, Ill., and shown at the West theater for the benefit of the D. A. R.

Moline, Ill.—Children will see at the Bio theater on Saturday morning the films the local chapter of the American Institute of Child Life wants them to see.

Harvard, Ill.—Moving pictures of pretty Harvard and its citizens were shown by the Picture Palace.

Peoria, Ill.—At a social gathering, the graduating classes of the Barker-Swan preparatory school for Motion Pictures, presented Director George Frederic Wheeler with a shaving mirror.

East Moline, Ill.—The Majestic theater aided the Industrial Extension Committee of that city and the Tri-City Manufacturers' Association in a "Safety First Campaign" by running accident prevention films.

Suit for an injunction to restrain Sheriff G. H. Richmond from removing a motion picture machine from the Family theater building in Moline, was filed in the circuit court at Rock Island, Ill., by the Moline Industrial Home Association. The action is directed against the Kleine Optical Company. The Kleine company recently filed a replevin suit in the county court against the Family theater. The picture machine is valued at $700.

An Ably Run Theater

Detroit's Majestic Theater Presents a Pleasing and Comfortable Appearance to Its Patrons—Some of the Elements That Go Into the Success Manager McGee and His Assistants Have Achieved for the House.

By Jacob Smith, Detroit Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DETROIT, MICH.—Many an exhibitor can learn something new at the Majestic theater, Woodward and Willis avenues. The Majestic is a theater of novelties and originalities. This is one of the reasons why the Majestic, with a seating capacity close to 2,000, is doing a bigger business today than it did when it opened nearly a year ago.

Each Must Look His Best.

The managing director is M. W. McGee and his assistant, R. von der Goltz. Both are in full dress every evening. The management requires that every employe look his best at all performances. The ushers wear old rose colored uniforms in keeping with the general scheme of interior decoration; the house officer, doorman and carriage and auto man, all appear in uniform. The Majestic has a payroll of over 50 persons. The ushers are drilled every evening at 6:30, carefully inspected and instructed by the assistant manager.

System and Smooth Running.

Manager McGee is great on doing things systematically and on regular schedule. Since the house opened the performances have failed only about three times in opening on the exact schedule. The Majestic is emptied and filled again in five minutes on the nine o'clock show, but to do this requires three men taking tickets. People who want to see the last show are educated to the time schedule, and they have found this schedule so regular that instead of standing in the lobby when the house is crowded for the first evening show, they go elsewhere and get there a few minutes before nine. Oftentimes at a quarter of nine there will be no one waiting for the last show, and at about five minutes to nine hundreds pour in from all directions. Conductors on Woodward avenue cars now call off "Majestic theater" when they reach Willis and Alexandrine avenues going either north or south.

Effective and Pleasing Music.

The musical novelties at the Majestic are an example of what can be done to please patrons. Take the week of February 13. The overture was "The Battle of San Juan Hill" a standard selection. As the orchestra played, the descriptive titles were thrown upon the screen, which harmonized with the music. As a final, a moving picture was shown of the American Flag and Theodore Roosevelt, the orchestra playing "The Star Spangled Banner." It brought the entire audience to its feet and caused thunderous applause.

The Man at the Helm.

Manager McGee is deserving of much praise for what he has done to make the Majestic so popular, because it is not been easy work by any means. Ever since the theatre opened "Mac" has been racking his brain for ideas that would make the people talk about the Majestic and he has certainly been successful. I have never run across a large theatre, employing so many people, where everybody took such great interest in their work. Every employe swears by Manager McGee. They speak in the highest terms of him and say they "never worked for a finer man." The result is that there is co-operation and harmony among the employes and the management. Every employe has a particular work to perform and he does it to the very best of his ability. It is unfortunate that this fine spirit does not exist at more theatres.

The new officers of the Majestic Teater Co. are Frederic G. Austin, president; Frank A. Westbrook, vice-president, and Henry J. Guthard, treasurer.

New Fox Manager.

C. G. Kingsley has succeeded A. I. Shapiro as manager of the Fox Detroit office, the latter having returned to New York to do special work. Mr. Kingsley of late has been salesman out of the Detroit office, previously being for a year special representative in Ohio.

Satin Goldfibre Moves.

The Satin Goldfibre Screens, Inc., has moved to larger offices No. 2030 Penobscot building, Detroit. Additional working capital has also been secured and the company expects to do business on a larger scale than ever.

J. R. Lakin With Broadway Feature.

John R. Lakin is now special representative for the Broadway Feature Film Co. He was formerly salesman for the Caille Bros. theatre ticket devices, and previous to that time manager of the Detroit-Pathe office.

Begin on New House April 1.

J. C. Ritter, president of the Rialto Theatre Co. says that the company will build its first new theatre at Gratiot and Mt. Elliott avenues, Detroit, and that it will be amphitheatre style, similar to the Majestic. It will have approximately 1500 seats. Ground will be broken April 1st. The Rialto company has a capital stock of $120,000. Headquarters of the company are 1573 Gratiot avenue.

New Policy at Alhambra.

The Alhambra theatre, Detroit, starting March 1st will change four times a week instead of daily as at present. This means that all pictures will be run two days, except Sunday. This new policy is along the lines of what D. Leo Dennison, manager of the Paramount-Detroit office, has been advocating for many months—that the large outskirt theatres will soon do away with changing their pictures daily and run them longer.

Triangle in New Orleans

Ernest Boehringer Opens Exchange in Triangle Theater—His Own House Will Take the First Runs and the Second Will Be Given to Twelve Other Houses—Arthur Lucas of Triangle Coming to Open Exchanges.

By George Cheney, New Orleans Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Triangle's debut in the local exhibiting field has developed, and its plans for the territory, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas, are rapidly shaping up. For New Orleans and environs, and Baton Rouge, the State capital, Ernst Boehringer, manager of the Triangle theater, has opened an exchange in the Triangle theater building.

He has announced that the Triangle second run will be placed in twelve local houses in addition to the Columbia, his own theater, which is now the only local theater showing second run Triangle. First run rights are held exclusively by the Triangle theater.

Within ten days, Mr. Boehringer told the WORLD man, the names of the twelve theaters contracting for the service will be announced. He is requiring of each house that contracts for the pictures, that they be shown for an admission charge of not less than 10 cents. Two theaters already announced as having signed up for the pictures are the College and Princess.

His refusal of the service to some of the exhibitors is not to be taken as a reflection on their worth, for he is insisting not only on stability in his exhibitors, but on large houses capable of deriving the maximum from Triangle pictures, which he is not offering cheap.

Mr. Boehringer's office also announced that Arthur Lucas, general manager for Triangle, will arrive in New Orleans this month to open an exchange for the territory, exclusive of that covered by Boehringer's present exchange.

The Triangle theater will serve as the projection room for purchasers of second run service in this territory. New Orleans exhibitors are finding it highly convenient to drop in at Mr. Boehringer's theater and see just how the pictures go, music and all.

A GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT.

When Mr. Miller found that the Newman interests had, like himself, planned to name their new house the Strand, and claimed it first, he withdrew, and announced that he would call his the Empire. Mr. Miller's house is due to open much earlier than the Newman house, but when Mr. Miller found that they were the first to set their hearts on the name, he refused to take advantage of the circumstances.

P. J. Prosser, Jr., Will Build.

Percy J. Prosser, Jr., owner of the Keystone, 1116 St. Andrew street, New Orleans, recently returned from a scouting tour through Louisiana and Mississippi and announced that he will open a second house in St. Andrew street near his Keystone, and a third in the country. He also has under consideration plans for further expansion. At the new house, the site for which has been secured, program pictures will be shown, while the Keystone will be made exclusively a feature house. The Keystone is now being run both on feature and program. Mr. Prosser will install his own patented gold screen in all his houses.

Another Canal Street House.

Josiah Pearce and Sons have announced that they will open a third Canal street house of the first class. The site, 908 Canal street, New Orleans, now occupied by E. Offner, jeweler, has been secured and work will be begun March 1. Plans are being prepared now.

Completion of this house will bring the Pearce investments in theater buildings up to $300,000, all invested within the last ten years. The aggregate rentals paid by the firm will be $50,000. The new house is the seventh under the Pearce name in New Orleans alone.

The name has not yet been decided upon. It will be selected by a contest, as in the case of the Trianon and the Tudor. The site, as Mr. Pearce says, is rated as a good one, being in the busiest section of the central thoroughfare.

Penelope Mary Ada Bennett Stephens.

Penelope Mary Ada Bennett Stephens, brand new daughter of S. T. Stephens, Mutual manager at New Orleans, was christened February 6, with Howard Gale, Kleine-Eidson manager, as godfather, and Mrs. W. Pons, wife of Frank Pons, of the Fox office, as godmother. The Bennett in the name stands for Hunter Bennett, of the New York office of Mutual, and a close personal friend of Mr. Stephen. When Mr. Bennett was in New Orleans recently, little Miss Stephens had not yet arrived, but Mr. Stephens had an agreement with Mr. Bennett that his heir would bear the latter's name in the event of a boy, or Mr. Bennett's wife's name if a girl. And so this little film baby begins life under rather auspicious circumstances.

New House in Natalbany.

J. M. Key, of Natalbany, La., was in town last week completing plans for the opening of a new house in his home town. He contracted for the Universal service and purchased a Power's 6-A projector and 300 opera chairs from the Consolidated Film and Supply Company.

New Theater at De Ridder.

S. Bridgewater, of De Ridder, La., was in New Orleans this week winding up details for the opening of his new house in De Ridder. The opening is scheduled for February 15. While in town he purchased from the Consolidated Film & Supply Company two Power's 6-A machines, a gold fiber screen and 400 opera chairs.

Of Interest in New Orleans.

Fred W. Pearce, Northern manager for Josiah Pearce & Sons, left last week for New York, Washington and Boston. Mrs. Pearce was with him. They will return to the Crescent City in time for Mardi Gras.

Theodore Marston, director for Vitagraph, passed through New Orleans last week with a company of players en route to Texas where they will film some Mexican stuff. On their way back, he said, they will stop in New Orleans for some scenes from the old French Quarter or Vieux Carre.

Warda Howard, last seen in New Orleans supporting Henry B. Walthall in the Essanay feature, "The Raven," was a visitor last week. Miss Howard took in the races and a number of other things.

"Undine," Bluebird feature, with Ida Schnall and her fifty odd co-mermaids, has completed an eight-day run at Fichtenberg's Dreamworld and has been booked for another week.

Chattanooga Shows Again Open on Sunday

Benefit for the Mizpah Temple Given at Local Theaters on Sunday, February 13—Exhibitors Greatly Desire Final Decision of the Sunday Law.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Chattanooga Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CHATTANOGA, TENN.—The moving picture theaters of Chattanooga were again open on Sunday, February 12, arrangements having been made whereby the shows were conducted for the benefit of the Hebrew Ladies' Aid Association of the Mizpah Temple. It will be with a feeling of great relief that the Chattanooga exhibitors finally obtain a decision from the Court of Appeals on the Sunday-closing regulations which are now in force in Chattanooga. A continuous scrap with the city authorities has been on for several years and the exhibitors have lost many a dollar through being forced to remain closed on the best day in the week.

NASHVILLE REX IMPROVED.

Nashville, Tenn.—An example is seen in The Rex theater, of Nashville, which under new management has changed its policy and improved its program. Hereafter first run Metro pictures will be seen at this playhouse. A number of improvements have been made at the theater, including redecorating. A high class moving picture organ has been installed and one of the best local musicians employed to operate the instrument. These improvements have added greatly to the attractions of the playhouse.

Serial at the Royal.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The Royal theater, reports "a killer," in the new serial, "The Girl and the Game," featuring Helen Holmes. Many people, who failed to see the first two or three episodes of this serial heard so much favorable comment on its merits that the latter episodes have drawn even better than the earliler ones. It is reported that exhibitors have often been averse to serials, claiming that only the first episodes drew well, and that many people who were unable to attend regularly lost interest, and that people who failed to see the first episodes would not attend because they did not have the first of the story. However, in well planned serials this trouble has been largely overcome.

Cumberland Picture Liked.

The Paramount five-reel feature "The Call of the Cumberlands," featuring Dustin Farnum, has been shown to appreciative audiences in theaters of all of the leading cities of Tennessee. In getting into the Cumberland Mountain district the producers struck a chord which appeals to the hearts of the people in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. The people in these four states are very well versed in the doings of the great mountain district, the many feuds and the beloved qualities of some of the simple people to be found in the mountain district. The Fifth Avenue, of Nashville; the Majestic of Memphis, and the Queen, of Knoxville, are among the theaters which have just completed exhibitions of this play.

"Stingaree" Went Well.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Empire theatre, No. 2, of this city, one of the Majestic Amusement Company's theatres, recently completed the showing of "The Moth and the Star," the eleventh episode of the Stingaree series. These pictures have drawn well.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The Queen theater, of this city, recently played a two-day return engagement of the Famous Players' production "The Old Homestead." Over 5,000 persons saw this picture during its first run at the Queen in January when it broke all previous records on attendance established by the playhouse.

FROM KANSAS CITY.

Fire at Excelsior Springs.

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—The Auditorium theater, Royal Amusement Co., proprietors, Excelsior Springs, Mo., was recently damaged by fire, having the stage, screen and piano burnt out. This theater is operated in conjunction with other amusement enterprises, as a dance hall, billiard parlors, etc., and the entire building was damaged. It will be rebuilt as soon as possible.

Lee Gunnison's New Policy.

Atchison, Kas.—To make an exclusive feature house out of one of his two theaters in Atchison, Kas., and to run regular service in the other one is the new policy recently adopted by Lee Gunnison, owner of the Royal and Crystal at that place. It is probable that the Royal will be the one drawing the feature productions, while the Crystal will use the regular service.

Theater at Tulsa Reopens.

Tulsa, Okla.—The Dreamland theater, at Tulsa, which has been closed for some time on account of threatening contagious diseases, recently reopened.

R. B. Ryan Buys Theater.

Joplin, Mo.—The Princess theater at Joplin, recently changed hands, the new owner being R. B. Ryan. Mr. Ryan was formerly connected with the Orpheum theater, at Pittsburg, Kas., and is an experienced man.

Fine House for Salina, Kas.

Salina, Kas.—What is claimed to be the second finest theater in Kansas will be opened at Salina about April 15. This theater is being erected for H. J. Thacher, now a traveler for the Universal Film Service, at a cost of $75,000. Among the features will be a stage large enough for theatrical productions, but the main idea in building the theater is for moving pictures.

To Improve Springfield Airdome.

Springfield, Mo.—With the leasing of the old Airdome property at Springfield, comes the announcement that steps will be taken to improve the property with the view of installing a modern open-air moving picture show. Present plans contemplate the opening about May 15.

MORE GULF STATE NOTES.

An announcement of considerable interest to residents of Southwestern Louisiana was made last week by the management of the Princess in Jennings, La., which has contracted for the Paramount program. The Princess is receiving patronage from a number of surrounding towns, including Crowley, Rayne, Lake Arthur, Elton and Welsh.

Louis Pizitz, a merchant of Birmingham, Ala., has purchased the Majestic in that city from General Louis V. Clark, the consideration being $150,000. The Majestic was built ten years ago, is four stories in height, with an office building front and a seating capacity of 1,000. General Clark acquired this theater on April 4, 1914, paying for it $125,000. The Interstate Amusement Co., of which Carl Hoblitzell is the head, is the present lessee of the Majestic. Mr. Pizitz has not fully decided as to what use he will put the theater, but it is rumored that in all probability it will be converted into a motion picture house, in line with similar changes being made all over the country.

The People's theater, Port Arthur, Tex., which was considerably damaged by fire on January 9, re-opened last week with the first episode of "Graft" as the inaugural bill.

The Cosy, Albany, Ga., has contracted for an early showing of the Triangle Program.

Return of Vaudeville?

Joplin, Mo., Picture Houses Show a Tendency to Go Back to Musical Comedy and Vaudeville During Winter—Princess and Star Theaters Run Musical Comedy—Ideal and Club Theaters Show Vaudeville.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

JOPLIN, Mo.—Moving picture shows in this locality seem rather turning to musical comedy and vaudeville, at least during the winter. Competition for the large crowds is the only explanation; there would seem to be no necessity for exciting the populace, as the streets are nearly always crowded in the evenings. The Grubel Bros. theater, the Electric, seating 1800, is crowded for each of the evening programs—it runs only pictures.

Perry Rhine and Miss Ethel Oliver, who recently took charge of the Princess, are installing a musical comedy program in connection with pictures during February, a company of 12 to be used. Mr. Rhine was formerly in Pittsburg, Kan. Also Mrs. M. J. Lancaster and her son Alger, at the Star theater, have been giving for the past four months, a musical comedy, with 12 to 14 people, with pictures.

O. A. Brandy at the Ideal is building a nice business, catering to the local competitive demand to the extent of providing one or two vaudeville numbers. The Club theater has a stock company, encourages local talent, and runs some pictures.

The Royal is exclusively pictures, at 5 cents. The Empress, a large theater, is closed, having previously run some pictures. The Joplin theater is dark most of the time, getting a good musical comedy or drama once in awhile. While all the theaters seem to have plenty of business, it is likely that the managers of the houses providing musical comedy, frequently of the more or less vulgar type, figure that the transient crowds that pack the booming Joplin's streets are eager to see something of that kind.

REGENT MAY OPEN MARCH 10.

Kansas City, Mo.—Work on the new Regent theatre being erected here at 107 East 12th St., by Frank L. Newman, manager of the Royal, is rapidly progressing and the theatre will probably be opened by March 10. One of the problems of Alexander Drake, the architect, was to design a house with a capacity of 700, as the Regent will have, on a lot 38x76 feet. This was accomplished by an unusual balcony, made possible by the fact that the theater is fifty feet high. A grilled ceiling, above which three 36-inch fans will suck air into ventilating shafts is one of the many interesting features being introduced by Mr. Newman. The entire cost of the structure is to be $60,000.

Change Twice a Week at New Empress.

Kansas City, Mo.—Since reopening the theatre at 12th and McGee streets, now known as the New Empress, feature runs for an entire week have been the rule. In accordance with the policy of the new management, which took charge a month ago, this will be abandoned and the pictures changed twice a week, features during both halves. As the vaudeville is operated in the same manner, this gives the show house a complete change of program two times each week.

"The Program Book."

Kansas City, Mo—A weekly 60-page booklet, known as "The Program Book" is the latest idea on the Kansas City field. this book, which will be put out under the direction of the management of a circuit of 22 theatres in the West, will be handed free to every patron of these theatres as they enter the showhouse. The current program will of course be the main feature, but special pages, handled by experts, are to be another feature.

Geo. H. Bowles to Handle Publicity.

The Kansas City office of the Universal Film and Supply Co., recently added George H. Bowles to its force as head of the publicity department. Mr. Bowles succeeds Mr. H. G. Gill, who left the Universal employ to become manager of the Associated Film Service Co.

Mr. Bowles who is a graduate of Kansas University is by no means a new man in the publicity game, having worked on the Kansas City Star in various capacities, politics, sport writer, copy-reader, dramatic desk, for the past five years. In addition to these features Bowles also handled the motion picture column for the Kansas City Star, which, incidentally, was discontinued when the new Universal man left.

Will Picture Negro History.

Kansas City, Mo.—A motion picture depicting the American negro from the earliest days when he was a barbarian in Africa, down through American history and a great dream of the future, is the idea of A. A. Anderson, a local negro who has written a scenario for such a production and now is organizing a company to produce it. Anderson is getting the company, which he believes will number about two hundred, together and will start rehearsals at once.

United Film Adds to Forces.

Kansas City, Mo.—The United Film Service, under management of A. A. Chatkin, has added four new employees to its force the last two weeks. Several minor changes in the office have taken place, including the addition of Miss Kamton as chief office clerk. M. Jacobson, formerly shipping clerk was advanced to a traveler, and G. Farnum, who has been with the Universal at Salt Lake City, was given a similar position.

A. A. Chatkin, of the United Film Service, recently made a flying trip out of the Kansas City office. Leaving at 3 o'clock one afternoon he went to Joplin, closed a contract there, left immediately for Morris, Okla., where he closed another contract.

J. Roy Young With Associated.

Kansas City, Mo.—J. Roy Young, for the past year with the Universal has accepted a position as booker for the Associated Film Service. Mr. Young is an experienced man, and is well known as a hustler.

G. T. Meyer and O. W. Smith Stop Over.

Kansas City, Mo.—Two St. Louis theatre managers, George T. Meyer and O. W. Smith, of the Shaw theatre, were recent visitors in Kansas City. They were on the way to Bartlesville, Okla., and stopped off here to renew business acquaintances and visit some of the newer moving picture houses.

W. B. Enrich Goes to Chicago.

Kansas City, Mo.—W. B. Emrich, who has been a salesman for the Kansas City office of the Fox Film Corporation, was recently transferred to the Chicago office, and will work out of there in the future. Mr. Emrich heads the list of Fox travelers and is acknowledged as one of the best film salesmen of the Middle West.

Pres. Herrington Passes Through.

Fred J. Herrington, national president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, was in Kansas City recently on his way to the Oklahoma exhibitors' convention. Mr. Herrington predicted a clean cut victory for the fight against federal censorship.

Milwaukee Screen Ball

Exhibitors' Association Dance in Milwaukee a Big Success—Held Saturday Night, Feb. 12—Screen Celebrities Present With Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton Leading in the Grand March—Dancer Stricken.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A crowd, estimated at 8,000 persons, exceeded the expectations of the promoters of the second annual ball of the Milwaukee Exhibitors' Association Saturday night, February 12. The dancers and spectators filled the floor of the Auditorium to capacity and overflowed into the corridor and Kilbourne and Plankinton halls.

The balcony and galleries were filled with spectators who came to see moving picture celebrities.

Bryant Washburn and Marguerite Clayton, of the Essanay, led the grand march. Hobart Henley, of the Universal, was another star present as was Edward Babille, of the Essanay.

Col. W. N. Selig, of the Selig Company, came over from Chicago for the affair. F. M. Day represented the Essanay forces.

Preceding the ball, the visiting moving picture people were the guests of the local association at a dinner party at the Hotel Wisconsin.

An unfortunate event was the sudden death of one of the dancers, Mrs. Tillie Droegkamp, of Milwaukee, who swooned on the floor and died on the way to the hospital.

The committees who were in charge of the successful affair were: Arrangement committee—Harry Trinz, George Fischer, Otto Meister, Charles Phillips, Harry Graham, P. Langheinrich, B. L. Fischer; floor committee—Paul Langheinrich, Edward Trinz, Max Kantak, Joe Schwartz, Joe Zinkel, W. Hoyer and M. Rice; reception committee—J. Grauman, Otto Preusser, David Feinberg, Richard Laufer, G. Bradock, Edward Trinz, Al Berg, Phil Gross, Jr., and Frank Hensler.

"Nation" Film at Municipal Theater.

Mineral Point, Wis.—While some communities are divided over "The Birth of a Nation," the committee for the Municipal theater at Mineral Point, Wis., selected it for a three-day run at the Municipal theater, virtually giving it official endorsement.

National Air in Ragtime.

La Crosse, Wis.—Vigorous protests against the "ragging" of the Star Spangled Banner in moving picture theaters of La Crosse, Wis., is reported. Patriotic societies and womens' clubs are said to have asked that the national air be played in a dignified manner and patrons be given a chance to arise.

Arrested by Health Inspector.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Julius Wasniewski, an exhibitor at 648 Third avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., was arrested on a charge of failing to properly ventilate his theater. The case will be tried March 8 in the district court.

Nurses at the Merrill Children's Shows.

Uniformed nurses will be in charge of the Merrill theater at Milwaukee, Wis., to make children comfortable during Saturday morning special shows. Manager H. D. Graham has decided to make the juvenile programs a regular feature.

Wisconsin Theater Changes.

La Crosse, Wis.—Miller & Gibson are now managers of the Dome theater here.

Beaver Dam, Wis.—R. C. Diggins, proprietor of the Davison theater here, has purchased the Grand theater on North Spring street in that city from G. J. Doerr and will operate both houses. He made a number of improvemens at the Grand.

Glenwood City, Wis.—Patrick McMann, of this place, has purchased a moving picture theater at Amery, Wis.

Prairie du Chien, Wis.—J. G. Wieting, of this place, has leased the opera house at Lancaster, Wis., from J. D. Hatch and will conduct a moving picture show.

SHUBERTS TAKE ATLANTA HOUSE.

Get Georgia Theater Company's Grand on Dispossessary Proceedings.

By A. M. Beatty, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Although the Georgia Theater Company, controlled by Jake Wells, formally surrendered possession of the Grand theater, Atlanta, to the Shuberts Monday morning; Feb. 14, the house was not closed, but will continue to be run by the Shuberts with no change for the present in program or policy.

The Shuberts took out a dispossessory warrant a week ago for the Grand, charging that back rent of $17,500 had not been paid them. The Georgia Theater Company refused to pay and was given till Monday either to pay or resign possession.

In the surrender of the theater to the Shuberts Monday, it was stated that negotiations are still under way regarding the permanent dispossession of the Grand, but until these are concluded, it will be open as a motion picture house, as it has been all this season.

NEW EXCHANGE BUILDING.

Plans are drawn and work will soon be started on a three story concrete building, corner of Walton and Bartow streets, Atlanta. This building will be constructed so as to meet the requirements of, and comply with the new city ordinance governing moving picture exchanges. Smith, Ewing and Rankin, are the promotors. The location of the building will be in the midst of the exchanges, who are outside the required limits of the new city ordinance governing moving picture exchanges, and in easy access to the business center of Atlanta. It is said several prominent exchanges have already signed leases for space.

OUT FOR VAUDEVILLE NOW.

Reformer Finds It Better Not to Bother Picture Shows.

John A. Magnet, cotton factor, Tuesday morning, Feb. 15, swore out a criminal warrant in the municipal court against King Stillman, proprietor of the DeSoto theater on Whitehall street, a vaudeville and moving picture theater, for operating a moving picture on Sunday. The hearing will be later in the week.

Mr. Magnet states that he had not made use of the warrants taken out in the criminal branch of the court against the Grand and Georgian theaters for operating on Sunday, following the dismissal of similar cases brought against their respective managers in the municipal court last week.

"It is the vaudeville shows I am after for operating on Sunday," he said. "All of this class but the DeSoto have closed on the Sabbath."

WANTS TO CHANGE ORDINANCE.

Changes in the ordinance recently passed by the Atlanta Council, regulating the manufacture and handling of films will be proposed by Councilman J. N. Renfroe, at the next meeting of city council.

The changes proposed will have reference to the handling of films to prevent fire, but none of which will be radical.

"The ordinance needs perfecting," states Councilman Renfroe. "A few eliminations and a few additions to the wording of some of the sections is all that is required."

There has been some talk about changing the limits prescribed for buildings in which films are manufactured and stored, but no member of council has decided to propose such a change.

The changes to be submitted by Councilman Renfroe will be referred to a committee for investigation.

RALPH DE BRULER RESIGNS.

Manager Ralph DeBruler, one of the most popular theatrical men in the South, has severed his connection with the Strand theater, this city, after months of highly successful work as manager.

The present popularity and high standing of the Strand are attributed by theatrical men of Atlanta to Mr. DeBruler's management; it was under his direction that this theater acquired the class of pictures which attracted the best motion picture clientele of the city; it was also under his direction that the theater maintained its high standard of plays.

He was the first manager of an Atlanta motion picture house to realize the importance of a first-class orchestra; he acquired such an orchestra for the Strand—an orchestra of such quality that its selections and special numbers brought many music lovers to the theater.

Mr. DeBruler has been ill with a nervous breakdown at his home, 88 Lucile avenue, but is now rapidly convalescing, and his friends expect to see him out again soon.

Piedmont to Open April First.

The Piedmont, the new vaudeville and picture theater being built at the corner of Luckie and Forsyth streets, by the Mion Amusement Company, is scheduled to open its doors April 1. One of the best known theatrical men in the south, it is said, will be manager.

R. V. Anderson, of the Charlotte, N. C., branch of the Universal, has returned from a business trip through Virginia territory and reports business good.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" was shown Tuesday, at the Empire theater, Mobile, Ala.; the management was unable to seat all the crowds, even though it was a bad rainy day and night.

Chas. Keesnick, local manager of the Mutual, has returned from a business trip through Florida. He reports business good.

LONG RUNS IN ST. LOUIS.

Pictures Prove Them Profitable By Several Examples.

By A. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Moving pictures have done for St. Louis what no straight dramatic or musical production has ever been able to do, that is, they have proved that long run engagements may be made profitable in a city accustomed to weekly changes of programs.

"The Birth of a Nation" started the long run engagements in St. Louis. It had more than 150 performances, which was the longest run of any play, spoken or pictures, ever shown in the city since the World's Fair in 1904. "Cabiria" ran for two or three weeks at the New Grand Central about two years ago, and "Les Miserables' had two return engagements at the same house, at a time when it was the big feature picture before the public, and caused much comment on the unusual length of time the engagements lasted, but it is becoming the habit now to have a big photoplay feature stay with us indefinitely. "The Battle Cry of Peace," which is in its fourth week at the Garrick, will probably continue to play to good audiences for several weeks longer. "Damaged Goods" just closed an eight weeks' run at the Central, and played to good houses until the very last performance.

FIVE SERIALS A WEEK.

August Roettger, manager of the Fairy theater, 5640 Easton avenue, is showing five serials a week to his patrons. The "Stingaree" series on Sunday; "The Strange Case of Mary Page," on Monday; the Helen Holmes railroad serial on Tuesday; "Graft" on Wednesday, and "The Red Circle" on Saturday. Mr. Roettger says his audiences like serials, and he is often requested not to miss showing certain serials as soon as they are produced.

Association's New Headquarters.

The Theater Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of St. Louis have changed its headquarters to the Majestic theater building at 1,020-24 Franklin avenue, and from now on the meetings will be held at that place every Friday at 11 a. m.

Lou Bent Goes With Universal.

Lou Bent has resigned his position with the Mutual Film, at 1,311 Pine street, and has been made special representative of the Universal Exchange at 2,116 Locust street, under Barney Rosenthal.

A REGULAR EXCHANGE.

S. W. Hatch is very happy over the fact that the St. Louis office of the V-L-S-E is now a regular exchange, and not a dependency of the Kansas City office, as formerly. Hatch says he is going to make the place at 3,630 Olive street, a regular office in appearance as well as in reality, and carpenters and other workmen are busy putting up partitions and other fixtures.

MORE LAFAYETTE ARRESTS.

Sunday Shows in Indiana by Adventurous Exhibitors.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—Another effort was made in Lafayette, Ind., to open on Sunday and six were arrested. Two of the men were Misha Rubinoff of Chicago and his operator, Herman Pasner of Chicago, both of whom declare they are orthodox Jews and observe Saturday as Sabbath.

The court in the former test case discharged Rubinoff because of his religion on motion of the prosecutor to dismiss. Rubinoff leased the Orpheum, and John M. Chamberlain and Charles M. Richards, proprietors were arrested as accessories.

Rubinoff and Pastner gave bond after their arrest, and the police have seized their machines as evidence. They leased the Family theater of David W. Maurice and Luke H. Balfe, proprietors, and again attempted to continue the show. They were again arrested and Maurice and Balfe were taken as accessories.

O. M. Sebring, Sullivan, Ind., was fined $1 and costs for operating on Sunday. Sebring will test the case.

A Special Children's Show.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—"The Evolution of a Silk Worm" and "Tragedies in Toyland" were put on at the Jefferson, of this city, as a special matinee in response to the Mothers Club request. There was a great turnout of the kiddies.

Sunday Show Arrest in Kendalville.

Ralph Rainier, of the Boyer Opera House, Kendalville, Ind., was again arrested for trying to run his place on Sunday. Ranier was fined recently on the same charge. He gave bond after his arrest and returned to the house and finished the show.

Threat with Arrest in Garrett.

A. C. Widmer, owner of the Royal theater, Garrett, Ind., opened Sunday without opposition or arrest, but not without an uproar. He is being threatened with arrest by the church people.

Indiana Notes.

Auburn, Ind.—The Empire theater has installed an advertising clock alongside the screen. Eight slides in the clock change every three minutes.

Peru, Ind.—O. R. Sebring opened the Isis theater here with "A Yellow Streak" starring Lionel Barrymore and Irene Hawley. The house has been closed for two weeks for interior improvements.

Covington, Ind.—A. B. Bower, of Bedford, Ind., has bought the Family theater, Covington, from Gene Ford. Mr. Ford was unpopular with the church people of the city because he ran on Sunday. Mr. Bower announces that he will be closed on Sunday.

Rochester, Ind.—Clyde Wilson, who with his brother Sydney, recently bought the K. G. theater in Rochester announces that he will discontinue the week end vaudeville.

An Exchange Combination

Minneapolis Branch of United Film Service Taken Over by A. R. Nelson and J. E. Moor—With Harry Sherman and Jack Elliott, Organize the Independent Film Corporation, a New Exchange—Officers Elected.

By Grace E. Polk, Minneapolis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—A consolidation of film exchanges announced Saturday, Feb. 12, is of interest to film men and exhibitors of the Northwest. A. R. Nelson and J. E. Moor have purchased the entire business of the United Film service in Minneapolis, and, together with Harry Sherman and Jack Elliott, who have handled the "Birth of a Nation" over Northwest territory, have organized under the name of the Independent Film Corporation, with the following officers: Harry Sherman, president; Jack Elliott, vice-president; A. R. Nelson, secretary, and J. E. Moor, treasurer.

The transaction also included the business of the Dakota Feature film service, in Aberdeen, a branch of the United. The newly organized corporation has offices on the eighth floor of the Produce Exchange, the film men's building, where both the Independent and the United has had offices.

PATRON OF CHILDREN'S SHOWS.

Moving picture loving youngsters of Minneapolis—and are there any youngster in Minneapolis or elsewhere who do not love moving pictures—have a real friend in Miss Gertrude Shaugnessy. The reason may be that she is so young herself that she has sympathy with them. Despite her youth she is principal of the Tuttle school, and a pioneer, the pioneer in fact, in putting on motion picture programs for the children of Minneapolis. The Tuttle school was the first in Minneapolis and is still one of the few here to have its own motion picture machine, and for three years now, under the management of Miss Shaugnessy the school has been putting on fortnightly programs for the children. How popular these shows are is shown by the fact that the school has an enrolment of 400 and the average attendance at the programs is 350.

Motion picture theater managers have occasionally put on children's programs, but have given it up as a regular feature because of the difficulty in obtaining suitable films regularly, but Miss Shaugnessy has never yet admitted herself "stumped" by this difficulty. From somewhere or other she has managed each two weeks to get something that the kiddies liked, sometimes sending as far for them as New York, when local exchanges failed. The Mother's Club of the school finances the proposition, selling the tickets.

Miss Shaugnessy was not only the first person in Minneapolis to put moving picture programs on in a school building, but she was chairman of the committee of the club women which put on the first model picture program for children. She believes in special programs for children, because, as she says, films which are perfectly harmless for grown up folk, are often the very ones that do the most harm to children; the audiences should be separated, she thinks, rather than censoring films for adults on the child basis. A series of special programs for children, booked by clubwomen of the city, is now being shown in Minneapolis at the Calhoun theater.

Policy Changes at Lyric and Strand.

A new allignment of two of the leading Minneapolis downtown moving picture houses takes place the middle of February. With the close of the long run of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Lyric, that house, under the management of Sherman, Elliott and Bainbridge, will show Mutual Masterpictures, and will go back to the old price of ten cents over the entire house. Programs will include not only the masterpictures, but a comedy reel and the Mutual News Weekly.

This marks the end of an experiment which was tried in downtown Minneapolis for higher prices. Before the "Birth of a Nation" moved from the Shubert to the Lyric, the latter house, under Saxe management, had been showing the Triangle program at fifty, twenty-five and fifteen cents. The innovation was not profitable nor popular and lasted only a few weeks. The only house now showing at more than ten cents is the Calhoun, a neighborhood theater which has recently put in fifteen cent price for the lower floor.

With the expiration of the Triangle contract with the Lyric theater Triangle pictures will be shown at the Strand. This does not mean exclusive Triangle service, however. Only the pick of the Triangle program will be exhibited, and Metro features will be continued, together with occasional features from the open market. The first Triangle feature will be run off Feb. 27, and will be Billie Burke in "Peggy."

W. L. MERRILL IN NEW YORK.

Film men of the Northwest lost one of their most energetic and popular members when William L. Merrill left for New York to take charge of all the exchanges east of Pittsburgh for one of the big film corporations. Mr. Merrill has been one of the live wires of the film business in the Northwest. He was one of the earliest in the field here, coming to Minneapolis from New York in October, 1912. He went from here to Kansas City and Oklahoma, but later returned to handle the Warner features. When the United Film Company was organized he took charge of the Minneapolis exchange, and kept it up here after the parent organization failed. A farewell party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Merrill last Saturday, Feb. 12.

"Nation" Film en Tour.

With its two hundred and thirty-ninth performance Saturday night (Feb. 19) "The Birth of a Nation" closed its run in Minneapolis and the 12-reel war play with its twenty-piece orchestra, electricians and stage crew left Sunday for a tour.

Sub-Renters Active

Texas Exchanges Having Trouble With a Gang of Sub-renters Who Re-book Rented Film to Friends Without Knowledge of Exchanges—Exhibitors Who Patronize Such Are in Danger of Criminal Action.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS, TEXAS.—There seems to be a regular organization of sub-renters in a certain section of Texas, who openly go about their nefarious business with a system that is not easily caught up with by the exchanges.

The procedure is for one of them to rent a picture, and then it is about two weeks before the film shows up again at the exchange, coming back from the exhibitor who rented it from the exchange. Correspondence will ensue between exchange and exhibitor; and should "the bunch" want another picture another member of the gang will be the "renter" with the same delay in return.

One Gave the Gang Away.

It seems, however, that one who probably was not "let in" on some deals that the body pulled off, has turned "state's evidence." At any rate he furnished the exchange with a list of their pictures, with the date the film was to be shown at the first town, and dates at other towns where it was sub-rented, and then quoted the return dates. Apparently he knew the exact dates on their productions that had fallen into the hands of the "gang."

Several exchange men who have had films fall into the hands of this sub-renters' association have said that the next time the entire matter will be placed in the hands of the district authorities, with a view to prosecuting the case or cases to the utmost.

Danger to Exhibitors.

The exhibitors seem ignorant of the danger they take in sub-renting. Besides the civil action, which provides for the collection of rental for each day the exchange is deprived of the film's use, there is the criminal side which means a penitentiary sentence up to two years and a large fine.

Some months ago Dallas exchanges had trouble with exhibitors in a certain section of Oklahoma; and there was another troublesome clique in Arkansas. Recently there has been nothing heard of such trouble in these sections.

If the shipment of film is interstate, like shipments from Dallas to Oklahoma, or vice versa, the matter comes under the Federal laws, which makes the offense even greater than if the shipments are merely to and from points in one state.

NEW DALLAS HOUSE.

Leon Gohlman of Houston has leased the building at 1510 Elm street, Dallas, in the heart of the business district, and is reconstructing the place into a very modern picture theater.

The specifications for the new theater call for an elaborately decorated front, faced with marble and an ornamental marquise awning over the entrance. The lobby will be tile floored with marble wainscoting and handsome walls and ceiling. Construction will be strictly fireproof and complying most rigidly with the building code. A modern ventilating plant will be installed and the machines and other equipment will be of the best makes. The building is 25x100 and the seating capacity will be about 300.

The remodeling was designed by Lang & Witchell, architects, and H. W. Link is the contractor. The house will be ready for opening about March 10.

DAD SPOONER LOSES.

The case of Dad Spooner, proprietor of a house at San Angelo, fined in the district court for operating on Sunday, has been decided by the court of criminal appeals against Mr. Spooner.

"Dad" kept open house on Sunday, January 2. No admission was charged, but a collection was taken for the benefit of a tuberculosis sanatorium near San Antonio. He was arrested and fined $20 in the lower court, appealed and lost on appeal.

DOESN'T BELIEVE IN CENSORS.

S. H. Jones, president of the Gold King Scren Company of Altus, Oklahoma, is widely known as the manufacturer of the Gold King Screen. Mr. Jones is also one of the leading exhibitors of Oklahoma, being among the pioneer motion picture showmen of that State.

S. H. Jones.

His Empire theater at Altus is a model of completeness and is equipped in a thoroughly up-to-date manner, two Simplex projectors having been recently installed and the house enlarged to a seating capacity of five hundred.

Mr. Jones enjoys the distinction of being among the charter members of the Oklahoma Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and is strong in his views against national or local censorship of films.

Trade Notes.

Houston, Texas.—The Enterprise exchange has closed. Mr. Horwitz, manager of this outfit, is in Dallas and is considering a position with a local exchange. He says there is no money in "junk," but is proud to say he closed the business with a clean slate.

Terrell, Texas.—Gwynn Byar of this place will remodel their Lyric theater at an expenditure of about $2,200.

Pleasanton, Texas.—The Palace theater here has been equipped with a stage and scenery. Manager Thomas Cowan will book vaudeville and other road attractions in addition to pictures.

Tyler, Texas.—The Hippodrome theater has been transferred by Lewis Brothers to Emmett & Emmett.

Aubrey, Texas.—H. V. Simpson has sold the Queen theater here to Cox & Sharrett.

Dallas, Texas.—Fox's local office was very nearly washed away during a recent rain storm. The alley back of the building is higher than the floor and the flood gates were not closed properly. About five inches of water had to be cleared out before the force could go to work. No serious damage done.

Max Graf, of the World Dallas office, told the writer to ask Sam Dembow (Fox) what the population of Butte, Mont., is. The question has not been propounded so the answer is still a mystery.

Eagle Pass, Texas.—Sam Schwartz of the Aztec theater here was in Dallas, and booked releases from Fox, Paramount, Triangle, Pathe and General. Evidently Sam wants good stuff.

Lyford, Texas, will have a new 250-seat house under the management of Henry Richards.

Lubbock, Texas.—Another new house will open here about March 15. C. C. Lindsey is the owner.

Austin, Tex.—J. C. Stevens has leased the Bell Airdome. This is one of the largest in the South, seating some 2,500.

Boerne, Texas.—Rudolph Ort has purchased the Opera House here, and will run it as a picture house.

Beeville, Texas.—The New Mission theater of this place had an opening attendance of 500.

Owensboro, Texas.—A motion picture theater, catering exclusively to the colored population of the city, has been opened by Richard Jackson in Owensboro.

Claremore, Okla.—Miss Maude E. Littlefield has bought from Humphrey Brothers the Electric theater here.

D. L. Greenblatt of the American Feature Film Company of Boston, Mass., was in Dallas recently en route from Florida to the west coast. Mr. Greenblatt is also interested in the Metro Boston exchange and the New England "Birth of a Nation."

PRAIRIE STATES NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Cut Rates During Epidemic.

OMAHA, NEB.—Film exchanges were good samaritans to members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Omaha during the scarlet fever scare. Rental prices were cut in half to members of the association.

The members found a disinfectant at $1.40 a gallon which reduced the cost to each theater to about $1 a day, fumigating twice a week.

Builds Local Nest.

The Blue Bird Photo Plays, Inc., has opened its Omaha, Neb., offices at 1122 Farnam street with J. Mitchell in charge. The Blue Bird has a flourishing list of theaters already using the new service.

Offers Scenario Prize of $50.

The Omaha World Herald has offered $50 for a three-reel scenario which will be a good story, yet show off Omaha, the state university at Lincoln and the World Herald's new building. The judges are Keene A. Abbott, critic of the World Herald, Mrs. George Bernard Prinz, of the Drama League, and Edward Lynch, a stock dramatic leader who is to play the principal part. The contest closes Feb. 29.

A $100 Scenario Prize.

Governors of the Ak-Sar-Ben, a big Omaha fete, offer $100 for a scenario for "The Birth of the State," a photoplay depicting historical events of Nebraska in the last half century. It will be produced as a part of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the state. The contest closes March 15.

New Nebraska Theaters.

Elm Crek, Neb.—Manager Yonney has opened a moving picture show here.

Reynolds, Neb.—Ray Bothwell has been planning to open a moving picture show at Reynolds.

Lincoln, Neb.—L. M. ("Joe") Garman has resigned as manager of the Orpheum theater and other enterprises of the Acme Amusmeent Company of this city.

Nelson, Neb.—Jay Robinson has opened a moving picture theater here.

Gering, Neb.—Manager Armbus, of the Pastime theater at Gering, has purchased a site for new theater to be erected this spring.

IN IOWA.

Exhibitor Thompson to Go With Fox.

Dubuque, Ia.—In order to accept a position as traveling representative for the Fox Film Corporation of Minneapolis, A. C. Thompson sold the Star theater at Dubuque, Ia., to Fred Yount, manager of the Family theater at Twenty-second street and Couler avenue in that city. Thompson will have a territory comprising Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana.

"Birth of Nation" Dates.

Iowa dates for "The Birth of a Nation" include Englert theater, Iowa City, week of February 21; Atlantic theater, Atlantic, February 28-29 and March 1, and Waterloo theater, Waterloo, return date.

Theater Changes in Iowa.

Goldfield, Ia.—W. F. Smith, who owns the Colonial theater at Clarion, Ia., has purchased the Cosmo theater of this place, and will operate both houses jointly.

Onida, Ia.—A new moving picture theater is to be opened here, it is reported.

Essex, Ia.—The Scenic theater here has gone out of business after nine years.

Burlington, Ia.—Plans have been completed by Architect Werhly for the new moving picture theater to be erected in this city by the Elite company.

Indianola, Ia.—James Tharp and F. C. Walker have purchased the moving picture theater here. They have been enlarging the building.

Wyoming, Ia.—N. E. Hoffman of Tama City, Ia., has purchased the Palace theater at Wyoming.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—A. H. Erickson and son, Ralph, of Toledo, Ia., have purchased a moving picture theater here.

Archer, Ia.—The Primghar moving picture company of Primghar, Ia., has been preparing to open a moving picture show here.

Belle Plaine, Ia.—G. D. Denine has sold the Nemo theater of this place to Oscar H. Strine of Boone.

Blairsburg, Ia.—Charles Castner has purchased the moving picture theater here, from Ray Wilson.

Clarion, Ia.—Richard Lampfers will open a new moving picture show here.

Ideas from Iowa Exhibitors.

Manager J. E. Benton of the Comet theater at Albia, Ia., has made every Monday feature night. Bookings include "The Juggernaut," "Graustark," "Island of Regeneration" and "The Rosary."

The Paramount feature, "The Dictator," was booked by Iowa City, Ia., Elks in connection with their annual show.

"The Miracle of Life" was shown at the Strand theater in Ottumwa, Ia., for the benefit of the Sacred Heart School.

Manager Dondell celebrated his first anniversary of the Cozy theatre at Bellevue, Ia., with a special program.

Osage at its best, a local film, was shown by the Lyric theater at Osage, Ia.

Iowa Brevities.

"The Empress Theater News" is in Volume II. This is a page of space used in a local paper by Manager John T. Cummins to exploit attractions at the Empress theater in Cherokee, Ia.

The Royal and Amuse theaters in Dubuque, Ia., are now showing Mutual programs exclusively. The Amuse will install a new ventilating system.

IN DENVER.

May Enlarge The United States Theater.

The United States theater, one of Denver's newest downtown photoplay houses, which for several months was operated under lease by R. H. McCluskey, has closed down. Plans for the future of the theater are a matter of much discussion in the local field. McCluskey's retirement is said to be due to the expiration of his lease, which the owners would not renew, and it is understood that Albert Lewin, principal owner is considering plans for remodelling and enlarging the theater. If his plans mature, it is reported, he will make it one of the largest moving picture houses in Denver and will conduct it himself.

Screen Club Begins

At Denver the Newly Formed Rocky Mountain Screen Club Is Now a Reality—Several Important Moves for Betterment of the Business Expected—Co-operation of Interest One of the Things Aimed At.

By E. C. Day, Denver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DENVER, COLO.—The Rocky Mountain Screen Club is now a reality. Following the preliminary gathering of the organizers when a committee was named to draw up a constitution and by-laws, another meeting was held Sunday and the club formally launched. The last session was larger and more enthusiastic than the first and the success of the organization is assured from the outset.

For Co-operation.

Only routine business incident to the organizing of the club and getting it under way was discussed Sunday. When these details are completed the club will take up actively the question of bettering moving picture conditions in this territory. Several important moves are contemplated and much good is expected to come from the co-operation of all the various interests in the Rocky Mountain region.

Up to now it has been a case of each man for himself. There has been no co-operation either among the exchange men or the exhibitors and little between the film distributor and the theater owner whom he supplies. This more than anything else has tended to retard the growth of the moving picture industry to the extent that it would have grown under more favorable conditions.

At the meeting Sunday a board of directors composed of thirteen members was elected. Equal representation was given to the exchanges, Denver exhibitors and out-of-town exhibitors with the odd member representing the supply houses, or accessory dealers.

This committee was empowered to incorporate, select clubrooms, buy equipment for the same, and to engage attendants for the organization's headquarters.

Their first act was to engage Attorney W. E. Foley, a prominent member of Denver's legal fraternity and a big booster of the moving picture industry, to incorporate the club.

To Select Clubrooms.

A committee composed of H. E. Huffman, George A. Killam and H. H. Buckwalter was named to select clubrooms and attend to the matter of furnishing them. It was announced that arrangements had been practically completed for a suite of rooms in the Savoy Hotel, one of the city's most fashionable hostelries and which is located centrally.

Officers of the Club will be elected later. The personnel of the board of directors follows: H. T. Nolan, George A. Killam, F. H. Fairchild, H. E. Huffman, W. S. Rand, Frank Tammen, Albert Hagan, Frank Harris, E. L. Walker, W. H. Cree, H. H. Quine, W. E. Scott and E. W. Anderson.

NEW EXCHANGE MANAGERS.

J. S. Appelgate Heads Local Pathe and W. T. Binford at Metro Helm.

Two new film exchange managers made their bow in Denver this week at the Metro and Pathe offices. In the former case, William T. Binford assumes charge, succeeding A. S. Bailey, and in the Pathe, J. S. Appelgate takes the place of H. L. Knappen.

Metro Expansion.

The Metro change is due to the expansion of service. A new branch office has been established in Salt Lake and Mr. Bailey goes to the Utah metropolis to manage it. Mr. Binford, his successor, graduates from the position of road man. He has been with the Metro company since its establishment in this territory and is said to know more exhibitors in Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico than any man connected with the film industry.

Prior to his going to the Metro, Mr. Binford was for years associated with the Mutual as a road man. Before this he was on the Pacific Coast with various motion picture companies.

W. B. Glasser, Assistant at the Metro.

On assuming charge of the office Mr. Binford announced the appointment of W. B. Glasser as assistant manager and booking agent. Glasser recently returned to Denver from Detroit where he was connected with the Mutual office.

New Salt Lake Office.

J. J. Ungar, traveling representative of the Metro Co., is supervising the establishment of the new office at Salt Lake. It will be operated as a branch of the Denver office. Frederick Langtry of New York, who has been on the Pacific Coast for several months, will become road man for the Metro. For the present he will work out of the Salt Lake office and devote his time exclusively to the Utah territory.

At the Pathe Office.

The change at the Pathe office is a promotion for both Mr. Knappen, the retiring manager, and his successor, Mr. Appelgate. Mr. Knappen goes to Atlanta to reorganize the office, which is said to be in a slump. No changes have been made in the Denver force and, according to Mr. Appelgate, it is not likely that there will be any.

"Tess" Comes Back Strong.

Almost two years after its original release "Tess of the Storm Country" has taken Denver by storm. It sounds strange but nevertheless is a fact. This picture, rated as the best of the Mary Pickford series, has broken house records in a half dozen local theaters and as a result there is a wild scramble among exhibitors all over the territory to book it.

Harry Ferguson, Traveling Exhibitor.

Harry Ferguson, an old timer in the moving picture game, has sold his Annex theater to A. B. Cook and has taken to the road with a number of state right features. He has fitted up an automobile with camping facilities and will spend the summer in the opening, showing his films in whatever towns he strikes in his travels.

O. S. Taylor With Mutual.

O. S. Taylor, former owner of the Rex theater at Raton, N. M., has sold out his interests there and will go on the road for the Mutual Film Corporation out of Salk Lake. He succeeds George Mayne, who has accepted a road job with the Bluebird company.

Local Theater Changes.

Boulder, Colo.—Manager W. E. Scott of the Mutual Exchange sold complete booth equipment for two new theaters, one to be installed by Frank L. Perry at Aguilar, Colo., and another to be opened by A. B. Humphreys at Lakewood, a mining camp in the Tungsten Belt in Boulder County. He also supplied equipment for New Isis which W. C. Lemaster will conduct at Victor. A Power's 6 machine was a part of the equipment in each instance.

J. R. Bradley has purchased and reopened the Empress theater at Boulder.

Trinidad, Colo.—Jack Nash of Trinidad has taken over the Bio theater there and will remodel it and operate it under the name of the Strand.

East Denver.—M. Fourcade has purchased the Emblem theater in East Denver from W. A. Hart.

Labor Against Censoring

In San Francisco the Theatrical Federation, Representing Six Labor Unions, Adopts Resolution Condemning Censorship as un-American—Presented to the Board of Supervisors of the City.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—At a recent meeting of the Theatrical Federation of San Francisco, representing six labor unions with a combined membership of more than three thousand, the censorship of moving pictures was roundly condemned as being un-American in principle and a resolution was adopted to be presented to the Board of Supervisors of this city shortly asking that the present ordinance be repealed. This resolution, which was presented by Business Agent Leslie G. Dolliver, of the Movig Picture Operators' Union, is as follows:

The Resolution.

Whereas, we believe the existing city ordinances regulating moving picture exhibitions are discriminatory, arbitrary and oppressive; and, whereas, the motion picture drama has attained a standard of excellence which we believe places the moving picture theater on the same plane with the so-called legitimate theater as an educational force in the community and as a medium for the free expression of thought; and whereas the so-called legitimate theater is compelled neither to secure a permit nor to submit to censorship, although the human voice adds realism to productions presented on the legitimate stage against which objection has been made when reproduced in the silent drama; and, whereas, censorship has occomplished no beneficial results anywhere it has been tried, and efforts to establish boards of censorship have been defeated in all but one of the states in which such effort has been made; and, whereas, any censorship is un-American in principle and contrary to the principle of free speech guaranteed to us by the Constitution; and, whereas, any movement calculated to hamper the growth of the motion picture industry or to increase the expense and difficulties connected with moving picture manufacture and production cannot fail to cause injury and financial loss to us; therefore, be it Resolved, That we, the Theatrical Federation of San Francisco urge the Board of Supervisors to repeal the present ordinances and adopt a new ordinance which shall cover both theatrical and moving picture exhibitions doing away with censorship and with the permit clause which places the moving picture exhibition at a disadvantage in competition with other exhibitions.

SCREEN CLUB'S OPEN HOUSE.

The Screen Club of San Francisco featured an open house entertainment on the evening of Feb. 5, the affair being well attended in spite of the stormy weather. The entertainment for the evening was arranged by Sid Grauman, president of the club and manager of the Empress theater, and Bert Levey, also well known in local vaudeville and moving picture circles. This consisted of high class vaudeville acts from local theaters, with an added attraction from outside sources. Refreshments were furnished free and dancing was indulged in until an early hour.

ON EXPOSITION GROUNDS.

Several large California producing concerns have applied for permission to make moving pictures on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco and the Division of Works favors the plan. None of the main exhibition palaces have been removed and for the most part the grounds are as beautiful as ever. It is the plan of producers to stage a number of dramas, using the great buildings as a background.

ACKERMAN & HARRIS EXPAND.

Ackerman & Harris, who conduct the Hippodrome theaters at San Francisco and Oakland, and who are well known in the local moving picture field, have taken over the Orpheum at Portland, Ore., and the two partners will shortly leave for that city to superintend the remodeling of the new house. The Portland Hippodrome, as it will be called, will be under the management of Joseph Mueller, formerly of Spokane, Wash.

LEON NETTER TO GO EAST.

Leon Netter, who has been associated with Sol Lesser for several years, and who has had charge of the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc., since its organization, has tendered his resignation to become effective the first of March and shortly after that date will leave for New York. While his plans are not definitely settled it is likely that he may join Mr. Lesser in marketing the "Ne'er-Do-Well" and may again return to San Francisco. He leaves the local exchange with the good will of all, the change being made to enter new fields.

District Manager Covers Territory.

J. J. Unger, who was recently appointed Pacific Coast manager for the Metro, is making a tour of inspection of all of the branch houses in this territory, including Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City and Denver. Manager Louis Reichert, of the San Francisco branch, is well satisfied with the manner in which business is coming in, a steady increase having been noted, despite adverse weather conditions.

Edison Theater to Show Paramount.

The Edison theater on Powell street, near Market, will, in the future, show Paramount productions, the change in policy to become effective at once. These will be shown about sixty days after their initial presentation in the Imperial theater.

Exhibitors Come to Town.

In spite of the fact that heavy rains are still being experienced a number of exhibitors from outside points have been here during the past week to look over late releases and to secure equipment for their houses in preparation for spring business.

Among these have been Emil Kehrlin, of the Kinema theater, Fresno, Calif.; J. Pezzaglia, of the Netherlands Amusement Co., Rio Vista, Calif.; C. A. Beck, of the Lyric, Fresno, Calif.; F. B. Finch, of Aetna Mills, Calif., and Louis Marks, of Sacramento, Calif.

S. Thompson, of Colfax, Calif., was also a recent visitor here and announced that he was arranging to open a circuit of small houses in the mountain district. I. F. Morris, of the Sequoia theater, Sacramento, who has been making such a success with the Fox service, and L. F. Williams, of the Unique theater, Santa Cruz, Calif., who is also a Fox devotee, were here recently to inspect some of the late releases.

San Francisco Gleanings.

M. Atlas, who conducts the Flag theater on North Beach, has taken over the All Star theater on Sutter street, near Fillmore, and will open this at an early date.

The Vicksburg theater at Vicksburg and twenty-fourth streets, has been purchased from George Knowles by Ed. Bergstrom.

A. F. Arents, formerly located in the Fillmore district, is now making his headquarters with the Big "A" Poster Renting Company at 120 Golden Gate avenue, where he conducts the art department. His shop is located on Jones street.

C. L. Williams, of the C. L. Williams Company, is interested in the big amusement park being constructed at Surf Beach, Alameda, and will have a number of concessions there. He is now dividing his attention between this and his film exchange business.

The Market Street theater enjoyed the greatest volume of business in its history on the opening day with Mutual Masterpictures, and the success of the new policy of showing feature productions in this house is now assured.

Great success has been met with by the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc., in booking the "Ne'er-Do-Well" in this territory. This attraction will shortly be shown at the Macdonough theater at Oakland for two weeks and one week in Stockton, Fresno, San Jose and Sacramento, places where full week runs are unusual.

California News.

San Rafael, Calif.—The old Victory theater at San Rafael, Calif., has been taken over by R. H. Hargadine and J. B. Brennman and has been reopened as the Marin theater.

The California Motion Picture Corporation has a large force of men at work at its grounds at San Rafael, Calif., erecting a new studio of large size.

Newcastle, Calif.—F. E. Setley has taken over the Castle theater in this place and will give three shows a week at 10 cents.

Whittier, Calif.—The Gale Theatrical Company has been granted a permit by the State Commission of Corporations to proceed with its plans for starting a moving picture house here.

Oakland, Calif.—The many friends of C. W. Midgley, of the Franklin theater, Oakland, Calif., were pained to learn recently of the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary Midgley, of Salt Lake City. Mrs. Midgley had been in Oakland only six days, having come on a visit to her son, when she was stricken with acute pneumonia.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The Pathescope Company of Southern California has been incorporated in this city by D. W. Nefsy, F. S. Fell, T. J. Dugan and C. W. Slater with a capital stock of $25,000.

The Commission of Corporations has granted a permit to the Moral Feature Film Corporation of Los Angeles to sell stock and to issue shares to Wm. A. Hoefgen in exchange for services and money advanced by him. It is proposed to produce a picture drama which has been indorsed by prohibition leaders.

MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION DANCE

Managers York and Ruffner Run O. H. Big Event.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Charles Chaplins, Yama Yama girls, Colonial Dames, Deadwood Dicks and Simon Legrees danced at the masquerade ball for the benefit of the Spokane Inter-State Fair Association, which was given in the Davenport hotel, Monday night, February 7.

It was given under the auspices of the Spokane Theatrical Managers' Association with Charles Yorke of the Auditorium and Ralph Ruffner of the Liberty in charge of arrangements.

Moving pictures of the event were taken by James McConahey of the Best Show. Mr. Ruffner reports that the proceeds for the fair association runs about $4,500. Reports that there were 3,500 persons in attendance. Representatives of theatrical companies, appearing at the local theaters, also the Wilkes Stock Company, aside from representatives of all the moving picture houses of the city were in attendance. The event was declared the greatest in the history of the hotel, which was occupied about a year ago.

Feature Films in Spokane.

Mignon Anderson in "The Woman In Politics," the Mutual production, played to capacity houses at the Class A Spokane and most of the audiences were women, which was thought to be mainly due to the fact that Washington women vote and take an active interest in politics and civic affairs.

Olga Petrova appeared at the Class A, just a week after schedule, due to the fact that the film was snowbound in the Cascade mountains between Spokane and Seattle for several days. Other films, as well as several passenger trains, were also snowbound some days. The theater received many calls, daily, to know when the pictures would run and large audiences greeted the initial presentation.

Frank Hurley's Australian pictures, showing native and other scenes of the interior, are drawing well at the Clemmer. The second section of the films have been shown.

The Chicago Tribune's German War pictures, also tied up in the snow for some days, arrived and are being presented to large audiences.

A VETERAN PICTURE MAN.

James McConahey, proprietor and manager of the Best Show, the home of General Film Company releases in Spokane, Wash., is one of the veteran moving picture men of the West.

He engaged in the business in San Francisco in 1896 and aside from learning the art of operating, took a hand at operating a moving picture camera, which he mastered, having previously had photographic experience. He opened his first moving picture house in Spokane in 1900 and in 1901 went on the road as an exhibitor, purchasing his films outright and exhibiting them in theaters and halls from Los Angeles, Cal., to Vancouver, B. C., and from Puget Sound to the Mississippi river.

About four years ago while running a photo and post card studio in Spokane he rented the building in which the Dreamland picture show had just closed and opened the Best Show, which he still owns.

James McConahey.

Mr. McConahey has taken moving pictures of various events in the city since opening the Best, some of which he exhibited and some of which have been exhibited throughout the country, including recent pictures of Spokane and its streets, shown by the Bell Telephone company in its exhibit throughout the country, of cities touched by its transcontinental telephone system. After starting the Best he was not long making a success where others had failed and additional to that operated the American theater for many months as a moving picture house before a stock company returned to it. He has also taught two of his sons to operate machines as well as one of them to take moving pictures.

He has also had charge of the open-air moving pictures at Natatorium park for several seasons.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

HIPPODROME 5-CENT MATINEES.

Manager H. J. Brown of the Hippodrome, Spokane, now announces admission to all matinees except Sundays at five cents and children accompanied by adults are admitted free. This change was started Monday, Jan. 31, and carried with it that half of the receipts from the German War Pictures would go to the fund for crippled soldiers. He announces that the change has made a hit with patrons.

The Moving Picture World is the leading picture trade journal.

Pay in Advance

Exchanges Serving Oregon and Washington Demand Film Rentals in Advance—Purpose to Protect Exchanges and Exhibitors Who Pay Their Bills—Plan Is Received With But Little Opposition.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, OREGON—Exchanges in this city serving all of Oregon and a part of Washington have sent letters to the exhibitors in the territory advising that after February 21 all film rentals must be paid for weekly in advance. By this arrangement, invoices for the next week's service will be mailed one week before the service called for in the invoice is shipped. To illustrate: The bill for the week of February 21 to February 26 will be mailed on February 14 and should reach the exhibitor not later than February 16. Then if the remittance is not received by February 18, a C. O. D. will be attached to the next shipment for the amount of the rental for the coming week.

This arrangement is the result of many conferences held by the exchange men in the Pacific Northwest and exchanges in Seattle as well as in Portland are involved in it. The reason given for its inauguration at this time is that during 1915 exchanges in this territory lost over $60,000 in bad accounts. It has been the custom of fly-by-night exhibitors to open a house in competition with some well established theatre, run a few weeks' bill at every exchange that would extend credit and after six weeks or so, skip out leaving all bills unpaid. Most of the exhibitors feel that this arrangement will eliminate this unfair competition, especially in suburban theatres but several established theatre men intimated that the exchange men's edict when applied to them seemingly questioned their business integrity and they believed the rule should be applied only where necessary.

People's Amusement Elects.

At the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the People's Amusement Company, Portland, the following were elected directors: Max S. Hirsch, C. A. Malarkey, D. Solis Cohen, E. Shainwald, Dr. Holt C. Wilson, Fred H. Rothschild and M. Pallet. At the election of officers, Mr. Hirsch was elected president, Mr. Malarkey, vice president, Mr. Cohen, secretary and Mr. Shainwald, treasurer.

Oregon City Gets Censorship.

Oregon City now has a censor board. The city council authorized three of its members who comprise the committee on health and police to act as a board of censors. The jurisdiction of the new body is not known, however, as the charter makes no provision for it. An ordinance covering the subject is contemplated. The first official act of the board was to view and pass "Smashing the Vice Trust," recently condemned in Portland. Oregon City has two theaters.

"Avenging Conscience" Returns.

Orton E. Goodwin and Sol Baum, who toured Oregon with "The Avenging Conscience" have returned to Portland and report their trip to have been highly successful. They booked the picture solid throughout the state except for three days which was exceptional owing to storm conditions. At Sumpter, where a city ordinance requires a heavy license fee from travelling shows, the picture was classed under this head, but the council held a special meeting and waived the license. Goodwin and Baum are contemplating taking other big pictures on the road.

Erecting a Studio in Chicago.

L. H. Moomaw, of the American Lifeograph Company, Portland, one of the few successful producing companies away from established film centers, has gone to Chicago at the request of the Paramount company to assist in the construction of a studio there. An official of Paramount was in Portland in September and seeing the studio in Portland that had been erected after Mr. Moomaw's ideas, contracted for his services in erecting the Chicago studio.

Harry Hunter in Seattle.

Harry Hunter, who formerly booked "The Diamond From the Sky" from the Portland Mutual office, has gone to Seattle as road man for Blue Bird.

H. H. Hicks Visits.

H. H. Hicks, manager of the Pacific Coast division of the General Film Company, was in Portland recently on a tour of inspection. Other cities on this itinerary were Seattle, Salt Lake City and Butte.

"Ne'er-Do-Well" at the Heilig.

At the premier showing of the Ne'er-Do-Well in Portland, at the Heilig theater, February 13, Portland's largest showhouse was crowded to overflowing with hundreds of people on the sidewalk for the night performance.

Eastern Oregon Notes.

Theaters on the Wallowa branch of the O. W. R. & N., the Opera House, Enterprise; Peoples, Joseph; Opera House, Wallowa; Peoples, Elgin; Opera House, Lostine; have formed a circuit to lessen the cost of handling their films. The houses are separately owned but the bookings are handled by Miss Redmond who, with L. Vergere, conducts the Opera House at Enterprise.

The Vogt theater, The Dalles, after being remodelled, will show pictures.

Northwest Theater Changes.

St. Helens, Ore.—H. O. Strom purchased the Columbia theater, here from P. T. Evans and opened the house February 5, under the name of the Strand. Mr. Strom is contemplating extensive alterations in the theater.

Centralia, Wash.—The Rose theater, Centralia, abandoned pictures and put on stock with poor success.

Portland, Ore.—Edwin F. James, of the Majestic, has signed a year's contract to show the Pathe News. His film will show 100 feet of local pictures made and attached to the reel in Portland.

Ashland, Ore.—The Lyric theater at Ashland, Ore, has closed. The Vining, managed by O. T. Bergner, formerly of Portland has the monopoly on the business.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

By Northwest News Service.

Changes and New Houses.

GRAFTON, N. D.—John Piller has purchased the interest of C. A. Heen in the De Luxe theater at Grafton, N. D., and now is managing that house. John Lien retains his interest. Piller was the pioneer moving picture man of Grafton.

Garretson, S. D.—W. K. Kundtson and Charles Kent have opened a moving picture show in the opera house here. They also are partners in the furniture business.

Aberdeen, S. D.—The Idle Hour theater has passed into the control of McCarthy Bros., owners of the Lyric theater of this place.

The Strand will be the name of a new $50,000 vaudeville and moving picture theater at Aberdeen, S. D., to be erected in the spring by the recently incorporated C. W. Gates Amusement company. A site adjoining the Bijou theater has been purchased and the Bijou wil be razed. The site is 50 x 142. A pipe organ will be a feature.

Will Forbid Lotteries

Vancouver Board of Trade Discussion of Ticket Lotteries in Theaters Results in Mayor MacBeath's Order to Have Them Stopped After Feb. 19—May Not Forbid Those Already Under Way to Finish.

By E. C. Thomas, Vancouver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—As a result of the recent meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade, at which was discussed the question of the giving away by theaters and stores of tickets entitling the holders to participate in drawings for presents, R. L. Maitland, police court prosecutor, was requested this week to give Mayor MacBeath an opinion on the matter. He reported that the practice was against the code, and cited the recent conviction of the Hudson's Bay Company in Alberta, which was referred to in these columns last week.

Mayor Must Enforce Law.

Following a conference with Chief of Police McLennan, the mayor stated that he had no option in the matter but to instruct the chief to see that the law is carried out, and those who have been giving away presents through drawings were notified to that effect. It is thought, however, that those who have started giving tickets on automobiles, etc., to be drawn for on a certain date, will be allowed to proceed until the completion of their contests, but this is not definitely assured. The date set for the termination of country stores and similar schemes is February 19. It is not thought that the enforcement of the law will involve any interference with the contest now being conducted by the National Amusement Company, as the prizes to be awarded on March 11 are not to be drawn for, but will be given to those disposing of the most tickets.

For Patriotic Lotteries.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, a barrister of Vancouver, has announced his intention to have the matter taken up with the government at Ottawa, with the object of having the statute amended so as to exclude lotteries held for patriotic purposes. Many articles are being raffled throughout Canada for the benefit of various funds connected with the war, and Sir Charles himself has just presented to the Patriotic Fund a limousine, on which it had been intended to sell chances at $2 each. Just how this matter will be viewed by the government is problematical, but it is a fact that much money has been collected in this way which under other conditions probably would not have been received at all.

EXPLAIN RAISE IN ADMISSION.

Winnipeg, Man.—Considerable adverse comment aroused by the recent raising of the admission price in Winnipeg theaters to 15 cents, has induced some of the local managers to give to the newspapers interviews justifying the raise, and stating the reasons therefor. A "Film Admirer" had written letters to the papers, giving an entirely unfair view of the advance in prices, and some of the managers decided that it would be the best policy to destroy the erroneous impression that had been created among many patrons.

W. P. Wilson, manager of the Lyceum, which was the first house to put the increased price into effect, stated that the film service in a first-class house costs about three times as much as it did three years ago. In addition to the usual expenses, there is now an extra war tax added to the regular duty on films, and this must be borne by the exhibitor. An extra tax on seating capacity is also paid. Mr. Wilson drew attention to the fact that the afternoon admission price still remains at ten cents, and also pointed out that 15 cents is the price generally charged in every city in Western Canada.

H. N. Jernberg, general manager of the Bijou and Province theaters, later said:

"The public today are continually clamoring for the best in filmdom and the moving picture theaters which have to meet the demand are under far greater expense than is realized. All our musicians, for instance, are union people, but the Province theater, in a desire to keep the best musicians on its staff, pays many of them more than the union scale. Speaking for my own two theaters, I want to say that we put off the increase as long as possible, but in order to keep our houses on a paying basis at all, the increase was absolutely necessary."

It is felt that this campaign of education by the exhibitors is the best possible solution of the problem, and it is expected that with a fuller understanding of the solution patrons will soon cease to object to the increased price.

W. F. Barrett, Universal's Winnipeg manager, who engineered the raise, reports that the half-dozen houses which have already gone to 15 cents are soon to be followed by several more.

Children's Special Shows.

Winnipeg.—The first of a series of special children's performances arranged by the Winnipeg Local Council of Women was given last Saturday at the Gaiety theater, and many children were on hand to enjoy the show. The pictures included a "Dreamy Dud" cartoon, "Children's Day at the Paris Zoo," "Scenes in Banff," and other similar subjects.

If these special performances continue as popular as expected, they will be carried on in various theaters in different parts of the city under the auspices of the Local Council. Members of the committee are always on hand to care for the younger children who may attend. The shows are to be continuous from 11 to 3, and constitute part of an effort to secure a better standard in the pictures shown for children.

Winnipeg Theater Reopens.

The Winnipeg theater in Winnipeg has been reopened by Manager Walker, it having been decided not to break in on the moving picture policy at the Walker theater for any except unusual attractions. A few shows, some of which have been gotten up locally, will be given at the Winnipeg, and it is stated that "The Birth of a Nation" will also play there on its return to the city.

Benefit Shows at Monarch Theater.

Edmonton, Alb.—Manager Allen of the Monarch theater in Edmonton recently assisted the Disraeli Club of that city in securing funds with which to construct a new club house. Members of the club sold tickets for the Thursday and Friday performances of "The Immigrant," with Valeska Surratt, and a percentage of the money so obtained was donated to the Club's building fund.

Against Overhanging Signs.

The sub-committee of the Winnipeg Board of Public Works appointed to consider the matter of electric signs, recently recommended that all signs which hang over the sidewalks should be taken down within fifteen months, and that the city electrician should rigidly enforce the existing by-laws covering their condition. The committee recommended also that the law department prepare the required by-law compelling property owners to remove the signs.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Heard at the Bluebird Office.

James E. Finch, manager of the Universal exchange in Vancouver, announced this week that he had just closed the largest contract for film service ever made with a single syndicate in British Columbia. The arrangements just completed include the showing of the new Blue Bird photoplays in Vancouver at the Colonial theater, under the management of Hector Quagliotti, and in Victoria at the Variety, controlled by L. J. Quagliotti, a brother of the Vancouver manager. These productions will be shown for a full week at each house, and although the date of the commencement of the service has not yet been fixed, it is stated that it will be in the near future.

Mr. Finch informed the WORLD man that the Blue Bird pictures will be released from the Vancouver office, and will be shown in this territory ahead of Calgary and other Alberta cities.

The Universal Broadway Features and their successors, the Red Feather Photoplays, will be transferred from the Variety in Victoria to the Romano, another house conducted by L. J. Quagliotti, and will be shown for half of each week, with a program of shorter Universal subjects for the other half.

The Variety has been closed during the present week, and is being completely renovated and redecorated. A special stage setting is being painted, and new poster frames will be installed in the lobby. The new decoration scheme includes the use of many potted palms and plants, and it is excepted that the house will be entirely transformed for the reopening next week. During the alterations "Graft" and other important pictures booked for the Variety are being shown at the Romano.

D. G. Walkley, manager of the Universal office in Calgary, left on February 12 for a trip to Toronto and New York, taken in connection with the Blue Bird productions and with a contemplated rearrangement of Universal releases in western Canada.

United Film Will Open Local Offices.

A letter just received by the WORLD correspondent from Henry Fischer, manager of the United Film Service, with headquarters at Toronto, states that this company contemplates establishing offices in Winnipeg and Vancouver some time next spring.

100 Alberta Picture Houses.

Statistics just compiled at Edmonton, Alberta, indicate that there are at present in that city 13 theaters licensed to show moving pictures, out of a total of 100 in the province. Fifty-four of these houses are divided between Edmonton, Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, with the remaining 46 distributed broadcast, and extending as far north as Peace River Crossing.

Ideas and Local Notes.

Nelson, B. C.—The Starland theater of this place has been holding a series of sleigh rides for the children of the town. If the weather on advertised sleigh-ride days is too severe, children holding tickets are admitted free to the matinee.

Winnipeg.—On a recent evening the entire proceeds of both night shows given at the Elmwood theater were turned over to the Elmwood branch of the Red Cross Society.

The Strand theater in Winnipeg last week began the showing of Paramount pictures in conjunction with vaudeville. The Lasky "Carmen" and Victor Moore in "Snobs" were the productions shown during the first week.

The Majestic theater in Winnipeg, newly decorated, has reopened with Mutual service.

Kamloops B. C.—A short time ago both the Opera House and the Empress theater at Kamloops, B. C., were charging 15 and 25 cents for evening performances. The Opera House cut to 10 and 15 cents, and the Empress has lately followed suit.

Your particular attention is directed to the following forthcoming releases of David Horsley productions:

"A Law Unto Himself," an extraordinary Western drama of an unusual type, picturized in five reels and featuring Crane Wilbur. Released February 28, as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

"The Heart of Tara," a thrilling and spectacular romance of India enacted in five reels by a select cast with Margaret Gibson, William Clifford and the Bostock animals. Released March 4, as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

"Going Up," a Cub Comedy of many humorous situations interspersed with thrilling moments, featuring *George Ovey. Released February 25.

Each of these productions presents a player, or players, recognized as drawing cards. The productions themselves —in respect to story, acting, photography, settings, etc.— reach a high standard of perfection. In booking them you are assured of pictures that attract patronage—and please.

For bookings apply to your Mutual exchange.

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending March 4 and March 11

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 1558, 1560, 1562.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Burglar's Dilemma, (Drama) (Biograph-Reissue No. 39) 20121
LUBIN—At the Doors of Doom (Drama) 20122
ESSANAY—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 6 (Two parts—Drama) .....
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 17, 1916 (Topical 20120
SELIG—The Grinning Skull (Three parts-Drama) .. 20116-7-8
VITAGRAPH—Her Bad Quarter of an Hour (Comedy-Drama) 20119

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—What Happened to Peggy (Two parts-Drama) 20126-7
ESSANAY—The Surprise House (Two parts—Drama) 20123-4
KALEM—Winning the Widow (Comedy) 20125

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Indian (Three parts-Drama) 20130-1-2
ESSANAY—Cartoon of City of London (Cartoon-Comedy) 20129
—A Scenic Subject on the Same Reel .. 20129
KALEM—A Riddle in Rascals (Comedy) 20128

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1916.

LUBIN—Her Wayward Sister (Three parts-Drama) . 20133-4-5
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 18, 1916 (Topical 20136
VIM—The Serenade (Comedy) 20137

FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1916.

KALEM—A Leap Year Wooing (Comedy) 20141
KNCKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Master Smiles (Three parts-Drama) 20138-9-40
VIM—The Artist's Model (Comedy) 20143
VITAGRAPH—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 12, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—Tubby Turns the Tables (Comedy).. 20142

SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1916.

ESSANAY—Beyond the Laws (Three parts-Drama) . 20144-5-6
KALEM—The Girl Telegrapher's Nerve (No. 69 of the Hazards of Helen "Railroad Series (Drama) 20151
LUBIN—Hamlet Made Over (Comedy) 20147
SELIG—The Uncut Diamond (Drama) 20152
VITAGRAPH—La Paloma (Three parts-Drama) (Broadway Star-Feature) 20148-9-50

General Film Company.

Advance Releases

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The House of Darkness (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 40).
ESSANY—The Strange Case of Mary Page, No. 7 (Two parts-Drama)
LUBIN—Ophelia (Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 19, 1916 (Topical).
SELIG—The Dream of Eugene Aram (Three parts—Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Pansy's Papas (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Mrs Dane's Danger (Unit Program—Four parts drama).
VITAGRAPH—Bittersweet (Unit Program—Comedy).

TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.

ESSANAY—The Intruder (Two parts-Drama).
KALEM—Maybe Moonshine (Comedy).
LUBIN—A Change of Heart (Two parts—Drama).

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Mystery of Orcival (Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 6 (Cartoon-Comedy).
KALEM—When Hubby Forgot (Farce- Comedy).

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.

LUBIN—Soldier Sons (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 20 1916 (Topical).
VIM—Bungles Elopement (Comedy).

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.

KALEM—Title Not Yet Announced.
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Slave of Coruption (3 parts—Drama)).
VIM—Their Wedding Day (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Beaned by a Beanshooter (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 13, 1916 (Topical).

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—A Man's Work (Three parts—Drama)
KALEM—A Race For Life (No. 70 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
LUBIN—Some Boxer (Comedy3.
SELIG—The Passing of Pete (Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Husks (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

Have you booked it?

The Three-Reel Biograph released March 1—totally different from anything you've had in months.

A BIOGRAPH SPECTACLE

A big story of love and sacrifice—the last stand of the Indians against the white man's tyranny.

THE INDIAN

A Special Department gives its entire attention to a correct list of releases.

¶ LAUGHTER INSURANCE

for your audiences is what you get with the new prints of the famous Biograph Comedies. Policy underwritten by Mack Sennett, Mabel Normand, Charles Murray, etc.

BIOGRAPH
QUALITY FILMS

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 E. 175TH STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Monday
March 6th

The House of Darkness

Directed by D. W. GRIFFITH

The drama of a ruined mind. For suspense and sincerity it has rarely been equaled.

Lillian Gish — Lionel Barrymore
Charles H. Mailes — Claire McDowell

The Biograph Re-issue

Wednesday
March 8th

The Mystery of Orcival

Directed by J. FARRELL MACDONALD

Perhaps the most celebrated of all detective mysteries—Emile Gaboriau's masterpiece.

Gretchen Hartman — Vera Sisson
Charles H. Mailes — G. Raymond Nye
Jack Mulhall — Charles Perley

The Three Reel Biograph

For casts and descriptions of all Biograph releases refer to your copy of PROGRAMS

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending March 4 and March 11

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 1558, 1560, 1562.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Her Greatest Story (Drama)	01228
L-KO—Dad's Dollars and Dirty Doings (Two parts Comedy)	01229
REX—No release this day.
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1916.
NESTOR—Cupid Trims His Lordship (Comedy)	01232
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Lords of High Decision, (Five-part—Drama)	01231
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 12 "The Milk Battle" (Two parts—Drama)	01248
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—Lord John's Journal No. 4 "The Eye of Hours" (Three parts—Drama)	01233
IMP—Some Heroes (Comedy)	01234
REX—No release this day.
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 8 (Topical)	01236
L-KO—Blue Blood But Black Skin (Two parts—Comedy)	01235
VICTOR—No release this day.
THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1916.
BIG-U—Shackles (Drama)	01238
JOKER—Love Laughs at the Law (Comedy)	01239
LAEMMLE—The Heart of Bonita (Two parts—Mexican—Drama)	01237
FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1916.
IMP—The Hoax House (Two parts—Comedy—Drama)	01240
NESTOR—The Lion's Breath (Comedy)	01242
REX—In the Heart of a Shell (Juvenile—Drama)	01241
SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1916.
BISON—The One Woman (Three parts—Smuggling —Dr)	01243
JOKER—No releases this day.
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work—No. 11—"To Arms" (Educational)	01244
SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 1916.
LAEMMLE—The Blackmailer (Drama)
L-KO—Gertie's Awful Fix (Comedy)
REX—Saved by a Song (Two parts—Drama)
MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.
NESTOR—Their Only Son (Comedy)	01250
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Target (Five parts—Drama)	01249
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 13—"The Powder Trust and the War (Two parts—Drama).	01266
TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—The Winning of Miss Construe (Three parts—Human Interest-Comedy-Drama)	01251
IMP—Sunlight and Shadows (Western—Drama)	01252
REX—No release this day.
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 10, (Topical)	01255
LAEMMLE—The Windward Anchor (Drama)	01253
L-KO—False Friends and Fire Alarms (Two parts—Comedy)	01254
THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Lavinia Comes Home (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama)	01256
POWERS—Warriors of the Air	01258
—A Romance of Toyland (Novelty)	01258
REX—The Dumb Bandit (Drama)	01257
FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.
IMP—The Doll Doctor (Two parts—Modern—Drama)	01259
NESTOR—When Lizzie Disappeared (Comedy)	01261
VICTOR—Their Act (Comedy—Drama)	01260
SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.
BISON—The Quarter Breed (Three parts—Western Drama)	01262
JOKER—No release this day.
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work, No. 12 (Educational)	01263

Mutual Film Corporation.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1916.
BEAUTY—Cooking His Goose (Comedy).
GAUMONT—See America First No. 24 (Scenic)	04508
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04508
VOGUE—The Candy Cook (Comedy)	04510
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—A Law Unto Himself (Centaur—Five parts—Western—Drama) (No. 74)
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Happy Masquerader (Three parts—Drama)	04511-2-3
FALSTAFF—Rustie Reggie's Record (Comedy)	04514
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1916.
BEAUTY—Johnny's Jumble (Comedy)	04518
THANHOUSER—What Doris Did (Three parts—Drama)	04515-6-7
THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Maude Muller Modernized (Comedy)	04520
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Embers, (American—Five parts—Sociological—Drama) (No. 75)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 61 (Topical)	04521
VOGUE—Title Not Yet Announced	04519
FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1916.
CUB—The Desperate Chance (Comedy)	04525
MUSTANG—Margy of the Foothills (Three parts—Western—Drama)	04522-3-4
SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Heart of Tara (Centaur—Oriental—Drama) (No. 76)
SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 1916.
BEAUTY—Dad's College Widow (Comedy)	04527
GAUMONT—See America First No. 25 (Scenic)	04526
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04526
VOGUE—All Balled Up (Comedy)	04528
MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—According to Law (Gaumont—Five parts—Sociological—Drama) (No. 77).
TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Silken Spider (Three parts—Society-Drama)	04529-30-1
FALSTAFF—Oscar The Oyster Opener (Comedy)	04532
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.
BEAUTY—The Gay Blade's Last Scrape (Comedy)	04536
THANHOUSER—The Cruise of Fate (Three parts—Society-Drama)	04533-4-5
THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Ambitious Awkward Andy (Comedy)	04538
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—True Nobility (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 78).
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 62 (Topical).	04539
VOGUE—Title not yet announced	04537
FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.
CUB—Title not yet announced	04543
MUSTANG—Curfew Corliss (Three parts—Western—Drama)	04540-1-2
SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Flight of the Duchess (Thanhouser—Five parts—Comedy-Drama) (No. 79)

EXTRA

Announcing the amazing new and wonderful UNIVERSAL Serial---"Peg O' The Ring"---to be released immediately after "GRAFT" which is now packing thousands of theatres weekly. Watch and Wait for further particulars on this new Serial unique which we promise will be the most colossal Serial Box Office attraction ever staged. The Leading Players---the number of episodes---etc., to be announced later. In the meantime don't even think of booking any other serial. Wait and Watch!

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Stories of the Films

ESSANAY.

THE HOUSE OF SURPRISE (Two Parts—Feb. 29).- The cast: Sammy Bennett, a millionaire's son (John Junior); Ruth Wilton, a wealthy bachelor girl (Elizabeth Burbridge).

Sammy Bennett, son of a millionaire, is chided by his attorney who tells him he has had no worldly experience. Sammy takes the lecture to heart and starts in search of adventure. Before long he is engaged in a fight. This one is followed by many more and finally he is loaded in a box car by two tramps after being knocked unconscious. He is put off the train and wanders to an unoccupied country home where he gains entrance and falls asleep on a couch. While he sleeps, Ruth Wilton, a wealthy bachelor girl, enters, who believes that every suitor is a fortune hunter, and who has fled from her city home to a newly acquired country place to escape the attentions of unwelcome suitors. She takes Sammy for a burglar and shoots him in the ankle. After doing so she repents and offers him a job as janitor when he recovers. She finds herself more than interested in him. The cook falls in love with him and finaly is discharged by her jealous employer. Sammy is then made cook, and it is while he is thus employed that he is discovered by his attorney and his identity made known to Ruth. She at last has found a man who is not a fortune hunter.

BEYOND THE LAW (Three Parts—March 4).—The cast: Rivers, the Snowburner (E. H. Calvert); Hattie MacGreggor (Marguerite Clayton); her father (Hugh E. Thompson); Shanty Moir (Jack Meredith).

Shanty Moir is the terror of "Fifty-mile" camp, a mining settlement in the great north country. He operates a gold mine, the location of which he keeps secret. By brute force he compels Roy MacGreggor, half owner of the mine, to do the work of a horse. He intends to kill him when the gold supply is exhausted. Hattie, MacGreggor's daughter, is rescued by Rivers, known as the Snowburner, at "Hell" camp. She and her uncle are searching for Shanty, whom they think has killed her father. After hearing the fate of MacGreggor, Rivers decides to locate the gold mine. Pretending to be a half wit, he goes to "Fifty-mile" camp where he meets Shanty and allows him to take him to the mine as a slave. After he has learned the location of the mine and found MacGreggor alive, he kills Shanty in a handtohand fight. Taking all the gold Shanty possessed, Rivers starts back to "Hell" camp with MacGreggor. When MacGreggor's daughter, Hattie, sees her father still alive, she throws her arms about River's neck and begs him never to leave her.

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK OF LONDON (March 1).—This is a split reel release, the first five hundred feet containing sketches of all the points of interest in London. The drawings were made by Vernon Howe Bailey, who has gained a wide reputation in this country and abroad for this particular line of work. Mr. Bailey pictures the Tower of London where centuries ago many of the noblemen and aristocrats were executed and which is used today as a prison. He also draws the Bank of England, London Bridge, St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminister Abbey, the House of Parliament, Buckingham Palace, where the King of England resides, the Thames embankment, showing the Hotels Cecil and Savoy which are so well known among Americans, Trafalgar Square, the National Museum and many other interesting views. These drawings have a great educational value as the history of the various spots is inserted in subtitles.

The remaining five hundred feet contains scenes taken of the winter sports in Montreal.

"THE BRIDESMAID'S SECRET" (Two parts—Feb. 22.) The Cast: John Dempster (John Lorenz); Muriel Carroll, his fiancee (Marion Murray); Hazel Field, her schoolmate (Firtzi Ridgeway).

Muriel Carroll writes to her school chum, Hazel Field, asking her to come to the city to be bridesmaid at her wedding. Hazel decides to go. On the day of her departure for the city it so happens that John Dempster, Muriel's fiance, that evening is to give a stag party to bid farewell to his bachelor days. Hazel's train is three hours late and Muriel misses her at the station. Unaccustomed to the ways of the city, Hazel strolls into the street, where she summons a cabman to take her to Muriel's home. Instead she is taken to a vice resort and held captive in a room.

Late in the evening the boys at Dempster's decide to paint the town. John Dempster, while intoxicated, goes to the resort where Helen is held prisoner, and is ushered into the room with her. Never having seen her before, he attempts to attack her. He falls and strikes his head. When he gains consciousness Hazel shows him Muriel's letter and begs him to help her. He agrees to on the condition that the happenings of the night never be spoken of. She agrees. The next time she sees him is at his wedding. She then understands the meaning of the condition, but her lips are sealed.

"CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL," No. 5 (Cartoon by Wallace A. Carlson. Feb. 23.) This is a split reel release containing five hundred feet of animated cartoons, part of which are a burlesque on the topics of the day, and the remainder one of the adventures of Dreamy Dud. Among the topics reviewed this week is a close-up view of Arthur Anthracite, candidate for the Alabama legislature, who makes a stand for wide-open chicken coops a great issue in his campaign; also General E. Speaking of the English army, who was recently decorated by King George for capturing a flock of weeny-wursts from the German commissary department. President Wilson and William Jennings Bryan are shown in some of their characteristic poses while hurling hot shots at each other on the question of preparedness. Probably the subject that will hold most interest at this particular time, when we are sadly in need of well-trained soldiers, is the performance of Luke McGlunk, son of old man McGlunk, champion pistol shot of Cacti, Ariz. Give him a good horse pistol and a few big rocks and he can play billiards with bullets. Luke posed especially for the Canimated Nooz. The remaining five hundred feet contain pictures of the daring ice sports in the vicinity of Quebec, Canada. This is an extremely entertaining release.

"THE DESPOILER" (Three Parts—Feb. 26). The cast: Bruce Cameron (Bryant Washburn); Ben Cameron, his father (Darwin Karr); Richard Warner (Edward Arnold); Mary, his wife (Warda Howard).

Ben Cameron, widowers, is rejected by Mary Rodgers, who marries Richard Warner. Cameron brings up his young son, Bruce, himself, and, prospering through his mine operations, soon finds his offspring a dissolute spendthrift. When he catches the boy trying to rob his safe he turns him out. Then Bruce seeks still worse companions and becomes known to the police as "The Shadow." Mary works behind a counter, as Richard makes little as a book keeper. "The Shadow," not knowing the sales woman as the girl his father desired to wed, thrusts a piece of lace into her cloak when nearly caught stealing it himself. Then he denounces her, and she, fearing such an accusation would cost her the position, pays for the silence. When she could stand it no longer, Cameron, the mine owner, and her former sweetheart, comes to town and taking advantage of an old promise that he would always be ready to help, she appeals to him. When "The Shadow" comes to collect again from Mary, he finds Cameron—his father. The son fearing his father would kill him rather than see him such a criminal, flourishes a pistol and is shot in a grapple. "You have killed 'The Shadow,' Mr. Cameron," the detectives congratulate him. In his anguish the millionaire collapses. Mary and Richard, unknowingly, are happy.

The First Moving Picture Journal in Europe

The Kinematograph Weekly

The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—

The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

If You Want Light of Brightest Candle Power

TransVerteR

Will Supply It.
It will Deliver the Goods.
THE HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
Dept. W. Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

VIM.

THE SERENADE (March 2). Schmitte, the leader of a street band is the proud father of Florence whose love is eagerly sought after by Plump and Runt, both members of the band. The fickle Florence not caring for either one, as her affections are centered around Harry Hick, determines to create trouble between Plump and Runt by deliberately making love to Runt. Inflamed by jealousy when he sees his little rival cuddled up in Florence's arms, Plump chases Runt out of the apartment by the aid of his bass horn. During their day's work on the streets the band is invited by a kind-hearted saloon keeper to refresh themselves at his bar. He tells them that they can have all the liquid refreshment that their musical instruments will hold.

This delights Plump who is the possessor of the bass horn, but infuriates Runt who plays the clarinet, hence he is unable to get enough beer to even wet his lips. Chagrined by this experience Runt enlists the aid of his fellow bandsmen with the exception of Plump and serenades Florence at her home. Plump also attempts to serenade the sweet miss but finding his solitary efforts unavailing against the united forces of Runt and the other members of the band, basely attempts to bribe the men to desert Runt and come to his assistance. Just as the serenade is about to commence, both Plump and Runt are dismayed to see the fickle Florence at the window enjoying the performance while reclining in the arms of her lover Hick. At this moment, a neighbor who is unable to appreciate the musical entertainment furnished by Plump and Runt, throws water upon them which landing in Plump's big horn just at the moment when Plump is blowing his hardest.

The result is that Florence and her lover are drenched by the blast which showers upon them, to the delight of Plump and Runt who agree to forget their rivalry and be friends once more.

"THE ARTIST'S MODEL (March 3). Pokes, the porter poses for Ethel, a struggling young artist. Ethel unfortunately is very short of ready money and in consequence is asked by her landlord to vacate her room at once. As a last desperate resort, Ethel tries to sell a painting of Pokes posing as an archer, but the rebuff handed to her by the critical and unsympathetic art dealer, is the final blow to her spirit, so she resolves to make a get-a-way from the apartments.

She conspires with Pokes to smuggle her trunk from the studio and when the latter comes to remove the trunk he unwittingly locks inside it, the landlord, who, while inspecting its contents and hearing his wife's voice on the corridor outside, had taken refuge in the trunk. Pokes starts to carry the trunk to the railroad station where Jabbs, the baggage man is anxiously awaiting the arrival of a trunk containing a shipment of gold consigned to a local bank.

Some crooks, who have learned of the expected shipment of gold mistake Ethel's trunk for that of the treasure chest, overpower Jabbs, and load the trunk with the unfortunate landlord inside, upon a truck which they have commandeered. Upon Ethel's arrival, Jabb's plight is discovered, the alarm given and the pursuit of the fleeing crooks is started. The police follow the desperate thieves and overtaking them through the help of Pokes and Jabbs finally succeed in releasing the landlord from his perilous position.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

"THE MASTER SMILES" (Three Parts—March 3). It is a play in which is seen Satan, smiling a smile of triumph, as the helpless

MOSS FILMS

Success Breeds Success

FIFTEEN TERRITORIES SOLD ON SIGHT

To Six of the Shrewdest State Rights Buyers in the World

B. S. MOSS'

LATEST SENSATIONAL HIT

ONLY AUTHORIZED VERSION. ALL INFRINGEMENTS PROSECUTED

"ONE DAY"

(IN FIVE PARTS)

Sold

JONES, LINICK & SCHAEFER, CHICAGO.
Illinois and Indiana.

ESSEMAR FILM CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.
Northern New York.

AUSTRALASIAN FILM CO., LTD.
Bought Australia and New Zealand.

EASTERN FEATURE FILM CO., BOSTON.
Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut.

L. SANTIKOS, WACO, TEXAS.
Texas, Oklahoma.

AMALGAMATED PHOTO FEATURE BOOKING CORP., NEW YORK CITY.
Greater New York, Northern New Jersey.

Will break all box office records.

CRITICS UNANIMOUS IN PRAISE

The story is advanced in a comprehensible manner—Miss Iver is charming; she is a fortunate choice as the heroine.—Moving Picture World.

"One Day" scores a screen triumph.—Evening Journal.

A justly pleasing picture—the parts handled exceptionally well—the action moves in the right tempo—the scenes are beautiful.—Morning Telegraph.

The picture is one of the best released this year. Does not need the reputation of "Three Weeks." It is able to stand on its own feet.—Motion Picture News.

A picture full of thrills that will hold the audience in a state of expectancy through reel after reel until the final climax is reached, bringing an end to a very enjoyable story.—The Billboard.

"THE SALAMANDER"

OWEN JOHNSON'S GREATEST SUCCESS

A few remaining States which were held for a price still open.

COMING SOON "THE UNDERTOW" COMING SOON

BY EUGENE WALTER
Author of "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," Etc.

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY

MOSS FILMS

human beings work out their destiny in the glare of the White-lights.

The home of wealthy Mr. Clements is in shadows; the wife, a society leader, spends her time at the bridge table among friends, while the husband slowly lured by the smile of the governess, is won. The wife discovers the husband's attentions to the governess, threatens both, and declares she will divorce her husband. Clements stops the payment on checks given the wife for gambling debts, tells her to divorce him if she will, but pay her many debts. The desperate financial conditions of the wife, soften her, and things move on as before.

Fifteen years later we see Lucy, the baby of the Clements' home, now a charming girl, thirsting for the cup which had made her mother's life so bitter. Jack Goodwin, an ambitious miner from the West visits New York with his millions in wealth. Clement is anxious for Lucy to marry him, but Lucy, enticed by Francis Decker, a designing gambler, is lured to the cabaret, then to the office of a justice where they are married, Lucy hardly realizing the step she is taking.

Lucy brings her husband home, is cast out, and her downward path is steep. After a year of wretched existence, her baby dies, while she is unconscious in the emergency hospital. The governess, having received her downward push in the Clement mansion, is in the depths. To her Lucy's miserable husband turns. Later in a rough den, Lucy discovers her husband dead, circumstances hold her, and the courtroom scene shows many possibilities in the turn of the drama. Features portray guilt, innocence, revenge and despair. The guilty is left for the onlooker to select, while the scene fades, leaving Satan still with his grin of gratification. "So my play goes on. Who wins?—Never mind. Just watch the many more lured into the losing game by my master smile."

KALEM.

HAM THE DIVER (Feb. 22).—The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); Miss Flirt (Ethel Teare); Mr. Newlywed (Jack MacDermott); Mrs. Newlywed (Juanita Sponsler). Written by Ham and Bud. Produced by William Beaudine.

Ham gets a job as a diver, while Bud is to be his assistant, pumping the air and hoisting him back to earth again. When Ham goes below Bud's job is irksome enough but when pretty Miss Flirt happens along it is entirely forgotten. The things that happen to Ham—abandoned by Bud—make a very enjoyable comedy.

EARNING HIS SALT (Second of the Ethel Teare Comedies—Feb. 23).—The cast: Durand (Anthony North); Jack (Jack MacDermott); Jean (Ethel Teare); Denton (Victor Rottman); Grace (Louise La Salle). Author, Hamilton Smith.

Jack likes the ladies, and, in addition he doesn't do enough work at his father's office to "earn his salt." When his sweetheart, Jean, urges that he be more serious he quits his father's employ and puts a "To Hire" sign on his automobile. With Jack in the unpleasant position of a public chauffeur all sorts of mix-ups follow, giving Jean an opportunity to kill two birds with one stone, curing him of his fickleness and frivolity.

THE NIGHT WATCH (Feb. 25).—The cast: Dr. Crawford (Robert Ellis); Edward Hawley (Richard Purdon); Ralph Hawley (Arthur Albertson); Ruth Crawford (Dallas Tyler). Author, Howard Irving Young. Produced by Robert Ellis.

A weak-willed youth lying at death's door, a physician struggling grimly to kindle into flame the last remaining spark of life, only to suddenly learn from the lips of his own erring daughter that this youth is the cause of his life's greatest sorrow—there is the tense situation on which this single reel drama is based. Through the long night watch the physician sways between the grip of his own bitter feelings toward this life entrusted to him and the honor of his calling.

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE No. 11 (Feb. 7.)

Montreal, Quebec.—Under the auspices of the Delorimer Driving Club, the winter race meet opens here with the largest attendance and best contest seen in recent years.

Miami, Fla.—Shark steaks will probably be plentiful here now that Captain Welch has broken the season's record by catching a shark weighting 650 pounds and measuring eight feet long.

Piraeus, Greece.—King Constantine breaking all precedents in a democratic interview with American newspaper correspondents appeals to American sense of fair play in behalf of Greece.

Selig-Tribune Feature Picture:

A Moro baby's daily bath
In ceremony's lacking—
He strays from hygiene's cleanly path
But he has his mother's backing.

Corpus Christi, Tex.—Patrons of the Selig-Tribune who, a short time ago, saw the gas well running wild here, will be interested in seeing it again—now on fire!

Cleveland, Ohio.—Go-Heah-Doongwa, a prince of the Mohawk tribe and two Mohawk chiefs reach here after traveling one thousand miles to present a sweet grass basket to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Corea, Wash.—Four dead, two missing and twenty-four injured, comes as a result of an avalanche which sweeps two coaches of the Great Northern train off the tracks and down the mountain side.

Lynn, Mass.—Soccer football as played here, furnishes plenty of exercise for the husky members of the many rival teams in this vicinity.

Progresso, Tex.—Fifteen soldiers of Battery D, 4th Artillery, led by a Lieutenant across the Rio Grande, to rescue two comrades captured by Mexicans, lose four men by drowning.

Long Key, Fla.—The houseboat "Everglades" bearing Andrew Carnegie, the Pittsburg millionaire, and the tender "U. S. A." carrying Mr. Carnegie's physician and secretary, arrive here.

Boston, Mass.—The skating furore which has swept the north this winter strikes Boston hard, and brings to the Boston arena all the plain and fancy skaters in the city.

Waukegan, Ill.—The first Lady of the Land, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, accompanying the President, finally consents to pose the first time for any motion picture, for the Selig-Tribune.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 12 (Feb. 10.)

Corpus Christi, Tex.—Unloading a bale of cotton weighing 541 pounds, proves an easy task for Edward Brannen, a modern "Samson" who lives near here.

Miami, Fla.—Society debutantes do some high and fancy diving in the swimming pool at the Royal Palms Hotel here.

San Francisco, Calif.—While icy blasts blew elsewhere, old and young alike enjoy delightful summer weather in Golden Gate Park.

At Sea Guatanamo Bay.—President Wilson's statement that "the navy is now prepared for immediate war" is amply demonstrated at target practice here.

Marshfield, Mass.—"Sandy" Sherman has set aside here 50 acres of his estate as a "bird refuge" with the result that thousands of wild fowl now rest here undisturbed.

Near Strassburg, Germany.—These wagon loads of supplies on the way to the front seem to refute the rumor current in some sections that German resources are at a low ebb.

Quincy, Mass.—This large monument in honor of the heroes who, when the "Titanic" sank gave their lives to save others, will, when completed, stand in Potomac Park, Washington, D. C.

Aldershot, England.—England's preparedness for a prolongation of hostilities is shown in this enormous quantity of munitions.

Hickman, Ky.—With this whole section inundated by the swollen waters of the Mississippi, railway travel is almost entirely discontinued and transportation is by means of boats and rafts.

Selig-Tribune Feature Picture:

The ostrich plumes his blooming plume
With a contemplative shudder;
He knows when he is steered around,
His plume end is his rudder!

Davenport, Ia.—Observation platform speeches, thirty minutes apart, all day long, form the greater portion of President Wilson's strenuous preparedness campaign through Iowa.

"THE GRINNING SKULL" (Three parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Madame Ward Howe (Eugenie Besserer); Donald Harvey (Lewis Cody); Winnifred Howe (Virginia Kirtley); Dorothy Kellog (Marion Warner); Rev. Giles Kellog (Fred Hearne); Charles Desmond (Leo Pierson); John Dermond (Richard Morris). Directed by George O. Nichols. Written by W. E. Wing.

Donald Harvey is engaged in the conducting of a mission in a large city which is supported by the idle rich. Madame Ward Howe and her daughter Winnifred, visit the mission frequently, and so it is that Winnifred is attracted by Donald, particularly when it is rumored that Donald is to possess a lot of money.

Later it is discovered that Harvey had been a child of the slums, and he is cast aside by the House. The Rev. Gilles Kellog, who had been the head of the Mission, however, defends the young man even when he is threatened with the loss of his church. As it is, he is compelled to close the Mission.

Then comes the San Francisco earthquake, and Donald, who has thoughts of his Mission, staggers back there, and is later rescued from the falling timbers. After Donald has recovered an influential capitalist, who was killed in the earthquake, through his will in the hands of an attorney, confesses that Donald is his only son. Then it is that the sycophants return, but it is without avail, for he takes his love to Dorothy Kellog, the minister's daughter, who helped befriend him.

"THE UNCUT DIAMONDS" (March 4). The cast: Jen (Fritzi Brunette); Chuck Wilson (Edw. J. Piel); John Grayson (Frank Clark); Reina Grayson (Lillian Clark). Written by Emma Belle. Produced by Wm. Robert Daly.

Jen, a young girl, with a long criminal career, has been placed in jail because of her work. There she meets Wilbur Gordon, assistant district attorney. Reina Grayson, Gordon's sweetheart, comes to spend an hour in the court room and is impressed with Jen. Through the instrumentality of the district attorney and his sweetheart, Jen receives employment in the home of John Grayson, as a maid to Reina.

Jen is visited by Chuck Wilson, a former crook. That night a large number of uncut diamonds disappear. Of course, censure is attached to Jen and Chuck Wilson because of former criminal records. Then Wilson tells his story. He says that John Grayson while walking in his sleep, gave the diamonds to Wilson asking him to care for them and that Wilson placed them in a vase. The diamonds are discovered in the vase, and Jen and her lover are exonerated.

VITAGRAPH.

"HER BAD QUARTER OF AN HOUR" (Feb. 28.) The cast: Lillian (Lillian Walker); Evart (Evart Overton); Milly (Lillian Burns); Her Brother (Robby Connelly); Her Sister (Helen Connelly). Author—Anne Maxwell. Produced by Courtlandt Van Deusen.

Lilian awaits at dusk the calling of her sweetheart, Evart, who has said he has a special question to ask. After watching him come up the steps, she opens the hall door and is horrified to see him greeted by her widowed cousin, Milly (who has just announced her intention of getting married again), and disappear within the door of her apartment. Lillian jumps to the conclusion that she has been jilted, and during the next few minutes undergoes keen mental suffering.

Shortly afterward Evart knocks at Lillian's door, secures admittance and, to her intense surprise, proposes to her immediately. When she gets her breath, she asks him about Milly and, now understanding her strange actions, Evart laughs heartily, then explains that Milly is to marry a friend of his and had asked him to act as best man. With a happy sigh of relief Lillian comes into Evart's arms.

TUBBY TURNS THE TABLES (March 3.)—The cast: Tubby (Hughie Mack); Stenographer (Adele De Garde); First Crook (Bert Binns); Second Crook (George Binns); Banker (Billy Whitney). Authors, Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker. Produced by Lawrence Semon.

Long out of a job, Tubby, short and fat, but very active, is delighted to be given a job at a vacuum cleaning office. The manager gives him a portable vacuum outfit and tells him to go to the address on a card and "clean up." The machine is a very powerful one and Tubby nearly "cleans out" the manager's office when he accidentally turns the lever. About this time two crooks, having read of a wealthy banker's intention to distribute his fortune to craritable organizations, decide to get in on the "graft."

(Continued on page 1530.)

Irvine Movie Mascot

$1.50—Postpaid—$1.50

ASH TRAY

PIN TRAY

Paper Weight

Auto Ornament

REDUCED Because:

The GREAT DEMAND for this POPULAR NOVELTY has warranted the making of machinery to turn them out by the thousand, thereby reducing the cost to manufacture.

CLARKE IRVINE

305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

EL DORADO FEATURES

(BRUCE F. BUNDY)

PRESENT THEIR PREMIER RELEASE

THE IMPERSONATION

IN FIVE REELS

Featuring that Charming Bit of Femininity

MISS NEVA GERBER

ASSISTED BY SUCH WELL KNOWN SCREEN ARTISTS AS LAMAR JOHNSTONE—REX DOWNS—MAY CRUZE
AND OTHERS OF EQUAL NOTE

Using the European war as a background the author has succeeded in evolving a plot which, while embracing the leading features of the great conflict, does not give offense to any of the participants.

In the role of Rhoda Lyons, a western girl who is studying abroad when the war breaks and unwillingly drawn into the maelstrom of conflicting forces, Miss Gerber combines the daintiness of innocent girlhood with the intense dramatic action of the western character, which seeks obstacles for the sheer joy of overcoming them.

Release date will be announced shortly

Address all inquiries to HARRIS L. FORBES, Managing Director

EL DORADO FEATURE FILM CO.

Studio and Executive Offices, 40 West Mountain St., Pasadena, Cal.

(Continued from page 1528.)

Disguised as philanthropists, they call on the banker, who is just about to hand over the money when Tubby, who has been sent to that address, arrives with his double-action vacuum cleaner. Accidentally turning the lever, the machine pulls off the disguises of the crooks at the same time attracting the huge pile of money lying on the table. The crooks leap for the table just as the last bill flies through the window into the next office, where the machine is, and then hold up the banker. They see Tubby and the girl making off with the bag which holds the money, and one of them takes a shot at him, smashing the pipe in his mouth, and in retaliation Tubby hurls a milk bottle which the crook ducks and it knocks the banker out cold.

The vacuum cleaner attracts the pistol and Tubby tries his marksmanship, and succeeds in smashing the telephone receiver. Then, while one crook pursues Tubby through the offices up to the roof and over the tops of several office buildings, the other pursues the girl, who jumps into the vault and slams the door. Tubby and the first crook leap from the roof of the building, landing in the midst of an auto load of cops summoned by the resuscitated banker. The other crook applies dynamite to the safe and touches it off. The first crook is jailed and Tubby arrives at the office just as the safe explodes. The girl survives and hands back the money to the banker, while the second crook is pulled out more dead than alive from underneath the huge form of Tubby.

On the same reel with the foregoing is a short entertaining little novelty showing the remarkable friendships formed between animals and birds occasionally, when ordinarily they would be the worst of enemies. It is called "Odd Acquaintances."

LA PALOMA (Broadway Star Features—Three Parts—March 4).—The cast: Bettina (Mary Anderson); Manuel, her father (George Stanley); Stella (Corinne Griffith); Balzac her father (Otto Lederer); Robert Harley, factory owner (Jack Sherman) Author, Daisy Eloise Smith. Produced by William Wolbert.

Believing that, under the American flag, there is liberty, justice and work for every man, Manuel, a Spaniard, with his daughter, Bettina, starts for America via the steerage. Manuel has a great habit of constantly whistling "La Paloma," a Spanish air. Before landing, Robert Harlow, a wealthy factory owner, visits the steerage, sees and desires Bettina, and gives Manuel his card, saying he will give them both work when they land.

At the factory, Bettina is taught her work by Stella, daughter of the chair-mender, Balzac. Harlow has loved and tired of Stella, and now turns his attentions to Bettina. She does not understand the meaning of his little favors and when she wishes to purchase a long-coveted necklace, she innocently asks Harlow if he will lend her the money. He tells her he has not the money at hand but if she will come to his home he will get it for her. She does so, and meanwhile, Manuel, who has been well treated by Harlow, decides to bring a little present to "the boss," as an evidence of his appreciation.

Harlow locks the girl in his room and attempts to force his caresses upon her. Suddenly she hears the familiar strains of "La Paloma" and calls for help. Manuel hears it and, hurling the flower pot he is carrying through the window, bursts into the room. Harlow, however, cooly announces that the girl has come for money, and threatens to call the police for Manuel's breaking in. The Spaniard turns to Bettina for an explanation and she, fearing more trouble, makes light of the affair. They leave the house, and Harlow, going to the window, is mysteriously shot.

Policemen hear the shot and finding the body with the Spaniard's flower pot smashed on the floor, arrest Manuel for the murder. Stella, meanwhile, leaving a written confession with her father, explaining why she killed Harlow, dies by her own hand. Then follows a supreme struggle in the old chair-mender's soul as to whether he shall blacken his daughter's name by giving up the confession or let an innocent girl suffer the death penalty. Eventually he does the right thing in time to save Bettina and her father from the web of circumstantial evidence, and all ends happily.

BIOGRAPH.

"THE BURGLAR'S DILEMMA (Reissue Feb. 28.) The cast: The author (Lionel Barrymore); His brother (Henry Walthall); His friend (Lillian Gish); The burglar (Robert Harron); The doctor (Charles H. West).

The novelist's brother, an author, is jealous of his success, and, having partaken too freely of wine, provokes a quarrel, in the course of which he strikes the other down. Bending over the body, he is horrified to find that he can elicit no response to his frantic efforts at resuscitation. Panic-stricken, he flees from the room. The servant has gone for the night, and he is alone in the house.

Suddenly he hears a sound and, stealing behind a curtain, sees a figure enter by a window. The newcomer is a boy, victim of a burglar, who is waiting outside the window through which he has forced his tool to climb. The boy enters the darkened room where the body lies on the floor, and the guilty man, with sudden inspiration, locks him in, then runs out to summon the police. The electric torch in the boy's hand falls upon the corpse-like face, and after investigation of the body the young burglar recoils in terror. When he finds that he cannot escape from the room, he seeks to hide himself from the police, whom he hears outside the door. They capture him, however, and put him through the third degree, while the guilty man stands by and permits another to be accused of his crime.

In the other room an ambulance doctor is working over the body. Suddenly the door opens and the "dead" man appears, led by the physician. The unhappy boy, on the verge of confessing to save himself from further torture, gives a foolish laugh or relief; the guilty man stares; the police and the doctor leave the house. With the enormity of his sin before him, the culprit shuns his brother's accusing eyes, but finally permits himself to accept forgiveness. The boy, for a time free from the clutches of the burglar, is living honestly when his evil genius again crosses his path. A policeman interferes, however, and he is free to live honestly thereafter.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO PEGGY" (Two parts—Feb. 29.)—The cast: Peggy (Viola Smith); Jack (Jose Ruben); Tessie (Claire McDowell).

By the will of an aunt Peggy is made her heiress, providing she marries Jack, the son of an old friend. Peggy is at college while Jack is studying law with an uncle and as neither of them has seen the other, each, of course, is not keen for the arrangement. To bring them together, Jack's mother invites Peggy to spend the week-end at their house, writing to Jack to be present for the same period.

Jack starts for his mother's home in his run-about, while Peggy leaves by train. In the same village with the college serving as a maid of all work, is Tessie, a girl who needs watching. The mistress having left her jewels carelessly about, Tessie appropriates them and prepares to make a get-away. After she is gone the woman discovers the loss with evidences of Peggy being the thief, telephones to the police. The only description she has of her is dark complexion, wearing a white coat. Tessie takes the same train as Peggy. A halt is made at a meal station where Jack happens to arrive, he stopping for lunch as do also Peggy and Tessie, Peggy hanging her coat up alongside of Tessie's. Tessie, finishing her lunch first, cannot resist the tempton to "lift" Peggy's coat, not only because of its value, but also because it will give her a better chance for an escape, as the white coat would prove an absolute identification. In the coat Tessie finds letters, giving the details of Peggy's errand and decides to make use of them, when she sees through the window of the station that Peggy is likely to be detained through the mix-up, until the train has left.

Jack who happens to be there goes to the rescue of the girl, when she hasn't money to pay for her check, her purse having been in her coat; also for seeing that she has sufficient money to buy a ticket to take the next train, he being gallant enough not to disclose his identity, so they are both still ignorant of each other's destination. Tessie is met at the station and, of course, welcomed as Peggy. Jack, when he arrives, is introduced to Tessie as Peggy.

In the meantime, the officers have apprehended Peggy as the woman described in the telegram, she wearing the white coat. At her persistent appeal, they telephone to Jack's mother, who to satisfy the detective, requests him to bring the girl on to their home. Tessie, who is upstairs, overhears the telephone conversation and decides to move, and she hurriedly re-packs her grip, taking along some of the mother's possessions, and makes her escape through the window, just as Jack and his mother enter the room, with the intention of questioning her. From the window Jack sees Tessie jump into his machine and start off at high speed. He turns and rushes down the stairs into his mother's machine, which stands outside. It is a chase through several streets, Tessie in good lead, until a railroad crossing banked with a freight train stops her progress. Finding Jack gaining on her, with a motorcycle cop in the rear, who has followed both, intending to hold them up for speeding, she jumps from the machine, making her way across the fields. After a hurried explanation from Jack the policeman joins Jack in the chase. She is caught and brought back to the house where the mix-up is cleared and Tessie is carried off by the detective.

The prospect of an alliance with Peggy is as delightful to Jack as it was repugnant when he thought it would be Tessie.

"THE INDIAN" (Three parts—March 1.) In the West the General of the frontier garrison is ordered to Washington, and leaves Lieutenant Sterling in command. Sterling's little daughter, Gladys, is lonely and pines for a companion. The invasion of the white settlers arouses the Indians, and so they decide to war on the whites. War Eagle, the chief, takes leave of his twin sons, Blue Feather and Red Feather, before the battle. The white settlers are wiped out, but the troops under Lieutenant Sterling, drive the Indians to their village where the torch is applied to complete the rout of the red men.

Blue Feather is picked up by Lieutenant Sterling wounded and carried to the garrison. Little Gladys Sterling now finds in Blue Feather the playmate she wished for. Later, on the scene of the devasted Indian village, War Eagle and his son, Red Feather, vow vengeance.

Years later, in Washington, we now find Blue Feather grown up as the adopted son of General Sterling, still a companion to Gladys. Blue Feather is suspicious of Allan Leach and John Riggles, who seek an Indian agency appointment, at the disposal of General Sterling. Finding that his foster-father favors Leach and Riggles, Blue Feather is so disappointed that he decides to rejoin his regiment in the West at once.

War Eagle heads an Indian delegation to interview General Sterling regarding the Indian agency appointment, and Red Feather accompanies him. When War Eagle learns that General Sterling is the officer who led in the destruction of the Indian village years before, where the Chief left Blue Feather for dead, he urges Red Feather to kill Sterling, calling the latter the murderer of Blue Feather. Red Feather refuses and leaves, much impressed with Gladys, after she promises to prove that his brother lives. Calling to bid good bye to the "White Lily," as he styles Gladys, Red Feather is shown a photograph of Blue Feather in his army uniform. Red Feather leaves for the West, a firm friend of General Sterling and Gladys.

The Indians now leave for the West, as do Leach and Riggles, who have secured the Indian agency appointment. Now located at the Indian agency in the West, Leach and Riggles unlawfully sell Indian supplies to the white settlers. The Indians rise up, drive Leach and Riggles into the hills in hiding, and destroy the agency buildings. Blue Feather receives word from General Sterling that he is coming from the Garrison in the adjoining country to investigate the agency troubles, and orders Leach and Riggles under arrest. The Indians, determined to avenge their agency wrongs by warring on the soldiers, are stopped by Red Feather, who holds that the agents and not the troops are to blame. General Sterling arrives upon the scene accompanied by his daughter, Gladys, and when they are near the fort, Gladys is seized by Leach, who feels certain that the Indians will be blamed for her abduction—thus bringing on war between the Indians and the soldiers, during which he and Riggles can make their escape. To further their scheme, Leach and Riggles blow up the stockade. Riggles loses his nerve, determines to free Gladys and escape. Riggles and Gladys are caught by Leach, who drags Gladys back to their rendezvous.

Red Feather attempts to rescue Gladys and engages Leach in a fierce knife fight. Riggles informs General Sterling and the troops, who arrive just as Red Feather overcomes his adversary. Leach tries to kill Gladys, but Red Feather springs before her and receives the bullet. Red Feather throws Leach to his death over a precipice and then dies. Blue Feather arrives at this point to find his brother dead. Peace is assured between the Indians and the whites by the sacrifice of the red men, while Gladys declares that she loves Blue Feather—the brother of "The Indian."

LUBIN.

"AT THE DOORS OF DOOM" Feb. 28.) The cast: Jim Frayne, young civil engineer (L. C. Shumway); Mary Clews, his sweetheart (Velma Whitman); John Clews, her father (R. M. Wells); Frank Green, city engineer (J. A. Morley); Brockton Poole, steel manufacturer (Melvin Mayo). Written by Robert E. Rinehart. Produced by Leon D. Kent.

Jim Frayne, a young engineer in the employ of the city, and Mary Clews, the daughter of a telegraph magnate, have been sweethearts from schooldays, but Mary's father objects to the attachment and wishes Mary to wed Brockton Poole, a steel manufacturer, who is a bidder for the steel contract of the huge Skull canon steel siphon. Through bribery of the city engineer, Frank Green, and the friendship of Mary's father, who is on the board to let the contract, Poole wins. He and Green ship underweight siphons where they are installed unwittingly by Jim, who is in charge of the construction.

Mary's father dies, and Poole urges her to wed him in accordance with her father's wishes. Jim meanwhile suspects the underweight steel and has the acceptance held up. Mary breaks with Poole, and to renew her association with Jim, she secures the Skull canon telegraph

4 IMPORTANT PRODUCTIONS NOW READY

Famous Plays by Great Authors and Stars of Unquestioned Popularity, Produced on a Lavish Scale and Now Available on

State Rights Basis

OWEN DAVIS' BIG SUCCESS
"DRIFTWOOD"
With VERA MICHELENA and A SPLENDID SUPPORTING CAST

MAGNIFICENT "OCEAN FILM"
STAGED BY MARSHALL
FARNUM AT A COST OF $30,000.00

A NOVEL
Raver Film
SURE TO PLEASE
THE MASSES
EVERYWHERE

JAMES J. CORBETT AND PAUL GILMORE
In "The Other Girl"
By AUGUSTUS THOMAS
Author of "Arizona," "The Witching Hour," etc.

WM. J. LOCKE'S BEST SELLER
"The Fortunate Youth"
With WILMUTH MERKYL and LILLIAN LESLIE

AN INTENSE DRAMA FILM
TEEMING WITH BIG SITUATIONS AND SURPRISES.

A VIVID PORTRAYAL OF THE FAMOUS BOOK
"FRANKENSTEIN"

MARY SHELLEY'S CLASSIC
"Life Without Soul"
With Percy Standing and Lucy Cotton

NAME YOUR STATES--GET QUOTATIONS

ADDRESS

RAVER FILM CORP. SOLE DISTR'S
110 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

station, which she is fitted to hold. She and Jim, sweethearts again, use the great siphon as a telegraph cable, signalling their dispatches from one side of the canon where Mary is at work to Jim's headquarters on the other side.

Jim, to ascertain if the siphon is defective, enters it at one of the sections in the valley. Poole, who has been summoned to the front by Green, sees a chance to kill Jim. They secure two iron workmen, ignorant of anyone's being in the siphon, and rivet Jim and two workmen inside the huge pipe. They rush to the reservoir that empties into the siphon and Green orders the water turned on. Jim is trapped with the water rising slowly when Mary raps their regular evening call. From inside the siphon Jim signals for help, and Mary rushes assistance to him just in time to save him. Poole and Green have returned to the city, confident that Jim has been removed from their path. Mary suspects who tried to drown Jim and stages a scene to disclose the guilty. It is successful and the plotters are revealed and fittingly dealt with.

"THE WAYWARD SISTER" (March 2.) A synopsis of this three-reel picture was published on page 1010 of the issue dated February 7. The picture was originally scheduled for release on February 7, but has been postponed until March 2.

"HAMLET MADE OVER" (March 4).—The cast: Jonah Frost (Billie Reeves); Manager (William H. Turner); Beatrice (Carrie Reynolds); King (Clarence Jay Elmor). Written by Mark Swan. Produced by Earl Metcalfe.

Jonah Frost is a bad actor playing Hamlet. They do no business and Horatio Dazzle, the manager, insists that Hamlet ought to be fixed up so he will draw audiences and please them. The show strands; he explains to Frost that he is going to put on a revised Hamlet.

Beatrice McGillicuddy recites "Curfew Shall Not Ring tonight;" everybody tells her she ought to go on the stage. Dazzle, who heard her and knows that her father has got money, tells her she must join his company as leading lady and play Ophelia. She gives up her job at the restaurant and takes the engagement. Having a free hand he rehearses Hamlet to suit himself.

Hamlet, as revised by Dazzle, is a novelty. The Ghost does a song and dance with six little ghosts. Polonious wears a plug hat and does a magic act. Instead of being garbed in white trailing robes, Dazzle has Beatrice make up as Yum Yum. The show makes a hit until Beatrice forgets her lines and starts to recite "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

Then things happen. The local policeman lowers the asbestos curtain and it catches Frost by the neck, pinning him to the stage where he is an excellent target. When he is released he is the center of attention from a tar and feather bee. He joins his company as they are starting walking home he feeling like a feather bed.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

BIG U.

SHACKLES (March 2).—The cast: Lola (Carmen Phillips); Frank (Douglas Gerard); Loan Broker (Walter Belasco). Scenario by F. McGrew Willis. Produced by George Cochrane.

Introduction.—An allegorical figure of a woman is seated at a table, head bowed, a figure of abject distress, her manacled hands extended before her, clenched and unclenched in anguish. She raises her head slowly and as she brings her hands together in supplication, the manacles disappear.

Synopsis.—Lola, a woman of mystery, is seated at a table covered with the debris of a night of revelry. Her position is that of the allegorical figure. Rising, she goes to the window and raises the shade. As she does so, a flood of morning light envelopes her and makes her gaudy evening clothes look out of keeping with the bright world she is gazing upon. She decides to live a better life, and taking up a cloak which she wraps around her, she leaves her apartment.

Frank, a man of mystery, is seen backing out of a side door of an alley, his hand on his pistol pocket. He quickly mounts a horse and rides hurriedly away.

Lola has purchased a small farm in the mountains and is busy in her garden when Frank rides in exhausted, unkempt, and hungry. He asks for work and a night's lodging. Lola brings him food and shows him to a shack. The next morning as Frank is about to leave, Lola asks him if he will not remain and work for her, as the care of the farm has been too much for her. Frank hesitates, but finally agrees to accept. He is curious about a woman of her type, living such a secluded life and day after day, watches her carefully. A keen friendship springs up between them, but no reference to the past is made by either.

Lola is set thinking about Frank's past one day finding a portion of a newspaper with his picture on it. Soon after she receives a letter from an old friend asking her to come back to the old life. Lola rushes to her room with the letter clutched to her bosom. Torn by conflicting emotions, she drops into a chair and unconsciously assumes the pose of the allegorical figure. She re-reads the letter and a mad desire to revert to the past seizes her. She dons the evening dress in which she fled from the city and, putting powder and rouge on her face, poses before her mirror, throwing kisses to her reflection.

In the meantime Frank goes to Lola's cabin to learn the contents of the letter, cautiously enters the living room and searches for the letter. Lola opens the door of her room and discovers Frank searching in the table drawers. He turns and sees Lola in her rouge and finery. Each is revealed to the other in their true light. Frank approaches her and wipes the rouge from her lips. Lola spurns him and, handing him the letter, tells him to read it. The situation reminds him of his own past and he takes from his pocket and offers to her the newspaper from which the portion has been torn that Lola had found. Without looking at it she takes it and tears it up, Frank hands back the letter without having read it and she tears that up too. Frank then goes out into the orchard and sits under a tree. Lola comes to him, puts her arm about his shoulders and says, "The past belongs to yesterday and yesterday is dead." They stand and face the sunrise of a new day and Frank takes her in his arms.

BISON.

THE ONE WOMAN (Three Parts—March 4).—The cast: Kelly (Douglas Gerrard); Daniels (Orin Johnson); Pierson (Thomas Delmar); Sang Yuen (Eagle Wing); Irene Forbes (Edna Maison). Scenario by Harvey Gates. Produced by Henry Otto.

In a village by the sea live Kelly and Irene, lovers. Irene, however, is attracted to a big sea captain named Pierson. She leaves Kelly in pursuit of romance and marries Pierson. At the time the story opens, Kelly is one of the most dependable members of the secret service. He and Daniels are friends. The authorities are very much perplexed by the fact that great quantities of opium are being smuggled into this country.

Kelly and Daniels are assigned to the work of running down the case, and while making a trip through Chinatown, become mixed up in a tong war. In the attack the two become separated, and Kelly is seriously wounded. The Princess Poppy sees a white man fall and has him brought to her aparatment. When Kelly revives he finds himself in an oriental apartment, and recognizes the owner of it as his old sweetheart, Irene.

Daniels, searching for his partner, has a fight with Chung Wee, and the Chinaman leaves his coat, which Daniels searches. He finds some documents which cause him to believe the "Empress of Asia," which is due in a few days, is carrying contraband, and secures permission from the inspector to thoroughly search the vessel. Kelly, being alone with Irene, finds his old love returning and pleads with her to leave the life she is living and go with him. She has become a victim of the opium habit, and her supply being very low, her nerves are in a sad condition. She pleads with him to wait until after the "Empress of Asia" arrives, when she will give him a definite answer.

Kelly leaves her and returns to his apartment. He refuses any explanation to Daniels. The latter then tells him of securing permission to search the incoming steamer, and that she will dock the next day. Kelly, realizing what a blow this will be to the girl, determines to warn her of the search, and does so. She sends one of her trusted servants, Chung Wee, with a note of warning to Pierson. Kelly then returns and accompanies his partner on a final search of the vessel. They are unable to find anything, and Kelly, while standing near a case of walnuts in the captain's cabin, notices a picture of Irene. A close examination of the captain proves him to be Pierson. His jealousy is aroused, and he starts to attack him, but his cooler self prevails, and, instead, he hurries to the princess' apartment.

Daniels, unable to find anything wrong, is forced to leave, but, seeing Chung Wee hanging around outside, determines to follow him. Pierson takes the case of walnuts and hastens to the Princess' apartment. Kelly and Irene are in the midst of a scene when they hear Pierson enter. The woman hides Kelly in a closet. Pierson discovers the latter's hat after he has been in the room a short while and begins to look for him. Irene, frantic for her drug, breaks open one of the walnuts, which is full of contraband opium.

Daniels follows the Chinaman to the Princess' apartment and looks through the keyhole just as the woman opens the walnut. He calls for help to raid the place, and returns to the room just as Pierson has discovered Kelly. The two have a fight and Kelly is about to be killed when Daniels bursts in the room and kills Pierson. The police come in and take charge of the opium. Pierson, before dying, exonerates the woman of all blame in his wrong-doing, claiming that he had forced her to do his work. The girl goes to Kelly who confesse his love for her. As the story closes Kelly and the girl return to their childhood home and hand in hand make new plans for the future.

REX.

SAVED BY A SONG (Two Parts—March 5).—The cast: John (Ben Wilson); Grayson, a wealthy farmer (Chas. Ogle); Jed Perkins, the town bully (Joe Gerard); Hawkins (A. H. Donnelly); Elsie (Ruth Donnelly); Dolly (Dorothy Phillips). Written by Edgar Wilson Nye. Produced by Ben Wilson.

John Meadows, in jail for life, is released and told that the man who committed the crime for which he was convicted has confessed. He finally gets work in a shop where Hawkins, the proprietor, likes him. Hawkins is informed that John has spent a term in prison, but does not hold this against him, and shows that he intends to give the man a chance.

John's fellow clerk, Ned, being in debt, steals a large sum from the safe of the store. When Hawkins misses the money, his first thought is of John, who is called into the private office and accused of the crime. He denies all knowledge of the theft. Hawkins sends for a detective. Seeing no loophole of escape, once he gets into the clutches of the law, John runs away through an open window.

A few days later John stands on the docks in the slums of the city. He contemplates suicide, but finally decides to get money to live somehow. Sometime later he enters a house with every intention of robbing it. But when he hears a sweet-faced girl singing "Annie Laurie" at the piano—the old song conjures up sweet memories of the past, and he slowly replaces the things he had stolen and starts away.

The girl turns—sees him and is frightened. He reassures her. He sits down and tells the girl his story—tells of the days when he was a farmer and in love with Elsie, who was also loved by the village bully. How he and the bully quarreled over Elsie, and how he threatened the bully if he ever bothered him again. Later, when the bully was found dead—stabbed through with John's pitchfork—John was arrested and convicted of the murder and railroaded to jail. But he did not kill the man—it was old man Grayson on the farm next to his who did the deed when he and the bully came to blows over some corn the bully was stealing from Grayson.

Grayson was afraid to confess, and so he allowed an innocent man to suffer—but on his death bed he told all, and so John was released—but too late—for his farm has passed out of his hands, and Elsie died from loneliness and heartbreak. The girl at the piano is, indeed, sorry for John, and he straightens up and promises to do what is right hereafter. At this moment her father comes in from the club, and he is none other than Hawkins, who has been searching everywhere for John. He takes the young man's hand in his and asks him to come back to work in the morning.

NESTOR.

THE LION'S BREATH (March 3).—The cast: Clarence (Neal Burns); His Sweetheart (Billie Rhodes); Mother (Jean Hathaway); Prof. Giblets (George French); "Spike" (Ray Gallagher). Scenario by Al. E. Christie. Directed by Horace Davey.

Clarence is a timid man and as a consequence does not find favor in the eyes of his sweetheart's mother, who desires a bold, brave man for her daughter. "Spike," while little, is very "loud," and even has the nerve to put a professional prize fighter "to sleep," when the latter interferes with him. He and Clarence meet each other accidentally and Clarence suffers from the meeting.

Professor Giblets, an eminent scientist, has made a marvelous discovery in his laboratory. By the combination of an electric battery and the ultra violt rays, he can transform the attributes of one animal to that of another, even a human. Clarence takes his girl for an outing in the park and they are having a real nice time when Clarence is greatly frightened by a swan eating out of his hand. "Spike," wandering about, comes to their rescue.

Clarence is discouraged with life and is about to end it all, when he is rescued by Prof. Giblets. Clarence tells his troubles and the professor comforts him with the assertion that by means of his invention Clarence will become a new man. The apparatus is arranged and the machinery set going. At one end of the tube sits Clarence, while at the other end is a ferocious brute of a lion. The experiment is completed. Clarence runs to the side of the lion and cuffs him on the ears. The professor is roughly thrown aside and Clarence rushes out.

Clarence wanders into a saloon, throws out all the loafers, spits in the bartender's face and acts "bad" generally. Wandering to the park, he finds his girl and "Spike." "Spike" is given the surprise of his life and beats a hasty retreat. Clarence takes his girl home, and on the way bends iron lamp posts for the fun of it. Mother is surprised at his breezy entrance, but after a short "argument" he is acknowledged lord and master, and as the story ends, Clarence is comfortably installed in a large chair, while his wife and mother-in-law hasten to do his bidding.

IMP.

SOME HEROES (Feb. 29).—The cast: Slim Hoover (Victor Potel); Heinrich Hippo (Ed Sedgwick); Sallie Sloppus (Jane Bernoudy); Miss Magneto (Eileen Sedgwick). Written and produced by Roy Clements.

Slim Hoover, chief of the police department of Resthurst, and Chief Hippo, of the fire department, are enamored of Miss Magneto, the village beauty. Chief Hippo is the favored suitor, until a fire breaks out in the apartment house where Miss Magneto resides. The Chief is delayed in arriving, because of Sallie Sloppus, his housekeeper, has borrowed his auto for a joy ride.

On arriving at the scene of the fire, Chief Hippo finds his hated rival, Chief "Slim," directing the rescue work. They fight to decide who shall rescue Miss Magneto and that young lady is left to her own resources. Miss Magneto escapes while they are still fighting over her. While searching the ruins for the body of Miss Magneto, the rival chiefs are confronted by the object of their search, very much "in the flesh" and both receive a "love-knockout."

THE HOAX HOUSE (Two parts—March 3).—The cast: Frank King (King Baggot); Belle Adair (Edna Hunter); Mr. Ryan (Joseph Daly); Mrs. Ryan (Mrs. Slattery); Mr. Stewart (Wallace Clark); Mrs. Stewart (Marie Weirman). Written by Raymond L. Schrook. Produced by Harry McRae Webster.

Frank King, a salesman for the "Nearly Ev'ry Kiss Company," has been called down for keeping late hours by the sales manager of the concern he is working for. Accordingly, King resolves to reform and we see him at his room in the hotel getting himself up in his usual natty style. He then goes out and enters a candy store to make a sale. There he has a flirtation with a sales woman and makes the acquaintance of a dashing vaudeville actress, Belle Adair. He has a most enjoyable time with the actress, and the next day is "fired" for coming in late. The actress also is "bounced" and she goes to consult King upon their becoming partners in some remunerative business. They open an occult office, and King, arrayed as a seer, tells their first customer, a simpering young woman, that she will soon be married to the man of her choice. King charges $10 for the "dope," and the woman goes away happy.

The next customer is Henry Stewart, a dapper young man who suspects that his wife is guilty of infidelity towards him. King makes an appointment for him to return on Thursday and tells him that the fee in his case will be $1,000 for the answer, Belle having in the meantime obtained Stewart's name and address. The succeeding customer is Mrs. J. P. Ryan, a fastidious society woman. Belle obtains her name and address and ushers her into the occult chamber where she tells King that she is willing to pay $5,000 to find out whether her husband is true to her. Requiring time to obtain the requisite information, King puts her off like the previous customer and tells her to come back Thursday. King now starts out on his detective work.

Disguised as a plumber, he ascertains that there is some sort of flirtation between Mrs. Ryan and her butler. After this, King starts out on his second bit of detective work, entering the Stewart household as an employee of the electric light company, which convinces him that Stewart is insanely jealous of his wife. King picks up a letter that Stewart has dropped while the butler is helping him on with his coat. On examination of the letter, King ascertains that Stewart is to meet some woman that evening who signs herself Frou Frou, and whose telephone is Morningside 8808.

On the following Thursday, King receives Mrs. Ryan in his occult chamber which is located at his apartment at the hotel. Solemnly he looks into the crystal globe and says: "The stars tell me that your husband has a secret love affair. Frou Frou he calls her. A phone is ringing Morningside 8808." Mrs. Ryan hands King a roll of bills and leaves. Shortly afterwards Stewart arives and King reveals to him that the stars have shown that his wife is infatuated with his butler. When Stewart has gone King gets stage fright and tells Belle he fears he hasn't told the right stories to the right parties.

In the next scene we see Mrs. Ryan denouncing her husband for his affair with Frou Frou. Ryan is completely mystified. The scene then shifts to Stewart's home, where the butler happens to be lifting up Mrs. Stewart just after she has had a bad fall from her stepladder. Stewart bursts in and springs with rage at the butler's throat. The butler calls for help. A policeman rushes in and Stewart, his wife and the butler are taken to the station house. Next we see Frou Frou in her apartment. Mrs. Ryan calls and there is a violent quarrel, whereupon the maid telephones for the police.

Meanwhile, King and Belle prepare for their immediate departure from the hotel after King has asked Belle whether she won't continue as his assistant for the rest of her life. Before Belle has had time to answer, a telegram arrives informing King that the "Nearly Every Kiss Company" wishes him to resume his job with a splendid raise.

At the police station, Mrs. Ryan, Frou Frou, the Stewarts and the two butlers are arraigned before the lieutenant who concludes that "Bobo the Seer" (King's business cognomen) is responsible for the domestic upheaval, and dispatches a policeman to go to the hotel and bring "Bobo" before him. The timely arrival of Mr. Ryan at the police station adds a sentimental finish to the scene. Ryan is astounded at the turn of events when wife falls into his arms as does Mrs. Stewart into those of her better-half. The misunderstanding is explained. At the hotel, King and Belle anticipate the arrival of the cops by climbing out the window to the fire escape. They enter a taxi cab, and as they drive off, King places his arm around Belle and says, "The stars tell me that you are to become Mrs. Bobo the Seer."

GOLD SEAL.

THE JOURNAL OF LORD JOHN (Episode No. 4—"The Eye of Horus"—Three Parts—Feb. 29).—The cast: Lord John Halsmere (William Garwood); Maida Odell (Stella Razeta); Doctor Rameses (Albert MacQuarrie); The Head Sister (Laura Oakley); Paul Teano (Malcolm Blevins); Miss Parsons (Josephine Miller). Written by Harvey Gates. Produced by Edward Le Saint.

Maida Odell, foster sister of of the wealthy Robert Odell, has been induced to become a member of the Gray Sisterhood. Lord John Halsmere, who has befriended Maida, has reasons to believe that some dire peril threatens the girl. Rameses, a seer and hypnotist, is the brother of the woman who is at the head of the Gray Sisterhood.

New York papers state that Roger Odell has purchased a rare jewel, a mate of the Eye of Horus, which Miss Maida Odell has as a heritage from her parents. Lord John is cabled by Mr. Odell, his friend, that one, Miss Parsons, is on her way to America, with the jewel and requests Lord John to act as the jewel's guardian until Maida has finished her term with the Gray Sisterhood.

Miss Gibson, a maid in the hotel, secretly enters Lord John's room and secures a copy of the cablegram.

Lord John, expecting Miss Parson's arrival at the hotel, is alone in his study. He suddenly becomes drowsy; his lungs seem congested. He makes his way to the window and admits the air, and sees a figure disappearing down the side of the house.

Paul Teano, private detective, whom Lord John has engaged to assist in the investigation of the Gray Sisterhood, enters. Lord John sends Paul to search for the stranger. The manager enters and informs Lord John that Miss Parsons has arrived seriously ill and has requested to see him. Lord John hastens, only to find her sinking into unconsciousness. He hurries out of the building to find the machine she arrived in; it is disappearing down the road. Lord John pursues in his own machine, after instructing Paul Teano, who had failed to find the stranger, to watch the hotel and detain any suspicious visitors. Lord John overtakes the taxi. He is convinced that the chauffeur is innocent, but upon an examination, discovers a small hole in the back curtain, through which a strange powder evidently has been blown.

He gathers up the traces of the powder in his handkerchief and returns to find Paul Teano recovering from a blow. Paul explains that a Gray Sister visited the hotel—that when he attempted to detain her, she struck him and escaped. The two men hasten to Miss Parsons' room, where they are met by the attending physician, who informs Lord John that Miss Parsons is dead.

Lord John and Paul hasten to the latter's laboratory, and the strange powder, of which Lord John has also found traces on the window-pane of his own room. A small hole had been bored through the glass. Paul Teano secures a pulmotor and rejoins Lord John, who has determined that the powder is a substance which produces, when inhaled, a state of catalepsy. The pulmotor is applied to Miss Parsons, and she is revived. The Eye of Horus is missing.

Lord John interviews the two maids. One is dismissed, but Miss Gibson, whom the manager explains entered his employ but a few days previously, is given the third degree, and finally made to confess, that she purloined the Eye of the Horus. Lord John, not anxious to bring the police into the matter, allows the woman her freedom. The picture dissolves back to Lord John talking to Miss Parsons and shows what must have happened. A certain agent arranged to have some one climb onto the back of Miss Parsons' auto and blow the powder into the machine, at the same time, another unknown person climbed into Lord John's window and sought to overcome him in the same manner, thus facilitating an easy theft of the jewel.

Meanwhile Rameses, in company with the Head Sister in the secret room of the Sisterhood, has secured the second Eye of Horus from Maida Odell through his hypnotic influence. We establish the fact that these two jewels have long been guarded by Dr. Rameses as sacred heirlooms of his family and religion.

He starts to leave the Sisterhood but is hardly on his road when he sees Lord John approaching. With his two agents, Tony and Leon, Rameses retreats to the underground passage. Lord John follows, while Paul gives chase to the other machine. Lord John is attacked by Tony and Leon. He succeeds in throwing them off and making his way to the secret room, where he confronts Rameses. Lord John manages to tear the Eye of Horus from the Egyptian, but barely escapes being run through by a sharp dirk. Lord John takes the chance to escape, hotly pursued by Tony and Leon. He breaks open a window, clutching the jewels, he jumps, lands safely and makes good his escape.

JOKER.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE LAW (March 2).—The cast: Squire Binks (William Franey); His Wife (Gale Henry); Milburn, Their Son (Mil-

(Continued on page 1537.)

We print and develop titles
EXCLUSIVELY
One Price—One Quality
Pan American Film Service
145 West 45th Street New York City

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

Are You Tired
of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The Orpheum Collection
contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:
No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3
Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.
CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

Linden Theatre,
Chicago, Ill.
Direction
Edw. T. Beatty

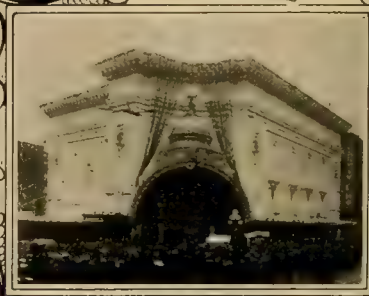
Princess Theatre,
Memphis, Tenn.
Direction F. S. Trimble

New Fenway, Boston, Mass.
Direction Mark Isenberg

Liberty Theatre
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Direction Allen & Helm

Gertrude MacCoy Theatre
Baltimore, Md.
Direction Fredrick C. Weber

Alhambra Theatre, Detroit, Mich.
Direction John Kunsky



Coliseum Theatre, Seattle, Wash.
Dircetion Jonsen & Van Herberg

Casino Theatre
Des Moines, Ia.
Direction A. Frankel

Knickerbocker Theatre
New York, N. Y
Direction S. L. Rothapfel

Warwick Theatre, Kansas City, Mo.
Direction "Dusty" Rhodes

THIS OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY

but the eight years' experience of E. R. Anderson, our "BRAINS," is reaping its long due reward.

We take pleasure in showing views of some of our prominent installations as a double tribute to our carefully selected distributors and to our SUPERIOR PRODUCT.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY.

SAINT LOUIS, BROADWAY AT CHESTNUT | CHICAGO, SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH, CALGARY ALBERTA | NEW YORK, 19 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

Paramount Empress
Salt Lake City, Utah
Direction L. Marcus

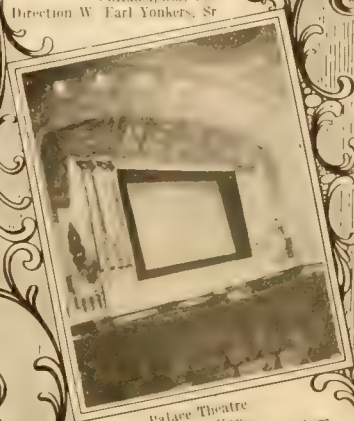
Strand Theatre, Omaha, Neb.
Direction A. S. Blank

Colonial Theatre
Columbus, Ohio
Direction Harry Hart

56th St. Theatre,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Direction W. Earl Yonkers, Sr.

Queen Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.
Direction Geo. N. Shorey

Strand Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.
Direction Ralph De Bruler



Palace Theatre
Wichita, Kan
Direction Stanley Chambers

1. Linden Theatre, Chicago, Ill. Installed by E. E. Fulton Co.

2. Princess Theatre, Memphis, Tenn. Installed by Consolidated Film & Sup. Co.

3. New Fenway Theatre, Boston, Mass. Installed by David F. Cowan.

4. Liberty Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa. Installed by Ludwig Hommel & Co.

5. Gertrude MacCoy Theatre, Baltimore, Md. Installed by J. F. Dusman.

6. Alhambra Theatre, Detroit, Mich., Installed by Casino Feature Film Co.

7. Coliseum Theatre, Seattle, Wash. Installed by H. A. Johnson Seating Co.

8. Casino Theatre, Des Moines, Ia. Installed by Laemmle Film Service.

9. Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, N. Y. Installed by Picture Theatre Equipment Co.

10. Warwick Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. Installed by Kansas City Machine & Sup. Co.

11. Paramount Empress Theatre, Salt Lake City, Utah. Installed by Notable Feature Film Co.

12. Strand Theatre, Omaha, Neb. Installed by Laemmle Film Service.

13. Colonial Theatre, Columbus, Ohio. Installed by Columbus Theatre Equipment Co.

14. Fifty-sixth St. Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa. Installed by Lewis M. Swaab.

15. Palace Theatre, Wichita, Kan. Installed by Wichita Film & Supply Co.

16. Temple Theatre, Toledo, Ohio. Installed by Peerless Feat. Film & Supply Co.

17. Standard Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio. Installed by G. W. Armstrong.

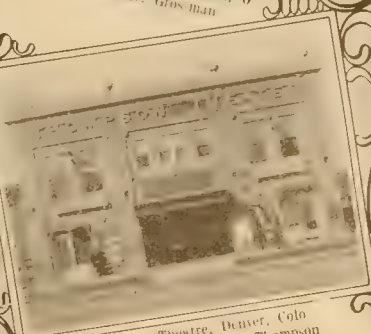
18. Thompson's Theatre, Denver, Colo. Installed by Interstate Film & Sup. Co

19. Queen Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn. Installed by R. M. Shaw Co.

20. Strand Theatre, Atlanta, Ga. Installed by Mutual Film Corp.

Temple Theatre,
Toledo, Ohio
Direction Edw. T. Zorn

Standard Theatre, Cleveland, O.
Direction Joe. Grossman



Thompson Theatre, Denver, Colo
Direction Mr. Thompson

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY.

SAINT LOUIS BROADWAY AT CHESTNUT | CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH CALGARY ALBERTA | NEW YORK 19 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

1 G. A. Metcalfe Co., San Francisco, Cal.
2 H. A. Johnson Seating Co., Seattle, Wash.
3 Notable Feature Film Co., Salt Lake City, Utah
4 World Features, Ltd., Calgary, Alta., Canada.
5 Interstate Film & Sup. Co., Denver, Colo
6 Colonial Film Exchange, Sioux Falls, S. D.
7 Reliance Film Service, Sioux City, Ia.
8 Feature Film Co., St. Paul, Minn.
9 Laemmle Film Service, Omaha, Neb.
10 Laemmle Film Service, Minneapolis, Minn
11 Wichita Film & Sup. Co., Wichita, Kan.
12 Laemmle Film Service, Des Moines, Ia.
13 Des Moines Film & Sup. Co., Des Moines, Ia.
14 Kansas City, Mch. & Sup. Co., Kansas City, Mo.
15 Mutual Film Corp., Milwaukee, Wis.
16 E. E. Fulton Co., Chicago, Ill.
17 Amusement Supply Co., Chicago, Ill.
18 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., Dallas, Tex.
19 H. K. Barnett Film & Sup. Co., Dallas, Tex.
20 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., San Antonio, Tex.
21 Lears Theatre Supply Co., St. Louis, Mo.
22 Co-Operative Amus. Sup. Co., Springfield, Ill.
23 Casino Feature Film Co., Detroit, Mich.
24 Peerless Feature Film & Sup. Co., Toledo, Ohio.
25 C. Densmore Hill, Indianapolis, Ind.
26 Mutual Film Corp., Evansville, Ind.
27 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., Memphis, Tenn.
28 G. W. Armstrong, Cleveland, Ohio.

This map shows the location of our forty-nine distributors in the United States, Canada and Cuba.

If you want PERFECT PROJECTION get in touch with our nearest representative at once.

1 Geo. C. Gates, Havana, Cuba.
2 Mutual Film Corp., Tampa, Fla.
3 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., Jacksonville, Fla.
4 Picture Theatre Equipment Co., New York City.
5 Mutual Film Corp., New York City.
6 Mutual Film Corp., Charlotte, N. C.
7 Ajax Movie Equipment Co., Washington, D. C.
8 J. F. Dusman, Baltimore, Md.
9 Lewis M. Swaab, Philadelphia, Pa.
10 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., Atlanta, Ga.
11 Mutual Film Corp., Atlanta, Ga.
12 D. F. Cowan, Boston, Mass.
13 R. M. Shaw Co., Knoxville, Tenn.
14 Ludwig Hommel & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
15 Picture Theatre Equipment Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
16 Chas X. Farrel, Buffalo, N. Y.
17 World Features, Ltd., Toronto, Ont., Canada.
18 Consolidated Film & Sup. Co., New Orleans, La.
19 Columbus Theatre Equipment Co., Columbus, Ohio
20 Cincinnati Theatre Sup. Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
21 Rayner Feature Film Co., Dayton, Ohio.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY.

SAINT LOUIS BROADWAY AT CHESTNUT | CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH CALGARY, ALBERTA | NEW YORK 19 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR $3.00
SIX MONTHS $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

.....

Cut out and mail today. Theatre.....

(Continued from page 1533.)

burn Moranti); The Actress (Lillian Peacock); Theater Manager (Charles Conklin). Written and produced by Allen Curtis.

Squire Binks, in addition to being justice of the peace, is sheriff of the county. Milburn, the squire's son, causes his father much uneasiness because of his familiarity with one of the girls at the Gaiety Theatre, and when the old man sees a notice in the paper stating the engagement of Milburn Binks and Lillie, the Gaiety girl, the squire determines to put a stop to his son's "dream of love." Mrs. Binks sympathizes with her son. The company that is playing at the theater is having a hard time to make ends meet. One of the creditors calls on the manager and, unable to get payment, leaves in a rage, vowing to get even. Milburn is enjoying a nice little visit with his fiance and is given a couple of passes by the manager. He persuades his mother to accompany him to the show and the two leave for the theater.

The collector calls on Squire, tells his troubles and demands that the sheriff levy on the goods of the show people. The Squire, glad of a change to get back at "them theater peepul," who he believes have ruined his son, agrees to close the theater or collect the bill. He and the collector start out for the show. Meanwhile at the theater, there is a very small crowd. Ma and Milburn arrive and ensconce themselves in the very first row. Hardly had the show started when Squire comes in, breaks up the show and takes charge of all personal property.

Ma, angry because she missed the show, gets the girls together and promises them financial assistance. With Ma's help the girls open a barber shop and it is all the manager can do to keep the crowd from bursting in the doors. They do a brisk business and finally the Squire investigates the matter. When he sees the pretty girl barbers, he determines to get a shave too. Lillie is the barber most in demand and Pa Binks ousts the occupant of her chair and takes it himself. Milburn is nearby and hides, while Lillie proceeds to give the old man the shave of his life. The Squire flirts with the girls, and Lillie phones Ma, telling of her husband's actions.

Ma hastens to the scene and exchanges places with Lillian unknown to father. Father, thinking the girl is shaving him, is very flattering until he gets a good look at his barber. Then he beats a retreat, but Ma is too quick for him and corners him. Among the attractions of the barber shop is "the steam room," and Pa, in his desperation, gets into this room. The door is closed and Pa is given the "sweat cure." He begs to get out, but Ma insists he will stay inside until he marries Milburn and the girl. Pa finally consents and the ceremony is performed through a panel of the door. When Pa is liberated he is "soaked" a bath fee by the manager for having been in the bath room.

L-KO.

BLUE BLOOD AND BLACK SKIN (Two Parts—March 1).—The cast: George the Barber (Dan Russell); The Northern Stranger (Ray Griffith); Pinkey the Belle (Louise Orth).

George the Barber is the terror of Darktown. The bravest do not turn pale at his approach, for nature has made that impossible, but they run to safe hiding places and he reigns undisputed bully of the village.

He loves Pinky, but is enraged at her coquetry. He thrashes his rivals, but as one is disposed of a dozen take his place.

One day a Northern stranger arrives, and after flirting with her, she gives him a photo of herself. He goes to the barber shop and, not knowing he loves the girl, tells a highly exaggerated story of his conquest to the barber. This infuriates the barber and he pursues the stranger down the street with a razor. Soon all Darktown is in a uproar. Bullets fly and rival factions riot.

Finally just as the barber catches the masher and raises an avenging razor all pause in dismay as the dusky belle goes by with a mysterious stranger who has been hovering around the village for some time, and whom she has just wed. The terrible barber faints and his rival leaves for parts unknown.

LAEMMLE.

"THE HEART OF BONITA" (Two Parts - March 2). The Cast: Bonita Romero (Myrtle Gonzalez); Julian Romero (Walter Belasco); Dona Maria (Marjorie Lake); Francisco Sanchez (Fred Church); Herbert Brennan (Val Paul); William Kern (Alfred Allen); Dorothy Kern (Betty Rogers); Juan, a Servant (William Brunton). Written and produced by Lynn Reynolds. Cameraman: Omar G. Hill.

William Kern, having purchased some mining property in Mexico, leaves to look over the investment, accompanied by Herbert Brennan, his engineer. Julian Romero and his orphaned daughter, Bonita, entertain the business man and his engineer on their visit. Herbert finds much to admire in Bonita.

Herbert and his employer find the property in excellent condition and Mr. Kern arranges to have Herbert placed in full charge of the works. That night as Herbert is trying to get to sleep he is disturbed by the strains of a guitar outside the window. Angrily he throws a boot out the window at the intruder, hoping to drive him away. The musical caller, Francisco Sanchez however, is a gallant suitor for the hand of Bonita. He accepts the blow from the boot as an insult, and hurries to Herbert's room to demand vengeance. He forces the latter to engage in a duel with him, and the two are hard at it and are only separated by Bonita and the rest of the household.

A revolution is started in the country surrounding the property, and Sanchez accepts a commission with the revolutionists. A year passes. In spite of troublesome times, the mine property proves to be sucessful, and Kern pays a visit to the property, accompanied by his daughter, Dorothy. The homesick Herbert is quickly captivated by the girl from "home;" and his growing interest in the girl is watched with jealousy by Bonita, who has fallen very much in love with Herbert. All railroad lines have been disrupted by the revolutionists, and Kern and Dorothy are unable to return to the United States. Sanchez tries every possible way to win Bonita, but is persistently refused; and he gets the idea that it is Herbert alone who stands in his way.

The insurrectos' supply of funds run low, and in order to raise the necessary money, they decide to capture the mine and hold it for ransom. Bonita, who has overheard the plot, writes Herbert an anonymous note, warning him of the coming raid; but he thinks light of the matter. His companions at the mine, however, persuade him to take the gold from the safe and hide it. Just as they are burying the gold in a secluded spot, they are discovered by John, a Mexican peon, who has been asleep in the brush nearby. He waits until the Americans have left, and, calling to his assistance a Mexican comrade, the two carry the gold away. The mine is attached. Herbert is wounded; and, fearing that Kern and Dorothy will be killed, he agrees to surrender the mine.

The three Americans are taken captive, and as no gold can be found, the revolutionists hold them for ransom until the gold is discovered. In order to secure their release, Brennan tells his captors where the gold was hidden, but a thorough search fails to locate the hidden treasure. Kern and Dorothy are released, but Herbert is held and threatened that unless he reveals the hiding place of the money by the next day he will be shot at sunrise. Bonita realizes that with Dorothy out of the way, she will stand a better chance to win Herbert, and through her influence, Kern and his daughter are given safe conduct to the border. Through accident, Bonita learns from John of his theft of the gold. His companion is captured, and after a severe whipping, he discloses the whereabouts of the missing money.

Herbert is very effusive in his gratitude to Bonita for saving his life, and she begs him to call upon her the next day. That night, while thinking over affairs, he determines that he has had enough of turbulent Mexico, and decides to return to the States. Bonita, making great preparations for the call of her friend, is handed a note from Herbert, in which he informs her that he has decided to return home, and again renews his thanks to the girl for her many kind acts. Poor Bonita is almost heart-broken. But when the gallant Sanchez makes a call and accompanies his pleadings with Mexican love songs, she forgets Herbert; and the brave Sanchez is made a happy man at last.

"THE BLACKMAILER" (March 5). The cast: The Woman (Elsie Jane Wilson); The Man (Rupert Julian). Scenario by Calder Johnstone. Produced by Rupert Julian.

The Woman receives a call from the Man, who is a blackmailer, demanding from her a large sum of money for the return of certain letters she had written him in the past. She refuses his demand and he leaves, threating to call within a week's time and then expose her past foolish actions to her husband, should she fail to comply with his demand.

He calls at the time stated and is received by a Swedish servant instead of the usual maid. The servant closes the door of the drawing room and mocks the man. Suddenly she removes her wig and drops off the outer dress and discloses herself as the Woman herself. She then tells him what the disguise means. She says that she had discharged her former house-maid, had applied for housework at the agency and for a Swedish servant—had rented a room in a tenement house and there had assumed the disguise—had applied for housework at the agency and had secured the position, she as mistress had called for—had established her identity as the Swedish girl both at the tenement and in the home apartment. Then she tells him what she is going to do. She flashes a revolver and says that she is going to kill the Man, that she herself is supposed to be out of the house, that he is known to be in the apartment with her and that after she has killed him she will return to the tenement, state that she is going away, change back to her own self, and return to the apartment to find the body of the dead Man! She will destroy the disguise, the police will search for the Swedish woman who has disappeared and the crime will remain an unsolved mystery. She draws to shoot. The Man shrinks in abject fear, and gives her the papers. She drives him from the apartment and destroys the papers before her husband's return home.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE

GRAFT (Episode No. 11—"The Illegal Bucket Shops"—Two Parts—Feb. 21).—The cast: Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Jack Stevens (Jack Abbott); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Kitty Rockford (Mina Cunard); Stanford Stone (Glen White).

The erratic and excitable condition of Bruce Larnigan is causing his friends and his mother great worry. The injury to his head as well as the terrible strain on his nerves are beginning to undermine his reason. Mrs. Larnigan writes to her brother, the Hon. Robert A. Harding, a lawyer in Ohio, to come to her assistance and help her get Bruce away from his fight with the Trusts.

Bruce Larnigan was seated in the office of the "Independent" nervously talking to Jack Stevens, the city editor. "Of all the forms of graft," he said, "the ones I detest the most are the gambling hells for women, under the guise of stock exchanges, known as bucket shops." Dorothy calls. She finds Bruce raging over his inability to locate the man at the head of the bucket shops. To ease his mind, she scribbles on a piece of paper: "The man you want is Rupert Kruger Hall and he transacts all illegal business at his home. He leaves on business to-night. His wife is going to the opera——" Bruce turns to her at this juncture and she drops the note on the desk where Bruce finds it later.

From this Bruce realizes that Hall is also a member of the "Trust," and one of the men he is fighting, so he concludes to play burglar during his absence and obtain a clew, if possible. A few of the things that Bruce did not know follow: Hall is a great friend of Justin Thompson, the present district attorney, and knows that an investigation from that office would be difficult, so his operations in his gambling rooms are, in a measure, protected. Hall has a beautiful wife of whom he is jealous. He has received an anonymous note telling him to watch his wife and friend, therefore he has planned the "business trip" while Thompson is to escort Mrs. Hall to the opera.

That night Thompson and Mrs. Hall did not go to the opera, but remained at home to enjoy their guilty love. Bruce forced an entrance to the seemingly deserted house and was ransacking the desk in the library when Thompson, attracted by the sound, crept up behind him and dealt him a blow on the head with the butt of his revolver. Bruce falls unconscious. Thompson then rushed to the other room in order to calm the frightened Mrs. Hall and had

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand..... $1.25
Ten Thousand..... $2.50
Twenty-five Thousand..... $3.50
Fifty Thousand..... $5.00
One Hundred Thousand..... $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

just folded her in his arms when Hall stepped forth and confronted them. Hall was in no mood to hear explanations. He shouts that he intends to kill them both, and pulls a revolver; Thompson shoots him dead. Thompson succeeds in convincing the frightened and hysterical Mrs. Hall that they must follow his rapidly formed plan to save themselves. They drag the body of Hall to the study entrance, place the discharged revolver in the hand of the unconscious Bruce, and then Thompson calls the police. Bruce is arrested, charged with murder. Thompson, the district attorney, prosecutes the case.

Harding arrives in time to take the case away from a lawyer hired by Stone to defend Bruce. The trial follows. The evidence is all in. Everything points to Bruce's guilt. The spectators believe that Bruce, discovered in the act of robbing Hall's home, had struck him down.

Harding calls witnesses. The first of these is a doctor, who testifies that Bruce would never be able to pull a trigger after receiving the blow on the head that rendered him unconscious. The second is an expert who describes the possibility of the human eye, under certain conditions, photographing a person or object before it. He tells that he photographed the eye of Hall shortly after death. He hands this photo to Harding. Mrs. Hall is then called. Harding asks her abruptly who the man was that was with her that night. In a maze of questions he tangles her up completely, finishing by thrusting the photo of her dead husband's eye before her, showing faintly the faces of herself and Thompson in the iris. Harding whirls on Thompson and accuses him of the murder. Confusion reigns in the court. When order is restored, the judge orders the discharge of Bruce and the arrest of Thompson. The excitement is too much for Bruce; his mind snaps and he is hurried to a private sanitarium. Harding, interested in spite of himself, determines to carry on the fight against the Trust members.

GRAFT (Episode No. 12—"The Milk Battle"—Two parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Hon. Robt. A. Harding (Richard Stanton); Jack Stevens (Jack Abbott); Roger Maxwell (Marc Fenton); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Philip Burrows (Bert Law).

The blow on the head which he received, as well as the severe mental strain, had caused the mind of Bruce Larnigan to snap. He is taken to a private sanitarium. Robert Harding, his cousin, a prominent lawyer from Ohio, has become interested in Bruce's fight. His attention is called to the greed of the Milk Trust, which supplies inferior milk. After investigating conditions Harding goes to Burrows, the man at the head of the milk industry, and pleads with him to better conditions. Burrows orders him from the office. Harding then begins a bitter attack on the trust through the columns of the Independent. He also secures the support of several wealthy philanthropists and establishes milk depots throughout the city in opposition to the trust.

Dorothy Maxwell, whose father suffered a paralytic shock in his battle with Tom Larnigan, determines to help Harding in his fight for Bruce's sake by placing in his hands her father's diary containing information against the Graft Trust. She calls at the office of the "Independent" and while telling Harding of her intentions is overheard by Stone, the head of the Graft Trust. Dorothy reads in Stone's eyes her death sentence for attempting to betray the secrets of the "Fifteen." She hurries to the hospital where her father is recovering and removes him to their downtown apartment. The doctor in this private hospital is in the pay of the "Fifteen," and she fears for her father as well as herself.

Meanwhile the Milk Trust has been beaten in open competition and therefore resorts to underhand methods. With the aid of Stone and some of his hired thugs they bring about a teamsters' strike and riot about the barns of the Independent Milk Company, intimidating the drivers, beating them, destroying the milk and wrecking the wagons.

Harding and Stevens, the reporter, rush to the scene. Harding first tries to plead with the mob. This effort failing, he rushes to the barn and jumps on a wagon, asking for volunteers to follow. Stevens takes the next wagon, and other drivers, inspired by Harding's courage, get on others. Harding drives out, warns the crowd back, and then they press forward. He hurls a gas bomb into their midst. The gas in the bomb is not deadly. The crowd rush madly from the overpowering fumes and the long line of milk wagons proceeds in safety.

Stone calls at Maxwell's downtown apartment in an endeavor to secure the dairy mentioned by Dorothy. Not finding it, he lets one of his thugs in a window with instructions to hide behind the curtains and "knife" Harding, who is to call for the diary. The helpless Maxwell is a witness to the preparations. Stone wheels Maxwell to the other room, and greets Harding, who has just arrived. He tells the latter that he has left some interesting data concerning the Milk Trust on the desk in the next room and then departs.

After a few minutes' conversation with Dorothy, Harding starts for the other room, the assassin waiting his coming behind the curtains—when the excited arrival of Burrows halts Harding. Burrows in a rage tells Harding that he is ruined, and threatens his life. Dorothy points to Burrows as one of the criminal "Fifteen." Harding denounces him. In a scuffle that follows Burrows is whirled toward the curtains and receives the death blow intended for Harding. The Milk Trust is dissolved. Harding adds another name to the list of men who paid.

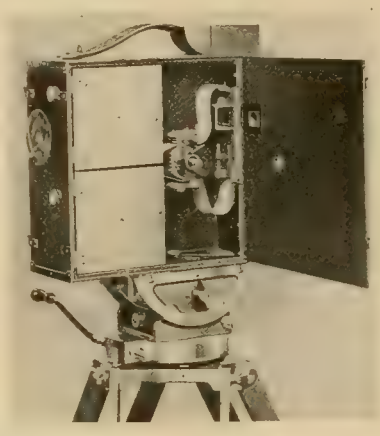
NOTE: The German War Pictures, advertised on the opposite page, were photographed with a Universal Camera, by Wilbur H. Durborough.

They Made Us Do It!

The popularity of the Universal Camera has caused a demand for these instruments far beyond our ability to supply.

Every camera has been sold from one to ten weeks before it was completed.

To meet this demand we have secured larger quarters—four times the amount of floor space—and we will immediately double our equipment and capacity.



We have always maintained the very finest workmanship and highest efficiency in the construction of every camera that we have ever made, and every instrument that we have sold is giving entire satisfaction to its owner.

Send now for our demonstrational catalogue, and place your order as early as you can conveniently do so.

Every instrument is backed by an iron clad guarantee; the purchaser takes no risk when he buys a Universal Camera.

UNIVERSAL CAMERA COMPANY
25 E. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Mutual Film Corp.

BEAUTY.

JOHNNY'S JUMBLE (March 1).—The cast: Johnny (Johnny Sheehan); Carol (Carol Halleway); Uncle (John Steppling); Aunt (Marie van Tassell); The Cook (Mary Talbot); Minister (Rae Berger); Matrimonial Agent (Dick Rosson). Directed by Archer McMackin.

The cook decides to leave and Johnny and Carol are in a dilemma, for word comes that Uncle and Aunt are coming for a visit. So Johnny rushes to the employment agency to look for a cook and Carol rushes to town to look for a dress.

Arrived at the building in which the employment agency is located, Johnny stumbles over the janitor cleaning the floor and breaks into the wrong door—a matrimonial bureau. Thinking he is in the employment agency, he picks out a female who assures him that she will cook, scrub, wash and stay in nights. He takes this paragon home with him where he sets her to work cooking the dinner. She, displaying unusual thoughtfulness, telephones for the minister. Her big brother is also invited to the wedding, and in the intervals of waiting for the dinner to cook, she alternately tries on Carol's new clothes and attempts to correct Johnny, who imagines she is "nutty."

Mary's brother and his friend arrive and she leaves them in the kitchen, telling them to stay there until she calls them. Johnny sees Carol returning with aunt and uncle and thrusts the crazy cook into the bedroom and locks the door. Carol insists upon knowing why the door is locked and he tells her he has a little surprise for her.

The first convenient moment he telephones the police that he has an insane person in his home. The minister, whom Johnny fires out the front door, goes 'round to the back and tells his troubles to brother. Johnny goes into the bedroom to placate the crazy woman and is discovered by his horrified relatives.

Mary clings fondly to Johnny and brother produces the minister, insisting on an immediate marriage. The police find aunty gesticulating wildly and start away with her. She gets free and returns to her Johnny's explanation and saves him from being a bigamist.

"DAD'S COLLEGE WIDOW" (March 5.) The cast: Nathaniel Pettibone, Sr. (Orral Humphrey); Mehetable, His Sister (Lucille Ward); Flavia Pearson, "The College Widow" (Simone Cavens); Nathaniel, Junior (Dick Rosson); Edgar Grayson, his classmate (King Clark). Directed by Phil Walsh.

Nathaniel Pettibone is a well-to-do banker in a small town. His sister, Mehetable, keeps house for him. Nathaniel, Junior, is off at college and he and his classmate, Edgar Grayson, imagine themselves in love with Flavia Pearson, "the college widow." Edgar then decides to take matters in hand and writes an anonymous letter to Nathaniel, Senior, that his son is falling in love "with a woman old enough to be his mother." As calculated, the letter stirs the "old man" into action and he and his sister leave for the college town.

Arrived, Nathaniel, Sr., leaves Mehetable at the hotel, the while he goes to, make a call on the boys, both of whom he finds engrossed in their studies. He discovers that each is the owner of a framed photograph of "the lady in the case" and asks about the original in a casual, conversational manner. Nathaniel Junior, tells who she is, and the "old man" suggests that they call upon her. This is speedily arranged by the obliging son, but Edgar pleads studies as an excuse for not going. During their call father suggests a bite to eat, but at a sign from Nathaniel Junior, the "widow" demures, saying that she seldom goes anywhere.

The callers leave shortly and father asks son where there is a good cabaret, but of course son doesn't know. Father is wise and doesn't say anything, but asks the first policeman he meets. Nathaniel, Junior decides that he must hurry back to his studies and father starts for the cabaret alone, but on the way gets a hunch. He phones the widow and insists that he will call for her in ten minutes. Son gets a similar

We sent Durborough to Europe with a car and cameraman — 7 months with the German Armies

"On the Firing Line With the Germans"

(Name and film both copyrighted)

WE MADE AND OWN THE NEGATIVE—8500 FEET of beautiful photography of the War As It Is Actually Being Fought!

Notice to STATE RIGHT BUYERS!

POSITIVE PROTECTION!

Because we own this negative and because it is copyrighted, we can offer you every protection, and because these are wonderful pictures we can show you how to clean up big money.

The CHICAGO TRIBUNE Says — "There are War pictures and War pictures, but the Blue Ribbon goes to those taken by DURBOROUGH."

War Film Syndicate, 308 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

hunch and invites her to meet him at the Louvre Cafe. Then Edgar, bored with study, gets a kindred hunch and extends a similar invitation. Father arrives and escorts the "widow" to the white lights. She steers father to the Louvre Cafe, where they come face to face with the two boys, each seated at a separate table. Father tells the waiter to see what the boys will have, but the injured and insulted pair start out. Father suggests the opera and while he is out buying some flowers for the fair lady, Nathaniel Junior, succeeds in becoming reinstated in the "widow's" good graces.

Mehetable, hungry and neglected, starts out to get some dinner and encounters young Nathaniel at the cafe. He hurries her into a taxi, explaining that father will be there soon, and when father appears on the scene, Nathaniel Junior, tells him "she" is waiting. Nathaniel, Senior, enters the taxi to find he has been fooled and Mehetable sharply reminds him that he needs a nurse.

VOGUE.

"FLOODED WITH TROUBLE" (Feb. 24.) The cast: Rube (Rube Miller); His Wife (Madge Kirby); Arthur (Arthur Tavares); His Wife (Alice Neice); Baby (Himself). Directed by Rube Miller. Written by Thomas Delmar.

Rube sits in his kitchen reading the newspaper, disinclined to depart for work owing to the flooded condition of the streets as a result of tempestuous rainstorms the night before. Madge, his wife, brings him to a realization of the necessity of working by cracking him on the head with a plate. He goes to work in the streets to open the sewers clogged by the floods.

Rube and a co-worker are laboring diligently when their attention is directed to a pedestrian who hesitates on the sidewalk, afraid to tackle the flood running in the street. For a money consideration Rube and his helper agree to carry the pedestrian across. When they have him at about the center of the torrent, they sight a young woman who does not wish to get wet by wading the stream. Rube dashes to her assistance, rescues a truant shoe which has floated away in the stream, then carries her safely across.

Rube's wife, Madge, prepares his lunch and starts out to carry it to her husband. At the flooded corner she encounters Arthur, who carries her to safety. They proceed to a dry place, where they sit down on a bench and start to eat the lunch. Meanwhile Rube and the young lady, who is Arthur's wife, become better acquainted and find a seat around the corner from Madge and Arthur, friendship, developing with surprising speed.

When Arthur's wife left the house in search of her "meal ticket," a hungry tramp entered in search of food. A borrowing neighbor discovered his presence and summoned the police, who arrive at the house after a speedy and wet trip, to find the intruder locked in the pantry.

Suddenly the two couple discover each other's identity, the men escape arm in arm, while the women have a battle. The chase of the men leads the four back to Arthur's home where they discover the police in the act of capturing the tramp. Explanations follow and all is serene.

"THE CANDY COOK" (Feb. 27.) The cast: The Cook (Lem Trembly); His Wife (Evelyn Thatcher); Proprietor of Store (Josh Binney); His Wife (Buster Gould); Janitor (Lloyd Allen.)

"The Cook" is out of work. He sits idly by, watching his wife doing the week's washing. Becoming angry at his indolence, she orders him up a ladder to wash a window. Disgusted at the futility of his efforts after he had dropped the soap on her and drenched her with water, she pulls him off the ladder. Out on the street he sees a pretty girl hand a coin to a blind man, waves at her and she smiles.

With the "cook" holding the ladder, his wife climbs up to hang some clothes on a line. He walks away from the ladder to flirt with the girl, and his wife falls into the wash tub. As she arises from her tub, she sees her husband flirting with the girl, and calls to a policeman nearby. Together they start after the flirtatious husband. He passes an employment agency, goes in, is knocked over by a blow from a mop in the hands of a careless janitor. The janitor and the cook are sent to a candy store upon receipt of a call from the proprietor for an all-around man and a candy cook

"The cook" and the janitor interrupt the conduct of the business by their ignorance of the business, and nearly cause a riot when they unwittingly pull on a raveling from a young woman's skirt until the skirt is demolished and she faints at the sight of her uncovered lingerie. The irate wife and the policeman come on the scene at the opportune moment, capture the flirtatious husband and cart him off in a purloined play-wagon, leaving the candy store a dismantled wreck.

High-Class Publicity

Shortest Cut to Success

Former "Birth of a Nation" manager and Triangle representative offers attractive service that brings results. Wire, write or telephone.

HENRY MACMAHON

321 W. 55th St., New York Phone—Col. 2969

PHOTOPLAYS WANTED

Two or more Reel Comedies for Equity Motion Picture Company featuring Billy B. Van and Beaumont Sisters. Also, Five Reel Features for other clients.

Manuscripts Universal Society of Writers-Inc.

Literary Agents 220 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

ALL THE PLAYERS

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

MUSTANG.

"MARGY OF THE FOOTHILLS" (Three Parts—March 3.) The cast: Ben (Art Acord); Margy Gregg (Dixie Stratton); Joe Romez (Lawrence Peyton); Pasqual, Margy's servant (Joe Massey); John Gregg (Charles James). Directed by William Bertram.

Ben Marlin, a headstrong, virile young American from Arkansas, pushes westward to make his fortune. He reaches California and in a game of chance with Romez, the bandit, who is allowed to pillage on the outskirts of the valley under the protection of Charles Carrillo in return for services rendered to Carrillo, Ben wins a bracelet of peculiar design, and two thousand acres of poor land on which he decides to settle and raise cattle. His land adjoins the ranch of John Gregg, to the charms of whose daughter Margy, Ben quickly capitulates.

Carrillo, an influential landowner of Spanish descent, has a suave but sinister personality and ruthlessly pursues any means to accomplish his ends. On the occasion of an accident to his wife, Isabella, Carrillo meets Margy and is greatly impressed with her beauty.

Margy's father dies, and to escape her loneliness in a measure, she accepts Carrillo's invitation to visit their home and be a companion to Isabella. It doesn't take Margy long to discover his ruse and her repulse of his insulting attentions fire Carrillo with rage and a determination to humilate her. He instructs Romez to abduct the girl, take her to the bandits' Cactus Fortress—a plan to which Romez very readily agrees upon learning from the bracelet she wears as Ben's gift, that Margy is loved by the man who won his land from him.

Margy, driving home, is seized from her carriage and carried away to the fortress. Pasqual, her servant, on his way with a message to Ben, suspicions that something is wrong. He pieces the facts together and hastens to Ben for aid. The two set out for Romez's camp; Ben is trapped and bound, but is released by Pasqual and in the struggle Romez is killed. When Carrillo comes to claim the girl he finds Ben waiting to kill him. Under the shame of Margy's appeal for his release, Carrillo has a revulsion of feeling and turns and fights against the bandits on Ben's side. The bandits are killed in a hard won battle. Ben claims Margy and Carillo retires, a chastened and better man.

AMERICAN.

"THE HAPPY MASQUERADER" (Three parts—Feb. 28.) The cast: Elsa Dean (Winnifred Greenwood); Dick Thorn (Edward Coxen); George Davis, Cab Driver (George Fields); Frederick Hudson, Elsa's Guardian (Charles Newton); Annie, Davis' Child (Dodo Newton); John Thorn, Dick's Father (Ward McAllister.) Directed by Thomas Ricketts.

Richard Thorn, a wealthy young fellow, is advised of his father's death while hunting big game in Africa. He returns to look after his father's estate. At the station he takes a taxi driven by Davis, a man with a grudge against the world, and when Davis, enviously eying the luxury of the Thorn home, remarks that anyone can be happy with nothing to do but buy all the things one wanted. Thorn strikes the keynote of his philosophy of life in replying: "Happiness lies within—it isn't a question of money and luxury."

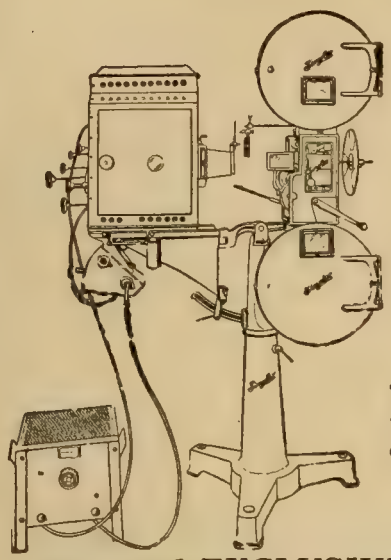
Thorn is driven to the club, where he is congratulated on his good luck, youth, good looks and wealth. Then Thorn, willing to prove his point that "happiness comes from within," offers to change places with some less fortunate man, and, remembering Davis, he calls him in and puts the proposition of surrendering his name, station and advantages to him. Thorn to take his place as cab driver for a period of two months.

Elsa Dean, the charming young ward of Frederick Hudson, is to receive a fortune upon her maturity or marriage. Hudson makes some unfortunate speculations, in which he loses his fortune and involves his ward's. Thorn's father had made his old friend Hudson a large loan for which Hudson had given his notes. Before he died, Thorn, Sr., had left instructions for his son to destroy these notes.

Davis, impersonating Dick Thorn, meets Hudson and his ward and determines to win her and her fortune, but he is repulsive to her and she has been attracted to Thorn, even though she thinks him only a chauffeur. Thorn takes up his abode in Davis' dingy quarters and plays "papa" to Davis' little daughter Annie, whom Davis' neglect has left in a pitable condition. Happiness under Thorn's tender care brings the child up for a time, but he sees she is fading away and finds an opportunity to inform Davis, who is utterly indifferent.

When Davis proposes, Elsa rejects him, and he attempts to force Elsa to marry him by threatening to collect the notes he has found. Hudson promises to make Elsa agree to the marriage, but Elsa, overhearing, runs out and to save herself from a relationship which would be loathsome to her, offers the waiting Thorn fifty thousand dollars if he will marry her within an hour.

LEADING MOTION PICTURE THEATRES DEMAND



Simplex

because of the FLICKERLESS PICTURES which it
PROJECTS.

Simplex

The ONLY MACHINE on which it is possible to set the shutter while the machine is in operation.

Simplex MACHINES are used EXCLUSIVELY by "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" EXHIBITIONS and LARGE THEATRES, such as:

Liberty Theatre, New York
Biltmore Theatre, New York
Stanley Theatre, New York
Broadway Theatre, New York
Tremont Theatre, Boston
Majestic Theatre, Boston
Savoy Theatre, Asbury Park
Illinois Theatre, Chicago
Trent Theatre, Trenton
Forest Theatre, Philadelphia
Nixon Theatre, Pittsburg
Olympic Theatre, St. Louis
Colonial Theatre, Norfolk
Nixon Theatre, Atlantic City

ALL THE THEATRES IN THE CHICAGO LOOP DISTRICT

SIMPLEX PROJECTORS are used in China, Canal Zone, Philippine Islands, Hawaiian Islands, and in the Army Posts all over the United States and the World.

Over 90% of the Film Manufacturers use Simplex Projectors in testing their product.

SIMPLEX PROJECTORS USED AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION BY:

U. S. GOVERNMENT
YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK
VIDACULTURE EXHIBIT
NEW ZEALAND BUILDING
DEPARTMENTAL THEATRES,
Nos. 1 and 2
U. S. STEEL CORPORATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION
UNITED SHOE MACHINERY CO.
PALACE OF EDUCATION
CALIFORNIA BUILDING

also by:

THE PACKARD MOTOR CAR COMPANY, Detroit
PHELPS, DODGE COMPANY, New York
BURTON HOLMES, The Traveler and Lecturer
NATIONAL CASH REGISTER CO., Dayton
AND OTHERS

ALL GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS DEMAND

Simplex

THE PROJECTOR THAT RECEIVED THE
GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

SEND FOR CATALOG "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

When Hudson learns of her marriage, he confesses to losing her fortune and is forgiven. Finding the request of Thorn's father, which Davis drops, Elsa determines to get possession of the notes. She goes to Thorn's home and is just taking the notes from the desk when Davis enters and takes advantage of the opportunity to force his unwelcome attentions upon the girl.

Little Annie dies on the day Thorn's agreement terminates. He sorrowfully relinquishes his trust and goes to the club where is is to meet Davis. Davis is late and Thorn calls him on the phone. Elsa answers the telephone and calls for help. Thorn explains to his friends that something is wrong and they hurry off to the Thorn home in time to save Elsa from Davis. Davis gets a summary dismissal, and Thorn claims his bride.

THANHOUSER.

THE REUNION (Three Parts—Feb. 23).—The cast: John Bowden (J. H. Gilmour); Martha Winthrop (Isode Illian); Martha Winthrop (later) (Inda Palmer); Relee (the dancer (Ethel Jewett).

Martha Winthrop had served during the Civil War as a trained nurse. During a bitter struggle with the enemy, she rescues John Bowden from death and then nurses him back to life. He promises to claim her for his bride after the war.

Martha lives in a small village near Washington, where she is loved by everybody for her kindness and charity. In this village are three old soldiers, the remaining members of a famous regiment. The time comes for the annual reunion of the G. A. R. and the three old men send Martha to the reunion to represent their regiment.

While watching the parade she sees the man she has dreamed about for half a century. She is overcome and is assisted to a hotel by a young man, who awakens memories of long ago in Martha's mind. She learns that he is the son of her old sweetheart and through him meets the man of her dreams. He learns that she has never received a letter written to her at the close of the war, but her long wait is rewarded by having her hero claim her.

CUB.

GOING UP (Feb. 25).—The cast: Jerry (George Ovey); Slim (George George); Blouie (Louis FitzRoy); Zowie (Jefferson Osborne); Bill (Arthur Mund); Jim (Henry Jackson); First Cop (Gordon McGregor); First Waitress (Louise Horner); Second Waitress (Janet Sully); Waiter (Robert Kenyon). Directed by Milton Fahrney.

Jerry decides he will discontinue the companionship of Slim and shoulder life's burden single handed. While the latter slumbers Jerry packs the combined wardrobe of the "firm" and attempts to make his exit by way of the window by means of a rope. But Slim is awakened by the noise. For a moment Slim watches the progress of Jerry and then decides to call him back. Half way down the rope, Jerry is interrupted by his slender companion, who demands that Jerry return. The latter, showing no such desire, Slim cuts the rope and sends Jerry sprawling on the ground. Jerry, however, runs off. But Slim is soon after him.

Jerry's flight is interrupted by a policeman, who becomes suspicious of him. Jerry is arguing with the cop when Slim arrives and soon the policeman is the target for a volley of blows directed at Jerry by Slim, Jerry neatly ducking each blow to finally run off, leaving the other two in a brawl. Jerry secludes himself in a nearby barn. He has scarcely hid himself when Zowie and Blouie—two "black hand" artists—enter the barn, one carrying a huge bundle of money and the other a suitcase. They spread the bills about and count it, while Jerry looks on. As Blouie and Zowie are about to place the money in the suitcase, Slim opens the door, sees what is going on and gets in unnoticed. The "money men" make their exit, thereby causing Jerry and Slim to come face to face once more. Another clash between the two is the outcome of the meeting, Slim coming out on top to hurry after the men with the money.

Jerry soon falls in line behind the trio, this being unknown to Slim, Zowie or Blouie. The journey brings the four to a wood, where Jerry hides from view, as does Slim, while the two plant their suitcase of money. A moment later a powerful explosive is placed in the suitcase and the money removed by the mysterious Bill and Jim, dealers in explosives, unseen by Jerry or Slim, who are backing up to get the money. Jerry arrives first, replaces the suitcase containing the explosive with his own and hurries off, believing that he has made an easy fortune. Slim at last detects the suitcase that Jerry left, and, thinking it is the one left by Zowie and Blouie, is delighted as he walks off with it. Slim sights a restaurant and decides to treat himself to a royal dinner. Satisfying his desire, Slim opens the suitcase to pay for the food and is knocked speechless when, instead of money, he finds an old shirt and collar and two bricks. He is thrown out.

Jerry arrives upon the scene in time to see Slim have the finishing touches administered. He is about to enter the food shop when Slim spies him and, believing Jerry has the suitcase with the money, he starts after him. The two race with Jerry leading easily until they finally come to the water's edge. Seeing no escape other than the water or on board of a liner which is about to depart, Jerry rushes up the gang-plank, bowls over the members of the crew who attempt to stop him and hides. Slim is a moment too late to make the ship, so he hails a couple of men in a small boat, tells the story of the suitcase of money and induces them to follow the liner. Jerry, seeing them coming, makes fruitless efforts to open the suitcase, and as Slim and the others come up a rope ladder on the side of the ship, Jerry plunges overboard and reaches the shore in safety, just as Slim and the others open the suitcase, causing an explosion which sends the liner to the bottom.

Mr. Manager:

THE PANNILL MIRO SCREEN HAS ALL THE GOOD FEATURES THAT ANY OTHER SCREEN HAS AND THEN SOME

WRITE NOW for sample and prices

Pannill Miro Screen Corp.
Norfolk, Va.

P. S.—See our ads in M.P.W. Feb. 12-19-26.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 60 (Feb. 24).

New York City.—T. R. sails for West Indies. He leaves on S. S. "Guiana" for 6 weeks' vacation.

San Francisco, Cal.—Noble gift to Japan's Emperor. Local colony sends $5,000 saddlers as coronation present.

Bergen, Norway.—Preserving Norwegian neutrality. The cruiser "Harald" and "Haarfager" guarding the entrance to the North Sea.

Seattle, Wash.—Twenty-four hour snowfall buries city. Worst storm in 25 years halts trame. Subtitle: Cathedral dome collapses under weight of snow.

Key West, Florida.—"Lost" undersea boat arrives here safely. The K-5 missed other boats at rendezvous and proceeds to naval station alone.

Tampa, Florida.—Annual Gasparilla carnival. King Gasparilla and his queen reign supreme.

Washington, D. C.—In memory of Lincoln. "Lest we forget." Subtitles: Henry Koons, 91, oldest surviving bodyguard. Ford's Theater where he was assassinated. His death-mask.

Ocean Beach, Cal.—A tribute to California's climate. While other sections of the country are in the grip of snow and ice, San Franciscans enjoy summer weather at famous beach.

Newburgh, N. Y.—Eastern speed skaters compete. Logan wins the honors. Subtitle: Ex-Governor Benj. B. Odell greets the winner.

Winchester, Mass.—Children study in the open air. They progress faster than those shut indoors.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth College winter sports carnival. Paulson "Loops the Loop" on skiis.

Fresno, Cal.—"Movies" invade rural districts. New auto invention generates electricity for projection machines wherever located.

Merced, Cal.—French Government buys horses here. The English prefer mules.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Munition snips burn at pier. Two die in midnight fire. Plot suspected to destroy war cargo for allies.

San Antonio, Texas.—New Municipal Zoo opens. Hungry wolves are fed.

Waynesburg, Pa.—Night fire wipes out business block. Loss, $150,000.

SIGNAL FILM CORP.

"THE GIRL AND THE GAME" (Chapter 9—Two parts—February 21.) Rhinelander secures right-of-way to enable him to complete the Superstition cut-off. Failing in previous attempts to defeat his rival, Seagrue resolves to adopt other methods. He apologizes to Helen for past acts, and approaches Rhinelander with a suggestion that they compromise and consolidate with their lines instead of running rival rails. Rhinelander refuses this offer and continues with his work.

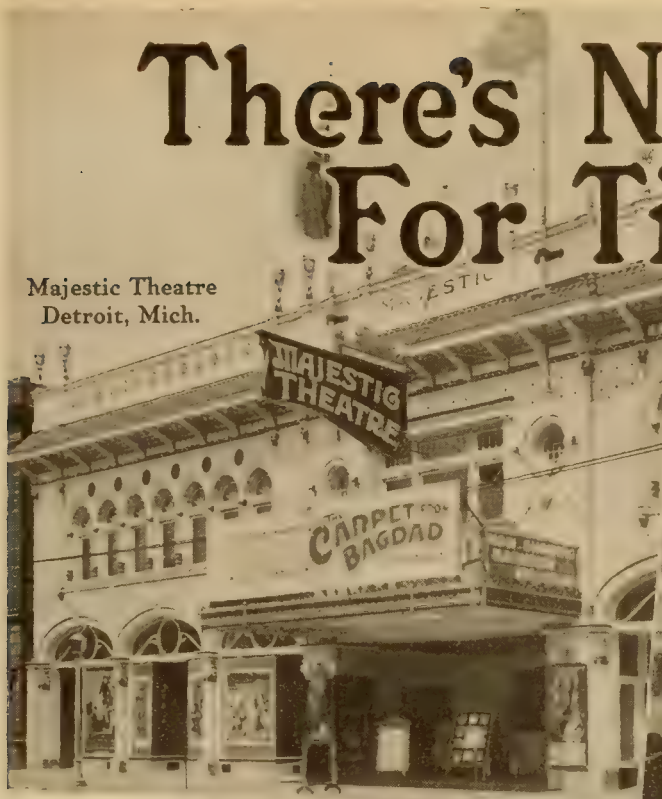
Unable to secure a right-of-way through Las Vegas, Seagrue suspends work. Seagrue blamed spike for Rhinelander's success, because Spike upset Seagrue's plan to kidnap Helen and steal Rhinelander's contracts, and holds Spike in submission with threats to turn him over to the police if he again crossed his employer.

Helen is unable to understand why Spike did not leave Las Vegas when she purchased clothes and a ticket for him, and for reasons best known to himself, Spike is unable to give a coherent explanation. Helen, Rhinelander and Storm feel the mystery which surrounds Spike's actions, but cannot fathom it.

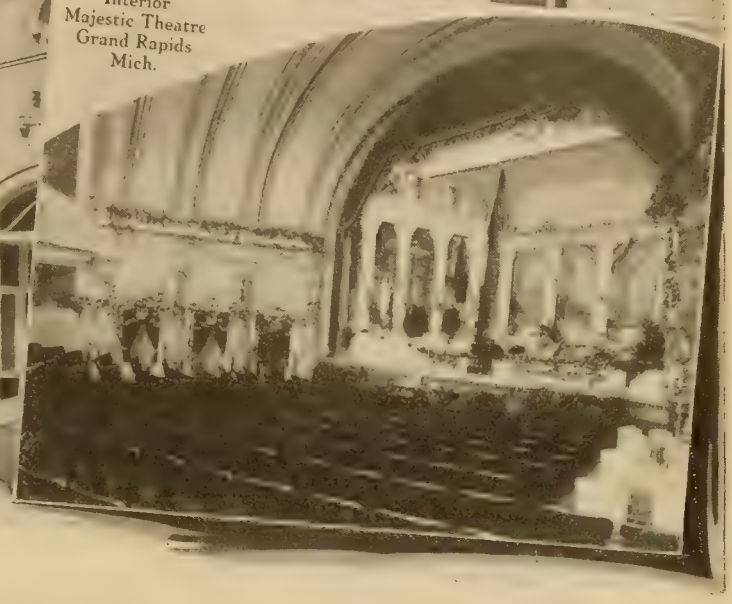
Bill, Seagrue's foreman, informs the dissatisfied workman that Spike is responsible for the lay-off and the mob set upon Spike, beating him mercilessly. The luckless fellow is rescued from the mob by Helen, Storm and Rhinelander. Rhinelander and Storm carry the semi-conscious Spike to a construction car while Helen dashes to the engine and pulls the

There's No Waiting For Tickets

Majestic Theatre
Detroit, Mich.



Interior
Majestic Theatre
Grand Rapids
Mich.



At These Theatres

They're Caille Equipped

The public detests standing in line waiting for tickets. This is true all year 'round but particularly these cold winter nights. No matter how good the pictures, waiting in line—getting chilled to the "core"—does not appeal to any human being. They would rather "pass up" the show. And you're the loser.

CAILLE

TICKET OFFICE DEVICES

Caille Double Ticket Seller

expedite the handling of crowds. They save time, save money, and create "good will." They embody all that is newest and best in Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Making Machines, Theatre Record Ledger Systems, Ticket Boxes, Tickets, etc. They are used in leading theatres everywhere.

The Caille Ticket Seller

Sells tickets ten times faster than the hand method. Eliminates errors. Every ticket sold is automatically registered by a register under lock and key. Delivers tickets in any quantity, and, mind you, separately. They can't lie across the knives of the chopper. Tickets are delivered by simply pressing a button. For tickets of different denominations, additional sections are installed. Each section has its individual motor for direct or alternating current.

Caille Ticket Choppers can be furnished for hand, foot or electric operation. They tear the tickets to shreds, making it absolutely impossible to use them again. Every chopper fully guaranteed.

Our Lightning Change Maker

does the calculating and delivers the change direct to the customer in the twinkling of an eye. It shortens the time of transaction, prevents errors and disputes with customers. Has a very simple keyboard conveniently arranged like a typewriter. Easy to operate, fully guaranteed. Send for Catalog Showing Complete Caille Line.

Caille Hand Operated Ticket Chopper. We also build Electric Ticket Choppers.

CAILLE BROTHERS COMPANY, 1001 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

train out. An accident cuts the car containing the men off from the rest of the train.

Helen sees the accident from the cab and realizes the danger of a collision with the main line passenger when the runaway car reaches Baird. She leaves the engine cab, and jumps into Seagrue's automobile nearby, starts the engine and races toward Arden Station. Reaching the station she throws the seat cushion through the window, attracting the attention of the agent to the message: "Runaway car from cut-off on main line. Stop passenger at Baird."

On top of the freight car, Storm tries to apply the brakes, but a link in the chain gives way, and the brakes are useless. Inside the car Spike revives. In the auto, Helen catches up with the car and races along behind it, signalling to the men to jump into the auto. Rhinelander jumps first and climbs into the front seat, then Storm, carrying the helpless Spike on his back, leaps to safety in the machine.

Helen steers the auto around the runaway car and travels on ahead at terrific speed. Storm drops off the back of the auto, and places stones on the rails ahead of the runaway car. The auto dashes safely down a steep embankment just as the freight car is derailed and thrown down into a deep arroyo from the railroad trestle above, allowing the oncoming passenger train to pass over in safety.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE.

"THE CRAVING" (Five parts—American—Feb. 26.) The cast: Foster Calhoun (William Russell); Margaret Cummings (Helene Rosson); Leroy Calhoun (Rea Berger); Oliver Bailey (Roy Stewart); Roby, Dancehall Girl (Charlotte Burton); Crooky, Crippled Newsboy (Robert Miller.) Directed by Charles Bartlett.

The story opens in Newbridge College at the height of the football season. Foster Calhoun is the star member of the team. He is an orphan, sent to college by his rich uncle, Leroy Calhoun. Foster and Oliver Bailey are in love with Margaret Cummings. Bailey is also a substitute for Foster's place on the team, which further complicates matters.

Brought face to face with disgrace for his gambling debts, Bailey determines to resort to drastic measures to turn the assured victory of his own college to defeat. Thus he hopes to win money to clear himself from debt. Overhearing Foster's uncle remark that the young hero possessed an inherited craving for drink of which he, himself, was not conscious, Bailey determines to use this as a means to secure his end. He sees to it that the trainer accidently uses alcohol in rubbing down Foster's face. To further his cowardly deed, Bailey leaves a bottle of alcohol in Foster's room. Naturally, with his taste for liquor aroused, Foster's instinctive craving gets the better of him and he hurriedly drains the bottle.

At the big game, Foster, on whom the victory rested, is found wanting. Bailey is substituted for the star, and as he has planned, loses the game for Newbridge. Foster is expelled for becoming intoxicated on the eve of battle—and his engagement to Margaret is called off. The remainder of the story is set in the West, where the shorn hero goes with one Crooky, a crippled newsboy, whom he finds in apparently as friendless a condition as he himself is in.

Crooky is a keen, philosophic little soul. There is Roby, an unscrupulous girl of the dance halls, who becomes infatuated with Foster because of his sheer brutal strength. She weaves her soft mesh about his liquor-fagged mind, and inveigles him into marrying her.

One day a letter comes which seems to frighten the brazen dance hall wench. She hides her excitement from Foster, but not from Crooky, who finds it and holds it as evidence against her. Soon after a stranger comes to the cabin where Roby and Foster and the cripple boy live. Foster comes back one day and finds his wife and the stranger drinking. He engages in combat with the man. During the struggle the lamp is overturned and Foster is left unconscious in the burning cabin. He is rescued by Crooky, who believes that Roby and her lover have also been suffocated.

Foster and Crooky flee to the mountains. There commences a terrific struggle in the older man's soul against the craving. Crooky finds a newspaper which tells of Leroy Calhoun's death, and further recounts the fact that the sole and only heir, Foster Calhoun, cannot be found. With almost uncanny wisdom, the lad writes the attorneys of Foster's whereabouts, and awaits an answer while he helps down his friend's thirst for rum.

At length the attorneys write Foster of his good fortune, and inclose a letter from his uncle, telling the young man that he, himself, was to blame, because he had never told him of his inherited taste for liquor. The latter also holds out hope of Margaret relenting, and half promises that she will marry him if he returns.

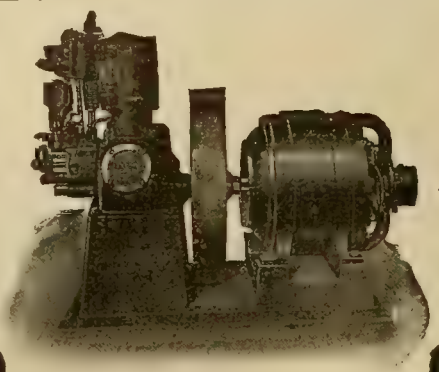
Developing and Printing

High Grade Work	Prompt Delivery
Developing Negative	1c. per foot
Printing	5c. per foot
Titles	8c. per foot

ATLAS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
709-10 Smith Bldg. Detroit, Mich.

EVERYTHING FOR YOUR PLAYHOUSE
MACHINES - SUPPLIES
REPAIR PARTS
HOMMEL'S
422 FIRST AVE., PITTSBURGH, PA.

Kindly Mention Moving Picture World
When Writing to Advertisers.



2 k. w. Direct-connected Outfit

The above shows our k. w. Direct-connected

Brush Electric Lighting Set

For many users our 4 k. w. Lighting Set is larger, and perhaps more expensive than necessary. The 2 k. w. outfit is just as good in its way as the other.

Send for catalogue

The Chas. A. Strelinger Company
Box MP-2
Detroit, Michigan, U. S. A.

Even at this auspicious moment The Craving does not end. There is still struggle upon struggle for the worthy Foster and Crooky, his slave. Not yet trusting himself, the young man remains in the clear air of the mountains until he feels that he has overcome his desire. When he returns, he returns to find that Bailey, who, too, has been in the West, has brought back Roby, not dead as Foster has thought, as a living testimony to the fact that Foster has tried to deceive Margaret.

Crooky, however, saves the day. He discloses a bit of conversation he had overheard between Bailey and the gamblers in a saloon, which clears Foster of any guilt on the day of the football victory years ago, and produces the letter which proves that Roby was married before she inveigled Foster into becoming, as he believed, her legal husband.

"THE HEART OF TARA" (Centaur—Five parts—March 4.) The cast: Captain Delmar (William Clifford); Rajah Selim (Sherman Bainbridge); Tara, First Favorite of the Rajah (Marie James); Soma, Present Favorite of the Rajah (Margaret Gibson); Dorothy Delmar (Marvel Spencer); Lieutenant Grey (Walter Spencer); Singh, a Hindoo Spy (Edward Alexander); Sahan, Assistant Spy (Edward Roberts); Timur, Another Spy (Gordon Russell). Directed by Wm. J. Bowman. Written by Theodore Harris.

Captain Delmar resumes command of Tower Post, India, after an absence of twenty years. In his commission is an order to make a secret investigation of some famous jewels, which are indemnity to the English crown and have mysteriously disappeared. The Rajah selim, an Indian prince, while reading the official communication that he is to pay his allegiance to Captain Delmar, relives the past, a past of hatred for the captain who, when a young man, was successful in winning of the heart of Tara, a Harem favorite of the prince. Captain Delmar really loved the Indian girl and, upon being called back to England, resolves to marry her. When he returns to the garden to get the girl, he finds her dead body. Her death is clothed in mystery and the young captain believes that she has been murdered by Hindoo slaves for the wonderful jewels she wears. He proceeds to England broken-hearted, but eventually marries an English girl. It is his daughter, Dorothy, now grown to young womanhood, whom he brings to India with him upon being ordered to the Post.

The Rajah has carried out a secret, but hideous revenge upon the girl Tara. It was he who had her stolen from the garden and stabbed her to death. Only the departure of the young English officer at that time had saved him from a similar fate and now that he has returned, as commanding officer of the Post, his revenge again burns deeply. With Hindoo subtlety he covers up his deep designs, giving the usual audience to the captain and his daughter. He places at the disposal of the young English girl some of his own court servants. These servants are headed by Sahan, spy, through whom the Rajah is to carry out his plot. There is a secret passage from the palace to the Post, the trap door entering to the library of the Captain. Through this secret passage the spy carries messages, and at the Rajah's command he cuts the telephone wires, intending that night to steal the Captain and his daughter and bring them to the palace.

By burning the bungalow he thinks to deflect suspicion, leaving the impression that they have been burned to death. The Captain, finding the telephone wires cut, has sent Lieutenant Grey, who is the fiancee of Dorothy, to a nearby post to investigate conditions. When the lieutenant returns he finds the bungalow burned and believes, as the Rajah has intended, that the Captain and his daughter have met their fate within it. In the meantime the Rajah has the Captain and the girl in his power. He tells the Captain that he will throw him into a cell and keep Dorothy for himself. The girl, as she sees her father dragged away, almost goes mad. Soma, the present favorite, but who has never won the love of the Rajah, as his heart is with the past, realizes the awful fate that is about to overtake the English girl, but can do little to help her.

Fate steps in when the girl loses her mind under the strain, and the superstition of the Rajah places her beyond the earthly pale. The lieutenant has discovered the secret passage. His suspicion aroused, he makes his way to the palace and comes upon his sweetheart and the Hindoo girl. Dorothy regains her mind when she sees her lover. When the Rajah is about to enter, Soma, now the guardian angel of Dorothy, tells the lieutenant that if he is to save the Captain and his daughter he must bring help. The lieutenant escapes through the secret passage and sends to a neighboring Post for a small company of cavalry.

Meanwhile the Rajah has discovered that Dorothy has regained her mind. He brings forth the jewels that once bedecked Tara. He adorns her with the jewels, has the Captain brought before him and shows him his daughter dressed as a harem favorite. He gives orders to have the beasts—lions of the royal menagerie—

FOR BETTER LIGHT AND LOWER COST USE SPEER CARBONS

ALL USERS RECOMMEND THEM!

ROMA THEATRE

Berlin, Ontario,
December 20th, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Rush me quick 100—5/8 x 12" carbons, the same as my last shipment. My operator says that they are the best carbons that he has used in a long time, and says that he gets a steadier light with less feeding than with any other carbon he has ever used.

Thanking you in advance for your immediate attention to this, I am

Sincerely,
Al. Beckerich, Mgr.

MADE IN THE MOST UP-TO-DATE CARBON PLANT IN U. S. A.

NET CASH PRICES

1/2x12, cored, pointed both ends, $37.50 per M. (1,000 in a case)
9/16x12, cored, pointed both ends, $40.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
5/8x12, cored, pointed both ends, $50.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
3/4x12, cored, pointed both ends, $70.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
7/8x12, cored, pointed one end, $115.00 per M. (500 in a case)
1x12, cored, pointed one end, $150.00 per M. (500 in a case)

We Fill Sample Orders for 100 Carbons at the Above Pro Rata Prices

TRADE MARK

Speer Carbon Company Dept. "W"

(Makers of carbon for Electrical purposes during the past 25 years)

Saint Mary's, Pa.

For Sale by Leading M. P. Machine Distributors, Including the Following:

J. H. Hallberg, 36 East 23rd St., New York, N. Y.
E. E. Fulton Co., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Co., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

starved. Soma has secreted herself in Dorothy's room, with the intention of stabbing the Rajah when he comes. The Captain is dragged forth to the jungle. The Rajah goes to bring Dorothy before he shall give the final order. The young Lieutenant arrives with his company and a battle ensues, as they are denied admittance to the palace. When the Captain is freed through this timely interference, he rushes to save his daughter and arrives just in time, as the arm of the brave Soma is not strong enough to deliver the death she intends. They find upon Dorothy the jewels that are sought by the English government.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 13 (Feb. 12).

Washington, D. C.—Two of the members of President Lincoln's bodyguard still enjoy a hale and hearty old age. Subtitle: Ford's Theater in which Lincoln was shot, April 14, 1865.

Poland, Russia.—Peasants set to work to rebuild their homes, shattered by the ravages of war. Subtitle: Meanwhile they live as best they can.

Washington, D. C.—Lindley M. Garrison, who has resigned his position as Secretary of War on account of the defeat of his Continental Army scheme.

Roosevelt, Ariz.—Owing to unusual floods enough irrigating water is stored in the famous Roosevelt dam to last three years. Subtitle: Water flows over the spillways for the first time on record.

Tampa, Fla.—The submarine K-5, recently reported as lost, rejoins its squadron assembled here.

Goldust, Tenn.—Thousands of homes are abandoned when the Mississippi River overflows its banks and inundates the entire region for many miles. Subtitles: 1. Residents soon adapt themselves to the Venice mode of transportation. 2. Railroad trains sail on their way at reduced speed.

Washington, D. C.—A successful trial is made of a new life saving suit which is easily portable in a suit case. Subtitles: No longer will the submarines be feared, now that it is so easy to walk in the briny deep. The diver is perfectly dry after his immersion.

Washington, D. C.—The advent of Spring brings a flood of requests to the Agricultural Department for seeds, which the Government distributes freely to encourage better farming. Subtitle: Plants are carefully examined and all distressed ones are remorselessly destroyed.

Ithaca, N. Y.—The new Military Tractor Biplane averages 95 miles an hour in its trial flight, breaking all American speed records.

Souchez, France.—Relieved after twenty days fighting in the muddy trenches, the soldiers' first rush is for the improvised shower baths.

Salonica, Greece.—British troops bivouac by the wayside while enroute to reinforce the Allied lines of defense outside the city. Subtitle: After their rest the troops assemble and pack their kit ready for the transport wagons.

Chicago, Ill.—(Except Boston, Los Angeles, Portland & Seattle) The big demand for artificial limbs in Europe has increased the output of United States factories by 500 per cent. Subtitles: Most of the employees of the Rowley factory are men who have themselves lost limbs. The legs are carefully inspected before being packed for shipment.

Winchester, Mass.—(Boston only) Open-air study is introduced in the schools, and the pupils in Eskimo clothes, find the frigid air a great aid in their quest for knowledge.

Boston, Mass.—(Boston only) When a water main laid on the bottom of the harbor breaks a diver is sent down to ascertain the cause of the trouble. Subtitles: The obstruction is hoisted up. A novel contrivance is used for repairing the broken connection.

PATHE NEWS, NO. 14 (Feb. 16).

Genoa, Italy.—The greatest conflagration in many years, believed to be the work of incendiaries, destroys an immense quantity of war munitions stored on the quays. Subtitle: 1—The fireboats find it difficult to subdue the flames.

Salonica, Greece.—General Israil, commander of the Allied troops, orders the occupation of the German Consulate. Subtitles: 1—The Austrian Consulate shares the same fate. 2—British soldiers also occupy the Turkish Consulate.

Warsaw, Russia.—The famous Wurtemberg regiment of infantry, first to enter the town, at the time of its capture, drills daily in the municipal park.

St. Louis, Mo.—The recipient of the prize in the national contest for the ugliest man in America, well deserves his distinction.

Easy Focusing

The carbons of the alternating-current arc both burn considerably and therefore both must be adjusted often in order that the arc shall be in the correct position to give proper focus and light distribution of the picture on the screen. Only the one carbon of the direct-current arc burns appreciably and the latter is therefore more easily kept in focus.

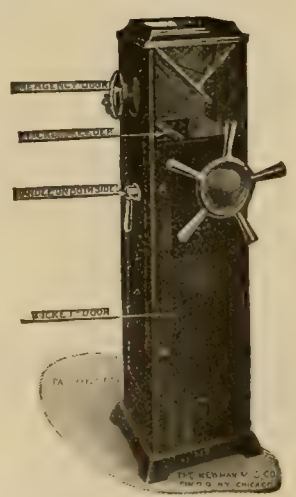
If your electric service is alternating current, a

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

will convert it into the direct current you need. Much of the time that the operator spent in focusing with the alternating-current arc can then be spent in giving better attention to operating the film mechanism, giving better and more even pictures and therefore pleasing your patrons all the more. Write for folder 4205-A for details.

Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co.
Dept. XR. East Pittsburgh, Pa.

"NEWMAN" TICKET CHOPPER



Safeguard against having your tickets used over again and resold. Circumstances sometimes cause many men to yield to temptation. Newman's ticket choppers positively chop and positively insure you against any collusion between ticket seller and ticket taker. The most practical and most attractive choppers made. Write in for 1916 Catalog of Ticket Choppers, Brass Frames and Rails.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.

NEW YORK 101 Fourth Ave.
CINCINNATI 717-719 Sycamore St.
CHICAGO 68 W. Washington St.

Established 1882

Throgg's Neck, N. Y.—The artillery corps of the New York Militia stirred by the call of preparedness keep in trim by frequent drilling. Subtitle: 1—Firing the six-inch gun.

Newburgh N. Y.—Crack skaters compete in a keen contest for the Eastern speed championship. Subtitle: 1—"Bobby" Logan retains his title as Eastern champion.

Tampa Fla.—United States troops and Jackies join the procession of merrymakers in celebrating the annual carnival. Subtitle: 1—The "Sea Shell" float is truly symbolic of Florida's sunny clime.

San Francisco Cal.—The "Los Angeles" is one of the ships launched in the effort of Pacific Coast owners to increase the number of vessels sailing under the Stars and Stripes.

Chicago Ill.—Several thousand school children participate in the unveiling of Lincoln bust in Chicago Stock Yards. (Chicago only.)

New York City.—(Except copies for Seattle Portland.) Though the training ship Newport is still actively educating the young in the art of navigation its continuance is being seriously debated. Subtitles: 1—The students are expert in the handling of the life-boat. 2—Their training also includes the method of sail making.

Otay Cal.—(Except copies for Los Angeles.) The once beautiful valley of the Otay is left barren and desolate by the receding waters that inundated the entire region. Subtitle: 1—Marines from the warships nearby bring aid to the distressed inhabitants.

Hanover N. H.—(Except copies for Chicago.) Dartmouth College students exhibit real Alpine skill on skiis in their annual winter games. Subtitle: 1—Skii racing with horses is an exciting feature.

Peekskill N. Y.—Members of the National Guard caught in the icy grip of the country-wide cold snap can now appreciate the war conditions on the Russian front. Subtitles: 1—The youth of Seattle Washington which also experienced severe snow conditions goes in for a little trench fighting. 2—Alaskan transport methods are used. 3—But they should worry at Palm Beach.

Cary Ill.—(Chicago only.) Chicago Norge Club skiiers make some thrilling jumps at the annual tournament. Subtitle: 1—Miss Hildur Erlandsen is the winner of the cross country race.

BY THE ZUYDER ZEE (Picturesque Holland) (Photocolor)—(Feb. 21).—The quaintness of Holland is especially appealing to Americans. This little dike-bounded country of the Netherlands is delightfully pictured in this subject. The little houses built on deep-driven piles, the peculiar customs of the natives, their pleasures and labors; all are most interesting and instructive. Little children dressed up in their best; the "wiseacres" of the village imparting wisdom to their auditors; daughters of fishermen helping their parents to repair the nets for the next trip, and other appealing scenes are shown.

ALONG THE DES CHUTES RIVER (Picturesque America—Globe—On same reel as foregoing).—Of all the beautiful spots in Oregon the region along the Des Chutes Rives is probably the most beautiful in point of natural splendor. This river, which flows through the Des Chutes Canyon, a rift which reaches a depth of 2,500 feet, breaks into a roaring rapids, called the White Horse Rapids, where it is tossed about until it is churned into foam. Great engineering feats were accomplished along its banks. In building the Trunk Railroad, the engineers were confronted with some master problems, but conquered them.

STARVED TO DEATH IN A RESTAURANT (Starlight—Feb. 23).—Heinie and Louise wander into a local beanery, where Beautiful Bertha holds forth as the purveyor of victuals. Of course it's up to them to get as much stuff as possible without paying for it, and they proceed to load up with eatables—both inside and out. But in their endeavors they run afoul of Ben the Blacksmith, the local tyrant and all-around strong man, who is strong for the girl behind the counter. This worthy gives them an awful deal and, as usual, they come off second best.

THE RED CIRCLE NO. 11, "Seeds of Suspicion" (Balboa—Two Parts—Feb. 26).—June and Gordon are together in Detective Lamar's office. Gage, the detective's clerk, tries to enter, but June locks the door. He smashes the glass in an attempt to get at the key and June handcuffs him to the inner door-knob. But Gage catches a glimpse of the Red Circle on June's hand as she and Gordon flee. Later, by a clever ruse, she obtains the documentary evidence that the charges against Gordon are false. Suspicion points to her as the thief. What will Lamar do now? Returning home, June finds that "Smiling" Sam is in the house. The situation is critical.

The next episode is called "Like a Rat in a Trap."

Censorship Threatened In New York

The worst of all the censorship bills has just been introduced in the New York Legislature by Assemblyman Ahearn of Brooklyn. In the Moving Picture World of this week will be found its full text.

Fight
the Bill

by Attending the Great

Exhibitors' Rally

Albany, N. Y., March 1st and 2nd
Hotel Ten Eyck

The meeting will be called to order at the Hotel Ten Eyck at 10:30 A. M., by State President Lee A. Ochs

Address of Welcome, by state or city official.

Organization of the meeting, election of officers of the meeting, appointment of committees.

Recess at 1 o'clock.

Address, "The Present Perils of Censorship in New York State," by W. Stephen Bush. —Discussion and Suggestions.

Address, "Constructive Legislation for the New York State Exhibitor," by Lee A. Ochs, State President.

Address, "State Organization," by Samuel H. Trigger, National Vice-President.

MARCH 2nd

10:00 A. M.—Address, "Organization," by Frederick J. Herrington, National President of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.
Discussion and Applications for Membership.

11:30 A. M.—Address, "The Sunday Entertainment in New York State," by a prominent clergyman whose name will be announced later.

Recess

2:30 P. M.—"The Needs and the Just Grievances of the Exhibitor." Address by Mr. L. F. Blumenthal, a New York Exhibitor.

All communications on this subject may be forwarded to Mr. Blumenthal, 110 W. 40th St. (Room 403), who will incorporate them into his program.

On this subject general discussion is invited. Methods of payment, protection of exhibitor in contracts and other vital matters will be taken up and some definite action will be taken.

Meeting will end with banquet at 8 p. m.

If Your House Is In New York State, Come To Albany March 1st and 2nd

LEE A. OCHS, Pres. N. Y. State Exhibitors' League

Miscellaneous Features

PARAMOUNT.

PARAMOUNT—HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES, "The Cliff Dwellers of America" (Feb. 7.)—The first picture of the new Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel pictures recount Mr. Holmes' motor trip of the summer of 1915 through the more picturesque and interesting portions of New Mexico. As the journey leads through the lands of the former cliff-dwellers and former and present occupants of these prehistoric apartment houses called pueblos, Mr. Holmes chose to begin his trip at Chicago, there to see the cliff-dwellers of today threading in countless throngs the deep "Canyons" flanked on each side by the abodes of the modern "Cliff-dwellers." This is but a momentary glimpse, as the train is seen taking the audience to Santa Fe.

From Santa Fe the travelers are taken to the famous pueblo of Taos and thence to the even more celebrated pueblo of Acoma, which was just as old, to all appearances, when the Spanish Conquistadores came up out of Old Mexico in 1740, to convert the Indians and conquer the country in the name of their King.

Across the desert, through forests, fording the flooded streams in their motor car, visiting ranches, herding sheep and busting broncbos—these and many more incidents of a most delightful trip through a beautiful country, Mr. Holmes and his party finally reach the rim of the Grand Canyon and ride a short way down its dizzy trail at Bright Angel, just to whet the appetite of the audience to what is to follow in the next travel installment.

THE GRAND CANYON OF ARIZONA (Feb. 14).—The second release in the series picks up Mr. Holmes' fellow-travelers at the very brink of the Grand Canyon, just as a train has arrived at the El Tovar Hotel, disgorging its human freight. Before the descent of the Canyon trails is made the audiences are taken to various celebrated Lookout points, from which the more notable views of this gigantic marvel of Nature may be viewed to the best advantage.

The Grand Canyon is over a mile deep, twelve miles wide and two hundred and seventeen miles long. Through its lowest depths, the Colorado river still cuts its twisting path, carrying with it thousands of tons of silt and other matter, thus continuing its work of making the Canyon deeper and deeper as the centuries roll on. The travelers then begin the perilous descent of the Canyon, which is more than 6,000 feet deep.

Down to the very rapids of the muddy Colorado, Mr. Holmes takes his party, there to stand on the shore and watch the frightful power of the river as it alternately dashes itself into mountains of foam on the huge boulder in its bed or flows again with flat, sullen surface. Mr. Holmes takes his audiences down the Bright Angel Trail and down the newer Hermit Trail, and also by stage and by motor along the new Rim Road. He shows them everything to be seen, including Capt. John Hance, who built the Hance Trail and other trails, and used to be, as he still is, one of the notable features of the trip to the Grand Canyon.

A DAY WITH THE WEST POINT CADETS (Feb. 21).—For his third picture in his series, Mr. Holmes takes his audience on a visit to our National Military Academy at West Point, there to study the daily life of Uncle Sam's Cadets, the future generals who in after years will lead the armies of the United States.

Mr. Holmes' series of West Point pictures show all the phases of our Cadets' lives of study, drill and play. They also give a knowledge of the beautifully situated military academy itself, its fine buildings for study, its drill halls, its mess hall, the parade grounds, Flirtation Walk, the old historic reminiscences of Revolutionary days, and even glimpses of the serving room, during the Sunday dinner hour, when hundreds of roast chickens and gallons upon gallons of ice cream are served to the young soldiers.

Building of pontoon bridges, daring artillery and cavalry drilling, target practice, mounted and dismounted, infantry drill, dress parade, guard mount—all these features of life at West Point are interestingly depicted.

"MADAME LA PRESIDENTE" (Morosco—Five parts—Feb. 7.) The cast: Mlle. Gobette (Anna Held); Cyprian Gaudet, Minister of Justice (Forrest Stanley); Augustin Galipaux (Herbert Standing); Octave Rosimond (Page Peters); Mme. Galipaux (Lydia Yeamans Titus); Denise Galipaux, the daughter (Helen Eddy); Marius (Howard Davies); Leroux (Dick LaStrange); De Berton (Robert Newcomb); Piaglet (Frank Bonn).

The story tells of the troubles started by the fondness for gaiety of three mature French judges. With an eye to securing his good graces, they enjoy losing an occasional game of whist to their superior, Judge Galipaux. M. Galipaux's life burden is an ambitious wife.

An escapade with the leading lady of a theatrical troupe, Mlle. Gobette, lands the three judges on the carpet for a severe reprimand. The offending actress is evicted from the hotel.

Like an inspiration, a way out of their predicament comes to one of the offenders. That night on returning from seeing his wife on her train to Paris, M. Galipaux finds his house occupied by a strange but very beautiful woman, who refuses to leave.

Unexpectedly M. Gaudet, the handsome and irreproachable Minister of Justice, arrives. He is fascinated by Gobette whom he believes to be Mme. Galipaux. Still posing as Mme. Galipaux, Gobette comes to Paris to call upon him. Scenting a possible scandal, Marius, the head usher, lays a trap. Mlle. Gobette calls and the trap is sprung.

From then on events crowd quickly upon poor Gaudet, but through humorous situations and startling perplexities he remains undaunted to emerge triumphant.

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE" (Lasky—Five parts—Feb. 14.) Bob Heaton is an internal revenue officer, working in the mountains of Virginia, hunting for whiskey stills which are supposed to be located somewhere near the Lonesome Pine Trail. Being unsuccessful, Heaton calls in the district revenue officer, Jack Hale. Through a spy, the Tolliver clan, who are the moonshiners, hear that Hale has arrived to help Heaton in his investigation. June Tolliver, the daughter of old Judd Tolliver, the head of the clan, pretends to have a sprained ankle at the foot of the big Lonesome Pine and when Hale comes along, he carries her to the cabin where he is captured by the moonshiners. Knowing they must work fast to get their illegal whiskey out of the county, old Judd Tolliver leaves Dave, his nephew, who is also in love with June, to guard Hale, while the rest of the gang rush the whiskey to the railroad.

The increasing friendliness between June and Hale arouses Dave's jealousy, and he forces Hale to live in the cowshed. After several days of imprisonment Hale is able to set the straw in the shed on fire, burn through his rope bounds and escape. Hale gets back to town and with a posse starts for an old deserted shack where he thinks the illegal whiskey is hidden and where he expects to arrest the gang of moonshiners. The posse surround the cabin and upon breaking into it, after a sharp fight, find only June. The remainder of the gang escape through an underground passageway.

Hale sends a note to Heaton, saying that he will take his posse and look for the escaped moonshiners along the south trail and for Heaton and his posse to go along the north trail. There is an understanding between Hale and Heaton that the order of all notes is to be reversed. A spy is sent to deliver the note to Heaton and he pauses long enough to show its contents to the Tollivers. None of them can read except June, and she, wishing to protect her sweetheart, reverses the directions so that, instead of sending the moonshiners to meet Heaton, she throws them directly in Hale's path, which was directly opposite to what she intended to do.

Hale is met and riddled with bullets by the moonshiners, who carry him to the cabin. There June pleads with her stern father to do something to save Hale's life. This Judd refuses to do, even though she confesses her love for the revenue officer. The men go out, leaving Dave behind. June induces Dave to ride for a doctor. Dave meets the posse in charge of Heaton and learns that he had had medical experience. He then tells Heaton where Hale is and the posse surround the cabin and by force of numbers induce the mountaineers to surrender. Heaton patches Hale up and then tells the moonshiners they will be permitted to go free if they will destroy their still. This old Judd Tolliver agrees to do. The old man discovers that Dave had been a traitor and shoots him.

Hale rapidly recovers under June's nursing. He begs June to marry him, but she says she cannot leave her father, who has nothing left but her. Hale pleads, but in vain, and starts down the trail alone. Old Judd sees that June is sacrificing everything to be loyal to him and calls Hale back, telling him June wants to see him. Hale returns and June sees through her father's ruse and her heart is glad.

Back near the Lonesome Pine old Judd walks slowly down the trail and into sunset.

HE FELL IN LOVE WITH HIS WIFE (Pallas—Five Parts—Feb. 17).—The cast: Alida Armstrong (Florence Rockwell); James Holcroft (Forrest Stanley); Wilson Ostrom (Page Peters); Bridget Malony (Lydia Yeamans Titus); Tom Watterly (Howard Davies).

Alida Armstrong is married to Wilson Ostrom. She is contented. Ostrom lives in fear of discovery by his deserted wife. The deserted wife with her brother find where he

My Brains and Experience Are For Hire

I have been general manager of a concern producing some of the most successful features released at a cost far below the average.

I KNOW the motion picture business from script to screen, including scenario writing, casting, advertising, publicity, exploitation, sales and executive management.

I desire to connect with a reputable motion picture manufacturer or releasing concern either in the east or west where my abilities may serve the most good.

It is important to know that my reputation and standing in the trade generally, including exchangemen and exhibitors is of the highest.

Address,
Box "L. S.,"
M. P. World
17 Madison Avenue
New York City.

Speedeo
Arc Controller

will feed your projection arc
— save money —
and maintain better illumination than you have ever known

Canadian Inquiries To Dowsley & Ross - Winnipeg

Speed Controller Company, Inc.
257-259 William Street New York

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

USED FILMS FOR SALE
One-Two-Three-Four and Five Reels
Features of High Quality and Single Reels of Comedy and Drama
$5 per reel to $15 per reel
ALL MAKES OF FILMS MADE BY DEPENDABLE MANUFACTURERS
GOLDEN GATE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.
Established 1906
SOL L. LESSER, President
234 Eddy St., San Francisco, Cal.

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th St. New York City

THE STERLING CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

SIMPSON'S SOLAR SCREEN AND CELEBRATED SLIDES
113 W. 132nd Street, New York
Pat. June, 1908

SHOULD A BABY DIE

Another timely feature production on the
STATE RIGHTS BASIS
Produced by the Chas. K. Harris Film Co.
In five parts, featuring
Arthur Donaldson and Gazelle Marshe
Hanover Film Co., Inc.
Suite 904, Columbia Theatre Bldg.
Telephone 9544 Bryant NEW YORK CITY
Owners and Distributors of the Great Itala Film Production
MARVELOUS MACISTE. IN 6 Parts The Giant of Cabiria

ATTENTION
PRODUCERS AND DIRECTORS
COMPLETE OUTFIT OF THE 101 RANCH
Wild West Show at your services
Will rent entire outfit or any part thereof or will produce on footage basis from now until opening date the latter part of April, and after that date arrangements can be made for the continuance of producing with the ample permanent equipment on the Ranch.
Most Complete Collection of Western Paraphernalia Attainable including Cowboys, Cowgirls, Soldiers, Indians, Thousands of Longhorn Steers, Horses, Buffalo, Prairie Schooners, Stage Coaches and all other necessary equipments necessary for producing spectacular western features. Over 100,000 acres to select locations from with beautiful streams, lakes, timber, prairie, mountain settlers' huts and a typical western town.
Wire us your wants. ACT QUICK.
MOTION PICTURE DEPARTMENT
MILLER BROS. 101 RANCH, BLISS, OKLA.

BRAINS
Coupled with money, determination and perseverance
HAVE PRODUCED
The last word in projection screen development.
THE SEAMLESS MIRROROID SCREEN!
You know the Mirroroid record, and the 9,500 satisfied Mirroroid users, is positive proof that Mirroroid cannot be equalled as a projection surface.
ARE YOU GETTING ALL YOU SHOULD RECEIVE FROM YOUR THEATRE?
ARE YOUR RECEIPTS WHAT THEY COULD OR SHOULD BE?
Get Busy! Write or wire for large, free samples. Let us show you. Join the army of satisfied Mirroroid users. Be a success in deed as well as name.
3 colors: SILVER WHITE, SILVER FLESH, PALE GOLD — We give you a 5-year guarantee
Patents that really protect. Issued June 9, 1908; Feb. 16, 1915.
Yours for projection contentment,
J. H. GENTER CO., Inc. Newburgh, N. Y.

lives. Confronting Alida, the wife reveals Ostrom's duplicity. Ostrom shoots the brother, and in horror and despair Alida flees, bareheaded, out into a terrific tempest.

Semi-dazed and exhausted, she is rescued by a policeman and taken to the poor-house. While convalescing Alida meets and marries James Holcroft, a handsome farmer, who comes seeking a housekeeper. He has had a long series of wretched housekeepers. Holcroft mourns for his dead wife. Alida falls in love with Holcroft, but he does not know it. His thoughts are all of the farm. Holcroft's neighbors show their disapproval of his poor-house bride by a mock serenade. They become boisterous and ugly-tempered. Holcroft, single-handed, drives them, after a severe fight, from the place. Holcroft is wounded in the head. By chance Ostrom, now a widower, finds Alida. The emotions of the meeting; the decisions that it causes to be made, and of the causes of the fatal struggle on the cliff edge, where Holcroft comes into the full glory of his awakened love the film story tells in a dramatic manner.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

RUPERT OF HENTZAU (Bluebird—March 6—Five parts.) The cast: Rudolf Rassendyll and King Rudolf V of Ruritania (Henry Ainley); Queen Flavia (Jane Gail); Col. Sapt (Charles Rock); Count Rischenehim (George Bellamy); Lieut. Bernonstein (Warwick Wellington); Chancellor's Wife (Stella St. Andrie). Founded on Anthony Hope's play of the same title. A sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda." Directed by Geo. L. Tucker.

Three years have passed since Rudolf Rassendyll crushed Black Michael and held the throne of Ruritania for the helpless prisoner of Zenda, and King Rudolf V forgets that he owes both his life and his crown to the Englishman. Rudolf V is full of jealous suspicions of his Queen, the beautiful Flavia, because of her known love for Rassendyll.

Flavia sends a letter of final dissolution of their love to Rassendyll. This falls into the hands of Bauer, a spy of Rupert of Hentzau's who would use it as a lever for obtaining a pardon from the King for his share in the Black Michael conspiracy. A copy of this letter is sent to the King, and Rupert retains the original.

When the Englishman hears of the stolen letters he sets out himself for Zenda. A telegram is sent to Rupert telling him to meet the King at the hunting lodge in the forest with the original letter. The Englishman intends to keep the appointment himself in person and make an end of Rupert of Hentzau.

Rupert comes to the lodge and is surprised at the manner of his reception, the King and his solitary servant seizing their arms in utter consternation, at the sight of this young outlaw. As the King will not listen to his story or taken the casket he proffers, Rupert tosses it at him contemptuously and kills the faithful attendant who had sprung forward to avenge his insolence. The King, now certain that his old enemy has come to assassinate him, fires and misses. Rudolf retailiates, with a fatal shot. By an accidental fire at the lodge that night both corpses were burned beyond recognition.

Rassendyll will not wait to consider anything until the letter in Rupert's possession is destroyed. They meet, swords are drawn, and Rupert of Hentzau comes to his death. Old Sapt tells them of the destruction of the hunting lodge and insists that it is Mr. Rassendyll's body which has been burned beyond recognition. Rassendyll passes himself off as the King, and at night the spy Bauer, crept into the gardens to avenge his master's death and Rassendyll falls mortally wounded by the traitor's bullet.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

THE PRICE OF MALICE (Rolfe Photoplays, Inc.—Five Parts—Feb. 21).—The cast: James Clifford (Hamilton Revelle); Grace Weston (Barbara Tennant); Capt. Mills (Wm. Davidson); Lady Marion (Helen Dunbar); Lord Deuberry (Wm. Calhoun); Carson (Frank Glendon); Cabman (Hugh Jeffery); Colonel Brendon (Wm. Heck). Directed by O. A. C. Lund.

Col. Brendon, Chief of the English Diplomatic office, upon his departure for France, turns the office over to Capt. Mills, with the understanding that Jim Clifford, one of the ablest men in the Secret Service, will assist him. Among the papers left in Capt. Mills' care is a valuable document marked "File 117."

Capt. Mills invites the boys of the war office to his apartment to play cards. Jim goes but does not play. He amazes them by explaining that he possesses the almost uncanny ability to tell the value of his opponents' hand. Capt. Mills loses heavily. In a rage he accuses Jim of being a sharp, and that he has been assisting one of the players by coaching him from behind. Jim resents this, and in a quarrel that follows Capt. Mills throws a glass of whiskey in his face. Later, his friends convince the Captain that he was in the wrong and owes Jim an apology. The Captain apologizes, but decides to give him an impossible task to perform and thus discredit him.

Capt. Mills goes to the war office that night and abstracts "File 117" and the next day instructs Jim to search for it. At the end of a week he rebukes Jim for his unsuccessful search. Capt. Mills and Jim are invited by Lady Marion to spend the week-end at her place in the country. Capt. Mills acepts the invitation, but Jim remains behind to continue his search. He meets a cabman who asks him to return a cigarette case the Captain left in his cab a week before. Jim questions the cabman and learns that the Captain went to the war office after the card game in his home.

Jim breaks into Capt. Mills' apartment, and after drugging the butler searches the premises. He fails to find the missing paper. Jim then learns that Capt. Mills is going with the week-end party for a short cruise in the beautiful Grace Weston's yacht. He disguises himself and succeeds in getting aboard. The next day the yacht tears a great hole in her side, when she crashes into treacherous drift ice. The entire party and crew, excepting Grace and Jim, get away in the life boats and are picked up by a steamer and taken back to England. Jim picks Miss Weston out of the water, in an unconscious condition, and takes her aboard a life raft. They land on an island along the coast. When they become hungry Jim suggests that he try to catch some fish, and asks his companion if she can spare anything from her apparel to use for a fishing line. While unlacing a string from her corset, she accidentally drops the missing papers from her bodice, which Mills had given her to keep for him. She recovers the papers quickly, but Jim decides to get them.

The next day Jim and Grace are rescued, and taken back to England. In the meantime Col. Brendon has heard of the missing file, and calls Capt. Mills to task. The Captain, thinking the papers are lost with Grace, and knowing that Jim is mysteriously missing, places the blame upon him. Jim arives, tells the Colonel of his experience, and is promptly promoted. Capt. Mills is dismissed from the service, and Grace, learning the truth of matters, finds that she has a growing interest in Jim.

FOX FILM CORP.

"FIGHTING BLOOD" (Five parts—Feb. 20.) Lem Hardy, a Kentuckian, comes from a long list of fighters who have won renown for courage on the battlefield and in the daily walks of life. Hardy is working in a lumber camp owned by Henry Colby when he falls in love with the latter's daughter, Evie. He is not the sole aspirant to her hand, however, for Blake, the camp superintendent, is also an admirer of Evie.

Blake and one of his workmen steal the company's pay roll and lay the blame on Hardy. Unable to refute the evidence brought against him, Hardy, now reduced in the eyes of Evie, is sent to prison. During his imprisonment Evie marries Blake, who, gripped by the gambling fever, induces his father-in-law to plunge in the stock market.

Upon Hardy's discharge from prison he becomes a minister and returns to the small community in which he lived when wrongfully charged with crime. His first church service is interrupted by a gang of toughs whom he finds it necessary to evict. His action, of course, arouses horror in the hearts of the church heads, and he is about to be unfrocked when he decides to go West.

Blake and Evie, now poverty stricken as the result of the former's drinking and gambling, have also struck out into the West. Hardy is aware of this fact and he is also aware that it was Blake who sent him to prison. Hardy begins a campaign of conversion in Red Dog, but his efforts do not meet with approval by the miners. He is preaching in a saloon when the bully of Red Dog orders him to quit. Not until he has licked the bully, who afterwards becomes his staunch supporter, is he allowed to continue the service. Hardy eventually meets Blake and Evie, but just what happens at the meeting or just how it happens is best left untold. Suffice it to say, therefor, that the climax of the picture is big.

THE WITCH (Five Parts—Feb. 27).—Dr. Fernandez, a physician, is believed by Mendoza, the military governor of Mexico, to possess hypnotic powers. Mendoza is in love with Dr. Fernandez's daughter, Zora. When Zora displays no love for him, Mendoza assumes that the father is responsible for the failure of his suit. So great becomes the hatred between the two that when a faction of insurrectionists arises the doctor places himself at its head and leads it against the Government.

Dr. Fernandez is killed in battle. In the meantime, Dolores, the daughter of the Governor is suffering with somnambulism. While she is anxious to be cured, she dislikes to inform her father or her lover that she is so

If George Washington had been a Motion Picture Exhibitor—

it's a moral certainty—not to say a "cinch"—that he would have used a

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN

—for Washington was a man of sound judgment.

—And Washington, too, after his lesson of the Cherry Tree, would have liked our methods of doing business.

"What we tell you, is true;
What we promise, we'll do"

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

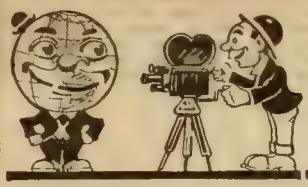
provide greater pleasure and greater comfort for photoplay patrons—and save money for the exhibitor.

Write Us for Price and Details of Our New Sales Plan

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN Inc.

No. 220 W. 42d Street
New York City

Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.



RAW STOCK SUPPLIED
EXPERT LABORATORY
- FINISHING -
DEVELOPING - PRINTING

700 HAYES STREET
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

MUSIC SALE

I have a limited number of copies of music, written for about 20 productions. Each copy is from 12 to 26 pages in length. Original price 25 to 50 cents. I will close out entire lot FOR 10 CENTS per copy. Each one is different. Music is composed of old songs, original "Hurrys," Marches, Waltzes and Pathos. Two of the pictures are arranged for 4-piece orchestra. 5 cents additional required for these two for mailing. An assortment of copy of each one sent on request. Here's your chance for Original Music CHEAP.

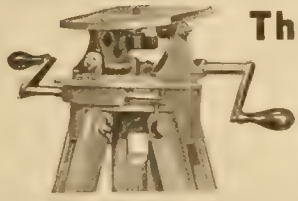
W. C. SIMON, 50 W. 110th St., New York City

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

188 West 46th Street, NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg., CHICAGO



The Standard Tripod

is unsurpassed for Motion Picture Cameras

H. R. HOOVER'S INSTRUMENTS

10 East 14th St., N. Y. City

Projection Engineer

Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?

Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.

(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)

Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

Gundlach Projection Lenses

Furnished as the regular equipment of the latest models of Power's, Simplex and Baird Machines and conceded to give the best results by thousands of theatre owners using these and other makes of machines. There must be a very potent reason why Gundlach Projection Lenses have replaced nearly all other lenses formerly in use and why they are given the preference by the United States War Department, The Lyman H. Howe Co., and the biggest theatre circuits in the country.

Try them and see for yourself how a picture looks made by Gundlach Projection Lenses.

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.

808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG

Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

afflicted. Finally her old nurse makes the fact known to Zora, who possesses the hypnotic power that was her father's. Dolores submits to treatment at the hands of Zora and is cured.

At the time that Zora brings about the cure of Dolores, the former does not know that Dolores is engaged to be married to Riques, Zora's sweetheart. When she does learn that the wedding day is set, she goes into a rage, and contrives to get into the palace in the night and hypnotizes Dolores. Shortly thereafter Zora is denounced as a witch and is carried away by an angry mob to be burned at the stake. Just before the torch is applied, the old nurse makes known to the Governor that his daughter has the habit of walking in her sleep and that she is in a trance from which she can not be aroused.

Also the old nurse informs the Governor that the only person who can cure his daughter is Zora. At the last instant, the Governor stays the burning of Zora and promises her freedom if she will bring Dolores from her lethargic state. Zora, believing that the Governor is acting in good faith, goes to the palace and wakens the girl. When Dolores is found to be safe, the Governor goes back on his word and commits Zora to prison.

She escapes, however, and Riques, who realizes that he loves Zora more than Dolores, runs away with her. The two are captured after a fight and in the end Zora is put to death.

V-L-S-E, INC.

"THE DISCARDS" (Essany—Five parts—Feb. 28.) The cast: Alys Wynne (Virginia Hammond); "Python" Grant (Ernest Maupain); Keith Bourne (Harry Beaumont); Doris Wynne (Betty Brown); J. F. Smike, attorney (Charles J. Stine); Duc de Besvrai (Patrick Calhoun); Ysabel Maxwell (Gertrude Glover). Written by Charles Michelson. Directed by Lawrence Windom.

Doris Wynne, at boarding school in France, is hardly acquainted with her mother, most of the dealings between them handled by a firm of lawyers. So when she falls in love with the brother of a schoolmate, she obtains her mother's consent through the attorneys. Alys Wynne's reasons for seeing so little of her daughter are that she is the companion in crime of "Python" Grant, international swindler. Having ruined a young nobleman and causing him to committ suicide, the pair escape to America.

Doris, the daughter, in the meantime, is happily married to Keith Bourne, a young American. An uncle leaves him a million dollars and they decide to return to the United States. Grant and Alys discover Keith and cultivate him. That he is the husband of Doris is unknown to the mother, who is still young and beautiful herself. Grant pretends to abuse his wife and Keith comforts her. A suit for alienation of affection is the result. Bourne settles for $40,000 rather than have his young wife misunderstand him. But the swindlers try the "Follow-up" and when Keith refuses to be led further they telephone his wife and tell her the story.

Through the attorneys she asks her mother to come to her. Alys goes and hears the story. She is thunderstruck to learn that her victim is the husband of her daughter. She advises the younger woman to believe in husband and disappears. She tells the police where to find "Python" Grant and next day the happy couple read in the paper that the woman accomplice of the swindler was found dead. It means nothing to them.

FOR A WOMAN'S FAIR NAME (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Pierce (Robert Edeson); Vivien (Eulalie Jensen); Alicia (Belle Bruce); McGregor (Harry Morey); Bolles (William Dunn); Coombs (Jack Brawn). Written by Marguerite Bertsch. Produced by Harry Davenport.

When Vivien and her husband, Pierce, come into their new home, she comes face to face with her husband's secretary, Bolles, and a shadow is cast over her happiness. Bolles is a dope fiend, supported by the charity of his half-brother, McGregor, a man of splendid character, and holds over Vivien and McGregor the fear of scandal because of a trap he had laid for Pierce and Vivien, by which he succeeded in compromising them.

McGregor meanwhile meets and falls in love with Alicia, Pierce's young sister, and Bolles, also being in love with her, threatens to reveal everything, in revenge. Through a peculiar combination of circumstances, Bolles, one night half crazed by the drug, shoots Alicia by mistake, and McGregor, to protect Vivien, who was at his home at the time of the shooting, confesses he is guilty.

Pierce does not believe his friend is guilty and quietly investigates, confident that McGregor is shielding someone. He learns that it is Vivien, and, heartbroken, he refuses to listen to her explanations and determines on a separation. Bolles, whose mind is giving way, sees the trouble he has wrought and, worried over Alicia's condition, which is serious, kills himself.

Then the whole story comes out and, receiving proof of his wife's innocence in both instances, Pierce begs for forgiveness, and the two are reunited in complete understanding and love. Alicia recovers slowly, and McGregor is her constant attendant. Eventually the two find happiness when he declares his love, and they are married.

CLARIDGE FILMS, INC.

"THE HEART OF NEW YORK" (Five parts—February). The cast: Bill Madden (Robert T. Haines); Mary Madden (Miss Isabelle Macgregor); John Madden (Thomas Morrisary); Mrs. Madden (Mrs. Laura Macklan); Phineas Brown (Willis Granger); Victor Brown (C. E. Kimball); Mrs. Brown (Mrs. Blanche Davenport); City Editor (F. M. McQuirk); His Daughter (Miss Bess Sankey); Her Mother (Miss Hill).

In each of the three homes of three distinct classes of modern life a child is born. A boy is born to a poor working man, John Madden, in his East Side home. A daughter is born to the city editor of one of the daily papers, Eustace Miles, and a son is born to John Brown, a wealthy but unscrupulous politician. The children are next shown at nine years of age in their respective schools. The plot of the story begins when the three have grown into young manhood and womanhood and are working out their lives in their particular class.

Bill Madden, the poor man's son, is now foreman in a construction work, with great ambitions to become a lawyer. Mary Miles, the editor's daughter, has become a beautiful young woman. The politican's son, a product of his class, is vicious and degenerate.

Mary Madden, Bill's sister, working in a department store, attracts the attention of Victor Brown, the wealthy young renegade. She repels all his advances. To show he is the stronger and for revenge, he kidnaps her, drugs and takes her to an undesirable house, where she is saved by a previous victim of the degenerate.

In the meantime, Bill Madden has obtained an education in law and gets his degree. He frustrates the efforts of a heroin peddler to sell his obnoxious drug to children, and is thus brought into touch with Mary Miles, who thanks him for what he has done for humanity. He upholds his class in their fight against

EVERYTHING!!!

THE KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY sells EVERYTHING for the equipment of a motion picture theatre. EVERYTHING that has merit and is of proven worth.

WE have done this from the beginning of the business as we were the first to exploit the field. For over twenty years we have devoted our exclusive energies to this one line. WE are therefore the oldest and largest house in the country. We are

The EXCLUSIVE Edison Distributors
The EXCLUSIVE Simplex Distributors
Distributors of Power's Cameragraphs
Distributors of Motiograph Machines

in Chicago and tributary territory and are the only concern so recognized. THIS SHOULD MEAN VOLUMES TO YOU. THINK!!!

REPAIRS. We have the best equipped shop in the country. WE REBUILD—NOT MERELY REPAIR.

On account of our facilities for rebuilding we take back standard makes of machines in part payment for new machines. WRITE US ON THIS SUBJECT.

OUR CATALOGUE is an education. Not a dull, dry price list. You should own one. We will send it free on request.

THE KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

GEORGE KLEINE, President

The oldest and largest distributors of motion picture theatre equipment in the country.

166 N. STATE STREET CHICAGO

WANTED

Scenario Writer

Old established company requires capable, experienced writer, particularly proficient in comedy. Fine opening. Write qualifications fully. Confidential. Address: Writer, M. P. World.

For Sale Cheap

3 CONTINUOUS PRINTERS

Output 12,000 feet per day, each machine. All in first-class working order and in present use. Address: Continuous Printer, Moving Picture World.

Hydroquinone

(Pure)

Firm manufacturing will be open shortly to make contracts for yearly supply. Answer with particulars of monthly requirements.

Address "Hydroquinone" c/o M. P. World

CREATIVE IDEAS
FOR POSTERS
GOES LITHOGRAPHING CO.
CHICAGO
206 Broadway NEW YORK

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

A Seeburg Pipe Organ will solve your music problems.
J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO.
Republic Building, Chicago

HIGHEST GRADE
Developing and Printing
FILM TITLES
We guarantee all work, give prompt delivery, at lowest prices. Can furnish Expert Camera Man on short notice.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
R. 1620, 5 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
Phone Randolph 6692

RUN ROLIN PATHE FILMS AND MAKE YOUR AUDIENCE HAPPY.

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

What About Preparedness in Your Projection Room?

Are You Prepared To Give Your Patrons The Best Projection?

Mr. Shindler, one of Chicago's most successful exhibitors, says: "I MUST GIVE MY PATRONS THE BEST PROJECTION."

Mr. Graham, a well-known exhibitor in Milwaukee, says: "I MUST HAVE A ROCK-STEADY PICTURE WITH NO INTERRUPTIONS FOR MY PATRONS."

Mr. Winters, Akron's foremost exhibitor, says: "MY PROJECTOR MUST GIVE A BRIGHT, CLEAR PICTURE WITH GOOD DEFINITION."

What Do They Use? 1916 Model Motiographs

Can you ask more of a projector?
The MOTIOGRAPH fitted those very requirements.

Ask your dealer to explain to you about the New Sliding Disc, the Extra Balance Wheel and other new parts on this Late Model Machine.

You can get the Best—THE MOTIOGRAPH—Hand-driven for $250.00—Motor-driven for $285.00.

Write for Literature.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., 574 West Randolph Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Eastern Office: 19 West 23rd Street, New York City. Western Office: 833 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

environment, corruption and the high cost of living, which bears so heavily upon them. This incites the hatred of the politician, John Brown, who instructs a gunman to shoot him.

Victor Brown meets Mary Miles, is attracted by her beauty, and forces his attention upon her. Bill sees him and interferes, and the gunman, hired to kill Bill Madden, shoots Victor accidentally, and escapes unseen. Bill is arrested for the murder. In the court room the gratitude of a poor woman whom the young lawyer had defended, and who witnessed the actual murder, reveals to the court the real circumstances. When John Brown finds that he is the instigator of his own son's death, he dies from a stroke of apoplexy.

Bill, now a hero, receives the nomination for the representative of his district. He also wins the editor's daughter for his wife. This moral story is worthy of mention.

B. S. MOSS.

"ONE DAY" (Five parts—February). The cast: Paul (Victor Sutherland); Paul Vardayne (his father) (Barclay Barker); Dimitri (Robert Broderick); Pavlovitch (John Webb Dillion); Stefan (Arthur Evers); Prince Ronneaus (Hal Clarendon); Laneau (Walter D. Nealand); Accomplice (Frank Whitson); Prime Minister (William Bechtel); Master Paul (Master Richard Ross); Opal (Jeanne Over). Directed by Hal Clarendon.

Through exciting portrayals of twenty years in extravagant and intemperate living, we find Pavlovitch facing a rebellious people and a bankrupt country. To save her father's throne Opal, his daughter, consents to sacrifice herself in marriage to the Prince of Argone, her elder by many years, and a man with no enviable reputation. The agreement provides that she first be permitted thirty days vacation in a spot known only to herself and maid. She chooses the home of a distant relative in England, which happens to be not far from the estate of Paul Verdayne.

On various occasions while there, she meets Paul, and without knowledge of each other's identity, they fall in love. Upon her return to Veseri, Opal is shipped off to Paris to purchase her trousseau. Young Paul, accompanied by Dimitri, on a pleasure jaunt, happens to board the same steamer bound for France. An affecting love scene takes place. The Prince witnesses it, attacks Paul, who in turn throws him overboard, but he is subsequently rescued.

Later in Paris something happens which changes the entire course of their lives. Then follows the hasty return to Veseria, the battle of young Paul to regain the throne, the death of Pavlovitch at the hands of the infuriated people of the little Kingdom, the re-coronation of young Paul to be King, and eventually his marriage to Opal.

WORLD-EQUITABLE.

THE QUESTION (Equitable—Five Parts—Feb. 21).—The cast: Grace Hamilton, later Mrs. Ralph Tudor (Marguerite Leslie); Mrs. Hamilton (Marie Benton); Mrs. Ray (Lorell Gibson); Mrs. Hildred (Louise Evans); Anna Lee (Clara Whipple); Ralph Tudor (Geo. Anderson); Eric Lee (Bernard Randall). Scenario by Roy L. McCardell. Directed by Harry Handworth.

Ralph Tudor, rich, and loving children, marries Grace Hamilton, a spoiled society girl, who determines to avoid maternity, and keep up her social fun. Anna Lee works for Tudor, but is blackmailed by her worthless father. Frank Gray, an artist, is in love with Anna, but she thinks she is in love with Tudor. Tudor's partner, Hyatt, is ousted from the firm because he insulted her. Tudor finds that his wife has been avoiding maternity, and she admits that she does not intend to have any children. Tudor takes to drink and his wife gives a dog party.

Alone with Anna, Tudor explains matters, and they go away on an illicit honeymoon. Gray finds them. Anna leaves Tudor and he goes to Brazil. He learns that Anna is in trouble, wires Ryan, his confidential clerk, to take money from the safe and place it to her credit. Ryan is assaulted by Anna's father, and is struck by Grace Tudor's automobile. The cash is found on him. Hyatt claims it was stolen from the firm, and that he has an interest in it. Ryan is taken to a hospital, and Lee, in an attempt to kill Hyatt, is himself killed by a fall down a staircase.

In Brazil, Tudor's mail tells him of the Ryan affair, and a latter from Grace which causes him to return at once. Anna dies, and her landlady advertises her child for adoption. Grace gets it and a letter which Anna left, stating that Tudor was the child's father. Tudor comes home, and Grace, a changed and repentant woman, permits Tudor to learn to whom the child belongs. She begs forgiveness, which Tudor grants as she exclaims, "It is our baby."

THE PRICE OF HAPPINESS (Triumph Film Corp.—Five Parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Bertha Miller (Mary Boland); Mrs. Miller (Marion Singer); Ruth Taylor (Enid Francis); Evelyn Morgan (Carlotta De Felico); Max Miller (Albert Bechtel); John Miller (Dave Wall); Howard Neal (Adolphe Majou). Directed by Edmond Lawrence.

Bertha Miller is the young wife of an industrious artisan. The couple are in comfortable but hardly luxurious circumstances, and Bertha at times finds it difficult to stifle the envious longings aroused in her by reports of the material success of her former girl friends.

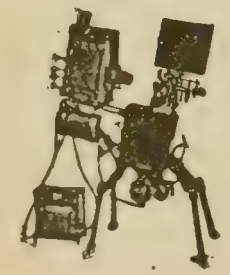
Three of these former chums of Bertha's have had particular success, in the sense of having all the things that money can buy. Bertha and her three friends reunite when they go to meet a steamer that is bringing back one of the group who has become an opera singer. Bertha is invited to visit each of her three friends.

Bertha first visits the beautiful home of Ruth Taylor, and there receives her first intimation that things are not as pleasant in Ruth's world as they appear on the surface. She finds Ruth in a nervous state and learns that she has written letters to an admirer and fears her husband will discover it. Bertha agrees to help Ruth out of her trouble and in doing so nearly estranges herself from her own husband.

Lucille, the opera singer, has a handsome suite of rooms in a fashionable hotel. Bertha finds Lucille in despair over the fact that her expected operatic role has been given to another singer. Bertha learns to her suprise that Lucille's lot is in no way so happy as she had thought at first. The climax of this scene comes when Lucille has Bertha meet the man whom Lucille loves and expects to marry. This man Bertha discovers to be the owner of the house in which she and her husband live. Lucille is broken-hearted when she learns that her lover is married and the father of a family.

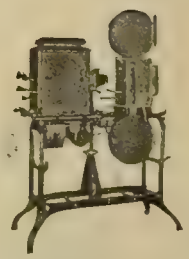
The third seemingly successful girl friend, Evelyn, lives in a pretty apartment, and when Bertha visits her seems to have no cares or worries. Bertha, who is induced to go out to a gay party with Evelyn that evening, discovers to her horror that Evelyn's lovely gowns and luxurious living are being paid for in the old way of the underworld.

It is in this scene, amid the false gayety of Broadway night-life, that Bertha receives her final disillusionment and discovers the whole false fabric of her friends' careers. All envy is wiped from her heart and she returns to her steady, hard-working husband and her little child conscious that hers is, after all, the real success in life.



POWER'S 6B

E. C. Gregory Wanted Good Projection For His New Theatre in Edwards, N. Y.



EDISON SUPER

We Supplied Machines, Booth, Screen, Special Condensing and Projection Lenses

Tell Us Your Projection Troubles

We Equipped His Theatre Completely

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

Ask Him About it. We Can do the Same for You.

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET BUFFALO, N. Y.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS
CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

OPERATOR—Strictly sober; reliable. Any machine; go anywhere; salary reasonable; projection guaranteed. Write or wire. Henry M. Alsman, Mayfield, Ky.

MANAGER—Publicity man. High-class college education. Seven years all 'round experience; progressive; understands film program booking; artistic presentation; business building publicity; general house details. Can handle vaudeville. No liquor or tobacco. A-1 references. Address M., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

EXPERIENCED, competent manager at liberty. Five years' experience pictures and vaudeville. No small job wanted. Let me prove my worth. Pacific Coast city preferred. Write or wire. W. H. Wood, Box 591 State College, Penn.

LONG EXPERIENCED and successful young man desires position as manager or to rent picture show, with intentions of purchasing same later. Can give reliable reference. Elmer R. Wilson, Canyon, Tex.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR. N. Y. license. Long experience, any machine, best reference. Walsh, 135 West 62d St., N. Y. City.

OPERATOR — Experienced in first-class houses, or consider position film exchange. W., 672 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

MILES BROTHERS—Stock of 3,500 reels. Excellent choice of subjects, splendid condition, many with paper. As a whole or in lots, price upon application. 1145 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Queen City Film Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y. With or without film on hand. The best equipped and located exchange in the city. Large space, cheap rent. Reply direct.

SELL—The "Irvine Movie Mascot" in your city. Everybody wants one. Ash or pin trays. Automobile ornaments. Retail $1.50. For prices write Clarke Irvine, 305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

THEATERS WANTED.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical, successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

TO RENT—Picture theater within commuting distance of New York. Seating 300 to 500. Town not less than 4,000. S. W. Hennesey, 923 Forest Ave, N. Y. City.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Picture house, 275 seats, can be enlarged. First-class equipment. Address Box D, Rantoul, Ill.

MOVIE—An opportunity for a beginner to invest a small amount of capital. For $800 cash we can put you in a movie that for the last 15 weeks has taken in over $2,000. This movie can be operated for less than $85 week. Five year lease; 340 opera chairs; standing room for about 50. Edison and 6a Power's machines with rectifier; practically new piano. Price $1,500. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVIE—Kane, Pa., weekly expenses less than $125; receipts $175-$225. Modern equipment. Wurlitzer orchestra, present owner ten years accumulated fortune and is now buying larger house. Price $7,500. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

PHOTOPLAY HOUSE—Fireproof, one of the handsomest and most expensive buildings in New York state. Equipped with latest scientific machinery to show the finest pictures. Admission 5-10-15c., box seats 25c. Weekly expenses less than $200; receipts will run $375-$450 week, by practical management could be increased to $600. A regular gold mine. A bargain for $75,000, will accept $65,000, reasonable payment down. Lewis, Moving Picture Broker, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

LEASE AND EQUIPMENT of an up-to-date theater in New England city of 25,000 population. Capacity 1,000, large stage; equipped to handle road shows, vaudeville or photoplays. Net profits run from $100 to $600 per week—according to attractions. Partnership disagreement the reason for selling. An excellent proposition for party who can handle a house of this kind. For particulars address Theater, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

PHOTOPLAY HOUSE—In town of 16,000. The leading, the most successful 10c house. Modern equipment, all leather upholstered chairs, up-to-date machinery. No near competition; running seven days and seven nights week. Weekly expenses less than $100. Receipts will run $185-$250. Previous owner accumulated fortune and there is one waiting for you. This proposition is positively worth $10,000; will sacrifice for $5,000. Trial one month. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

FIREPROOF MOVIE—The leading and only one of its size in town with population and surrounding territory to make up at least 9,500. 10c admission; building and equipment cost nearly $40,000. Present owner seven years On account of moving to New York City will sacrifice entire enterprise for $23,000; $5,000 cash will swing the deal. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Power's 6a complete, one at $175, one at $165 and one at $160. Rebuilt and as good as new; condition guaranteed. Motiograph 1912, $100. 1910, $75. Edison Exhibition Model $60, $65 and $75. Power's 5, $75. All complete and ready for the reels. Write us for particulars. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Slightly used Simplex projectors, guaranteed perfect and good as new at reasonable prices. Second hand Motiograph in good condition, cheap. Room 206, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Rebuilt machines complete with rheostat. Standard 1914, motor and attachment, $85. Edison Exhibition, $50. Power's No. 5, $45. Lee, 402 Jenkins Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

"'AMBERLUX' FILTERS — Have nearly doubled our business." "Best way to invest $3.50 I know of"—say two "Amberlux" exhibitors. Write for particulars to W. D. Warner, U. S. Distributor, Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.

FOR SALE CHEAP—Power's 5 machine, fully equipped. Also Peerless head, all in good running order. The above must be sold at once. Write for particulars. Crystal theater, Dodgeville, Wis.

WRITE your slides with Photopaque. Dollar outfit makes 3,000 slides. Sold by D. C. Schupp, Peoria, Ill., and E. E. Fulton, Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Patent device for cleaning moving picture films. J. J. Ormsby, 824 Amsterdam Ave., N. Y. City.

SCENERY—For picture theaters. Boon Scenic Studios, Hicksville, Ohio.

GUIL PASTILS—Large size, $1, postpaid and insured. C. E. Lindall, 79 West 45th St., N. Y. City, or Bar Harbor, Me.

CAMERAS WANTED.

WANTED—Motion picture camera for cash. Professional, any condition, any price. Address H. R. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic take-up, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 3961 Franklin.

NEW Professional "Angelus" camera, cost $400; used twice. 400-foot capacity, $240. L. Jones, 331 S. Kickapoo, Lincoln, Ill.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

OVER SEAS BUYERS should communicate with me; second-hand American pictures at European prices. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

MILES BROTHERS—Stock of 3,500 reels. Excellent choice of subjects, splendid condition, many with paper. As a whole or in lots, price upon application. 1145 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal.

"STRUGGLE EUROPEAN WAR" five parts, "Italian Austrian War," three parts, new prints and negatives with 600 six, 600 three, 600 one sheets and heralds. 50 features three, four, five, and 100 singles. Cheap. Photoplay Brokers, 1 Delray St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEGATIVE and exclusive rights—500-foot animated cartoon comedy, ready March 10th. Most elaborate cartoon drawings yet produced. "Dookie Doolns the Conductor." If interested write for photographs of scenes. A cartoon so much different. Write Buckeye Motion Picture Co., Wapakoneta, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Negatives and one copy each three subjects. Two one-reel and one two-reel. New, no copies out. Will screen; one and three-sheet paper. Brokers, 88 Woodward, Detroit, Mich.

EDUCATIONAL FILM—18,000 feet at a sacrifice. Selected for a special educational entertainment. Film practically new. List of subjects with number of feet by mail. Will arrange screen exhibition for prospective purchaser in or near Philadelphia or New York. Address by mail or telegram. A. R. Ebersol, Gordonville, Pa. Also new portable Johns-Manville booth, used twice. Meets fire regulations.

PRINCESS OF BAGDAD—Six parts, $125. Spirit of the Conqueror, five parts, $100. Nell Gwynne, five parts, $100. Other features. Plenty advertising matter. Peerless Film Co., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Ten Keystones $5 each, money with order. M. Miller, 3d Fl., Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Fifty two-reel features with original lobby display. Send for list. S. Baldwin, 314 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

TALKING PICTURE FILMS—Twenty-six subjects, about two hundred feet each. Brand new; sell cheap. What offers? Elie Barkey, 110 West 40th St., New York City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SEND $1.00—For pint bottle Magic Film Cleaning fluid (non-inflammable). Makes films like first run. Film Renovating Co., Hartford, Conn.

For Your LITTLE WANTS in the Moving Picture Industry

the LITTLE ADS in the Classified Department

WILL GET YOU EXCEPTIONAL RESULTS

Send your copy, accompanied by remittance—The Rate is Three Cents per Word

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Abrams, Jacques Earl....1452
Actors' Fund Starts Strong....1458
Actor Versus Type....1440
Advertising for Exhibitors....1464
Abramson, Ivan, Master Craftsman....1455
Among the Picture Theaters....1461
An Ably Run Theater....1511
At Leading Picture Theaters....1445
Australian Notes....1485

Bad Checks and Fake Ads....1508
"Better Late Than Never" (Triangle)....1489
Big Trade Show Planned....1452
"Blacklist, The" (Lasky)....1490
Bluebird Creates New Film Star....1476
"Bullets and Brown Eyes" (Triangle)....1489

Calendar of Daily Program Releases..1522, 1524
Caruso, Ora, Joins Universal....1455
Exhibitors Criticize Censorship....1458
Chattanooga Shows Again Open on Sunday..1512
Chicago News Letter....1504
Cleveland Clubwomen Stir Censors....1446
Coming Selig Releases....1455
Comments on the Films....1493
Cut Big "Peace" Film....1507

Davidson, William....1447
Dwiggins, Jay....1447

Essanay's New Studio....1452
Exchange Combination (A)....1515

Facts and Comments....1439
"Fatty" Working in New York....1456
Fire Laws and Safe Films....1506
First of "Sis Hopkins" Comedies....1486
Fitzpatrick With Juvenile Film Co....1454
"Fool's Revenge, The" (Fox)....1486
"For a Woman's Fair Name" (Vitagraph)..1487

Garden's Capacity Taxed....1442
"Grip of Jealousy, The" (Bluebird)....1486

"Happy Masquerader, The" (American)...1491
"Indian, The" (Biograph)....1485
Indiana Convention....1450
"Iron Claw, The" (Pathe)....1491

Kentucky Censor Bill....1510

Labor Against Censoring....1518
"Leap Year Wooing, A" (Kalem)....1486
Lesson in Maryland, The....1441
List of Current Film Release Dates, 1558, 1560, 1562
London Trade Topics....1483

Manufacturers' Advance Notes....1496
Maryland Fights Censorship....1444
Milwaukee Screen Ball....1514
Mishaps of Musty Suffer....1483
Meredith, Louis, With Balboa....1456
Metro Has Election....1453
Modern Theater Construction....1459
Motion Picture Photography....1472
Motion Picture Exhibitor....1449
Mutual Program....1457
Music for the Picture....1475

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity....1506
No Nova Scotia Censors....1505
Noted Players in Vitagraph Pictures....1484
North Carolina Convention....1449
Notes of the Trade....1502

Observations by Man About Town....1482
On Biograph Schedule....1485
Organizing in South Dakota....1451

Pay in Advance....1519
Peters, House....1451
Photoplaywright, The....1467
"Pool of Flame, The" (Red Feather)....1492
"Poor Little Peppina" (Famous Players)..1491
"Price of Happiness, The" (Equitable)....1489
Projection Department....1468
"Question, The" (Equitable)....1489
Return of Vaudeville?....1513
Reviews of Current Productions....1485
Right to Appeal Upheld....1448
Rothacker's Research Laboratory....1454
"Rupert of Hentzau" (Bluebird)....1486

"Scarlet Road, The" (Kleine)....1487
Screen Club Begins....1517
"Shrine of Happiness, The" (Pathe)....1485
Sothern to Appear in Pictures....1484
State Censor Report....1509
Stories of the Films....1526
Sub-renters Active....1516

Too Much Titling....1441
Triangle in New Orleans....1512
Triangle Program....1489
Two Bluebird Releases....1486
Two Equitable Dramas....1489

Universal Heights Busy....1457
"Uplift, The" (Lubin)....1490

Vitagraph to Produce Big Serial....1456

"What Happened to Peggy" (Biograph)....1485
What the People Want....1483
"Who's Guilty" Being Made....1443
Will Forbid Lotteries....1520
"Woman's Power, A" (World Film)....1485
World Equitable Engagements....1483
Young Howard Irving Joins Metro....1485

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack....1568
Speer Carbon Co....1545

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co....1569
Andrews, A. H., Co....1569
duPont Fabrikoid Co....1569
Steel Furniture Co....1569

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co....1564
Calehuff Supply Co....1565
Erker Bros....1564, 1565
Fort Wayne Electric Works....1561
Fulton, E. E....1564
General Electric Co....1569
Hallberg, J. H....1557
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co....1526
Hommel, Ludwig & Co....1544
Kleine Optical Co....1552
Lears Theater Supply Co....1565
Lucas Theater Supply Co....1564
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip. Co...1566
Picture Theater Equip. Co....1554
Porter, B. F....1564
Speed Controller Co....1548
Stern Mfg. Co....1569
Strelinger, Chas. A....1544
Swaab, Lewis M....1551
Typhoon Fan Co....1566
Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co....1546

FILM EXCHANGES.
Bradenburgh, G. W....1565
Central Film Co....1533
Golden Gate Film Exchange....1549
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co....1549

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co....1551

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Film Co., Inc....1416
Biograph Co....1522-1523
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc....1411-1413
Bosworth, Inc....1409
California Motion Picture Co....1426
Claridge Films, Inc....1559
Clara Kimball Young Film Corp....1410
Cummins, Samuel....1564
ElDorado Feature Film Co....1529
Essanay Film Mfg. Co....1395, 1400-01
Famous Players Film Co....1402-03
Gaumont Co....1415
Great Northern Film Co....1568
Hanover Film Co....1549
Horsley, David, Productions....1521
Ivan Film Productions....1566
Kalem Co....1434-1438
Kleine, George....1427
Knickerbocker Star Features....1429
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co....1408
Lesser, Sol....1419
Lubin Mfg. Co....1571
Metro Pictures Corp....Colored Insert
Moss, B. F., Motion Picture Corp....1527
Paramount Pictures Corp....1404-1407
Pathe Exchange, Inc....1420-23
Raver Film Corp....1531
Rolin Film Co....1553
Selig Polyscope Co....1563
Signal Film Corp....1417
Sterling Camera & Film Co....1549
Thanhouser Film Corporation....1394, 1414
Triangle Film Corporation....Colored Insert
Universal Film Mfg. Co....1396-99, 1525
Variety Films Corporation....1559
Vim Comedies....1428
Vitagraph Co. of America....1430-1433
V-L-S-E, Inc....Colored Insert
Vogue Film, Inc....1418
War Film Syndicate....1539
World Film Corporation....1424-1425

MISCELLANEOUS.
Atlas Motion Picture Co....1544
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co....1567
Bioscope, The....1565
Box "L. S.," care M. P. World....1548
Caille Brothers....1543
Classified Advertisements....1555
Continuous Printer....1553
Corcoran, A. J....1568
Duhem Motion Picture Co....1551
Eastman Kodak Co....1567
Erbograph Co....1523
Evans Film Mfg. Co....1565
Exhibitors At Albany....1547
Grinden Art Metal Co....1565
Gunby Brothers....1566
Holcomb & Hoke Mfg. Co....1563
Hydroquinone, care M. P. World....1553
Il Tirso Al Cinematografo....1568
Industrial Moving Picture Co....1564
Irvine, Clark....1528
Kinematograph Weekly, The....1526
Kraus Mfg. Co....1540
Manuscripts Universal....1540
MacMahon, Henry....1540
Miller Bros. 101 Ranch....1549
Motion Picture Campaign....1570
Motion Picture Electricity....1551
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides....1566
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon....1536
M. P. Directory Co....1568
Moore, Wm. N....1553
National Ticket Co....1537
Pan-American Film Service....1533
Richardson, F. H....1551
Standard Motion Picture Co....1553
Trade Circular Addressing Co....1568
Writer, care M. P. World....1553

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Hoover, H. R....1551
Los Angeles M. P. Co....1566
Universal Camera Co....1538

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photo Player Co....1549
Deagan, J. C....1566
Harmo Pipe Organ Co....1551
Schirmer, G., Inc....1568
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co....1553
Simon, Walter C....1551
Sinn, Clarence E....1533

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Goes Lithographing Co....1553
Menger & Ring....1553
Newman Mfg. Co....1546

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Machine Co....1566
Enterprise Optical Co....1553
Power, Nicholas, Co....1572
Precision Machine Co....1541

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc....1549
Gold King Screen Co....1568
Minusa Cine Products Co....1534-1535-1536
Pannill "Miro" Screen Corp....1542
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc....1550
Simpson, A. L., Inc....1549

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.
Niagara Slide Co....1503

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Decorators' Supply Co....1567
Kinsilla, Edw. Barnard....1568

SEND FOR FREE BULLETIN No. 1

JUST OFF THE PRESS, DESCRIBING THE

HALLBERG 20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR

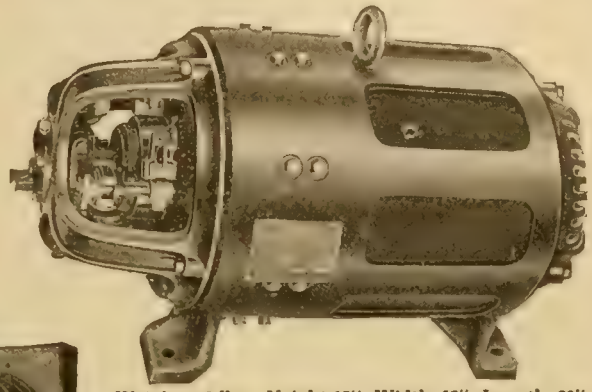
$249.

ADJUSTABLE FOR ONE 30 TO 70 AMP. D. C. ARC

$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arcs.—

For 110 or 220 volts, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted upon Request



Weight 475 lbs. Height 15", Width, 15", Length, 30".

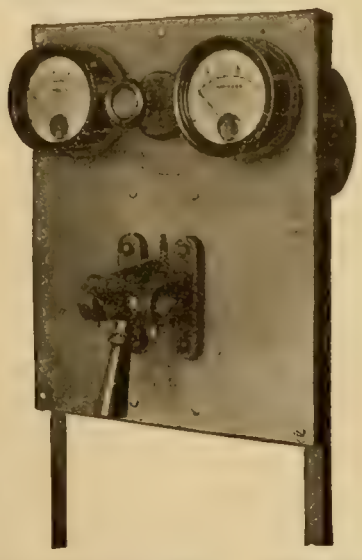
This Perfect 2 Lamp Switchboard

ONLY

$50.

for (2) 30-40 amp. arcs with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat — No live part on front of board.

15" wide—18" high—10" to 12" from wall. With angle iron legs.



D. W. Griffith's
"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"
New York, N. Y., December 21, 1915.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg.

Dear Sir: After a thorough investigation and test of the various Motor Generators and other devices for changing Alternating to Direct Current and for the control of projector arcs, your Hallberg Motor Generators have been adopted as the standard for the shows exhibiting Griffith's Birth of a Nation and Triangle Films.

We are much pleased with the performance and efficiency of your Motor Generators which we have so far installed and shall continue to use more of them from time to time as we require such devices.

Yours very truly,
CECIL R. WOOD,
Electrical and Projection Expert, Griffith's Birth of a Nation and Triangle Film Company.

For Sale by all leading M. P. Machine Distributors

POWER'S 6A

EXHIBITED BY

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.
166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

E. E. FULTON CO.
154 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

SWANSON & NOLAN
1744 Curtis St., Denver, Colo.

G. A. METCALFE
117 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO.
1301 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

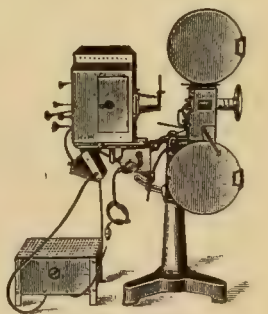
LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FEATURE FILM & CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

H. J. MANDELBAUM
Columbia Building, Cleveland, Ohio

F. H. THOMAS
691 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

I equip your theatre completely; all makes machines, carbons and supplies. Send $2.50 for latest Operators' Book, "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY."



"SIMPLEX"

Manufacturer and Main Distributor

J. H. HALLBERG

SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER 38 EAST 23rd STREET, NEW YORK, U. S. A.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1522, 1524.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Laemmle, L-KO. Rex.
Monday—Nestor, Red Feather, Universal Special.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Rex.
Saturday—Bison, Joker, Powers.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Feb. 2—Number 5 (Topical).
Feb. 9—Number 6 (Topical).
Feb. 16—Number 7 (Topical).
Feb. 23—Number 8 (Topical).
Mar. 1—Number 9 (Topical).
Mar. 8—Number 10 (Topical).

BIG U.

Jan. 27—No release this day.
Jan. 28—Nan Good for Nothing (Drama).
Feb. 3—No release this day.
Feb. 10—No release this day.
Feb. 17—No release this day.
Feb. 24—A Beast of Society (Three parts—Modern—Drama).
Mar. 2—Shackles (Drama).

BISON.

Feb. 12—His Majesty Dick Turpin (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—A Recoiling Vengeance (Three parts—Animal—Drama).
Feb. 26—The Stampede in the Night (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 4—The One Woman (Three parts—Smuggling—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Quarter Breed (Three parts—Western—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Feb. 1—Lord John's Journal (No. 3, "Three Fingered Jenny"—Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 8—Yust From Sweden (Three parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Feb. 15—The Family Secret (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Feb. 22—The Dupe (Three parts—Underworld—Drama).
Feb. 29—Lord John's Journal (Adventures No. 4, "The Eye of Horus") (Three parts—Drama)
Mar. 7—The Winning of Miss Construe (Three parts — Human - Interest - Comedy Drama).

IMP.

Feb. 8—Artistic Interference (Comedy).
Feb. 11—The Trail of Wild Wolf (Two parts—North Western—Drama).
Feb. 15—Cinders (Drama).
Feb. 18—Plot and Counterplot (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 22—No release this week.
Feb. 25—I'll Get Her Yet (Two parts—Com.).
Feb. 29—Some Heroes (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Hoax House (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 7—Sunlight and Shadows (Western—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Doll Doctor (Two Parts—Modern—Drama).

JOKER.

Feb. 12—Leap and Look Thereafter (Comedy).
Feb. 19—No release this day.
Feb. 26—Married on the Wing (Comedy).
Mar. 2—Love Laughs at the Law (Comedy).
Mar. 4—No release this day.
Mar. 11—No release this day.

LAEMMLE.

Jan. 28—The Inner Soul (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 30—No release this day.
Feb. 3—The Wise Man and the Fool (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Feb. 6—No release this day.
Feb. 10—The Living Lie (Three parts—Drama of the Latin Quarters).
Feb. 13—Arthur's Last Fling (Comedy—Drama).
Feb. 16—As Fate Decides (Drama).
Feb. 20—No release this day.
Feb. 24—John Pellet's Dream (Comedy—Dr.).
Feb. 27—Her Greatest Story (Drama).
Mar. 2—The Heart of Bonita (Two parts—Mexican—Drama).
Mar. 5—The Blackmailer (Drama).
Mar. 8—The Windward Anchor (Drama).
Mar. 9—Lavinia Comes Home (Two parts—Heart-Interest—Drama).

L-KO.

Feb. 16—Elevating Father (Two parts—Comedy).
Feb. 20—Twenty Minutes at the Fair (Comedy).
Feb. 27—Dad's Dollars and Dirty Doings (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 1—Blue Blood But Black Skin (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 5—Gertie's Awful Fix (Comedy).
Mar. 6—False Friends and Fire Alarms (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 12—No release this day.

NESTOR.

Feb. 14—When the Losers Won (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Flivver's Dilemma (Comedy).
Feb. 21—The Disappearing Groom (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Her Friend the Doctor (Comedy)
Feb. 28—Cupid Trims His Lordship (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Lion's Breath (Comedy).
Mar. 6—Their Only Son (Comedy).
Mar. 10—When Lizzie Disappeared (Comedy).

POWERS.

Feb. 17—Building Up the Health of a Nation, Lesson 4 (Educational).
—Joe Boko's Adventures (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 19—Uncle Sam At Work; No. 9, "Bureau of Weights and Measures (Educational).
Feb. 24—No release this week.
Feb. 26—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 10, "Preparedness" (Educational).
Mar. 4—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 11, "To Arms" (Educational).
Mar. 9—Warriors of the Air.
—A Romance of Toyland (Novelty).
Mar. 11—Uncle Sam at Work No. 12 (Educational).

RED FEATHER PHOTO-PLAYS.

Feb. 14—The Sphinx (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—Sons of Satan (Five parts—Detective—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Lords of High Decision (Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Target (Five parts—Drama).

REX.

Feb. 18—Borrowed Plumes (Drama).
Feb. 20—Dolly's Scoop (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 23—Turtle Doves (Comedy—Drama).
Feb. 27—No release this week.
Feb. 29—No release this day.
Mar. 3—In the Heart of a Shell (Juvenile—Drama).
Mar. 5—Saved by a Song (Two parts—Dr.).
Mar. 7—No release this day.
Mar. 9—The Dumb Bandit (Drama).
Mar. 12—His Brother's Pal (Two parts—Detective—Drama).

VICTOR.

Feb. 22—The Pipe Dream (Comedy).
Feb. 23—Madam Cubist (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 25—After the Play (Drama).
Mar. 1—No release this day.
Mar. 10—Their Act (Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 12—Love Spasms (Comedy).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Feb. 14—Graft No. 10, "The Harbor Transportation Trust" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—Graft, No. 11, "The Illegal Bucket Shop" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Graft, No. 12, "The Milk Battle" (Two parts—Drama)
Mar. 6—Graft No. 13, "The Powder Trust and the War" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Beauty, Gaumont, Vogue.
Monday—Masterpicture de Luxe (5).
Tuesday—American (3), Falstaff.
Wednesday—Beauty, Thanhouser (3).
Thursday—Falstaff, Mutual Weekly, Masterpicture de Luxe (5).
Friday—Mustang (2), Cub.
Saturday—Masterpicture de Luxe (5).

AMERICAN.

Jan. 21—The Thunderbolt (Drama).
Jan. 25—The Man in the Sombrero (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Jan. 28—A Sanitarium Scramble (Comedy).
Feb. 1—The Broken Cross (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 4—Mammy's Rose (Southern—Drama).
Feb. 8—Lillo of the Sulu Seas (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 15—A Modern Sphinx (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 22—Life's Harmony (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 29—The Happy Masquerader (Three parts—Drama).

BEAUTY.

Feb. 6—The Laird O'Knees (Comedy).
Feb. 9—Won By One (Comedy).
Feb. 13—Billy Van Deusen and the Vampire (Comedy).
Feb. 16—Ella Wanted to Elope (Comedy).
Feb. 20—The Battle of Cupidovitch (Comedy).
Feb. 23—Too Much Married (Comedy).
Feb. 27—Cooking His Goose (Comedy).
Mar. 1—Johnny's Jumble (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Jan. 6—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 13—Marta of the Jungles (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psyclo—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Smugglers of Santa Cruz (Three parts—Seacoast—Drama).

CUB.

Feb. 4—The Defective Detective (Comedy).
Feb. 11—Jerry's Millions (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Too Proud to Fight (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Going Up (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Deseperate Chance (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Jan. 18—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy).
Jan. 20—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy).
Jan. 25—Lucky Larry's Lady Love (Comedy).
Jan. 27—Beaten at the Bath (Comedy).
Feb. 1—A Clever Collie's Coming Back (Comedy).
Feb. 3—Harry's Happy Honeymoon (Comedy).
Feb. 8—Booming the Boxing Business (Comedy).
Feb. 10—Snow Storm and Sunshine (Comedy).
Feb. 22—Ruth's Remarkable Reception (Com.).
Feb. 24—Perkins' Peace Party (Comedy).
Feb. 29—Rustic Reggie's Record (Comedy).
Mar. 2—Maude Muller Modernized (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Jan. 30—See America First, No. 20, "St. Paul and Minneapolis" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 6—See America First, No. 21, "A Trip Through Duluth, Minn (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 13—See America First; No. 22, "The Home of the Lumber Jack" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 20—See America First, No. 23, "Key West, Fla." (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 27—See America First No. 24 (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 1560.)

More Than Your Money's Worth

FOR YOU ADVERTISERS—
In the Moving Picture World you have at your disposal a medium which more completely covers its field than does any other trade publication. No matter what its calling. EVERYBODY INTERESTED COMMERCIALLY IN MOVING PICTURES READS IT. If you have goods to sell here is the market place.

Rates Upon Application

Chalmers Publishing Co.

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

PRODUCERS:

LET THE

VARIETY FILMS CORPORATION BE THE OUTLET FOR YOUR PRODUCTIONS AT A GREAT SAVING TO YOU.

MY EXPERIENCE AS MANAGER OF

THE GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL EXCHANGE

FOR THE PAST TEN YEARS, IS AT YOUR DISPOSAL.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR HIGH CLASS PRODUCTIONS AND WILL DEAL WITH YOU ON A PERCENTAGE BASIS. YOU PAY FOR RESULTS ONLY.

VARIETY FILMS CORPORATION,

Louis Rosenbluh, President

126 West 46th Street, New York City

(Formerly Greater New York Film Rental Co.)

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1522, 1524.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 1558.)

MUSTANG.

Feb. 11—According to St. John (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Feb. 18—When the Light Came (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Feb. 25—Double Crossed (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 3—Margy of the Foothills (Three parts—Western—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Feb. 10—Number 58 (Topical).
Feb. 17—Number 59 (Topical).
Feb. 24—Number 60 (Topical).
March 2—Number 61 (Topical).
Mar. 9—Number 62 (Topical).

THANHOUSER.

Feb. 2—The Knotted Cord (three parts; detective drama).
Feb. 9—The Spirit of the Game (Three parts—Football—Drama).
Feb. 16—Outwitted (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 23—The Reunion (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—What Doris Did (Three parts—Drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Feb. 5—The White Rosette (American; five parts; drama) (No. 64).
Feb. 7—The Drifter (Gaumont—Five parts—Racing—Drama) (No. 65).
Feb. 10—Powder (American—Five parts—Society—Drama) (No. 66).
Feb. 12—The Soul's Cycle (Centaur—Five parts—Psychological—Drama) (No. 67).
Feb. 14—Life's Blind Alley (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 68).
Feb. 17—The Dead Alive (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 69).
Feb. 19—Silas Marner (Thanhouser—Seven parts—Drama) (No. 70).
Feb. 21—I Accuse (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 71).
Feb. 24—The Oval Diamond (Thanhouser—Five parts—Detective—Drama) (No. 72).
Feb. 26—The Craving (American—Five parts—Society—Drama) (No. 73).
Feb. 28—A Law Unto Himself (Centaur—Five parts—Western—Drama) (No. 74).
Mar. 2—Embers (American—Five parts—Sociological—Drama) (No. 75).
Mar. 4—The Heart of Tara (Centaur—Five parts—Oriental—Drama) (No. 76).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 31—The Girl and the Game, No. 6, "Helen's Wild Ride" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Girl and the Game, No. 7, "Spike's Awakening" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—The Girl and the Game, No. 8 (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—The Girl and the Game (No. 8—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Girl and the Game No. 9 (Two parts—Drama).

VOGUE.

Feb. 3—Sammy versus Cupid (comedy).
Feb. 6—Fickle Madge (Comedy).
Feb. 10—Paddy's Political Dream (Comedy).
Feb. 13—Igorrotes' Crocodiles and a Hat Box (Comedy).
Feb 17—At the End of His Rope (Comedy).
Feb. 20—Heaven Will Protect the Woiking Goil (Comedy).
Feb. 24—Flooded With Trouble (Comedy).
Feb. 27—The Candy Cook (Comedy).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Pathe.
Tuesday—Pathe, Photocolor.
Wednesday—Pathe, Phunphilms, Globe
Thursday—Gold Rooster.
Saturday—Pathe, Starlight, Balboa.

BALBOA.

Feb. 5—The Red Circle, No. 8 ("Peace at Any Price"—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 12—The Red Circle, No. 9 ("Dodging the Law"—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—The Red Circle, No. 10 ("Excess Baggage"—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 26—The Red Circle No. 11, "Seeds of Suspicion (Two parts—Drama).

GLOBE.

Jan. 24—The Ausable Chasm (Picturesque America (scenic).
Jan. 31—Glimpses of Java (Scenic).
Feb. 7—Engineering Feats in Oregon (Educational).
Feb. 14—Watching Flowers Grow (Educational).
Feb. 21—Along the Deschuten River (Scenic).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Jan. 28—Hazel Kirke (five parts; drama).
Feb. 4—New York (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 11—The Precious Packet (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 18—The Shrine of Happiness (Three parts—Drama).

PATHE NEWS.

Feb. 2—Number 10, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 5—Number 11, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 9—Number 12, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 12—Number 13, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 16—Number 14, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Jan. 31—Movements the Eye Misses (Educ.).
Feb. 7—The Matsushima Islands (Picturesque Japan—Scenic)
Feb. 14—Siberia, the Vast Unknown (Scenic).
Feb. 21—By the Zuyder Zee (Picturesque Holland) (Scenic).

PHUNPHILMS.

Jan. 19—Luke Lolls in Luxury (Comedy).
Jan. 31—Luke, the Candy Cut-Up (Comedy).
Feb. 14—Luke Foils the Villain (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Jan. 29—Shooting at Random (comedy).
Feb. 7—Hapless Happenings (Comedy).
Feb. 21—Starved to Death In a Restaurant (Comedy).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AUTHORS FILM CO., INC.

Feb.—Denise (Topnotch—Four parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Red Cross Nurse (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—Claudia (Topnotch—Four parts—Drama).
Feb.—Ten O'Clock Mystery (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Redemption of a Rogue (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—Paddy's Heroism (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—Under the Mask (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Fatal Hour (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—The She-Wolf (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).

BRAY-GILBERT SILHOUETTE FANTASIES.

Feb. 9—Haunts For Rent.
Mar. 2—How Dizzy Joe Got to Heaven.

BLUE BIRD PHOTOPLAYS.

Feb. 21—The Wrong Door (Five parts—Dr.).
Feb. 28—Grip of Jealousy (Five parts—Dr.).
Mar. 6—Rupert of Hentzau (Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—The Strength of the Weak (Five parts—Drama).

CLARIDGE FILMS, INC.

Feb.—The Heart of New York (Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Feb. 6—Merely Mary Ann (Drama).
Feb. 13—The Fool's Revenge (Drama).
Feb. 20—Fighting Blood (Drama).
Feb. 27—The Witch (Drama).

HANOVER FILM CO., INC.

Feb.—Should a Baby Die (Five parts—Drama).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb.—A Fool's Paradise (Six parts—Drama).

KULEE FEATURES.

Feb.—Germany on the Firing Line (Six parts—Topical).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Feb. 14—Dimples (Columbia—Five parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—A Corner In Cotton (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Soul Market (Popular Plays and Players—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Feb. 17—He Fell in Love with His Wife (Pallas—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—Blacklist (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.).
Feb. 28—Diplomacy (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 2—Poor Little Peppina (Famous Players—Six parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—To Have and to Hold (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS.

Feb. 16—Miss Nanny Goat Becomes An Aviator (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 24—Bobby Bumps and His Pointer Pup (Cartoon—Comedy).
Mar. 9—Colonel Heeza Liar and the Pirates (Comedy).

PARAMOUNT—BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL—PICTURES.

Feb. 21—A Day With the West Point Cadet (Military).
Feb. 28—Our Middies At Annapolis (Military).

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS.

Feb. 6—No. 1, Frederick Palmer, Henry Reuterdahl, Hugo Munsterberg, J. R. Bray and others.
Feb. 13—No. 2, Theo. Roosevelt, Hugo Munsterberg, Zalud, J. R. Bray and others.
Feb. 20—No. 3, Major General Leonard Wood, former Secretary of War, Hugo Munsterberg, J. R. Bray and others.
Feb. 27—No. 4, Frederick Palmer, Hugo Munsterberg, J. R. Bray and others.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week Feb. 13:
His Picture in the Papers (Fine Arts—Five parts—Comedy).
Honor's Altar (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
Fido's Fate (Keystone—Two parts—Com.).
Better Late Than Never (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).

WORLD-EQUITABLE.

Feb. 21—The Question (Equitable—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—A Woman's Power (World—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Price of Happiness (Equitable—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Pawn of Fate (World—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Price of Happiness (Equitable—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Pawn of Fate (World—Five parts—Drama).

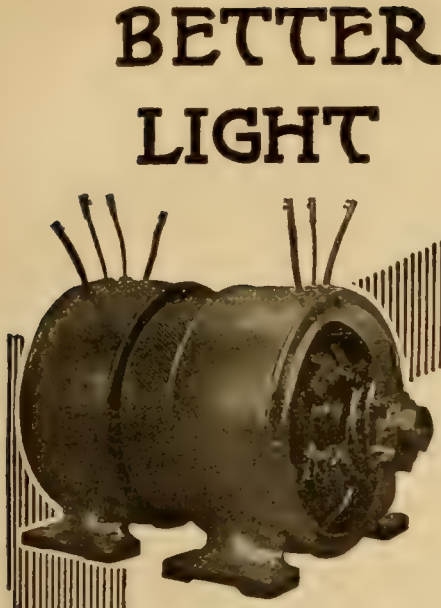
V-L-S-E, INC.

Feb. 14—Dollars and Cents (Lubin—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—The Writing on the Wall (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—Vultures of Society (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—Kennedy Square (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Her Bleeding Heart (Lubin—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Discard (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).

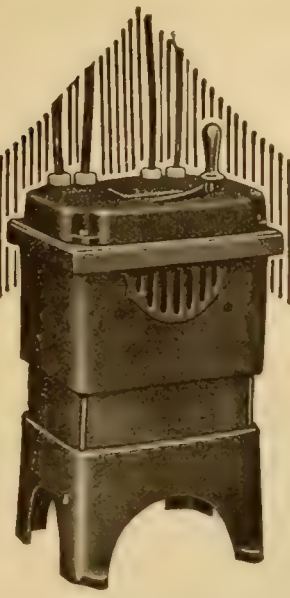
KLEINE-EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Feb. 9—When Love Is King (Edison—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—The Scarlet Road (Kleine—Five parts—Drama).

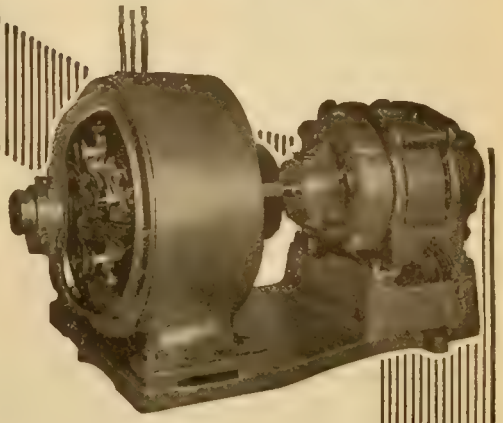
BETTER LIGHT LESS CURRENT



The DC Compensarc lowers the voltage of a direct current supply to that required at the lamp without needless waste.



The AC Compensarc cuts ⅔ from your lighting bill if you use alternating current.



The AC to DC Compensarc will transform alternating into direct current and reduce the voltage at the same time without needless waste.

No matter what current you have---Alternating or Direct---or what voltage or frequency, one of the will enable you to secure a light that will give those clear, bright pictures that everybody now demands.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARCS

What's the use of paying extra money for special screens, projecting machines, and first run films and then spoil the whole result with poor light? With the Fort Wayne Compensarcs you can get any kind of light you want regardless of the kind or quality of your current supply.

The Compensarcs will give you

STEADY LIGHT. No flickering, no sputtering, even when changing intensities or from one machine to another.

WHITE LIGHT. No yellow streaks, no ghosts.

BRIGHT LIGHT. Three times the light with two-thirds the current.

They are safe, efficient, easy to operate, fool proof and reliable.

C-5

Compensarcs are so commonly found in motion picture theatres that many people now call all current saving and transforming devices by that name.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1702 BROADWAY
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

But Remember

If it isn't a FORT WAYNE *it isn't a "COMPENSARC"*

Send TODAY for this FREE descriptive booklet

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1522, 1524.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Selig, Vim.

Friday—Kalem, Knickerbocker, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Jan. 26—Stronger than Woman's Will (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—When Kings were the Law (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 35).
Feb. 1—The Chain of Evidence (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 2—The Smugglers (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—A Chance Deception (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 36).
Feb. 9—The Iron Will (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—Just Gold (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 37).
Feb. 15—His White Lie (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—Pique (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—His Mother's Son (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 38).
Feb. 23—The Guilt of Stephen Eldridge (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Burglar's Dilemma (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 39).
Feb. 29—What Happened to Peggy (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—The Indian (Three parts—Drama).

ESSANAY.

Feb. 5—The Primitive Strain (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Strange Case of Mary Page (No. 3, "The Web"—Two parts—Dr.).
Feb. 9—The Fable of the Grass Widow and Mesmeree and the Six Dollars (Comedy).
Feb. 12—Golden Lies (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—The Strange Case of Mary Page (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 15—Gold Dust (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
Feb. 19—Politeness Pays (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 22—The Bridesmaid's Secret (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 23—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 5 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 26—The Despoiler (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 6 (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 29—The Surprise House (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—Cartoon of City of London (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Mar. 4—Beyond the Laws (Three parts—Dr.).
Mar. 6—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 7—The Intruder (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 8—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 6 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Mar. 11—A Man's Work (Three parts—Drama).

KALEM.

Feb. 2—The Moth and the Star (No. 11 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—The Lurking Peril (No. 15 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Feb. 5—The Broken Wire (No. 65 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Feb. 8—Wurra-Wurra (Comedy).
Feb. 9—The Darkest Hour (No. 12 of the "Stingaree" Series—Drama).
Feb. 11—The Trail's End (No. 16 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Feb. 12—The Peril of the Rails (No. 66 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Feb. 15—Ham Takes a Chance (Comedy).
Feb. 16—A Molar Mix-Up (Comedy).
Feb. 18—The Guiding Hand (No. 17 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Feb. 19—The "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (No. 67, "The Perilous Swing"—Drama).
Feb. 22—Ham the Diver (Comedy).
Feb. 23—Earning His Salt (Comedy).
Feb. 25—The Night Watch (Drama).
Feb. 26—A Leap Year Wooing (Comedy).
Feb. 29—Winning the Widow (Comedy).
Mar. 1—A Riddle in Rascals (Comedy).
Mar. 3—Title not yet announced.
Mar. 4—The Girl Telegrapher's Nerve (No. 69 of "The Hazard's of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Mar. 7—Maybe Moonshine (Comedy).
Mar. 8—When Hubby Forgot (Farce—Comedy).
Mar. 10—Title not yet announced.
Mar. 11—A Race For Life (No. 70 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).

LUBIN.

Jan. 20—The Law's Injustice (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Insomnia (Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle Tom (Comedy—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Two News Items (Drama).
Jan. 25—The Dragoman (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—The Embodied Thought (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 29—Cured (Comedy).
Jan. 31—A Reformation Delayed (Comedy).
Feb. 3—A Modern Paul (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 5—The Election Bet (Comedy).
Feb. 7—The New Janitor (Comedy—Unit Program).
Feb. 8—The Last Shot (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 10—Sold to Satan (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 12—Billie's Lucky Bill (Comedy).
Feb. 14—A Song from the Heart (Drama).
Feb. 17—The Uplift (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—A Temporary Husband (Comedy).
Feb. 21—The Repentant (Drama).
Feb. 22—Four Narratives (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 24—The Redemption of Helene (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 26—Billie's Revenge (Comedy).
Feb. 28—At the Doors of Doom (Drama).
Mar. 2—Her Wayward Sister (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 4—Hamlet Made Over (Comedy).

SELIG.

Jan. 27—Selig-Tribune No. 8, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 29—Apple Butter (No. 10 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center") (Rural Comedy).
Jan. 31—Diamonds Are Trumps (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Selig-Tribune No. 9, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 3—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 10, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 5—The Desert Calls Its Own (Western—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Dragnet (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 11, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 10—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 12, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 12—A Mix-up in Movies (Western—Com.).
Feb. 14—The Black Orchid (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 14—Selig-Tribune, No. 13, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 17—Selig-Tribune, No. 14, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 19—Making Good (Drama).
Feb. 21—Virtue Triumphant (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—Selig-Tribune No. 15, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 24—Selig-Tribune No. 16, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 26—A Safe Risk (Comedy).
Feb. 28—Selig-Tribune No. 17, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 28—The Grinning Skull (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 2—Selig-Tribune No. 18, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 4—The Uncut Diamond (Drama).

VIM.

Feb. 4—The Getaway (Comedy).
Feb. 10—Bungles Rainy Day (Comedy).
Feb. 11—The High Sign (Comedy).
Feb. 17—One Too Many (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Pluck and Luck (Comedy).
Feb. 24—Bungles Inforces the Law (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Love and Lather (Comedy).
Mar. 2—The Serenade (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Artist's Model (Comedy).
Mar. 9—Bungle's Elopement (Comedy).
Mar. 10—Their Wedding Day (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Feb. 7—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Comedy—Unit Program).
Feb. 11—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 9, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 11—Freddy's Last Bean (Comedy).
Feb. 12—From Out of the Past (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—You're Next (Comedy).
Feb. 18—In Arcadia (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 10, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 19—The Man He Used to Be (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—Hughey, the Process Server (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Freddy's Narrow Escape (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial, No. 11, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 26—The Road of Many Turnings (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Her Bad Quarter of an Hour (Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 3—Tubby Turns the Tables (Comedy).
Mar. 3—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 12, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 4—La Paloma (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Pansy's Papas (Comedy).
Mar. 6—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Unit Program—Four parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Bittersweet (Unit Program—Comedy).
Mar. 10—Beaned by a Beanshooter (Comedy).
Mar. 10—Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial No. 13, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 11—Husks (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 24—The Ruse (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 5—Bill Peters' Kid (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 12—From Out of the Past (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—The Man He Used to Be (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 26—The Road of Many Turnings (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 4—La Paloma (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Husks (Three parts—Drama).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Feb. 4—The Crime of Circumstance (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 11—The Big Brother (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 18—The Child of the West (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 25—Who Knows? (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 3—The Master Smiles (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Slave of Corruption (Three parts—Drama).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—The Evangelist (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle (Lubin—Comedy).
Feb. 7—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Feb. 7—The New Janitor (Lubin—Comedy).
Mar. 6—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Bittersweet (Comedy).

"THE DREAM OF EUGENE ARAM."

Adapted and produced by COLIN CAMPBELL from Thomas Hood's Famous Poem and Featuring TYRONE POWER and ROY CLARK. Released Through General Film Service Monday, March 6. Take Our "Hunch" and Book This Extraordinary Feature Drama!

AND THEN

The Selig-Tribune

The World's Greatest News Film

GETS THE NEWS AND SHOWS IT FIRST!

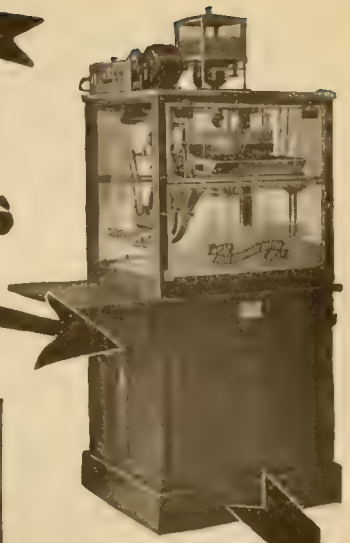
"THE PASSING OF PETE."

Daring, Death-defying Doings by TOM MIX Put Pepper and Power in this Western Drama, Released Through General Film Service on Saturday, March 11.

Selig Polyscope Co.

The DEPENDABLE Service

Add This



To Your Theatre

And Get This

70c. Extra Profit from 20 Admissions

Manager Sharding of Georgia Motion Picture Theatre, writes that his net profits are $63 to $70 a week.

Motion put the money in the motion picture business and the BUTTER-KIST Pop Corn Machine acts the same way in making people stop, look and buy! Hundreds of theatre owners are now operating this "little gold mine." And you are missing from $300 to $3000 EXTRA yearly profits without it.

This wonderful machine will make big Extra Profits for any theatre, large or small.

"Profits as high as $112 per week," writes F. G. Pickett of the Hippodrome Theatre at Fairmount, W. Va.

"Profits $5.25 to $8.50 a day from Butter-Kist machine in our lobby," writes H. G. Heck of Utica, N. Y.

Scores of theatres paying rent, light and heat from Butter-Kist sales.

Butter-Kist Pop Corn Machine

makes the famous crackling white pop corn with the toasty flavor. Folks can't resist its coaxing fragrance. Draws people to your theatre. Occupies only 26 by 32 inches of floor space! Plenty of room in the lobby or down near the stage. Move a chair and you have room for it.

Runs Itself

Automatically pops, removes the unpopped kernels, and butters each fluffy white morsel evenly—then super-heats it to a tantalizing crisp!

We're advertising this matchless treat to millions—line up your theatre with this big new national success.

A Small Payment

starts this machine popping you extra profits and increasing theatre attendance. Balance soon paid out of Butter-Kist earnings.

Mail the Money-Making Coupon and get our handsome book, "The Little Gold Mine," that gives photos, letters, proof of profits, easy terms and full details. It's F-R-E-E! You lose cold cash every day you delay. Sign and mail the coupon AT ONCE.

HOLCOMB & HOKE MFG. CO.

501 Van Buren Street

Dept. 11 Indianapolis, Ind.

Holcomb & Hoke Mfg. Co., 501 Van Buren St., Indianapolis, Ind. Send FREE, postpaid, your photo-book, "The Little Gold Mine," and figures that prove what the "Butter-Kist" profits are in theatres, stores, etc.

Name .....

Business .....

Address .....

P orter Equips Two Million Dollar Theatre

The BILTMORE, New York's LARGEST MOTION PICTURE THEATRE signs contract with B. F. Porter to supervise and install Two Latest SIMPLEX Moving Picture machines and special ACCESSORIES for LONG DISTANCE PROJECTION and LARGE SCREEN. Nearly all of Greater New York's largest and finest theatres were equipped by

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE FIRST QUALITY SUPPLY HOUSE

NO WAR BOOST ON OUR PRICES

Regardless of the present European unpleasantness we continue to use all essential chemicals such as

METOL AND HYDROQUINONE

and consistently maintain standard prices for quality.

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

Send today for our price, quality and service guarantee

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE CO., 223-233 W. Erie St. CHICAGO

TRY ERKER'S LABORATORY

FOR QUALITY MOVING PICTURE DEVELOPING AND PRINTING. OUR TITLES GUARANTEED "ROCK-STEADY" ON THE BEST EASTMAN STOCK.

WRITE DEPT. "P" FOR FREE PRICE LIST

WRITE FOR CATALOG "S" FOR THEATER EQUIPMENT.

M. P. CAMERAS Established 1879 REPAIRING

607 OLIVE ST. ERKER BROS. ST. LOUIS

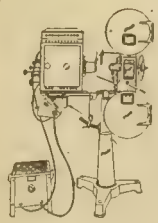
EVERYTHING

PERTAINING TO THE THEATRE. LARGE AND COMPLETE STOCK



SOLE SOUTHERN DISTRIBUTORS

SIMPLEX PROJECTORS

50-PAGE ILLUSTRATED SUPPLY CATALOGUE MAILED UPON REQUEST

LUCAS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

ATLANTA GEORGIA

Quality Service Reliability

When you want the best in machines or supplies in a hurry, get in touch with us. BY QUICK SERVICE, HONEST REPRESENTATION, BIG VALUES and COURTEOUS TREATMENT, we have become the ACKNOWLEDGED LEADERS in our line.

Let us tell you of OUR PLAN for BIGGER PROFITS and BETTER SERVICE.

We are the leading dealers in Moving Picture Machines and Supplies and can fill your every need. Drop us a line today for our complete catalog and special bargains.

We sell on the instalment plan

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

6th Floor, Cambridge Bldg.

N. W. Cor. 5th Ave. and Randolph, Chicago, Ill.

Distributors of the Motiograph, Power's, Simplex, Edison and other Machines and Genuine Parts

THUMB FULCO TACKS

E.E.Fulton Co.

152 W. Lake St.

Chicago

The Department Store of the Moving Picture Trade

Every Exhibitor will appreciate the usefulness of the Fulco Thumb Tack.

FULCO FULCO

The handiest thing ever for putting up Posters, Photos, Cards, Announcements, Decorations, etc.

FULCO FULCO FULCO

The Box of 100 Pointers

Made in two sizes:

Size No. 3, per 100...15c.

Size No. 4, per 100...20c.

"The Picture that set all New York talking"
The Only German War Film to play the B. F. Keith Houses

The Fatherland Magazine Presents

"FIGHTING the ALLIES"

Five reels full of action. Actual Battle scenes in the sky, land and sea. Absolutely the best added attraction that was ever played with any show.

MAX SPIEGEL booked them with the "Tourists" at the Casino Theatre, Brooklyn, Jan. 17th. It was such a tremendous success that he booked it for the Miner's Bronx, then Empire Theatre, Brooklyn, and for seven weeks thereafter on tour.

JACOB AND JERMON, who noticed the pulling power of this wonderful picture, booked it for the Casino Theatre, Philadelphia, Jan. 31st, with "The Sporting Widows." It made such a tremendous hit that they had booked it for Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and three weeks in the West.

MR. CURTIN, of the Empire Theatre, Brooklyn, also noticed the pulling power and immediately booked it for his house the week of February 14th.

MR. WOLFORD, of the Yorkville Theatre, New York, who observed what the picture was doing, immediately booked it for the week of Feb. 21st at his theatre with "The Cabaret Girls."

MR. MURDOCK AND MR. ALBEE, of the B. F. Keith's Vaudeville Circuit, after seeing the picture, booked it as a headliner in the Colonial, Orpheum and Alhambra theatres, New York City. This is the first time in history of big time vaudeville that a motion picture was booked as an extra feature act.

These pictures are entirely new. First time shown at the Colonial, Alhambra and Orpheum Theatres recently.

Will accept bookings on percentage or flat rental,

STATE RIGHTS FOR SALE

SAMUEL CUMMINS

904 Longacre Building, Bway. and 42nd St., New York City

Opera Chairs
65c Each

Any part of 5,000 heavy 5 - ply Opera Chairs with wood arm rests and number plates. Good as new. Cost $1.35 each. Used only a few months. Must sell them immediately.

Lears Theatre Supply Co.
509 Chestnut Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GRINDEN

PERFECT
PORTABLE
SHEET STEEL

PROJECTOR BOOTHS

Warranted
Fire Proof

Developed from suggestions made by an expert operator and perfected through the introduction of a number of novel mechanical devices. Can be assembled in half an hour by one man.

Projection openings so arranged that by raising or lowering the shutter any pitch of the projection machine can be obtained and at the same time conform to the ruling of the authorities as to its size. Every opening may be tightly closed and automatically locked.

Can be packed in a crate 30 inches wide by 24 inches high by 6 feet 6 inches long, crate weighing approximately 100 pounds. Net weight of booth complete is 490 pounds.

For Prices and Complete Descriptive Circular Address

GRINDEN ART METAL CO.
419-427 Marcy Avenue Brooklyn, N. Y.

Moving Picture Theatre Owners

Wishing to increase gross receipts and net profits, or desirous of securing additional ideas for the development of legitimate business, will receive information of advantage by writing for a copy of our "Motion Picture Theater Supply Catalog 'S'."

607 OLIVE ST. ERKER BROS. ST. LOUIS
Established 1879

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO. Inc.
1301 Race Street, Philadelphia

JOBBERS OF POWER'S, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH, STANDARD AND THE NEW EDISON DREADNAUGHT MACHINES AND GENUINE PARTS

No difference what screen you are using, we will improve your picture seventy-five per cent. Better light, greater depth of Focus with Rembusch Famous Crystal Fibre Screen. Seeing is believing. Let us prove to you by demonstrating. Special Eastern Agents.

G. W. BRADENBURGH
Film Renter and Exporter
802 Vine Street Philadelphia, Pa.

Life of Christ	Pathe Colored	3200 feet	$150
Princess of Bagdad	Helen Gardner	6200 feet	135
The Movie Queen	Asta Nielsen	5000 feet	175
Madam Sans Gene	Helen Rejane	3200 feet	90
The Dream Woman	Blache	4000 feet	90
The Valley of Death	Western	4000 feet	80
And There Was Light	Helen Gardner	4000 feet	75
Possessed of a Demon	A. Basserman	5000 feet	100
Aeronautical Intrigue	Asta Nielsen	4000 feet	150
Heart of Midlothian	Hepworth	5000 feet	100

Posters, one, three and six sheets, at 8c. per sheet. Send for list of single, two and three-reel subjects.

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.

For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.

For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation

American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush of "Moving Picture World"

85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.

Specimen on Application

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 6881 Audubon
416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS

PRODUCING MONTHLY, FEATURE DRAMAS OF DISTINCTIVE MERIT IN WHICH "THE PLAY'S THE THING"; PRESENTING FAMOUS SCREEN STARS UNDER FILMDOM'S MOST ARTISTIC DIRECTORS

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS INC. 126 WEST 46TH ST. NEW YORK

EXHIBITORS

Don't "wait" for business "Go after it"

with a

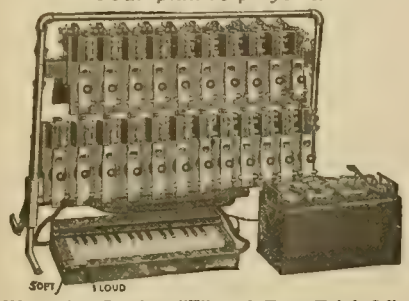
DEAGAN

Portable Electric Una-Fon

as a

Street and Lobby Ballyhoo

A 12-piece Brass Band in a 31-inch space. Weighs 125 pounds. Your pianist plays it.



Write for Catalog "F" and Free Trial Offer

J. C. DEAGAN

DEAGAN BLDG. 1776 BERTEAU AVE.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Improved Projection for Only Particular People.

We only sell MENISCUS-BICONVEX CONDENSERS COMBINATION to managers who are endeavoring to specialize in improved projection and better light, and the operator who is particular and wants to give the best there is in him, at a saving of electricity.

Meniscus Biconvex condensers are proven scientifically and optically correct. We guarantee you improvement by the endorsement of all good authorities on projection. We are exclusive importers. You must buy here for the pure white glass. Give distance, send $4.20 today (20c. for postage) for 1 set Meniscus Biconvex Condensers.

Use System in your business and keep your records of receipts and expenses by day, week, and year, by using THE THEATER RECORD LEDGER SYSTEM. Send $2.70 (20c. for postage) and commence a business system. Money returned if wanted.

The Northwestern Motion Picture Equipment Co., Inc.

Distributors of Power's and Simplex Machines and everything for your theater.

622 Hennepin Ave. Minneapolis, U. S. A.

Perfect Developing and Printing

Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS

NEGATIVES DEVELOPED ....1c. FT.
POSITIVE PRINTING .....4c. FT.

Special price on quantity orders.

TITLES in any language

5c. per foot complete

Cards Free—Tinting Free

Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.

GUNBY BROS., Inc.

145 West 45th Street New York City

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.

Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment

215-217 E. Washington Street

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

In Answering Advertisements
Please Mention
The Moving Picture World

Anti-Censorship Slides

Four Slides		50c.
Six Slides		75c.
Twelve Slides	All Different	$1.50

Address
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City

Moving Picture Exhibitors and Theatre Managers. The fight against Legalized Censorship of Moving Pictures is your fight. Show these slides on your screen for the next few months and help create a strong public sentiment against this unnecessary and un-American form of legislation. See page 1743 of our issue of March 20th for text matter. All slides neatly colored, carefully packed and postage paid.

"Keeping Everlastingly at it Brings Success"

Send your slide orders and remittance at once to

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y.

The American Standard

is the ideal motion picture machine. Ideal from the operator's viewpoint because made of comparatively fewer but stronger and better parts, yet containing all those mechanical features and exclusive devices supporting the fundamental idea around which the Master Model is built: that of perfection of projection with greatest ease of operation.

Master Model Projector

Ideal, too, from the exhibitor's viewpoint, because projection troubles cease when Master Models are in the booth. No breakdowns, no heavy repair bills to swell the low initial cost.

AMERICAN STANDARD M. P. M. CO.

110-112 W. 40th Street, New York

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

1544 BWAY. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

THE BEST REASON IN THE WORLD FOR BUYING AN AUTOMATICKET SELLER IS WHAT THE 3800 USERS THINK, KNOW AND SAY ABOUT THE AUTOMATICKET SELLING SYSTEM

AUTOMATICKET
"USED WHEREVER TICKETS ARE SOLD"

We are specialists in the manufacture of Automatic Ticket Selling Machines and all kinds of Tickets

THE AUTOMATICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER CO
1735 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

The film that first made motion pictures practical remains, to-day, through its consistent excellence, a big factor in their success.

It is easily identified by the stencil mark

"EASTMAN"

in the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Ornamental Theatres

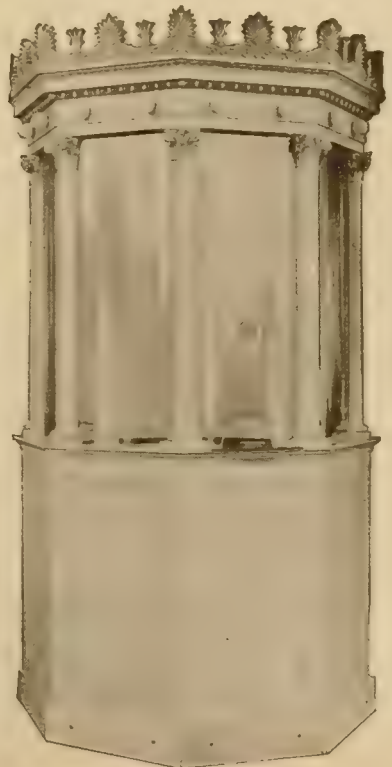
PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Send for our 1916 catalog. It contains forty beautiful full-page illustrations—some in colors—of theatres we have designed and decorated. It shows several styles of ticket booths, lighting fixtures and ornaments; it will give you many valuable ideas for decorating your new theatre or improving the looks of your present one.

Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street, CHICAGO, ILL.



Laboratory Insurance!

Why invest money in expensive chemicals and high salaried and competent men to mix your developing solutions, in order that your negatives will receive the proper chemical attention, but overlook the fact that a cheaply constructed and leaky tank will jeopardize your result? Interest yourself in this statement and send for Circular No. 8.

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11 John Street NEW YORK CITY

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N. Y.

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

The most important Film Journal in Italy.

Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.

Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy.

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W49.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

BOUND VOLUMES of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

are the

Accepted Reference Books

of the Moving Picture Trade

Your Office Equipment Is Not Complete Without Them

ADDRESS CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.
17 Madison Ave., New York City

"PERFECTION IN PROJECTION"
GOLD KING SCREEN
GOLD KING SCREENS ARE BEST
TEN DAYS FREE TRIAL
GOLD KING SCREEN CO., ALTUS, OKLA.

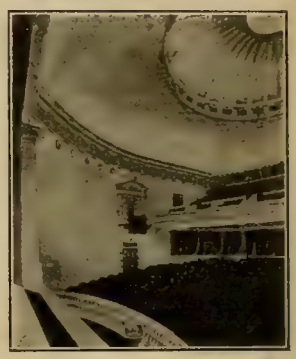
LET THE EXPERT DESIGN IT!

IF THE BEST BE DESIRED

at the lowest price, employ a qualified specialist technically experienced with model theatre structures in Europe and America.

The author of "Modern Theatre Construction"

Complete plans and specifications, including full detail and working drawings at 3% on cost, specially prepared for each project.



Edward Barnard Kinsila
Architect and Specialist
New York Studio
228 WEST 42d STREET

PRICE LIST OF MUSIC

suggested in the cue sheet for the current V-L-S-E release

"FOR A WOMAN'S FAIR NAME"

Nevin—Oh, That We Two Were Maying	$0.80	Caruso—Love's Torment	$0.75
Fysher—A Woman's Word	.75	Friml—Legende	1.00
Jarnefelt—Prelude	1.25	Bullard—Celtic Dance
Schumann—Aria from F Sharp Minor Sonata		Wormser—Madrigal and Valse	1.50
Rubinstein—Kamenoi Ostrow	1.55	Mouton—Enchanted Hour	1.00
Romberg—Auf Wiedersehn	.60	Friml—Suite of Four Selected Pieces	1.25
		Strauss—Adagio Cantabile	1.00

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to net amount. Quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

The numbers in the cue sheet preceded by an asterisk (*) refer to the Schirmer Photoplay Series a loose leaf collection of dramatic numbers specially written for motion picture use. Two volumes now ready.

Price per volume (containing 10 numbers): Small Orchestra, $3.20; full orchestra, $4.40. Each number separately, 60c., small; 80c. full.

G. SCHIRMER (INC.) 3 East 43rd Street New York City

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland.

The Quality Carbons of the World
Reflex D. C. Carbons have a Specially Constructed Negative with Copper Coated Core

Do not be alarmed about a carbon shortage. Try REFLEX carbons and solve all your difficulties.
Send us your order now. REFLEX results will please and surprise you.

3/4 x 12 plain cored	$10.00 per 100 carbons
5/8 x 12 plain cored	7.50 per 100 carbons
5/8 x 6 copper coated cored	3.75 per 100 carbons
1/2 x 6 copper coated cored	2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with REFLEX carbons, send cash with your order or instruct us to ship C. O. D. and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Write us for Descriptive Circular

JONES & CAMMACK
SOLE IMPORTERS
Corner Bridge and Whitehall Streets New York City

FOR SALE

MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 24,050; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

1173 Film Exchanges	$4.00
205 Manufacturers and Studios	1.50
235 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers	1.50

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago

Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have

50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK

in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and

IMMEDIATE SERVICE

Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered, kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

General Offices: 1010 Lytton Bldg., Chicago
Sales offices in all principal cities

TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
4987 General Office, Schenectady, N. Y.

OPERA CHAIRS

1000 Styles
For every purpose
Established 1865
Write for Cat. No. 31

Branches in leading cities
1472 Broadway, New York
728 Mission St., San Francisco
512½ First Ave. So., Seattle
Broadway & Yamhill St., Portland

THE A. H. ANDREWS CO., 115-117 SO. WABASH AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

In answering advertisements please mention The Moving Picture World

PROJECTION MACHINES of exceptional value.

2 SIMPLEX, used, PERFECT, with 110 V., A. C. Motors and all attachments, $235.00 each (regular $350.00 equipment).
One Edison Model D, good as NEW, $130.00.
1 No. 6 A with LOOP SETTER, used two weeks only, almost new, $200.00 or $235.00, with motor and attachments.

1—No. 6, complete, in good condition	$115.00
1—No. 6A complete	155.00
1—No. 5 complete	65.00
1—Exhibition Model, perfect running order	45.00
1—Simplex, slightly used, good	200.00
1—Mirroroid Curtain, PERFECT, 9 x 12	35.00

Privilege of examination on receipt of 20% payment on account, balance C. O. D. The projecting of good pictures is usually seen on a Mirroroid Curtain. Can we quote on one for you?

THE STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa

DU PONT FABRIKOID REG U S PAT OFF

Upholstered Chairs

Make Your House Popular You Can Afford Them Now

DU PONT FABRIKOID REG U S PAT OFF

THE most essential appointment in any theatre is an easy chair from which to view the presentation on the stage. Have your chairs made right and upholster them in Du Pont Fabrikoid, Craftsman Quality, and you are sure to draw the crowd.

75% of the upholstered seats made are covered with leather substitute. Fabrikoid leads all others in elegance, durability and economy. Years of hard service in theatres have proven this to be a fact.

FABRIKOID, Craftsman Quality, reproduces the appearance of grain leather and wears next best to that expensive article. Warranted superior to coated split leather and "so-called genuine leathers." Fabrikoid will not crack, split, peel or stick to the clothing. Kept sanitary with soap and water.

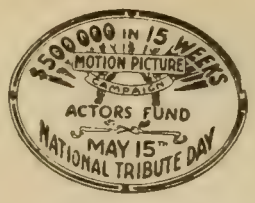
Fabrikoid is reasonable in price. Investigate Du Pont Fabrikoid when ordering new seats or recovering worn ones.

Samples Sent Free on Request

Du Pont Fabrikoid Company

Wilmington, Delaware

Works at Newburgh, New York. Canadian Factory and Sales Office, Toronto



Send in some money NOW!!!

$500,000 IS GOING TO BE COLLECTED IN FIFTEEN WEEKS IN THE

MOTION PICTURE CAMPAIGN

FOR THE

ACTORS' FUND

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
CHAIRMAN

DISTRIBUTORS, EXHIBITORS, MANAGERS, ARTISTS, DESIGNERS, ACTORS, ACTRESSES, WRITERS, EXCHANGE FORCES, PRESIDENTS, MANUFACTURERS, CAMERAMEN, BOOKKEEPERS, AUDITORS

WATCH FOR THE NEWS CONCERNING THIS DATE

Monday May 15th

THIS IS NATIONAL MOTION PICTURE TRIBUTE DAY

DETAILED ANNOUNCEMENTS LATER

CASHIERS, SHIPPING CLERKS, POSTER ROOM MEN, FILM DOCTORS, SOLICITORS, DOORMEN, USHERS, MACHINE OPERATORS, ADVERTISING MEN, PROPERTY MEN, ETC., ETC. EVERYONE IN THE FILM INDUSTRY IS REQUESTED TO HELP!

Make All Checks and Money Orders Payable to
The Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund
J. STUART BLACKTON, Treasurer
LOCUST AVENUE BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

LUBIN

Releases Week of Feb. 28th

Feb. 28th

"The DOORS of DOOM"

(One Act Drama)

March 2nd

"Her WAYWARD SISTER"

(3 Act Drama)

BILLIE REEVES COMEDY

(One Act)

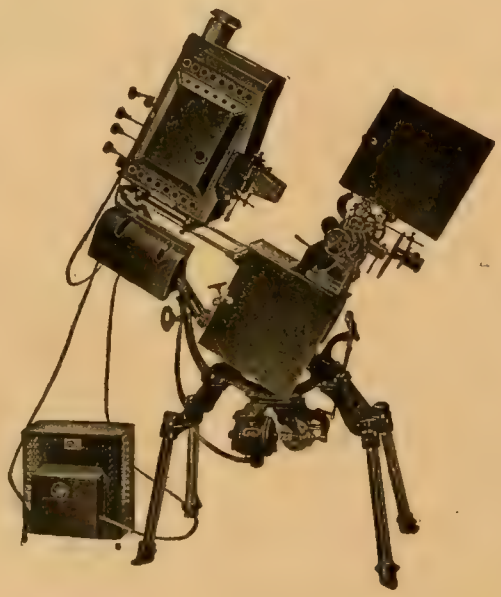
March 4th

"HAMLET MADE OVER"

GENERAL FILM LUBIN RELEASES

Sigmund Lubin

"SIXTEEN YEARS N.P.Co OF KNOWING HOW"



CRITICISM

Live exhibitors look for the best, experience having taught them to appeal to their patrons with a perfect show.

Projection of motion pictures is always subject to criticism when the picture is marred with flicker or jump.

You can secure yourself against this criticism by installing Power's Cameragraph No. 6B, the motion picture projecting machine without an equal.

Inform yourself of our patented intermittent movement and other distinctive features of this perfect machine, all details of which are given in our

Illustrated Catalog G

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 27, No. 10 March 11, 1916 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Immortal Flame" (Ivan).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MUTUAL PICTURES

EDWIN THANHOUSER
PRESENTS

THE CRUISE OF FATE

STAGED IN 3 REELS
BY ERNEST WARDE

STORY BY
LLOYD LONERGAN

CAST INCLUDES
THOS. A. CURRAN
AND BOYD MARSHALL

RELEASED WED. MARCH 8TH

FEATURING THE FAMOUS STAR AND INTERNATIONAL BEAUTY

VALKYRIEN
(BARONESS DEWITZ)

FALSTAFF

OSCAR THE OYSTER OPENER — REEL 1 — TUES. MAR 7
WITH FRANK E. McNISH AND CLAUDE COOPER

AMBITIOUS AWKWARD ANDY — REEL 1 — THURS. MAR 9
WITH FAT AND FUNNY WALTER REIDS

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE N.Y.

Gladys Hanson

Famous Frohman Star

is presented in

"THE HAVOC"

in 5 acts

Born to love, desperate in her loneliness,
a woman Sins.

Come days of bitter anguish, nights of blighting
torture—a soul
harrowed by the fires of a self-made Hell.

Comes repentance with the light of pure love;
comes humility and Peace.

H. S. Sheldon, author
Arthur Berthelet, director

Trademark Reg.
U. S. Pat. Off.

ESSANAY
GEORGE K SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY
V L S E

BACK AGAIN—that charming, dainty screen star, Ethel Grandin—popular for years with millions of Photo-Play lovers. Constantly growing, continually expanding, excelling any and ALL others, the mighty UNIVERSAL PROGRAM is always adding more stars to its already huge list. If you can secure the UNIVERSAL PROGRAM in your neighborhood or territory DO IT TODAY. Tomorrow may be too late. Communicate with your nearest Universal Exchange or direct with the—

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe
Carl Laemmle, President
1600 Broadway, New York

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS

PRESENT

THE DAINTY IDOL OF THE SCREEN

VIOLET MERSEREAU

In an unusual Romantic Drama of Idyllic Charm

"AUTUMN"

WITH

LIEUT PERCY RICHARDS

"THE MAN IN WHITE"

BOOK THROUGH UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE

BLUEBIRD TRIUMPHS

"'Jeanne Dore' brings unbidden tears of real sympathy to the eyes."—Toronto (Can.) World.

BLUEBIRD
Photo-Plays
(Incorporated)
The world's finest
Screen
Productions
Present
Sarah Bernhardt in "Jeanne Dore." January 24.
Helen Ware in "Secret Love." January 31.
Ida Schnall in "Undine." February 7.
Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley in "Hop, the Devil's Brew." February 14.
Carter DeHaven in "The Wrong Door." February 21.
Louise Lovely in "The Grip of Jealousy." February 28.
"Rupert of Hentzau" with Jane Gail. March 6.
For bookings communicate with the Executive Offices of BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (Inc.), 1600 Broadway, New York, or your local BLUEBIRD Exchange.

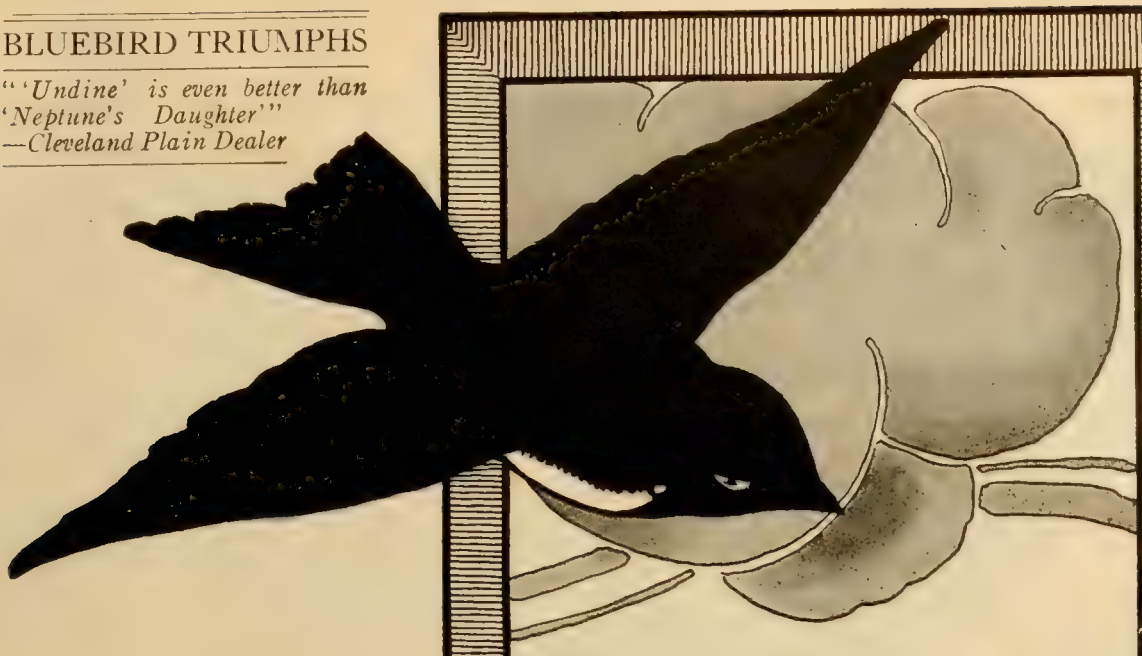
Special music for all BLUEBIRD Photo Plays may be secured from your Exchange

BLUEBIRD TRIUMPHS

"'Undine' is even better than 'Neptune's Daughter'"
—Cleveland Plain Dealer



BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (inc) ANNOUNCE

The Eighth Release

Mary Fuller

in

"The Strength of the Weak"

Adapted for the Screen by WILLIAM ADDISON LATHROP from the Famous Drama of the Same Name

Directed by LUCIUS HENDERSON

BOOKINGS May be arranged By Communicating with the executive offices of BLUEBIRD Photo-Plays (Inc) 1600 Broadway NEW YORK or your local Bluebird Booking Offices

Special Music for all BLUE BIRD Photo Plays may be secured from your Exchange.

SHUBERT FILM CORP.

Presents

Kitty Gordon

The statuesquely Lovely ..... Stage Sensation .....

IN The International Success

"As in a Looking Glass"

Miss Gordon's Premiere As A Star Of The Shadow Stage

Her Startling Gowns Alone Make This Lavishly Produced Feature A Big "Self-Advertiser." Miss Gordon Has Outdone For Brilliant Originality Even Her Most Talked About Creations. A Different Gown Of Sweeping Symmetry Of Line, And Lavishly Ornate Richness, For Every One Hundred Feet Of Film.

Live, Wide-Awake Exhibitors Are Due To Open Up A Golden Bonanza With This Photodrama.

It deals with a trap set by a scheming and surpassingly lovely society woman for a man whom, too late, she realizes she loves with a burning passion that halts at nothing.

P I C T U R

In booking a picture, you must con cellent in itself as the feature may

Have you ever considered what
Service—not "Lip-Service" means

Write today to our Sales-Service and find out how the WORLD

P I C T U R

RELEASED THROUGH WORLD FILM

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

Presents

Adele Blood

Famous as "Everywoman"

Edwin Stevens and Montagu Love

IN

"The DEVIL'S TOY"

A Stupendous Triumph Of Film Art.
Three Great Dramatic Celebrities In Their Screen Debut.
Premo Film Corporation Production

Here Is A Feature That Towers Head And Shoulders Above The Average From Any Point Of View, Supremely Dramatic, Superbly Photographed, Splendidly Staged By A Masterhand. Bound To Set a Record Mark From The Box-Office Standpoint.

ES PLUS

sider more than the production, ex-
be.

service!—real service—WORLD
to you.

Department—composed of experts, gives you

ES PLUS

CORPORATION 130 West 46th Street NEW YORK

TO THE EXHIBITORS

Lewis J. Selznick

PRESENTS

Clara Kimball Young

"Queen of the Screen," Who Has Won a Quadruple Crown of Glory and Popularity:

I—GOVERNOR: As a result of Miss Young's winning the Boston American contest she was escorted in the grand march at the ball by Hon. David I. Walsh, Governor of Massachusetts, and showered with official honors.

II—AUTOMOBILE: She won a Haynes "Six" Limousine in the New York Morning Telegraph popularity contest with more votes than all the other contestants put together.

III—DIAMONDS: As a result of the New York American contest she was presented with an immensely valuable diamond bracelet and led the grand march at the "Movie Ball." She received 707,358 votes.

IV—OVER 1,000,000 VOTES: In the New York Telegraph contest she scored more votes than have ever been given a candidate for anything except the Presidency of the United States, and

Received More Votes Than All Other Contestants Put Together

(As shown by the following table)

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG	1,001,538	Augusta Anderson, Biograph	72,453	Claire Whitney, Fox	2,256
Mary Pickford, Famous	10,767	Estelle Allen, N. Y. M. P. Co.	1,269	Violet Homer, World	1,137
Blanche Sweet, Lasky	7,620	Mary Alden, Mutual	1,177	Anna Laughlin, Features	7,656
Marguerite Clark, Famous	1,871	Gertrude Bambrick, Federal	17,481	Edwina Robbins, Vitagraph	8,610
Theda Bara, Fox	6,869	Nellie Craig, Essanay	1,469	Caroline Rankin, Edison	8,635
Pauline Bush, Universal	1,906	Adele S. Kelly, Vitagraph	9,276	Edna Payne, Universal	4,905
Hazel Dawn, Famous	29,053	Betty Lorraine, Vitagraph	20,865	Arline Pretty, Vitagraph	3,181
Pauline Frederick, Famous	1,845	Gertrude McCoy, Thanhouser	6,294	Viola Smith, Biograph	4,448
Norma Talmadge, National	8,617	Betty Marshall, Gotham	1,161	Ella Hall, Universal	2,685
Mabel Trunelle, Edison	6,525	Helen Gibson, Kalem	4,334	Alice Lake, Vitagraph	1,435
Lillian Lorraine, Pathe	1,584	Mildred Bright, Eclair	2,009	Lydia Mead, Thanhouser	12,941
Julia Swayne Gordon, Vitagraph	1,291	Irene Fenwick, Kleine	1,402	Runa Hodges, Fox	1,456
Zena Keefe, Vitagraph	1,203	Muriel Ostriche, Equitable	6,621	Gretchen Hartman, Biograph	1,328
Margaret Clayton, Essanay	1,558	Grace Diamond, Selig	1,733	Octavia Handworth, Lubin	2,349
Edna Mayo, Essanay	1,559	Marjorie Ellison, Edison	1,254	Illian Hune, Biograph	21,499
Lillian Walker, Vitagraph	9,074	Florence Crawford, Universal-B'way.	1,123	Winifred Greenwood, American	1,717
Viola Dana, Edison	6,090	Marguerite Courtot, Kalem	40,606	Adele Farrington, Universal	1,142
Ethel Clayton, Lubin	2,896	Eleanor Barry, Lubin	1,188	Margerita Fisher	1,248
Florence Lawrence, Universal	1,548	Bernice Berner, Vitagraph	2,184	Ruth La Belle, Biograph	1,679
Marion Leonard, Marion Leonard	1,754	Marjorie Daw, Lasky	1,158	Marion Henry, Vitagraph	3,834
Mary Fuller, Universal	6,339	Ethel C. Jewett, Thanhouser	203,507	Fraunie Fraungolz, Popular Plays and Players	1,259
Lottie Pickford, American	2,322	Norma Phillips, Mutual	1,927	Iwine Fairbanks, Thanhouser	4,232
Myrtle Stedman, Bosworth	1,579	Emily Stevens, B. A. Rolfe	2,072	Eulalie Jenson, Vitagraph	1,294
Marie Edith Wells, World	18,395	Eleanor Woodruff, Vitagraph	7,892	Vivian Rich, American	1,620
Pearl White, Pathe	6,215	Kathlyn Williams, Selig	1,917	Lillian Wiggins Associated	14,376
Jessie Lewis, World	2,559	Dorothy Green, Fox	14,705
Dorothy Kelly, Vitagraph	2,067	Ruby Hoffman, Famous	1,958	Total	957,670
Mary Nash, Knickerbocker	1,238	Elizabeth Drew, Reliance	1,289
Ruth Stonehouse, Essanay	3,702	Mary Charleson, Equitable	6,073	CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG	1,001,538
Lena Brown Viola, Pathe-Starlight	80,481	Emily E. Hope, Biograph	2,739
Mignon Anderson, Thanhouser	1,881	Betty Hamilton, Features	9,580
Nellie Anderson, Vitagraph	14,299	Cleo Ridgley, Lasky	1,501
Vivian Martin, World	1,501	Isabella Rea, Biograph	1,215

BEATING ALL TOGETHER BY 43,868

Notice to Exhibitors Who Have Telegraphed, Phoned or Written:

Please stop wiring and telephoning until we have had time to sort our telegrams and mail. We will answer as quickly as possible. Other exhibitors who have not applied yet had better hurry.

One Picture a Month. Beginning October. We Sell You Direct.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG FILM CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, Pres. and Gen. Mgr. 126 West 46th Street, New York

METRO PICTURES

Released on the METRO Program March 13.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION presents

Little MARY MILES MINTER in

LOVELY MARY

By Richard Barry

A Metro wonderplay in 5 Acts of love, pathos and romance. Supported by Thomas Carrigan and a supreme company.

Directed by Edgar Jones and produced by

COLUMBIA PICTURES CORPORATION

COMING METRO EVENTS

Metro-Drew Comedies

THE SUPREME FUN OF THE SCREEN IN ONE REEL FEATURE LENGTHS

First Release March 15

BOOKINGS NOW AT ALL METRO EXCHANGES

THE PIONEER AND PREMIER PRODUCING COMPANY
IN THE PRESENTATION OF CELEBRATED STARS AND PLAYS IN MOTION PICTURES

An Overwhelming Triumph

Following the enthusiastic tributes paid Famous Players' extraordinary production,

Mary Pickford in "Poor Little Peppina"

by the newspapers of Chicago and Philadelphia, the New York dramatic critics have unanimously declared this unusual subject to be a genuine photoplay sensation.

The Verdict of New York:

"Altogether adorable."—N. Y. Times.

"'Poor Little Peppina' is filling the Broadway Theatre to the standing-room line. The story grips the spectators."—N. Y. Eve. Sun.

"To 'Poor Little Peppina' Mary Pickford brings every ounce of that art for which she is famous."—N. Y. Tribune.

"Mary Pickford will doubtless add another laurel to her wreath by her splendid work."—N. Y. American.

"An artistic incident of immense importance to the world of motion pictures."—N. Y. Sun.

"Pure artistry."—N. Y. Eve. Mail.

"Touches all the emotions."—N. Y. Eve. World.

"In a class by itself—the greatest of Mary Pickford's efforts."—N. Y. Telegraph.

The critics and public of YOUR city will agree with the metropolitan endorsements of this superb production, receiving extra-run bookings throughout the country—released on the

Paramount Program

March 2nd

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, PRESIDENT
DANIEL FROHMAN, MANAGING DIRECTOR
STUDIOS AND EXECUTIVE OFFICES
124-130 WEST 56TH. STREET, NEW YORK
CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE, LTD., CALGARY-MONTREAL-TORONTO.

PARAMOUNT

Anyone can turn a camera crank —it takes genius to make Lasky Photoplays

Productions like "The Blacklist," "Carmen," "Temptation," "The Cheat," "The Golden Chance," "Pudd'nhead Wilson," "The Goose Girl" and scores of others prove the statement.

Months ago exhibitors, press and public were agreed that Lasky photoplays are the best.

What was at first a statement of belief has become a proven fact, until—

The name of LASKY means perfection in photoplay production.

Distributed in the United States by
Paramount Pictures Corporation

LASKY

JESSE L. LASKY

485 Fifth Avenue

Jesse L. Lasky President Samuel Goldfish

PROGRAM

Anyone can show moving pictures —but successful exhibitors present Lasky Photoplays

Your patrons are guaranteed that every moment in your theatre is a joy and delight.

You—Mr. Exhibitor, where ever you may be, in any part of the world—may know that the men and women who make Lasky photoplays supreme every minute are working, thinking, planning to keep the name of Lasky on top.

Stars like Geraldine Farrar, Marie Doro, Blanche Sweet, Fannie Ward, Cleo Ridgely, Mae Murray, Charlotte Walker, Victor Moore, Theodore Roberts, Wallace Reid and others appear exclusively in Lasky productions.

Canadian Distributors
Famous Players Film Service, Ltd.

LASKY

FEATURE PLAY Co Inc.
New York City
Vice-President and Treasurer Cecil B. DeMille Director General

Paramount Pictures

are the Productions of

Famous Players Film Company
Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.
Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.
Pallas Pictures

Paramount Pictures are produced up to a standard, not down to a level. They are backed by a definite plan and policy that will endure forever.

They are advertised to the public through high class universally read publications.

With Paramount Pictures your theatre becomes a local institution. Every link in the chain is carefully forged---it is like tying to the Rock of Gibraltar.

Ask your exchange to tell you about them tomorrow.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

3010 A

Arrange Extended Bookings

for

Mary Pickford

in

"Poor Little Peppina"

a

Paramount Picture

Produced by the Famous Players Film Co.

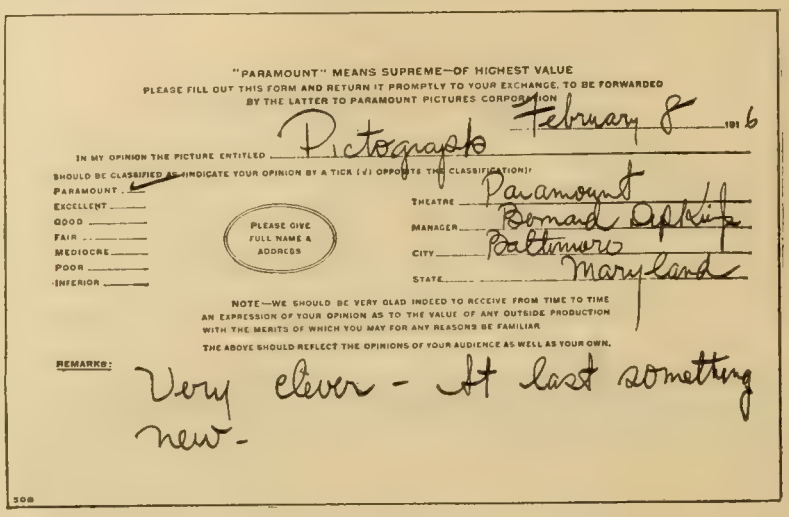
The leading newspapers all over the country, where the superb picture has been shown in advance, comment enthusiastically---agreeing that it is the idolized star's greatest triumph.

Paramount Pictures Corporation

FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.

NEW YORK, N.Y.

At Last
Something New!



"PARAMOUNT" MEANS SUPREME—OF HIGHEST VALUE
PLEASE FILL OUT THIS FORM AND RETURN IT PROMPTLY TO YOUR EXCHANGE, TO BE FORWARDED BY THE LATTER TO PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION

February 8 1916

IN MY OPINION THE PICTURE ENTITLED Pictograph

SHOULD BE CLASSIFIED AS (INDICATE YOUR OPINION BY A TICK (√) OPPOSITE THE CLASSIFICATION):

PARAMOUNT ✓
EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR
MEDIOCRE POOR INFERIOR

PLEASE GIVE FULL NAME & ADDRESS

THEATRE Paramount
MANAGER Bernard Depkitz
CITY Baltimore
STATE Maryland

NOTE—WE SHOULD BE VERY GLAD INDEED TO RECEIVE FROM TIME TO TIME AN EXPRESSION OF YOUR OPINION AS TO THE VALUE OF ANY OUTSIDE PRODUCTION WITH THE MERITS OF WHICH YOU MAY FOR ANY REASONS BE FAMILIAR.
THE ABOVE SHOULD REFLECT THE OPINIONS OF YOUR AUDIENCE AS WELL AS YOUR OWN.

REMARKS: Very clever - At last something new -

308

An Exhibitor wrote the headline for this advertisement. His expressions of enthusiasm, expressed on his criticism blank, is only an instance of the approval for

Paramount Pictographs

You should have heard the audience at the Strand Theatre applaud the now famous Preparedness Section of the Pictographs this week.

Write our exchange today.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

Bray Studio, Inc.
J. R. Bray
C. Allen Gilbert
Paul Terry
L. M. Glackens
Clarence Rigby
C. T. Anderson
Earl Hurd
Leighton Budd

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

So do all your patrons—

A Murmur of mirth sweeps through your audience. The wily old Colonel Heeza Liar is dear to the hearts of grown-ups and children.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS

are supplying a demand for high class comedy. The characters: Miss Nanny Goat, The Police Dog and Bobby Bumps, drawn by J. R. Bray and his associates, are already famous.

The Bray-Gilbert Silhouette Fantasies are creating great comment in the newspapers throughout the country. They have been spoken of as the highest type, artistic, most delightful form of comedy in motion pictures.

Coupled with each Paramount-Bray Cartoon is a picture of rare animals by Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of the famous Bronx Park Zoo.

Write our exchange today.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST St.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

THE IMMORTAL FLAME

"The love that rules without a sword,
The love that binds without a cord;
Not life, not death; not fame nor claim,
E'er may suppress th' immortal flame."

An IVAN FILM Play presenting the celebrated artiste

Maude Fealy

with

PAULA SHAY (The Mary Garden of the Screen) and a Broadway Star Cast

in a 5-act screen epic written and directed by Ivan Abramson, "Filmdom's Master Craftsman"

Released in March through the most thorough distributing system extant

IVAN EXCHANGES

New England—E. W. Lynch Enterprises, 42 Melrose Street, Boston, Mass.

New York and Northern New Jersey—Merit Film Corp., 110 W. 40th Street, New York.

Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia—Electric Theatre Supply Co., 13th and Vine Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia—Liberty Film Renting Co., 105 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Ohio—Standard Film Service Co., Columbia Bldg., Cleveland. Branch office, Cincinnati.

Michigan—Standard Film Service Co., Smith Bldg., Detroit.

Indiana and Kentucky—General Feature Film Co., Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Illinois, Southern Wisconsin—General Feature Film Co., Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Northern Wisconsin—Zenith Feature Film Co., Lyceum Bldg., Duluth, Minn.

Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma—Monarch Feature Film Co., Gaiety Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

California, Nevada and Arizona—All Star Feature Distributors, San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.

Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana—Central Feature Film Company, Waco. Texas.

All Foreign Rights—Winik-Brock, Inc., Candler Bldg., New York, and London, Eng.

Ivan Films Productions, Inc. 126 West 46th Street
New York City

"I AM NOW WITH MUTUAL"

Charles Chaplin

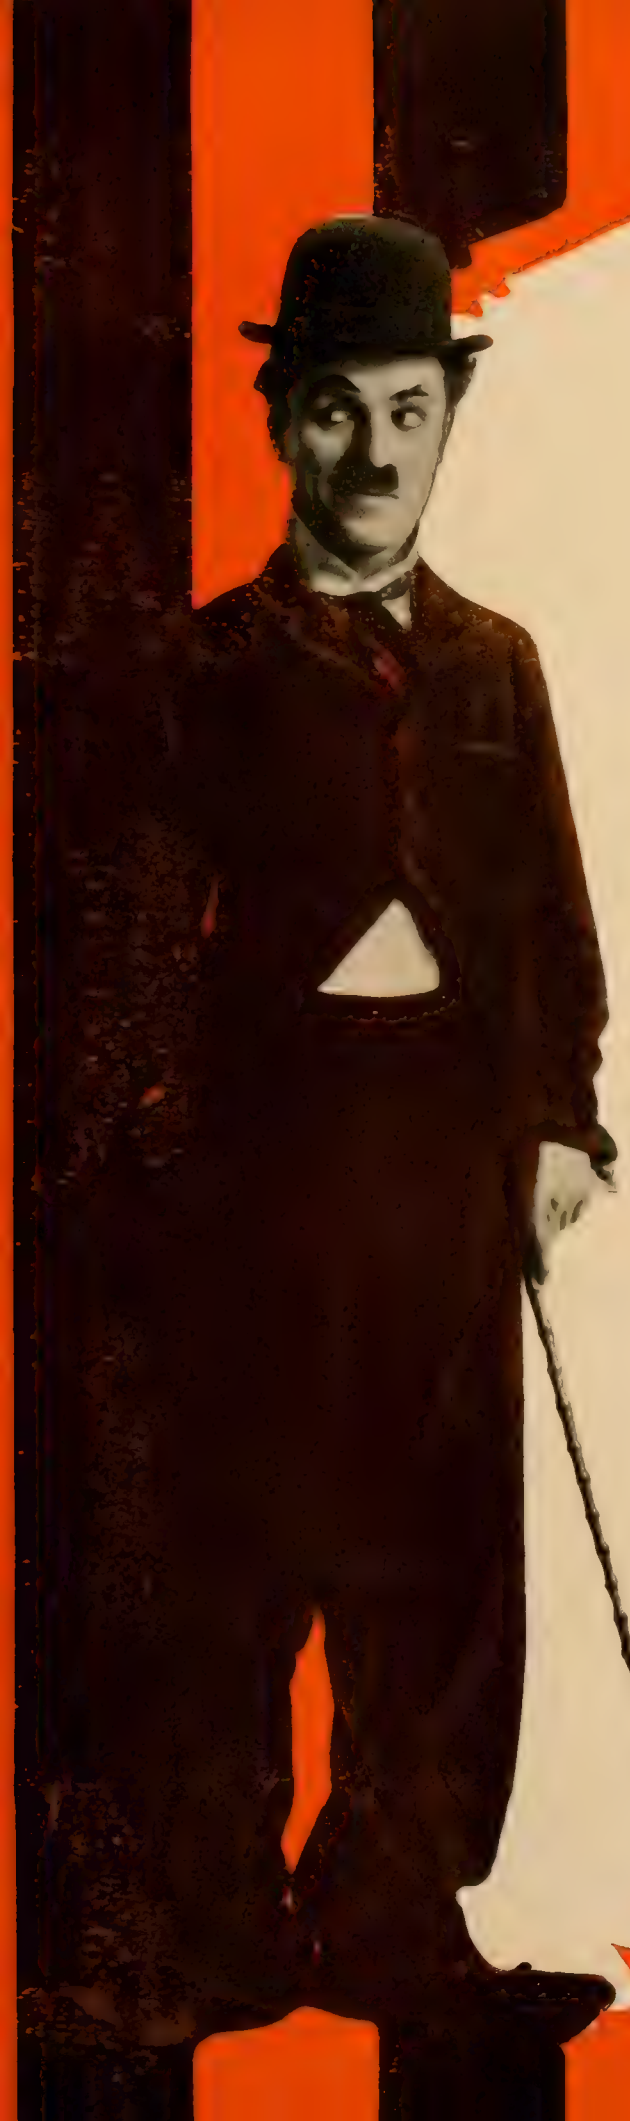
CHARLES CHAPLIN & JOHN R. FREULER SIGNING CONTRACT

Statement by Charles Chaplin

AFTER thoroughly investigating the motion picture field, I have decided to affiliate myself with the MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION. My future pictures will be released by Mutual exchanges because they serve the greatest number of exhibitors throughout the country.

Mutually yours,

CHARLES CHAPLIN.



The announcement appearing on the opposite page is the most gigantic in the history of the film industry.

Charles Chaplin's pictures will now be released through Mutual Exchanges EXCLUSIVELY.

Mutual exhibitors all over the country will have an opportunity to present the million-dollar comedian to their audiences.

The 68 Mutual Film Exchanges will give every exhibitor an opportunity of "cashing in" on Charles Chaplin. DON'T HESITATE—DON'T WAIT—go immediately to the nearest Mutual Film Exchange and get particulars about the Charles Chaplin releases.

CHARLES CHAPLIN IS NOW WITH MUTUAL

This gives every exhibitor—regardless of what service or features you are using—a chance to "cash in" on the most popular screen comedian in the world.

Chaplin will appear in one picture every month.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

GAUMONT

presents the

MUTUAL
MASTERPICTURE

DE LUXE EDITION

"According to Law"

A Smashing Melodramatic Feature of a Wife Childless by Choice!

Written by Paul M. Bryan
and
Joseph H. Trant
Directed by Richard Garrick

RELEASED MARCH 6

The Story of a Wife in name only and where her selfishness led.

Starring

Mildred Gregory

with Howard Hall

AND A GREAT GAUMONT CAST

MADE IN AMERICA BY THE

GAUMONT CO.

Jacksonville, Fla. Flushing, N.Y.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

EDWIN THANHOUSER

PRESENTS

THE FLIGHT OF THE DUCHESS

FROM ROBERT BROWNING'S CHARMING POEM

RELEASED
IN 5 REELS
SAT. MARCH 11TH

"SHE WAS THE SMALLEST LADY ALIVE
MADE IN A PIECE OF NATURES MADNESS,
TOO SMALL ALMOST FOR THE LIFE AND GLADNESS THAT OVER-FILLED HER."

STAGED BY EUGENE NOWLAND

CAST INCLUDES
WAYNE AREY

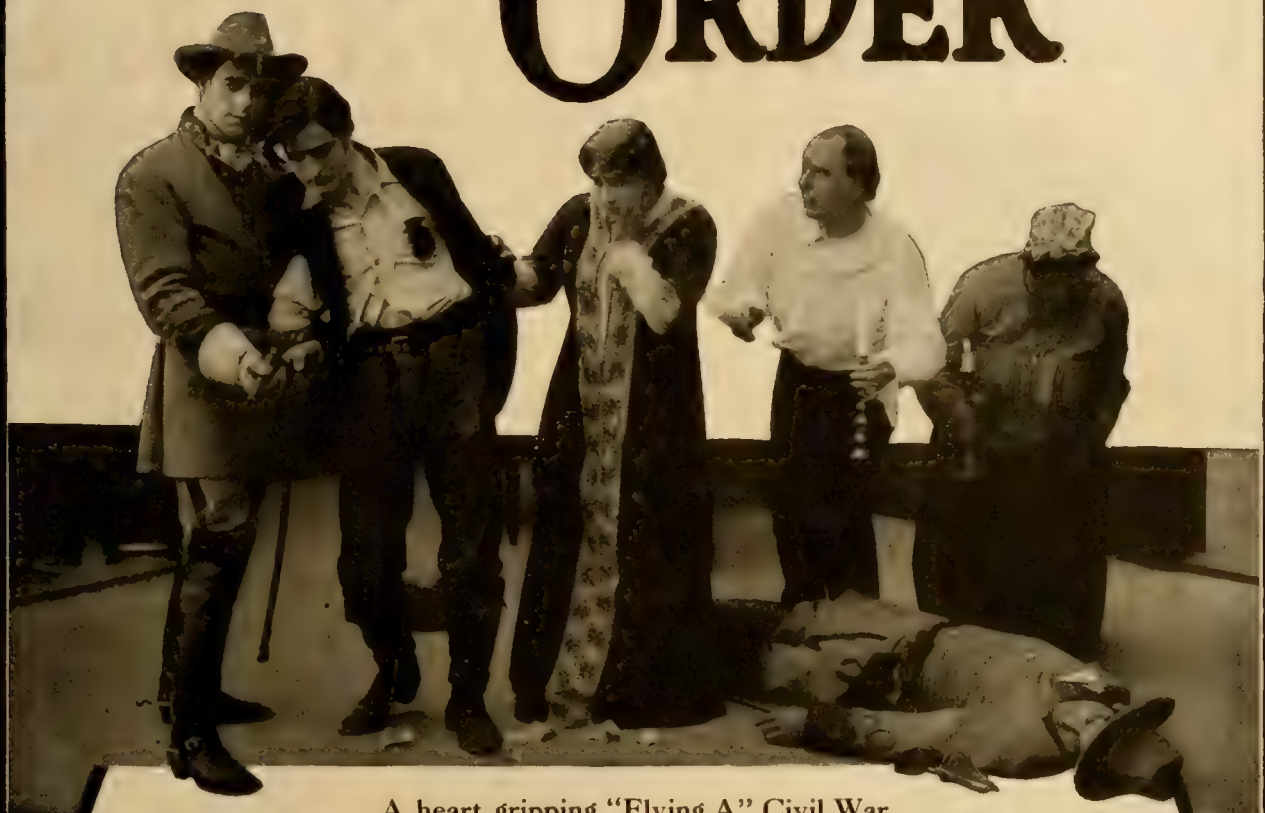
WITH

GLADYS HULETTE

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

MUTUAL PICTURES

The SUPPRESSED ORDER



A heart gripping "Flying A" Civil War drama. Three stirring reels, featuring

Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen

Directed by Thomas Ricketts

Released March 14th

THE QUAGMIRE

A three-reel "Mustang" production featuring

Anna Little and Tom Chatterton

Directed by Tom Chatterton

Released March 10th

Two Sparkling "Beauty" Comedies

TIPS

It's a hot one.

Orral Humphrey — Lucille Ward

Directed by Phil Walsh

Released March 19th

Plotters and Papers

Full of "pep." Lots of laughs.

John Sheehan — Carol Halloway

Directed by Archer MacMackin

Released March 15th

Each of these releases distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

American will release on March 9th, a five-reel Mutual Masterpicture De Luxe Edition, entitled, TRUE NOBILITY—the stars: Helene Rosson and E. Forrest Taylor.

American Film Company, Inc.

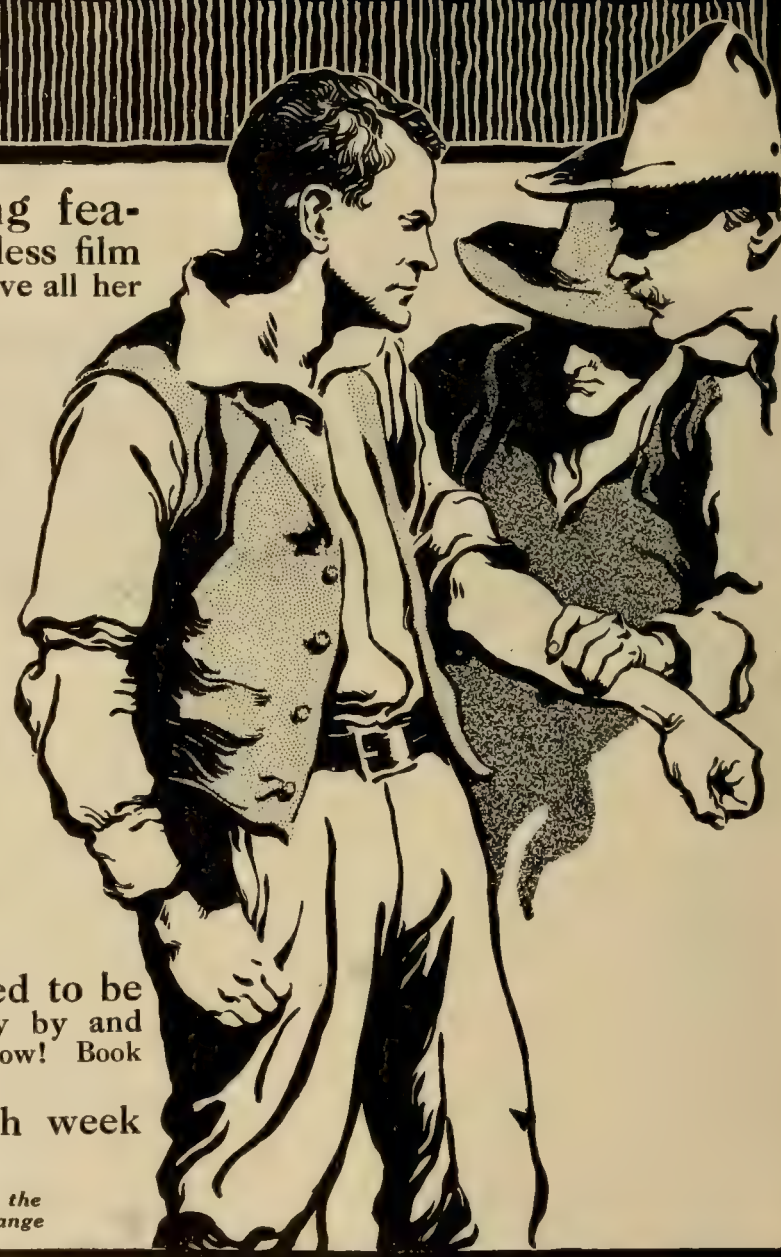
Samuel S. Hutchinson, President

Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

THE SUPREME FILM TRIUMPH



In this record smashing feature Helen Holmes, the fearless film star, stands head and shoulders above all her former triumphs. Her daring, her grace, her winsomeness have increased a hundred fold.

The Nation's Biggest Newspapers Co-operate

Here are a few of the newspapers now publishing the story of "The Girl and the Game:"

New York World Pittsburgh Press
Philadelphia North American
Atlanta Constitution Omaha Bee
Memphis Commercial Appeal
Buffalo Courier Indianapolis Star
New Orleans Times-Picayune
Chicago Evening Post Detroit Journal
San Francisco Chronicle
Baltimore American Boston Globe
St. Louis Globe Democrat
Cincinnati Times-Star Dallas Journal
Seattle Post-Intelligencer
Kansas City Journal Cleveland Leader
Los Angeles Tribune
Milwaukee Sentinel Louisville Herald
and One Thousand Others:

When Are YOU Going to Book This Feature?

Are you one who has waited to be shown? Are you going to sit idly by and watch others reap the harvest? Act now! Book "The Girl and the Game."

A new, two-act chapter each week for fifteen weeks.

For bookings apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of any Mutual Exchange

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President.

Publicity Offices: 222 South State St., Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL PICTURES

Rube Miller

that fantastic Vogue Comedian

In

LOVE, MUSIC AND CANNON BALLS

Directed by himself

To be released March 9th—Book it.

More Truth Than Poetry

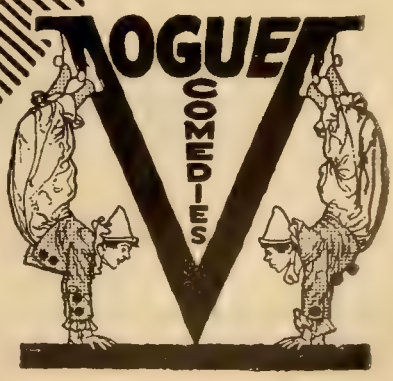
It's a slam-bang Vogue Comedy featuring the famous, funny trio

Arthur Moon, Priscilla Dean, Patty McQuire

Directed by Jack Dillon

To be released March 12th

Slapsticks With a Reason



Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Executives:

Joseph H. Finn Samuel S. Hutchinson

Publicity Offices: 222 S. State St.
CHICAGO, ILL.

STATES RIGHTS MEN

ARE GETTING BUSY

DEFENSE OR TRIBUTE

A DRAMA OF HISTORICAL AND SPECTACULAR GRANDEUR

NOW SELLING ON STATES RIGHTS BASIS

Colossal Super Spectacle on Preparedness

IN FIVE PARTS

PLAYED TO CAPACITY HOUSES AT PARK THEATRE, NEW YORK CITY

PROCLAIMED BY THE PRESS OF NEW YORK AS A CLASSICAL PRODUCTION OF SUPREME NATIONAL INTEREST

Territory Will Be Going Fast! Exhibitors Are Writing for Bookings!

FIRST COME FIRST SERVED

WIRE OR WRITE

Public Service Film Co.

1482 Broadway NEW YORK CITY

EXHIBITORS—

of NEW YORK CITY
NEW YORK STATE
NEW JERSEY

DEFENSE OR TRIBUTE

A DRAMA OF HISTORICAL AND SPECTACULAR GRANDEUR

Now Booking!

TEN PRINTS READY FOR ACTION!!!

WIRE OR WRITE

Public Service Film Co.

1482 Broadway NEW YORK CITY

PATHÉ Presents

Little Mary

A Gold Rooster Produced

Featuring BABY the Youngest Lead

Supported by MARGUERITE ANDREW and THE

AN AIRY-FAIRY, DELIGHTFUL PLAY

Released

THE PATHÉ

EXECUTIVE OFFICES,

Sunshine

Play in Five Parts
by Balboa

MARIE OSBORNE
ing Lady in the World
HENRY KING,
NICHOLS,
ARBUCKLE
BEAR

OF RARE AND ROMANTIC CHARM
March 3rd

EXCHANGE INC.
25 W. 45th ST., NEW YORK

These are just Some

New Orleans Times Picayune
St. Louis Republic
Kansas City Post
New York Sun
Chicago Herald
Detroit Journal (Daily)
Illinois State Register
Charlotte News
Salt Lake Tribune
Baltimore American
Savannah News
Jacksonville Metropolis
Newark Call
Des Moines Capital (Daily)
Cleveland Leader
Pittsburgh Leader
Omaha News
Philadelphia North American
Richmond Virginian
Boston Post
Cincinnati Commercial Tribune
Tacoma Tribune
Minneapolis Journal
Louisville Herald
Evansville Courier
Terre Haute Tribune
Charleston News and Courier
Bayonne Evening News
Columbus Dispatch
Dayton Journal
Jersey City Journal
South Bend News
Los Angeles Tribune
Portland Oregonian
San Francisco Chronicle
Seattle Post Intelligencer
Fall River Herald
Hartford Post
Kankakee Republican
New Bedford Standard
Providence Tribune
Waterbury Democrat
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald

of the many Newspapers running the New PATHÉ Serial

THE IRON CLAW

14 Episodes of two parts each featuring the Greatest Cast in Filmdom - PEARL WHITE, CREIGHTON HALE and SHELDON LEWIS.

THE PATHÉ EXCHANGE INC.

Executive Offices 25 West 45th St., New York.

A STRONG LINK in the Wonderful Chain of PATHE'S SERIAL SUCCESSES

PRODUCED by BALBOA from Scenarios by Will M. Ritchey
Featuring
RUTH ROLAND and FRANK MAYO

THE PATHE EXCHANGE INC.
EXECUTIVE OFFICES 25 W. 45th ST., NEW YORK

BOOK DIRECT

SELIG'S

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL

BY REX BEACH

MAKING MOVING PICTURE HISTORY

The Evidence

Received under signature by this Office:

"Opening matinee topped 'The Spoilers.' The biggest success we have had during the past year."
(Signed) EUGENE ROTH,
Mgr., Portola Theatre,
San Francisco.

"'THE NE'ER-DO-WELL' broke all records in this city previously held by 'The Spoilers.' Congratulations."
(Signed) W. B. MARTIN,
Modesta Theatre, Cal.

"Packed to the doors with extra performances. I actually believe we filled two other theatres from our overflow. Greatest financial success in my entire history."
(Signed) JACK ROOT,
Strand Theatre, Pasadena. Cal.

"The public praise this picture highly, and a picture that will run for three weeks is above the average."
(Signed CLUNE'S AUDITORIUM,
Los Angeles.

SOL. L. LESSER
SOLE OWNER U.S. RIGHTS
218 WEST 42ND ST., N.Y.
Phone BRYANT 4922

The Brand of Essanay Stamps the Best Photoplay

Ask the exhibitor who uses the Indian Head dramas and comedies.

He will tell you of their uniformly high standard of excellence—not one good, another fair and another poor, but ALL GOOD.

Go and see for yourself. To look at them is to book them and to book them once is to book them always.

Those who know them book them without looking at them.

★★★

COMING SOON!

a new

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN

"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

★★★

"THE INTRUDER"
2 act drama March 7
Featuring Richard C. Travers and Marguerite Clayton

"CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL No. 6"
Cartoon March 8
By Wallace A. Carlson, the most comical caricatures of world characters

"A MAN'S WORK"
3 act drama March 11
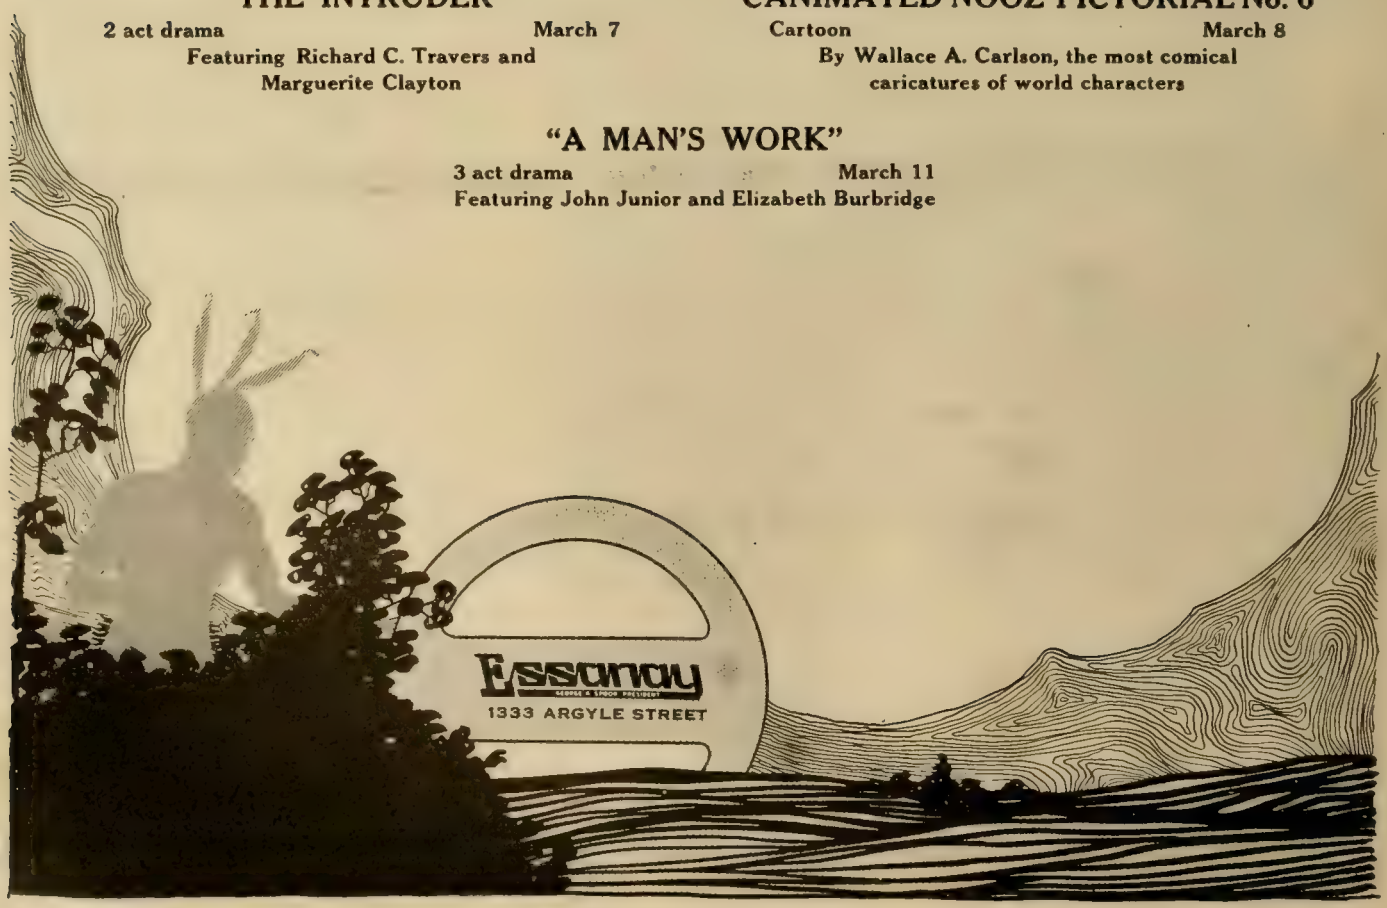
Featuring John Junior and Elizabeth Burbridge



The Vulture and His Prey

LILLIAN DREW
E. H. CALVERT

MARGUERITE CLAYTON
ERNEST MAUPAIN

are presented in

"VULTURES OF SOCIETY"

By RICHARD GOODALL in 5 acts Directed by E. H. CALVERT

LOOK OVER ESSANAY'S GREAT FEATURES

CAPTAIN JINKS of the Horse Marines
THE MISLEADING LADY
A DAUGHTER OF THE CITY
THE ALSTER CASE
THE RAVEN
THE CRIMSON WING
THE MAN TRAIL
A BUNCH OF KEYS
THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE
IN THE PALACE OF THE KING
THE WHITE SISTER
THE SLIM PRINCESS
GRAUSTARK

Trademark Reg U. S Pat. 1901

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

The Strange Case of MARY PAGE

With HENRY WALTHALL

And EDNA MAYO

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

"THE GREATEST ADVERTISEMENT AN EXHIBITOR EVER HAD"

THE words are those of a man who has made an exhaustive study of the moving picture industry—the Vice President of one of New York's largest advertising agencies—used in connection with the "OPEN-BOOKING" policy of the V. L. S. E.

"Because," continued the speaker, "under the system which permits the exhibitor to pick and choose that which is best suited to his patronage, (instead of having to take that which is given him) he can now, for the first time, guarantee to give his public what it wants.

"In other words, the elasticity of the open-booking policy makes the public its own booking clerk. And the exhibitor who spreads this broadcast, and backs it up, has a force with which to win public approval, unequalled by any other advertising.

"Of course, the story of giving the people what they want is an old one in every line, but the fallacy of such claims in the moving picture field heretofore, is instantly apparent, when it is considered that the cut and dried contract allows of absolutely no alternative, but to take that which is booked, whether it is good, bad or indifferent."

Scores of exhibitors all over the country are discovering for themselves the profit-making features of the "OPEN-BOOKING" plan. Thousands of photo-play theatre-goers are awarding their support to the exhibitors who are free to give them the best, and only the best. This is evidenced by the fact that each week's business of this company for months past has shown a material increase over the preceeding week. As soon as you avail yourself of the advantages of this policy and prove to the satisfaction of your patrons that you can give them what they want you may count upon sharing in this prosperity to the fullest, also.

We should be glad to advise with you as to the best methods of acquainting the public that your theatre is so conducted that they make their own selections of features. Will you say the word?

V. L. S. E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT

ANTONIO MORENO

is admirably supported by

CHARLES KENT

and other eminent Vitagraph Stars

in

"KENNEDY SQUARE"

This production is an American play filled with heart throb and love interest. It is a film-poem

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

"A Play that is bound to Sway ANY Audience."

That is what a reviewer in "The Morning Telegraph" says of

"SOULS IN BONDAGE"

The latest and most intense starring vehicle of that most dramatic of all emotional actresses

NANCE O'NEIL

A play with a profound lesson, breath-catching action, and "a gripping climax that comes as a fitting ending to a powerful story."

LUBIN FEATURE

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

SELIG Introduces

FRITZI BRUNETTE

The Enthusiastic and Vivacious Screen Star in

"UNTO THOSE WHO SIN"

Written by James Oliver Curwood

A Powerful Picture Play Dealing With a
Women's Lust for Gold

SELIG

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

THE DISCARD

in 5 Acts

By Charles Michelson

Presenting

VIRGINIA HAMMOND

Famous Frohman Star

ERNEST MAUPAIN

and

HARRY BEAUMONT

A powerful drama of life beyond the pale.

A story of international swindlers, who play the game for millions, risking life and fortune on the throw of a die.

Stirring the depths of emotion by showing how mother-love reclaims a woman sunken to the depths of crime and degradation.

Directed by
Lawrence Windom

Essanay

"FIRST TO STANDARDIZE PHOTOPLAYS"

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

LUBIN

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

SUCCESS

SIGN POST NO 6

TEL BEDFORD 9333

WILLIAM BRANDT

NEW ALBANY THEATRE

BROOKLYN'S FINEST THEATRE DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO MOTION PICTURES

ALBANY AVE. at ST. JOHN'S PLACE

BROOKLYN, N Y

V. L. S. E. Inc.
1600 Broadway, N. Y. City

Dear Sirs:

In these days of overproduction, when the market is glutted with film of every calibre, it is indeed refreshing to be able to express appreciation for the consistent photoplays of merit that you are releasing.

From a quality, and box-office point of view you have the entire field lashed to the mast. With such pictures as "The Caveman", "Great Divide", "Misleading Lady", "Battle Cry of Peace", "My Lady's Slipper", each registering a bulls-eye, the exhibitor using your service can readily cast his troubles to the winds, and keep his box office in a constant happy frame of mind.

Trusting that you will keep up the high standard you have set, and with many wishes for good luck, I remain,

Yours truly,

William Brandt

"I know not how to govern our own course save by the proven experience of others."

GEN. SEAL SELIG LANKS

V. L. S. E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT.

VITAGRAPH

JOIN THE PROCESSION

of exhibitors who are showing

"THE ESCAPADES OF MR. JACK"

The influx of bookings is being accompanied by a procession of letters and telegrams from successful exhibitors who say the "MR. JACK" Comedies are the greatest one reelers ever filmed.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY and the HEARST SYNDICATE

offer

"THE ESCAPADES OF MR. JACK"

The Funniest Stories—
With the Funniest Actor—
In the Funniest One Reelers Ever Produced

ONE A WEEK—
EVERY MONDAY

Following the Sunday Stories in all the HEARST SYNDICATE PAPERS

Featuring
THE WORLD'S SUPERLATIVE COMEDIAN
FRANK DANIELS
The Funniest Man in the World

This Week's Adventure
"MR. JACK DUCKS THE ALIMONY" being the vivid life of a man who spends "millions for silk stockings but not one cent for alimony"—who seeks refuge in the toils of the army—is shot as a "spyaye" and then beats it back to Lucy.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

Released Monday, March 6th
Through the V. L. S. E.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

"The Supreme Temptation"

Pictures a little grisette
On the primrose path in Paris
But the path leads
To a cot in a whitened ward.

"The Supreme Temptation"

Comes to a surgeon—
Happily married.
He is ready to perform an autopsy.
Scalpel in hand
He looks into her face—
She opens her eyes
She is his wife
By an earlier marriage.

What would you do?

This Five-Part Vitagraph
Blue Ribbon Release

Features

Antonio Moreno

and

Dorothy Kelly

In a picture of gay Paris—
Of a grisette who loves—
And a man's battle
With his better self.

Released Monday, March 20th
Through the V. L. S. E.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

HEARST-VITAGRAPH

HV

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

The most terrible war in history is raging—

And somewhere with the troop trains—with the gunners of the big Jack Johnsons—is a man with the lens—filming important events for the HEARST-VITAGRAPH.

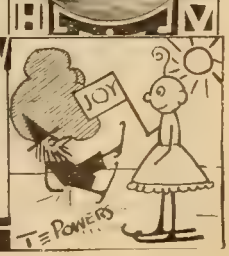
A short time ago the schooner Carolina sank in the Gulf Waters, one hundred miles out from New Orleans, a HEARST-VITAGRAPH man was there with his camera in time to grind it in its final plunge.

When the Villa bandits recently murdered seventeen American miners and engineers one early morning, a HEARST-VITAGRAPH frontiersman was on the scene three hours afterward.

With these intrepid camera men in every section of the world, it is no wonder that the HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL marks an epoch in news and picture gathering.

It is no wonder that successful exhibitors DEMAND the HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS REEL and will take no other.

RELEASED TWICE A WEEK
Through the V-L-S-E



The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

THE VITAGRAPH PROGRAM

For the week of
March 6th
Consists of
The Personally Picked Program
Including a
Four-part and single Reel Drama.
The Regular Single Reels
On Monday and Friday
And a three-part
Broadway Star Feature
For Saturday

Released through
The General Film Company

REGULAR RELEASES

"Pansy's Papas"

One-part Comedy, Monday, Mar. 6th
Presenting:
Mary Anderson, Otto Lederer, Webster Campbell, Carlton Weatherby and Jack Mower.

"Beaned by a Beanshooter"

One-part Comedy—Friday, Mar. 10th
Presenting:
Charles Richman, Leo Delaney, Arline Pretty, Ethel Corcoran and William Dunn.

"The Human Cauldron"

Produced with the co-operation of
The New York Police Dept.
For the New York Exhibit
At the Panama Exposition.
Three-part Drama—Saturday, Mar. 11th
Broadway Star Feature
Presenting:
Mary Anderson, William Dunn and Jack Bulger.

PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM
Released Monday, March 6th.

"Mrs. Dane's Danger"

Four-part Drama
Presenting:
Lillian Walker, Wilfrid North, Donald Hall, William Dunn and L. Rogers Lytton

"Bittersweet"

One-part Drama
Presenting:
Anne Schaefer, Webster Campbell, George Stanley and Corinne Griffith.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

Original! Sensational! New!

Baby Em Gorman

(The Child Bernhardt of the Screen)

In

"The Little Orphan"

FIVE DRAMATIC REELS FILLED WITH SMILES AND TEARS

D.W.GRIFFITH SAID: "THE GREATEST CHILD ACTRESS IN PICTURES"

STATE RIGHT BUYERS. Write or wire what territory you are interested in. Wonderful one, three and six-sheet lithographs and other advertising matter.

OLYMPIC MOTION PICTURE COMPANY

220 WEST 42D STREET NEW YORK CITY

JUST A FEW—!

of the many bookings daily flowing in by 'phone and mail and wire. "SWEEPING THE NATION," we told you, two weeks ago.

BUT—and this is the matter that touches our pride—it's the CLASS rather than mere quantity of bookings that gives us greatest pleasure—JUST GLANCE THEM OVER.

Find, if you can, a single house that isn't the most representative theatre in its town or neighborhood!

Here's the Proof:

HARRY WATSON, Jr.

IN

THE MISHAPS OF MUSTY SUFFER

THEATRE	CITY
Marcus Loew Circuit.
Park	Champaign, Ill.
Strand	New York
Biltmore	New York
Strand	Milwaukee
Orpheum	San Francisco
Scollay Sq.	Boston
Olympia	New Haven, Conn.
Strand	Hartford, Conn.
Washington	Detroit
Oak Park	Chicago
Orpheum	Fresno, Cal.
Bijou	Knoxville, Tenn.
Royal	St. Joseph, Mo.
Globe	Washington, Pa.
Alhambra	Detroit
Pastime	Union Hill, N. J.
Alhambra	Cincinnati
Aurora	Aurora, Ill.
Mission	Clayton, N. M.
Colonial	Joliet, Ill.
Majestic	E. St. Louis, Ill.
Savoy	Wilmington, Del.
Majestic	Jackson, Mich.
Proctors	Schenectady, N. Y.
Strand	Buffalo
Germantown	Philadelphia
Fulton	Union Hill, N. J.
Crown	Houston, Texas
Cort	Newark, N. J.
Colonial	Jackson, Mich.
Lyric	Paterson, N. J.
Campbell	Hazleton, Pa.
Ben Ali	Lexington, Ky.
Tabor-Grand	Denver, Colo.
Hamburger Circuit	Chicago
Lyceum	Canton, O.
Orpheum	Stockton, Cal.
Alhambra	Indianapolis
Victoria	Springfield, O.
Strand	Newark, N. J.
Bijou	New Brunswick, N. J.
Gordon Olympia	Boston
Garden	Detroit
Olympia	Lynn, Mass.

THEATRE	CITY
Strand	Detroit
Orpheum	Sacramento, Cal.
Grand	Owensboro, Ky.
Ritz	St. Louis, Mo.
Orpheum	Cleveland, O.
Imperial	Jacksonville, Fla.
Miller's	Los Angeles
Princess	Jersey City, N. J.
Park	East Rutherford, N.J.
Regent	Jersey City, N. J.
Proctors	Portchester, N. Y.
Sunbeam	Duluth, Minn.
Majestic	New York
Lyceum	Bayonne, N. J.
Claremont	New York
Heucks	Cincinnati, O.
Schade	Sandusky, O.
Playhouse	Ridgewood, N. J.
Sumner	Brooklyn
Dome Theatre	Youngstown, O.
Duchess	Warren, O.
Duffield	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Cumberland	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Ronly	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Bijou	Orange, N. J.
La Salle	South Bend, Ind.
Ziegfeld	Chicago
Bijou	Clarksburg, W. Va.
Majestic Gardens	Grand Rapids
Jewel	Burlington, Ia.
Majestic	Muskegon, Mich.
Kenwood	Chicago
B. F. Keith's	Brooklyn
Montauk Elite	Brooklyn
Dover	Dover, N. J.
Lyric	Summit, N. J.
Family	Rochester, N. Y.
Colonial	Rochester, N. Y.
Auditorium Hotel	Chicago
Empress	Grand Island, Neb.
Jewell	Beaumont, Texas
Circle	Chicago
Franklin	Chicago
Lyric	Reading, Pa.

THEATRE	CITY
Ashland	Chicago
Arcade	Ann Arbor, Mich.
New Strand	Chicago
Ozark	Burlington, Ia.
Ashland	St. Louis, Mo.
Kimmel	Cairo, Ill.
Garden	Davenport, Ia.
Avon	Chicago
Pageant	St. Louis, Mo.
Orpheum	Chicago
Dodge	Keokuk, Ia.
Studebaker	Chicago
Strand	Freeport, Ill.
Colonial	Columbus, O.
Aragon	Cincinnati, O.
Jewell	Hamilton, O.
Sapphire	Kansas City, Mo.
Plaza	Hastings, Neb.
Royal	Atlantic City, N. J.
Logan	Philadelphia
Palace	Galveston, Tex.
Summit	W. Hoboken, N. J.
Lyric	Asbury Park, N. J.
City	W. Hoboken, N. J.
Majestic	Jersey City, N. J.
Unique	New York City
Beach	Chicago
Grand	Perth Amboy, N. J.
Prairie	Chicago
Lyric	Rahway, N. J.
Duncan	Jersey City, N. J.
Jefferson	New York City
Shakespeare	Chicago
Casino	Jersey City, N. J.
Colonial	Stamford, Conn.
Republic	Chicago
Washington	New York City
Strand	Jersey City, N. J.
Grand	Tonawanda, N. Y.
Regent	Elmira, N. Y.
Dyckman Theatre	New York
Regent	Paterson, N. J.
Y. M. C. A.	Kingston, N. Y.
City	Irvington, N. Y.
Wm. Fox's Wash't'n.	New York is easily the film sensation of the hour!

Says Frank Montgomery, manager The New Strand Theatre, Bridgeport, Conn.:

"Any showman who cannot get money with these comedies had better close up shop."

That's a sentiment in which they all concur! THE MISHAPS OF MUSTY SUFFER are comprised in a series of TEN one reel comedies. And——

They're Booking Through the Kleine Offices

ONE A WEEK FOR TEN WEEKS—READY NOW!

GEORGE KLEINE

805 East 175th Street, New York City

New York
226 West 42nd St.

Chicago
166 N. State St.

Atlanta
71 Walton St.

Boston
14 Piedmont St.

Denver
405 Railroad Bldg.

Philadelphia
1309 Vine St.

Minneapolis
708 First Ave., N.

Pittsburgh
123 Fourth Ave.

New Orleans
103 Nola Bldg.

Kansas City
209 Ozark Bldg.

Seattle
204 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.

San Francisco
234 Eddy St.

Cincinnati
138 West Seventh St.

Dallas
1812½ Commerce St.

Los Angeles
514 West 8th St.

Montreal
204 St. Catherine St., W.

Toronto
96 Bay St.

Get On Board

THE RIS-MOR SPECIAL TO SUCCESS

HAVE YOU RESERVED A BERTH in the shape of an exclusive territory franchise? If not, write at once! A few choice openings, yet to be taken up. Get in while you can, and get the benefit of our big advertising campaign, which will be conducted through a syndicate of fifty of the leading Sunday papers. No bonus for territory. Exhibitors everywhere have been waiting for just this service—seven comedies per week, one each day—single reels; the ideal service for houses running features, and that means most of them.

Mr. Film Renter, you who have been buying features and find your business shot to pieces through the different organizations that have entered the field; this is an opportunity to establish yourself in the business, permanently, for what one good feature would cost you. You pay no money until you are thoroughly satisfied and you have seen the class of goods we are handling. Write today, state territory you prefer; it may be open.

This program will be represented in every film distributing center in the U. S. and Canada. For particulars and territory address

R. J. MORRIS, 406 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.

Off With a Bang!

SIS HOPKINS COMEDIES have started their whirlwind career amid a chorus of praise from trade paper reviewers and exhibitors. Have you got aboard yet? If not, see

SHE CAME---SHE SAW--- SHE CONQUERED!

Released Friday, March 10th

Second of the one-a-week single reel comedies that will make Rose Melville's nationally known character more famous than ever. Rapid-fire action—an unexcelled company of fun-makers — and sure-fire stories are the points that will make this new line

The Comedy Sensation of the Year!

KALEM

235-239 West 23d Street
NEW YORK CITY

The Social Pirates

"The Little Monte Carlo"

Released Monday, March 27th

STARTS MARIN SAIS AND OLLIE KIRKBY

On Their Fifteen Weeks' Cruise to the Land of Big Profits and Enthusiastic Audiences.

George Bronson Howard

The genius who created "God's Man," the most talked-of recent novel, presents a startling theme in "The Social Pirates"—a series of fifteen two-reel episodes, each a complete story.

Two clever heart-breakers use sharp wits and fascinating beauty to deal justice to parasites and schemers who prey on the unsophisticated. Can you see the opportunity—handled by a Bronson Howard, staged with the screen mastery that gave you "Stingaree"—and with charming Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby in the leads?

They'll bring your patrons back week after week—they'll start the talk that means new business—they'll gain publicity for your house that will be invaluable.

Wire Your General Film Exchange Now!

KALEM

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 WEST 23rd STREET NEW YORK CITY

The "Class" of the Series Field

That is the Goal We Sought in "The Social Pirates"

We Have It!

In Author—Production—Cast—and Publicity!

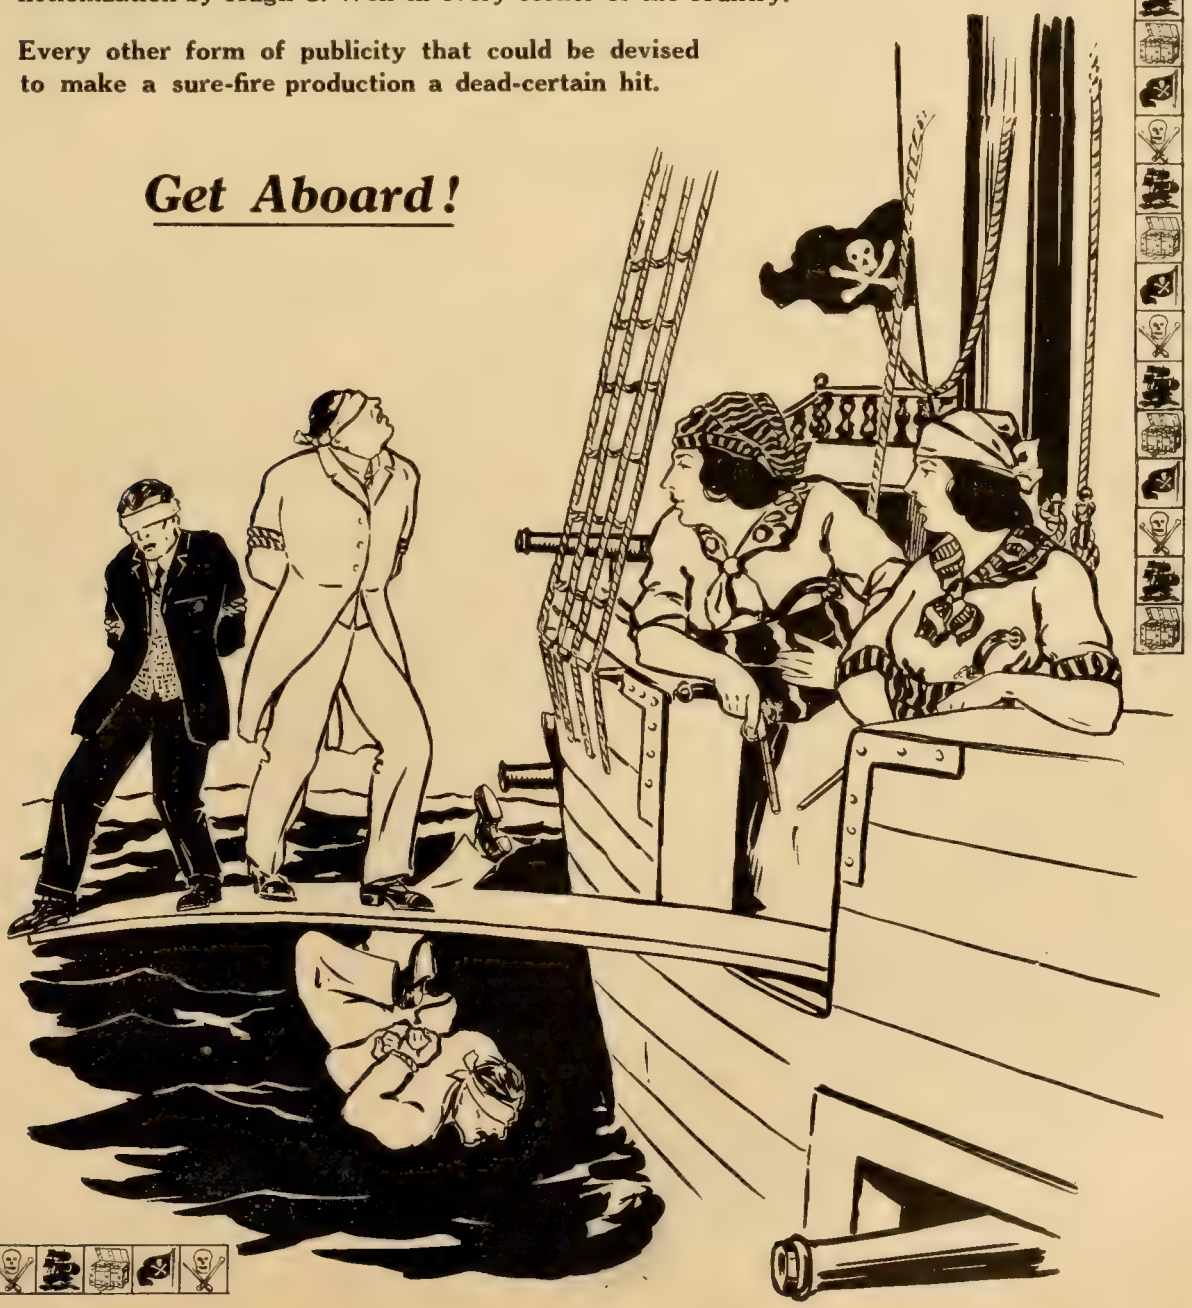
The New York World heads the list of newspapers that will publish the fictionization by Hugh C. Weir in every corner of the country.

Every other form of publicity that could be devised to make a sure-fire production a dead-certain hit.

Get Aboard!



Your Patrons Will Talk for Weeks About This Thrilling "Hazard"

THE GIRL WHO DARED

The Last Word in Astounding Thrills—Featuring

HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

Kalem thought so much of this extraordinary "Hazard" that Special Six-Sheet Posters have been prepared to help exhibitors get all the business that this amazing railroad film deserves. The scenes above—enlarged from the film—will give you an idea of a few of the breath-catching feats performed by Helen Gibson in a single-reeler that will never be equalled for audacious—almost foolhardy—courage.

Get the Six Sheet

and the usual one and three-sheet, four-color lithographs. They'll pack your house to the doors and the picture itself will bring them back for more of these unapproachable railroad pictures.

Released Saturday, March 18th

THE EVELESS EDEN CLUB

Ethel Teare in a delightful farce comedy built around a disruption in the club of woman-haters. Ethel's captivating personality wins new admirers every week.

Released Wednesday, March 15th—Attractive 1 and 3-sheet four-color lithographs

A FLOCK OF SKELETONS

Third of the Sis Hopkins comedies. Read on another page of this issue of the whirlwind hit that has been scored by this new line featuring the best-known fun-maker in America.

Released Friday, March 17th—Corking 1 and 3-sheet four-color lithographs

"Ham" Goes to War! Bud is With Him! Do You Wonder That—

HAM AGREES WITH SHERMAN

Released Tuesday, March 14th

A "Ham" comedy that will be remembered for months. Hundreds of soldiers, aeroplanes, artillery—a spectacular production backs Ham and Bud in a burlesque on war that will make your sides ache from laughing. There isn't a dull moment from the opening scene until the climax when Ham's aeroplane is struck by a shell and he comes tumbling to earth with Bud to join in a hearty "Never again! Sherman was right."

Special one and three-sheets on this comedy in addition to the stock "Ham and Bud" three-sheets that are such sure-fire business builders.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company branches

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 1728)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, March 11, 1916

Facts and Comments

ONE of the "accelerators" of public opinion, who appeared in support of state censorship at Albany, made the cheerful statement that he was in favor of both varieties of censorship—state as well as Federal. We expected nothing else. These men have to earn their salaries.

* * *

A VERY fine meeting of exhibitors, of which the MOVING PICTURE WORLD carried a full account in its last issue, took place recently in North Carolina. We cannot help commending their strong and uncompromising stand against Federal censorship. The plan of a full, free and fair discussion on the convention floor likewise entitles these exhibitors to great credit. The spirit of organization is abroad in the land.

THE ermine of kingly power assumed by the Pennsylvania censors and their triple crown of ignorance, arrogance and hypocrisy has been rudely torn away by the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia. The decision of Judge Barratt makes refreshing reading and will, we earnestly hope, convince the censors that "ours is a government of laws, not of men." The past performances of that board certainly have not been calculated to impress the courts with either its taste or its power of discrimination. This time there is somebody who will censor the censors.

* * *

A COMMENCEMENT orator or something like that lets out a lot of "highfalutin'" phrases pointing out in the magazine of his college that his morals have begun to suffer—to say nothing of his taste—since he acquired the baneful habit of going to motion picture theaters. Says he: "For the members of an institution of learning to patronize them (i. e., moving pictures) as indiscriminately as we do is not only a disgrace, an earmark of vulgarity, but a positive patronage of one of the worst of our national influences for degrading our tastes and debasing our morals." Two courses are open to our suffering friend. He may have his imagination fumigated or take something for his liver. Let him then make another trial of the motion picture, and if he has a relapse it will be a case for a specialist.

* * *

THREE great fights against state censorship in New York, New Jersey and Maryland find the organized exhibitor well to the front. In all three states the opposition was organized by the exhibitor. When the MOVING PICTURE WORLD said recently that "the fight is now up to the exhibitor" it made a pretty reliable forecast.

* * *

HAVE you seen the second issue of Cine-Mundial, the Spanish edition of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? It is stronger and richer by a good deal. Most gratifying, too, is the remarkable response by the Spanish-American motion picture men. Cine-Mundial is intended to give Latin-America the same constant and conscientious service which the MOVING PICTURE WORLD has been trying these many years to supply to the northern continent of this hemisphere. It is also intended to pave the way for the American manufacturer. Nineteen hundred and sixteen is the psychological year for the American producer who is anxious to reach the South American market. If the present golden opportunity is permitted to slip by the great sister republics to the south of us may continue to be unknown lands to us.

* * *

IT IS time we all realized that the child problem is the foundation of all the agitation in favor of censorship. No serious-minded American legislator would listen even for a moment to any plea for censorship made on behalf of the adult. The only way in which the honest as well as the professional reformers can gain an immediate hearing and enlist the sympathy of responsible law-givers is by putting forward a plea on behalf of the child. The best constructive thought of the industry should busy itself without delay with finding a solution of the child-problem. Efforts in this direction are being made now. The child is the friend of the motion picture and must be taken care of. A general censorship will not solve the child-problem at all.

Totality of Effect*

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

IT is to be expected that each contributor to success in motion-picture production should exaggerate the importance of whatever aid he affords to a common end. From the capitalist who takes the initial risk all along the line of artistic, scientific and commercial workers there is a spirit of enthusiasm and self-congratulation that very naturally tends to over-valuation of a specific service rendered. There is a never-satisfied expectation of reward behind it all, the stimulus to future effort, which sometimes hardens into resentment against unfair recompense, which is semi-occasionally adjusted on a new basis, all of which is part of a general evolution going on before our eyes.

Ordinarily capital starts with a well-chosen product and creates a demand for it by well-known methods, but here is one of those rare cases where tremendous and unexpected popular demand created many a capitalist, a demand which does not adhere to an established quality, but which is very insistent upon a constant change for the better. The progressive character of this demand may completely upset the calculations of a newcomer, however capable he may have been in some other line of business, and it even bewilders some of those who considered themselves settled for life in motion-picture production.

Newcomers, especially those who are justified in believing that sound business methods count heavily in any enterprise, may be led to over-value those methods, constituting as they do only one of many factors in the game. There is plenty of room for system in motion-picture production, but the very fact that production succeeds or fails irrespective of good business methods points to an imperfectly-understood fact—it is primarily an ART.

Early in the history of this art—as such it is not yet fully recognized—sound business method was attempted in an organization of leading producers to maintain rates, systematize distribution and regulate output, but the new art refused to be measured by any such purely aribtrary method. No warning was given the public as to what character of play would be exhibited, but some of the exhibitors, the brightest of them, discovered that there was a difference of quality in the offerings and grouped the best on certain days. On those days the little theatres were crowded to the doors, with a line waiting outside.

The Moving Picture World refused to applaud poor examples in its columns, to the contrary, it told the plain truth to exhibitors, unfavorably reviewing whatever was unworthy of praise, and the best producers began to readjust their supply to suit a superior character of demand. Artistry began to assert a dominating influence, a dominance growing rapidly today, the real secret of commercial success. The newcomer of today, if he can not be made to swallow the not-entirely palatable fact that his capital and fine business training are only a good second to artistry in motion-picture production, is headed straight for some unpleasant experiences.

Behind a vast amount of blatant publicity lies hidden, though generally suspected, the fact that those producers are making the most money who are turning out an aggregate of best plays. This is so generally admitted by themselves, whether successful or unsuccessful, that only a few of their employes voice the opposite view. Then, in additional proof, nearly all of them are aiming at fine quality of product. There already exists high recognition of artistry in some departments, and the general trend is all that way. What constitutes artistry is another matter.

Totality of effect, the sum of artistry, depends largely upon that creative imagination which shows itself throughout the entire domain of expressive arts in the production of IDEAL representations, principally those "whose grandeur and beauty transcend all actual experience, and which appeal to our most refined sensibilities, our most elevated emotions." We are short of authors who can either idealize types of humanity or display through the workings of varied human character some fundamental truth. We are even short of authors who have an elementary grasp of screen craftsmanship.

The novelist divides profits with the publisher, and the dramatist is given a generous portion of the box-office receipts, but a certain "borrowing tendency" in motion-picture production has discouraged creative authorship. As a natural result there are shown on the screen but few examples destined to live more than a brief season, and even fewer command the admiration of intelligent people Still, like a few little hardy plants springing up in barren soil and adverse environment, occasional screen stories of bright promise appear, harbingers of a richer growth to come under intelligent cultivation.

The ill-rewarded author of native genius has at least one compensation in adequate screen portrayal of his story—the expression of his genius is not only sounded where he lives, but it is echoed all over the world. He reaches an enormous audience, contributes to forming its taste for what is worth while, and he is bound to rise if his inherent fertility holds out. He is bound to become the first and most important contributor to the general sum of artistry, itself fast attaining recognition as the dominant factor in motion-picture production.

A highly capable director recently made a significant remark in a private letter to a writer of screen stories, expressing a hope that he was to have more of the kind he had just visualized, because it provided a "minimum of worry and a maximum of result." It is not only the author's duty to provide a story both original and effective, but to exhibit fine quality of craftsmanship in formulating the structure, indicating the settings, intensify principal characters, enforcing psychology, and breathing into the whole scenario a soul of inspiring influence. This leaves the director free to apply all the artistry of which he is capable to style and imagination treatment.

The director of today not only supervises visualization, together with all expenditure therefor, but he decides how the author's conception shall be expressed. He translates the indicated thought and feeling into pictures "more powerful than words." Starting with a clear conception of what he is to do, his whole mind can become concentrated on lucidity, on force, on beauty of the total effect. Opportunities to blunder on every side of him, he must exhibit a delicate sense of selection in his methods of expressing the author's intention, using only those which enhance, avoiding those which are inappropriate.

Supervising director, art director, actor, cameraman and studio force working in harmony, the negative film may be good, but there is artistry in scientific work on the positive film to follow. Then, when a definite value has been created, an entirely different group releases energy in making that value known and commercially profitable, but IT MUST BE THERE, an artistic totality of effect.

*Copyright, 1916, Louis Reeves Harrison.

The Mystery of Laughter

By W. Stephen Bush.

HOW much good comedy is being produced at this time? Are we richer in good comedies than we were a year ago or five years ago? Has the humor of the screen been refined in the course of time? Have we more and better comedians and comediennes than we had in the earlier days? What are the present facilities of the exhibitor for supplying the most important part of his program?

We think that a discussion of the subject out of which all these questions arise might prove of great value to all who are interested in the production and exhibition of screen humor. If there were mingled with the discussion plenty of practical and useful suggestions I feel sure it would help all around. If there are any keener students of the screen and its psychological effects upon the human mind and heart than the exhibitors I have never met them. No man is attracted to the show business without a certain instinct of observation and study. Looking at audiences day after day and night after night and studying that most delicate barometer, i. e., the box office receipts, develops the power of observation even in the average person.

In spite of all we may advance in the course of an academic discourse on the subject there can be no doubt that the rough kind of screen humor has a strong and unfailing appeal. I have seen men (and women, too) who were outspoken in their opposition to so-called "roughhouse" comedy laugh most immoderately at the kicks and cuffs of which this sort of comedy is largely composed. Recently I had the rare opportunity of standing beside a well-known comedian just as his first comedy of a more refined nature was being projected upon the screen of a high-class motion picture theater in this city.

"I am trying to give them something different from the roughhouse style," he said. The opening scenes certainly bore him out. They were received with comparative indifference by the audience. The first real hearty laugh was heard when the comedian was shown distorting his face as somebody stuck a pin into a fleshy part of his body.

"Do you see now?" said he to me with an evident tone of chagrin and disappointment in his voice. "They do want this rough stuff."

The house in which this occurred is frequented by the so-called best elements in the community.

The trouble is we cannot analyze the causes for laughter any more than we can give a real definition of humor. It's all mysterious. No matter how we esteem and love a man, most of us will laugh when we see him slip suddenly upon the glazed sidewalk. To be sure we are very sorry and helpful the very next instant, but laughter conquers us for the moment.

I would not say that the nature of screen-comedy has changed very materially in the last few years. It is true we have now some of the very best comedians and comediennes working for the screen, but they had to adapt themselves to the lightning style of motion picture fun. Perhaps the "chase" has gone out of fashion to some extent. A good "chase," however, is still funny, just as funny as it was in the days of the old Biograph "The Curtain-Pole" and the Pathe "The Runaway Mother-in-Law" or the Gaumont "The Drunken Coachman."

The great asset of the most successful screen comedies of today is the element of surprise and innovation. In providing more of these two essential elements of screen humor there has been a decided improvement all along the line. The element of surprise often means nothing more than the taking of all kinds of chances by the mock hero and the mock villain and the mock heroine.

We will be glad to hear from our readers what style of comedy they favor most and what the difficulties are today of securing good comedy.

"My Opposition"

By W. Stephen Bush.

I FIND in my travels here and there, near and far, that the old bitter hostility of brother against brother in the exhibiting ranks is dying out. It is not entirely dead. Wherever you find an exhibitor giving a few acts of vaudeville and eight or nine reels (including two features) for five or ten cents you are bound to find an unhealthy condition and all the accumulated evils of cut-throat competition. This kind of competition will be with us always, but I rather think the spirit of organization is reducing it a little day by day.

When a man speaks of "my opposition" or "my nearest competitor," it is a good sign. I remember the time when quite a different sort of language was used, wholly unfit for publication. Nowadays the exhibitor either does not bother about his opposition at all or else he and his opposition get along famously. But recently while stopping in a little old Southern town I had the pleasure of seeing as neat and modern a small motion picture theater as I had ever seen. When the exhibitor was through showing me the fine points of his house we went next door into another theater, where my friend introduced me to his opposition. These two men are not only next-door neighbors but visit each other frequently, sometimes to exchange ideas and at other times to help each other. Instead of acting like the proverbial two strange bulldogs in a yard they act like the sensible intelligent business men who recognize that no man has a right to "grab" everything in sight. There are small towns and there are large towns where the exhibitors work in absolute harmony and get infinitely better results than under the old idea of ruinous competition. How often have I heard this phrase from exhibitors' lips in the last few months: "Oh, my Opposition is all right!" What an improvement upon the old days when exhibitors constantly challenged either to physical combat in the most unparliamentary terms possible.

We earnestly hope that this spirit of intelligent cooperation will grow apace. Exhibitors should not wait until they are in some great trouble before they join their state organization. They should join now. If your local organization confers no benefit on you except a weekly or monthly meeting with the men who labor in the same field with you it will bring you a rich return for what little dues you may have to pay. It is the regular weekly or monthly meeting which frequently develops leaders and the right kind of co-operation. Questions of common interest are discussed, arrangements are made to avoid ruinous competition, the mutual difficulties are considered in a spirit of helpfulness and views on good and bad features are exchanged. If united action is needed on any local matter of importance the weekly or monthly meeting is the best method of dealing with it.

In the meantime shake hands with "your Opposition."

Chaplin Signs with Mutual

President John R. Freuler Contracts to Pay the Comedian a Total of $670,000 for One Year's Work.

CHARLES CHAPLIN, not yet twenty-seven years old, on Saturday, Feb. 26, signed an agreement to play for one year in pictures to be released on the Mutual program. He will direct his own subjects and will make two reels each month. A company has been formed to take charge of the Chaplin productions. This company will pay Chaplin a salary of $10,000 a week. For signing the contract the comedian was given a bonus of $150,000. Which means, of course, $520,000 plus $150,000—$670,000. It would seem that never in the history of the stage and its related arts has there been a salary of this magnitude. What makes the story doubly interesting is the fact that in the figures named there is every reason to believe the usual rather than unusual multiplication of the actuality has been omitted. Chaplin will have no financial interest in the output of his company. He can devote his whole attention to the making of pictures, draw his salary every Saturday and pass on the business stuff to the other fellow.

Signing the Chaplin Contract.

J. R. Freuler, Sid Chaplin and Charles Chaplin.

President John R. Freuler, when seen on Monday following the signing of the twenty-thousand-word contract, did not seem to fear any occasion for worry on the Chaplin end during the coming year. In fact, he was in high good humor and neglected a pile of work on his desk to tell the World man how it all happened.

"The negotiations for the employment of Mr. Chaplin really began last July," said President Freuler. "You may remember that at that time there was prevalent an impression that the comedian was working under a six months' contract. I asked Mr. Hutchinson, the president of the American, who was near Los Angeles, if he would look into the matter. Mr. Hutchinson reported that the contract with the Essanay company ran until Jan. 1 and we dropped everything. Personally I am opposed to disturbing players under contract.

"When Sid Chaplin came east several weeks ago we had interviews with him. Then when Charles Chaplin arrived we went into the whole question seriously. I kept posted on what was going on. Everything was legitimate and above board. You may be sure when I read the rumors and saw Mutual not mentioned I was amused, because we were closer to the proposition than any of the others. Charles Chaplin was ambitious to have his own company. We did not care whether he had his own company or played in one of our existing concerns, so there was no argument on that score.

"During the negotiations I had figured out the financial side and saw in a Chaplin engagement a handsome profit for the Mutual and especially for the producing company that is going to take care of the Chaplin pictures. No, the comedian will have no percentage interest in his own subjects. We are willing to have it the way it is. Sid Chaplin carried on most of the negotiations for the Chaplin side. Yes, he is a good business man.

"As I told you we have figured this matter conservatively. We have discounted the number of Chaplin prints that have been sold in the past. We estimate that in the United States and Canada we will take in in the course of the year $2,200,000 on the Chaplin productions. And we think we can do that amount of business on possibly a lower and certainly not a higher rental than has been charged on these pictures in the immediate past. We are not going to boost prices on Chaplin films. We will hold them at a level that will develop their full drawing power and give all exhibitors a show at them."

Asked as to the location of the studio in Los Angeles at which Chaplin would work, Mr. Freuler said two sites were now under consideration. He said his new star would be in New York perhaps a week longer winding up a few remaining formalities, among which would be the signing of documents having to do with life insurance. Mr. Freuler is taking out a policy on his new comedian aggregating a quarter of a million dollars.

The manager of the new company will be H. P. Caulfield, one time general manager of Universal City. Mr. Caulfield has had much experience in the film business. He has been active in the negotiations leading up to the signing of the contracts, Mr. Freuler said, and from this time on would handle all business connected with the Chaplin company. "And," Mr. Freuler added, "I am going back to work for the Mutual again. These last few days I have not had much chance to take care of my regular routine."

The Mutual's president said that up to that time Sid Chaplin had no connection with the Mutual—that so far as he knew the business future of the little comedian's brother had not been definitely settled.

"It means that I am left free to be just as funny as I dare, to do the best work that is in me and to spend my energies on the thing that the people want," said Mr. Chaplin shortly after becoming a Mutual player. "I have felt for a long time that this would be my big year and this contract gives me my opportunity. There is inspiration in it. I am like an author with a big publisher to give him circulation."

Three in One for Equitable

Muriel Ostriche, Edna Wallace Hopper and Charles J. Ross Have Star Parts in "Who Killed Simon Baird?"

THE first of the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation's productions introducing three stars will be released on the World Film program early in April, when Muriel Ostriche, Edna Wallace Hopper and Charles J. Ross will appear in Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf's dramatic story, "Who Killed Simon Baird?"

This will be Miss Ostriche's third appearance with Equitable. Charles J. Ross is now a seasoned screen player, having appeared in several other productions, including "The Senator" for Triumph-Equitable.

Edna Wallace Hopper is making her first photoplay appearance in "Who Killed Simon Baird?" but before being engaged by Equitable she spent several days at the Equitable studio and proved by means of exhaustive tests that her features were well adapted to screen work.

Charles J. Ross.

"Who Killed Simon Baird?" perhaps called into play the greatest amount of talent at the disposal of the Equitable concern. In addition to requiring three established stars for three difficult and intricate roles, two noted authors and playwrights collaborated on the story. Rennold Wolf and Channing Pollock are responsible for five of the biggest hits Broadway has known.

James Durkin, who was responsible for Equitable's production of "The Clarion," is staging "Who Killed Simon Baird," and has been busily engaged during the past week securing locations and assembling supporting casts. The interiors will be made in the Fifty-second street studio.

Actors Fund Campaign Progressing

Jones With Sixty Theaters and Moss With Twenty Promise Percentage of Receipts on May 15.

THE allied motion picture interests of the entire country have responded with an enthusiastic and unanimous spontaneity unprecedented in the history of the industry to the call to raise by May 15 the sum of $500,000 for the Actors Fund of America, half of the amount necessary to insure future financial freedom for the great charity.

The campaign being waged under the active direction of Samuel Goldfish, chairman of the executive committee, is more comprehensive than anything of the kind ever before promulgated in the United States. Every exhibitor, distributor, producer and member of the acting profession is participating with a hearty and immediate eagerness bespeaking the universally generous and big-hearted impulses of the profession. Individual offerings have begun to reach Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, treasurer, at the office of the finance committee is Locust avenue, Brooklyn.

Proprietors of picture theaters will give a share of their receipts to the fund on May 15, the final, culminating day of the whirlwind campaign, to be officially known throughout the land as "National Tribute Day." But many exhibitors have been unable to restrain their impatience. They have written to the headquarters of the campaigners at 30 East Forty-second street, New York City, of their intention to make May 15 a notable day, but not content with the single day benefit, will share receipts with the Actors Fund of America, on another and earlier day as well.

Aaron Jones of Chicago, controlling more than three score theaters, and B. S. Moss, of New York, with twenty theaters under his management, were quick to follow the example of Marcus Loew in volunteering to donate percentages of their receipts on May 15.

Mr. Jones has announced his acceptance of the burden of the active work of the movement in Chicago, Mayor William Hale Thompson of that city having previously consented to act as honorary chairman for the committee in the Western metropolis. Ralph T. Kettering will direct the Chicago newspaper campaign.

Acting on the suggestion of Executive Secretary Sylvester Sullivan, Mr. Jones has selected ten men prominent in the amusement world of Chicago as an immediate committee, who in turn have appointed other committees of ten men each. These subcommittees comprise men in all walks of life.

A "National Motion Picture Tag Day" is the newest scheme planned by the committee in charge of the work. The date has not yet been set for the event, but its release will be appropriately heralded. On that day the public will have the unusual privilege of seeing all the screen stars right out in the open. The public will be given opportunity to purchase an autograph photogravure portrait of actors and actresses.

The motion picture industry responded enthusiastically during Actors Fund week in Los Angeles. The event was arranged by Jesse L. Lasky and the California committee. While all of the returns of the week are not in, in fact only a few of the theaters have been heard from in their weekly collections, it is safe to assert that at least $2,500 was raised during the week.

Metro Announces "No More Balls"

Content to Rest on Its Laurels It Proposes to Give Others a Chance.

IN a statement by Treasurer Engel, Metro Pictures Corporation announces its retirement from participation in future motion picture balls. Metro shone strongly at the Boston and Pittsburgh affairs as well as at the New York ball. "At the ball of the Exhibitors and the New York Screen Club," says Mr. Engel, "Metro bent its energies to add as much as possible to the entertainment of the public and additionally to the good time of its own stars and guests by giving a dance and a special program in the Concert Hall of the Garden.

"Metro learned at a late hour before the ball that several other companies had refused to participate in the big Garden affair because Metro was competing for publicity honors and it was a matter of the greatest regret to all of us that we stood in the way. In justice to the exhibitors' organization and to the Screen Club, under whose auspices the ball was given, it was impossible for Metro to withdraw and the program arranged by us was carried out in its entirety. The results are too well known to the motion picture public, especially those who attended the ball and Metro now announces that it will not participate in future affairs of this character.

"In making this announcement Metro feels that it is doing the fair thing by its competitors and giving others a chance to win the delightful glories of these enthusing affairs. Metro likes to play big league baseball and has never played any other kind. With three pennants now, it feels that it has had its full share of glory and can now retire gracefully and with no regrets."

Triangle Retains Knickerbocker

Small Chance of Lease Being Broken by Court Decree—A Test Case of Local Importance.

THE Triangle Film Corporation will retain control of the Knickerbocker theater in New York, its first model motion picture playhouse, unless the owner is able to advance some argument for cancellation of the lease other than his contention that under the Rothapfel regime the Triangle is not giving a "first class" performance at the Knickerbocker. The Supreme Court of the State of New York, by decision of Justice Cohalan, has refused the application for an injunction sought by Robert Walton Goelet, who inherited the property from his father. The Triangle lease runs until next September.

"Through the introduction of moving pictures and photoplays into the theatrical field there has occurred therein an evolution in the production and presentation of plays," writes Justice Cohalan in his opinion; "in fact, the entire trend of the business may have so evolved as to permit the defendants to carry on their business as now being conducted without violating the restrictive covenants of the lease. Even though irreparable injury be shown, in view of the short time which the lease has to run, unless the right of those seeking the injunction is clear and unmistakable, this court may not intervene to prevent the use of the theater in the manner that it is now conducted."

Mr. Goelet protested against the introduction of musical numbers, pictorial films and other entertainment which S. L. Rothapfel made part of a performance in which Triangle plays were the features; and maintained that the "continuous" policy at revised prices lowered the classification of his theater. Multitudes of affidavits on this "class" contention were submitted, but the court held that it was a matter of serious question whether the case should be decided on affidavits. Justice Cohalan finally decided that the defendant had not violated the covenants of the lease, adding that the case was novel and far-reaching in its importance.

Exhibitors Support Miss Young

Popular Actress Receives Expressions of Approval From All Sections of Country.

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, president and general manager of the new Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, is wearing a smile these days because of the success of his new venture. According to his statement he has met with great encouragement in the projection of his campaign for the future handling of Miss Young's pictures. Exhibitors throughout the country have applied for the series of films which he will release, beginning in October.

Miss Young herself is displaying much happiness over the prospects. Her signed statement in this paper last week brought many telegrams and letters from exhibitors throughout the country. She had no sooner recovered from the pleasurable but arduous duty of flying home from Cuba to lead the grand march at the "Movie Ball" and receive the diamond bracelet which was awarded her for winning the New York American popularity contest than she was forced into a mass of personal correspondence. In addition to the telegrams, letters and telephone calls which came officially to the office of the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, the popular actress was addressed directly by a large majority of the same exhibitors.

In speaking of the work of the new corporation Mr. Selznick said: "The enthusiasm with which our proposition has been received shows that most men who have theaters are willing to encourage a new idea. I believe the future of the moving picture business depends mostly on the way the exhibitor handles his own affairs. The good-will of his audiences is worth much to him, and the best way for him to hold that good-will is to deliver the goods. And the best way for him to deliver the goods is to use the films made by artists of proved value in the work. The lesson has been learned that the moving picture actress is born and not made, and she is the type that the public wants. We are going to take plenty of time with the Clara Kimball Young pictures and deliver only one a month."

Vitagraphs for Week of March 4

List Includes "The Hunted Woman," Produced by S. Rankin Drew, and a Frank Daniels Comedy, With Other Good Ones.

"THE HUNTED WOMAN," a feature drama from the pen of James Oliver Curwood, produced by S. Rankin Drew, heads a list of releases by the Vitagraph Company for the week beginning Monday, March 6. This list includes "Mrs. Dane's Danger," in four parts; "Bittersweet," in one reel; "Pansy's Papas," and "Beaned by a Beanshooter," of one reel each; and a new Frank Daniels' vehicle of fun, "Mr. Jack Ducks the Alimony."

Scene from "The Hunted Woman" (Vitagraph).

"The Hunted Woman" is one of the most thrilling plays ever produced by the Vitagraph Company. The story is full of exciting incidents, such as a landslide, the blowing up of a mountain stream, several fights that lack nothing in realism, and the suspense is kept up until a smashing climax.

Curwood, whose novels are among the best sellers of the day, has done nothing better than this, and in the capable hands of Director Drew, a master film has been created.

Drew, Virginia Pearson, George Cooper, Ned Finley, Billie Billings and others play the principal roles. Most of the exteriors were taken around Saranac Lake and the photographic effects are exceptional. In the fights, Drew had his nose broken, and Finley and Cooper received injuries that required medical attention.

Next in importance in the week's releases is another of the "Escapades of Mr. Jack," showing further humorous adventures of the king of comic opera, Frank Daniels. "Mr. Jack Ducks the Alimony," is released as a one-reeler on March 6, under the direction of C. Jay Williams. The predicament in which the little fun maker is placed are ludicrous in the extreme. This is the third of the series, the first two being "Mr. Jack, a Hallroom Hero," and "Mr. Jack Wins a Double Cross."

Scene from "Mr. Jack Ducks the Alimony" (Vitagraph).

In a locked-reel program, "Mrs. Dane's Danger," in four parts and "Bittersweet," in one reel are released on March 6. The former features Lillian Walker, supported by Wilfrid North, Donald Hall, William Dunn and L. Rogers Lytton, in a drama of unusual strength. The play treats of the misunderstanding that arises up between husband and wife, the compromising positions in which she is innocently placed. Mr. North, who directed "Green Stockings," produced the film.

"Bittersweet" was produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon, featuring George Stanley, Anne Schaefer, Webster Campbell and Corinne Griffith. Mary Anderson, of the Coast studio, plays the lead in "Pansy's Papas," released on March 6. "Beaned by a Beanshooter" is a burlesque thriller in which Charles Richman, Arline Pretty, William Dunn and others are featured. It is released on March 10.

Picture Plays for Sothern

Popular Stage Star Will Not Appear in Shakespearean Roles —Regular Scenarios Will Be Written for Him.

E. H. SOTHERN, one of the foremost actors on the American stage, who recently signed a contract with the Vitagraph Company to appear in motion pictures, will appear in three feature films to be announced later. Contrary to popular expectations, Mr. Sothern will not be shown in any of his Shakesperean roles. This is due to the fact that Shakesperean productions depend largely on the immortal lines of the Bard of Avon, which would prove unwieldy from a motion picture standpoint. They would require so many subtitles that the action of the plays would be retarded.

Mr. Sothern will appear in at least three photoplays for the Vitagraph in connection with some of their famous stars, Anita Stewart of the "Goddess" fame, and other film successes will support the veteran actor in a romantic drama. Lillian Walker, the Vitagraph "Dimples," will appear in a multiple-reel comedy production. Edith Storey of "The Island of Regeneration," "Price for Folly," "Dust of Egypt," fame will act in a thrilling drama with Sothern. These different combinations of Sothern's splendid histrionic ability and the beauty and personality of the Vitagraph photostars are expected to provide filmdom with feature screen plays that will take their proper place high in the ranks of master productions.

The plays will be specially written to make use of the different abilities of the actresses. Mr. Sothern is spending his spare time at the Vitagraph plant in Flatbush studying the different effects and how they are obtained, and taking lessons in the art of motion picture make-up. By the time he commences actual work about May 1, he will have gained enough knowledge and experience, so that he will be able to start right in without delay.

He is deeply interested in the new art and looks forward with eager anticipation to seeing himself as others have seen him for so many years. Miss Julia Marlowe, who is Mrs. Sothern, will not work in the pictures with her husband.

PAULINE FREDERICK RETURNS FROM FLORIDA.

Pauline Frederick and the company gathered in her support for the adaptation of Mary Johnston's celebrated novel and play, "Audrey," returned to the Famous Players Film Company's studio from Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, where the greater portion of the scenes for this forthcoming Paramount production was staged under the direction of Robert Vignola.

Among the players supporting Miss Frederick are Charles Waldron, Escamillo Fernandez, Helen Lindreth, Miss Christian, and Tinker Hallam, who are appearing in the more important roles.

POPULAR TAKES OVER SUN PHOTOPLAY.

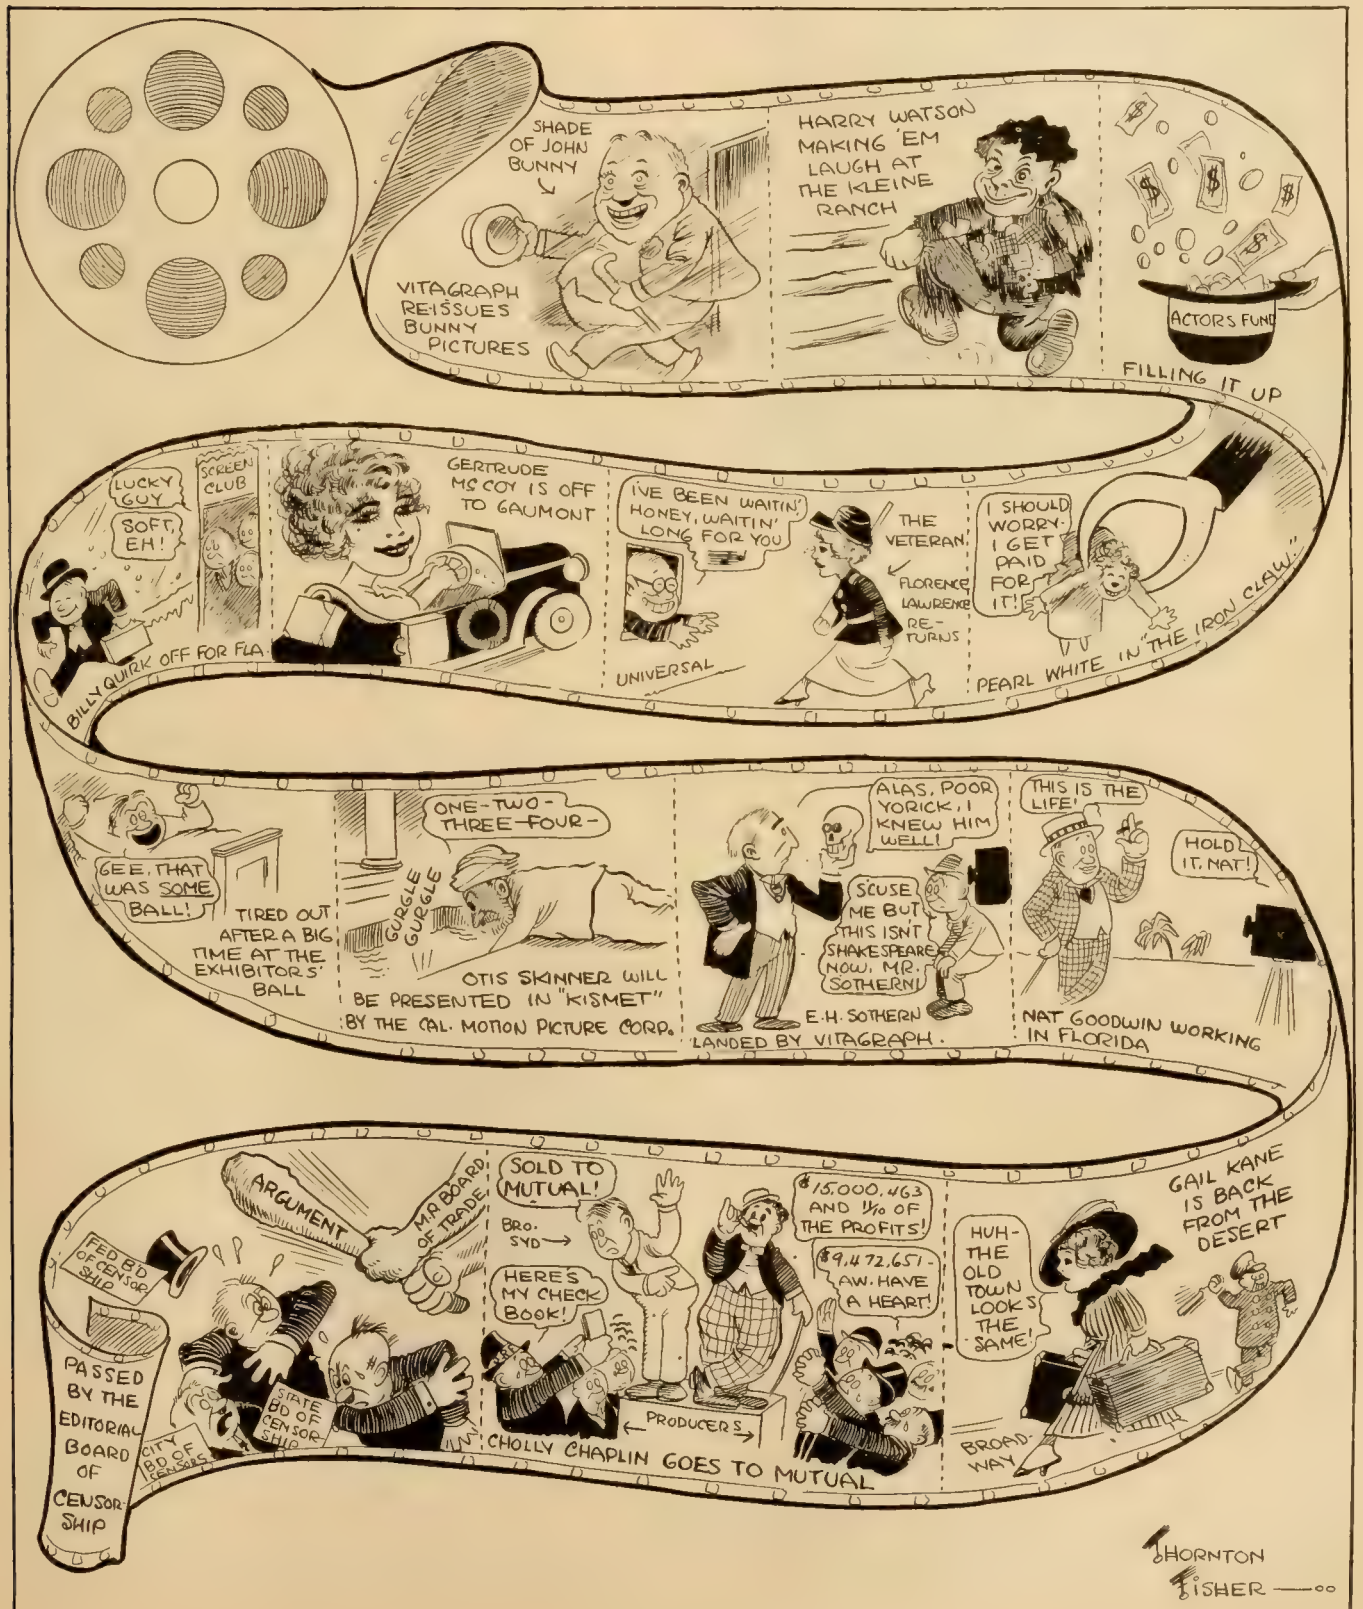
The Popular Pictures Corporation, in which Andrew J. Cobe is interested, has taken over the Sun Photoplay Company, Inc., and established headquarters at 218 West Forty-second street. A. C. Langan, former president and general manager of the Sun Company will fill an executive official position and also act as director of the Popular forces.

Exactly what the scope and future activities of the newly merged companies will be has not yet been announced. A director's meeting will shortly be held at which the intended policies of the corporation will be outlined and made public.

UNIVERSAL "PLANTS" A POWDER PLANT.

For the production of the thirteenth episode of the "Graft" serial Richard Stanton has constructed on the lower ranch at Universal City the grounds and buildings of a huge powder plant about which are centered the activites of the graft gang in their efforts to unseat their persecutor and drive him from his determined hunt after them. The climax of the installment is reached when the powder house is blown to atoms and, through a mix-up in plans, destroys just what the plotters did not want it to destroy.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD ... NEWS REEL for FEBRUARY—



SHADE OF JOHN BUNNY
VITAGRAPH REISSUES BUNNY PICTURES
HARRY WATSON MAKING 'EM LAUGH AT THE KLEINE RANCH
ACTORS FUND
FILLING IT UP
LUCKY GUY
SOFT, EH!
SCREEN CLUB
BILLY QUIRK OFF FOR FLA
GERTRUDE McCOY IS OFF TO GAUMONT
I'VE BEEN WAITIN' HONEY, WAITIN' LONG FOR YOU
UNIVERSAL
THE VETERAN
FLORENCE LAWRENCE RETURNS
I SHOULD WORRY. I GET PAID FOR IT!
PEARL WHITE IN "THE IRON CLAW"
GEE, THAT WAS SOME BALL!
TIRED OUT AFTER A BIG TIME AT THE EXHIBITORS' BALL
ONE-TWO-THREE-FOUR-
GURGLE GURGLE
OTIS SKINNER WILL BE PRESENTED IN "KISMET" BY THE CAL. MOTION PICTURE CORP.
ALAS, POOR YORICK, I KNEW HIM WELL!
SCUSE ME BUT THIS ISN'T SHAKESPEARE NOW, MR. SOTHERN!
E.H. SOTHERN LANDED BY VITAGRAPH.
THIS IS THE LIFE!
HOLD IT, NAT!
NAT GOODWIN WORKING IN FLORIDA
ARGUMENT
M.P. BOARD OF TRADE
FED. BD. OF CENSORSHIP
STATE BD OF CENSORSHIP
CITY BD OF CENSORS
PASSED BY THE EDITORIAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP
SOLD TO MUTUAL!
BRO. SYD →
HERE'S MY CHECK BOOK!
PRODUCERS →
$15,000,463 AND 1/10 OF THE PROFITS!
$9,472,651 - AW, HAVE A HEART!
CHOLLY CHAPLIN GOES TO MUTUAL
HUH - THE OLD TOWN LOOKS THE SAME!
BROADWAY
GAIL KANE IS BACK FROM THE DESERT
THORNTON FISHER

Good Triangles for March

Hart, Emerson, Warner, Arbuckle and Mace Will Be Seen in Coming Releases.

FOLLOWING the shortest month in the year with its long list of famous stars, including Billie Burke, De Wolf Hopper and Douglas Fairbanks, the Triangle Film Corporation announces for its March releases a roster fully as pretentious. Lillian Gish, William S. Hart, John Emerson, Bessie Barriscale, Norma Talmadge, Mae Marsh and H. B. Warner are among the more prominent Griffith and Scene from "The Flying Torpedo" (Triangle).

Ince players who will have the leading parts in the dramatic features of the month. Sennett will contribute to the Triangle program the pick of his Keystone funmakers.

For the week of March 5 "Daphne and the Pirate" (Lillian Gish) and "Hell's Hinges" (William S. Hart) are the long pictures. The latter is a Western play which gives Hart a role similar to those which have made him so popular. The title is taken from the epithet applied to the crude community in which the action takes place. Miss Gish as Daphne is the heroine of a story of the days when Louisiana was a French colony and girls were sent from France to become wives of the pioneers. A thrilling fight at sea between the "bride ship" and a pirate crew is the spectacular feature. Elliott Dexter is Miss Gish's leading man.

John Emerson in a powerful preparedness play, "The Flying Torpedo," and Bessie Barriscale, starred by Ince in "Bullets and Brown Eyes," give the week of March 12 a decided military atmosphere. By the invention of a flying torpedo a foreign foe is driven from the shores of the United States. William Christy Cabanne has directed many stirring battle scenes, showing first the advance of the invader and subsequently his complete rout. In "The Flying Torpedo" Bessie Love is given a big opportunity in the portrayal of a Swedish maid who helps in the discomfiture of a gang of international spies. Since he was starred in this play, John Emerson has become one of the foremost Griffith directors. He produced "Old Heidelberg" and "His Picture in the Papers," and is now working with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree on the Triangle contribution to the Shakespeare tercentenary, "Macbeth." The action of "Bullets and Brown Eyes" takes place in mythical countries which are at war. There is a strong romantic story running through this Barriscale drama.

"Martha's Vindication" and "The Moral Fabric," week of March 19, present Norma Talmadge, Seena Owen and Tully Marshall, and Frank Mills, Edith Reeves and Howard Hickman respectively. Both are gripping dramatic pictures.

At the close of the month the Triangle will release two real novelties. "Hoodoo Ann" marks the first appearance of Mae Marsh since "The Birth of a Nation," and H. B. Warner of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" fame makes his debut as a Triangle-Ince star in "The Raiders." Miss Marsh is an orphan asylum heroine. Robert Harron is featured with her. In Warner's support are Dorothy Dalton, Henry Belmar, Robert McKim and George Elwell. "The Raiders" is a Wall Street play.

Mabel Normand, Roscoe Arbuckle, Fred Mace and Joe Jackson are Keystone favorites who will be seen in new Sennett comedies during the month. "Fatty" and Mabel will be seen in "The Bright Lights," originally called "The Lure of Broadway."

V-L-S-E Has Much To Offer

Stars of Stage and Screen Are Busy in Studios of "The Big Four"—Gillette in Popular Plays.

WITH a host of out and out screen stars, whose popularity and proved ability to please before the camera are unquestioned, the producers releasing through the V-L-S-E are intensifying their service and rounding it out so as to meet the demands of every class of exhibitors by the addition of many stage artists, whose talents have heretofore been thought inaccessible for film work.

The announcement that E. H. Sothern is to be seen in several Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features, distributed by the Big Four, has been followed by the news that William Gillette is to be featured by Essanay in his famous production, "Sherlock Holmes," which he himself adapted for the stage and which attained for him such widespread recognition.

Unlike Mr. Sothern, who will have the features in which he appears specially written for him, Mr. Gillette will confine himself to the portrayal of the plays which he has popularized on the stage, including in addition to "Sherlock Holmes," "Secret Service," and his other widely known successes.

Lubin, in the meantime, has in the course of preparation, several strong emotional vehicles for Nance O'Neil, in some of which, it is understood E. K. Lincoln will be featured as the co-star. In addition to "The Fires of St. John," which Miss O'Neil under Edgar Lewis' direction has just finished in the South, Daniel Carson Goodman has completed a five-part drama of capital and labor, with a strong love interest called "The Toilers." This picture has its locale in the oil fields of Southern Pennsylvania. One of its interesting scenes will be the actual drilling of an oil well. The story deals with the destruction of the heroine's father by ruthless capitalists and of her love for the enemy of her father, whom she had vowed to ruin.

The Selig Company is working on a six-reel picture version of "The Prince Chap," in which Harry Mestayer will star, and also upon the picturization of Winston Churchill's widely known novel, "The Crisis." Both of these films, it is said, will be big features in the fullest sense of the word.

The first appearance of Edna May of "Belle of New York" fame on the screen, and a serial of very novel treatment, are added attractions which are promised on the V-L-S-E program.

Royal of Chattanooga Rebuilds

Winer & Block Enlarge Their Theater So That It Now Has Seating Capacity of 800.

THE Royal theater, at 244 East Main street, Chattanooga, Tenn., has just been rebuilt by Winer & Block, who established the original theater in 1911 when it seated 300. The present building has a seating capacity of 800, with 575 chairs on the main floor and 225 balcony seats. The building covers an area of 38 by 140 feet and is of absolutely fireproof construction, being of cement, tile and terra cotta. It is steam heated and is ventilated by the typhoon ventilating system.

The auditorium floor, which is of cement, has a gradually increasing slope toward the rear, with the proper elevation to give a perfect sight line from all seats. The balcony has double stairways leading from just inside the lobby doors and has also side aisles and one row of seats on each side leading to the rear exits, which make it safe and convenient.

Royal Theater, Chattanooga.

The building was designed by the Decorators' Supply Co., which furnished the ornamental plaster and composition decorations for the front and interior. The interior is lighted with an indirect cove lighting system of different colored lights on separate circuits, which are operated from the booth to harmonize with the picture. At a cost of $15,000 Winer & Block have given Chattanooga the most elaborate and up-to-date neighborhood theater in that city.

Red Feathers for March

Universal Announces Four Subjects, Featuring Messrs. Dowlan, Bosworth and Kerrigan and Miss Mersereau.

THE Universal Company will issue during the month of March four high class Red Feather Photo Plays, in which William Dowlan, Hobart Bosworth, J. Warran Kerrigan and Violet Mersereau will be featured. "The Target" will be the release for March 6, this being a fine western picture in which Hobart Bosworth and Jane Novak are featured. The story carries a big moral and plays on the heartstrings at all times. It is predicted it will prove one of the strongest western film dramas in recent years.

For March 13 J. Warren Kerrigan will be seen in "The Pool of Flame," being one of those intensely interesting mystery stories in which a jewel gets your interest when the picture opens and holds it until the end of the picture. In this five-reel feature Mr. Kerrigan is very ably supported by Lois Wilson. The photography is especially fine in this picture, while the scenery and scenic effects is up to the usual high standard for which the Universal is well known.

William Dowlan will make his initial bow on the Red Feather program on March 20 with "Drugged Waters," a drama that will please the most fastidious. Mr. Dowlan will be remembered for the excellent western features he has contributed to the Universal program. In "Drugged Waters" he has a play that will be vastly appreciated by his many followers as one of the most captivating mystery dramas. The plot is deep but well worked out. It makes a strange vehicle in which to introduce Mr. Dowlan to Red Feather audiences.

Violet Mersereau will be featured with Lieutenant Percy Richards (The Man in White), in the release scheduled for March 27. The title is "Autumn," having been written and produced by Oscar Lund. In order to get the proper atmosphere Director Lund took his company to Port Kent, N. Y., where most of the scenes were filmed in and around Ausable Chasm. Paul Panzer also takes an important part in this picture, as does Clara Byers. "Autumn" is one of those stories in which Miss Mersereau is at her best, and that is saying a great deal. The critics who have reviewed this picture have spoken highly of it for its acting, its plot, scenery and effects. The supporting company is especially well balanced.

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE SOWERS."

After a series of productions in which she has appeared as a ragamuffin, an anarchist, an addict to drugs, a mesmerist's subject and other characters, Miss Blanche Sweet, the popular star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, is to act in the role of "a lady" in the elaborate picturization of Henry Seton Merriman's novel, "The Sowers."

"The Sowers," which is a Russian political drama of novel and unusual theme, is being produced for the Lasky company by William C. De Mille, and will be released through Paramount Pictures Corporation in the United States on March 30th, and on the same date in Canada by the Famous Players' Film Service, Ltd. Mr. De Mille and Marion Fairfax made the screen adaptation, by arrangement with Harper & Bros.

Last autumn, when Miss Sweet made a trip to New York and on her return to Hollywood, California, revealed to her friends a most elaborate wardrobe, at the same time telling them that she would give the natives of the continent a treat when her next photoplay was produced. It happened, however, that instead of silks and satins, Miss Sweet wore a second-hand boy's suit in her next photoplay, which was "The Ragamuffin." But now the time has come for her to appear in her beautiful frocks.

One of the finest supporting casts Miss Sweet has ever had will appear in "The Sowers," including the inimitable Theodore Roberts, Thomas Meighan, Ernest Joy, Dick Le Strange, Camille Astor and Horace B. Carpenter.

MARIE DORO LEAVING FOR LASKY STUDIOS.

With the completion of her last production for the Famous Players Film Company,—a picturization of "Diplomacy"—Miss Marie Doro, one of the most popular stars of the screen, will leave New York soon to begin her long engagement as a star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company. As both of these large producing companies release through the same distributing organization—Paramount Pictures Corporation—Miss Doro will still be seen and enjoyed by the thousands who have come to admire and appreciate her extraordinary screen work.

Peacocke With California Co.

THE California Motion Picture Corporation has just "put over another one." Alex E. Beyfuss, vice-president and general manager, arrived in New York on Monday morning at ten o'clock. At noon he had signed a contract with Captain Leslie T. Peacocke for his exclusive services and the next day Captain Peacocke was on his way to the studios of the California concern, in San Rafael.

Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke.

Captain Peacocke is not only one of the most experienced, but one of the most successful writers and scenario editors. A cosmopolitan, free-lance journalist, as well as a fiction writer of recognized ability, he was early attracted to the field of moving pictures, and began to study the game of the camera from all sides, at a time when it was given little serious consideration by serious-minded people. As a matter of course, when the importance of moving pictures was recognized Captain Peacocke had already enjoyed several years of vigorous tuition in the fundamentals of the great art-industry. He has had more than 400 photoplays produced, some of which were adaptations, but, for the most part, were his own original stories.

Among his most successful originals are the famous Kellerman feature, "Neptune's Daughter," "Married by Telephone," "The Closed Door," "The Nauch Girl and the Tiger," "You, I and It," "Traffic in Souls," "A Mexico Mix," "The Polo Champions" and "A Girl and Her Money."

His adaptations number several of the country's greatest dramatic successes, including "What Happened to Jones," "As Ye Sow," "The Coward," "Salvation Nell" and "Old Dutch," Lew Fields' first feature film, just released.

BELL RETURNS TO CHICAGO.

William H. Bell, president of the W. H. Bell Feature Film Corporation and of Popular Features, Inc., Chicago, Ill., left New York City February 19 for home, after spending two weeks here. Mr. Bell attended many trade, as well as private, showings of pictures while here and made arrangements for a number of productions.

Mr. Bell's interests are becoming quite extensive. He has found it necessary in order to take care of his business in the northwest to organize a new enterprise. This is Favorite Features, Inc., with headquarters in Minneapolis, of which he is general manager. Mr. M. Gottlieb is resident manager.

For this new office Mr. Bell secured an attractive line of subjects and as a leader he bought from Arthur S. Kane, 220 West 42nd street, the rights for Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota of "Somewhere in France." This is the five-reel French war picture obtained by Donald C. Thompson which now has been placed in nearly all territories of the country.

GARRICK RELEASES REINHARD IN "ACCORDING TO LAW."

As it was originally planned, John Reinhard was to play the part of William Proctor, the importunate lover in the Gaumont five-reel feature, "According to Law," which is to be releaesd as a Mutual Masterpicture, de Luxe Edition, March 6. However, his work in the Marguerite Courtot feature, "Feathertop," conflicted, and Director Henry J. Vernot was unable to release him from that Gaumont production. Although Supervising Director Richard Garrick, who is directing Miss Mildred Gregory in "According to Law," had announced with great emphasis that he would not himself appear on the screen in this feature, he found that it was necessary to take the part of Proctor at the last minute. Although the part is not of great length, it requires great acting ability.

New York Fights Censorship

Formidable Gathering of Film Men at Albany with Unanimous Protest and Strong Arguments Against Ahearn Bill—Paramount Opposed to State Censorship—Only Three Men Appear for the Bill.

MOVING pictures are the livest topic of the twentieth century—if it weren't so why did the Committee on Codes of the New York Assembly sit in continuous session from 1 to 7 P. M. at the State Capitol on February 23? Not only did they spend six solid hours in the discussion of censorship for the State of New York; not only did the members of the committee and all the advocates and the opponents of censorship forget the stuffy air and the clouds of smoking tobacco, but they were all keyed up to the highest pitch for every minute of the six hours.

The Opposing Forces.

The members constituting the codes committee of the New York Assembly are thirteen in number. Here is the completed list: Messrs. Ahearn of Kings, DeWitt of Vester, Flamman of Kings, Chace of Columbia, Coffey of Westchester, Nickerson of New York, Fearon of Onondaga, Duke of Alleghany, Taylor of Erie, Davis of Oneida, Aranow of New York, Block of New York, and Bacher of Kings.

In favor of the bill to establish a motion picture censorship in this State appeared the Rev. M. J. Looney, of St. Joseph's Church, Albany, who said he had come by order of the Catholic Bishop of the Albany Diocese, and the Rev. J. H. Dunney, also of Albany. The Rev. Mr. Dunney said he represented the State Council of School Superintendents of Catholic parochial schools in this State, numbering 650,000 pupils. The only other supporter of the bill was a paid agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, John Barber. Against the bill appeared Lee A. Ochs, the president of the State League of Exhibitors; Samuel H. O. Trigger, national vice president of the New York State League; Arthur S. Friend, counsel for the Paramount Company; William P. Capes, secretary of the Bureau of Municipal Information of the New York State conference of Mayors; Albert Banzhaf, a former Assemblyman representing David W. Griffith; the Rev. Dr. Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Censorship; J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade; Orrin G. Cocks, of the National Board of Censorship; James Lemke, representing the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees; Joseph W. Weber, American Federation of Musicians; J. P. Holland, New York State President of the American Federation of Labor; H. J. Smith, of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, Rochester Local 253; William A. Johnston and E. L. A. Buettner and E. O. Weinberg, respectively president and secretary of the Troy Local of the Exhibitors' League, and W. S. Bush of the Moving Picture World.

President of State League Master of Ceremonies.

After a short preliminary conference it was decided to have Mr. Ochs act as the general representative of the motion picture interests at the hearing and to him was intrusted the task of introducing the speakers to the committee. Mr. Ochs, in his opening speech, said the exhibitors are in close and constant touch with the public and keenly alive to the tastes and demands of their patrons. He had received no complaints, he said, from his patrons against his pictures. He further said censorship would surely destroy the entertainment value of the motion picture and put the exhibitor out of business. He alluded to Pennsylvania and Ohio as concrete examples of the bad effects of censorship on every branch of the industry, but especially on the exhibitor. He then introduced Mr. Capes, who spoke very briefly, stating that he believed the experience of the local authorities in the various cities in the State tended to show the entire uselessness of State censorship.

Mr. Capes was followed by Arthur S. Friend, counsel for the Paramount interests. Mr. Friend said he represented a very serious-minded group of producers who were convinced that in order to produce the best quality possible they would have to depend for their market on the entire country and that they felt they could not do business without going into interstate commerce. He said he believed federal censorship would be the best solution of the censorship problem. The chairman of the committee interjected here that the regulation of the motion pictures did not in his opinion come within the province of the national government. Mr. Friend went on to say that a State censorship of forty-eight different authorities would surely ruin the industry.

"All pictures are not clean," said Mr. Friend. "All pictures are not decent. I am frank enough to say that much. We realize that this business requires regulation; it has grown too big for its boots. There are too many men who simply want to get as much money out of it as possible and who act entirely regardless of the consequences to the public. The better men in the industry are as keen to remedy these conditions as you are. The better element of producers are all agreed on that fact." Mr. Friend was followed by W. S. Bush of the Moving Picture World.

The Good the Motion Picture Does.

Mr. Bush said in substance: "From the questions which have been asked by members of this committee and by the two reverend gentlemen to my right, it would appear that motion pictures are all bad. Don't let us be one-sided. In any consideration of this subject you must in common fairness recognize the vast good which has been done and which is constantly being done by the motion picture screen. It seems to me this great invention, beyond all doubt the most useful in the history of mankind, ought to invite the constructive statesmanship of any body of legislators. You don't want to strike at this thing in blind fury and ignorance. I want to assure this committee that I have never owned an inch of film and that I have no interest whatever in any theater, but I have given ten years of my life to a very close study of the motion picture, and I wish to assure you that any questions you may want to ask will be cheerfully answered to the best of my ability."

Mr. Bush pointed out the fact that censorship was not a new thing but that it had been tried out thoroughly and found to be a failure. "Why try to turn back the wheels of time and refuse to profit by two centuries of experience in England and in our own country?" Mr. Bush continued: "We object to censorship because it is an infringement upon personal liberty and a mockery of the traditions of the English speaking races."

Father Dunney interrupted here to ask the speaker what his fundamental objection to censorship was. The speaker replied that it was the submission of a medium of expression to governmental control.

"Have not the police the right to censor any man whom they suspect of having committed a crime?" asked Father Dunney.

"The police," replied Mr. Bush, "have no right to stop a citizen who is going about his business and inquire about his plans and intentions. They can only punish the overt act." Here the speaker was interrupted again by a young assemblyman who asked this question: "Then you want to wait until the harm is done? You want to wait until the burglary is committed?"

"If you will come with me to the Law Library across the street," replied Mr. Bush, "I will show you reports of libel suits by the score and you know of course that hundreds of libel suits are in the courts all the time. There is no question here that the law was transgressed, but would you for that reason abolish the liberty of the press?" The chairman of the committee here assured the speaker that neither he nor the committee were opposed to motion pictures, but they all felt that some regulation is necessary.

The Great Cause of Censorship Agitation.

"I will tell you what has caused all this hue and cry after the motion picture," continued Mr. Bush. "It is a mistaken opinion that the motion picture is intended exclusively for children and that everything shown on the screen must be brought down to the immature intelligence of the child. Eliminate the child problem and censorship falls by the weight of its own absurdity. The screen will tend to the needs of the child, and at this time helpful and constructive work is going on in various cities of the country where public spirited citizens and educators are co-operating with exhibitors to present special children's entertainments. Censorship will not solve the child problem at all.

"I trust that this committee will leave the screen absolutely free. I trust that you will deprive no citizen of the right to express freely any theories or opinions that he may have through the medium of the greatest visualizing instrument the world has ever known. The American people are surcharged with humor and eventually this censorship mania will be laughed out of the courts and laughed out of the halls of legislation."

More Anti-Censorship Batteries.

Mr. Bush was followed by Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Censorship, who briefly illustrated the methods of that board in dealing with both the public and the manufacturers. Dr. Brenton drew particular attention to the strange wording of the bill, and to the employment of the term "sacrilegious." "It seems to me," he said, "that this injection of sectarianism into a question like censorship is a very grave matter."

J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade spoke next. He quoted from the speech made at the Washington hearings by the Very Rev. Thomas Edward Shields, professor of education of the Catholic University of America. The quotations cited by the speaker plainly proved that Dr. Shields was opposed to censorship of any kind.

The next speaker was Dr. Orrin G. Cocks, of the National Board. Mr. Cocks said that the solution of the child problem must come not through censorship, but through selection. He spoke of the splendid work done for the special entertainment of children in motion picture theaters in Albany, Buffalo, Boston, Providence, New Haven, and other cities.

Mr. Trigger spoke next and asked the committee to name five pictures out of all they had seen which were objectionable. He said he was one of the oldest exhibitors in the State and had never heard any serious complaints. He challenged the committee to show that any of their constituents had complained of the character of the motion pictures shown on the screen of today.

Other speakers against the bill were Albert Banzhaf, who spoke on behalf of David W. Griffith; Joseph P. Holland, H. J. Smith and James Lemke, who represented the various labor organizations previously mentioned.

"Motion Pictures Deplete and Demoralize Schools," Say Friends of the Bill.

The Rev. Father Dunney was the first speaker in support of the bill. He claimed the children in his schools had been utterly demoralized by motion pictures. "The motion picture," he said, "is the most powerful educational factor in the world of to-day. You men have not utilized your great opportunities." He critically surveyed the entire group of film men as he said this.

"I claim," he continued, "that over 50 per cent. of the pictures shown are shady, obscene, immoral and generally objectionable." He said this 50 per cent. of "immoral," crooked films was unfit to be seen by either child or adult." He said "the moving pictures take the children away from their homework." At the end of his speech the reverend father was asked by Mr. Bush to name one single objectionable picture which he himself had seen. The reverend father could not name one. In answer to further questioning Father Dunney denied that we wanted to turn the theaters into schools.

Father Looney was the next speaker. He deplored the fact that boys of the age of fifteen and sixteen turned their backs on such studies as logic and mathematics, preferring moving pictures to syllogisms and logarithms. Father Looney was asked whether the tendency of boys of that age to shirk severe studies and look for more diverting entertainment was not natural. Father Looney smiled and remarked that this state of affairs dated back to the days of original sin, whereupon everybody had a hearty laugh. The last speaker was the aforesaid John Barber. He said nothing new.

No prediction as to the future fate of this censorship bill can be hazarded at this time. The introducer of the bill is the chairman of the committee to which it has been referred. It is altogether possible the bill may be reported favorably. It is the duty of every New York exhibitor to get in immediate touch with his Assemblyman and enter a vigorous protest against the passage of the Ahearn bill.

VAN LOAN TO BRANDT.

As a result of the fire in the Universal offices Manager Joe Brandt addressed a letter to heads of departments inquiring as to what fire-fighting rules were in effect in their jurisdiction. From H. H. Van Loan of the publicity division came this answer:

"Letendre has instructions to follow the flames, with note book and pencil and to assist the reporters in every way possible. When the walls of the publicity room becomes hot he is to turn the material he has collected over to me. Then I am supposed to light my pipe, from the falling embers, and sit me down to my trusty machine, and write the story, amid the crackling flames, so as to get the real local color. After I have made thirty carbon copies and have seen that they have been sent out to magazines, trade papers and the press, I will grab the first idea which overtakes me and waft, grace fully mind you, to the street."

"Peppina" Causes Riot at Theater

Police Called to Handle Crowds When Mary Pickford Appears in Famous Players-Paramount Picture.

RESERVES from two police precincts were called to handle the crowds which stormed the Broadway Theater, New York, in their efforts to see Mary Pickford in the longest picture in which she has ever starred, "Poor Little Peppina," and in which she is being presented by the Famous Players Film Company.

Never in the history of the Broadway Theater, since its conversion into a motion picture house by Paramount, has any film approached the record made by "Peppina," according to Manager Langsfeld. The former record for the house was held by Geraldine Farrar in "Temptation," but on the opening day, Sunday, February 20, the record established by the prima donna was decisively eclipsed by Mary Pickford and the same held true for Monday.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the mob which stormed the theater in ever increasing numbers made it necessary for Manager Langsfeld to call for the assistance of the police. One hour after the first contingent of reserves had arrived on Tuesday in response to the management's appeal, another squad was dispatched to their assistance as they were unable to cope with the situation.

Adolph Zukor, President of the Famous Players Film Company, was well pleased with the showing which the picture has made, but was not in the least surprised.

"Though we were all firmly convinced that 'Peppina' was the greatest thing Miss Pickford has ever done on the screen," he said, "we carefully avoided making any claims for the production in our advance announcements because our opinion would naturally be discounted as mere 'press stuff.' Accordingly we announced 'Peppina' simply as the longest feature in which Miss Pickford has ever appeared, and her first Italian characterization. We left it for the critics to call it her greatest triumph, and they have been unanimous in so doing.

"When it is borne in mind that 'Peppina' has not yet been released on the Paramount Program and that the exhibition at the Broadway in New York, the Stanley in Philadelphia, the three weeks' run at the La Salle theater in Chicago and in other principal cities represent only advance showings of the picture before its release on March 2, the sensation which the film has already caused is doubly significant.

"The consensus of critical opinion seems to be that, next in importance to the phenomenal work of the star herself in the title role, the most notable features of the film are the appearance of real Italians in the numerous Latin roles and the remarkably realistic settings provided for the film by Director Sidney Olcott.

"'Poor Little Peppina' by its tremendous success has determined the question of the future for us as regards the releasing of other exceptional features starring Miss Pickford. We already are at work on plans for the next production which will be a factory story. The exact release date has not as yet been determined upon, but it is safe to say that this second feature extraordinary will follow 'Poor Little Peppina' by approximately six weeks."

UNIVERSAL TO REISSUE WILLARD PICTURE.

The Universal Company has received so many requests "The Heart Punch," with Jess Willard in the leading role, that it has been decided to re-issue this strong one reel drama. Every Universal exchange throughout the country is now ready to fill orders for it. In view of the fact that Willard is matched to meet Frank Moran at Madison Square early in March, many of the exhibitors in all parts of the country sent in demands to exchanges for another showing of the Jess Willard picture.

MAE MURRAY IN "TO HAVE AND TO HOLD."

Mae Murray, the beautiful new Lasky star, will make her photodramatic debut in the picturized version of Mary Johnson's famous novel, "To Have and to Hold," the thrilling romance of the early Colonial days in Virginia, released on the Paramount Program, March 6th. Wallace Reid appears in the leading supporting role. Others in the cast are Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton, James Neill, Lucien Littlefield, R. Bradbury and Robert Fleming.

SELLING RIGHTS ON "THE LITTLE ORPHAN."

The Pioneer Film Company has purchased the New York State and Northern New Jersey rights on "The Little Orphan." The picture was featured on Thursday, February 24, at Loew's New York Theater.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

WASHINGTON EXHIBITORS GET TOGETHER.

Interesting Talks at First Banquet—Speaker Declares 300 Congressmen Are Against Federal Censorship—Organization Effected.

CENSORSHIP and co-operation were the main subjects of discussion selected by the speakers at the banquet of the motion picture men of Washington, D. C., held in the Hotel Ebbitt on the evening of February 24. The occasion was the "Exhibitors and Exchangemen's Get-Together Banquet," and the vote was unanimous that it was a remarkable success. The enthusiasm ran to such a pitch as to cause the groundwork to be laid for a permanent organization which bids fair to accomplish many things. The declaration by "Jack" Connelly, president of the Boston Press Club, that 300 Congressmen were against Federal censorship, was heartily applauded.

Fulton Brylawski shone as toastmaster and entertained those present between speeches with short stories and anecdotes. The first speaker was Frank B. Spurrier, manager of the local office of the V-L-S-E, who told of how the whole affair came about. He greeted the motion picture men and pledged his support to any future movement. There then came greetings from the Moving Picture World through Clarence L. Linz, its Washington correspondent.

"There are several things we must consider," said Guy Wonders, president of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Maryland, "and these are, why can't the exhibitors organize; why can't they get together; why can't they harmonize and co-operate? Gentlemen, we stand tonight as the fifth industry of the world, and yet while we have employes who are more than 90 per cent. organized, we exhibitors of the State of Maryland are less than 10 per cent. organized—and why? It resolves itself into a very little. The exhibitor of today, instead of minding his own business, is trying to mind that of somebody else—his competitor. There are many exhibitors who, if asked the question 'How did your competitor do last night?' can tell within a few dollars of how much was actually taken in at the box office; if asked what the picture was they could not tell.

"The situation concerning us today is of serious and vital importance—it is censorship. This is the time when all of the exhibitors should get together and everyone should co-operate with his neighbor to fight this bugaboo. I want to read you an editorial in the March 4 issue of the Moving Picture World headed 'A Lesson in Maryland,' by W. Stephen Bush."

After reading this article Mr. Wonders made known the action of a fellow exhibitor who is responsible for the upheaval in Maryland. "The man who introduced the bill (Delegate Bryant) has proclaimed the fact that he did so at the request of an exhibitor. We do not need censorship, other than such censoring as we may do ourselves, knowing our patrons and what is best to show them. If we know of a picture that is coming out and that it will be detrimental to our business, let us go to those who have the police power to stop them; let us give them the facts and say to them that if they think the picture should be suppressed they should do so. Then, if they do not suppress it, there is no need for censorship. The general public is not clamoring for censorship. It is really only a very few and those few are going to kill our business while we stand idly by. Censorship is something that we must fight and I sincerely trust that the exhibitors of Washington and other cities and the states will organize and get on the firing line."

The sensation of the evening was caused by Mr. Connolly, a guest of the exhibitors and exchangemen. Mr. Connolly has been very active in the fight against National censorship and has done considerable publicity work in the way of writing stories in opposition thereto. "I fully agree with Mr. Wonders that there is need for organization, and the time of that need is right now," he said. "In Boston there is organization, and when any adverse legislation is pending the exhibitors are ready to fight it.

"During the past few weeks I have seen a great deal of the motion picture censorship agitation and I think I can give you a few pleasing facts. I am quite certain that we have fifteen out of the sixteen members of Congress from Massachusetts lined up against the proposition and working against it as hard as they can. We of Massachusetts do not believe in having our rights muzzled. I am in Washington as the secretary to Congressman William H. Carter, of that state. He is especially active in the fight against censorship, and as a result I have been hard at work getting material together. I have conferred a number of times with a leading distributing company of New York which has sent out hundreds of letters to Congressmen and others, and I have also conferred with both Republican and Democratic members of the House of Representatives. The leaders of both parties are opposed to the measure, and in all there have been secured three hundred pledges in the House that should the bill come up for a vote that number of Congressmen will line up in opposition. I do not believe I am far wrong when I declare that the bill is a dead issue so far as this session of Congress is concerned." Mr. Connolly was warmly applauded.

Henry E. Friedman, traveling representative of the World Film Corporation, made interesting remarks on the subject of co-operation in business dealings between exchanges and exhibitors and also on organization. Dr. William P. Herbst, former president of the local league, expressed his disapproval of everything that looked like censorship. Thomas D. Goldberg, of Baltimore, made the suggestion that the Washington exhibitors join with those of Maryland in the formation of a strong organization.

Abe Dresner, who is back in Washington as the representative of the Bluebird features, said the exhibitors will simply have to band themselves together before it is too late that they may successfully combat the legislation that is always cropping up some place or another. "I want to refer back to the remarks made by the correspondent of the Moving Picture World who referred to the value of the screen as a political medium," he went on. "The screen is mightier than even the newspapers. At Pittsburgh at one of the Screen Club dinners at which the mayor of the city, the governor of the state and other prominent officials were present, one of the latter, in an address said, 'Give me the use of the screens in the motion picture theaters of Pennsylvania and I will defeat any political candidate regardless of the office for which he is aspiring.' We of Washington have no representatives in Congress, or any city officials dependent upon our votes, but that is not so with our fellow-members of Maryland and may I suggest to them that they use the theater screens in their fight against the worst thing that they have ever had to face—censorship."

S. M. Flax, of the Pathe Exchange, had a few words to say on the subject of co-operation, and Sidney B. Lust, proprietor of the United Film Service in the territory, clamored for a permanent organization in the District of Columbia and a get-together meeting every month.

Harry M. Crandall made the suggestion that the exhibitors, before showing a picture, remove that part of the film which remarks "Passed by the National Board of Censorship." "I think that this was adopted through a misconception of censorship. It was not intended that the people should get the idea that censorship was necessary, but that the picture represented an approved type. The people have become very familiar with the slogan, however, and some of those who are always endeavoring to commence some sort of agitation have grasped at the idea of fame in a truly National Federal Board. It is of absolutely no use to us; the manufacturers would no doubt be glad to dispense with it because it is a needless expense, and 'out of sight, out of mind,' the general public would soon forget there ever was such a thing as 'the National Board of Censorship' and the agitators would have to work very hard to keep their activities in the limelight. I have already adopted the plan of clipping it off and make the suggestion that you all do the same."

First Banquet and "Get-Together" of the Washington (D. C.) Film Men on the Evening of February 24.

Organization of the proper kind came as a bolt out of the—ceiling. There was a lot of noise and Mr. Dresner found himself appointed temporary chairman and called upon to put to a vote a motion seeking the appointment of a committee of which he was to be the chairman and Frank B. Spurrier, V-L-S-E; Clarence W. Bunn, of the World Film Corporation; Harry M. Crandall, of the Crandall enterprises, and Charles L. Linz, of the Moving Picture World, the members, to do an enormous amount of work before the expiration of a calendar month. This committee is to prepare for another banquet, the election of permanent officers, secure contributions for and make arrangements whereby a permanent home may be secured.

Among those present were Frank B. Spurrier, chairman; Clarence L. Linz, secretary; Fulton Brylawski, toastmaster; Harry M. Crandall, chairman of the exhibitors' committee; Clarence W. Bunn, Henry E. Friedman, E. R. Haas, N. Stein, Sidney J. Mayer, C. E. Staub, Sidney B. Lust, George C. Schulz, Isaac Notes, M. Francis Painter, J. Keenan, J. E. Flax, S. M. Flax, F. C. Jackson, Dr. William P. Herbst, Norman Luchs, Joseph P. Morgan, Maurice Davis, James T. Hamilton, Charles W. Plunkett, E. Lawrence Phillips, of Alexandria, Va.; James L. Young, Austin H. Brown, R. A. Babbitt, H. B. Stearn, Jack Connolly, of Boston, Mass., and Guy L. Wonders, Harry E. Reddish, and Thomas D. Goldberg, of Baltimore, Md.

EXHIBITORS GOING TO ALBANY.

At a regular meeting of the Rochester Motion Picture Exhibitors, Inc., held February 18, it was decided to send delegates to the exhibitors' meeting at Albany on March 1 and 2 to act in conjunction with the other exhibitors on censorship and Sunday-closing legislation now proposed and under consideration by our state legislators. The delegates appointed were A. N. Wolfe, C. F. Staley, H. Kress, E. Wolff and W. C. Hubbard. A vote of thanks was extended to the Moving Picture World for its efforts in behalf of the exhibitors of this state.

The Bronx Cinema Exhibitors' Association will be represented at Albany by President John J. Wittman, James J. Haggerty, Mr. Schacket, Mr. Goldman, Mr. Derrick, Mr. Trigger, Henry Cole, J. Bolte, Mr. Suchman, Mr. Goldman, Mr. Matchet and Mr. Neuman.

LEDERER FORMS NEW PRODUCING COMPANY.

George W. Lederer has formed another company for the manufacture of motion pictures, his latest being the Pollard Picture Plays Corporation, starring Margarita Fischer, under the direction of Harry Pollard.

OKLAHOMA'S BIGGEST CONVENTION.

Exhibitors and Exchangemen Out in Force for 1916 Gathering—President Herrington Among Speakers.

By S. A. M. Harrison.

THE 1916 convention of the Oklahoma Moving Picture Exhibitors' League will be remembered for many days as the largest ever held in that state. There were fully 115 exhibitors present and many exchange representatives.

An "extra added attraction" to bring out this big attendance was the hearing before the Oklahoma Public Service Commission of the controversy between the exchanges and the exhibitors over the new system of charges.

The meetings of the league were held at the Lee-Huckins Hotel. The executive sessions were brief, the most important business to be transacted being the election of officers. Ralph Talbot, of Tulsa, was elected president; B. Momand, of Shawnee, vice-president; S. H. Jones, Altus, second vice-president; L. W. Brophy, Muskogee, secretary; J. L. Olive, Chickasha, treasurer. B. H. Powell, of Oklahoma City, is the new national vice-president for Oklahoma, and W. C. Wood of Lawton, Carl Gregg of Tulsa, W. C. Wirt of Enid, H. W. McCall of Oklahoma City, Morris Lowenstein of Oklahoma City, S. H. Jones of Altus and John Slocum of Mangum were elected delegates to the National Convention in Chicago.

An open session smoker was held after the business session. Addresses were made by E. J. Farrell, southern district manager of the General; L. B. Remy, Triangle, Dallas; Albert Russell, Metro, Dallas; J. H. Galinsky, Kansas City; C. S. Edwards, Kansas City; A. S. Maighan, Kansas City; F. H. Logan, Paramount, Dallas; C. A. Meade, V-L-S-E, Dallas, and others.

An able talk on censorship was made by National President Fred J. Herrington, who quoted liberally from the experiences of exhibitors in Kansas, Ohio and Pennsylvania and from the arguments used before the House Committee on Education in Washington recently. Mr. Herrington also suggested a co-operative supply house for the exhibitors, claiming that it would be a saving and a convenience, as well as profitable to the members.

Among film men at the Oklahoma City convention were:

E. J. Powell, Southern District Manager of the General Film Company; Thos. E. Hull, of the United Exchange in Oklahoma City; A. E. Meighan, of the Kansas City Scenic Company, Kansas City; C. E. Olson, of the Wichita Film and Supply Company, Wichita, Kan.; C. S. Edwards and M. Jamieson, of the Pathe Exchange, Kansas City; J. H. Gilinsky, of the V-L-S-E, Kansas City; J. H. Crowley, manager of the Universal Exchange, Fort Smith; D. E. Boswell, district representative of the United Exchanges in Texas and Oklahoma; Ike Frankel, of Frankel Booking Agency, Oklahoma City; C. P. Anderson, Kansas City Machine Supply Company; A. W. Plues and Alvin Jones, of the Pathe Exchange, Dallas; J. C. DeWalt and L. L. Hensley, of the Universal, Oklahoma City; H. Lewis, J. D. Wheelan Film Company, Oklahoma City; F. O. Bandy and George Slater, of the Mutual, Oklahoma City; A. L. Teagarden and George Plummer, of the General, Oklahoma City; Al Russell, of the Metro, Dallas; E. T. Peter, of the United, Dallas; C. A. Meade, of the V-L-S-E, Dallas; C. R. Baxley, of the Fox, Dallas; L. C. McHenry, of the Southern Cabiria Company, Dallas; D. Callahan, of the Metro, Dallas; F. H. Logan, of the Paramount, Dallas; C. C. Ezell and John Ezell, of the Essanay Company, Dallas; Max Graf, of the World, Dallas; L. B. Remy, of the Triangle, Dallas, and C. A. Walker, Motion Picture Journal, Dallas.

Those having exhibits were the Southern Cabiria, Metro, Paramount, V-L-S-E, Pathe, World, Universal, Bluebird, Triangle, "Mary Page," Wheelan Company, K. C. Machine, and the Pyrene Fire Extinguisher.

JERSEY EXHIBITORS OPPOSE CENSORSHIP BILL.

With National and State Representatives of the Industry They Appear Before Legislative Committee.

NATIONAL and State representatives of the moving picture industry gathered in the Assembly Chamber at the State house, Trenton, N. J., on Wednesday, February 23, to attend a hearing of the municipal corporations committee to oppose Assemblyman Kuhlke's bill creating a State board of moving picture censors. Assemblyman Kuhlke, the introducer of the measure, and a number of clergymen, were on hand to advocate it.

Louis Rouillion, of the national board of censorship, in opposing the measure, contended that its provisions were discriminatory in their effect. Among others in opposition to the measure were representatives of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of New Jersey, and the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. William M. Seabury, of New York, general counsel for the Board of Trade, and Paul Cromelin, president of the Cosmo Film Company, were also speakers against the proposed law. Others who spoke strongly against the measure are Dr. C. H. Hespe, of the State Exhibitors; W. E. Turton, of the Theater Managers' Association of Essex County; C. Fred Ruhlman, of Trenton, representing the American Federation of Musicians, and M. A. Carney, secretary of the International Alliance of Theatrical State Employers, and motion picture exhibitors.

In advocating the measure which he had introduced Mr. Kuhlke, of Hudson County, spoke for its favorable consideration by the committee. He explained that the measure creates a board of three censors, two men and one woman, to be named by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate, at a salary of $2,000 per year each. The Newark Diocesan Federation of Holy Name Societies, which is supporting a similar Senate bill, introduced by Senator Egan of Hudson County, was represented at the hearing by the Rev. M. P. Corcoran, director of the federation; former Assemblyman Hubert J. Rowe, president of that body; John O'Toole and Robert E. Powers, members of the organization.

Mr. Rowe said that the question before the Legislature was whether immoral pictures or clean films were to be shown in the State of New Jersey, and that the only proper solution to the question was the providing of a board of censors. He said that it was true that there was a National Board of Censors, but that it was supported by the producers, and that should be sufficient grounds for questioning the work of that body. He remarked that 60,000 members of the various Holy Name societies favored censorship.

William M. Seabury, opposing the measure, described what he termed the "censorship wave," a species of hysteria sweeping the country. He said that the question was one of local regulation in each community, and that the criminal laws made it a misdemeanor to present any show of an obscene nature.

The outcome of the affair is being awaited with great interest by both factions and active measures are being taken for and against the adoption of the measure. Moving picture interests are sure that the bill will be defeated and are using every possible means to bring about that end.

PITTSBURGH MEN TAKE UP BUILDING CODE.

The Pittsburgh local of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League will take up at its next meeting, March 2, the new building code recently put into force by the City of Pittsburgh. There are a number of features in the new code that are likely to affect considerably the construction and equipment of moving picture theaters and for this reason the matter will be examined thoroughly by the league. Efforts will probably be made to have several portions of the code revised, on the grounds that the regulations are unjust to certain classes of theaters. One section in particular, the limiting of houses of non-fireproof construction to a seating capacity of 300, proves objectionable.

ALAMEDA COUNTY LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of Motion Picture Exhibitors' League No. 2 of Alameda County, Cal., was held in its spacious assembly room in the St. Marks Hotel, Oakland, Cal., on Feb. 17, and was well attended. This league is now the most active organization of its kind in California and its membership includes most of the representative houses on the east side of San Francisco Bay, a number of prominent exhibitors having joined recently. While a great deal of good has been accomplished during the past year, including the bringing about of a marked reduction in license fees at Oakland, it is anticipated that even more will be accomplished during 1916 and an announcement will be made shortly that will be of general interest to exhibitors.

The officers elected at the recent meeting were: President, H. L. Beach, of the Lorin and Strand theaters, Berkeley; vice-president, J. Hellman, of the Hellman theater, Oakland; secretary-treasurer, Will F. Krahn, of the Lorin and Strand Theatres; director, W. L. Smith, of the Fremont theater, Fruitvale; G. E. Thornton, of the T. & D. theater, Oakland; R. W. Midgley, of the Franklin theater, Oakland; A. E. King, of the Gem theater, Oakland, and S. S. Range, of the Claremont theater, Oakland.

BAILIE HEADS TORONTO EXHIBITORS.

Forty exhibitors of Toronto attended the meeting of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association at the organization's headquarters on Sunday, February 20, when the annual election of officers was held. A. Bailie, manager of the Cumbac Theater, who was vice president during 1915, was elected president to succeed W. J. Liscombe, who has left the city. J. Gabrino, of the Odeon Theater, was elected to the position of vice president, while L. Alexander of the Doric Theater was made secretary-treasurer for the ensuing term. The following board of management was selected: H. Jennings, Sr., of the Mary Pickford Theater, W. F. Sexton, Family Theater, and L. Feigham of the Eclipse Theater.

The local association now has a membership of sixty-five exhibitors, representing 95 per cent. of the Toronto theaters. Plans were made at the annual meeting for a screen ball to which several moving picture stars have been invited. The quarters of the association have been newly decorated and the walls bear many framed photographs of picture celebrities.

EXHIBITORS REGRET CROPPER RESIGNATION.

It is with great regret that exhibitors in Philadelphia receive the news of the resignation of Mr. Cropper as secretary of the Philadelphia Exhibitors' League. Mr. Cropper has endeared himself to many frequenters of the film district through his mild manner and congenial personality. He gave the organization the best he had and spent many hours working for the interest of the exhibitors when he could have and should have been gaining recreation. Mr. Cropper announces he will leave shortly for England, where he anticipates entering the employment of the British government.

SELLING SPACE FOR BIG FILM SHOW.

Exhibition space in the First National Motion Picture Exposition, to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, under the auspices of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, is now being allotted by J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, and Harry A. Cochrane, general manager of Madison Square Garden, the managers of the exposition.

Important trade conferences and conventions will be held during the exposition from May 6 to 13, including every branch of the industry, the trades and the professions represented and also embracing our banking interests that are so strongly supporting the industry today with promises of still greater financial encouragement in the future.

"BIG FOUR MARCH" BY TOM NORTH.

The irrepressible Tom North has gone and done it again. This time he has turned his versatile talents to a musical composition which he calls the "Big Four March," which the V-L-S-E purposes to send their exhibitors throughout the country for distribution to their patrons.

North, who guides the destinies of the V-L-S-E in the Seattle territory, had kept his associates, exchange men generally, and exhibitors in that section of the country, on tiptoes of expectancy as to what he would do next, but no one had ever yet accused this expert Jack-of-all-trades of being a musician. It is said, however, he has come through with flying colors, and that the "Big Four March," occupying five musical sheets, is really a most creditable composition.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Closing of Harper Theater by Mayor Thompson Leads to Bitter Strife Between Him and City Council.

THE contest between the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church and the Harper theater, at 5238 Harper avenue, this city, has again become active. On April 23, last year, Circuit Court Judge Lockwood Honore overruled a demurrer filed by the city to a petition for a writ of mandamus brought by Frank Nahser, who sought a permit to open the house. The city halted the victory for the theater by taking an appeal to the Supreme Court, and a state order was entered by Judge Honore delaying execution of the mandamus until the Supreme Court had decided.

The church trustees abandoned a proposition to appeal the case when the city insisted that they should give an indemnity bond to secure the city against possible damages in case the higher court sustained Judge Honore's ruling. Mayor Thompson told the trustees that he would withhold issuance of the license to the theater if they would give a sufficiently large bond, which the trustees refused to do.

The Harper theater was opened shortly afterward, and continued doing business until Friday, February 18, when, during a matinee, the house was closed by the police, on an order sent out by Chief of Police Healey, on instructions of Mayor Thompson.

It will be remembered that the original contest began over a provision in the Building Code of Chicago which forbids any theater to be operated within 200 feet of a church.

The police department was informed that the upper court had upheld the suit to close the theater—hence the action of Supt. Healey.

H. H. Hoyt, vice-president and secretary of the Harper Amusement Company, and manager of the Harper theater, states that the closing will be only temporary, as the company expects to get another court order in its favor.

A gentleman who resides in Hyde Park, whose wife is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Hyde Park, called at the World office February 19 and gave the following information:

"The First Presbyterian Church has no objection to the Harper theater. Before the theater was opened, in June last, the trustees of the church were under the impression that it was to be a vaudeville theater, and they objected because the singing would interfere with the church services. When they found out that it was to be a moving picture theater, they withdrew their objections. At the present time the trustees of the First Presbyterian Church have gotten up and are circulating a petition for the reopening of the Harper theater.

"It is really the city that is against the theater and not the church," this gentleman concluded.

It might more properly be said that city politics are at the bottom of the affair, as during the past week threats of mandamus proceedings against Mayor Thompson have been made unless he closes seventeen other theaters in Chicago which are said to be within 200 feet of a church, school or hospital. A resolution asking that these theaters be closed was introduced at a meeting of the City Council Monday, February 21. The resolution was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Following is a list of the theaters named in the resolution: Ashland theater, 1611-15 West Madison street; American theater, 10 North Ashland avenue; Marlowe, 6254-56 Stewart avenue; Coronado theater, 3970 Vincennes avenue; Harvard theater, 6310-12 Harvard avenue; Frolic theater, 932 East Fifty-fifth street; Coliseum, 1461 Wabash avenue; Paris theater, 612 South State street; Casino theater, 58 West Madison street; Pastime theater, 64 West Madison street; Star theater, 68 West Madison street; Columbia theater, 11 North Clark street; Boston theater, 25 North Clark street; Kenmore, 1039 Wilson avenue; College theater, 2225 Sheffield avenue; Criterion theater, 1222 Sedgwick street, and Columbia vaudeville theater, 1220 North Clark street.

The Harper theater cost $250,000 and has been offering high-class programs of moving pictures to the best residents of Hyde Park, who are up in arms against its closing by the Mayor.

Still More Drastic Censorship Sought for Chicago.

The Chicago Political Equality League, a political organization of Chicago women, has taken unto itself the right to censor moving pictures shown in the city. It is not enough that we should have the drastic censorship of the Chicago police under Second Deputy Funkhouser, at least so these women reformers think, and they recently appointed a committee of 400 to investigate the moving picture theaters of Chicago.

This committee reported that less than 62 per cent. of the moving pictures shown in the city are not morally good! The full report will not be issued until hundreds of such reports have been tabulated.

The preliminary report made by the committee reads in part as follows: "Since our investigation began we have noticed an improvement in the ventilation of many theaters and a closer observation of the ordinances under which these theaters are conducted. We shall be able to point out every theater in which physical conditions are bad. We shall know the localities in which children of school age attend the 'movies' on nights when they should be at home. We can determine the class of plays preferred by the public. We shall know also what theaters are making determined efforts to show only clean and wholesome plays."

Under the heading, "More Censors for the 'Movies'," the following timely editorial appeared in the Chicago Tribune:

Our amateur sociologists are busy as bees just now. Their organizations have reaped much publicity and much self-satisfaction. Two subjects for investigation, the fox trotteries and the cabarets, are the most tempting to the eager woman just now. Pool halls and back rooms in saloons are temporarily out of the running.

But the ladies of the Chicago Political Equality League have been more original. They have gone after the "movies" and indications are that they are about to produce a shocker. We are all to realize just how unspeakably bad the "movies" are.

They have had to be ingenious. There are already two sets of censors in the field, the national board and Major Funkhouser's experts, and what they have left cannot be classified as rich, rare, or racy.

Yet to read the report of the "Chicago Political Equality League" one would suppose the moving picture business was back in the old nickelodeon days.

There is no more reason for a woman's "political equality league" to investigate moving pictures than for a men's sixth ward Republican club or a municipal voters' league to do so.

The trouble is that newspapers give too much space to it whenever two or three ladies are gathered together and decide to investigate something.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Thomas Santschi, a Selig star, has lived in California for the past seven years and his return to play in the Selig production of "The Crisis" will be the first time Mr. Santschi has crossed the Rockies, eastward, since leaving Chicago with the little band of pioneer Selig players, in charge of Francis Boggs. California was then unknown to film producers as the ideal center for studios.

* * *

D. R. Brothers, manager of the Park theater, 5960 West Lake street, this city, called at the World office last week and renewed his subscription. The Park theater is owned by H. L. Meister, who recently purchased the house from H. H. Young. It has a seating capacity of 600. Admissions of 10 and 15 cents are charged for programs consisting of V-L-S-E, Paramount, Bluebird and Pathe service. Mr. Brothers reported capacity business. A three-piece orchestra has been installed, and many other improvements made since the theater was taken over by Mr. Meister.

* * *

Walter Bliss, who, with J. D. Van Sickle, is part owner of the Cozy theater, Durand, Ill., called at our office last week. The Cozy is the only moving picture theater in Durand, which has a population of about 550. The house is open only on Wednesday and Saturday of each week and an admission of 15 cents is charged for a program of World features. Mr. Bliss reported fair business.

* * *

The revival of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" as a feature picture in ten reels has made a big hit at the Fine Arts theater. Large audiences have viewed the Selig picture since the opening, Saturday afternoon, February 19. The plot and the most thrilling situations have all been retained. Several film manufacturers who have serials on their shelves which have run their course have sent representatives to Chicago to ascertain how "Kathlyn's" revival took with the public; and, it is said, they have been favorably impressed. In view of the pronounced cordiality of the reception given "The Adventures of Kathlyn" in its abbreviated form, the Selig Polyscope Company may decide to make a special release of the ten-reel feature.

* * *

George Kleine's Watson comedies have made a pronounced success at the Ziegfeld theater, where one reel a week has appeared on the program for some time past. Kitty Kelly, of the Chicago Tribune, in her review of the Ziegfeld program last week, which included two features and a Watson comedy, referred to the latter in the following manner, it being understood that the Watson comedy fills out the program: "Along about after awhile, everybody at the Ziegfeld straightened up out of their collars into which they had been slumped. Necks became perpendicular instead of inclined. An air of briskness overtook the house. Said the girl beside me, 'I do think he is the funniest person I've ever seen.' Said the man behind, 'Now, see if you don't think him as funny as I told you he was,' and then as Harry Watson gamboled through his bellboy antics laughter rustled everywhere. 'Musty Suffer' is particularly funny this week, but no funnier than usual."

* * *

A special showing of two reels of moving pictures, which illustrate the methods employed by Sulzberger & Sons Co. in manufacturing their product, was made in the dining-room of the Advertising Club of Chicago, recently. These reels depict pork packing and curing in the various stages and also show the complete process used in the canning department. The pictures were made by the Industrial Moving Picture Company of Chicago.

* * *

"Around the World in Ninety Minutes," in six reels, is being presented on sharing contracts in several Chicago theaters at the present time by Luman C. Mann. This feature treats of the manners, customs and recreations, etc., of various nations, and it has received the commendation of John Shoop, Superintendent of Public Schools of Chicago. The presentation is accompanied by a lecture delivered by Mr. Mann himself. He reports very fair business and intends making a tour of the middle west in the near future.

* * *

When last heard from, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowles were in Honolulu, where they had made a two days' stop. "The Birth of a Nation" will be shown there in March.

* * *

S. L. Rothapfel has been as busy as a bee for the past week supervising the renovation of the Colonial for the opening of that theater with a Triangle program, under his direction. The date of opening has been changed from Sunday, February 27, to Saturday, February 26. The lighting plan devised by Mr. Rothapfel for the exterior of the house is most attractive, triangle forms in different colors and brilliant hues being used in the layout. Elaborate stage settings, a fine new organ and an orchestra of 25 pieces will contribute to the atmosphere and realism of the pictures. "Daphne and the Pirate," adapted from Granville Warwick's play, with Lillian Gish in the leading role, will be the Triangle feature in the opening program. This will be supplemented by educational and other film subjects, selected by Mr. Rothapfel with his well-known art and skill. A brilliant gathering is assured for the opening night, as those in attendance will be present by invitation. C. Furness Hately, personal representative of President Aitken, has sent out invitation cards to all the prominent men in the trade and in social, professional, business and administrative circles.

* * *

E. M. Asher, special representative of Sol Lesser for "The Ne'er-Do-Well," arrived in the city Saturday morning, February 26. He stopped over until Tuesday, engaged in business connected with "The Ne'er-Do-Well" and then returned to New York. Mr. Asher stated that bookings for the big feature are coming in very rapidly from the large cities, and that tip-top prices are being paid for runs of from two to four weeks. An announcement will be made shortly about the run of "The Ne'er-Do-Well" in a Chicago theater for an indefinite period. Mr. Asher states that in houses where "The Spoilers" had most successful runs reports are coming in that "The Ne'er-Do-Well" has done still better; also that in every house in which "The Ne'er-Do-Well" has been played requests have been made for a return date. In all cases, "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is being booked to the exhibitor direct.

* * *

The Frances Willard Parent-Teachers' Association has arranged with the Panorama theater, Fifty-third street and Prairie avenue, this city, to give children's matinees every Saturday afternoon. On such occasions the theater will be thoroughly fumigated before the presentations, and special films consisting of fairy stories and educational subjects will be shown.

* * *

D. J. Chatkin, secretary and treasurer of the United Film Service, and Miss Hannah Ferguson, of this city, will be united in marriage in the near future. It appeared in these pages several months ago that Miss Ferguson, Mr. Chatkin and Miss Bertha Chatkin, sister of the latter, were flung from an automobile during a tour of southern Illinois, when the auto was struck by a fast passenger train near Bloomington. Miss Chatkin was fatally injured and died shortly afterwards. Mr. Chatkin and Miss Ferguson were rushed to the Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago. Placed in different wards, they communicated with each other constantly by notes. This led, in the long run, to their engagement.

* * *

The Ziegfeld program for the week beginning Saturday, February 26, announces Olga Petrova in "The Soul Market"; "Kennedy Square," with Antonio Moreno, Muriel Ostriche and Charles Kent in the leading roles, and Harry Watson in the newest "Musty Suffer" comedy melange, "Getting His Goat.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Program for the Week of Feb. 28 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

Diplomacy at the Strand.

AT the Strand theater Marie Doro was seen in a photo-dramatic version of Sardou's famous drama, "Diplomacy," in which she appeared at the Empire theater last year as co-star with Blanche Bates and William Gilette. The screen version was produced by the Famous Players-Charles Frohman Company.

The story of "Diplomacy" is a tale of international intrigue, involving the theft of the plans of Gibraltar by a foreign spy. Miss Doro has in her supporting cast Elliott Dexter, Edith Campbell Walker, George Majeroni, Frank Losee and Russell Bassett. The Topical Review contained the latest news, European war pictures and ladies' fashions. The Paramount Pictograph, a new comedy, and educational studies were also shown. Grace Hoffman, soprano; Hall, violinist, and the Belgian Refugee Quartette were on the program.

Triangle Program at the Knickerbocker.

H. B. Warner was the star in "The Raiders," the photoplay written by J. G. Hawks and Thomas H. Ince, which headed the bill at the Knickerbocker theater. The story deals with modern business life, and furnishes Mr. Warner with a congenial role. Heney Belmar, Scott Wells, Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, David Haldeman, Dorothy Haldeman and Dorothy Dolton are members of the cast.

The Keystone comedy, "The Bright Lights," revealed humorous flashes of "things as they are not" along the Bowery. Roscoe Arbuckle, Mabel Normand and William Jefferson have the leading roles.

Miroslava, the Serbian prima donna, the Knickerbocker animated news and educational films, and a moving picture history of Francisca Villa, were also on the program.

Florence Rockwell at the Broadway.

"He Fell in Love With His Wife," a Pallas Picture on the Paramount program, was presented at the Broadway theater, Florence Rockwell having posed for the principal character. The scenario was made by H. S. Sheldon and is founded on the novel of the same name, written by E. P. Roe.

"Our Middies at Annapolis" and the U. S. Aviation School, the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures, were a feature of the program.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

PRODUCERS PREPARE MONSTER CENSORSHIP PROTEST.

Censorship Slides and Signature Blanks Are to be Sent to Motion Picture Theaters All Over the Country—Signatures to be Forwarded to the President of the United States.

WHILE the local censorship ordinance is still in the hands of the city attorney Los Angeles film producers are preparing a monster petition against censorship that will eventually be forwarded to the President of the United States. Fifteen thousand censorship slides and a vast quantity of slips, protesting against censorship and containing blank spaces for names and addresses, these to be signed by the patrons of the theaters petitioning the various legislative bodies to abolish censorship will be sent to exhibitors and exchanges all over the country.

Managers of moving picture theaters will be requested to exhibit these slides and distribute throughout the audience the slips for signatures. When all the names possible are obtained they will be put into one great petition and sent to Washington. It is expected that some ten million names may be procured this way. As already mentioned, censorship editorials on the films are also being prepared by several of the producers. The Motion Picture Producers' Association represents now sixteen producing companies in Los Angeles and the local address is 1715 Northwestern avenue.

Proposed Film Shipping Regulations Opposed by Exchanges.

The proposed regulations forbidding the shipment of motion picture films on baggage and passenger cars will be strenuously opposed before the California railroad commission. The regulations were ordered by the American Railway Association.

In a petition to the state commission, asking that the railroads be prohibited from carrying the regulation into effect, California film exchanges declare that the new rules, if carried out will mean severe financial loss to the film industries of the country.

The petition also contains suggestions as to methods that could be adopted to eliminate the danger from fire. It says that safety could be served by compelling all persons carrying films in passenger trains and boats to use a tightly fastened and securely closed and key-locked metal case, lined with hard fiber and containing not more than eight reels of films. The petitioner has submitted one of these cases to the commission.

Keystone Man Seriously Injured.

Though he races on a motorcycle into rivers, over banks, into brick walls, and even collides with machines for the films at the Keystone studio, Walter Clintzberg was painfully injured recently when the motor upon which he and a girl were riding collided with a passing automobile. The funny part of the mishap is that the young actor was at the time driving along at a moderate rate of speed. The girl was Dorothy Barnett, also a picture player. The two injured riders were rushed to a beach hospital, where it was found that the boy was suffering from two broken legs, internal injuries and possible concussion of the brain. The girl had a fractured hip bone, lacerations and perhaps internal injuries.

ACTORS' FUND GAINS.

Theater Week Makes Cleanup—Big Dinner the Next Event.

Close to $2,000 was raised at the Los Angeles theaters last week when the managers turned over the special tax to the California Committee. The largest amount was over $700 and the smallest to be turned in by a picture house was $1.50. The downtown theater district was divided into blocks and each star assigned a certain number of theaters at which to speak. Sunday night D. W. Griffith spoke from the stage of the Morosco theater. De Wolf Hopper appeared at several houses. Theodore Roberts, Frank Reicher and Victor Moore also spoke at six places. One evening during the week Tyrone Power addressed several audiences, as did Constance Collier. Thursday night Victor Moore and Miss Anita King made a circuit of houses, appearing together. Friday night a celebration was held at Levy's Cafe in which a number of prominent stars took part. Miss King passed the hat and collected $135. Sunday night De Wolf Hopper and Theodore Roberts each appeared at six theaters. Miss King visited five, in several of which she passed the hat and placed the money given in the contribution boxes in the lobbies. Many other players appeared.

The next event will be on the night of March 3, when Levy's Cafe is to give a special dinner and will donate 60 per cent. of its gross receipts of the evening to the committee. It is expected that at least six or seven hundred dollars additional will be raised.

As soon as Mr. Lasky returns from the east, other methods of money-raising will be devised. W. T. Wyatt is the tireless vice-chairman.

H. E. AITKEN ON THE COAST.

President of Triangle Visits Mack Sennett at Keystone Studio and Is Surprised at Progress.

President H. E. Aitken of the Big Three film firm arrived in the screen capital of the country early this week and proceeded to inspect the new quarter of a million dollar plant of the Keystone. He expressed much surprise at seeing the great progress that had been made since he visited the coast last.

Mack Sennett, Louise Fazenda and H. E. Aitken.

Mr. Aitken's trip to the west means nothing more than ordinary business and to watch progress. Mr. Sennett said that there were no material changes expected, "only that we're going to put up the biggest and best administration building in the country. It's going to be like our new stage, large and efficient. That new stage has not one pillar or post in the floor area, and it's the largest in the world."

REAL SOCIETY FILMS.

Fashionable Young Women of Wealthy Pasadena Town Work as Extras Without Compensation.

The Pasadena Star one day this week carried a little story on how the wealthy guests of a big hotel worked in pictures. It follows:

"'You mustn't mention names; no you really mustn't,' was the terrible warning given reporters this morning when they were told that some of Pasadena's most exclusive and most beautiful society buds were engaged in a moving picture 'stunt' on the roof of the Hotel Green, 'just as a josh.'"

That sounds very fine, but it wasn't such a "josh" after all. And the "buds" included some full-blown and lovely flowers. They appeared in a ballroom scene in a picture for the El Dorado Feature Film Company, of Pasadena, in which H. E. Bundy, of Oak Knoll, is interested. This is a home film which will be put on in the Crown City and other places here so that there will be opportunities to know who the performers are.

LASKY ARRIVES.

Head of Paramount Producing Company Returns to the West—Much Doing at the Studio.

Jesse L. Lasky, who left some weeks ago to attend to New York business, returned "home" early this week. The well known film manager was delighted to be here again and is busy as can be at his large Hollywood studio.

Many happenings were told him the first day, the most interesting being the mishaps of two of his most noted filmsters, Victor Moore and Anita King, and to-day betting is two to one that Victor and Anita will not complete their picture half alive.

So far they have been out two days and have had four mishaps. The first day they were trying their racing cars around Hollywood, Victor was arrested for driving with his muffler open. The same day Miss King was trying her racer which had been loaned by Barney Oldfield, and in turning a corner on a wet street she skidded and injured a "4rd" to the tune of seventy-five dollars. The next day on location, while they were watching an explosion, Miss King was struck in the side with a piece of rock the size of a lemon and knocked down. At first it was thought two ribs were broken, so she was rushed to the hospital, but her injury proved to be nothing but a bad bruise. Percy Hilburn, the photographer, was struck on the head by a pebble the size of a walnut and knocked down. As yet none of the sensational parts have been taken, so to be on the safe side the Lasky organization has taken out double insurance on each member of the George Melford Company until the picture is completed. Mr. Melford has always been doubly insured since the time he blew up the mine in the Mojave desert.

El Dorado Players Near Death.

This week a narrow escape from death and painful injuries was experienced by a company of players of the El Dorado Feature Film Company under the direction of Harris L. Forbes when filming scenes for "The Impersonation" at the Sierra Vista ranch near Chino, Cal. On arrival at the ranch it was found necessary owing to the condition of the roads to make the five-mile trip to the location on a large farm wagon of four mule-power. For comfort a long iron seat was placed lengthwise of the wagon. The trip to the location was made in safety but when returning a rear wheel slipped off the bank which was weakened by recent rains and the whole party was thrown a distance of twenty feet, being saved from serious injury by landing in a ploughed field. Fortunately a physician happened to be with the party, in the person of Dr. Downs, formerly of the U. S. Army, and a brother of Rex Downs, the heavy. Dr. Downs rendered first aid to the injured. Miss Neva Gerber, who escaped with a sprained wrist, and other members of the party who were bruised were treated. The only serious injury was sustained by one of the property men, who was struck by the iron seat and received a slight fracture of the right hip and various bruises.

As Miss Gerber remarked, "There is some difference between mule-power and horse-power on rough roads."

In this big picture, "The Impersonation," the El Dorado Company was successful in securing the ballroom of the exclusive Hotel Green of Pasadena for the scenes requiring the atmosphere of wealth and exclusiveness. In addition an impromptu raid was made upon the afternoon tea tables of the smart set and resulted in Director Forbes securing a number of society beauties to disport themselves before the camera, and as for the result—well, it consisted of a dinner at the hotel with Director Forbes as host and the charming ladies as guests, with such questions as, "My! what a lot of patience you have." Other remarks could be heard between the pop! pop! of corks and the sparkle of—"distilled" water.

Sennett Sends East for Circus Diving Horse.

Here is a story that emanated from the Keystone press agent's office, and although it savors of the sawdust variety we take it at its face value.

The tale is that, owing to the necessity of having a horse which would leap sixty feet from a cliff into a river, then swim the current with the rider still on his back, Mack Sennett of the Keystone sent east for a valuable circus horse. The animal was taken to the location, and although it had been trained to jump over forty feet under the canvas, it was two days before it could be tempted to make the jump into the river. The horse made the dive safely, swam the river with his rider, and crawled out no worse for the experience, but insisting that it be given the customary lump of sugar. Needless to say the horse had all the sugar it wanted and the eight cameramen reported some of the best film ever taken at the Keystone plant.

Keystone Girl Dashed on Rocks.

While making scenes for a forthcoming comedy release of the Keystone brand, a giant comber washed Miss Elizabeth De Witt off the rocks at Point Firmin late one afternoon this week. She was thrown on the jagged rocks and cut and bruised. Her right leg was severely wrenched and a deep gash cut in her right knee. She also suffered a fractured ankle. Several other members of the company were slightly injured. Miss DeWitt was treated at the San Pedro Emergency Hospital and taken to her home in Los Angeles in an ambulance. She will be confined to her bed for some time.

Films Show Care of Babies.

Just another step in the progress of the motion picture was shown here when Los Angeles mothers observed Nation-Wide Baby week, March 4 to 11.

Moving pictures, lectures and practical demonstrations in the care of the child from birth to seven years of age constituted the daily programs.

There was no baby show or contests in connection with the celebration, but illustrated lectures and motion pictures to show what is being done for the betterment of the child were greatly appreciated by the mothers.

The celebration was under the direction of the board of health, civics and home economics departments of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, co-operating with the children's bureau of the department of labor at Washington.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

According to Victor L. Schertzinger, musical composer for Thomas H. Ince, he has received an offer from a New York publisher for the rights to the incidental music of "Aloha Oe," the Triangle-Kay-Bee feature in which Willard Mack is starred. It is said that the love strain which Schertzinger wrote as an accompaniment for the work of Enid Markey, who played the Hawaiian maiden in the production, has been singled out as a rare classic and that the publisher is anxious to place it on the market.

* * *

Bruce Mitchell, who directed comedies for the Crown City Company some time ago, and who later was director-general of the National, is now working in the same capacity for the Moral Feature Films Corporation. This new concern expects to produce feature films in this city shortly.

* * *

The Pacific Film Company is erecting a large laboratory building at 5813 Santa Monica Boulevard, where commercial work is to be done. It hopes to make positives for several small concerns who have no factory in the east.

* * *

R. H. ("Rawhide") Kelly, who was with Selig, and who was well known by his nickname, is the newest addition to the Ham comedies company at the Hollywood studios.

* * *

Hank Mann, thrilling comedian with Keystone, who is noted for his faculty, power of superhuman control of his equilibrium while trotting along the ledges twelve or more stories above the cement, has been made director. He is working with Glen Cavender, the two putting on some great fun pictures. Their latest story is "The Village Blacksmith."

* * *

Here is news for tourists and visitors who have been to the Balboa studio at Long Beach: Billie is a pet squirrel in one of the parks. Because of his friendliness he has become known to countless tourists. They will soon have a chance to see him in Jackie Saunders' forthcoming release on the Equitable program. It is called "The Twin Triangle" and was produced by Horkheimer Brothers. Billie reveals himself as a regular actor.

Our old friend Arthur Maude, of the "Flying A," was in Los Angeles with his company this week to shoot scenes for "Revelation," a five-reel production, for which the scenario was written by J. Edward Hungerford. The action of the photoplay is laid in Paris, and Maude, with the aid of prop lampposts like those which line the streets of the French capital, was able to obtain excellent atmosphere for the feature. Maude, Constance Crawley and William Carroll head the large cast of the play.

* * *

Mae Marsh is wearing a wig! Her pretty hair is covered by a real blonde one, but it is only for the picture "The Little Apache," a Fine Arts production in which she is playing.

Mae never wore a wig before—at least like this one; and when she made up she had to have the assistance of someone—so Dorothy Gish and Kate Bruce volunteered, and they are shown in the picture below assisting Mae put the false hair on.

Dorothy, who is on the left, is looking rather puzzled at Mae Marsh Wears a Wig.

C. S. Warrington, who took the picture. He told Miss Gish to "be putting the wig on and smile, too"; just as she "put the wig on" and was waiting to get the word to "smile" he snapped the camera. Warrington is the only one in the picture wearing a cap.

Here was a good chance to show the "men behind the bulbs" or the wonder-workers with extreme patience and speed who shoot all the stills for this studio. They are, from left to right, top row: J. Townsend and E. Ross; front row: P. W. Saunders, H. Dingman, J. E. Woodbury, C. S. Warrington and W. S. Wright.

* * *

Henry King is finishing up a five-reel screen version of "The Strugglers" from a dramatic success written and produced by H. M. Horkheimer and played at a New York theater about four years ago. The cast includes Daniel Gilfether, Mollie McConnell, Margaret Landis, Philo McCullough, Howling Wolf and Chief Charlie.

* * *

"Katy Bauer," the present title of Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore's Fine Arts Play, will be changed and the new title announced at an early date. Paul Powell, who recently staged "The Lily and the Rose," "The Wood Nymph" and "Acquitted," has also directed this play. The cast includes Marguerite Marsh, Kate Toneray and F. A. Turner.

* * *

"Hoodoo Ann," which Granville Warwick wrote for Mae Marsh and Robert Harron, has been completed and was shipped to New York for its premiere at the Knickerbocker theater.

* * *

De Wolf Hopper has bought a new gas wagon—a regular six-cylinder—and spends all his available time in testing the new motor on the Los Angeles boulevards. Mr. Hopper will soon begin rehearsals on a new Fine Arts play, "The Philanthropist," from the pen of Chester Withey. Fay Tincher will also appear in a principal part. The picture is to be produced by Director Dillion.

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks, the Fine Arts player, has received a number of telegrams commenting approvingly on his Fine Arts comedy, "His Picture in the Papers," which recently had its premiere at the Knickerbock theater, New York. The senders of the complimentary telegrams were: S. L. Rothapfel, manager of the Knickerbocker; Rex Beach, Frank Jefferson, David Warfield, John Williams, Clifton Crawford, Donald Brian, Jack Barrymore, Leo Dietrichstein, Orrin Johnson, Elsie Janis, Billie Burke, Irving Berlin, George M. Cohan, Sam Harris, Irvin Cobb, Montgomery and Stone, and Patricia Collins, who played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The New Henrietta," "520 Per cent.", "He Comes Up Smiling," and now starring in "Pollyanna."

* * *

The play was specially written for Douglas Fairbanks by Anita Loos, who has written over a hundred screen comedies, a majority of which were produced by the Biograph and the Mutual. John Emerson deserves a good share of praise as the producer of "His Picture in the Papers." Douglas Fairbanks is now rehearsing a new film play of Western character, written by himself. As an author, Mr. Fairbanks has to his credit a brilliant vaudeville act, "The Business Man," which he played in and around New York. He will be directed in his new Fine Arts production by Allan Dwan and opposite him will appear Bessie Love. Others included in the cast are Sam de Grasse, Mary Alden, Doc Camon and Fred Burns. The name of the play has not yet been chosen.

* * *

New titles have been selected for three Fine Arts plays soon to be released. "Daphne," the Lillian Gish play, has been changed to "Daphne and the Pirate." "Betty of Greystone," co-starring Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore, will be known as "Betty the Homeless." And "Martha's Vindication," by Ella Woods with Norma Talmadge, Seena Owen and Tully Marshall, has been retitled to "The Silence of Martha."

* * *

Eugene Pallette, the Fine Arts player, has joined the ranks of the benedicts. The bride is Miss Ann Slater, also of the Fine Arts studios. The wedding took place last week. Robert Harron acted as best man and Dorothy Gish, Mae Marsh and Lillian Gish were the bridesmaids. Mr. and Mrs. Pallette are spending their honeymoon in San Francisco.

* * *

A meeting of the Pals was held last Saturday, with Harry Mestayer, the Selig star, as the guest of honor. Mr. Mestayer made a speech, in which he urged the guests to help the Actors' fund.

* * *

Archie Ricks and Joseph Brockman, members of McRaes 101 Bison Company, were badly injured this week by being thrown off a work train in one of the scenes in "The Strife of the Iron Trails." Two gangs of workmen become involved in a fight and many of the participants are knocked off the moving train. Of the several score men taking part in the scene scarcely one escaped without bruises of some kind. Ricks sustained a fracture of the shin bone and Brockman had ligaments in both ankles torn. Both are confined to the company's hospital under the care of Dr. Lloyd Mace.

* * *

Two hundred Italians, men and women, from the Little Italy of Los Angeles were used for several days last week at Universal City for street scenes in "The Full Cup," a five-reel feature produced by Joseph De Grasse. General Manager H. O. Davis instructed the chef of the Universal restaurant to keep the sons and daughters of Sunny Italy liberally supplied with spaghetti, ravioli and other delectable dishes dear to the Latin heart. This evidently made a decided hit with the temperamental foreigners, as each day when they left the studios they manifested their appreciation by crying "Viva l' Universal."

* * *

The services of William F. Hart, former newspaper man, have been engaged by the Nymp in the publicity department of its Keystone studio, under the supervision of Mack Sennet. Frederick Palmer, who is assistant scenario editor and director of publicity, finds the need of an assistant in the writing factory, hence the advent of Mr. Hart, who is grinding out some live news copy.

* * *

Mortimer Q. Clayton, who claims to be a former moving picture actor of Australia, is visiting here. He says he fell from a horse some time ago in the islands, suffering injuries which caused the loss of his left arm and which left him otherwise disabled. He may enter the pictures here.

* * *

The Press Club of Los Angeles recently held a delightful affair in the newspaper quarters when Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, was the honored guest. Many prominent persons spoke, including Crane Wilbur, star of the Mutual, who is appearing in Horsley films.

* * *

The local censor board has received another rap. This time it is by the Juvenile Protective Association, which organization was primarily responsible for the creation of a municipal board of censors. At a meeting this week the association declared by resolution that the board should be abolished, as its usefulness had come to an end. The Federated Improvement Association also presented a resolution declaring against censorship of any form, or a censor even as a gift. This sounds good for those who desire the boards abolished.

* * *

A report from Salt Lake says that Comedian Max Asher, former Universal player here, is making quite a hit on the screen stages. He is due in Kansas City at this writing.

Ince's Big Picture Completed

Story That Will Run Between Nine and Twelve Thousand Feet in Length Has Been Six Months in Making.

Los Angeles, February 19.

WHAT undoubtedly will be regarded as one of the most important and significant announcements ever made in the history of the motion picture industry emanated from Inceville this week in the nature of a statement from Thomas H. Ince to the effect that the massive multiple-reel feature which has been in course of production for nearly ten months is virtually completed and soon will be ready for public showing.

The veil of secrecy which since June, 1915, has enshrouded the making of this stupendous spectacle-drama was lifted when the noted producer of Triangle-KayBee plays agreed to abandon his reticence and let the world be informed concerning the production. Now that he is satisfied the subject has surpassed his original expectations, he declares, he is confident of its success.

While it still remains to be entitled, the production is Ince's $35,000 Set.

now and since its commencement has been alluded to in West Coast photoplay circles as "Ince's big picture." The producer, however, at present is devoting considerable time to the selection of a title, which, it is understood, will be announced in the course of another fortnight.

Although Ince and his chief author, C. Gardner Sullivan, for months previous had been maturing in their minds the basic theme of the story, actual work on its production was begun June 6, 1915. From that day until the 5th of January, 1916, the task of photographing the some 600 scenes continued. Then the film, in its entirety, was turned over to the cutters, who, under Ince's personal supervision, are now rapidly completing their work.

When the production has been given Ince's final stamp of approval it will be delivered into the hands of Victor L. Schertzinger, the well known young musical composer, who will devote his time, uninterruptedly, to the arrangement of the incident musical score, and with this work finished, it will be presented in public exhibition.

Through what medium the production will find its way to the screens of the country is a matter that has not, as yet, been definitely determined. Adam Kessel, Jr., president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, is now in Los Angeles, having arrived this week from New York, and is conferring daily with Ince on various matters appertaining to the big picture's premiere.

An idea of the magnitude of the production may be gained from the fact that more than 121,000 feet of film were exposed in the making of it. This footage, of course, represents retakes, added scenes and waste. The length at which it will be shown will be between 9,000 and 12,000 feet.

The plot about which the story revolves still remains unannounced, although modern warfare—its horrors and its utter uselessness—is admittedly its underlying note. It is an original work of C. Gardner Sullivan, the prolific and forceful Ince writer.

What is perhaps the largest, costliest and most substantial setting ever constructed for a photodramatic spectacle was used in this subject. It was erected at an approximate cost of $35,000 and still stands majestically atop one of the hills at Inceville, enduring the elements as successfully as though it had been intended as a permanent structure. This setting represents the palace, house of parliament, prison, royal court and adjacent building in a mythical kingdom, which is the locale of the piece.

The first spadeful of earth, in preparation for the erection of the set, was turned in May, 1915, a full month before actual photography began. Not until November was the set in readiness for use. Thirty carloads, or approximately 600,000 feet of lumber, were used in the construction. Glass valued at a total of $4,000 was necessary for the hundreds of windows, while tons upon tons of cement and plaster were used as the other principal materials. Ten tons of cement were required for the steps of the two largest buildings. The sidewalks with their curbings measured some 1,200 feet. Twenty men were employed for three months laying them and the parkings within them. Trees, shrubbery and lampposts were among the adornments that were placed within the boundaries of the set. The entire setting covered an area of six and a half acres.

A highly important fact in connection with the production is that Ince, in making it, enjoyed the undivided collaboration of Raymond B. West, the young genius, who is looked upon as one of the foremost photographic experts in the industry. The cast which will be seen in the production embraces players who, with one exception, have been under the Ince direction throughout their respective motion picture careers. The big role was played by Herschel Mayall, the well-known leading man of the speaking stage, who has been appearing in Ince productions for the past four years. Mayall, it is claimed, has contributed, by his performance in this feature, one of the most remarkable characterizations, if not the most remarkable, in photoplay history. His work, it is declared, will go on record as a monumental achievement.

Next to Mayall, in point of importance, is Howard Hickman, whose work also, it is predicted, will merit enthusiastic praise. The remainder of the cast is made up of J. Frank Burke, Charles K. French, Lola May, George Fisher, Ethel Ullman, Jerome Storm and J. Barney Sherry.

New Princess Theater Opens

Elegant and Modern Photoplay Palace Is Just Off Famous Broadway—Blocks Traffic With "Undine."

THE newest addition in the way of photodramatic houses has been opened in a blaze of white paint and electric lights. The Princess is truly a wonder. Not alone because of the Universal Bluebird feature, "Undine," which was the first attraction, but because of the newness of the house and its good location, was the Saturday matinee opening a success. The police had to move traffic along to keep the street open in front.

This theater is modern in every sense and is the last word in picture houses. In spite of an inverted ventilating system and an inverted lighting system and an inverted screen illumination system, the house is right side up. The newest feature is the screen lighting. By means of colored globes the canvas and the entire house is transformed gradually into the color of the scene. Night, darkness; moonlight, blue; fire and sunsets, red, and so on. If the film is not tinted, the operator tints it for the spectator. A big Wurlitzer provides the music.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

OLD Doc Stickem has been stuck again. Once more a movement under cover to have motion pictures officially classed as an inferior type of public entertainment has failed. Supreme Court Justice Cohalan has decided that an entertainment, even if comprised of moving pictures, may be high class. This decision was brought about by an effort of one of the silk-stocking fraternity of Manhattan to enjoin the presenting of moving pictures in one of his theatres, the Knickerbocker, on Broadway. He claimed the house was built and rented for high-class plays and moving pictures did not come within the meaning. It was his desire that the current management discontinue the exhibition of motion pictures on the ground that they do not rank as high class plays. The court refused to take that view, refused to grant the injunction and moving pictures continue at the house. Some people say, quoting Mother Grundy, that the owner of the theater was prompted to take the step by the discharge of a friend of his as manager of the house. This manager was identified with the house when it was running legitimate attractions and was continued as such after the moving picture people secured control. The latter eventually decided that the manager did not screen well and put another man in his place. Speaking seriously I do not think the discharge itself prompted the suit. I will concede that it may have played a part in the general action that has been inaugurated to hamper and, if possible, destroy the influences of moving pictures. Although many of them are today engaged in the production of and handling of motion pictures, all the old line, or legitimate, owners, managers and players are either openly or tacitly opposed to the future of the photo play and everything that business acumen and legal resource can invent is being framed every day to bring back the old regime. If the contentions of the Knickerbocker theater owner had been sustained by Supreme Court Justice Cohalan it would have resulted in the throwing out of moving pictures from the theater and an official adjudication that moving pictures are of such an inferior form of amusement that they hurt a first class house. This would have been an invaluable advertising gain for the old line managers. The extent to which it might have been used upon those of the better class who are sensitive with regard to their patronage of inferior entertainments is inestimable, and of course the decision would have been used as one of the most important wedges towards the rehabilitation of the old line form of entertainments. The court's decision being to the reverse, the moving pictures bear the official stamp of equality with the best to be had in the amusement field. The fact that popular prices prevail at houses does not control, the court has decided. The quality of entertainment is the chief consideration used, as justice Cohalan has decided, moving pictures may be high class and are fit to be shown in the best houses and before the best audiences.

And, thinking deeper, what a grand weapon a decision by Justice Cohalan against moving pictures would have been in the hands of the pro-official and Federal censorship advocates. An official declaration by one of the most important courts in the country that moving pictures are an inferior form of entertainment and not fit for first class houses and first class audiences would have been to Crafts, of Washington, Chase, of Brooklyn, and other stalwart leaders of the attack upon the long suffering photoplay, an instrument for the furtherance of their campaign compared with which the support of certain motion picture producers would become almost valueless.

Technically the question of censorship was not before Justice Cohalan, but the testimony, arguments and briefs were so exhaustively in keeping with a discussion of the character of moving pictures that the entire record could, with entire propriety, be submitted to the Congressional committee at Washington that has the Federal censorship bill under consideration. This record, with the decision of the justice in favor of the motion picture people should have some weight with the committee.

* * *

No Justice Cohalan has not decided that all moving pictures are first class. That is not the ground upon which he has sustained the lease of the moving picture people who were sued. He says moving pictures MAY be high class. The inference is that the owner of the theater endeavored to show that moving pictures could not be high class. A second inference is that a high class motion picture show is entitled to the same consideration as any other high class attraction that is worthy of being housed in a high class theater. Still another inference is that the court entertained the same thought the motion picture people have entertained throughout their controversy with the official censorship, which is that it is not fair to make a blanket charge against motion pictures. The clear impression left by Justice Cohalan's decision is that moving pictures may be high class and until evidence is produced to show that they are not, a lease cannot be broken, nor can the law be invoked to stop their production. The general term "moving picture" is not a stigma. Successful recourse to the law is dependent upon the character of certain pictures—individual cases. Under the anxiom relating to the benefit of a doubt being given to the accused, as foreshadowed by Justice Cohalan's decision, all moving pictures must be considered high class until they are shown to be otherwise, and until that is shown there can be no legal interference with them.

* * *

The censorship agitators do not believe in this. They first hold up the producer, renter and exhibitor, bind them hand and foot and say "We are from Washington, Missouri and every other state in the Union. Prove to us that you are what you claim to be, and it will cost you so much per reel in every place you go to do it." Hang them first and let us hear what they have to say after.

* * *

One of the most experienced and best informed men in the moving picture business said to me "The people of this country have never heard the keynote of all this censorship business. In general terms they have been told that graft is at the bottom of it, but they have not been properly informed as to the extent of this graft. The people do not know the amount of films that are produced and the number of people required to review them under the present Board of Censorship. The number of these inspectors is 250. That the services of nearly all these people are voluntary, for the public good and without pay is shown by the fact that the entire amount awarded by the manufacturers per annum is but $35,000, or $140 per annum for each person engaged in the work, less expenses for clerical hire, typewriter, stenographers, stationery and innumerable other details. If it takes 250 conscientious volunteers to do the work, how many political workers will be required? Wherever official censorship boards are established the salary of each member is fixed at from $3,000 to $5,000 per year. Say 250 political appointees do the work and take the minimum salary of $3,000. We find the motion picture people saddled with a direct annual taxation of $750,000 for salaries alone. Rentals and other office expenses are not figured in this. And all the moving picture producers must bear this burden whether their pictures be high class or not. If they get any consolation at all it rests wholly in the successful passage of their subjects.

* * *

It would seem that Justice Cohalan, in rendering his recent decision, entertains the same thought the moving picture people do when he says moving pictures MAY be high class. Not having been shown to the contrary, he did not stop their exhibition at the Knickerbocker theater. The moving picture people say "Put us under the operations of the national criminal code and if we violate its provisions in the production, exhibition, shipping, or any other way in the handling of moving pictures, prosecute us under that code; but, in the name of justice, do not fine us a million or more dollars a year and then give us a certificate of innocence."

* * *

Some creatures who are evidently more occupied in unnecessarily delving into the affairs of other people than in minding their own business, have been writing to the newspapers inquiring as to the truth of reports that certain moving picture players are getting unusually high salaries. One correspondent says, "I do not think the artists demand such exorbitant salaries; it is doubtful whether the managers would pay them." Another correspondent wants to know if the high salaried people are paying an income tax. Still another says he was almost knocked silly when told a certain actor was paid $40,000 a year. Poor things! Why should they be worried thus. I suppose that when Charlie Chaplin finally attaches his signature to a new contract they will be entirely deprived of their senses. It would be as gratifying to the public as well as to the actors if these meddlers could be made the individual recipients of a good, swift kick that would compel them to take their meals in a standing position for a few days.

"What the People Want"

By Hazen Conklin.

Little Things That Are Big When Overlooked.

I RECENTLY overheard a fragment of conversation between an exhibitor and a friend to whom he was complaining about the poor business his house was doing. I heard him say "Doggone, I try to give the people what they want, but I can't seem to get 'em hooked on!"

He was standing in the lobby of his theater and I was just coming out. It was my second visit to the place—and my last. In those two visits I had seen why he was about to "go under" in a neighborhood from which he should have drawn a capacity house under favorable circumstances.

His program was reasonably good. With each show he gave a good feature and an assortment of fairly well chosen smaller stuff. The fault didn't lay in his program. It lay in his lack of attention to subordinate things which add to or detract from the audience's enjoyment of the pictures according to whether they are well or poorly taken care of.

He was "trying to give the people what they wanted" in pictures, but he was not trying to give them what they wanted in the way of facilities for enjoying the pictures he furnished. I shall incorporate the suggestions I would have liked to make to him in those which this article will make to exhibitors in general.

When a patron enters a motion picture theater he does so to be entertained. People take their worries there to forget them for a while. People into whose own lives romance never has entered, turn to the movies to live romance in imagination. People whose lives have been drab and humdrum, seek the pictures to thrill in adventure on the screen. They sit before the screen for a hundred reasons but for one purpose—to live for two hours in the "other world" of the silent drama.

It is a wise exhibitor who realizes the importance of helping his pictures to cast their spell. The picture "fan" wants to be allowed to drift comfortably into "illusion land." Once there, he wants to stay in it until it is time for him to leave. Having been an ardent picture "fan" myself from the days when "picture-land" was first explored by the public I can tell you many of the things that conspire to keep the picture "fan" from getting just what he wants, and some of the things that work together to give it to him.

In the first place, a vast number of motion picture patrons are highly sensitive to surroundings. The moment they enter a theater certain things predispose them favorably or unfavorably. A quiet, soothing atmosphere conducive to rest and composure can be created or absolutely prevented by decorations. Better a plain and tasty tint on the walls than the efforts of some inartistic decorator to splurge gaudy and laughably crude "mural paintings." Diversions in settings for the screen should be studied as to their psychologic effect on the patron rather than the effect on the pride or the pocket-book of the exhibitor. They should lend themselves to the illusion of the pictures—not distract from it.

The problem of ventilation should carefully be studied. In winter, a suitable temperature and a change of air without perceptable draught to worry the patron or distract his attention from the screen. In summer, coolness with air kept in motion. At all seasons freedom, as far as possible, from unpleasant odor. The theater should be well aired before and after performances. Use the disinfectant "gun" where it is necessary and required, only before shows and during intermissions; never while the pictures are running. As a matter of fact the patrons don't like them. It stirs up displeasing thoughts.

Next comes the "music." Better no music at all than wretchedly played stuff that grates on the nerves of the sensitive music lovers in your house. Better no music at all than the pianoing of a careless amateur who drums away at a mechanical gait without regard for the tempo of the pictures and who plays funeral marches at wedding scenes and turkey trots at sob scenes, following his notes irrespective of the demands of the screen. Good lord, how I and others have suffered! Fortunate is the exhibitor who has a pianist with brains and a repertoire and uses both.

In passing it is not out of place to mention that the operator frequently is at fault in speeding up the film to a degree that destroys the illusion of real life and reminds patrons that it is only reel life. Sometimes, however, the exhibitor is to blame by having a program that is so long it must be "hurried through." But I would like to have this paargraph include a suggestion that every exhibitor have his slides advertising advance features not only neatly and legibly printed, but also without a total disregard of spelling. The same applies to the slide "ads." These little details if properly looked after at least help an exhibitor to win the respect of his patrons, whereas disregarding them sometimes draws their ridicule.

I have placed the chief unpleasant distraction from the pictures last, for the patrons themselves are largely responsible for it. I refer to the annoyance of people crowding into seats in the middle of a picture—or getting up to go out. Patrons who growl loudest at these interruptions themselves thoughtlessly are guilty of the same sin. I suppose this evil never can be overcome. Here and there a brave exhibitor ropes off his aisles during pictures; here and there one prints courteous requests on slides between pictures or placards the lobby, but I think if I were running a motion picture theater I'd do this: I'd keep all but a few rear seats inviolate during pictures. Those who came in during pictures would be invited to take the rear seats until the picture was finished, or, if it were a long feature, at least till the reel was run, and THEN move forward to a better seat. But as to those who insisted upon getting up to go out, darned if I know what'd I'd do. I've done it myself!

London Trade Topics

AN important transaction has just been completed in the offices of the Trans-Atlantic Film Co., whereby the whole of the Bluebird features have been sold outright to the Gaumont Company's film hire service. The next serial to eminate from Universal House will be "The Purple Iris," a six-instalment film feulliton of Oreintal appeal, featuring the Princess Tousson and Ed. Sloman.

* * *

Another temporary loss to the trade and to the Vitagraph Co. in particular, has been occasioned by the departure of Mr. J. Lyons, Mr. Smith's assistant manager, who has gone into training with an artillery corps.

* * *

Mr. Stanley Bishop of the Globe Film Co., and agent here for Balboa products, has returned from a visit to the States with, he says, a firmer declaration than ever to support the open market system of renting.

* * *

The first annual dinner of Thanhouser Films, Ltd., was held the other evening under the presidency of T. F. Brockliss of the Western Import Co., the head of the firm with which Paul Kimberley was formerly associated. The surprise of the evening was a presentation to Mr. Kimberley of a silver cigarette box.

* * *

The demands of war upon the services of the young single men of the country is becoming more markedly felt in the trade in London. Particularly is this so in regard to film salesman. The services of a good traveller look like standing at a premium now that the next eight groups have been called up.

* * *

The first Equitable picture, "Should a Wife Forgive?" was recently unspooled and appears from the booking list to have been enthusiastically received by reviewers. This is all the more testimony to the dramatic power of the picture, considering the present surfeit of productions based upon different sexual problems. The first three of these "Equitables" are being operated by the Sun Exclusives Co., of Birmingham.

* * *

The Booker Co., has just completed at its London studios a film version of Sir H. Rider Haggard's famous story, "She," featuring Mlle. Deysia, until recently appearing in a successful revue at the Ambassadors.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

UNIVERSAL SIGNS STANLEY WALPOLE.

Stanley Walpole, of Eclair fame, has been engaged for the Universal Heights studio, where Walpole will be leading man for Edith Roberts, "youngest leading woman in the movies." His first work in this capacity will be found in "An Unconventional Girl," a two-reel drama.

While this is Mr. Walpole's first Universal engagement, he is by no means new to Universal fans. That is because he appeared in the Eclair pictures some years ago while they were released on the Universal program. During his Eclair connection he played every conceivable kind of leading part and became a staunch favorite at Universal theatres. Before the pictures "got him," Walpole spent eight years on the legitimate stage, five years of which were under the management of J. C. Williamson of Australia, from which far off land Walpole hails. In fact, Walpole has just returned from Melbourne, where he played eight months in repertoire for Mr. Williamson after finishing his Eclair picture engagement.

Among the Picture Theaters

News and Views of Photoplay Houses Everywhere

LINWOOD THEATER, KANSAS CITY, MO.

C. Lloyd Hinshaw Owns $30,000 Photoplay House—Size of Structure, 60 by 120 Feet—Seats 1,150—R. I. Davis Manages Building.

ONE of the finest theaters in the west was built by C. Lloyd Hinshaw at 3034 Prospect avenue, Kansas City, Mo. He is operating it with good pictures, and is "doing the business." This is another instance of a business man seeing an opportunity, getting expert advice, and taking advantage of both.

Mr. Hinshaw and Elroy R. Parker were associated for many years in the transfer business in Kansas City. They leased Linwood Gardens, an open-air theater, and ran it two summers. Last summer the Gardens were closed half the time, because of rains and cold weather. So the partners decided to get a theater that would be habitable every evening of the year. They made arrangements for the erection of a $30,000 moving picture theater on a tract within two blocks of the Gardens; and the theater is now operating. Mr. Hinshaw has bought the interest of Mr. Parker in the enterprise, and is now devoting most of his time to the moving picture enterprise. R. I. Davis, who assisted materially in the planning of the building and the establishment of a policy, is the manager of the house.

Linwood Theater, Kansas City, Mo.

The building is 60 by 120 feet, with 1,150 seats from which the screen can be seen. The structure is brick, built very substantially, with stucco front, and cement pilaster. It faces east. There are large stained glass windows in the front of the building, and many smaller ones on each side, through which light percolates. There is provision for a balcony, that may be finished later, and used as a parlor, and for special parties. The stage is large enough for vaudeville acts, though only moving pictures are used on the program. An extra large Gold Fibre screen was installed, and two Simplex projecting machines are used.

The interior of the house is particularly well planned and attractive. The high ceiling—20 feet—provides not only an abundance of air in the room, but an atmosphere and feeling of spaciousness. The decorative effect of the stained glass windows is enhanced by two large paintings on canvas made to order for the purpose and placed one on each side of the screen. Another large painting is being made to be hung on the side wall. The ceiling is finished with gold high lights and gold effect throughout. The bowls for the indirect lighting during the showing of pictures are gold and green; there are two longitudinal rows of the bowls. On each side of the rows of bowls are lines of blue globes; the side lights are green. The color scheme is further carried out with green shades drawn across the front and side stained glass windows during matinees.

There are boxes of artificial flowers on brackets over each side light, and large boxes over each of the exit doors at the rear, beside the screen. The latter offer a pleasing feature, the fronds waving in the breezes. A green velvet carpet covers the floor back of the rear row of seats, where a generous space is provided.

The lobby is tiled, the box office painted white. There are two large paintings in the lobby, which, with the entrance doors to the auditorium and the plateglass outer doors, make up the wall space. The box office is centrally located transversely, and entrance to the auditorium is through doors north of it. Doors south are opened for facilitating emptying the house. The lobby is carefully protected against intrusion of inharmonious elements. There are frames for posters and photographs, and only material of art and taste is used. In front of the theater the only advertising is in frames built for the purpose, to hold three-sheet and one-sheet posters, two of each.

The front is outlined in small globes, as is the canopy over the main entrance door. Initials "L" and "T," one on each side, flash. A large electric sign at the apex bears the words "Linwood Theater," the word "Theater" flashing. At each end of this sign is a torch which flashes also. The sign is visible for more than a mile northward, and nearly as far to the south, the theater being situated near the top of the Thirty-first street ridge.

The present orchestra consists of very good musicians, Mr. Kline, the leader, having formerly been at the Empress, and Mr. Scott, pianist, and Mr. Hinkle, cellist, being accomplished on their instruments. A disadvantage which is to be overcome is in the acoustic properties, the high ceiling and long room producing an echo. One plan suggested is the stringing of piano wires transversely, and this may be tried. The service taken is now the first suburban run on Bluebird, Metro, V-L-S-E, Kleine-Edison, and Equitable. Five to seven reels are given. The charge is invariably 10 cents for adults, 5 cents for children 3 to 12 years old—never more, never less.

Interior of the Linwood Theater, Kansas City, Mo.

Heating is by air forced over steam coils by fans, the air entering through the registers in the floor and escaping through vents in the ceiling. Fifteen thousand cubic feet of air are changed a minute. It is believed that the ventilating system will effectually cool the house in the summer. The air is always taken from outside the building.

Henry Berger's slides of the Columbia River, which have been photographed in natural colors, have been sent east by the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and were exhibited at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences on Friday, Feb. 18, at Columbia University, New York City, on Tuesday, Feb. 22, and on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at the Hotel Majestic, New York City.

EDISON THEATER, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Success Attained in Operating This Picture House Demonstrates What May Be Achieved With Theaters Having Small Capacity.

THE Edison theater at San Francisco, Cal., is one of the most interesting of the moving picture houses in the downtown district of that city, and its success is an apt illustration of what may be accomplished with a theater of small capacity when the business is given careful attention. Its patronage is always steady and in the course of a day it caters to the amusement of more persons than do many houses of considerably larger capacity, owing to its location and to the policy adopted by the management.

This house has been in operation for the past seven years and is therefore one of the oldest in the downtown district which was destroyed by fire less than ten years ago. It is located in a big business block of fireproof construction and unlike a number of theaters constructed about that time, is not merely a store changed into a moving picture house, having been planned for the location and with such splendid foresight that practically no changes have been made in it since that time, and it is still regarded as being one of the leading houses of its size. Within the past year the front and lobby of the theater have been remodeled and redecorated, but the arrangement of the house remains as before.

The Edison theater is located on Powell street, near Market, and is just around the corner from everything. It is on the edge of the shopping district, only a few steps from the leading thoroughfare of the city, two blocks from Newspaper Corner, near the hotel district, directly across the street from the Flood Building with its two thousand workers and but a short distance from some of the leading film exchanges. It is conducted by the Edison Moving Picture Company, Inc., of which H. J. Gosliner is president and active manager.

Edison Theater, San Francisco, Cal.

When the theater was first opened, the admission price was five cents, the prevailing figure for moving picture entertainments, but with the production of longer pictures, better films and a corresponding increase in rentals Mr. Gosliner decided to break away from the nickelodeon idea and was one of the first in this city to feature moving pictures at ten cents. This move occasioned considerable comment at the time, but has been followed since by other exhibitors, until there are but very few of the lower priced houses to be found here. This house was also one of the very first to show a multiple-reel subject.

The Edison theater has a seating capacity of 400 and is well furnished with exits, several of which lead to a rear street, making it possible to empty the house on short notice. It is warmed by steam heat, and an elaborate ventilating system brings pure air from the outside, making the house very comfortable. The operating room is larger than is usually the rule and is furnished with two Power's No. 6A, as well as the latest in other equipment. Adjoining this is a large loft which is used as a sign painting and storage room. The lobby of this house was recently widened. A feature of the decorations here are pictures of leading film stars attractively framed, the use of posters being limited.

Mr. Gosliner, manager of this popular theater, has taken a keen interest in matters pertaining to the betterment of the film business, having worked hard to make the Exhibitors' League a success. He is also a member of the Screen Club of San Francisco, and for a time acted as its secretary.

GEM THEATER, HOBART, IND.

Coons Gives a Town of 2,500 Population a Creditable Motion Picture House—Admission Prices, 5 and 10 Cents—Making Good Profit.

IN the fall of 1914 H. T. Coons came to Hobart, Ind., and bought the Colonial theater. In the words of Mr. Coons it was "about the worst place you could imagine." It was a converted store, and in order to get into the auditorium six or seven steps had to be mounted. The entrance was exceedingly narrow, and the exterior appearance was most uninviting. Lack of space prevents us from publishing a photo of the structure at the time of its purchase by Mr. Coons, but from this brief description it can be realized that the theater was nothing but a "hole in the wall."

As soon as Mr. Coons had the property in his possession he immediately began preparations to make it look like a motion picture theater and the accompanying illustration of the house as it stands today is the result of his energy. The name of the theater is now the Gem, and it has a seating capacity of 382 seats. Hobart has a population of 2,500. From the view of the exterior it can be seen that the entrance is wide. It is finished in artistic terra cotta, and on each side of the box office, which is situated in the middle of the lobby, is a wide double door entrance which leads into the interior. A brass rail is placed in front of the box office so as to avoid unnecessary crowding.

Gem Theater, Hobart, Ind.

A two side electric sign containing the name of the theater is suspended over the entrance. All advertising matter, photographic views of players and scenes from current and coming attractions, posters, etc., are placed in frames in a position where they will not obstruct entrance and on prominent parts of the lobby walls.

The interior is illuminated with the indirect lighting system. Along the walls at regular intervals potted plants have been placed on artistic triangular wooden brackets. These brackets are hollow and illuminated, and help immensely in the decoration of the auditorium. The general color scheme is red and gold and the house is plentifully supplied with exits. The operating booth is 8 by 12 feet in size, and is constructed of concrete and six-inch hollow tile. Two motor-driven Simplex machines of the latest model are used. The element of projection is in charge of V. R. Boyd, a competent operator. The size of the screen is 12 by 14 feet, and it is placed behind the drop curtain. There is a foyer 8 by 20 feet. For purposes of convenience a speaking tube runs from the operating room to the box office, which is directly underneath it. There is a telephone for the use of patrons in the box office. The air in the auditorium is changed every couple of minutes. The admission prices are 5 cents for children and 10 cents for adults.

Mr. Coons started in the show business in Bass Lake, Ind., in a very small way in the summer of 1914, but has made a very careful survey of the business and of the likes of his patrons, and the result is that he has a profitable amusement institution in the Gem theater.

BRITISH NOTES

TO Universal House, Oxford street, London, Eng., the European home of Universal films, belongs the unique distinction of being "hung" in the Royal Academy. The design so honored is the work of the architect, Mr. Delissa Joseph, a reproduction of which is here shown.

* * *

Universal House, Oxford Street, London.

As mentioned in these notes last year, there are indications that the motion picture exhibitors in the United Kingdom will early be called upon to contribute directly to the country's exchequer. The Chancellor's new budget as it is now being drafted provides for an imposition upon kinema theaters, but what form it will take, whether a tax upon admission tickets, an increased license duty, or a special income tax, can as yet remain only a matter for conjecture. Theaters and music halls are to be included in the provision. Any new demand upon exhibitors in this direction would not be opposed, for after all it is the public who would have it to meet in the form of increased admission charges. On the contrary, several managers of city halls opine that under a new tax the exhibitor would further score at the expense of the theatrical showman, as in all probability the latter would be compelled to advance his prices in proportion to present charges. One or two London newspapers assert that the Chaplin vogue has influenced our legislators in framing the provision.

* * *

The agreement entered into last autumn between manufacturers and private renters with a view to preserving the "open-market" and amongst other things of limiting the life of shorter films to nine months is, I hear, on the verge of collapse. The arrangement—to which the principal American agents were signatories—was adopted in October for a trial period of three months, but the experiences of the renters during this period are not exactly conducive to a renewal of the agreement. The principal point with the exhibitors, and which threatens the open-market renter, is the absurd price-cutting between different renters in regard to exclusives. Open-market films are regulated fairly consistently according to order of running by the exhibitor and seldom sink below a fixed scale until they have withstood sixteen or seventeen weeks of exhibition. Exclusive films, on the other hand, are sold not per foot, but per feature, and the usual instruction to a salesman starting out on the road is "get as much as you can, but get something." I know of one case where one of the most important exchanges in the country rented for first run in a town of 30,000 inhabitants a fine four-reel feature for the munificent sum of one pound; equivalent to the price of the best junk, at five shillings a thousand. This is, I think and hope, an isolated instance, but it serves to typify the extreme prices some will accept before missing a booking. What wonder is there then that an exhibitor should start bargaining for two or three exclusives for his program instead of a mixed program of shorter subjects?

* * *

A property owner in Manchester has adopted a novel idea of collecting his rents. He is the proprietor of a "dime show" in the town and to each of his tenants who pay their house rent promptly on Monday morning he presents a free ticket for the same day's matinee show. "As my property is a good way out of town it saves me sending a collector, and as the tickets are for the afternoon show the place is not crowded, I save something, you see."

* * *

Dublin wants a film censor of its own. The Vigilance Committee of the Irish capital, supported by a number of clergymen, is seeking power to appoint an Irish Censor of Kinema Films.

* * *

Messrs. T. S. Lucas and A. D. Thomas, representatives of a go-ahead film exchange in Wales, and T. Cotton, of Manchester, sailed for New York last Wednesday in connection with negotiations for representing the interests of certain American manufacturers in England.

* * *

The Russian Chamber of Commerce in London draws attention to the enormous scope in that country for the motion picture. The artisan and peasant classes of Russia, it is stated, number over a hundred millions and, unless they can be induced to move forward of their own free will, any progressive measures inaugurated by the Government must seem to them oppressive and will be only productive of reaction. The problem, therefore, is to widen their outlook and, by appealing to their self-interest to raise the standard of living. To this end the press of the country is of little or no use, since the great bulk of the people are wholly illiterate. Consequently, the only instrument at hand which can appeal to all is the cinematograph. There are already in Russia many picture theaters, but not enough. They must be multiplied until every large village has one. Suitable films must be made which will amuse and at the same time enlighten the peasant and working man. The kind of film required is not that described as instructive in this country, but picture plays that will interest him and show him conditions of life under a slightly higher standard of comfort than his own. In the case of films designed to appeal to the illiterate the printed explanations might be replaced by a gramophone, or an attendant could read them aloud. In conclusion, it is pointed out that picture theaters in Russia, although well patronized, are not provided with the best class of films.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

UNIVERSAL SEEKS GOOD SCRIPTS.

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company is in urgent need of one and two reel comedies and dramas for its eastern companies, especially material which can be used to feature such players as Mary Fuller, Violet Mersereau, Ben Wilson, Matt Moore, Jane Gail, Harry Benham, Billy Garwood, Dorothy Phillips, King Baggot, Florence Lawrence, Ethel Grandin, Hobart Henley and Edith Roberts. The script desired should call for short casts and very few sets and with a plot or story so arranged as to be well produced inexpensively, in modern American environements. The comedies should be spontaneously humorous and should not call for slap-stick.

Only scripts from established writers are desired and the company is in a position to pay from $25 to $100 a reel for acceptable material. Writers should bear in mind that these scripts are only for the requirements for the eastern studio, and should be sent to the Scenario Editor, 1600 Broadway, New York City, with stamped and self-addressed envelope for return of manuscript or reply. The needs of the western studios will be made known shortly.

BLUEBIRD RELEASES FOR MARCH.

Four subjects, widely diversified, have been arranged for March distribution by Bluebird Photoplays. "Rupert of Hentzau," based on Anthony Hope's widely popular play and novel of the same title, introduces Jane Gail as a Bluebird star March 6; Mary Fuller appears March 12 in "The Strength of the Weak," a photoplay based on the drama which first brought Florence Roberts into fame; Hobart Bosworth will appear in "The Yaqui," a melodrama of Mexican border warfare, March 19, and Marie Walcamp, another girl just coming to stardom by the Bluebird route, will play "The Flirt" in the feature made from Booth Tarkington's serial of the same title.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON

"'TIS WELL TO BE AMUSED

But When Amusement Doth Education Bring, 'Tis Better."—(Shakespeare).

ANYONE reading the record of the "Hearings" before the Committee on Education of the House of Representatives of the sixty-fourth Congress with reference to the proposed "Federal Picture Commission," having for its object the Federal censorship of moving pictures, cannot fail to have been impressed in the first place with the fact that the majority of the speakers on both sides fully endorsed the above quoted Shakespearean motto. The highest possible tribute was always paid to the value of the moving picture along these lines, those desiring censorship pleading the cause of education as one of their reasons for so doing.

It was very noticeable, however, that no plea was made whereby the cause of the educational picture would be enhanced by censorship, neither was it pointed out to what extent the educational picture had hitherto helped to bring about by education, that very result now sought to be obtained by censorship. It is an old family truism that children brought up in a home of "Don'ts" become the most rebellious, wayward, and perhaps ultimately criminal; "Train up a child—in the way he should go" never has lost, and never will lose its power. Training is direction and regulation, never censorious, therefore training always shows itself in the after life of the one who knows "the way he should go" and he goes that way. Another noticeable fact was that the champions of censorship while presenting a very weak front leaned for their support upon the weakest and most undesirable moving picture productions, holding them up as representing the world of moving pictures in a way that was postitively libellous. There seemed little doubt that if the censors had their way, Shakespeare's idea of the relationship of education to amusement would be divorced. We must have education and we must have amusement. When these can run concurrently "'tis better," but if perchance we cannot always have the education, that by no means intends that we must not have the amusement. It is therefore not the part of either wisdom or justice to reflect upon that amusement which does not always carry a proportion of education with it, if it can really be said that pure amusement does not carry with it something of profit to those who look for it. Again there is a sense in which the search after this profit is consciously or unconsciously imparted to everyone. This latter fact was admitted at these committee hearings by the advocates of federal censorship when they allowed that the moving pictures had wrought great havoc with the saloon, cheap theatres, and other demoralizing forms of life. If then "they have done these things in the green state, what shall they do in the mature state?"

As however, after the educational picture, the writer is most concerned in that which interests especially the young people, it is of interest to remember how that from time to time we have traced the value of the present method of censoring pictures as being equal to the occasion when properly applied, we question the authority of those who protested that they represented "millions of young people." It was a most arrogantly assumed authority and without great foundation. The natural demand of the young people is for healthy pictures. They prefer the clean and intelligent, it is wrong to treat them as if they must be subject to a fixed code which may rob them of much which rightfully belongs to them in the exercise of those faculties, the use of which is for their best advantage. The best guide to the future is the past. The best light is the light of experience. It has been a joy to students of the rise and progress of the moving picture to mark its growth in power, intelligence and purity. It has had its enemies perhaps as much within as without, it has fought that without and purged that within. Its present advanced state is its own. There is no need for the outsider to come and claim to either lead or teach.

PSYCHOLOGY.

Psychology, as especially applied to vocational problems, is about to make its appearance in educational kinematography under the direction of Professor Hugo Munsterberg, the Harvard psychologist, who, it is stated, has allied himself with a leading company for a screen serial in periodical instalments.

Under the title of "Are You Fitted for Your Job?" the professor will study and present the ideas and problems of vocational fitness. The treatment will be practical with a vein of humor, bringing out in a non-technical way that which all laymen will be able to understand. By means of these pictures, Professor Munsterberg will try to show how some men are unfitted for the jobs they hold. This negative side of the subject ought to be very helpful, as, while the problem of vocational suggestion in a positive manner has long been presented, the idea of helping those who are misfits and do not know it, will have its advantages. The humbler callings in life are to form an especial sort of study, the broad ideas of vocationalism will be mostly applied, and it is suggested that by so presenting the subjects with a "punch" in them they will command that attention which has been denied them in theory.

AN EXPERIENCE.

"To make churchgoers of the thousands who never go to church or rarely see the inside of a church, more than once a year, is the object of my using moving pictures in my church." These are the words of a Long Island clergyman in justification for his Sunday evening moving picture service. "Not only that," said the reverend gentleman, "but I consider it one of the ways to solve the Sunday question for my people. Not that this solution will always apply, but that in my case it is to me the best course." In further evidence of the circumstances which brought him to this decision, this clergman relates how he spent a Sunday evening in New York city for the purpose of learning the true advantage of the use of the pictures as an auxiliary to the Sunday evening service. He says: "I attended the services in two of the most prominent churches (naming them), in one where there were Biblical subjects being shown on the screen there were about 2,000 people present, in the other church, where a renowned preacher occupied the pulpit, there were not more than 150 people in the pews. This fact spoke volumes for me, causing me to decide what to do in my home church." There is both example and precept in this minister's doings. There is no room for advice or criticism, the procedure is exemplary and bespeaks good results. Many readers of these lines will do good if they will pass them on. Doubtless, this minister's experience is that of many others, but the large majority of ministers might be glad of this knowledge, particulars of which, with names and places can be given if necessary. Pass it on.

IN A KANSAS CHURCH.

In Kansas it is well known that the use of the moving picture for educating amusement is spreading rapidly, churches and schools are almost competing with each other for the honors of first place; the record of their progress is a weekly one. In the First Baptist Church of Topeka the Baraca class of young men, led by a local attorney, is installing a moving picture outfit for instructive and entertaining purposes, preference being given to those containing advice upon vocational subjects. The films already engaged include china-making, from clay to the finished article, and linen from the planting of the flax. Pictures on civic betterment, geography, scenic; fish, bird and animal life. Others are "Time from the Stars," "Watch-Making," "Do It Electrically," "The Ties that Bind—Railroad Construction," "The Gathering of News," "The Nerves of Commerce—Telephone and Telegraph," and "Pelt to Welt—Shoes." The pastor of the church in which these exhibitions will be given goes on record as saying that it is generally conceded that the motion picture is the greatest invention for the promotion of knowledge since the discovery of printing, quoting a report from the United States Department of Education, which says: "Within the next ten years the moving picture will be the indispensable adjunct of every teacher and lecturer."

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Street Car Advertising.

SEVERAL months ago we reproduced a photograph of the signs used by R. B. Wilby on the dashboards of the trolley cars, following a previous mention of the same device by a brother exhibitor in Florida. At that time Victor B. Johnson, who has served as publicity man for several film companies, wrote promising an article on inside car advertising. After he cured himself of writer's cramp again he got busy. Mr. Johnson is interested in car advertising stunts now, and naturally he speaks from that side, but he is too good a pressman to distort facts, and his article is interesting as showing the points of excellence. Of course car advertising is for the larger and the smaller houses, rather than the intermediate ones. That is to say, it pays only the central, the large "downtown" houses in the cities, and serves well in the smaller towns where there is suburban trolley service. Of course the use of cards in cars serving the territory of a residential theater will also have due effect on the homegoer who may be too tired to feel like coming back downtown after the evening meal, but who would like to relax. Mr. Johnson writes:

WHAT ABOUT STREET CARS AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM?
By Victor B. Johnson.

I very frankly confess that in working out the answer to this question, I am touching upon a subject that cannot interest every reader of this department; but it is a subject that I have gone into rather thoroughly in studying the various mediums to be considered when placing the advertising of wide-awake exhibitors. And because I have made a study of street cars and their relative importance to the other avenues of publicity now open to the picture theater owner, I believe that what I have to say will be of some interest to everybody.

It is safe to assume that every reader of this department of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD is using some form of advertising to call attention to his playhouse and its program. Newspapers, because issued daily, have proved a wonderful help to exhibitors; form letters properly conceived and executed are always valuable; judicious billboard advertising is quite a help; but all these mediums are much more expensive than street car advertising however you figure it. This statement, if it is true (and the figures do not lie) answers one part of the question—"What About Street Cars as an Advertising Medium?"

Circulation is the next big item to be considered when buying advertising. Here again street car advertising takes a big lead over its competitors in presenting the news of current and forthcoming productions to the largest number of people day in and night out. Except in the smaller towns, the motion picture fans go to their favorite theaters on the street cars and return the same way. Not only that but a vast proportion of the city's population goes down town on the street cars every day and home again every day on business or shopping trips in addition to their nightly trips for amusement.

United States census figures show that in most cities more nickels are paid to the street car company for fares than there are people in the city, largely perhaps because so many people take three or four trips a day on the cars. Not only that but 78 per cent. of the people in our cities takes the same given route day after day, every day in the year, so that a street car card prominently displayed just above their heads is certain to attract their attention several times a week.

This brings us to a consideration of the attractiveness of street car advertising.

It is hardly fair to compare street car advertising, in full colors, with the ordinary black and white newspaper copy—that is, hardly fair to the newspapers. The color combinations made possible by the use of printing or lithographic processes in reproducing car cards are almost unlimited.

It is regrettable that the cards reproduced herewith cannot begin to do justice to the originals—11 by 21 inches in size and printed in four colors. Imagine, if you can, one of these cards in brilliant colors in each street car of your city, silently but forcefully getting over the message of your theater, day after day and night after night, to the very people that you want to convert into regular patrons.

These sample cards were designed by the street car advertising people themselves for the assistance of their advertisers. They do not give the use of these plates to more than one advertiser in a district, so that in signing a contract the theater obtains the exclusive use of these special designs.

A study of the people on the street cars and a study of people in your audience will convince you that they are one and the same. In other words, the picture shows are the democratic amusement of the United States and street cars are the democratic carriers of the United States.

The very people that would most enjoy your house if they know about it are the very people who are riding on the cars every day of their lives. You have a good opportunity to get them acquainted with you without any waste of circulation—you don't have to buy a little advertising here and a little there—it is all concentrated in one form—Street Car Advertising.

The cards to which Mr. Johnson refers are reproductions of designs by the Street Railways Advertising Company. They form a very interesting study. They would have a greater weight if they specified details of the current or general program of the advertiser.

Studying Display.

The main point in car advertising is to out talk the rest of the advertisers, not in words, but in design. You cannot tell much in the space given (11x21) and be read from all points of the car. If you use too much type none of it will be read. Probably you have seen car cards in which nothing can be distinguished unless you sit directly opposite and have unusually good eyesight. For this reason it is better to say a few things well than to try to tell all about your house. You cannot expect to attract with type. You must gain attention to the type with design, and most of these cards show a maximum of space with a design strong enough to get attention. All but one suggest the theater in their designs; the figure of the operator hardly suggesting a picture machine and we hope that Brother Richardson does not chance to see it. The best design is that showing a row of heads below the type space. It stands out well and yet takes up little room. The design showing the two heads may be better, though; even if some space is lost, because the color is deeper and will separate the theater from the cigarettes and castor oil substitutes. The card showing the bandmaster and orchestra in front of the screen is also good, but the machine design does not give a good space for the type display. A straight type card or one with a simple colored border will not stand out. Some design is necessary and will more than pay its own cost, but avoid a finely drawn design. Select one that has boldness and force rather than one so nicely executed that at a distance the effect of the detail work is almost wholly lost. And then, in the type space, do not merely tell that you have a nice theater. Tell what you have to offer.

There Are New Ideas.

There are new ideas. Walter L. Murphy, of the Star, Two Harbors, Minn., got hold of one the other day. He had "Dope" booked and he had printed up some slips 2½ by 3 inches. At the top was a twelve point gothic "Dope." Well below (about ⅝ of an inch) he continued with an announcement of the feature. These were folded in three lengthwise, type face out and then rolled up so that only the word "dope" was to be seen. These little rolls were slipped into capsules about an inch long, and the top replaced, the word showing through the gelatin. Mr. Murphy's letter runs:

> Am sending you samples of advertising on "The Spirit of the Poppy." The single capsules are for handing out at the theater door and read, "Coming Monday," or some such expression, and the others were fastened to colored cardboards with number 6 size rubber bands for house to house distribution and read, "Tonight," in place of coming. The reason I fastened them to cardboard was to make them more noticeable after throwing them into the houses.
>
> These were made for a dope picture but they can be used for any feature on earth by making them read, "Dope," on or about such and such feature, and then list your program or whatever you have to offer.

The cardboard is an inch and a half by four and is a vivid red. It might be possible to get a punch that is just the diameter of the capsule and merely force the container into the hole. You might get a capsule to fit a punch the printer has or obtain a drive punch at the hardware store. It is a "just once" stunt, but for once it is a pulling idea unless your house happens to be in the malaria belt where prospective patrons are liable to swallow your advertisement instead of their quinine with no good result to you or them.

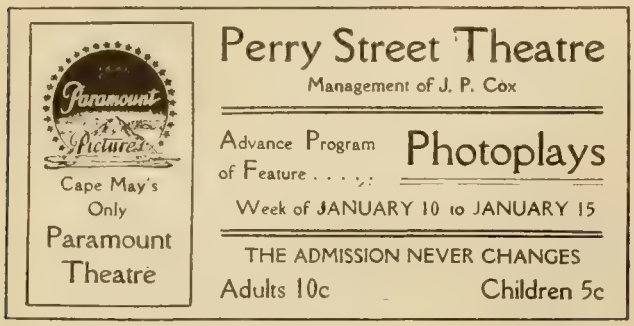
And will Mr. Murphy please accept our thanks for the care with which he packed the samples. They came through in perfect shape.

Tasty.

The Perry Street theater, Cape May, N. J., is using a very tasty little card program, vest pocket size, sending out in a different color each week, but using a blue envelope with a printed card evidently made up just for this purpose. Mr. Cox has two styles of card, one using a drawn design for the name of the house but the other, and plainer figure, is the only one on a color that will reproduce nicely. This card is about 3⅛ by 2¼ inches, a nice proportion, and it is so well put together that it is reproduced here as a guidance to others who may wish to try it on their own printer. The vest pocket size is



Paramount Pictures
Cape May's Only Paramount Theatre
Perry Street Theatre
Management of J. P. Cox
Advance Program of Feature . . . . .
Photoplays
Week of JANUARY 10 to JANUARY 15
THE ADMISSION NEVER CHANGES
Adults 10c
Children 5c

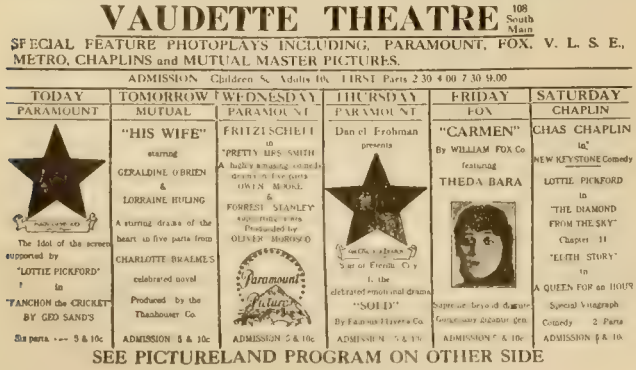
generally conceded to be the best if you have a reasonably steady clientele and if you use a card of about that size and good stock it will work hard for you. But follow Mr. Cox and do the small things well. He sends in five different colors and not one is dull and dingy. They are all bright and warm. This is a point where so many exhibitors fall. They think that colored stock is colored stock. It all looks alike, and yet some shades are so gloomy that you mentally shudder as you look. These are different. The back carries a whole week of dated days with a line or two for each attraction and employing the same type faces as the front to preserve harmony. It is a treat to now and then get something that is so thoroughly well done from every angle.

Just in Time.

C. R. Blubaugh, of the Pictureland and Vaudette, Fort Scott, Kansas, comes in just in time to save himself from being advertised as playing hookey. Blubaugh writes:

> It has been some time since I have sent anything to your department and you may think I know not the value of the Advertising for Exhibitors Department, but believe me I do make good use of its columns, and thank the World for its good work for the cause.
>
> I am inclosing some advertising that I have used. Please criticise and point out the faults. I know the dodger is not perfect, but with some of the printers in the business it is impossible to get correct printing, especially in the small towns.

Mr. Blubaugh wins when he says that the printer curled up. Few small job offices stock display faces in the 8 and 10 point and when they do the boss seems to use them for a chair cushion so the compositor cannot get them all worn out. Mr. Blubaugh planned a hard working sheet and it still is a hard worker but a better display would have made it even more effective. The sheet is 11 by 8¾, common



VAUDETTE THEATRE 108 South Main

SPECIAL FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS INCLUDING, PARAMOUNT, FOX, V. L. S. E., METRO, CHAPLINS and MUTUAL MASTER PICTURES.

ADMISSION Children 5c Adults 10c FIRST Parts 2 30 4 00 7 30 9.00

TODAY	TOMORROW	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
PARAMOUNT	MUTUAL	PARAMOUNT	PARAMOUNT	FOX	CHAPLIN
The Idol of the screen supported by "LOTTIE PICKFORD" in "FANCHON the CRICKET" BY GEO SAND'S Six parts 5 & 10c	"HIS WIFE" starring GERALDINE O'BRIEN & LORRAINE HULING A stirring drama of the heart in five parts from CHARLOTTE BRAEME'S celebrated novel Produced by the Thanhouser Co. ADMISSION 5 & 10c	FRITZI SCHEFF in "PRETTY MRS. SMITH" A bubbly sparkling comedy drama in five parts OWEN MOORE & FORREST STANLEY Produced by OLIVER MOROSCO ADMISSION 5 & 10c	Daniel Frohman presents Mrs. Gilbert Jessop Star of Fiemh Co in the celebrated emotional drama "SOLD" By Famous Players Co. ADMISSION 5 & 10c	"CARMEN" By WILLIAM FOX Co featuring THEDA BARA Supreme tragedy of dramatic Spanish passion ADMISSION 5 & 10c	CHAS CHAPLIN in NEW KEYSTONE Comedy LOTTIE PICKFORD in "THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY" Chapter 11 "ELEVTH STORY" in A QUEEN FOR an HOUR Special Vitagraph Comedy 2 Parts ADMISSION 5 & 10c

SEE PICTURELAND PROGRAM ON OTHER SIDE

news stock, printed on one side for the Vaudette and on the other for the sister house. A lighter rule would have helped some and even on a throwaway there should be dated days and here there is not even one covering date. On a job of this sort few cuts will come out well and it is better to use trade mark line cuts than half tone portraits. If we were laying out such a piece of paper we think that we would make it three days across two days up and down, getting a chance for a better display of title lines.

Mr. Blubaugh gets along better with his newspaper advertising, for here he gets them to work in with him, and he sends in a particularly well planned advertisement for Carmen. At the top is the house name, then a "Today" and a big black "Carmen" and below the player's name admission prices and "First parts 7:30 to 9:00." All that need be said is right there in a compact arrangement yet with a good display. Below this he runs a cut of Miss Bara to cover the two column space, and some twelve point text. A cut-off rule breaks to the next day's bill and another cuts off the following attraction. It is all in orderly arrangement, though it is not a good plan to carry the cut-off rules clear across the space unless the entire advertisement is held together with a heavy border, which is not the case here.

But one kick we have and that is his reference to the lady as "Hades' Hand Maiden." If you want to fall into line with the rather questionable Fox policy of calling Miss Bara names, for the love of Mike call her "Hell's Handmaiden" and be done with it. Do not chase either the devil or his place of abode around a stump. If she is hell's handmaiden say so; don't admit that you are doing something you should not by saying Hades. Hang for a sheep and not for a suckling lamb. This goes for a lot more than Mr. Blubaugh.

Considerable Ballyhoo.

Rex W. Midgley, of the Franklin, Oakland, Cal., is going it pretty strong when he borrows an entire U. S. Naval Training Station for a ballyhoo. Mr. Midgley wrote that he was sending a set of photographs that were self-explanatory. He did. They were not amateur postcards but ten by twelve glossy prints made especially for reproduction. There is a training station in the bay and the boys, to the number of about 500, were invited to attend a performance of "A Submarine Pirate." They came down in two government tugs and marched through the business section to the theater; the Mayor and a committee of prominent citizens making them welcome. Just look at this line, and think how nice it would be to have a bunch like that to march down your own home streets and into your own theater, advertising a naval attraction. A motion picture was made of the parade and shown the following days of the engagement, then being sent to the Training Station on Goat Island where the apprentices have their own picture theater. The cut below shows the house with the boys wheeling into the theater. It was clever work in every way. It gave the boys a pleasant outing. It advertised the house and it established the connection of the house with the leading local lights, for one photograph shows Mr. Midgley with the Commandant, Lt. Commandant, the Mayor, Postmaster and other local notables. It is regular press work.

Off the Beaten Track.

Tom North got out an announcement for "The Great Divide." It starts in proper form by announcing that

Mr. Sigmund Lubin
announces
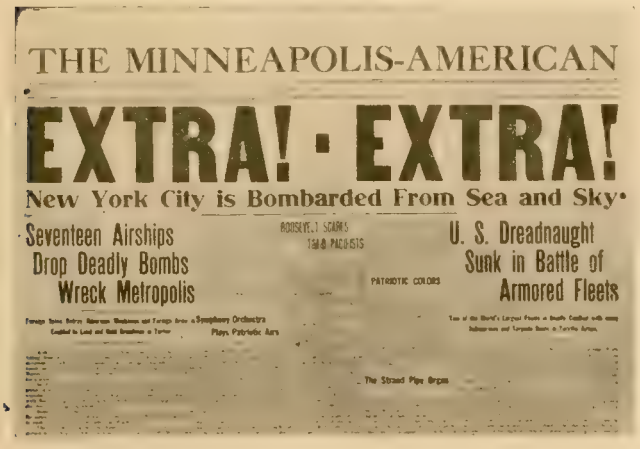
the engagement of but after that he talks film. It is a sightly bit of printing and quite in the proper style.

A Fake Extra.

J. S. Woodhouse, of the Strand, Minneapolis, one of the Saxe houses, used a novel scheme for getting "The Battle Cry of Peace" known in a hurry. Twenty-five thousand copies of a fake extra were put on streets and distributed to offices and stores. These announced the bombardment of New York City. In these days when almost anything is liable to happen, the extra attracted unusual attention and in half a day the entire town knew all about the production. Of course it costs money to get out so large an edition, but the bill was kept down by using the mats so liberally supplied by the Vitagraph, which cut composition, the most important item. This small cut does not do the issue justice, but it will give a hint as to how the page can be laid



THE MINNEAPOLIS-AMERICAN

EXTRA! · EXTRA!

New York City is Bombarded From Sea and Sky·

Seventeen Airships Drop Deadly Bombs Wreck Metropolis

U. S. Dreadnaught Sunk in Battle of Armored Fleets

out. It might be made even more "yellow" in its wording and carry the general line "New York in Ruins." If you employ such a scheme get the right sort of boys or some of them will try to sell the paper and you'll be blamed for the fraud.

Mr. Woodhouse also sends in the bi-weekly program for the house. He writes that better paper and press work will show in later issues, but he sends this for another purpose. One of the attractions was "Inspiration." The front page carried a picture of Miss Munson against a tint background, all being done in black, a single half-tone being made for the entire front. This showed Miss Munson in a semi-draped pose while an inside page cut gave the scene from the play in which she appears in the nude, but no capital was made of the nudity. To the contrary, it anticipated the suggestion that the picture was salacious with the statement that the Mayor himself had declared it no more audacious than the statutes in the Art Museum, and went on to point out the educational value as showing how bronze is cast. The picture was booked for a four day run but played the full week to capacity and yet did not offend because the advertising was not of the "Men only" or "Over sixteen years of age" type. It told just what it was and it is to be presumed that as many went to see Miss Munson as went to see how bronze statues were made, but the point is that the house did not offend in its advertising and bring the long haired ones into action. A picture is pretty much what you make it. Mr. Woodhouse handled it discreetly and properly.

The back of the program gives a very simple form of calendar that seems to be new. Others may like the scheme. A heavier rule for the

1916 JANUARY 1916
Sun.	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Friday	Sat.
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Audrey Munson in "INSPIRATION"				Rob't. Mantell in "The Green-Eyed Monster"
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
Clifford Bruce in "THE FOURTH ESTATE"				Grace Elliston in "BLACK FEAR" various boxes would probably give a better result, since it would give emphasis to the division of space.

Comes Mr. Bleich.

Just about the time we reach into the corner for our largest club and start to wonder why George A. Bleich is so strangely silent, he seems to get the message and comes in. This time, Mr. Bleich brings with him a program for the Empress, Owensboro, Ky. It is an eight page folder, on paper, and quite "Bleichy" which means distinctive. Mr. Bleich dates his days. More: he goes one step further. At the top of each page of program announcement he tells what house it is. This is the first time we have seen this, but any single page from the program, by itself, will still be complete. It is about the last word in page headings and something to be imitated. This is the form:

At the EMPRESS, FRIDAY, JAN. 28

The page is 4½ by 8. Cream stock, done in black. Mr. Bleich carries a lot of good stuff that others can use or adapt. It is not the entire program, but the pick of the material.

TAKE THIS HOME WITH YOU

Don't throw this away, shove it in your pocket—keep it handy as it gives you just the information you desire about the shows each day throughout the week.

NOT A DULL, NOT A POOR, OR ORDINARY PRODUCTION IS PROGRAMMED HEREIN.

Go through this carefully. See the offerings day by day. Look at the stars, and the plays they appear in and you will at once agree that all are choice.

NOTE STARTING TIME OF PICTURES

Unless otherwise announced the starting time of each program, on each day of the week, will be as follows: 1:45, 3, 3:15, 4:30, 4:45, 6, 6:15, 7:25, 7:40, 9, feature starting for the last time at 9:10.

EXPLANATION

Each day's program is one of six parts. When the feature subject is in five parts, there is an added one reel subject. The time announced puts you at either the beginning of the feature or the extra picture. At 1:45 the feature starts; at 3 the single reel; at 3:15 the feature comes on again, and so on throughout the day.

THE MEANING OF PARTS IN FILMS

The length of a filmplay is determined by its number of parts. A part is a reel of film, and a reel of film is one thousand feet in length. The time required to project a reel of film is about 15 minutes. When a subject is described as being in five parts, for instance, that means five reels of films with a time on the screen of one hour and fifteen minutes approximately.

TO BE FRANK

No attempt is made in this little bulletin to "play up" the several attractions in lurid terms. It is merely to post you in a general way of what is in store for you during the week.

And why a lot of "piffle" anyhow? Ethel Clayton and House Peters in such a play as "The Great Divide" is enough guarantee. The same applies to Mary Pickford in "Madame Butterfly." That Clara Kimball Young would make a great "Camille" everyone knows. And as for Theda Bara in "Destruction" the program tells you she is a mean old "Vampire" again. Have you doubts about Charles Cherry in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird?" It is a very, very good picture. Helen Holmes in "The Girl and the Game" and Henry Walthall, Ruth Stonehouse, and Warda Howard in a strong drama entitled "Temper" ought to make you long for Saturday to come.

If you cannot use the stuff right now, save it against the time when you can. Some day it will come in handy to be able to clip or copy instead of having to rack your brains for ideas.

A Novel Folder.

The E. W. Lynch enterprises, Boston, is sending out a novel fourteen page mailing folder for the E & R Jungle Film comedies. Seven half-tones of the simian stars (yes, that has been used before) get the attention and emphasize the possibilities of the animals as nothing else can. The reverse gives the type to back up the pictures and announces that one of the monkeys is going to emulate the Paramount Girl and make a run from ocean to ocean in an automobile which it will run itself, stopping on the way at various picture theaters.

Slow.

Here in Waterville, Maine, today they are having a "Dollar Day." Every merchant in town has a lot of dollar bargains, but not one of the three picture houses is in the field with a dollar coupon book, not one.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others It will help you Handsome clothboard binding By mail, postpaid. $2.00

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticized, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is enclosed.

"Screen Rot."

UNDER the above elegant title an anonymous writer in the Bulletin of the Authors' League attacks the staff writer system. In his prelude he frankly admits that he is a disappointed writer. He cannot sell his plays. He goes on to say that about twenty per cent. of the screen plays are interesting and that the rest are what his title implies. He is asked why he does not contribute some of his own ideas and he says:

> Ah! Why not. Who am I? Let's see. I've had plays on the legitimate stage. I have had acts on the vaudeville stage. I've written novels whose chief element was drama and dramatic action. Some of these novels have actually appeared on the screen in the shape of five-reel features. Perhaps if I went out for a contract for a prolonged moving picture serial I might get one.
>
> And yet, I'm a disappointed proposition. Why? Because I am not permitted to contribute to the enjoyment of the man who goes into the ten-cent moving picture house. That is the fact. I have written scenario after scenario, synopsis after synopsis—I have submitted them to the houses putting out one and two-reel material. I have done my best with them.
>
> * * * * * * *
>
> No, they won't let me write for the public, because somebody else is doing it. Who is somebody else? Somebody else is just as much of a type as is the average author and the Man on the Street. I'll dramatize this somebody else for you right now—"He, too, is an author, or was." He at one time had fresh, original ideas, and a gift for telling a story. He was discovered by a moving picture concern. The moving picture concern reached out, clutched him by the shoulder and offered him a contract and a salary of $..... per year, to abide with them and grind out ideas. Grind? Yes, at the rate of several per week—many a month. All right. More power to him. At the end of three months every vestige of originality that he had has been exhausted. His original ideas have all been used. His well of drama has dried up. But—he is a scenario writer employed at a salary by the ..... concern; he is under contract. He must produce the goods. He turns the barrel upside down and begins over again. He looks at his old material from the easterly direction this time, instead of from the south. He takes the tail of one story and joins it to another story's head. This gets over for some time.
>
> * * * * * * *
>
> Having exhausted all the possibilities that lie within his own originality, our young scenario writer now adopts new tactics. He goes to moving picture shows and sees what is being done. He sees a good story—a very good one. He realizes that with a little bit of a twist that story can be done over in a different way. He does it over in a different way, but it don't get over with the Man in the Street.
>
> One of the biggest directors in the City of New York told me that his scenario writers have presented to him the plot of one story twenty-five times and more—and he has produced it twenty-five times and more, and it has gone on the screen twenty-five times and more—over and over and over again. A month ago one of his writers brought it in again. The director shook his head—"I won't touch that story," he said, "I've produced it too often—and the last time was two weeks ago."
>
> "But," protested the writer, "the scene of that story was laid in Vienna. THIS is laid in Paris."
>
> Now, this is no complaint about plagiarism. I've sent a good deal of stuff around, and in the long run I can't complain that it's been stolen. But there is always the danger that the young scenario writer will be tempted to use something that is not his own by reason of the very circumstances in which he is placed. I don't complain about any theft of my own ideas.
>
> What I do complain about, is that I am not permitted to put my stuff before the Man in the Street. And the reason is that the moving picture concerns are getting, from their well-paid, or underpaid—I care not which—scenario writers, their "staff," hundreds and thousands of scripts every week—at the cheapest possible price. These concerns hire expensive directors, expensive camera men—spare no expense for fine photography, for wonderful production—but they won't pay for a story. And it is the story that the public wants.
>
> A year ago I read frequently that the ..... Company was not in the market for scenarios. Yet it was putting out several reels a week—many a month. Where did it get the material? From its own "staff," of course. Good! I've no complaint to make with reference to the source of the stuff. I don't complain, because they don't use MY stuff in particular—but why don't they get good stuff? Recently in the trade papers I have noticed that this, that, and the other concern has announced, and even advertised, that in the future it will not buy of hack writers, or "scenario" writers, but that it will patronize only authors who have original material to submit. Is this a joke? Search me. It looks like it.
>
> Meantime, lend me your columns for my plaint: I want to write one and two-reelers for the hoi polloi, le bourgeois, the ten-center, the neighborhood movie house. Let the others have their serials and their five-reel features. I want to write for the Man in the Street. Give a body a chance.

There is more soreness than sense in this plaint. The writer states that he has written stage plays and stories. Now he wants to dash off a few photoplays and they will not let him. Why not? Most companies are honestly and truly looking for good writers. Here is a man who must be good since he has had plays accepted. But is he good? He says he is. But is he writing with the technique of the stage, the technique of the drama or the technique of photoplay, and by technique of the photoplay we do not mean merely the form. Is he writing good, producable plays of vivid action or is he writing the very rot that he decries?

Granted that the staff system makes for sameness, and it does, is this any reason why the manufacturer should take worse junk from the outside? The boob who never will know how to write is no more to be despised than the man who can write and does write, but who is so inflated with self-conceit that he imagines that anything he writes must be better than the stuff he sees on the screen. He writes fiction or he writes drama, but he does not write producable photoplays because he does not write photoplay. He trusts to his style or to his skill in writing dialogue, but he does not write in action.

The hardest man to teach photoplay writing to is the man who has an established reputation as a novelist or dramatist. He knows it all already and will not be taught. In England Bannister Merwin has been trying to interest dramatists and authors in work for the London Film Company. He wants original plays, not adaptations. He, too, has found it hard to teach an old dog new tricks.

The staff system is a poor one in many ways, but at the present time it is the only way in which even so poor a standard may be maintained.

Lubin Wants.

Daniel Ellis, the Lubin editor, writes that they are in the market for three-reel stories featuring Mimi Yvonne (aged 7) or Eleanor Dunn (aged 10). They also desire three, four and five-reel dramas of unusual excellence and one-reel comedies for D. L. Don or Billie Reeves.

Mr. Ellis adds a note that was tied to a recent script. It is in a fearful scrawl and states (without capitals) that > any other play will be typewrited and more correctly. submitted at usual rates. the next play will be the nuts doctor.

Ford peace party stories are a bit passe, but this might be a good one.

The Champion.

Whoever has the medal for being the champion boob will please send it in. There is a newcomer clearly entitled to the honor. He writes in a schoolboy's unformed hand:

> Will you please tell me the quickest way to write out a picture. Must I write it as a story? To me this seems slow work—I think I have the ideas, all right but can't take the time to write out all the details—Do you think it would pay me to dictate it and have a short hand writer take it down and copy it for me? In looking over the Moving P. W.—under the heading of "Reviews of Current Productions," I find stories of the pictures reduced to very few words. Would it be all right to write one in short form like those.

Presently we'll find a boob who wants only the check without even the labor of writing a four or five line story, but until then the medal goes to this lazy aspirant.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two or three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of three questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE: Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local Union No. 117, Bellingham, Washington.

Frank Door, president; Charles Riddle, vice-president; E. H. Southern, secretary, P. O. Box No. 420; William Evans, treasurer; George Riddle, business agent. Meetings held at the American theater, first and third Sundays of each month.

Local Union No. 267, Tiffin, Ohio.

Edward Welter, president; Walter Collins, vice-president; Lester Wilson, secretary, P. O. Box No. 543; Carroll Schmitt, treasurer and business agent; James Werby, sergeant-at-arms.

Question No. 127.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

What, if any, objection is there to locating a mercury arc rectifier in the operating room? What, if any, objection is there to locating it where it is very cold in winter? Where would you locate it?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 121.

The Roll of Honor on Question 121 is as follows: Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Texas; Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, California; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, New York; Charles S. Stuckey, Edmonton, Canada; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; Walter Bryner, Springfield, Illinois; Leon Brantley, Nacogdoches, Texas; Walter Collins, Tiffin, Ohio, and Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Maryland.

I am answering question 121 myself, because while some of the replies on the Roll of Honor were excellent, none of them, I think, covered the matter entirely, and all of them missed one point.

Reply to Question No. 121.

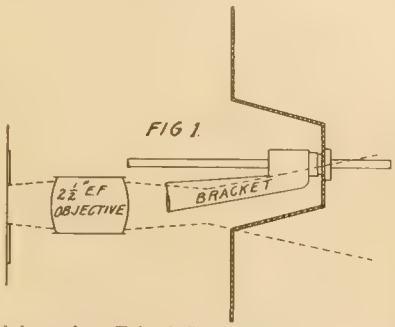
By F. H. Richardson, New York City.

The Question:

What is the limit of speed in and intermittent movement, and why is it the limit? Is it important that the shutter be connected as directly as possible to the cam-shaft, and if so, why? Suppose you had a Power's Six or Six A, and a 2½ inch E. F. objective, what would you do?

The Answer:

The limit of speed in an intermittent movement is that speed which is not sufficiently excessive to produce unreasonable wear in the mechanism or to place undue strain on the sprocket holes of the film, and the speed which will bring about as nearly as possible the ideal shutter condition which is a 50/50, three-wing shutter. Up to the present time this has been accepted as being 6 to 1 in fixed ratio machines. With the new Edison Super-Kinetoscope, however, it is possible that this may be exceeded to some extent where short focal length lenses are used, in order to bring about a better shutter condition, though it will be at the expense of added strain to the films and the intermittent movement. It is quite true that in Kinemacolor the speed of intermittent action is 32 per second instead of 16, but the sprocket holes of Kinemacolor films don't last very long and the intermittent wears very rapidly. Yes, it is essential to the best shutter operation that the shutter be connected to the cam shaft as directly as possible, because in every added connection there is a certain amount of play between the teeth and the gears, and if there be a sufficient number it will amount to very considerable, and will result in back-lash in the shutter and travel ghost on the screen.



If I had a Power's Six or Six A and a 2½ inch E. F. objective, first of all I would get the lamphouse back as far as possible, and secure a clear field with a reasonable distance between the arc and the condenser, because pulling the lamphouse back has the effect of narrowing the light beam in front of the objective. Next, and in addition to this I would make a shutter somewhat after the fashion of the one shown in Fig. 1, which is the drawing accompanying Brother Martin's reply. Friend Stuckey sent in a very similar sketch; in fact the idea was identical.

However, if I had that condition, before I did anything else I would see if there was not some way of moving the operating room and the screen further apart, or of what amounts to the same thing optically, reducing the size of the picture.

The Manager's "Bible."

E. M. Hill, Corpus Christi, Texas, says:

> Mr. Carroll, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has recently purchased the Rex and Lyric Theaters of this city from H. H. Elliott. Mr. Carroll will install two Pow rs Six B machines, and a three-piece orchestra. "Dusty" Rhodes will continue as operator. The "Ideal," under the management of Roy Finn, is using General Service and the "Diamond" series. Mr. Finn recently installed a $2,500 Seeburg Orchestra. Corpus Christi has no operators' union, but the scale is very satisfactory; also we have no censorship, and are glad of it. This is exceptional for a town of our size—20,000. Edwin Carewe, Metro director, spent the holidays with his parents of this city. We are proud of "our" director, and consider his "Soul of a Woman" to be one of the best features ever produced. E. M. Hill, proprietor of the Seaside Theater, recently sold all fixtures to the Rex. Each of our theatres use two motor driven machines in fireproof operating rooms, and our cool summers and warm winters (bathing on Christmas day) make Corpus Christi an ideal all year round show town. The Moving Picture World is the manager's "Bible."

Huh! You needn't swell up and bust, Brother Hill, because we of New York go bathing on New Year's day right out in the real oshun, too; that is to say an infinitesimal proportion of us do, NOT including the editor—b-r-r-r-r. Of course those who pull this stunt are pure, unadulterated bug house, because the water is something like six and a half degrees below ice. But they do it just the same, and say they enjoy it, though my own individual, carefully prepared and unbiased opinion is that the claim constitutes assault and battery on our friend, The Truth.

New Organization.

The moving picture machine operators of Mason City, Iowa, recently met at the home of Frank Cota, where they utterly destroyed, annihilated, and wiped off the map a huge quantity of well-prepared viands in the form of a banquet, after which a club, known as the North Iowa Operators' Association, was formed, with Charles Armstrong as president, Frank Cota, vice president, and Ray Tourney, secretary and treasurer. There were seven men present, which, if I remember rightly, is enough for a provisional charter in the I. A., therefore, gentlemen, why not get in with the rest of the operators by securing the aforesaid provisional charter. The club is all right, but a union can very easily be made to serve the purposes of both club and union at the same time, if you wish it to.

Trenton Local Prospering.

We are informed that Trenton, New Jersey, Local Union No. 359, is prospering, and is now one of the strongest organizations in the city, being affiliated with the Central Labor body and the New Jersey City Federation of Labor. The boys had a little argument with the managers over wage scale not long ago, but everything has been adjusted, and both Trenton managers and operators are wearing the smile that won't come off. The local was represented at the grand ball of Local 306 by Brother Benjamin Siegle.

WAYSIDE NOTES (Continued).

In Utica.

The Utica men certainly believe in doing the things which they undertake to do, thoroughly. The Union, as already told in the department, has thoroughly and completely organized the city, and has secured good working conditions without encountering serious opposition on the part of the exhibitors. This, as the men say, is partly due to not having asked unreasonable things, but I believe it is even more due to having gone about things in a business-like, legitimate, commonsense way.

Organizing moving picture machine operators is purely entirely a business proposition, and the organization is purely a business one, and should be treated as such. From my observation of the Utica men, I believe they have proceeded exactly along these lines, and it has thus far spelled success.

The editor was met at the depot by a Committee from the Union, consisting of E. R. Terrill, president, G. H. Hemphrey, secretary, G. H. Gadsby, and Charles Skinner. After the usual greetings, we were bubbled over to the Hotel Utica, which is the last word in swelldom in that classic village, all of which proves that the Utica men know the value of doing whatever they undertake to do, thoroughly and well, as was remarked in the opening sentence.

In the afternoon we were called up by the representatives of the Utica daily papers, which again shows that the Utica men are "on the job" and alive to the value of looking after details and getting all possible benefit from such a thing as this.

In the evening, W. H. Linton, State Treasurer of the New York Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, called, and we had an extended and very pleasant chat. Mr. Linton is one of the up-to-date exhibitors. He owns the Hippodrome and Dreamland in Utica, the Hippodrome in Little Falls, the Richmond in Herkimer and the Alhambra Theatre at Ossining, all of which are accounted as being first-class houses. Mr. Linton is one of those wise exhibitors who understands and thoroughly appreciates the value of high class projection. He took me over to the Hippodrome, Utica, and although the operator did not know that I was present in the house, I am free to say that there was not a single, solitary item to criticise, so far as the screen result be concerned. Stanley Millstein is chief operator in the Hippodrome, assisted by Oscar Alden. They have two Powers Six B machines. What I saw in the Hippodrome was very distinctly to the credit of those two gentlemen. The speed was perfect, the light brilliant and at no time during my short stay, was there any trace of shadow. The screen is set back on the stage, and from the optical point of view should be back about five feet further, but Mr. Linton told me there were reasons why this could not be done. The condition is not bad, however, as the picture is not a large one, and standing within fifteen feet of the screen, and fully fifteen to twenty feet off center, there was practically no distortion, and comparatively no out-of-focus effect. The screen is one of Brother Rembusch's latest mirroroids.

The Union had arranged for a buffet lunch in the Club rooms of the Hotel Utica, to take place at 11.30 P. M. to which all managers were invited.

After the conference with the Press representative in the evening, the committee took the editor in tow and we visited as many theaters as could be reached in the limited time at command. The Avon, one of the downtown theatres, is a large, beautiful house. I do not remember the exact seating capacity, but it must run considerably over the thousand mark. Its front and lobby are decidedly pleasing, the interior spacious and tastefully decorated. That apple of J. Stuart Blackton's eye, "The Battle Cry of Peace," was on, and the projection was subject to but one criticism, namely, some lack of brilliancy in the light, though the fault was not pronounced enough to be serious. The picture was fairly bright, the light well handled, and free from shadow. The speed was well judged, but the light was not brilliant, although when I visited the operating room, a mere cracker box, by the way, 70 feet long by 8 feet deep by 14 feet high, to my astonishment the Hallberg 20th Century Motor Generator set was delivering 68 amperes to the arc of the Baird projector. One glance at the spot showed that something was radically wrong, and an examination disclosed the fact that the arc was approximately 4½ inches from the lens, which means that the operator was getting about a 40 ampere result with practically a 70 ampere current consumption. This is not meant as a criticism of chief operator, Tennis, or of Baldwin Foster, his assistant. After all the kindness shown me by Utica managers and operators, it would ill become me to criticise anything, but I am obliged to point this matter out publicly for the benefit it may bring about in hundreds of other operating rooms in Utica and elsewhere, because it graphically points out the tremendous loss made possible through ill-judged matching of the lens system. The Avon operating is a most excellent room. It is 70 x 8 x 14 feet high, which is some room all right. In the ceiling is a large vent pipe, up which an exhaust fan sends a howling blast. I pointed out to brothers Tennis and Foster certain things which stood in need of change, and I believe those changes will be made, because I also laid stress upon the necessity for improvement along these lines to Mr. William Foster, the manager, a most affable gentleman whom I met later on.

At the Orpheum, John Miller is chief operator and Cletus Messman assistant. Current is supplied to two Powers Six A machines through a Wotten Rexolux, which, by the way, is largely used for current rectifying in Utica, and is giving excellent satisfaction. The operating room is 10 x 14 feet in size, well ventilated and has observation ports fully 12 inches wide, of ample height. The interior, however, is too light, and taken in conjunction with the wall and light fixture about 30 feet in front under which the light ray shoots, it is exceedingly difficult to get a good view of the picture. Also this beforementioned wall, with its glare of light, operates to reduce the value of the gallery seats. We suggested to Mr. William Donlon, manager and owner, who, by the way, was pronounced one of the Union's best friends, that this wall be painted black, and that the interior of the operating room be also painted black. If this is done, the improvement will be very decided.

What little I saw of the Orpheum projection was creditable to the operators, and any faults there might be would be chargeable, I think, to the aforementioned conditions, which I again suggest to brother Donlon be remedied without loss of time.

The Committee then took me out to see a suburban house of which Henry Lux is manager. This house has not yet been christened; there is a contest now in progress to decide upon its name, but I didn't obtain the particulars of this. I shall always be glad I made this visit, although it was done in a howling snow storm. The front is imposing, and the lobby excellent, but the interior is something more than that—it is beautiful. The decorations are in ivory white and two shades of heliotrope. I do not remember the exact seating capacity, but it is much more than a thousand. The entire front is in the form of a huge paneled arch, which narrows in toward the screen. The seats are just about the last word in comfortableness, the upholstery being cloth. At the back in a rather narrow balcony are large boxes—many of them, containing large, comfortable wicker chairs, and set into the rear wall above the boxes, and somewhat to the left of the center, was a large 'afimly box," which is, in effect, a good sized room with one wall removed, and an ornamental railing substituted. These loge boxes, according to my memory, occupy the entire balcony. I was told they are a good selling proposition.

The Projection Editor and the Utica Managers and Operators.

Rochester.

I stopped in Rochester by appointment with the Bausch & Lomb Optical Company and the Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Company, but got so interested in talking to Mr. Nixon and the optical men of the Scientific Department of the Bausch & Lomb Company, and looking at and discussing experiments in the demonstration room of their laboratories that time slipped past until it was too late in the evening to go to the Gundlach-Manhattan plant. However, I feel that the time was exceedingly well expended and that I can call upon the other gentlemen later.

Leaving the Bausch & Lomb factory I started on a still hunt for a food emporium, and wound up in the office of Manager J. J. Raymond, of the Gordon Photoplay House, where I was most cordially welcomed, and we became so interested in the discussion of matters pertaining to projection that I had to tackle a one-arm food foundry, catch as catch can, and run a foot race for the train. Manager Raymond insisted that I visit his operating room and criticise it. It needed but a glance to discover room for criticism in plenty—too small—too low a ceiling—inadequate ventilation—a fairly good observation port for one machine, and a glorified knot-hole for the other, were a few of the "not right" things that one look around disclosed. The room is, at a guess, seven feet deep front and back—maybe eight, but I doubt it by, I think, not more than nine or ten feet wide, and has about a seven or eight-foot ceiling. Mind you, these dimensions are only a rough guess. In that space were too Simplex projectors, a dissolver, and on a shelf at one end several rheostats. The place was crowded up, and as they claim to be pulling 90 amperes, and certainly are pulling well up to that, the heat must be something awful in summer. I would by all means advise Manager Raymond to materially enlarge that room, raise its ceiling, and either locate those rheostats outside the room or else place a metal hood over them with a pipe leading to the open air and an exhaust fan to pump the heat away. And that 90 amperes! It represents a great deal of waste. I can't say what is wrong. The arc, from the glimpse I took (I did not dare open the door long enough to measure, as the lenses were hot) was not more than 4 inches from the lens—maybe not that far. However, there is enormous waste, and inasmuch as the condenser seemed pretty close to the film, very likely a portion of it is at the objective. The screen was well illuminated, yes, but nothing extraordinary, and certainly not anywhere near in proportion to the current being consumed. I saw as large a picture fully as well illuminated last night in Utica with fifty amperes. Please understand that all this is set forth entirely and absolutely in a spirit of kindness. The men at the Gordon should get equal results with much less current, and Manager Raymond should, on his part, make the improvements I have suggested and give his men a chance to deliver their best service. The chief operator of the Gordon is the business agent of the Rochester Local Union.

Buffalo.

I don't know what happened to and in the more or less classic village by the Falls, but certainly my hoodoo was there ahead of me. After very friendly correspondence with the Union officials it had been decided that, as I understood it, they would meet me at the depot, but that a meeting of operators and managers would not be possible for reasons I am not at liberty to divulge. I had, however, hoped some sort of meeting of the operators could be arranged, but either there was some misunderstanding as to time of my arrival, or else we missed each other somehow, for the welcome mat had apparently been pulled in and carefully stored away for the night. It may be that it was a mixup in the matter of time, for the city uses central time, which is one hour later than eastern time which the railway east of here uses, as I discovered next morning when I got up at 5:30, rushed through my morning toilet only to discover that the train left at 7:31, instead of 6:31.

Well, the office of the union was closed tighter than a bass drum and darker than night, so I visited the Strand, which has a wonderfully pretty front and lobby. The manager was in New York City but the assistant came out and we had a very pleasant chat for fifteen or twenty minutes, standing in the lobby. Don't know what sort of house the Strand is inside, or what its picture looks like, but if it matches that lobby it certainly is a beauty.

I then visited the office of another theater, presented my card to the august presence and, summoning my most engaging smile said: "Though I'd drop in, say howdy do, see what you're up to and how you're behaving," to which came this reply: "We don't need any one from New York to tell us how to behave." Bing! just like that. Well, you can imagine what happened when he hit me between the eyes like that. I'm not used to being slapped in the face without just cause and in just three and one-fifth seconds there was an argument in process and when I left there I was under the impression that the manager of that particular theater did not like me. Well, "I should worry." To do him justice he followed me clear down into the lobby calling me uncomplimentary names, but I was a stranger in a strange land with an important engagement in Cleveland next day, so I retreated to the depths of my hotel and concluded Buffalo was, on that particular day at least, bad medicine.

I have to laugh about it now; it was all so utterly ridiculous. But it would have been far from a laughing matter had I obeyed my very natural inclination and stopped to renew the argument in that lobby. For some unaccountable reason Friend Manager was out gunning for trouble; well, I couldn't afford trouble then and there was peace along Niagara Falls.

In Cleveland.

If Perie, the Frenchman, were telling what happened in Cleveland, his first remark would be: "Et ezz splendid—magnifique!" and I feel about it just the same as Friend Perie would have felt.

From the time the Exhibitors' League Committee, headed by C. A. McGown, who, by the way, has painted his hair white since he was manager of Billy Swanson's 39th Street and Cottage Grove Avenue theatre out in the Windy City by the Lake, and I was his humble crank twister-up in his operating room, B. J. Sawyer, president of the Cleveland Moving Picture Exhibitors' League, and H. A. Luckey, of the Great Star Feature Company, met me at the depot, Cleveland was just one merry-go-round to the editor until he shook hands with the same gentlemen at the depot next day. Every single minute was filled three deep with something to do.

First, there was a luncheon at Weber's Cafe, at which we had both the honor and pleasure of addressing a little more than one hundred of Cleveland exhibitors, and at least a sprinkling of the more progressive operators.

It is indeed encouraging when practically a one hundred per cent. attendance of exhibitors of the sixth city of the United States will gather, at the busiest hour of the day, and wait patiently the coming of a train that was late, in order to listen to a talk on projection. If such a thing had been proposed to exhibitors six years ago, it would in all probability have been suggested that the proposer be examined as to his sanity, but although, as I have said, it was at the very busiest hour of the day, and I talked for fully an hour, the attention was close and I am told the effect was altogether good. True, there were, at times, some rather violent coloring of faces, which apparently showed that sore spots had been prodded, particularly when I spoke of overspeeding, failure to provide the operator with up-to-date projection machinery and failure to buy proper repair parts; but, they nevertheless, took it all in good part, and after the meeting several frankly acknowledged the corn and voluntarily promised to mend their ways for the future.

The Exhibitors' League of the City of Cleveland is no corpse. In fact it is about the liveliest organization we ever had the pleasure of meeting for a good, long time, and they certainly kept the editor just a little more than real busy.

During my stay in Cleveland when I was not going somewhere I was coming back from some place I had already been, and going at a speed that would have grouched the traffic cop had his eagle eye watched the performance. I was indeed sorry I did not plan for an additional day in Cleveland. It would have been time well and profitably expended for all concerned. During the afternoon of the first day we were taken out to the National Carbon Company and, under the guidance of R. A. Crider, manager of the Projection Sales Department, and W. C. Kinzman, of the Projection Carbon Testing Department, was accorded what is rarely given, viz: a trip through the enormous works of that corporation, which covers, I am told, approximately thirty-five acres of ground. We saw the process of manufacturing of carbons from beginning to end, and you may take it from me, gentlemen, it was an interesting experience.

Returning from the National Carbon Company's plant we visited the Homestead theatre, a new house just opened, where we witnessed the performance of the new current rectifying device, the "Transverter." The performance was remarkable. I watched the following things in sequence: First, the arc was regulated to just 50 amperes and 50 volts. We then watched the volt and ammeter while the carbons burned away until the arc voltage mounted to 80, with the amperage only rising to 54. The arc was then lengthened to approximately one and one-fourth inches, without in the slightest degree affecting the amperage, and that, let me tell you, is some performance. Next the switch-over was made from one machine to the other. The operator manipulated one of two single-blade switches on the wall between the machines, first having stepped to the dead machine and moved one of the lamp controls, and now here is something for you wise guys to dope out. I'll give the answer later. With both arcs burning at normal, with 50 amperes at each, the transverter was only producing 50 amperes, and what is more it was producing all the current used by the two lamps. The answer is simple. The handling of the change-over is extremely simple, and I see no reason why there should be perceptible effect on the screen during the process. The efficiency of the transverter will be dealt with in a separate, illustrated article dealing with the construction of the machine, which same will appear soon.

In the evening we had the pleasure of viewing projection with the new nitro-incandescent lamp at the Home theater. The picture was 14 feet wide; the house was quite dark, and while the picture could, by no stretch of the imagination, be called brilliant, still it was fair and to my mind demonstrates that the nitrogen lamp may be used for the projecting of small pictures, say 6 to 8 feet with entire success, and in villages where the possible patronage is very limited and current expense a very serious item, it may be utilized with quite satisfactory results, but in my opinion the size of the picture could never exceed that of the one I saw last night by very much, though this statement must be qualified if a mirror screen or some other highly reflective type of surface be used. This, of course, is only a "first impression" opinion, and is subject to possible change later on. However, I am still from Missouri when it comes to the nitrogen lamp for theatrical projection in any large way. The lamp I saw last night took 600 watts. It was 20 amperes at 30 volts, or 30 amperes at 20 volts. I have forgotten which. The performance was surprising—much better than I had thought possible, but there seems to be certain difficulties other than that presented by screen brilliance, but of these things I will speak when I am more certain of my ground.

I visited several theaters in Cleveland, but, due to lack of time, it was largely a process of "He walked right in and turned around and walked right out again." I did not, therefore, have much time to look at projection, though what I did see was at least passably fair, and some of it was very much more than that. The Cameraphone of which Friend McGown is manager and I. J. Noonan, operator, was particularly good. Operator Noonan is a man of brains and real ability. His room was neat as a new pin. The room was in itself by no means ideal, as the ceiling was quite low, but the best was made of what there was. The walls were dark—if I remember rightly black—and the floor white, with strips of rubber matting to walk on. I was proud to find on the walls of this room a picture of the editor, neatly framed. I am proud because of the type of man Brother Noonan is. The ventilation was excellent.

The picture Brother Codding put on at the Monarch was also good, as was that at the Standard.

At the Standard Joseph Grossman is manager and Fred Albinger, chief operator, and let me tell you Friend Albinger is a man of ideas; also he puts a good picture on the screen. But I was mostly interested in his operating room. First, his rheostat was on the floor incased in an iron box, its top in the form of a pyramid, terminating in a pipe which led directly to the vent pipe of the operating room, so that the exhaust fan pulled away every particle of heat those rheostats were producing, and shot it up toward the blue vault of heaven, where it could not possibly have any effect in par-boiling the operator.

Albinger also has attached a small lever to his lens focusing thumb-screw of his Simplex machines, and has drilled a small hole in the top of the machine casing and run a small wire down, connecting with the fire shutter lever at its lower end, so that by pressing the knob at the top of this wire the fire shutter is opened, thus enabling him to raise the shutter to frame the picture when threading. I would recommend this little stunt to the very serious consideration of Brother Frank Cannock, of the Precision Machine Company. When I get back to New York I will show him just what it is, and how it works. But cheer up. The really big thing is still to be described. Inside the lamphouse we saw a real wonder, for although the arc was pulling 50 amperes the negative carbon was only 5-16 of an inch in diameter.

Now, don't say "impossible," although most likely I would have said the identical thing had it been sprung on me without my actually seeing it. The current flow was, as I have said, 50 amperes, yet that little, narrow, contracted runt of a carbon, 6 inches in length, was licking the everlasting tar out of its ¾ inch brother on top, because it runs six to seven reels of pictures. It is a new stunt the National Carbon Company is pulling off, and looks to me like a nice, ripe, rosy-cheeked peach. They have promised to deliver some of them to me immediately, and I am going to have some of you boys to try them out and make a report. Brother Albinger was enthusiastic in their praise. Later: I have half a dozen of them for trial.

In my talk to the Cleveland managers I strongly advocated the placing of seats within not less than 20 feet of the screen.

In the dusk of evening the bunch piloted me into one of those perfectly scandalous fifty-cents-for-a-glass-of-water cabaret things to partake of the cup which inebriates and things more substantial. Among the crew was Mr. McAlley, who puts in nine-tenths of his walking hours selling Motiographs, and the other one-tenth trying to sell them. Some remark was made concerning that phase of my talk dealing with injury to childrens' eyes by seats placed too near the screen, thereupon Friend McAlley sprung a new one, which is good enough to be preserved in print. He said: "Ah, never mind, Rich! Evolution will take care of that matter, because the kids will in time develop wide-angle eyes."

After the shows closed for the night, several of the men (operators) foregathered in our room at the hotel, where a pleasant hour was spent discussing various things of mutual interest. We are told that one operator of the bunch who did not wish to receive Richardson, and who had not cleaned his operating room since he was on the job, was told, as a joke, that Richardson was going to visit him. Two hours before the show opened his boss happened in and, hearing a noise above asked: "What's that?" Whereupon the janitor replied: "That's the operator. He's gone crazy. He's upstairs with a mop."

The second day was all consumed in examining the plans of a new theater and suggesting changes, and in visiting the manufacturers of the new "Transverter," making tests of its efficiency and preparing a description of it, and in visiting the factory of the Cleveland Electric Products Company, and talking over certain things with M. R. Berry, managing director of this company, and his engineering staff concerning the relative merit of certain things. But both these visits will be described a little later on.

Wotton Rexolux.

During my visit to Cleveland, I took the Rubber Tire route out to the factory of the Electric Products Company, and, by the way, took it so fast that, if a Speed Cop had been in sight and the streets in a condition to have allowed his two-wheeled go-devil to negotiate them, myself and Brother Leonard Morey, who is connected with the Sales Department would have landed in the hoose gow for life.

At the factory we met M. R. Berry, Managing Director of the company, with whom we had a pleasant and most enlightening chat.

The Wotton Rexolux is the apple of his eye, and if you want to remain a college chum of Brother Berry, do not take any bites out of his particular apple, and as I said before in the Department, it is a good apple too, is the Wotton; though for a short time I was misled into believing there were wormy spots. I had found, however, before visiting the factory, that this was not true, because on the way from New York, I had seen six of these machines in operation in theaters, had talked with the operators and examined closely into the performance, both electrical and mechanical, with the result that the charges made seem to be covered by the verdict of "Not Guilty."

The Wotton was very thoroughly described in the Department, sometime ago, and to re-describe it would be "Carrying coals to Newcastle." It is undisputably true that when the machine was first placed on the market, it contained some minor defects, as is practically always the case with newly designed machines; but, so far as I am able to ascertain, these defects have been remedied, and in the six theaters that I visited, it is but fair to say that the Wotton is giving very satisfactory results.

One change that has been made has to do with making the ventilation of the machines more effective, thus reducing the heating of the windings and the fields. I find that one of the complaints which reached me from several sources was due to nothing in the world but pure, unadulterated carelessness on the part of the operators, who evidently did not pay the attention they should have paid to the instructions that were printed in the Department sometime ago regarding the operation of the Wotton. They actually took off the top cap cover and poured oil into the well, instead of filling it through the passages made and provided for that purpose, and having broken the joint, they did not properly re-make it with the result that the oil leaked down on the commutator and, of course, that meant trouble in bunches, and trouble real quick, too.

It was found that some operators in starting the Rexolux on single phase, would forget to throw the switch over from starting to running position. To avoid this, or rather to render it impossible, the manufacturers have incorporated into the apparatus a Kick-Out switch which will stop the machine automatically in case the operator fails to throw his switch over from starting to running position.

In addition to this, a change has been made in the windings so that even should the Kick-out switch fail to operate, no permanent damage will be done to the machine.

In Detroit.

I arrived in Detroit at 9:35 P. M., the train displaying its usual proclivity, in failure to arrive on time. At the depot we were met by the combined outstretched hand of John A. McDonald, President Local Union No. 199, I.A.T.S.E.; H. Brewer, Chairman of the Reception Committee, appointed to see that the editor's money was counterfeit while in Detroit; R. J. Branch, Manager of the Enterprise Theater Equipment Company, and A. P. Lombard, of the Precision Machine Company, the last named of whom usually totes around two complete Simplex Projectors, one in each coat tail pocket. Look out for Brother Lombard; he came very nearly selling the editor a Simplex. The only way we escaped was by sitting down on him and stuffing his mouth full of snow. He just simply can't talk Simplex under those conditions, and taking into consideration the fact that the editorial one weighs 210 pounds, up ending himself was difficult.

At the Empire Theater we found a very representative gathering of managers and operators waiting to hear the gospel of projection. I am informed the gathering was not as large as it would have been had there been somewhat more civilized weather and a longer notice. The weather was, however, vile, and the notice had been short, so that what was accomplished was the result of energetic action, backed up by main strength and awkwardness. There were twenty-five exhibitors present, and about seventy-five operators, the same representing, I am told about 80 per cent. of the organized men, plus a few of the non-union element. Incidentally, let me remark to those same non-union men: I sincerely trust that when the gods are good to me, sometime in the not distant future, and I am again permitted to visit beautiful Detroit, you will all be inside the union, where you ought to be. I give this advice because, as I have told you times almost without number, I believe firmly, thoroughly, absolutely, and completely in the organization of moving picture machine operators, the same as I also believe in the complete, thorough, and absolute organization of the managers and exhibitors. It is the up-to-date, common sense way of doing business. Let both be thoroughly organized and deal together as organized bodies in a business-like way, by conceding the indisputable fact that each has rights which must and shall be respected.

We were obliged to curtail our talk to some extent because there had been a banquet arranged for after the "show," and the train being late caused a bit of a mix-up. As remarked the meeting was in the Empire Theater and, incidentally, I want to say that one of the most difficult things to do and do effectively is to talk to an audience in a large, half empty theater. There seems to be a sub-conscious effect on the speaker. Speaking under those conditions is a good deal like sawing hickory wood—a darned hard job. After the speaking, fifteen exhibitors and operators gathered at the Cafe Frontenac. It had been planned to have more than one hundred covers, but Detroit is blessed with, or is suffering from, according to how you want to view it, a wave of the very most reformiest kind of reform, and at 12 o'clock, prompt, the cork is shoved in, the lid clamped down, and the Chief of Police takes up a position at a point on or near its precise geographical center. It was finally arranged, however, to smuggle in a small party, and that is how the editor happens to be smuggled goods. And we came mighty near falling down even on the fifteen, because the manager of the Cafe, which by the way is quite some in the way of swell, had figured on our not being later than 11:30, whereas we did not arrive until long after midnight, and the kitchen had closed up. But the committee managed to get around that difficulty somehow, and the banquet was pulled off and was a very pleasant and thoroughly enjoyable affair. Afterwards there was a foregathering of kindred spirits in our room at the Hotel Statler, where we consumed good American language (and other things), until 3 A. M., at which time it occurred to some bright genius that the sheets on his bed needed wrinkling and soon we too crawled into the hay and slept the sleep of more or less utter innocence.

Next morning, bright and early, Brother Lombard and myself were loaded into Neighbor Branch's car (quite some flivver), and bubbled over to the factory of the Charles A. Strelinger Company, where we had a most pleasant chat with Friend Strelinger (there was a description of the Brush Lighting Outfit prepared, which will appear soon), after which a sight-seeing tour was arranged to the plant of the man who put Detroit most emphatically and decidedly on the map. You don't know who that was? Well, just think of Peace and you've got the dope.

The Ford Automobile Works is the most stupendous, almost unbelievable and thoroughly amazing proposition this particular editor ever had the privilege of inspecting. It was the experience of his young and unsophisticated life. Here are a few of the figures: 26,000 employes in one plant; one room ten acres in extent, containing $3,000,000 worth of machines, every darned one of which was industriously engaged in turning out parts for the Ford car; one electric generator supplying eleven thousand (11,000), amperes of D.C., at 135 volts, and capable of doubling that tremendous output. You would have to see the sight I saw to believe it exists, and unless you did see it you never could believe it or conceive of its amazing magnitude. But the magnitude of the thing, huge as it is, was not so much the thing which hit us square between the eyes as the method of putting Ford cars together. We were taken through parts which I am told are very seldom shown to visitors, namely, the assembly department. Man, man, man! As I before said, you would have to see it to believe it. One of the horde of men heaves a piece of iron on to a slowly moving traveling chain belt, upon which it rides very slowly along for perhaps 200 yards. On either side of the chain, which stands at workbench height, are men just as close together as they can stand and work comfortably. As that piece of iron "drifts" slowly between the first two men, each "does something" to it, and thereafter each man adds a nut, a part, a bolt, or tightens something, and at the end of that belt there is a completely assembled engine. Just beyond is another, much wider traveling belt upon one end of which is placed a bare chassis, and it is indeed a marvellous thing to watch it travel slowly along between the lines of men for a distance I should say of probably three to four hundred yards. It is nothing but the bare chassis when it starts along that belt. It travels on the belt for probably 200 yards and in that time receives its dashboard, filled gasoline tank, radiator, and several other parts, including the wheels, each man doing just one thing. For instance, one man sets the radiator in place as it drifts past him, the next man fastens its bolts, the next does something else, and so on until it drops off onto its own wheels, but is still carried slowly forward to where it finally drops automatically on to running rollers, which set the rear wheels spinning; at the same time a man places a suction hose on the end of the muffler, as by reason of the hind wheels spinning the engine automatically starts chugging away. A man then jumps up, squats on the gasoline tank, pulls a lever which releases the stop, and away goes Mr. Car, with everything except the body, under its own power, another man jerking the hose off the muffler. Good night! Cars while you wait. I stood there for quite some several minutes and get this—one car per minute went away under its own power and I am told that this process keeps up twenty-four hours every day. I have often heard the yarn, or at least I thought it was a yarn, that Ford turned out a car a minute. Well, by heavens, I have seen it with my own eyes, and now I believe it. I wouldn't have believed it under any other circumstances.

We were, through the courtesy of G. B. Fraze, assistant to Mr. Jewett, of the Ford Motion Picture Department, conducted through the developing and printing rooms of the Ford Film Producing Plant. We made certain suggestions to Mr. Fraze with regard to drying reels, which he said looked good to him and which we trust will be adopted. The moving picture department is quite extensive, and is being constantly improved. The Ford is putting out an Animated Weekly. We have not seen that particular thing as yet, but are told it compares very favorably with some of the regular animated weeklies.

In this connection I want to speak of one item as illustrating the way this man Ford does things. One of Detroit's operators secured a position in Mr. Ford's plant, because his health was poor and he thought possibly the change of work would be beneficial. He very soon developed tuberculosis. Now an ordinary large employer, as we know him, would simply have taken no interest at all in a matter of that kind. The man would have been "at home, sick," and the most to have been expected would be that his job would have been given back to him if he got well again. But not so with Mr. Ford, however. He spent approximately $700 on this total stranger, who was not even an old employe, in an endeavor to cure him, and was preparing to send him away to a different climate when the employe's well-to-do sister finally stepped in and made other arrangements. What do you think of that for an employer? Mind you this man was of no earthly interest to Mr. Ford except for his earning power as an employe—that is to say—from the usual employer's standpoint.

Since I have seen what I have seen in Detroit, and have heard what I have heard in Detroit, I have an abiding respect for Henry Ford. I wish to God we had more men like him in this great and glorious land of the supposed to be free.

The Detroit Local Union, No. 199, I. A., is in many respects exactly the kind I believe in. They do not take in every Tom, Dick and Harry, who happens to be operating a moving picture machine. They require that applicants demonstrate not only the fact that they are real operators, capable and competent to put a real picture on the screen and keep it there, but they also require that the applicant be of good character, meaning by this that he is the type of man who will respect his calling and do credit to the organization.

I want to endorse that proposition in the strongest possible way. The local has had a number of pretty strenuous fights, and has many times been under very heavy assessments. It has been heavily in debt more than once, but the boys have borne their own burdens, paid their just debts and asked no odds of anyone. They are fighters, and good fighters too, but—and here is another thing I thoroughly and absolutely agree with—they do not believe in dirty fighting. They don't go around wrecking anybody's projection machines and smashing up pianos and seats at two o'clock in the morning, nor are they heaving "stink bombs." They fight clean, and that is exactly my way of doing it. Don't fight unless you have to. If you are forced into a fight—if the other fellow won't listen to reason and won't give your just grievances due consideration, and thus compels you to fight, my policy is to so conduct that battle that they will know they have been mixed up in a genuine scrap. But do it clean. Don't run a knife into your opponent's back.

I did not see very much projection in Detroit. My time was taken up to a considerable extent with other matters, and the weather conditions were such that it was very disagreeable getting around, so I just visited most of the afternoon with President McDonnell and Brothers Lombard and Branch. I did, however, drop in at the Empire Theater to examine the safety device which will be described in a separate article. Brother M. Ruben is chief operator at the Empire. Of course, he knew I was there, therefore a report on projection would not be a very fair one, but most certainly while I was in the theater the picture was brilliantly lighted, the speed well handled, and the picture was very steady. Brother Ruben's projection room is very small, and the entrance leaves very much to be desired. However, it is well ventilated, the walls are black and he keeps the incandescent lights out while projecting. The observation ports are of generous width; also they are covered with glass. The rheostats are not in the operating room. Brother Reuben was pulling 37 amperes of current, projecting the picture on a mirror screen. The two Power's projectors are in excellent condition, although they have been running about one year and three months with but little repair. The rewinding is done by motor, and the rewinder is inside an iron casing, all of which, as I told Friend Ruben, is good, but there is no earthly use of rewinding at high sped where a motor is used. He should use a smaller pulley on the motor, or lower speed motor, or both; at least do something to very greatly reduce the speed of the rewinder, because it makes a lot of entirely useless noise. Also if anything happens to the rewinder the film would all be balled up, and that would not happen if the rewinder ran at low speed.

I dropped into the Washington theater for just a moment. Don Lewis, the operator, did not know I was there. There was a heavily tinted film on at the time, but the picture was very steady, and so far as I could judge with tinted stuff, the light was decidedly brilliant. Certainly the speed, for the two or three minutes that I watched the picture, left nothing to be desired.

I had made a few inquiries among the managers before the speaking started the night before and was informed that Detroit's operators were delivering the goods on the screen. After sizing up the type of men of which the local is composed I am very much inclined to believe that this is an exact statement of fact.

In closing I wish to most cordially thank the Detroit local for their hearty welcome, and their kndness to the stranger while he was within their gates. I hope at some future time to be able to visit there again when the weather conditions are more favorable, and then I will give them the "once over" right. The last words President McDonald said as we clasped hands at the depot were: "Richardson, I want you to know and feel that you are heartily welcome in Detroit any time you may come in the future."

(To be continued.)

A Correction.

C. D. Armstrong, Ashland, Wis., writes as follows:

> I notice in the projection department of February 12th my reply to yours of December 7, 1915, on the Meniscus-Bi-Convex question. I wish to call your attention to the fact that in the figure in the publication you show a bi-convex lens used with the meniscus whereas in the sketch I sent you showed a plano-convex. This alteration make a considerable difference in the comparison as in Fig. 1, between a combination consisting of two plano-convex lenses and a combination consisting of a meniscus or concave-convex and a bi-convex lens. The reason I showed the plano-convex in my sketch was that it simplified the matter is I thought the principal point you wished brought out was the substitution of a meniscus for a plano-convex as a rear condenser. Your query asked for relationship between meniscus-bi-convex and plano-bi-convex, which in substance would mean the difference between the rear condensers or the meniscus and plano-convex.
>
> Would you kindly make it clear that I used plano-convex lenses for illustration, front of combination, to simplify the article. If in each instance bi-convex lenses are used for front condensers the theory will still be consistent.

I am one thousand miles from New York and cannot, therefore, inspect your original sketch without much trouble and delay. If the error is mine—apologies.

THE NEW HANDBOOK

Ready About March 15

720 Pages, 318 Illustrations.

Price $4.00 Postpaid.

Send check, money order or registered currency now and get your copy hot off the press.

THE CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

17 Madison Ave., New York City

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

Waste Recovery in Film Factories.

In a very interesting conversation with a high official of the largest photo materials manufacturing company in the world, he spoke of the astonishing lack of modern factory efficiency prevalent in the majority of American film studios. He stated that if the company with which he is connected was one half as lax in its factory methods as the majority of studios with which he is acquainted—and there is no one who has a better or more intimate acquaintance than he—that his company would have long ago ceased to exist.

These are statements made in a private conversation and it would not be seemly to state in full his revelations but it is safe to say that could any good-sized studio eliminate by even fifty per cent. the avenues of waste in its organization that he pointed out, it would save many thousands of dollars annually.

Some of the evils, particularly in the studio end, have been pointed out from time to time by serious thinking men and each time such an article has appeared it has evoked a chorus of howls of derision from temperamental (?) directors who were tickled to death to obtain a little free publicity for themselves by refuting (?) the claims of the efficiency men. Possibly one reason that no capable efficiency man has been turned loose in any of the studios is because a man with all of the qualifications necessary to put a studio on an efficiency basis would be snapped up as a director at several times the salary he would get for experting.

One of the great sources of factory waste is the unused silver dissolved from the film during its fixation in the development process. It must be said in justice to the film manufacturers that the majority of them make at least some sort of an attempt at saving a part of this silver, but most of them allow more of it to escape than they save.

There are a number of reliable refiners who are only too glad to attack the job of refining studio wastes at moderate rates if given the opportunity.

As the different forms of waste require different treatment it is only natural that properly assorted waste brings a much higher return than an indiscriminate hodge podge of mud, film ends, perforations and tinfoil, contaminated with sweepings and paper refuse. It has been calculated that less than six per cent of the metallic silver in the virgin emulsion goes to make the completed image on the film and the remainder is, therefore, dissolved in the hypo solution.

Before taking up the more intricate process of silver recovery from spent hypo solution, it is well to take up the more simple preparation of other film waste for shipment to the refiner.

Perforation punchings should be kept clean and free from contamination by being discharged from the perforators through a chute into clean containers and emptied from these catch receptacles into sheet iron drums which may be sent back from the refiners and used repeatedly. As they have not been through the hypo solution they are very rich in silver. All containers for film should be of sheet metal, or if of wood should be lined with sheet iron not only to conform with shipping regulations but as a safeguard against fire.

Undeveloped film or leader stock as it is generally called, unless in very short pieces should be packed in rolls in metal containers the same as perforation punchings and never mixed with developed waste which contains only a small fraction of the silver content of leader stock.

It is a sad commentary on the reckless waste of film stock when, as at the present time, white leader stock is a drug on the market at 1/3 of a cent a foot, whereas it was formerly scarce at a cent a foot.

Developed waste is at a higher price than ever before on account of rumors that the celluloid base was being used abroad in the preparation of explosives. There has always been a limited use of celluloid waste for various industrial purposes but the records of the custom house do not show that there has been any undue inflation in the exportation of celluloid waste, when it is taken into account that most of the factories formerly operating in Europe are now closed down or used for other purposes, thus cutting down the normal European supply.

The tinfoil that is wrapped around each roll of film soon accumulates to a respectable weight and brings an unusually high price at this time. This is not inflammable and may be conveniently packed in empty hypo kegs.

A waste paper bailer should be part of the equipment of every studio. It may be true that the small amount received for baled paper waste is too small to be profitable, yet the lessening of the ever present fire risk is well worth the investment.

Many studios run their hypo solutions down the sewer, thus losing thousands of dollars. Others, a little more careful, run or even carry it in buckets to a row of leaky barrels and tubs outside the building and precipitate it when they think of it.

Hypo is a very cheap chemical and yet nearly every big studio wastes hundreds of dollars worth of it every year. It is a common practice in most places to empty a portion of the hypo tanks each day and then "freshen" the bath with more hypo and water. This is decidedly wrong! Each developing tank should have two hypo tanks, one containing an old and the other an entirely fresh bath. The developed film should go into the old bath for five minutes then be finished in the fresh bath. When the old bath becomes so saturated that it does not remove most of the milkiness in five minutes it should be run into the precipitating tank and an entirely fresh bath mixed; whereupon the former fresh tank becomes the old bath and the new solution the fresh bath.

Hypo forms with silver haloids two distinct compounds. Both of these compounds are transparent but one is soluble with difficulty and the other is very soluble. In the first compound, one molecule of hypo unites with one molecule of silver haloid, while the next and easily soluble compound is the same as the former with an additional molecule of hypo. An old or used bath tends to form this insoluble compound in the emulsion and consequently makes it exceedingly difficult to wash, but as soon as it strikes the fresh bath it takes up an additional molecule of hypo and becomes, as the term is, thoroughly fixed.

These are proven chemical facts ascertained years ago by two distinguished French photo chemists, A. Lumiere and M. Seynkowitz, and it seems very strange that so little attention has been paid to their investigations, the results of which have been widely published in photographic literature.

They demonstrated that a film, fixed in fresh hypo and soaked in water for five minutes, contained only a small fraction as much hypo as a film fixed in an old bath and washed for an hour in running water! By this method of two baths every ounce of use is extracted from the hypo and the smaller volume of concentrated silver-hypo solution renders the silver recovery much easier.

For the precipitation of the silver from the hypo two capacious tanks of concrete should be constructed a good distance away from the building; for the chemical used as a precipitant, when acted upon by an acid, produces a gas, the smallest quantity of which being present in the atmosphere of the dark room, fogs sensitive emulsion just as surely as sunlight would.

The two tanks should each be of sufficient capacity to hold at least a week's run of spent hypo; the top level of the lower one being below the bottom of the upper one. Each tank should be provided with a series of cocks or outlets or an adjustable syphon whereby the liquid can be drawn off at any desired level and a weather proof but easily removable cover and, if the size of the tank warrants, a small flight of steps for the laborer who shovels the silver sludge into barrels.

On account of the disintegrating action of the hypo solution the concrete should be protected by a heavy coat of asphalt.

The upper tank has an inlet pipe from the dark room through which it receives its charge of solution and all its outlets drain into the lower tank. The lower tank in turn drains into the sewer.

The precipitating solution is Liver of Sulphur of the cheapest commercial grade. It comes in large chunks of the fused chemical varying in color from light yellow to dark brown according to the purity. Chemically it is a mixture of indefinite polysulphides of sodium and potassium and the precipitate which it forms with the silver is silver sulphide, a dirty brownish black appearing substance. Liver of Sulphur is very soluble in water but on account of the large impervious pieces in which it comes it take a long time to dissolve unless broken up and breaking it up is no pleasant job as it has the quintuple fragrance of ancient eggs. It is a good plan, therefore, to have a stout barrel or hogshead with a snug fitting cover in which are placed water and chemical enough to have a saturated solution constantly on hand.

(To be continued.)

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

EACH DEPARTMENT

Of the Moving Picture World is edited by an expert with practical experience in his particular field. Do you follow them closely? Each issue is full of meat. A file of the Moving Picture World constitutes a valuable addition to your working library.

Why not obtain back issues in bound volume form!

Volume 26, 2474 pages, closely indexed, now ready. Price, $1.50.

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.,
17 Madison Ave., New York City.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by Clarence E. Sinn and S. M. Berg

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS concerning any phase of the work of the orchestral leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

Mr. Berg would be pleased to hear from those leaders and musicians who are using the Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets, which he prepares for the V-L-S-E, Metro, World, Equitable and Mutual feature releases, as to their practical usefulness and assistance in playing the pictures. He also invites any criticisms or suggestions from those interested in the work for their improvement, in the service of the film.

Musical Setting for "The Soul Market."

Released Feb. 28 by the Metro Pictures Corp'n.

SUGGESTIONS PREPARED BY S. M. BERG,
By special arrangement with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, N. Y.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of Metro films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "The Soul Market" were prepared by S. M. Berg of the New York publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T), or by a described action (marked D.)

Elaine Elton, a musical comedy prima donna, disgusted with her environment is sought by Millings, head of the theatrical trust. Jack Dexter, a clean-cut young man of wealth, falls in love with her and after various unsuccessful attempts to meet her he secures a position as the chauffeur. The auto is wrecked and Jack, keeping his identity secret, takes her to his own country home where she is tenderly cared for. Billings presses his suit and she almost accepts him, when she has a dream that depicts the awful consequences of such a step. On awakening she realizes that she loves Jack and when she learns of his wealth they are married.

Particular care must be taken in handling this picture:

Orchestra playing overture in theater and short scene of stage performance at 8¾. Scenes of lively supper party with specialty dancing, 17¼ to 22. Short agitato, 33¼. Supper and dancing scene, 65. Agitato and shot, 68 to 73.

The theme selected is "Oh, That We Two Were Maying."—Nevin.

Time schedule: five reels (about 5,200 feet), 78¼ minutes.

Time.		Sub-Titles or Descriptive Cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening.	Woodland Dreams Waltz—Waldteufel.
2½	T	Getting ready for the evening performance.
5	T	"I know women who would sell their very souls for jewelry."	Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Allegretta con expressione) (theme.)
6¼	T	"You'd better go Miss Elton"—
8¾	T	Overture.	Katinka Selection—Friml.
16¼	T	"You know you are not compelled"—
17¼	T	Billing's little supper behind closed doors.	La Gloria—Densmore. (One-step.)
18¼	D	When Dexter thinks of Elaine.	Repeat: Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Theme.)
18¾	D	At the restaurant again.	The Primrose Way—Edwards. (One-step.)
19	T	"You know little girl, I advised"—
20	D	Oriental Scene.	The Trombone Man — Hill. (One-step.)
21½	D	At the restaurant again.
22	T	A week passed.	Dialogue — Helmund. (Andante con moto.)
23¾	T	"He hangs out in there."
25¾	T	"The train leaves in one hour."	Eva Waltzes—Lehar.
28¾	T	After the performance.
30½	T	"I want you to bring my open car to-morrow"—	La Coquette—Onivas. (Moderato.)
31½	T	Next day.
33¼	D	When Elaine returns from viewing the precipice.	*Hurry No. 1.
34½	D	When Jack carries Elaine into the house.	Repeat: Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Theme.)
35¾	T	"You must be master here."	Heartstrings Waltz—Vecsey.
37½	T	"Phone Mr. Franklin, my manager"—
40	T	Dexter confides in his friend.	Repeat: Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Theme.)
42½	T	Later. Convalescent.
43½	T	Where there's a will—	Part I & II (Faust Ballet) (Allegretto)—Gounod (Adagio.)
46	T	"I have known your..your..driver..a long time—
48¼	T	"Why don't you tell her who you are?"	Part III (Faust Ballet) (Allegretto)—Gounod.
50¾	T	"Please leave me. I will give—
51¾	T	Elaine sees the crushing hand of Billings.	Part IV (Faust Ballet) (Moderato maestoso)—Gounod.
54¼	T	Elaine believes she has taken the right step.	Repeat: Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Theme.)
55½	T	"I am soon to be married to Mr. Billings."	Prelude—Jarnefelt. (Allegro quasi allegretto.)
57¾	T	The price.
59¼	T	Later. Elaine summons a physician.	Aria (F Minor), (Andante cantabile)—Schumann.
61½	T	"All right, I will arrange"—
62¾	T	The departure.	Liselotte—Adam. (Tempo rubato.)
64¼	T	An hour later. Elaine misses—
65	T	The gay little party arrives.	Free and Easy — Berger. (Polka.)
67	T	"Come on in the water's fine."
68½	D	When Jack separates Elaine from Billings.	*Dramatic Allegro No. 1.
68¾	T	"So the saint has turned sinner."	*Agitato No. 2.
69¾	D	Shot.
71½	T	"They have escaped in an automobile."
73¼	D	When the maid knocks at the door.	Basket of Roses—Albers. (Allegretto.)
74½	T	"Then it was all a terrible dream."
76¼	T	"It was a note from me saying I could not accept your very kind"—	Repeat: Oh, That We Two Were Maying. (Theme.)
78¼	T	The End.

Note: For the convenience of readers of the Moving Picture World a price list of the numbers suggested in the above cue-sheet is to be found in G. Schirmer's advertisement on page 1738.

New Musical Publications.

And their adaptability for the screen.
Reviewed by S. M. Berg.

THREE AFRICAN DANCES, Ring.....Chappell

1. The Call to the Feast. Moderato tempo in patrol form somewhat misterioso and oriental.
2. Luteta's Dance. Lento ma non troppo ¾. Tempo rubato.
3. Dance of the Warriors. Vivace 2-4. Broad with accel al fine.

No leader can afford to be without this excellent set of African dances. The number of real good compositions of this character is so limited that it will be a welcome addition to every musician's library.

PRELUDE (TRISTAN AND ISOLDE), Wagner.....Fisher

Admirably re-arranged by Charles J. Roberts from the original score. Ideal arrangement for smaller instrumental combinations. The Prelude langsam and schmachtend (slow and languishing), in A Minor 6-8.

VALSE CELESTIA, Smith.....Feist

This charming Valse, dedicated to Miss Anita Stewart of the Vitagraph Players, is well suited for dancing scenes or as a valse lento intermezzo. Mr. Smith is to be congratulated upon the practical orchestration as well as the excellent musical composition.

IT'S SO TEMPTIN', Monaco.....Feist

That prolific writer, James V. Monaco, composer of "The Pigeon Walk," has given us another of those foot-itching, can't-keep-still numbers which please an audience whenever they are played.

THE ROSARY, Nevin.....Strube

A new arrangement of the beautiful ballad has just been published for orchestra, arranged for violin, trombone or cornet solo and orchestrated by that well-known musician, Gustave Strube.

VALSE DIVINE Rosey.....Rosey

Arranged and compiled by George Rosey. The introduction is from L'Africaine (Meyerbeer). No. 1. A La bien-aimee (Schutt), and Parl a Valse (Arditi). No. 2. Kamennoi Ostrow (Rubinstein), and Humoreske (Dvorak). Mr. Rosey is to be congratulated in telling us where he gets his motifs from instead of leaving it to our imaginations.

KATINKA, Friml.....Schirmer

Rudolph Friml has been giving us a series of successful musical comedies, "Firefly," "High Jinks," etc. This year he seems to have excelled himself in pleasing melody with the musical play, "Katinka." In the selection there are the nine most popular hits of the show. Arranged by that master of craft, Carl Kiefert.

CHERIE VALSE, Shepherd.....Ricordi

We may whisper to our readers that "Mr. Shepherd" is a nom de plume of that very master musician, Mr. Irenee Berge. His lighter composition is published under this name. Musical conception and pleasing melody are always to be found in the works of this popular French composer.

Interesting Horsley Productions Coming

Four Five-Reelers and Four One-Reel Comedies to Be Released Within Four Weeks.

FORTHCOMING David Horsley productions to be released between now and the first of April will, it is promised, offer some interesting events in motion picture production. Within that period of time four of Mr. Horsley's five-reel productions will be distributed as Mutual Mae Gaston—Nan Christy—Lucy Payton.

Masterpictures, de Luxe Edition, besides four one-reel subjects which are to be released under the Cub Comedy brand name.

The first of the four five-reel subjects is "A Law Unto Himself," scheduled for release February 28. It is a story of the northwest mountains with the theme of vengeance for its plot, which has been treated in a new style by the author, Lilliam V. Brockwell. Mr. Horsley sent his company into the rugged country of the coast, where some wonderful scenic views were obtained for backgrounds.

"The Heart of Tara," the second five-reel release, scheduled for March 4, has a number of features to commend it. The featured players are William Clifford and Margaret Gibson. Prior to this release they were featured in separate productions, but with the idea of getting maximum playing strength Mr. Horsley merged them into one company. The support includes Marvel Spencer, Sherman Bainbridge, Marie James, Walter Spencer, Edward Alexander, Edward Roberts and Gordon Russell. The story is a romance of India with a love theme. Some moments of real thrill are interposed by the introduction of feats by the Bostock animals.

The second appearance of William Clifford and Margaret Gibson as co-stars will be marked with the release on March 25 of "The Hidden Law," the third of the five-reel features. Theodosia Harris, of Mr. Horsley's scenario staff, is responsible for the story, which is based on the theme of regeneration with settings in New York and the west. The theme is boldly treated.

In "The Love Liar," the last of the four five-reelers, scheduled for release March 27, Mr. Horsley will offer the most pretentious of all productions made to date at his Los Angeles studios. Eighteen distinct sets of great proportions are being used together with smaller but none the less elaborate set-ups, to say nothing of many remarkably beautiful exterior locations. "The Love Liar" is a psychological study made into scenario form by Crane Wilbur, who is cast for the titular role. It is an unusual sort of story, well developed, with a great human lesson underlying the fine exterior provided by a lavish production. Supporting Mr. Wilbur are Lucy Payton, Mae Gaston, Nan Christy and Ella Golden.

The four Cub Comedies releases during the month will be up to the standard established by previous releases. Director Fahrney is introducing some spectacular effects in the month's offerings, so that it is fair to expect something even a little better than in past Cubs. George Ovey will be featured in all releases of this brand.

BLUEBIRDS IN SALT LAKE CITY.

Carl Stearn, manager of the Denver office of Bluebird Photoplays, has contracted with the American Theater, Salt Lake City, to show Bluebirds once a week. The American is one of the largest exclusive picture theaters in the United States, seating three thousand people.

Gillette in Essanay Production

Famous Author-Manager-Player Will Be Seen in "Secret Service" and "Sherlock Holmes."

"SECRET SERVICE" and "Sherlock Holmes" will be produced by Essanay with William Gillette, and released as a multiple reel feature on the V-L-S-E. program. This star, acknowledged one of the greatest actors of the American stage, has contracted to appear in the photoplay versions of his phenomenal stage successes. He has just begun work before the camera for "Sherlock Holmes," which will be the first release. "Secret Service" will follow shortly after.

Mr. Gillette has just closed an unusually successful season on the stage and went to Essanay immediately after his last performance. He has never before consented to adapt to pictures the plays which he wrote and made famous in playing the leading roles. The popularity awaiting picturization of these two gripping dramas has been recognized by producers for some time, but repeatedly Mr. Gillette has rejected all offers until he agreed to play for Essanay.

William Gillette.

William Gillette has had a stage career rivaled by few actors of all time. He was born in Hartford, Conn., July 24, 1855, the son of Francis Gillette, long a United States Senator from Connecticut. Following graduation from a preparatory school young Gillette chose the stage as his profession and played in stock companies while completing his education with special courses at the University of New York, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Boston University.

In 1877 he undertook theatrical work exclusively and played with stock companies successively at New Orleans, New York, Boston, Cincinnati and Louisville. By this time he had won national recognition and decided to attempt the staging of several plays which he had written for himself. This he did with encouraging success, and since he has written everything in which he has appeared.

"Sherlock Holmes" added to his fame and later "Secret Service" upheld the reputation he had won. Mr. Gillette is ideally suited to an active drama of tense situations, and the screen undoubtedly will add to his laurels. Mr. Gillette is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

"WHO'S GUILTY?" NEXT PATHE SERIES.

Announcement is made by Pathe Exchange that "Who's Guilty?" is to be the next series release by that company. The first episode is scheduled to appear in the latter part of April. The new series is being produced for Pathe by the Arrow Film Corporation and work is being rushed at the Yonkers studios of this concern. The "Who's Guilty?" series will consist of fourteen two-reel episodes, each episode a complete picture in itself. The scenarios have been selected from a number of sources, the theme being considered altogether too vast to be handled by one writer alone. Mrs. Wilson Woodrow has novelized the series, which will be published in leading newspapers throughout the country.

Anna Nilsson, who lately scored a big hit in the leading role of "Regeneration," and less recently in "The Scarlet Road," and "To Him That Hath," will be the woman star of the new series. Tom Moore, of the ever popular Moore trio, will play opposite her. The success of Pathe's "Who Pay's?" series proved there was a wide field for a series of related interest stories, and the insistent demands from exhibitors led tothe decision to produce the "Who's Guilty?" series.

"The Social Pirates" Ready

Bronson Howard Series Starts March 27—New York World Heads Newspaper List.

ALL the details of a most elaborate publicity campaign having been completed, Kalem announces that March 27 has been set as the release date for the first episode of the George Bronson Howard stories, "The Social Pirates."

Scene from "The Social Pirates" (Kalem).

Each Monday thereafter for fifteen weeks a two reel production will be issued as a special release through the General Film Company.

Simultaneous with the release of the different episodes the stories will be published in a list of newspapers that is said to set a new mark for series publication both in number and in quality. The list is headed by the New York World and includes such representative papers in each city as the Buffalo Times and the Chicago Record-Herald. In addition to the publication of the stories each of the newspapers will wage a strong publicity campaign in connection with the stories, the World alone having made preparations for the use of over thirty thousand lines of advertising space, coupled with posters on all delivery wagons and advantageous spots throughout the city. The first story will appear complete in the Evening World of Saturday, March 26, and the Bronson Howard series will be made a Saturday feature thereafter.

"The Little Monte Carlo" is the title of the episode chosen to start the Kalem special. In this episode Marion Sais and Ollie Kirkby, who are co-starring in the series, come to the rescue of a girl who has been wronged by a social vulture, and in a plot teeming with action meet the latter on his own ground and by a clever ruse, make him pay a bitter price for his wrong-doing. True Boardman, Thomas Lingham, Paul C. Hurst, and Edward Clisbee are among the others seen in this episode. A spectacular theater scene, a brilliant New Year's Eve in a gay lobster palace, and an elaborate and costly gambling room scene are among the sets which will give a foretaste of the magnificent scale on which the series has been produced.

Kalem officials are planning to back the new series with every sort of publicity aid that has ever been provided with a picture. The posters will be the last word in art and attractiveness, and will include a one, three and six sheet on each release. In addition it is planned to cover the country with a brilliant twenty-four sheet stand that has been pronounced by experts as one of the most striking stands ever issued. Arrangements have been made for special exhibition of these twenty-four sheets in all General Film exchanges within a few weeks.

There will be no "to be continued" feature to "The Social Pirates," each episode telling a complete story of an adventure participated in by the two clever girls who give the series its title.

ARTHUR DONALDSON IN NEW PRODUCTION.

Arthur Donaldson, the well known actor and director, is now working in a new feature production at the Standard Studio, Yonkers, N. Y., for the Arrow Film Company, under the direction of Lawrence McGill. He is to play the character lead as a banker, but the title of the picture has not as yet been decided upon.

V-L-S-E Managers Promoted

Sydney E. Abel's Removal to Chicago Opens Place for C. E. Shurtleff in Cleveland—Other Changes.

WITH the appointment of Sydney E. Abel as manager of the Chicago office of the V-L-S-E—the second largest office in the Big Four organization—comes the announcement that C. E. Shurtleff has been given the Cleveland branch, formerly in charge of Mr. Abel. Mr. Shurtleff's rise in the V-L-S-E has been conspicuous even among the many rapid promotions which have marked this organization's career. Only a few months ago, he was a salesman in the Atlanta office. His record there evidenced such efficiency that he was moved to Detroit the first of the year to take charge of the sub-office in that city, which was under the jurisdiction of the Cleveland branch. Mr. Shurtleff is succeeded in Cincinnati by C. E. Holah, who is widely known in the film circles of that city and its environs.

The Detroit office is now being managed under Mr. Shurtleff's supervision by J. M. Duncan, David Kline, who recently was placed in charge of that office, having resigned. Mr. Duncan has been with the Detroit sub-branch for some time.

A. L. Widner, who for several months past has been assistant booker in the Boston office of the Big Four, has been promoted to a position on the sales force of the Philadelphia branch, and will cover Delaware, parts of Maryland and New Jersey. I. A. Farrah, former manager of the General Film Company's branch office at Harrisburg, Pa., is another addition to the Philadelphia office, covering part of the State of Pennsylvania.

Power Company's Employees Dance

Annual Ball and Entertainment of the Cameragraph Club Is Largely Attended and Is Social Success.

THE annual ball of the Cameragraph Club, composed of the executives of the mechanical departments of the Nicholas Power Company, was held in Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn, on the eve of Washington's Brithday. In attendance were well over a thousand persons. Nicholas Power, who began the manufacture of projection apparatus years ago with a force of a man and a boy, beamed with satisfaction on his rapidly growing family. Mr. Power came early and remained late. In fact, he violated his customarily hard and fast rule of a 1 o'clock getaway from social functions and remained until the clocks were striking 3. He was all over the large hall, fraternizing with his associates, with the humbler as well as the important executives.

Assisting Mr. Power in "visiting" were Edward Earl, the treasurer of the company; John Francis Skerrett, general manager, and Will C. Smith, assistant general manager. The foregoing quartet constitute the honorary membership of the Cameragraph Club. Bill Barry, publicity manager, was chairman of the press committee, and contributed his share to making comfortable the guests of the evening. These included Charles Kessel and Mr. Campwell, head of projection in the Loew circuit.

The active membership of the Cameragraph Club is composed of the superintendent and foremen of the Power factory. Its original basis of a social club has been extended until now it not only has beneficial features but is an important factor in the efficient administration of the big shops which its members direct. Theodore Uhlemann, superintendent, is president. The other officers are: Vice-president, Ray Dengel; treasurer, S. S. Cassard, purchasing agent; financial secretary, Bennet Goldsmith; recording secretary, Arthur J. Lang; sergeant-at-arms, Bert Elsebeck. For the dance James A. Milligan was an efficient floor manager. James Stillman was chairman of the floor committee, Raymond Dengel of the entertainment committee and Hector McKinnon of the arrangement committee.

Motion pictures constituted a part of the entertainment. The booth came from the Picture Theater Equipment Company. The subjects were projected across the 125 foot dancing floor on to an Atmospheric Screen. These were supplemented by interesting and varied musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental. The grand march was led by Mr. Power and Miss Bird. Many baskets of pinks were distributed among the women dancers and added to the effectiveness of the spectacle, which was applauded by the "wall flowers."

The ball of the Cameragraph Club was an all-around pleasant occasion.

Schlank Succeeds Monaghan.

Edward Monaghan has resigned as secretary-treasurer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Omaha, Neb. Jacob Schlank has been selected to succeed him. The league has secured permanent quarters in Myrtle Hall and meets at two o'clock every Wednesday afternoon.

Mutual Seizes Pirated Film

Court Proceedings Instituted Against Manager of Fake Exchange in Edinburg, Va.—In Line With Policy of Protection.

THE Mutual Film Corporation has seized 125,000 feet of its film found in an "exchange" operated at Edinburg, Va., a small center in Shenandoah County. This is the second seizure to be made by the Mutual Film Corporation in the pursuit of films which have variously strayed from the storage vaults of its sixty-eight exchanges.

The Virginia seizure, a step in a civil action instituted in the courts of Shenandoah county, is a further step in pursuit of the announced policy of the Mutual to take out of circulation all of its films which had strayed into the hands of irregular exchanges, peddlers and "film pirates." The films discovered in Virginia were uncovered as a result of the efforts of a group of men to sell a stock of films made up largely of Mutual releases.

B. C. Cunningham, manager of the Washington, D. C., Mutual branch, operating under an assumed name, arranged to be approached by these men. Mr. Cunningham went over into Virginia to look the films over before agreeing to a "purchase." He was shown the stock and assured himself that it contained the property of the Mutual. Thousands of feet were submitted for his inspection.

The next step was a conference by wire with the legal department of the Mutual's home office in New York, which resulted in instructions to the Mutual's attorneys in Woodstock, Va., to take charge of the case and to institute such action as the circumstances seemed to warrant. Through these attorneys the Mutual Corporation has brought a suit "in detinue" in the Circuit Court of Shenandoah County, Virginia, alleging damages and demanding delivery of its films.

A. L. Hitner, the defendant named in the suit "in detinue," was formerly an exhibitor of motion pictures in Hackettstown, N. J., where he was a customer of the Mutual. He received reels of film on rental terms and with the understanding that they should be re-delivered to the Mutual. According to the charges in the action in the Virginia courts these reels were found still in his possession.

In a report of the inventory just received by the Mutual's legal department in New York, 125 releases of various dates were found in the Edinburg stock. About half that number of the releases of the General and Universal concerns were found, but not listed in the inventory as the action in the Shenandoah county court extends only to the Mutual films involved.

"This sort of happening may be expected from time to time until every foot of missing Mutual film is accounted for to us," said John C. Graham, assistant to the president of the Mutual. "The only reason for the existence of such situations has been the laxness of prosecutions. The Mutual is out to fight every such case to the finish. The value of the film involved has only a minor bearing on the purposes of the campaign. We are out to discourage any attempt on the part of any outsider to deal in Mutual films in any way."

The Mutual has recovered many hundreds of thousands of feet of "pirated" films in the last few months. Through the activities of Arthur F. Beck, manager of the Twenty-third street branch exchange in New York, missing films were traced to various "fences" and hiding places in New Jersey cities. In raids there more than two hundred thousand feet were seized and prosecutions were instituted against several persons.

UHLIG NOW WITH METRO.

Max Uhlig has been engaged by the Popular Plays and Players as assistant technical director. Before joining that company he was with the Ivan Film Productions, Inc. He began his career as a stagehand and traveled all over the country with repertoire companies. Later he played small comedy parts and then went into the motion picture business, where he has been successful. Mr. Uhlig has just completed some novel and artistic sets for "Playing with Fire," the Metro production in which Mme. Petrova is starred.

LOUISE LOVELY IN ANOTHER BLUEBIRD.

The success attained by "The Grip of Jealousy," the Bluebird release which introduced Louise Lovely as a motion picture star, has prompted General Manager M. H. Hoffman to release another feature with this pretty girl in the leading role. "Tangled Hearts," to be released April 2, will show Miss Lovely as a dashing young widow who solves everybody's problems and has none of her own.

Capt. Kleinschmidt Back From Europe

Famous Alaskan Explorer Has 15,000 Feet of Actual War Scenes from Three Fronts.

CAPT. F. E. KLEINSCHMIDT, the famous Alaskan explorer, has just returned from Europe, where he was in the thickest of the fight on the Russian, the Servian and the Italian fronts. The Moving Picture World has reported some of his movements and also the fact that he was highly favored by the general staff of Austria. The Captain comes back with something like fifteen thousand feet of films taken literally at the cannon's mouth. He had a retinue of servants placed at his disposal by the Austrian General Staff, and provided with two high-powered automobiles he had utmost liberty of movement.

Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt.

Needless to say the Captain improved his opportunities to the utmost, and the result is a collection of actual scenes at the front, the like of which cannot be found anywhere else. The Captain has been in fighting air craft over Venice; he has been through a submarine campaign in the Adriatic Sea; he was with the Central Powers when they stemmed the Russian flood at the Carpathian mountains, and he was with the advance guard of the Austrians at the capture of Belgrade. He has covered the war on the three fronts named with equal daring and thoroughness. Capt. Kleinschmidt is now busy in printing, preparing and editing the great mass of film he has brought over. This will be a task of some magnitude, but he expects to have the work finished within a week, when the first private showing will be held. The still pictures he has taken indicate the range and the accuracy of his work. The motion pictures have been thought important and valuable enough to be incorporated into the official archives of the German and Austrian war archives. A full report of these pictures will be found in an early issue of The Moving Picture World.

GOLDBURG AWAITING DEVELOPMENTS.

"The motion picture industry is no different from any other enterprise," once remarked Jesse J. Goldburg, one of the pioneers in the manufacturing and marketing of feature films. "In order to successfully engage in any branch of that infant industrial prodigy one must necessarily give deep study to its technical details."

Mr. Goldburg established a high-water mark record in the manufacture and sale of a succession of high class features during his connection with the Life Photo Company, as general manager. In order to fit himself to meet any emergency that might arise, Mr. Goldburg made a thorough study of every branch of the film business and engaged in the practical workings of every department including the writing of scenarios, supervising the producing and acting as advertising, publicity and sales manager. Some of the more important productions with which his name is linked are "The Greyhound," "Captain Swift," "The Ordeal," "The Avalanche," and "Driftwood."

There are few men in the film industry more widely or better known than Mr. Goldburg. Since his severance of connections with the Ocean Film Corporation he has refrained from making any announcement of his future plans other than to say, "I am awaiting developments in the business. Some radical changes seem to be brewing and I prefer to await the time when I may take advantage of new conditions that seem bound to arise in the near future. Until then I am sitting 'tight.'"

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

Two Biograph Productions

"The Mystery of Orcival," in Three Reels—"The Grip of Gold," a Two-Part Drama.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

"The Mystery of Orcival."

WHEN the Biograph scenario editor came to adapting Emile Gaboriau's novel, he encountered an over-abundance of plot material for a three-part picture and faced the difficult task of making the story reasonably complete and at the same time clear. Altogether he succeeded very well by using the topsy-turvy method of construction popular with writers of mystery tales. In the very first scene, without any explanation, we see the body of a woman being carried to a secluded spot in the woods. We surmise that she has been murdered, and then, bit by bit, the events leading up to the tragedy are pieced together, until "The Mystery of Orcival" is a mystery no longer. For a story of this type, probably the roundabout method used is better than direct narrative.

Considered as a sample of artistic photoplay workmanship, in which locations, photography and lighting are important factors, Director J. Farrell Macdonald's production is admirable. It is a picture of France made in California and there is nothing lacking in the picturesqueness of the exteriors, or the richness of interior furnishings. There is plenty to gratify the eye and there should be enough uncertainty in the involved plot to hold the attention. In fact, it is a production that demands strict attention if the full meaning is to be caught.

Gretchen Hartman plays a countess who poisons her husband and soon tastes the bitterness of disillusionment in her love for the man who inspired the crime. The finding of her lifeless body starts the investigation which opens the door to a closet filled with family skeletons. Miss Hartman gives an able performance and is capably assisted by Jack Drumeir, Charles Mailes, G. Raymond Nye, Vera Sisson and Jack Mulhall.

"The Grip of Gold."

In this drama of crooks and an honest girl with an active conscience, we have a nicely balanced two-part production, easy to follow and likely to arouse sympathy for the character played by Claire McDowell. It is neither more nor less improbable than the customary run of fiction based on the efforts of thieves to implicate an innocent woman in their operations.

The manner in which a poor girl, out of employment and threatened with eviction by her landlady, becomes the custodian of money stolen from a bank, is plausible. Also, it is in accord with photoplay precedent that in later years, when she is the wife of a wealthy broker, her good name should be threatened. But meanwhile she has returned the stolen money and the thief dies, so all is well. Walter V. Coyle directed the picture with Charles Mailes, Ivan Christy and Jose Ruben in prominent roles.

Scene from "The Grip of Gold" (Biograph).

"The Strength of the Weak"

Mary Fuller Appears at Her Best in Adaptation of Stage Drama—A Bluebird Photoplay.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE sex interest in William Addison Lathrop's adaptation of a play by Alice M. Smith and Charlotte Thompson is dominant. Quite in accord with the prevailing style of giving unpleasant relationships a romantic garb and sentimental trimmings, "The Strength of the Weak" is likely to attract favorable attention, for it is a well made picture and one in which Mary Fuller figures very attractively. Miss Fuller seems to have lost considerable weight in recent months and in doing so she has increased in girlish charm—a charm that does much to stir sympathy for Pauline D'Arcy, the unfortunate heroine of this tale.

Scene from "The Strength of the Weak" (Bluebird).

A suggestion of the plot will indicate the need for careful treatment, likewise the advantage of featuring an actress capable of portraying guileless innocence. Left without a protector after the death of her father, Pauline, an untutored country girl, becomes the ward of a designing middle-aged man. Their relation is soon altered to one of greater intimacy, but Adams, who has changed his name to Abbott, is not prepared to marry. As a matter of fact, he already has a wife, although Pauline knows nothing of this and goes to college believing that following her graduation her relationship with Adams will be legalized. She falls in love with the son of the man who betrayed her and the way is cleared for the inevitable climax—father and son brought face to face in a conflict over the same woman.

The story is expertly contrived to give adequate preparation for each new situation. The pertinence of scenes in the early reels that serve to indicate the tendencies of the characters, is revealed in later passages, strengthened by a wise use of cut-backs. For instance, we see just why Adams, Jr., is inclined to be tolerant when Pauline narrates her experiences. All through the picture there are similar touches designed to give a full understanding of the characters. Director Lucius Henderson staged many attractive scenes, first near the country home of Pauline, then in the gay resorts of New York, and later at a college for young women where Miss Fuller appears in cap and gown. Edwards Davis is too artificial and melodramatic to be convincing in the role of Adams, Sr.; but for the rest, the cast is efficient, with Harry Hilliard as the son and Curtis Benton as an annoying friend.

Fritz de Lint, playing prominent roles in Popular Plays and Players productions for the Metro program, was formerly an officer in the army of Norway.

• • •

Cleo Madison is rapidly approaching the concluding scenes in her production of "A Soul's Crucible," a five reel psychological drama by herself and Kathleen Kerrigan. Miss Madison is featured in this offering and is supported by a cast including Edward Hearn, William Mong and Ray Hanford.

"The Discard"

Essanay Photodrama Has Strong Appeal—With Ernest Maupain, Virginia Hammond and Harry Beaumont in Well-Assigned Cast.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

CHARLES MICHELSON, the well known, all-around newspaper man and short story author, has furnished a photodramatic story of excellent merit in "The Discard," a five-part V-L-S-E feature produced by Essanay, released on Monday, Feb. 28. In addition to fine constructive merit, the story has the charm of novelty, if not of originality, being quite away from the well beaten tracks in this field, as I know them. But, what is better than either of these, the story makes a continuous appeal that reaches its crescendo at the close, where the erring mother sacrifices all for the happiness of her daughter.

Scene from "The Discard" (Essanay).

There are also several delicate comedy touches in the action that will not be overlooked by the intelligent spectator. One of these is introduced by the subtitle "The course of true love never did run smooth," and shows the decidedly novel way in which young Keith Bourne, the leading juvenile of the story, seized the time and the place for popping the question. The happy young people are skating and suddenly get a cropper. While seated on the ice Keith hugs the girl with bearlike ferocity, much to her laughing content; but there is no kissing bee, an omission that makes the incident all the more enjoyable for the looker on.

Another clever bit of comedy is well brought out in the scenes where the accomplices (Grant and the Senoray Santander) are trying to entrap Keith, now a full fledged millionaire, in the purchase of bogus stock. Keith is ignorant, of course, of their connivance; and when his wife introduces the Senora as her "dear friend," and the "dear friend," in her most innocent manner, asks if he can assist her in the sale of a big roll of the stock referred to, he remembers that Grant (who had introduced himself as his uncle's friend), had expressed a desire to secure a large bunch of the same stock at a high figure. Then Keith does some rapid figuring, and sees a splendid chance to do a good turn for his "uncle's friend" and at the same time help his wife's "dear friend." He introduces Grant to the Senora, and the sale is made! The camera brings out mirthfully the grin of the two swindlers, and the exalted ego of Keith over his shrewdness as a business man.

Doris Wynne, the daughter of Alys Wynne has been brought up in a French boarding school, under the gentle rule of good Sisters. Her mother is chief aid to Python Grant, the leader of a daring band of swindlers, of both sexes, whose crimes have made him a marked man in both hemispheres. Doris loves her mother devotedly and mourns because she sees her so infrequently. Her school bills are paid through her mother's lawyers in Paris.

The outrageous swindling of a French nobleman by Grant and Alys lead to his suicide and to their flight to the United States.

Doris in the course of time is married to Keith Bourne, the brother of one of her schoolmates. Shortly afterward, he becomes heir to a rich uncle, who dies in America, and the happily married pair proceed to Palm Beach, Florida, for a rest before Keith takes charge of his business affairs.

"Python" Grant is a guest of the hotel at Palm Beach, where Keith and Doris stop, and he immediately lays plans to fleece Keith out of his fortune. Assisted by Senora y Santander and a man accomplice he attempts to sell Keith worthless stock and to induce him to join in a sharper's game of cards, but fails. Then when Keith goes to New York alone, expecting to rejoin his wife in about a week, Grant lures him to the home of Alys Wynne, who poses as Grant's wife. There Keith becomes compromised and is sued by Grant for $100,000, on the charge of alienation of his wife's affection. Keith settles the matter for $40,000, but his enemies employ the follow-up system and threaten to tell his wife unless he submits to their demands. He refuses, and Alys phones the young wife particulars.

Doris is in despair, and refuses to receive Keith when he comes to her. Then in her need she thinks of her mother and cables the lawyers in Paris for her address. In reply she is instructed to call at a hotel in New York and there meet her mother.

During the interview that follows, Alys is horrified to learn that the man whom she and Grant have been forcing to the wall is the husband of her only child. She advises Doris to believe in her husband, and then puts the police on Grant's trail and commits suicide. Known only by the name of Alys Wynne to her child, the newspaper accounts of the death of Mrs. Grant had no interest for her; but she never saw, nor heard of her mother again.

Ernest Maupain is at his best in the role of "Python" Grant. The brilliant cunning in laying plans, the cruel heartlessness in the ruin of his victims, the brave coolness in tight places, the masterful sway over his accomplices, and the devil-may-care attitude of Grant at the close of his career are all played to the life by M. Maupain. And Grant's character—as he appears in social life—bland, companionable, or gracious, as the mood served him, is also finely portrayed.

In the part of Alys Wynne, Miss Virginia Hammond has made her first important debut before the camera. It can be seen that nervousness at times has prevented her from appearing at her best, but she can be congratulated on giving us a worthy impersonation of a difficult part. The scene in which Alys seeks to delude Keith over her forlorn condition as a deserted wife, because of the trumped up charge of alienation in which he figured, might have been made much stronger for the spectator by contrastive lightning flashes of her simulated and real self—the simulated to be shown when Keith's eye was on her, the real when he was not observing her. The scene showing Alys visiting Doris at the French school and that other, where Doris visits her at the hotel in New York are both motherly and affecting. So also is that where she is selecting a fitting wedding present for her child. The choice of her wedding ring—the only honest thing she possessed—catches one's heart, because it has the true ring of the mother spirit, which had been kept unsullied amid all the slime of a wicked life. And the final scene, where she burns every record that might link the vile career of Mrs. Grant with the happy and pure wifehood of her daughter Doris, brings a tear of sympathy and of sorrow for the suicide.

Harry Beaumont, who gained his spurs with Edison companies, is very pleasing in the juvenile part of Keith Bourne, and his opposite, Betty Brown, plays the part of Doris Wynne quite winsomely. Miss Louise Ripley, Patrick Calhoun, Chas. J. Stine, Miss Gertrude Glover and John Cossar, are all to be commended for their impersonations of the minor characters, named respectively, Senora y Santander, Duc de Blauvrai, J. F. Smike, Ysabel Maxwell and Legrand.

"Fighting Blood"

Oscar Apfel Has Written and Produced a Five-Reel Melodrama for Fox—Many Sure-Fire Situations Please Audience.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THE quality of Oscar Apfel's work is well known to exhibitors. They generally find his offerings profitable and will again find it to be true in this latest one, "Fighting Blood," a five-reel Fox picture both written and produced by Director Apfel. The entertainment comes from the situations, the majority of which are rich in that sure-fire melodrama that brings tears to the susceptible and these tense moments are often pleasantly relieved by honest if elemental catches of humor. The thread of the story is not convincing; but there is no doubt about the humanity of its high lights. The players, William Farman and a strong cast, develop these situations very acceptably.

The central figure of the story is a minister descended from the Hardys who had fought in all the wars from Bunker Hill to Gettysburg. He is a fighter who in the first scene licks a much bigger man whom he finds abusing a horse. He gets a job in a lumber yard; falls in love with the daughter of the owner; is falsely accused of theft and goes to jail with the girl looking on. There's the usual scene with the old mother who dies in his arms at the close of the trial. In prison, he is converted and becomes a minister. The villain has married the girl; ruined the father and, in poverty and degradation, is making her help him in his gambling out west.

In the home town the "jail bird parson" finds that he can't keep his temper—he follows his tormenters and licks a barroomful. He too goes west with the man who had helped the villain and knows all about the theft. Again the minister, goaded to desperation, licks the village bully and wins the respect of every one. While this fight is on, there is another up stairs that the minister knows nothing about till it is all over. The gambler was trying to kill his wife; but is stopped by the converted tough and, in the struggle, is shot by his own pistol. The worthy climax comes at a meeting the minister is holding in the saloon. It is, as a whole, a very acceptable picture.

"The Craving"

Temperance Story Presented in Mutual Masterpicture de Luxe—William Russell Featured.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

AN attractive opening is given this five-part production made at the studios of the American Film Company. We get a glimpse or two of a college football team at rehearsal, previous to competing for honors in the big game of the season. This is followed quickly by a scene in which the trainer in rubbing down Foster, the hope of the college team, manages to spill some alcohol into his mouth, in accordance with the wicked plan of Oliver Bailey, a rival in love. On this latter incident is based the train of events that carries the story to its climax, for Foster Calhoun, who has a natural craving for alcohol, at this point of the story commences on a downward career, which is temporarily retarded by contact with a crippled waif whom he takes to live with him.

In the course of the story Foster in the west meets with a woman of the dance halls, who entices him to marry her; and at the close of the story, when Foster believes her to have been dead for months, she looms up as a disturbing element when he is about to marry his former love.

The story as told is interesting, but the presentation of the temperance lesson is not as forceful as it might have been.

Scene from "The Craving" (American).

The part played by the woman of the dance halls adds an unpleasant touch, and fails to present a sufficiently strong motive.

"The Redemption of Helene"

Three-Reel Lubin Production, Written by Julian Louis Lamothe and Directed by Edward Sloman.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE heroine of this three-reel photoplay is a devotee of dance. Although brought up in a small town, she is an adept at all the latest steps, and leaves her dying father in order to pursue her favorite pastime. Shortly after the elder Trent's death, Helene bids farewell to her home and her country sweetheart and takes the train for New York City. She quickly finds employment for her talent and appears at a "stag" banquet in a Gertrude Hoffman costume and dances on top of the supper table. She makes a marked impression on two of the guests—an artist and a theatrical manager. The artist is allowed to make love to her so long as he can supply the young lady with the money she requires. After he has strained his eyes by overwork and is threatened with blindness, Helene leaves him and secures an engagement with the theatrical manager. On the opening night the artist gets into her dressing-room and chokes her into insensibility, having torn the bandage from his eyes that he might square accounts with the woman who threw him over. His action costs him his eyesight, but, when Helene learns of what has happened, it awakens her better nature and a reconciliation is effected between the two.

Julian Louis Lamothe has written more convincing scenarios. He has drawn the character of his heroine consistently and clearly, but there is an "Ouida" atmosphere about the story that belongs to a past generation. Human beings as shallow and selfish as Helene Trent and her artist lover undoubtedly exist, but are hardly worth being made the leading characters in a three-reel photoplay. The country sweetheart has the good sense to fall in love with Helene's younger sister, and this incident is like a ray of sunshine in a dark room.

Helen Wolcott has the role of Helene Trent. It is one of her best impersonations for the screen. She realizes the type in its physical and mental attributes, and acts with sincerity and a creditable degree of skill. L. C. Shumway easily meets all the requirements of Charles Sturgis, the artist, and the remaining roles have been intrusted to George Routh, W. J. Spencer, Melvin Mayo, Benjamin Hopkins, May Cruzo, and Adelaide Bronti. Edward Sloman's production of the drama shows expert knowledge of his art.

Scene from "Redemption of Helene" (Lubin).

"The Little Orphan"

Em Gorman, a Clever Child Actress, Is Featured in Picture Made by Olympic Corporation.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

DESPITE the suggestion of the title of this five-part production, made by the Olympic Motion Picture Corporation and handled on the state rights plan by the Sun Photoplay Company, "The Little Orphan" is far from being a wholesome story of child life. It is out-and-out sex melodrama, presented with little delicacy and not open to the plea of justification on the score of true characterization. Why such a medium should have been selected for the exploitation of a talented little girl is difficult to comprehend.

The mother and father of "Little Nobody," who is born out of wedlock, are almost unbelievably inhuman. The child is left at an institution, from which it is taken by a physician, who meanwhile has married the mother, ignorant of the relationship. Coincidence—always much in evidence in this story—brings "Little Nobody's" father into the newly created home and the unpleasant secret is divulged. Soon the mother, estranged from her husband, becomes a drunkard and the little girl finds a home with her newsboy chum. To follow the ramifications of the plot would be superfluous, for it is all in the same improbable strain.

Scene from "The Little Orhpan" (Olympic).

On the credit side of the production may be placed the acting of Em Gorman, a bright, pleasing youngster, deserving of a more appropriate medium. Quite the most appealing passages in the picture show the little girl enjoying the companionship of her ragged friend, the newsboy who takes her into partnership. Many of the scenes were photographed on snow-covered streets, and here, as in other parts of the production, the camera work was excellent.

"She Came, She Saw, She Conquered."

The Second Kalem Release, with Rose Melville in Her Well-Known Character of Sis Hopkins.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

ROSE MELVILLE has brought a new character into screen drama. Familiar as her Sis Hopkins is to the spoken stage, she has made a unique place for her comic creation in the photoplay. The awkward figure, rampant pigtails and unbecoming clothes that have excited mirth in thousands of spectators in the theaters of this country belong to a personality whose rich fund of humor is distinctive so far as the moving picture play is concerned. The screen has had "rube" comedians aplenty and character soubrettes by the score, but Miss Melville has a method all her own and registers her points with surprising ease.

Scene from "She Came, She Saw, She Conquered" (Kalem).

The secret of much of Miss Melville's popularity and power to amuse is explained when the amount of human nature to be found in Sis is fully understood. No matter how heartily an audience may laugh at Pa Hopkins' gal it is always in sympathy with the uncouth but true-hearted country girl. There is something appealing in Sis as Miss Melville has drawn her, and this side of the character is shown clearly in "She Came, She Saw, She Conquered," the second one-reel comedy produced by the Kalem Company for their latest star.

The scenario is not a world-beater, but it does not run entirely to horseplay. Miss Melville appreciates the value of character and secures her laughs by an easy, natural method of funmaking that tells for permanent success. The plot of the comedy relates how Sis goes to the city to become an artist's model. A series of mishaps is the result of her attempt, and she is glad to go back to Pa. The supporting company consists of Ed Lawrence, Frank Minzey, Arthur Albertson, Richard Purdon, Henry Murdock, Minerva Florence, Marjorie Cohan, Mary Kennedy and Olive West.

"The Immortal Flame."

Maude Fealy Is Starred in Melodrama Written and Produced by Ivan Abramson—Released in Five Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

AT LEAST there is a certain consistency in this melodrama for which Ivan Abramson, as author and director, assumes full responsibility. It is all in the same overwrought mood. Granting the need for stories of this type—and seemingly they have been found profitable by the Ivan Film company—the players concerned may as well follow the lead of the author by casting restraint aside and acting each scene with feverish intensity. The result could scarcely be called artistic, but "The Immortal Flame," in common with other pictures made by Mr. Abramson, possesses an emotional force and a sensational quality always effective with devotees of melodrama.

Maude Fealy, playing a woman who enters into a loveless marriage in order to further the political ambitions of her father, is far and away the most striking member of the cast. Profiting by a long screen experience Miss Fealy acts every scene for all it is worth, and in the last reel gives an astounding exhibition of physical daring, when, lightly clad, she wanders out on snow-covered Riverside Drive and enters the icy waters of the Hudson river. The picture closes with a glimpse of her body floating with the tide. She is the victim of an unfortunate love affair that is followed with sufficient completeness in the earlier reels of the story.

James Cooley, cast as the composer who arouses such lasting emotion in the heart of Ada, acts with plenty of fervor, but his appearance in several scenes suffers from an unreal make-up. The streaks of white in his hair are too obviously artificial. In the part of the woman whom he marries out of sympathy, not for love, Paula Shay appears reasonably well and Kittens Reicherts, always an attractive child on the screen, is appealing as the adopted daughter of a mismated couple. Joseph Burke, playing a member of Congress, does not suggest a very influential statesman.

Mr. Abramson took his company to Washington in order to give the picture correct backgrounds for a story of Washington life, and the opening reel profits by well photographed views of public buildings and monuments. Some of the interiors are quite elaborate and all of them are in good taste.

Scene from "The Immortal Flame" (Ivan).

"Drugged Waters."

Five-Reel Red Feather Production Featuring Gloria Fonda and William C. Dowlan as Young Couple.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THERE is a fresh, pleasing comedy motive in this production, but the action is not strong enough at times to keep the story from dragging. Told in a less number of reels this would have been more appealing.

Leonoria Ainsworth, who wrote the scenario, has hit upon a unique situation and fresh subject matter. The picture opens showing the girl, attractively portrayed by Gloria Fonda, in possession of a mineral spring resort. She has inherited this from her father, but the mineral properties of the water have always been bought at a drug store. Her manager, desiring to marry the girl, says he will keep the secret if she will marry him.

Scene from "Drugged Waters" (Red Feather).

The girl is properly horrified when she learns the spring is medicated by hand. She does not love the manager and refuses him. Then comes along the hero, a young doctor, impersonated by William C. Dowlan. He catches the manager in the act of doctoring the spring and overhears him threaten the girl with exposure if she does not wed him. The young doctor steps in and says he will make the resort pay without the mineral water.

The sanitarium scenes, in which a large number of men and women patients are put through daily baths and exercises are amusing, but strung out too much. More villainy on the part of the manager would have kept the plot stirring to better advantage. At the same time the production contains many elements of genuine appeal. It has a very desirable comedy tone all through, and is brightly pictured. The settings are pleasing. The rainstorm scenes make a natural and pleasing feature.

Others in the cast are E. P. Evers, George Berrall, Lule Warrenton, H. F. Crane, Mary Ruby and William Quinn.

Triangle Program

"The Raiders," Five-Reel Kay-Bee, and "The Bright Lights," Two-Reel Keystone.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"The Raiders."

A STORY of the attempted ruin of a millionaire by his brokers while in seclusion for his health, and his rescue by his daughter and a twenty-dollar-a-week clerk, "The Raiders" in practically all its details, from the stock-exchange scenes to the last minute dash in a motor car has been done so often, even in the days when one reel was the limit, that the value of its resurrection is doubtful. If it must be raised again, its deserved rest once more disturbed, why not improve on it a little instead of resorting to such outworn devices as that generally known to theatrical hacks as the "dropped letter," the stalest of them all. The millionaire desires that his confidential broker shall alone know that he is going to a certain quiet place in the Adirondacks, but, instead of whispering it, he writes it out on a card, and the card is left where anyone standing near the broker's desk can see it. It would not require a remarkable exhibition of ingenuity for the millionaire's daughter to discover by simple and rational means where her father is going. There are other incidents which may well be omitted in future editions, for instance the one which brings the clerk face to face with the millionaire he is trying to save, where he refuses to say that he has discovered a conspiracy to defraud the man of wealth during his absence, simply because there are other's present. There was no need of bringing the two men into a relation close enough for that to be done. The unbelievable should be eliminated wherever and whenever possible.

The cast of "The Raiders" is generally good. Mr. H. B. Warner is featured, but his opportunities are scant. Honors really go to Henry Belmar as the millionaire. His performance becomes impressive through dignity well maintained, and through highly intelligent impersonation.

Scene from "The Raiders" (Kay-Bee).

"The Bright Lights."

"The Bright Lights" is one of the most strenuous offerings ever visualized by the Keystone Company, an amusing story to begin with, that of Fatty's sorrows when Mabel elopes from the local cabaret with a tempter to get a glimpse of Manhattan's Great White Way, and of his guileless pursuit.

The tempter leads poor little Mabel into one of the toughest kind of below-pavement joints, where she is scared almost out of her senses by as choice a group of pugs as have ever been shown on the screen—they required no makeup. A sailor is dragged out of the den by the bouncer and bent on revenge, goes in search of his own gang. Fatty, his pockets filled with red apples, finds his way to the same locality by one of those miracles which become everyday affairs in the movies and discovers Mabel through recognition of her picture by a rival for the tempter's favors, a hardened lady of the underworld. Fatty buts in and is thrown out. The sailor brings his gang, a bunch of athletic-looking tars, real ones, and a furious struggle ensues, so realistic that many of the participants found the play entirely too realistic when they woke up in the hospital. Fatty dominates by his irresistible humor and fine appreciation of what is amusing in human nature. The farce is headed for instantaneous and lasting success.

"The Fate of the Flood Waters"

Henry McRae Proves His Versatility as Director by Dramatizing Southern California's Rushing Torrents.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS two-reel Bison production contains an entertaining little story built around the flood water situation recently prevailing in Southern California. Henry McRae is the director who saw good drama in the swirling waters and succeeded in getting it for the screen. He was assisted by a company of daring performers and personal risks are frequently shown in the course of the story.

The plot contains a certain amount of ingenuity, though it only serves to hang the situations together. At the opening of the story two small towns are seen striving for supremacy. The leaders of both meetings are of course enemies, but the son and daughter love each other and threaten to marry in spite of the jealousy between the towns. The town of Bigelow is near a large dam.

The superintendent of the construction work is discharged.

Scene from "The Fate of the Flood Waters" (Universal).

He also loves the girl and is determined to have her. To this end he conspires with citizens of Dunsmore to wreck the town of Bigelow by blowing up the dam.

This leads up to the main situations, the explosion of the dam being merely an artifice for bringing in the flood waters. Citizens of Bigelow, seeing that their town is threatened, succeed in diverting the stream so that it wipes out Dunsmore instead. Among the risky things accomplished after the blowing up of the dam might be mentioned the fall from the horse, the collapse of the bridge and much realistic personal work in the angry currents by swimmers.

"The Pawn of Fate"

George Beban Plays an Outraged French Peasant in a Five-Reel World Film Offering—Maintains Interest.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

TELLING a story hardly full enough to need five reels of film, the latest George Beban offering by the World Film Company, "The Pawn of Fate" keeps one's interest by the art of its rural scenes, by the situations which are often human and simple and at times tense, and by a sense of light-heartedness that the actors give to much of the early part of the story.

The value of the picture is that it gives Beban a good medium for characterization, and Doris Kenyon, as his wife, is behind him not a whit in character drawing and picturing states of mind. As a whole, it is an offering that can be relied upon, though it gives plenty of chances for a critic to find fault—with photography now and then, once in a while with costuming, and occasionally with the setting. Some may notice that the action moves rather slowly during four reels. There is a nude in the opening scenes that adds nothing to the picture; but an exhibitor can easily clip it all out without harming the rest if he so desires, or, if his audiences want it in, there it is.

The story centers in an ignorant, simple-hearted peasant, a Normandy shepherd, played by George Beban. A city artist comes and takes a fancy to the peasant's pretty wife Doris Kenyon. He cannot impress her at all; she is too innocent to understand him. The shepherd tries to draw. The artist tells him he is a great painter, a genius, and brings him to Paris where he is heralded as an important person. His picture—we are permitted to see it—is unveiled. It is marvelously bad. The poor man had been kept thinking that he was a wonder and is now laughed at by every one and pilloried in the papers. What is more, it dawns on him that his wife is connected with it all. She is innocent, but he doesn't believe this. This climax is rich in chances to act and is taken good advantage of by both the leading players.

Some of the rural scenes are tinted and are extremely artistic.

"Diplomacy"

Marie Doro Is Featured in Famous Players Story of Love and Diplomatic Intrigue.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

MARIE DORO is featured in the Famous Players-Charles Frohman production of "Diplomacy," which was released on the Paramount program on February 28. It is a picture that interests at all times and contains strong moments. The story is of diplomatic intrigue and it is played by an excellent cast. On the production side, too, much care has been taken. There are large sets, one of the notable ones being of a ballroom and many dancers. Another is of a hotel lobby. The picture was taken in the South, the extreme South, and beautiful exteriors are provided.

Scene from "Diplomacy" (Famous Players).

Miss Doro has the role of Dora, a young woman in love with an Englishman who in the beginning has limited means. Her part, as in fact is the whole story, is one of straight drama. In the course of the story there are many occasions where she is given opportunity for emotional portrayal and well does she acquit herself. Elliott Dexter is Julian, the Englishman who through an appointment in the diplomatic service and the successful issue of an investment is permitted to win the consent of Dora's mother to the marriage. Mr. Dexter is wholesome, likable. Frank Losee is Henri, the older brother of Julian, and, like Frank Losee, he fits his part.

Russell Bassett is Baron Stein, the foreign diplomat seeking at all times the advantage of his government. Mr. Bassett has a strong role, and makes it stand out. George Majeroni is a polished Count Orloff, who wrongly suspects Dora of causing his arrest in Russia and nearly breaks up a honeymoon. Edith Campbell Walker is interesting as the instrument of Stein.

"Diplomacy" is a good picture. It has pictorial quality, is well produced, is finely acted, and contains an interesting story.

Pathe's "Little Mary Sunshine"

Features Youngest Leading Woman in the World—Henry King Directs and Plays in the Picture.

Baby Marie Osborne loses her amateur standing as a guileless kid and assumes the professional dignity of an honest-to-goodness leading lady in "Little Mary Sunshine," a Pathe Gold Rooster Play that propels us with an urgent, though delicate touch back to the free spaces of the "never-never land."

"Little Mary Sunshine," is one of those "once upon a time" butterflies through whose gauzy wing we see life in rare and delightful tints. Five reels isn't a scene too long for "Little Mary," who, thank heaven, doesn't realize the charm of her fat little self and never overdoes the "saccharine stuff." Her utter unconsciousness of herself is a revelation in art, particularly in one so young, and points encouragingly to a brilliant stage career. Director Henry King, who also plays the male lead in the picture, deserves more than passing notice for his masterly handling of the child and his delicate, knowing touch on a play that was woven of fancy's woof. King will be remembered as the male lead in the famous "Who Pays?" series and former Pathe feature releases. He is an actor of intelligence and subtlety, and a personality that is impressive. His handling of the "little things," the "tremendous trifles" in the direction of this feature shows him an artist of depth and certainty.

Marguerite Nichols, who plays Sylvia Sanford, Bob's sweetheart, is an ingenue of convincing appeal. Andrew Arbuckle does the "leave-it-to-dad" stuff happily, and Mollie McConnell as Sylvia's mother shows the ease and refinement that has characterized her work from the beginning. The picture will be released March 3.

"Features" in Three Reels

Intense and Spectacular Dramas by Popular Writers Included in Biograph Program for March.

"MINIMUM FOOTAGE" has always been the Biograph policy, and when this company began releasing in the regular multiple reel productions comparable with its famous "Judith of Bethulia," the policy was emphasized in announcements that the footage of these productions would continue to be determined in the cutting room. On this basis, for more than a year, there have been released a great number of three-reel Biographs which, in rspect of story, cast, direction and production, have been properly classed as "features."

Particularly interesting in consideration of these facts is the Biograph program for March, full announcement of which is given in the latest issue of "Programs," just off the press. In addition to other releases of high quality, there are listed five "features in three reels," as these subjects are designated.

"The Indian," the three reel Biograph released March 1, has already been reviewed in these columns. It is a spectacular drama of the Indian's last stand against the white man's tyranny, with plenty of "big" scenes that are really big.

"The Mystery of Orcival" is the famous detective story by Emile Gaboriau, in which a criminal mystery is dramatically solved by a real detective. "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," released March 15, is the Broadway success of a few years ago, founded upon Anne Warner's famous story of the old maid who grew young again through helping in the adjustment of other people's love affairs.

Another popular writer contributes the daring story of the next production in the series, "The Battle of Truth," by William Hamilton Osborne. This is an unusual production, the story requiring much clever camera work, especially in the scenes where the eye-witness to a double murder is confronted with apparent proof that the crime was never committed. It is released March 22.

Rounding out the remarkable list of three reel subjects is Augustin Daly's greatest play, "Madelaine Morel," the dramatic story of a girl whose former lover would not permit her to retrieve the past by marrying a man who loved her, although he was about to marry with the stain of her seduction on his conscience. This is an elaborate production, abounding in settings of the quality for which Biograph has long been distinguished. Betty Gray has the title role, and is ably supported by Gretchen Hartman, Alan Hale and William Russell.

The four Biograph reissues directed by D. W. Griffith, scheduled for March, have already been reviewed in these columns. They are "The House of Darkness," "The Lady and the Mouse," "His Mother's Scarf" and "The Golden Supper."

Completing the March program are two interesting two reel Biographs, "A Grip of Gold" and "Alias Jimmie Barton." Both productions bear the stamp of authority and have obviously been subject to the "minimum footage" policy.

HALLBERG AT THE MADISON SQUARE SCREEN CLUB BALL.

J. H. Hallberg, the Motion Picture Machine and Equipment Distributor of 36 East 23d street, New York City, occupied two of the most prominent boxes, Nos. 73 and 75, where he entertained a number of friends, among them being former Fire Chief Croker of New York City; Asa Cassidy, President of the Miner Lithographing Co.; Robert M. Schmid, Production Manager for the Trautman, Bailey & Blampey Lithographing Co.; C. M. Budd, and E. Early. The women were Mrs. Cassidy, Mrs. Budd, Mrs. Hallberg, Miss Doughty, Miss Day and Miss Murray.

Among the other invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Rothapfel, but on account of pressing business concerning the new Colonial Theater in Chicago, Mr. Rothapfel found it impossible, at the last moment, to attend. Mr. Hallberg's boxes were busy ones and he increased his already extensive acquaintance. M. L. Livingston, Office Manager for Mr. Hallberg, was also prominently in evidence at the ball.

PHOENIX HAS COSMOFOTOFILM IN NEW ENGLAND.

The Phoenix Feature Film Corporation of New England, with offices at Boston, and Ellsworth, Maine, are handling in their teritory several of the London Film productions released by Paul Cromelin of the Cosmofotofilm Co. Among them may be named "Liberty Hall," "A Message from the Sky," "The Black Spot," and "Called Back," which together with the "Incomparable Mistress Bellairs," form a five number list which it would be difficult to improve. As will be remembered, "Mistress Bellairs" was featured at the New York Hippodrome when that house used pictures last summer.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company.

PLUCK AND LUCK (Vim), Feb. 18.—Robert Burns and Walter Stull, assisted by a much-enduring piano and a kit of plumber's tools, manage to keep the fun moving right along through this one-reel farce. Acrobatic comedies, in which the funny fall is the piece de resistance, many persons find vastly amusing, and the Vim pictures are equal to the best of them.

MAKING GOOD (Selig), Feb. 19.—How to capture three Mexicans, recover a bag of gold and "cinch" a sweetheart, are a trio of exploits that Tom Mix illustrates in this one-reel western drama. As Tom is on his native heath and has a horse to ride, he has small difficulty in making the reel interesting. Victoria Forde, Joe Ryan and and Pat Chrisman complete the cast.

THE REPENTANT (Lubin), Feb. 21.—The theme of this one-reel drama, written and directed by Leon D. Kent, is deeply religious. Two college students, who were close friends, are separated by their differences on religion. One of the men becomes a priest, the other an atheist. The latter's sweetheart turns from him, when he commands her to give up her Bible. The girl becomes a nurse. The atheist sees the error of his ways and is finally united to his old sweetheart. The story is clearly told and is well acted by L. C. Shumway, Jay Morley, George Berrell, Velma Whitman, Eleanor Blevins and Melvin Mayo.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 15, 1916 (Selig), Feb. 21.—Submarines, U. S. regulars and marines taking part in the carnival at Tampa, Fla.; flood at Cairo, Ill.; horse racing in the snow, Brighton, Mass.; wreck of ship "Excelsior," San Francisco; Col. Roosevelt leaving New York on steamship; hunting wolves near Seymour, Ind.; landslide, Seattle, Wash.; ski contest, Hanover, N. H.; Maori dances, New Zealand; U. S. regulars drilling at El Paso. The last news item is of unusual interest.

HUGHEY, THE PROCESS SERVER (Vitagraph), Feb. 21.—Hughie Mack, Kate Price, William Shea and Flora Finch, the Vitagraph Comedy Quartet, controve to inject a number of laughs into this one-reel farce of which Olive Flammer is the author. The theme of the picture is promising, but is only fairly well developed. Wally Van made the production.

HAM THE DIVER (Kalem), Feb. 22.—Ham and Bud are the authors of this one-reel farce and it does them proud. It has a freshness of theme and a breeziness of action that is refreshing. The two partners have the help of Ethel Teare, Jack MacDermott and Juanita Sponsler in their efforts to raise the laughs. A review of this picture appeared in the issue of Feb. 19, page 1143.

CANIMATED NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 5 (Essanay), Feb. 23.—Wallace A. Carlson animated cartoons of the latest news items and a Dreamy Dud picture take up the first five hundred feet of this reel. Mr. Carlson's keen sense of humor is at its best in this release and his skillful drawings add greatly to the merit of the offering. Views of Quebec and vicinity are also a part of the reel.

EARNING HIS SALT (Kalem), Feb. 23.—Ethel Teare is the star player in this one-reel comedy and Jack MacDermott is her leading support. The story has to do with the pranks of a wealthy young chap who tries to "earn his salt" and make a hit with his sweetheart as a public chauffeur. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of Feb. 19, page 1143.

BUNGLES ENFORCES THE LAW (Vim), Feb. 24.—The finishing episode of this one-reel farce is enough to insure its success. The picture is only fair up to this point, but the stunt performed by Bungles at the close of the reel is in a class by itself. He is dragged off the dock by a ferry boat and towed through the water at a lively pace.

SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 16, 1916 (Selig), Feb. 24.—Regulars at Fort Houston, San Antonio, in cavalry drill, is the excellent opening item. Large snow plow at work, East Weymouth, Mass.; breaking ground for Auditorium, Portland, Ore.; sleeping tents on roof of Hotel Lenox, Boston; Pauline Marron, dancer, San Francisco; great fire, Fall River, Mass.; Chief of Police Pullman talks to school children, Washington; transport Sherman arrives at San Francisco; Winter Carnival, Cambridge, Mass.; Frank Moran training at Saratoga Springs; feature picture, scenes in Africa; steamship fire, Brooklyn.

THE NIGHT WATCH (Kalem), Feb. 25.—There is excellent drama in this one-reel photoplay for which Howard Irving Young must be given the credit. The plot is a strong one, and shows a physician, forced to choose between love for his daughter and his duty to a patient. A review of the picture appeared in the issue of Feb. 19, page 1143.

FREDDY'S NARROW ESCAPE (Vitagraph), Feb. 25.—William Dangman, Helen Gurney, Daisy Devere, Frank Currier and William Lytell, Jr., constitute the efficient cast in this one-reel farce, written by Erward Montague and produced by Frank Currier. It is an amusing story of an ill-fated elopement, and the comedy complications are neatly put together.

BILLIE'S REVENGE (Lubin), Feb. 28.—Mr. William Reeves has a congenial role in this one-reel comedy, written by Lily Wandel and produced by Earl Metcalfe. He is made the victim of a practical joke by a number of his club friends, one of whom passes himself off as Billie's aunt—with the aid of the proper makeup. The comedy is quite laughable. William B. is assisted by Claarnce Jay Elmer, Clara Lambert and Carrie Reynolds.

A SAFE RISK (Selig), Feb. 28.—Exhibitors will not be taking the slightest risk in booking this one-reel comedy. It is novel, amusing and the fun moves at a good pace all through the picture. Sidney Smith, the producer, plays the hero, Bill Hardluck, a young man who takes out an accident policy and then takes desperate chances to meet with an accident, and collect. Mr. Smith is excellent in both capacities. Ralph McComus and Betty Nathan are also valuable members of the cast. C. B. Hoadley wrote the scenario.

General Film Company Specials.

POLITENESS PAYS (Essanay), Feb. 19.—This three-reel photoplay, written by Richard Goodall, belongs to that class of fiction where everything comes out right at the finish. There is a poor young man and a beautiful young heiress to befriend him, and the picture has the same elements that gave "Peg o' My Heart" and "The Cinderella Man" their success. John Junior and Betty Brown have the leading roles, and John Cossar and Marion Skinner are prominent members of a well-balanced cast.

THE MAN HE USED TO BE (Vitagraph), Feb. 19.—As a temperance lecture this three-reel drama, written by John S. Kelly and produced by Eugene Mullin, should prove a great success. It tells the story of a man who's life is nearly wrecked by drink, and tells it clearly and forcibly, but in narrative rather than in dramatic form. It is competently played by a cast that includes William Dunn, Belle Bruce, Naomi Childers, Mary Maurice, Charles Kent, Logan Paul, Edwina Robbins, Kate Price and Arthur Robinson.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE (No. 5, "The Alienist"—Essanay), Feb. 21.—The adventures of the heroine, as shown by the testimony given at the trial during this number of the Essanay serial continue to be full of interest. Mary's experience with David Pollock, according to the evidence of the alienist who is brought into the case, would have gone far in justifying her, had she fired the shot that killed him. The acting and stage management of the picture keep on the same high level.

THE BRIDESMAID'S SECRET (Essanay), Feb. 22.—And a very great secret it is, which Charles J. Brabin, the author and producer of this two-reel drama, places in the keeping of his heroine. The story deals with the "White Slave" traffic, and is told skilfully and with great force, up to the finish. Here the author strains an important point in order to make the climax more dramatic. John Lorenz, Fritzi Ridgeway and Marion Murray head a well selected cast.

THE GUILT OF STEPHEN ELDRIDGE (Biograph), Feb. 23.—Acted by the Biograph players in the West and directed by J. Farrell MacDonald, this three-part drama has commendable features in the development of a fairly interesting tale of the sufferings of one man for the misdeeds of another. A bank paying teller is arrested for theft, when the cashier is in reality the culprit. Ivan Christy, Vera Sisson, Jack Mulhall, Charles H Mailes and Charles Perley are in the cast.

THE REDEMPTION OF HELENE (Lubin), Feb. 24.—A review of this three-reel drama is printed on another page of this issue.

WHO KNOWS? (Knickerbocker Star Feature), Feb. 25.—When Bartley Campbell dies one eulogist wrote of him: "He knew how to write a play." The author of "Who Knows?" knows how to write a scenario. This three-reel drama tells how a man paid his debt of gratitude to the one who saved his life. The story is a recasting of old material, but the skill with which it is handled gives it a new interest. The production reflects credit upon the Horkheimer Brothers, and the leading roles are filled most satisfactorily by Henry King, Daniel Gilfeather, Gordon Sackville and Marguerite Nichols.

THE DESPOILER (Essanay), Feb. 28.—The material from which this three-reel photoplay has been built, is dramatic in every sense of the word. The "clash" is a strong one and well out of the beaten track. A woman who rejects riches, and marrys for love, is the heroine. Later her life becomes strangely entangled with the wealthy discarded suitor and his dissolute son. Bryant Washburn, Darwin Karr, Edward Arnold and Warda Howard form a potent quartet in the leading roles.

THE ROAD OF MANY TURNINGS (Vitagraph), Feb. 26.—Leah Baird is the author of and leading player in this three-reel photoplay. Miss Baird's story has many qualities to commend it. The attention is held from the start and the doings of the characters interest at all times.

The machinery by which the innocent wife is trapped is a little too complicated and it occasionally creaks at the joints, but the climax is well handled. Miss Baird is admirable in the duel role of the twin sisters, and Van Dyke Brooke, Louise Beaudet and the rest of the cast give her adequate support.

Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 60 (Gaumont), Feb. 24.—A varied assortment of interesting views, showing Theodore Roosevelt leaving for West Indies, snow storm in Seattle, winter sports, a Fall River fire and numerous others.

FLOODED WITH TROUBLE (Vogue), Feb. 24.—This is rather an amusing comedy, a portion of which has evidently been staged on the scene of flood. There is a good deal of slapstick work in the production. A tramp who enters a house in search of food gives opportunity for some amusing action.

THE CANDY COOK (Vogue), Feb. 27.—In some ways this picture would be considered a very acceptable farce comedy, and if it were not for a few vulgar touches such as the falling off of a young woman's skirt, after which she makes quite an exhibition of lingerie, finally running into the candy kitchen and falling in a faint in the arms of two men, the picture would be extremely amusing.

GOING UP (Cub), Feb. 25.—This is an amusing farce comedy with George Ovey featured. A mixup of suitcases causes most of the fun. Slim, believing that he has in his possession a suitcase full of money, goes into a restaurant and orders several dollars worth of food on the strength of it, discovering, when it is too late, that the suitcase contains nothing better than a man's boiled shirt. Jerry, laboring under the same illusion, is thrown bodily from the restaurant without being allowed to give his order. Very amusing.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 24 (Gaumont), Feb. 27.—In this number of this excellent series we are taken via the screen to Miami, Fla., where we are treated to delightful views of the wonderful palms with which the city abounds, and also its principal buildings. Following these views of Miami, a detailed illustration of the making of colored posters is given, which is exceedingly interesting. On the same reel with "Keeping Up With the Joneses."

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Gaumont), Feb. 27.—Pa McGinis, having ambitions toward belonging to the Secret Society of Simps, gives an exhibition of goat riding aided by a remarkable imagination.

JOHNNY'S JUMBLE (Beauty), March 1.—An amusing farce comedy in which Johnny, in search of a cook gets into a matrimonial bureau instead of an employment bureau. The situation into which he is afterward forced while his wife is away, is very laughable. The cook believes that she is to be married to Johnny and invites her family and friends to the wedding. Complications occur and the action of the play waxes strenuous. A good comedy number.

MAUD MULLER MODERNIZED (Falstaff), March 2.—An entertaining parody on the old Maud Muller poem, with poetical subtitles. She drives a Flivver, runs over the judge, and scares away his affections. A funny half reel of the nonsensical type.

JUNGLE LIFE IN SOUTH AMERICA (Falstaff), March 2.—On same reel with above. Excellent glimpses of the deadly reptiles and smaller animals of South America. Makes on the whole a good reel.

DAD'S COLLEGE WIDOW (Beauty), March 5.—A father, impersonated by Orral Humphrey, learns that his son is infatuated with a college widow. He tries to substitute himself in her good graces, but the boys get the laugh on him. This makes a fairly amusing comedy. Dick Rosson and Simone Cavens also appear.

OSCAR, THE OYSTER OPENER (Falstaff), March 7.—A low comedy number. The chief scenes are taken in the Hizzlebooble restaurant and pie throwing and other troubles result from rivalry over a buxom waitress. The oyster opener finds a pearl and gets the lady. This gets a few laughs and is free from offense.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

THE CRAVING (Mutual Masterpicture de luxe American, No. 73), Feb. 26.—A five-part temperance story filmed by the American Film Co., and featuring William Russell. Playing opposite him is Charlotte Burton, with pretty Helen Rosson in the second feminine lead. Others of the cast are Roy Stewart, Rea Berger and Robert Miller. The story of the film is interesting, but not always well-balanced. The production would hardly be chosen for temperance propaganda, but will please the average audience.

A LAW UNTO HIMSELF (Mutual Masterpicture de luxe Centaur, No. 74), Feb. 28.—A five-part production from the Centaur studios in which will be found a story that is interesting up to a certain point. Like many other five-part productions, however, its story is not meaty enough to cover successfully five reels of film. Crane Wilbur does some very creditable work in this film which treats of how a French surveyor whose younger brother was lynched by a mob on a false accusation of murder, turns bandit, and avenges the wrong.

WHAT DORIS DID (Thanhouser), March 1.—A three-reel number, featuring Doris Gray, winner of the Boston moving picture contest. She appears in her first release. Studio scenes are first shown, giving close glimpses of the Thanhouser players, whom Doris meets. She then takes up her trip South to get a hidden document that will save a man's life. Her adventures on the way prove very entertaining. The plot is lightly amusing, with a few melodramatic touches at times to keep things moving. Doris is pursued by three men on her trip and is extricated by a young stowaway whom she has befriended. Miss Gray's work is promising.

EMBERS (Mutual Masterpicture de luxe American, No. 75), March 2.—Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude are featured in this five-part production from the American studios. The production attempts to deal with a problem that requires extremely delicate handling, and cannot be said to be very successful as far as finding a solution goes. As the story runs, a wife, who becomes an invalid after the birth of her first child, which, by the way, dies, finds her husband estranged from her on account of her physical condition. The husband becomes enamored of someone else, and the wife in order to cause him to feel justified in suing for a divorce arranges to have him find her in a compromising position with another man. The problem is not solved, but merely played upon in this production.

MARGY OF THE FOOTHILLS (Mustang), March 3.—A three-reel production featuring Art Acord. The story of the film is rather an interesting one, but is not especially strong as to construction of plot. Dixie Stratton plays the feminine lead with considerable charm. Others of the cast are Lawrence Peyton, Joe Massey and Chas. James. The story is of a young girl who at the death of her father is left in lonely circumstances. She is invited to visit at the home of an influential Spaniard who tries to humiliate her, acting in conjunction with a bandit. In the rescue of the girl by her lover a series of thrilling incidents occurs.

THE SILKEN SPIDER (American), March 7.—A three-reel production, written by Wm. Parker, featuring George Periolat, Louise Lester, Vivian Rich, King Clark and Alfred Vosburgh. The story pictures the way in which a female vampire marries a wealthy man who neglects all in life but money. The woman brings about the ruin of the man's daughter, in order that she may marry her son. But the son is killed and the girl marries the young rector after much suffering. The production aims at a good moral and attains it, but some of the scenes are unnecessarily sordid and repelling. It pictures some of the sad facts of life but in spite of its faults has some very good dramatic moments.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

THE BLACKLIST (Lasky), Feb. 21.—In this feature story of capital and labor in which Blanche Sweet is the star there is all that constitutes a strong production. The types are aptly chosen and the atmosphere is truly characteristic. A good cast supports the star. For an extended review of this feature see page 1490 of the issue dated March 4.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 14, 1916 (Pathe), Feb. 16.—One of the interesting items of this number is the lauching of the "Los Angeles" at San Francisco. Other chronicled events are ski running and jumping by Dartmouth College students, Hanover, N. H., and competition for the eastern speed championship in skating at Newburgh, N. Y.

PATHE NEWS NO. 15, 1916 (Pathe), Feb. 19.—One of the most interesting items of this issue shows scenes of the flood devastation in Holland. Taking advantage of the last sport days of the season for ice boating at Redbank, N. J., also provides some attractive scenes. A scene of a conflagration at Genoa, Italy, is also of interest.

BY THE ZUYDER ZEE (Picturesque Holland—Photocolor), Feb. 21.—This is a beautiful colored scenic showing the picturesque people who live along the banks of the Zuyder Zee, and their quaint surroundings. On the same reel with "Along the Des Chutes River."

ALONG THE DES CHUTES RIVER (Picturesque America—Pathe-Globe), Feb. 21.—This film takes us through some of the most beautiful spots in Oregon along the Des Chutes River, and through the Des Chutes Canyon to White Horse Rapids. A beautiful travel subject.

STARVED TO DEATH IN A RESTAURANT (Starlight), Feb. 21.—This is rather an amusing farce comedy to which no objections could be raised unless it might be the repeated dipping of whiskers in soup, which is more disgusting than it is funny. The young girl in the restaurant is an attraction to Heine and Louie, but she cleverly holds the upper hand and deters them from getting away with a plateful of doughnuts, gratis.

LUKE THE RURAL ROUGHNECK (Phunphilms), March 1.—This is a truly amusing farce comedy in which the village belle causes considerable damage to hearts in the vicinity of the village blacksmith shop. Lonesome Luke is selected to fill the position of assistant blacksmith in the place of others who have proved unworthy. One of the most amusing incidents of the picture is a fight in a mud puddle.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

THE RED CIRCLE (Chapter 12—Balboa), March 4—"Like a Rat in a Trap" proves to be one of the most thrilling of the "Red Circle" episodes. "Smiling Sam" having taken up his abode in the garret of June Travis's home. The close of the episode leaves June placed in a startlingly compromising situation.

THE RED CIRCLE (Chapter 11—Balboa), Feb. 26.—"Seeds of Suspicion" is the title of this episode. Again pretty June Travis comes under the influence of the Red Circle when a desire to aid Gordon, the accused lawyer, against his persecutors overwhelms her, and she succeeds in accomplishing his escape from Lamar's office, and later obtains the document upon which the charge against him is based. An interesting episode.

Signal Film Corporation.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME, NO. 10, March 6.—"A Dash through Flames" is the title of this chapter, which is a decided improvement on previous efforts. The picture holds interest from first to last. Some very effective scenes occur where Spike is pursued by the mob, is confined in a jail, from which he is rescued by the efforts of Helen. At a later point of the story he is confined in a burning building tied to a post, and is again rescued through the heroic efforts of Helen. The episode is a thrilling one.

Triangle Film Corp.

DAPHNE AND THE PIRATE (Fine Arts), March 5.—A beautiful story of love and exciting adventure, wonderful in many of the effects of a marine engagement, an actual battle between ships as it occurred in Piratical days, with Lillian Gish at her best in the lead.

BULLETS AND BROWN EYES (Kay-Bee), Feb. 20.—A Romantic military story containing a fine characterization by Bessie Barriscole, some animated military pictures and some incongruous, though gorgeous, uniforms. Barriscale's acting the feature.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER (Keystone), Feb. 20.—A rather tame farce for a Keystone offering, lacking in ingenuity and novelty of situation. William Collier does his best with meager opportunity.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

THE BLACKMAILER (Laemmle), March 5.—A number, written by Rafael Sabatini, featuring Elsie Jane Wilson and Rupert Julian. The wife, who is being persecuted by a blackmailer, arranges a strong alibi and says she intends to kill him, thus regaining her letters. She then laughs at him and shows that the gun is not loaded. There are some faults in presentation, but this is novel and original in plot.

THEIR ONLY SON (Nestor), March 6.—A laughable conception, by Robert McGowan, featuring Gus Alexander, Billie Rhodes, Ray Gallegher and others. Gus pretends to be the ten-year-old son of the young married man. This creates an amusing situation when the wealthy uncle appears. A good comedy number.

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW (Imp), March 7.—A story of the Northwest, featuring Betty Gray, Harry Spingler and Paul Panzer. There are some pleasing wood scenes in this, though the story is not particularly strong. The heroine's makeup is too apparent for a girl of the wilds. An average production.

THE WINDWARD ANCHOR (Laemmle), March 8.—A domestic drama by Lynn Reynolds, with Myrtle Gonzalez and Frank Newberg in the leads. The extravagant wife dreams of taking her husband's savings and the evil consequences that followed. A conventional story, well-pictured and fairly strong.

THE DUMB BANDIT (Rex), March 9.—A number by Grace Cunard, featuring Francis Ford and Edna Maison. The sheepherder pretends to be a masked bandit in order to amuse his lonely wife. She falls in love with the bandit, but her love returns to the husband when she thinks he is to be killed. A pleasing idea handled with fair strength.

WHEN LIZZIE DISAPPEARED (Nestor), March 10.—An Al E. Christie number, in which Eddie Lyons and Betty Compton appear as two boobs. A professor of legerdemain causes Lizzie to disappear and this starts a riot. The number is an amusing burlesque and will bring laughter. Lee Moran and Ethel Lynn are also in the cast.

THEIR ACT (Victor), March 10.—A comedy number, by Laura Oakley, featuring Mark Fenton, Jean Taylor and Harry Hamm. The vaudeville performer and his girl get up an "act" in order to convince her father that he can really perform. The scheme works. This is light, but quite pleasing and well-pictured.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

GERTIE'S AWFUL FIX (L-KO), March 5.—A low comedy number, featuring Gertrude Selby, Reggie Morris and Dave Morris. The scenes occur in an apartment house, where two families indulge in a series of quarrels. The humor is of a broad sort, with a number of laughable incidents, though the plot is slight.

SAVED BY A SONG (Rex), March 5.—A two-reel number, written by May B. Havey, featuring Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips. The story is that of a convict, released after false imprisonment for murder. He is employed by a grocer, but the theft of another is laid at his door and he flees. He enters the home of his employer, hears the daughter sing "Annie Laurie" and later the real thief is caught. This runs along without achieving any great dramatic effect, and the hero would have been stronger if he had not yielded to the impulse to commit burglary. This latter fact tends to make the reconciliation with the employer somewhat unconvincing.

FALSE FRIENDS AND FIRE ALARMS (L-KO), March 6.—A two-reel low comedy, featuring Billy Ritchie, Gene Rogers and Peggy Pearce. Billy appears in this as a flirtatious jockey. The photography is not up to standard at times and the humor not very strong. The most interesting scenes are toward the close, when a spirited horse race and the burning of a bungalow take place simultaneously. The number as a whole is only fairly strong.

THE TARGET (Red Feather Feature), March 6.—A five-reel number, featuring Hobart Bosworth. He is assisted by Anna Lehr, Maude George, Jane Novak, Albert MacQuarrie, Dick Le Reno and others. This is a vigorous, well-pictured story, which carries the interest along in a sweeping fashion. It shows the hard knocks a man acquires who tries to hew close to the line in the matter of personal honor. His friends desert him, his wife is untrue and he meets trying experiences, but when he emerges from a false term of imprisonment he still is a happy man. This is well acted all through and contains situations of strong appeal. Mr. Bosworth is an engaging figure in the part of the hero and the capable cast gives him good support.

THE POWDER TRUST AND THE WAR (Universal Special), March 6.—No. 13 of the "Graft" series. Richard Stanton continues his investigations, this time dealing with the munition smugglers on the Mexican frontier. There is some loss of connection with foregoing numbers of the series, owing to changes in the cast, but this instalment is entertaining in itself. The hero escapes from an explosion which kills three members of the powder gang. Dorothy also escapes death from poison.

THE WINNING OF MISS CONSTRUE (Gold Seal), March 7.—A fine little comedy-drama, featuring Robert Leonard, Ella Hall, Marc Robbins and others. The story centers about a department store girl, an artist and an old actor, all living in the same apartment house. The girl loses her job, through a false accusation of stealing. The manner in which the artist watches over her is extremely laughable. He leaves food at her door and the dog eats it regularly. The story is altogether one of broad appeal and has a good human touch running through it. A good offering.

LAVINIA COMES HOME (Laemmle), March 9.—A two-reel number, featuring Thomas Jefferson, Marcia Moore, Lee Morris and others. The plot is quite appealing, though there are too many close-ups employed and a slight tendency to the over-sentimental. The story concerns a circus girl who gives up bareback riding and passes herself off as the daughter of an old couple for press agent purposes. Later she falls in love with a young farmer and decides not to return to the circus. This is a pretty little story, despite certain imperfections in development. The photography is good.

THE DOLL DOCTOR (Imp), March 10.—A two-reel story, featuring Violet Mersereau and Marry Benham. The opening scenes are taken during a snowstorm and show the girl and her lover delivering Christmas presents among poor children. Later they are married and separated because of the husband's unreasonable jealousy. This feature of the plot is rather lacking in conviction. The reconciliation occurs in the shop of the doll repairer, where the little girl has taken her doll to be repaired. The story has no great dramatic interest, but is quite entertaining in a quiet way.

THE QUARTER BREED (Bison), March 11.—A three-reel Western number, by Leon D. Kent, who plays the part of the breed Indian. Jack Livingston and Mina Cunard are also in the cast. This is a typical number of stage coach days, and has a good swing to it in many scenes. The quarter breed, hounded from one county to another, saves the girl from a runaway and is given a chance to make good. He falls in love with the girl, and in a moment of weakness agrees to take part in a stage hold up, after she has rejected him. Later he saves both girl and stage and turns her over to his rival. Well-constructed and full of good Western scenes.

V-L-S-E, Inc.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 15, 1916 (Vitagraph), Feb. 21.—Views of the new battleship Pennsylvania at Norfolk, Va., comprise one of the leading news items. Other interesting events: Teaching the blind to weave; safety fire drill, New Orleans; polar bears in Central Park; Belgium relief ship in crash; New Orleans woman holds boy for boardbill; pocket fire escape demonstrated, Stockton, Cal.; latest fashion picture; capturing alligators at Lake Worth, Fla.; four inch snowflakes, Chicago; London's Lord Mayor speaking in favor of recruiting; new type of hydroplane; cartoon.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 16 (Vitagraph), Feb. 25.—Fire escapes for horses, Los, Angeles; the return of Ambassador Morgenthau; bomb used on home of a Chicago banker; tuberculosis fight. Oakland, Cali.; track contests, Cambridge, Mass.; golf at Palm Beach; ice yacht racing, Mill Neck, N. Y.; police review, San Francisco; swimming, Brighton Beach, N. Y.; children's party, Palm Beach; military funeral, Paris, France; society lady of New Orleans and her pets; Bronx County Marathon, N. Y.; wreck on New Haven Railroad; Krazy Kat and Ignatz Mouse, cartoon.

Miscellaneous.

THE LITTLE ORPHAN (Olympic), State Rights, March.—An unpleasant and improbable story in which Em Gorman, a clever child actress, is handicapped by the lack of a suitable medium. Photography is clear, otherwise there is not much to commend in the production, handled by the Sun Photoplay Company.

John Reinhard one of Gaumont (Mutual) stars, and gifted "heavymen," is being given ample opportunity to display his versatility these days, Mr. Reinhard played a genteel heavy, a dress-suit sort of mischief-maker, in the recent Gaumont-Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, "As a Woman Sows." He has recently completed another typically fine, but widely different characterization, that of rough type heavy in "I Accuse," another Masterpicture. And in Director Edwin Middleton's big feature, "The Touchstone," just started at the Jacksonville studio, Mr. Reinhard is playing a Hindu servant.

Joseph De Grasse is still at work on the five reel Italian drama entitled, "The Full Cup," which came from the pen of Ida May Park and in which Louise Lovely is being starred. The other roles are in the hands of Lon Chaney, Hayward Mack, Marjorie Ellison, Lule Warrenton, Jay Belasco and Galmour Hammond.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

Helen's "Challenge" Film

Verdict of Reviewers on "Girl Who Dared" Decides Important Question for Helen Gibson.

"I 'LL MAKE the Kalem Company stop advertising me as 'the most daring actress in pictures' if any other player will attempt the feats shown in 'The Girl Who dared,'" wrote Helen Gibson in a letter to the film company following the completion of that production. The result is that "The Girl Who Dared," a single reel "Hazard of Helen" scheduled for release on March 18th, has been named "Helen's Challenge Film" and Kalem declares itself willing to abide by the star's promise.

Scene from "The Girl Who Dared" (Kalem).

It has been decided to go even further. A special showing of "The Girl Who Dared" has been arranged for this week and the factory is rushing the cutting and trimming of the production for that event. It will then be left to the decision of the trade paper reviewers whether Helen Gibson is entitled to her claim of being "the most daring actress." The verdict of the reviewers will be final.

Another departure in connection with single reel releases is the issuing of a special six-sheet four color lithograph on "The Girl Who Dared," because of the extraordinary strength of the offering. Speed motor boats, daring riding, and the familiar railroad feats are compressed into the thousand foot length. Incidentally, the picture also introduces the "Russian Drag," which the trade papers recently promised to followers of the Helen series, the "Russian Drag" being the circus term for the feat of standing astride two racing horses.

A slight accident occurring to Helen, which might easily have been serious, is shown clearly on the screen in "The Girl Who Dared." Helen, swaying in mid-air from a temporary railroad scaffolding, is called upon to drop to a speeding engine manned by a gang of crooks. Helen's skirts caught in the rope as she was about to drop and instead of landing on the tender of the engine as intended, she was struck a glancing blow by the top of the engineer's cab and thrown to the floor. It is a tense moment to the person watching the picture and able to see clearly the girl's danger.

As if to show that other members of the railroad company can perform thrilling feats Franklin Hall starts the ball rolling in the opening scene of "The Girl Who Dared" by leaping from the deck of a Pacific Mail liner to the sea. He is a diamond smuggler in the story, and confederates in a motor boat pick him up and go ashore. They land near Helen's station and when she sees that their descriptions fit the warning sent out by the Customs officials a pursuit starts that gives opportunity for the thrills that follow, and that has also resulted in the enlisting of the reviewer's aid.

MARY FULLER RUNS KINDERGARTEN.

Mary Fuller, Universal Heights star, had to do a scene with eight babies last week in the picture entitled "Little Mother." That's rather a lot of babies for an unmarried girl to mother, but Miss Fuller went at it with gritted teeth and plenty of milk bottles, and came through with not an infant crying.

EDESON IN NEW FEATURE.

Robert Edeson is to appear in another Vitagraph feature, it was announced by that company today. The famous actor has been re-engaged for a feature film of the Northwest to be filmed at Port Henry under the direction of William Humphrey. Director Humphrey and his company left this city for that place on Tuesday last.

The production in which Edeson will be seen is another of James Oliver Curwood's thrilling tales. Curwood has given the screen some of its most powerful works, and his latest work, "Fathers of Men," is said to surpass his previous efforts. Featured with Edeson will be Naomi Childers, one of the most beautiful of the Vitagraph's many actresses. Harry S. Northrup, Emmenual Turner, Carolyn Birch, Betty Howe, Bobby Connelly and others will be seen in the cast and at present are at Port Henry.

LOIS WEBER MOLDS ARTISTIC SURPRISES.

Whenever Lois Weber (Mrs. Phillips Smalley) of the Universal Film Company makes a photoplay she may be depended upon to introduce one or more features that not only are unusual but artistic. In "The Illborn," a feature photoplay in which Tyrone Power is starred and in the production of which Phillips Smalley co-directed with his talented wife, Mrs. Smalley has the usual surprises. These are to be found in her introduction to the play and at intervals during the unfolding of this gripping film story.

Those who have been fortunate enough to witness the initial test run of this latest work of Mrs. Smalley in the projection theater at Universal City declare she has excelled all her previous efforts in attaining artistic detail.

FRITZI BRUNETTE IN "UNTO THOSE WHO SIN."

Miss Fritzi Brunette makes her initial debut as a star in Selig Red Seal Plays, released through V-L-S-E, in "Unto Those Who Sin," written in five sensational acts by James Oliver Curwood. "Unto Those Who Sin" will be released on Monday, March 6, and those who have seen private presentations of this drama pronounce it as good as "Thou Shalt Not Covet," the Selig Red Seal Play which caused Filmland to sit up and take notice.

Supporting Miss Brunette in "Unto Those Who Sin" are such Selig artists as Al W. Filson, Lillian Hayward, Edward J. Peil and others. Miss Brunette wears an extraordinary number of beautiful gowns which she ordered especially for this production.

Scene from "Unto Those Who Sin" (Selig).

"Unto Those Who Sin," the Selig Red Seal play released through V-L-S-E on February 7, continues to win praise. Colin Campbell never produced a more virile drama and the reviews of the unusual production as printed in all trade publications and elsewhere state that "Thou Shalt Not Covet" is the one best bet of the year. Many claim that Kathlyn Williams has enacted her most capable and appealing character role in this five reel production.

"IRON CLAW" REALISM TAXES THE PLAYERS.

What has come to be known as the "movie ward" has been established in a Jersey City hospital. So many accidents have occurred to members of the Pathe company now producing the new serial thriller, "The Iron Claw," that the hospital has seldom been without a patient, injured in some manner or other in the production of film thrills. Burt Daniels fell a sacrifice to realism, during the production of the first episode, in which a free for all fight occurs. Daniels went down for the count and remained down until the ambulance arrived. Sheldon Lewis, he of the iron claw, swings his metallic appendage with such good will that few members of the company have escaped being hurt by it. Another ailment from which nearly all members of the "Iron Claw" suffered is parretphobia, contracted in encounters with Evangeline, the Mexican parrot, who has a part of her own in the production and is encompassed by as professional jealousy and temperament as any film favorite. Evangeline meets criticism with such instant action that many of her victims say "The Bloodstained Beak" would be a more appropriate title for the series than the one chosen.

"THE HUMAN CAULDRON" (Vitagraph).

Of particular interest among the Vitagraph releases for the week of March 6 is "The Human Cauldron," a Broadway Star Feature in three parts which was filmed with the permission of the New York Police Department. The scenes were taken at headquarters and on Blackwell's Island and show the interesting experiences which applicants for the police department have to undergo before they receive their shield. The picture shows the method of "finger-printing," and "mugging" criminals and a glimpse of the Rogues' Gallery and other important departments of the police system. Actual police officials take part in the production, among them being Inspector Faurot, head of the Detective Bureau, Det. Lt. Funston and many others.

Scene from "The Human Cauldron" (Vitagraph).

"The Human Cauldron" tells the story of two gangmen and their girls who come under police supervision. One man goes to Hart's Island and a girl to Bedford Reformatory. Both these institutions are shown as well as Commissioner Katherine B. Davis inspecting them. The other man goes to Blackwell's Island and, falling into further evil ways, becomes an habitual criminal. His career culminates in the murder of a jeweler. The films shows the actual detectives at work at the clues and the methods they use to track and capture the guilty man.

Of no small interest is the training of a police applicant, played by William Dunn, of the Vitagraph Company, among real applicants. The training, drills and different phases of gymnasium work are shown in the film. It is released on March 11.

ETHEL TEARE SUBJECTS POPULAR.

Reports from General Film exchange managers indicate that Kalem made a wise move in establishing Wednesday as Ethel Teare Day in its schedule of releases and surrounding that pretty player with a capable company of fun-makers in subjects that would feature her bewitching personality. Every General Film exchange in the United States and Canada buying film has already placed a standing order for one or more prints of the Wednesday specials and reports that exhibitors have given them an unusually favorable reception.

The rise of Ethel Teare to stardom in the short space since her first appearance in small parts in Kalem "Ham and Bud" subjects places another name on the long list of stars discovered and developed by Kalem which includes such well known present Kalemites as Lloyd V. Hamilton, Bud Duncan, Marin Sais, and Ollie Kirkby, and many others equally well known to film fans.

"THE HOUSE OF SURPRISE" (Essanay).

Turning his back on society, a pampered son of wealth resolves to get some worldly experience. How he does it offers John Junior an opportunity to depict a startling array of adventures, some tragic, some blending into the semi-ridiculous. With Elizabeth Burbridge in the other part a delightful little two act love story with interesting situations is to be seen in this Essanay release.

The millionaire's son is chided by his attorneys for his lack of wordly knowledge. The boy takes the lecture to heart and starts in search of adventure. He gets into half a dozen fights and gathers experience and bruises. Two tramps knock him unconscious and toss him into a box car. When put off the train, he wanders into an unoccupied country place and falls asleep.

Scene from "The House of Surprise" (Essanay).

A wealthy bachelor girl, fleeing the fortune hunters, comes to take possession of the country place. She shoots the young man in the foot. Then in remorse, she offers him a job as janitor. The cooks falls in love with him and is discharged by her jealous employer. The boy becomes cook and while thus employed is found out by the heiress, who is sure she has at last discovered a man who is not a fortune hunter.

UNIVERSAL'S SPRINGFIELD, MASS., EXCHANGE MOVES.

The Universal Branch exchange at Springfield, Mass., has moved to new and larger quarters at 326 Dwight Street. M. Joseph is manager of this branch.

"THE SILKEN SPIDER" (American).

One of the most realistic fights that has ever been staged at the American studios at Santa Barbara was filmed recently by Frank Borzage while directing a highly dramatic "Flying A" feature with an excellent cast including Vivian Rich, George Periolat, Alfred Vosburgh and Louise Lester.

Scene from "The Silken Spider" (American).

The fight concluded a card game, and at its finish the injuries included a swollen jaw, a cut wrist, a torn set where a thrown chair poked one leg through the canvas, and several ruined suits of clothes.

There is nothing fakey about Frank Borzage's pictures, as this capable director and his entire company believe thoroughly in the height of realism.

"ACCORDING TO LAW" (Gaumont).

With its customary skill in catching the spirit of the times and imprisoning it in a remarkable photoplay, the Gaumont company holds the mirror up to a phase of American life which now is engaging the attention of thoughtful people in a five-reel photoplay, "According to Law." This is a big work, schemed on a big scale by its authors, Paul M. Bryan and Joseph H. Trant. It deals with the unhappiness of a married couple, who are childless because of the wife's selfish pursuit of social pleasures. Miss Mildred Gregory, so long the leading woman for Romaine Fielding, has been elevated to stardom by the Gaumont company because of her excellent work in this feature which is released as a Mutual Masterpicture, de Luxe Edition, March 6.

Scene from "According to Law" (Gaumont).

Supervising Director Richard Garrick directed this big feature. Miss Gregory has been surrounded by an unusually strong Gaumont company. Heading it is Howard Hall, an actor who has earned an enviable reputation for himself in the short time he has been upon the screen. The story of the wife's change of heart and her final sacrifice afford big moments that display Miss Gregory's ability in remarkable fashion. Miss Helen Marten appears in the last reel.

FANNIE WARD IN "FOR THE DEFENSE" (Lasky).

Giving another example of her versatility, Miss Fannie Ward, star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, has completed a photoplay entitled, "For the Defense," in which she plays for the first time on the screen, a feminine detective.

Scene from "For the Defense" (Lasky).

There is a promising coincidental feature about "For the Defense," as the author is Hector Turnbull, who wrote Miss Ward's recent sensational photoplay, "The Cheat."

The Lasky Company will release "For the Defense" through Paramount Pictures Corporation on March 13. It is a Monday release and will be the week's attraction in the Strand theater, New York, and other leading motion picture theaters throughout the country.

This will be Miss Ward's fourth Lasky production. The others, in their order are "The Marriage of Kitty," "The Cheat," "Tennessee's Pardner," from Arthur C. Aiston's production. In none of these did Miss Ward have a similar role and to her distinct and charming characterizations she now adds that of detective.

Miss Ward will be seen as Fidele, a young French girl, who lands in New York and meets with strange adventures. She is the witness of a murder for which the one man who befriends her in the hostile city is falsely accused of the crime. Frightened, she runs away from the scene, meets the accused later and returns in time to appear "for the defense" and by her testimony succeeds in freeing him.

Jack Dean, Camille Astor, Horace B. Carpenter and a large cast of principals appear in support of Miss Ward in this production.

"THE DREAM OF EUGENE ARAM" (Selig).

"The Dream of Eugene Aram" adapted and produced by Colin Campbell from the poem written by Thomas Hood, is a Selig feature drama of unusual worth to be released Monday, March 6, through General Film Service. Tyrone Power and Roy Clark, the versatile juvenile actor, take the leading roles in this most beautiful production.

Nearly everyone is conversant with Thomas Hood's most most famous poem, in which Eugene Aram, the school master confides to the innocent school boy. The plot of "The Dream of Eugene Aram" is based upon a guilty conscience.

"And still no peace for the restless clay,
Will wave or mould allow;
The horrid thing pursues my soul—
It stands before me now!"
The fearful boy look'd up, and saw
Huge drops upon his brow.

* * * * * * *

How Eugene Aram finally pays the penalty of a crime which was incited by the love of gold, is a fitting climax to a powerful and appealing drama. The play is cast in the 17th Century, Scene from "The Dream of Eugene Aram" (Selig).

and the costuming is carefully appropriate to that period. Critics claim that Tyrone Power performs one of the strongest roles in his enviable career as an actor, in the character part of Eugene Aram, the conscience stricken school master.

WALLY VAN PRODUCING NEW SERIAL.

One of the most important pictures under course of construction is "The Scarlet Runner," taken from the popular novel of that name by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, which is now being filmed under the direction of Wally Van for the Vitagraph Company. This feature is practically the debut of Mr. Van into the reels of drama and romantic pictures, for his worth hitherto has been solely in the line of comedy. In this release Wally is destined to lose the sobriquet of "Cutey" which has made him a favorite for many years in Vitagraph films.

"The Scarlet Runner" will be released in twelve episodes each one complete in itself and each one telling one of the thrilling adventures of the gentleman chauffeur made famous by the Williamsons. Earle Williams, a favorite in the world of photoplay, will be seen in the principal role while the feminine lead is to be changed with each episode. Practically all of the prominent Vitagraph actresses will be seen with the exception of such leading players as Anita Stewart, Lillian Walker, Edith Storey and others.

BILLIE BURKE COMPANY GOES TO PALM BEACH.

The Billie Burke company of players engaged in producing the new Rupert Hughes' novel for George Kleine will leave the New York studios this week for Palm Beach, Florida, to make a number of "society" scenes. The company will be in charge of a Supervisor, James M. Sheldon, and Director Walter Edwin. Two maids and a private secretary will assist Billie Burke.

"MISMATES" (Knickerbocker).

"Mismates" is the title of a three-part Knickerbocker Star Feature to be released on the General Film program March 17. Miss Margaret Landis will be featured, supported by a strong cast, headed by Fred Whitman. Others in the cast are Daniel Gilfether, Madeline Pardee, Myrtle Reeves, Ruth Lackye, Charles Dudley and Richard Johnson. The play shows the folly of mismating youth and age and the disaster in the life of a youth who is caught by the glitter of the Bright Way, and lured by the cunning smiles of a woman who is trying to cover age and fading beauty.

Scene from "Mismates" (Knickerbocker).

Margaret Landis plays the part of the country girl sweetheart of the college boy who leaves his home of plenty for the city where he hopes to make his fortune. Daniel Gilfether, as usual, comes up to his standard in the role of elderly father of the boy, while Madeline Pardee as the wife of the boy does exceptional heavy work.

This release, while far from a preachment, carries with it a convincing moral motive and promises to be a very attractive offering.

"BEN BLAIR" (Pallas).

Pallas Pictures announces as its next release on the Paramount Program "Ben Blair," a stirring Western drama with Dustin Farnum in the title role. As Ben Blair, the popular player appears in a role that affords him a particularly suitable vehicle and calls upon him for a display of more than histrionic talents. In the role of the strong-hearted plainsman "Dusty" presents various feats in horsemanship that afford stirring incidents for this play of the cattle country and the metropolis. The screen adaptation is from the well known book of the same name by the late Will Lillibridge.

Scene from "Ben Blair" (Pallas).

Replete with beautiful scenes of the open cattle country photographed by an expert, this film promises to prove one of the most artistic films of the season. The scenes of the broncho busting, trick riding, branding and in fact almost all the out-of-door scenes were taken on a ranch owned by one of the last of the cattle barons. The thousands of acres of rolling lands sustain thousands of head of cattle, panoramic views of which are included in the picture. A charge of the cattle straight at the camera affords one of the many thrills.

Another feature of this photoplay is the strength of the supporting cast. Winifred Kingston, is given a big part, which she handles with great credit. Herbert Standing, Lamar Johnstone, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Page Peters, Virginia Foltz, F. A. Bonn and little Gordon Griffith, who presents a thrill by leaping from the roof of a barn, are among the important players. It will be released on the Paramount Program, March 9.

"HER GOD" (Equitable).

ELEVEN weeks were spent by the Gail Kane Equitable company on the deserts of Arizona and Mexico and three weeks on construction of ancient adobe villages and huts which were not procurable even in Northern Mexico.

The disturbed condition of affairs prevented Miss Kane and her company, who had traveled west to make "Her God," from going to Guadalajara, Mexico, into the heart of the Yaqui country, so a number of primeval adobe huts and shacks had to be constructed and time lost in waiting for the sun to do its part in drying them.

Miss Kane accompanied by Merlin Hamilton, eight women and six men principals, her director and the usual camera crew, left New York early in November for Jerome, Arizona. Upon the edge of Death Valley, in the heart of the dreaded American desert, they worked for ten weeks. Hundreds of Mexican vaqueros, typical ranch men and women and enough nondescripts to populate a village were engaged.

Throughout the play of "Her God," Miss Kane plays the part of an Indian girl. The production is in no way a Western, other than the environment and atmosphere made necessary, owing to the peculiar construction of the scenario. During the taking of the scenes in Arizona and Northern Mexico, the company traveled many hundreds of miles, either by train or caravan. Upon one of these trips to a location in the foothills, the entire company, numbering over two hundred, were overtaken by a violent blizzard and were forced to take refuge in a ranch house and were practically given up for lost.

Scene from "Her God" (Equitable).

It will require three more weeks to complete the interiors, no less than ninety sets being necessary for the elaborate production.

April 3, is the release date of "Her God."

REVENUE CUTTER NOW METRO YACHT.

After being buffeted and battered around in the ice fields of the far north and braving the storm for more than fifty years the revenue cutter and coast guard ship Woodbury fell a victim to motion pictures and was sent to the bottom in her first experience. This sturdy old vessel, which in her time saved more than five thousand lives in the storms off Hatteras and the Banks and cleared the seas of smugglers and seal poachers, was purchased by the Metro Company for an important part in "The Price of Malice," a recent release on the Metro program. Hamilton Revelle and Barbara Tennant are starred in this Metro wonderplay, which was produced by the Rolfe Photoplays, Inc.

After completing negotiations with her owners the Metro Company converted the cutter into a fine appearing yacht and towed her to the ice fields. There she was sent head-on against an iceberg and rapidly sank to the bottom as the Metro players enacted the roles assigned them in the production. O. A. C. Lund directed "The Price of Malice," and it is considered one of the best of Metro plays.

WIDE PUBLICITY FOR "SIS."

Seldom has a series of one reel comedies, presenting a star new to the screen, been received with the wide publicity that has followed Sis Hopkins' debut in Kalem subjects. The fame of Rose Melville's comedy creation has caused her screen debut to be given wide space throughout the country and has even opened the doors of newspapers that have previously been cold to any mention of individual screen players. The fact that Sis Hopkins is nationally known as a distinct comedy character has also resulted in a flood of bookings that Kalem believes unprecedented for an absolutely new line of subjects.

Scene from "She Came, She Saw, She Conquered" (Kalem).

One Sis Hopkins comedy has already been released, with another following this Friday. "A Leap Year Wooing," the initial subject, gave film men their first view of a newly organized comedy company that will become a fixture in the Sis Hopkins comedies. "She Came, She Saw, She Conquered" is the single reeler scheduled for this Friday, March 10, with the following Fridays on the Kalem General Film schedule bringing "A Flock of Skeletons," and "When Things Go Wrong."

"THE LOVE LIAR" (Horsley).

In view of the pre-release announcements heralding "The Love Liar" as the most pretentious photoplay production made to date at the David Horsley studios, it is fair to assume that more than casual attention will be given this five reel feature when it is released March 27 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition.

As a basis for promising in this release the biggest of all David Horsley productions made so far, attention is called to the fact that ten weeks' time was consumed in the preparation of the sets required in this production. Besides a number of settings which ordinarily might be considered elaborate but which in this case are seemingly small when compared to the bigger sets, there are no less than eighteen distinct set-ups of extraordinary proportions, ranging from the richly furnished drawing room of the ultra-wealthy to the lavishly decorated ball rooms of the biggest cafes of the day.

Nor is "The Love Liar" exceptional alone in settings. The story, too, is unusual. It is based on deep sociological study. Just what Mr. Horsley thought of the story may be gathered from the fact that he saw fit to give it such elaborate production.

A new George Ovey appears in the Cub Comedy "The Desperate Chance" scheduled for release through the Mutual on March 3. Discarding the costume always associated with his characterization of Jerry, he dons ministerial garb and thus arrayed gives one of the funniest performances of his career in this brand.

The change of costume is enforced during the action of the picture. A desperate bandit, who operates dressed as a minister, is on the verge of being caught by persistent officers and in order to escape he compels Jerry, who he chances to meet, to change clothes with him. The bandit stands over six feet while Jerry is just a bit over five, so the changes doesn't fit either one very well. However, while robbing people, the bandit kneels on the ground so as to mislead those who attempt to describe him. As a consequence it is not far fetched if the officers identify Jerry as the bandit. To escape the consequences of capture Jerry tries schemes of evasion of all manner only to end his adventure in the calaboose.

The picture in brimful of funny events played in the style of Ovey and his associates, among whom are George George as the bandit, Louis Fitz Roy, Henry Jackson, Gordon McGregor, Arthur Mund and Bob Kenyon. Milton Fahrney directed.

"THE BATTLE OF TRUTH" (Biograph).

The impersonation of a dead man and woman, so that eyewitnesses to their murder are almost persuaded that the sensational crime never occurred, is the daringly original idea conceived by William Hamilton Osborne, a leading novelist, for the Biograph feature production in the regular service, released March 20.

The singular incidents arising from a millionaire's desire to cover up the guilt of his hot-headed son, as suggested in the above outline, afford opportunity for spectacular scenes. A great deal of clever camera work distinguishes this elaborate three reel production, whose effect depends absolutely upon the realism of the fantastic happenings that almost convince a clever lawyer he did not see what he knows he saw. Vera Sisson, Charles H. Mailes, and Ivan Christy have the leading roles.

Completing the week's program is a famous Biograph re-issue directed by D. W. Griffith, entitled "His Mother's Scarf." There is more genuine thrill in the first three or four hundred feet of this spectacular subject than in many a so-called feature. An Indian attack upon a caravan results in the girl coming to dwell with two brothers, whose rivalry in love for her makes a compelling drama. Wilfred Lucas, Charles H. West and Dorothy West head the cast.

TYPHOON FANS IN THE SOUTH.

As a result of a trip through the Southern States by their representative, the Typhoon Fan Co. are installing their system in several theaters in Chattanooga, Tenn., Tampa, Fla., Columbia, S. C., and in the Seminole Hotel, Jacksonville, Fla.

"THE FLIRT" (Bluebird).

General Manager M. H. Hoffman has gone to Booth Tarkington's serial story from the Saturday Evening Post to derive the March 28 release in the Bluebird series. The title of the film is the same as the narrative—"The Flirt." Marie Walcamp will play the name-part and Juan De La Cruz will be the leading man.

These two players were important in the Bluebird's production of "Hop, the Devil's Brew," and at that time Miss Walcamp's work was declared by some critics to be the best acting in the film. The Bluebird managers expect to gain a great advantage for "The Flirt," through its wide publicity as a serial, plus the Tarkington name to add strength to its drawing qualities.

The story details the feminine nature as it is frequently disclosed in the desire of a pretty woman to show her abilities to captivate men, regardless of the consequences of her victims. The first, in this instance, nearly wrecks the lives of several fine chaps in her home town, and meets, in the end, a rebuff from a stranger to the village who, in giving her a dose of her own medicine, uses her to further his own swindling schemes and leaves her, finally, in deep disgrace.

Scene from "The Flirt" (Bluebird).

Antrim Short plays the role of a mischievous boy who keeps things well stirred up for his flirtatious sister and eventually works her undoing.

TO DISTRIBUTE GREAT NORTHERN FILMS.

The Federal Feature Film Corporation of 32 Boylston street, Boston, Mass., has entered into a contract with the Great Northern Film Company of New York and will purchase and handle the Great Northern productions throughout the New England States. Samuel V. Grant, favorably known to the New England trade, will assume the management of the Boston concern.

Mr. Grant spent considerable time in the projection room of the Great Northern Film Company, viewing several current and future releases, and expressed himself as very well pleased with his acquisition. The first Great Northern features to be released by the Federal Feature Film Corporation are entitled "Sins of Great Cities," in four parts, featuring Ebba Thomsen, and "The Mother Who Paid," an unusually strong and interest sustaining drama in five parts. The leading role is enacted by the famous tragedienne, Regina Wethergren, whose histrionic art has often been compared with that of Sarah Bernhardt.

BIG NEWS FOR MUTUAL WEEKLY.

"T. R." may have sailed for the West Indies to let the United States run itself for six weeks, but he is still in the public eye, for Mutual Weekly No. 60 will be lead off with a picture of his smile as it vanishes from New York's harbor on the S S "Guiana." Then there will be a picture of the $5,000 worth of saddles sent to the Japanese Emperor by the colony of Japanese in San Francisco as a coronation present. Other subjects are the cruisers "Taharld" and "Haarfager" preserving Norwegian neutrality by guarding the entrance to the North Sea; the tremendous snow storm in Seattle, Wash., which buried the city and caused the dome of the Cathedral to collapse from the weight of snow; the lost "K-5" under-sea boat arriving alone and safe at Key West, Fla.; the Lincoln celebration in Washington; the annual Gasparilla carnival in

The Great Dock Fire in Brooklyn, N. Y. From Mutual Weekly No. 60.

Tampa, Fla.; winter gaities at the beach in Ocean Beach, Cal., and the skating tournament in Newburgh, N. Y.

Paulson is caught in the act of looping the loop on skiis at the Dartmouth college winter sports carnival. The new auto invention, whereby electricty may be generated for motion picture projection machines, and enabling the showing of pictures in rural communities is pictured and snapped at Fresno, Cal. This issue also shows the purchase of horses by the French government; the burning of the munition ship at a Brooklyn pier; the opening of the new municipal zoo in San Antonio, Tex., and the tremendous fire at Waynesburg, Pa., which wiped out a business block valued at $150,000, complete the Weekly.

"THE PASSING OF PETE" (Selig).

Tom Mix, the daring cowboy star of the Selig forces, always on the alert for thrills, again risks life and limb in the Selig western drama, "The Passing of Pete," released in General Film Service, on Saturday, March 11. In this drama, for a change, Tom Mix assumes the role of Pete, a "bad" man, who steals gold nuggets from a prospector's mine. There is a climax in which a desparate battle ensues between Pete and the sheriff's posse. We see real bullets kicking up the dust everywhere. Finally Pete with a bullet in his body, plunges headlong down a mountainside, and lodges hundreds of feet below. It is a risk that no one save Tom Mix would care to undertake.

"THE FIRES OF ST. JOHN" (Lubin).

For the meaning of "The Fires of St. John," the Suderman play which Edgar Lewis, with Nance O'Neil as his star, is building into a powerful multiple-reel photoplay feature for the Lubin Company of Philadelphia, one must delve far back into the annals of the mediaeval folklore of the people of central Europe. It refers to a celebration on St. John's eve.

An old pagan spark has outlived centuries. Once every year that spark is fanned into flame—it flames high and then it is called "The Fires of St. John." Once every year we have "free night." Then the witches ride upon their brooms; with scornful laughter the wild hordes sweep across the tree tops, up, up, high upon the Blocksberg. Then, no matter what may be the name of the law that governs the world on that day, that single wish may be converted into reality.

"And the fires. Those tongues of fire shooting up towards the heavens, they are the spirits of our dead and perished wishes. They are the red plumage of the desires we have petted through our entire lives."

Scene from "The Fires of St. John" (Lubin).

This is the meaning of "The Fires of St. John," and Nance O'Neil and Edgar Lewis are making the most of it in the forthcoming photoplay. The Lubin Company has given carte blanche in the matter of expense in achieving a production that will be one of the sensations of the year.

"THEIR WEDDING DAY" (Vim).

"The Pokes and Jabbs" series of comedies, made by the Vim Films Corporation, are constantly offering new situations and ideas. Among the comedies of this series there is none better than "Their Wedding Day," in which Pokes and Jabbs, as usual, raise a cyclone of action in laugh-provoking situations.

Jabbs is the town sport and financially equal to the heavy demands on his generosity, while Pokes, the village loafer, is down and out. Both men are attracted by an advertisement in a paper from a wealthy man offering a dowry to anyone who would marry his daughter. The effort to come up to the demands of the wealthy father and the hopeless struggle for the hand of the girl by these rivals makes the fun of the film, while in the end both lose out as the girl, Ethel, claims the man of her own choice. Robert Burns and Walter Stull, as Pokes and Jabbs, are well supported by Ethel Burton, Helen Gilmore, Frank Hanson, and Tiny Wills. The picture will be released Friday, March 10, on the General Film Program.

Scene from "Their Wedding Day" (Vim).

"HIS LOST SELF" (Famous Players).

Photoplay fans are going to meet a new Jack Barrymore on the screen when the Famous Players Film Company presents the celebrated comedian on the screen in "His Lost Self" on the Paramount Program March 19th. Barrymore has played South American dictators, Balkan nearprinces and other purely comic characters on the screen, but in this forthcoming picture he adds to his humorous depiction of a New York society chap the very dramatic and thrilling adventures of a crook.

Scene from "His Lost Self" (Famous Players).

Of course he is not a real crook. He has been hit on the head and for a time forgets his identity.

Barrymore's role is much more than a mere comedy part and embraces drama and thrills as well as the humor which has made him famous.

GAUMONT RETURNS TO ANIMATED CARTOON SERIES.

Returning to the cartoon idea which he was the first to present upon the screen, Harry Palmer will now devote the entire time of his Gaumont staff to the making of animated cartoons which are humorous reflections upon the news of the day. This will replace "Keepin' Up With the Jonses" upon the split-reel with Gaumont's "See America First" series, a Mutual weekly release.

The first of the new series was released by Mutual February 27. The work upon them is progressing rapidly at the Gaumont studios, Flushing. An outline of the pictures for the first release will give an idea of the series in general. First on the screen will be that target of all cartoonists, Theodore Roosevelt. He is shown throwing his hat into the ring and laying about valiantly with his Big Stick. Then, of course, there must be reference to President Wilson's habit of note writing, all in a spirit of lightness and not at all with political bias. William Jennings Bryan is not forgotten. The series closes with some cartoons upon preparedness.

"LOVELY MARY" COMING METRO RELEASE.

"Lovely Mary," the five-part Metro wonderplay in which little Mary Miles Minter is starred and Thomas J. Carrigan, her new leading man, is featured, will be released on the Metro program March 13. This feature was produced by the Columbia Pictures Corporation, under the direction of Edgar Jones and his assistant, P. Thad. Volkman.

"Lovely Mary" is a story of the South. Most of the scenes were photographed in Florida in the Everglades, and some excellent effects in photography have been obtained. Genuine prison camps with real prisoners were used for scores of interesting scenes. In a court room scene, made in the Columbia-Metro studio in New York, more than four hundred persons appear. In this scene five reporters from many New York newspapers made their screen debut, seated at a table reporting the trial.

Besides Miss Minter and Mr. Carrigan the cast includes Frank De Vernon, Russell Simpson, Schuyler Ladd, Ferd Tidmarsh, Myra Brooks and Harry Blakemore.

NEXT GREAT NORTHERN RELEASE.

The next release of the Great Northern Film Company, 110 West Fortieth street, New York City, is a superb five-reel production entitled "The Mother Who Paid." The story is a penetrating and most sympathetic study of a woman's renunciation of her fatherless child, interwoven with a love romance, wonderful in its purity and strength. The leading role is enacted by Regina Wethergren, the famous tragedienne, who is one of the most distinguished dramatic stars of the present day.

TWO STARS IN HORSLEY RELEASE.

With the release as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, on March 4, of the five reel David Horsley production "The Heart of Tara," Margaret Gibson and William Clifford will make their debut as co-stars under the David Horsley banner. Prior to this appearance Mr. Clifford and Miss Gibson were featured in separate releases, but in order to get the combined playing strength of the pair Mr. Horsley decided to place them in one company.

"FIFTY-FIFTY" (Universal).

"Fifty-Fifty," or "It Nearly Happened," is the title of the Joker-Universal release for March 25 in which William Franey and Gale Henry are featured, ably supported by Milburn Moranti and Lillian Peacock. The picture is in one reel and was written and produced by Allen Curtis.

STANDARD NEWSFILM MEETING.

At a special meeting of the Standard Newsfilm Company in this city, Saturday, J. F. H. Wyse, of Toronto and president of the Ontario Safety League, was elected vice-president. This company is also opening a branch office in Toronto.

TIME WAS RIPE FOR "MISHAPS OF MUSTY SUFFER."

"The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" brought out forcefully the fact that the public was eagerly awaiting something new in film comedy. The desire for it appeared universal and the welcome this George Kleine screen farce received might be classed as remarkable. An attempt to analyze this yearning for something entirely new in the comedy line would, perhaps, only result in a dozen answers, none entirely satisfactory. Thousands of dollars are being expended on comedy—the best known film and speaking comedians are all working, and doing good work too, both on the screen and stage, and on the surface it would appear that there was too much comedy instead of not enough, but—the public evidently had its own ideas regarding this matter.

A plausible explanation for it might be found in these waves of desire that from time to time appear to sweep the country, for roller skating, dancing, ice skating, bicycling, etc. The public seeks a change in its entertainment and it must be forthcoming.

Harry Watson of Bickel & Watson, who is featured in "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" has rather a novel explanation for it, voicing his opinion in this manner:

"One reason, I think, that the public took so kindly to "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" is the inherent fondness Americans have for optimists. They have no use for a "grouch" in any guise and that being so, "Musty Suffer" has a clean path to their hearts because he certainly represents the happiest of mortals and one who finds the silver lining in every cloud.

"Another reason for the exceedingly warm welcome "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" received, is, in my opinion the strong supporting cast Mr. Kleine provided for me. My partner, George Scene from "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" (Kleine).

Bickel of course, is the 42 centimeter gun of the supporting cast, but Crimmins and Gore (Dan Crimmins and Rose Gore), H. W. McCullom, Maxfield Moree, Tom Nawn, Cissy Fitsgerald, Della Connor and the others lent valuable assistance and are deserving of credit."

At any rate "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" appear to have landed on its feet and if advance bookings may be taken as an indication of what may be expected, this Kleine comedy is destined to achieve great success.

VIRGINIA KIRTLEY WITH HORSLEY.

Virginia Kirtley, already well known to followers of pictures, makes her debut as a played in Horsley (Mutual) productions in the Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, "A Law Unto Himself." In this picture of western life Miss Kirtley appears in support of Crane Wilbur, the star.

Virginia Kirtley will be remembered for her splendid work in American "Beauty" comedies, also released by the Mutual. The pleasing actress was born in Bowling Green, Mo. She was educated at Cutler Academy and at Colorado College. In 1910 she made her debut on the stage with Florence Stone at the Burbank theater, Los Angeles. She scored an immediate success in ingenue roles. In 1912 she entered the picture field, appearing with a number of companies before joining the Mutual's force. In "A Law Unto Himself" she appears as the daughter of an unscrupulous politician.

LESSER HAS NEW IDEA.

The method pursued by Sol L. Lesser in marketing Selig's ten-act screen version of Rex Beach's "The Ne'er-Do-Well" is an innovation in the handling of big feature attractions. In fact, it can be considered pioneering an entirely new field for motion pictures.

Heretofore the manufacturer has released his picture through a chain of offices and distributing points working a large number of prints. Mr. Lesser is making bookings direct to the exhibitor from his New York office. Through this arrangement protection is given to big theaters who play this attraction, so that they can increase their price of admission without fear that a competitive house will advertise the attraction as "coming."

A special publicity department has been organized for the purpose of directly working with the theaters as soon as bookings are made. Newspaper publicity that reaches the public is largely utilized.

WM. C. HARTMANN HAS NEW YORK OFFICE.

William C. Hartmann, who controls the "Schneider" patents covering "Plastic Pictures" of which he gave a demonstration to a number of prominent film magnates at the Knickerbocker recently, has opened offices at 1416 Broadway, New York. Mr. Hartman also controls the moving picture rights of a number of popular books and plays by prominent authors, and states that the "Village Postmaster" will be shortly produced with Henry Horton as the star. Mr. Horton starred in this play for a number of years under the management of J. Wesley Rosenquest.

RHEA MITCHELL JOINS AMERICAN.

Rhea Mitchell, who long has been a favorite with the ever increasing photoplay-loving public, has joined the American Film Company, Inc., and is featured in a five reel American Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, to be released the middle of next month. The title of Miss Mitchell's first vehicle will be "Overalls," a production directed by Jack Halloway. Miss Mitchell has had a number of years of screen experience. Her previous engagement was with the Signal Film Corporation at that organization's Los Angeles studios.

"THE MADCAP QUEEN OF CRONA" (Universal).

"The Madcap Queen of Crona," written by Grace Cunard and produced by Francis Ford, in which both appear, admirably well supported by Jack Holt and Neil Hardin, will be the Gold Seal-Universal release of March 21. The story of the "Madcap Queen" centers around the Queen of Crona, who because of her frivolous ways, is known as the Madcap Queen.

The Madcap Queen and Marcia Avery are played by Grace Cunard; Francis Ford is Prince Frederick, Jack Holt is Count Michael and Neil Hardin plays Sir Henry Hutt.

NOTES OF THE TRADE

A new star dressing room building is being erected on the Lasky company grounds. It is a two story affair and will house eight of the Lasky company's shining lights. Work is progressing rapidly on the new three hundred foot stage and it is expected that James Young, with the Mae Murry production, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" will have the honor of having the first set on it. Work is progressing rapidly to double deck the row of dressing rooms along the Lasky Lane. When all the contemplated plans are complete, there will be one hundred and thirty dressing rooms on the Lasky lot.

* * *

Eleanor Woodruff, last seen in "The Island of Surprise," by Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, will next appear with Holbrook Blinn in a World Film feature.

* * *

With the completion of the new electric studio, which is ready for the twelve producing companies of the Keystone Film Company, and the open air stage, actual work has been begun on the new administration building at the Edendale plant of the comedy company. The stage and studio represent a total cost of nearly $85,000, while the plans submitted to Mack Sennett, the director general, for the administration building, will call for an expenditure of close to $100,000.

* * *

"In the Web of the Grafters" is the title of the first Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, to be produced by the Signal Film Corporation. It has been produced under the direction of Murdock MacQuarrie, with Norbert Myles, Edyth Sterling, Millard Wilson, Julian Beechwood and Frances McDonald in the leading roles.

* * *

"The Way of The World," the five reel drama featuring Hobart Bosworth, is still in course of production at Universal City under the direction of Lloyd Carleton. Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnston, Gretchen Lederer, Adele Farrington, Jack Curtis and Herbert Barrington are portraying the principal roles.

* * *

The next feature production to be made by the Ivan Film Productions will be "The City of Illusion," a six reel drama which has been written by Ivan Abramson.

* * *

The Los Angeles studios of the Selig Company recently received from Franklin Veale, of Maryland. a thrilling ten part drama entitled "Love 'Mongst the Pumies."

* * *

"Feathertop," the Gaumont company's forthcoming Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe Edition, has a variety of scenic opportunity. Ultra society circles, sea-faring folks, and the life of a gentle old man, are three of the phases to be shown in the picture. Marguerite Courtot is called upon to appear as the daughter of an old florist, then as a society-mad young woman, and later as the "Polly Goodkin" of "Feathertop" fame, in the Colonial guise of early revolutionary days. Henry Vernot is directing the play, with Sidney Mason, Lucille Taft and John Reinhard in the cast.

* * *

"The Old Violinist," is the name of the two reel drama which George Cochrane has begun to produce at Universal City with Thomas Jefferson playing the stellar role and little Zoe Bech opposite him.

* * *

Jane Grey, whose work in the Triumph picture, "Man and His Angel" secured her a permanent contract with that concern, is soon to appear in another production on the Equitable Program.

* * *

Roy Clements has started a one reel comedy entitled "Lily White and Centerville," with Victor Potel in the leading role, at the Pacific Coast studios of the Big U organization.

* * *

Bleecker Halle the cameraman who recently arrived from Liverpool, has secured some remarkable scenes of hand-to-hand fighting in the Allied trenches, which strike a new note among war-thrillers. They will have prominent place in the forthcoming war-series "At the Front with the Allies" soon to be released by the Hippodrome Film Company, 110 West 40th street, New York City.

* * *

Miss Vivian Edwards, who has been working prominently in Keystone plays under the direction of Mack Sennett, director general of the Keystone Film Company, will be seen soon in a Triangle-Keystone feature entitled "The Village Blacksmith."

* * *

Craig Hutchinson will start in a few days on a one reel comedy entitled, "The Boarding House Tangle," at Universal City. The cast has not as yet been announced.

* * *

Charles Stallings, formerly of the "American" in Santa Barbara, has joined the Morosco forces as property man for Director Frank Lloyd, co-operating with Director Bill Daly.

* * *

While waiting for director Turner to retake a few scenes in "Get the Boy," the five reel comedy drama being produced at Universal City, Carter De Haven has filled in his spare time directing a one reel comedy-drama entitled, "The Great Bank Robbery," which he has written himself and in which he is playing the principal role.

* * *

Robert Warwick and Frances Nelson are at Miami, Florida staging "Velma" for the World Film Corporation.

* * *

Jay Hunt has started at the Pacific Coast studios of the Bib U organization a two reel animal story entitled, "The Jungle Hero," with Rex De Roselli, Colin Chase, Golda Coldwell and Stafford Pemberton portraying the leading roles.

* * *

The largest steam shovel on the Pacific Coast became one of the "props" in "Overalls," a dramatic feature picture being filmed at Point Concepcion near Santa Barbara, recently by the American (Mutual) Company. A strike and near riot was in progress on some construction work, and the actors were rushed to the scene to take advantage of the splendid atmosphere for the film.

* * *

"Herself," the two reel drama written by Olga Printzlau, is in course of production at the studios of the Big U organization on the western coast, under the direction of E. J. Le Saint. Stella Razeto is playing the leading role in this picture.

* * *

Edna Wallace Hopper, Muriel Ostriche and Charles J. Ross are appearing in Equitable's first three-star feature, "Who Killed Simon Baird," which was written for the screen by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf.

* * *

The Cinderella story, "The Crippled Hand," is keeping director Robert Leonard busy at Universal City. This five reel comedy-drama is featuring Ella Hall with Leonard in the leading male role and is expected to be finished this week.

* * *

Director John Ince, of the Equitable concern, who has been up the Amazon River getting local color for his production of "The Struggle," has returned from that place with Frank Sheridan, Ethel Grey Terry and Arthur Ashley and is now working at the Flushing N. Y. Studio of the Equitable Company.

* * *

Otis Turner is nearing the completion of his five reel comedy-drama "The Gay Lord Waring," in which J. Warren Kerrigan is being starred, now in course of production at the western studios of the Universal company. Director Turner is also finishing his five reel comedy-drama "Get the Boy," which features Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.— Babbitt Brothers plan to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 65 by 142 feet.

Blue Lakes, Cal.—B. L. Waite has fitted up Rankin's Hall for the exhibition of moving pictures.

Chico, Cal.—The Lyric theater recently opened by R. Bauer, has been remodeled.

Davis, Cal.—The Posey theater recently taken over by William Pelly, has been enlarged and the interior redecorated.

Eureka, Cal.—Many new improvements have been made to the Imperial theater.

Glendora, Cal.—The Glendora theater is now being operated by Hickman & Macdonald.

Lindsay, Cal.—Work has been started on the new moving picture theater for F. H. Smith.

Los Banos, Cal.—J. Manducci and B. Cavalla have taken over the Liberty theater.

Oakland, Cal.—A new moving picture theater has been opened on Broadway, near 10th street. It has been named the Imperial.

San Francisco, Cal.—Royal Theater Company will erect a commodious moving picture theater of reinforced concrete on the north side of California street, near Polk. It will have concrete floor; modern heating and ventilating system; seating capacity of 1,400; approximate cost, $60,000.

Stockton, Cal.—The Washington Square theater on Stockton street, has been leased for a term of years by the Commercial Central Realty Co. The house has seating capacity of 1,600.

Stockton, Cal.—A. Delluchi and E. Fontana, who have taken over the old Bell theater, plan to expend about $15,000 in remodeling the structure.

Naugatuck, Conn.—The Paragon Picture Corporation has leased the first floor of the Weisman building on Church street and will equip it as a moving picture theater. There will be a seating capacity for 500 persons.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The Republic theater has been leased by P. W. Hutchison and T. V. Cashen, Jr.

Farmington, Ill.—Jesse Chance, who operates the Dreamland theater, has renamed it the Strand.

Middletown, Ill.—A moving picture theater has been established in the Reisch building by E. H. Krenz.

Oak Park, Ill.—A new addition has been built to the Oak Park theater and the seating capacity increased to 1,300.

Petersburg, Ill.—Arthur Simons and W. W. Watts, owners of the Rex theater recently damaged by fire, plan to erect a handsome new fireproof structure on the site of the old house.

Elkhart, Ind.—A new $5,000 pipe organ has been added to the equipment of the Bucklen theater.

Flora, Ind.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Tokio theater. The house is now being operated by Carl Voorhees.

Kokomo, Ind.—The Colonial theater has passed into the control of J. E. Whitley.

Ladoga, Ind.—The Ladoga opera house has been leased by Walter Kyle and Hugh Rapp. It will be conducted as a high-class moving picture theater.

Lagrange, Ind.—The Majestic theater formerly operated by Charles Griffith, is now being conducted by L. E. Perry.

Noblesville, Ind.—L. J. Dunning has disposed of his interest in the North Side theater to L. F. Ashley.

Rensselaer, Ind.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Rex theater and the seating capacity increased by the addition of 200 new opera chairs.

Thorntown, Ind.—The I. O. O. F. plans to erect a two-story moving picture theater, store and lodge building, 44 by 108 feet. The theater will have seating capacity for 400 persons.

Ida Grove, Ia.—The Princess theater has been taken over by J. H. Pooler.

Stacyville, Ia.—A new moving picture theater has been opened by Heyzog Bros.

Alma, Mich.—A store property has been leased by Harry Rockwell, which he is converting into a moving picture theater.

Monroe, Mich.—Charles E. Kirby will probably build during summer months, a two-story moving picture theater, 80 by 120 feet, to cost about $30,000.

St. Paul, Minn.—Andres Brothers & Lindren, Ohio and Robie streets, plan to erect a moving picture theater, 40 by 110 feet.

McLean, Neb.—George Devlin has opened a moving picture theater here.

Newark, N. J.—The M. & S. Amusement Company plans to erect a commodious moving picture theater of fireproof construction at the corner of 6th and Orange streets, to cost about $100,000.

Newark, N. J.—The Olympia theater located on Norfolk street has now passed into the control of the Grossman-Illman Company and renamed the Regent.

Beacon, N. Y.—Van Voorhis Brothers, Chelsea, N. Y., have the contract to erect a $14,000 moving picture theater here for the Paragon Theater Corporation.

Lyons, N. Y.—Ohmann Brothers have opened a new moving picture theater. The structure covers an area 80 by 50 feet; has seating capacity of 975, and cost $20,000. It has been named the Ohmann.

Newburgh, N. Y.—Paragon Theatre Corporation plans to erect in this city a one-story moving picture theater, 68 by 130 feet.

New York, N. Y.—Wardin Realty Company is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater and store building, 150 by 153 by 118 feet, to cost $35,000.

Woburn, N. D.—Eugene Porter has disposed of his moving picture theater to C. H. Smith.

Dayton, O.—Ferro Concrete Construction Company have the contract to erect an eleven-story theater and office building for the Central Building Company, 35 by 125 feet, to cost $150,000. Work which has been in abeyance for two years on account of finances will soon resume.

Mechanicsburg, O.—The opera house recently leased by Philip Chakers, has been converted into a moving picture house.

Portland, Ore.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Grand theater. The house is operated by F. L. Waters.

Monessen, Pa.—The Luna theater owned by Paradise & Hanakis, has been remodeled.

Hereford, Texas.—Tiefel Brothers have the contract to erect a moving picture theater for C. H. Dyar, to cost $10,500.

Montpelier, Vt.—A company comprising John E. Leland and others, will erect a $40,000 moving picture theater, with seating capacity for 1,400 persons.

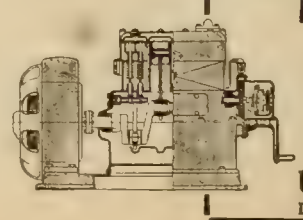
Camas, Wash.—The Grand theater recently taken over by Kiggins & McGill, has been remodeled and the interior redecorated.

Stevenson, Wash.—Samuel Sampson, has opened a moving picture theater, with seating capacity for 250 persons.

Sheboygan Falls, Wis.—R. B. Guyette plans to build a one-story moving picture theater, 40 by 90 feet.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis.—Louis P. Nebel & Son are having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater and office building, 50 by 150 feet, to cost $70,000.

$1.25 per dozen Niagara Gem Slides, any time during March. Now is your time to stock up. Send for catalog and get your order in early. Usual price April 1st.
NIAGARA SLIDE COMPANY Lockport, N. Y.



DIRECT CONNECTED LIGHTING SETS
Compact, dependable, inexpensive, 3 K-W and 4 K-W capacity. Handle arc and 50 lights. No flicker—perfect smoothness. 60 or 110 volts—use 2 pints per K-W. High-grade 4-cylinder 4-cycle motor, fully guaranteed. Write for Bulletin No. 20.
Universal Motor Company
DEPT. W. OSHKOSH, WIS.

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

Big Canadian War Tax

Toronto Picture Men Show Patriotic Readiness to Bear Their Part of the Burden of the Tremendous War Expenses—One-Fourth of the Net Profits of All Companies Capitalized at $50,000 or Over.

By W. M. Gladish, Toronto Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

TORONTO, Ontario.—The officers of Toronto's many film exchange companies are not showing signs of worry because the Canadian Government has decided to slap on a war tax on business profits in order to meet a further $250,000,000 war expenditure. The Government has decided to take one-fourth of the net profits, above seven per cent of the paid-up capital, of companies incorporated for $50,000 or over for a period of three years from August 4, 1914, to August 3rd, 1917. This arrangement means that the companies with small capitalization and comparatively large profits will be hit hardest.

Incorporated theaters, as well as commercial enterprises, are called upon to pay this tax and, although there is considerable conjecture as to the amount such theaters will have to pay, there have been few, if any, real complaints from either the theaters or the exchange companies, many of whom have issued considerable stock. Some managers have expressed the opinion that if any theater or exchange company is making more than seven per cent upon invested capital it will not be a hardship for the concern to share up with the Government. Patriotic sentiment is also a controlling element in the tax situation.

OPERATORS WALK OUT.

Union Recently Strengthened Makes Demands—Trouble Settled.

Toronto, Ont.—For a time trouble between the number of exhibitors and moving picture operators threatened to tie up the whole theater business in Toronto but the matter has been adjusted and diplomatic relations between employers and employes have been resumed.

The labor disturbance was started after Local 143 of the International Moving Picture Operators' Union had absorbed the Canadian Union of Operators, which was a more or less local organization. The members of the latter union were instructed by their new International officers to present agreements to their employers for immediate signature. In some instances the theater proprietors hesitated to sign with the result, it is claimed, that a number of operators walked out, leaving the managers to conduct shows in the best possible way. Complaints were also made that some of the operators willfully destroyed machines, generators and other equipment in operating booths.

The trouble proved to be only temporary, however, it is declared, although some houses now have non-union operators. It is claimed by union officials that only twenty-two theaters in Toronto and vicinity are not employing union men but the International organization now has the entire field to itself and appeals are to be made to the so-called "open houses" to recognize the union.

DELEGATION VISITS V-L-S-E.

Toronto, Ontario.—A delegation of three officers of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association recently waited upon Manager G. W. Gookin, of the new Toronto branch of the V-L-S-E, to secure an explanation of the policy of the "Big Four" and, according to Mr. Gookin, the statements of the delegation to him were very encouraging. He went fully into the company's "cash-basis no-contract" system which is a new wrinkle for the local moving picture field.

The three men who represented the exhibitors' organization, make up the Board of Management, H. Jennings, Sr., W. F. Sexton, and L. Feighan. They have reported back to their association the nature of the details secured.

Mr. Jack Droy, formerly booker with the Famous Players and the Mutual exchanges, has been signed by Mr. Gookin for a similar position with the V-L-S-E in Toronto.

NEW MANAGER AT MUTUAL.

Toronto, Ontario.—A number of staff changes at the Toronto branch of the Mutual have been announced. Jack Harris, manager of the branch, has tendered his resignation which has been accepted. Jack Droy, booker and assistant manager, has also stepped out.

The successor to Mr. Harris is announced as Arthur Larente, formerly with the Mutual and recently assistant general-manager of the Pathe in Canada. Mr. Larente has had eleven years' experience in the moving picture business and knows the field from the ground up. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., but spent many years of his life in the Province of Quebec. At one time in his life, Mr. Larente could speak nothing but French through being educated in the French portion of Canada.

Changes at Specialty Film Company.

Toronto, Ontario.—General Manager Ouimet of the Pathe, New York, was a recent visitor to the Toronto office of the Specialty Film Import Company which handles the Pathe in Canada. Mr. Ouimet discussed the local situation generally with Mr. James Travis, the Toronto branch manager.

The local Pathe headquarters are being re-arranged to provide more suitable facilities for the handling of the business.

Two members of the branch staff, Clifford Valis, shipper, and Jack Green, assistant shipper, recently resigned in order to enlist in the Canadian overseas army. Jean Larente, the booker, brother of Arthur Larente, new local Mutual manager, has also left the employ of the company.

Manager Travis announced that he had booked "The Red Circle" serial solid for three months in twenty-eight houses of Toronto and vicinity. "The Iron Claw" is not to be released by him until after the run of "The Red Circle" has been completed.

Local Universal Doings.

Toronto, Ontario.—Assistant General Manager of the Canadian Universal, F. R. Lennon of Toronto, recently returned to the company's headquarters after a business tour extending from Nova Scotia to Manitoba.

A prominent visitor to the Toronto plant of the Universal was George Weekes, the Detroit branch manager of the Universal, who came to exchange views and ideas with the Canadian and Toronto officials of the company.

W. A. Bach, publicity manager of the Canadian company, now sends twenty copies of his "Canadian Universal Bulletin," a house organ, to Universal City, Cal., each week.

Announcement is made that the Regent theater, Ottawa's new amusement house, has contracted for Blue Bird photoplays.

Such great crowds thronged to see "The Campbells Are Coming" at Griffin's theater, Yonge and Shuter streets, Toronto, that arangements were made for the showing of the thrilling feature for a second week.

Paramount Branch Managers Change Posts.

Toronto, Ontario.—An unusual change has been made by President Allen, of the Canadian Paramount, in the switching of managers of the most distant branches of the Canadian Paramount Company, namely St. John, N. B., on the Atlantic Coast, and Vancouver on the Pacific border. Mr. I. Saskin, formerly in charge at Vancouver, goes to St. John, while Mr. Price of St. John jumps to the far west post.

Toronto Business Notes.

Toronto, Ontario.—According to an announcement by Mr. Granby, Toronto branch manager of the Fox corporation, Mr. F. Campbell, of Boston, Canadian divisional manager for the Fox interests, has started a coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion for the purpose of sizing up the field.

MONTREAL NEWS LETTER.

By Gerald Gallagher, Montreal Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

H. Quintus Brooks Dead.

MONTREAL, Can.—There died in Montreal on February 18, a well-known and popular theatrical man, H. Quintus Brooks. His most recent position, and one which he had held for quite a period, was manager of His Majesty's theater. For a short time he managed the Globe theater, a local house. He was a son of Holman Brooks, the English artist, and started in the business on the staff of the New York Dramatic Mirror, under Harrison Gray Fiske.

Changes at Local General Film.

Mr. Lotz, formerly Montreal manager for the Mutual, is now general manager for the General Film Company in this territory. Geo. Rotsky, also formerly of the local Mutual office, is likewise with General as special representative.

Empire Theater Reopens.

The Empire theater, on Stanley street which has been closed during many a long month, re-opened on the 23rd of February. The house has been renovated, and photoplays and several acts will make up the program. Prices will be a dime in the afternoon, and ten and twenty cents at night.

Films for Sunday Shows

Massachusetts State Police Chief Holds Conference With Film Men on Censored Sunday Films—Unapproved Films in Use—Inaccurate Titles on Request for Permits—May Number Sunday Films.

By William M. Flynn, Boston Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BOSTON, MASS.—Sunday shows, that much-mooted and vexing problem to the public and moving picture men in general, is once more on the carpet in Massachusetts. This time it is the manner in which the films passed by the inspection department of the state police force for Sunday use shall be designated.

Chief John H. Plunkett of the state police claims that films passed by his men after certain eliminations had been made have been later shown in Massachusetts theaters on Sunday with the "eliminations" retained. Therein lies the trouble. The chief called a conference of the managers of the various film exchanges in Boston, which was held in his office at the State House on the afternoon of Thursday, Feb. 24.

The conference lasted more than two hours. The whole matter was threshed out but practically nothing definite was accomplished as the issue fell between the film men handling one and two-reel features and those distributing five and six-reel photoplays.

Exchange Men Present.

Among the moving picture men present were Samuel Bernfield of the Pathe exchange, Frank H. Vine of the World Film, George Balsdon of the "Big Four," Lawrence J. Hacking of the General Film, Harry F. Campbell of the Fox Film, J. A. Eslow of the Universal, Fred B. Murphy of the United Film, and George B. Curtis of the Union Film.

Besides Chief Plunkett there were also present at the meeting Chief Clerk Frederick W. Macer and Special Officer Harry Atkinson, who have charge of the film inspection department of the state police. Chief Plunkett had sent out notices to practically all of the exchange managers in Massachusetts outlining the reason for the conference and after the "roll call" he said:

Eliminations Not Followed.

"I have called you gentlemen here for the purpose of deciding upon some designation of the films approved by this department for Sunday use. Now at the present time we find that some films which we have passed after making certain eliminations are being used on Sundays with these cut-outs still in them. Now, with the help of you gentlemen, I want to establish a system whereby anything like this will be impossible. I want you to settle it yourselves. You know more about the business than I do."

Chief Clerk Macer then went on to explain that he has found instances where the same film has been booked on two or three programs sent in by different exhibitors for the same Sunday and that he knew his department only had cut outs from one print and did not have knowledge that any more prints of that film was in existence. Most of the trouble, he said, was in the western part of the state and the exchangemen present said that this was probably due to the fact that the western part of Massachusetts is included in the New York territory of some of the film corporations and that the houses in that section were booked from the New York offices.

Won't Send Films for Sunday.

"You are not talking about any of my films," said Mr. Bernfield with a smile. "I have never had any passed by your department for Sunday use and now I don't send any up here to be inspected. The most of them show somebody smoking a cigarette or taking a drink, and if I send them up here you want to chop all that out of it. They will go anywhere else in the country on Sunday except Massachusetts."

"I don't bother sending any of my films up here to be passed for Sunday use either," added Mr. Campbell.

"I know we don't get any films from some of the exchanges," said Clerk Macer. "I am referring now to those whom we do get films from and we want to straighten this thing out. We have got to find some way of identifying those films we have approved and some exhibitors in this state have been showing films, parts of which we did not approve and which we cut out when they were sent to us for inspection. There should be something on the films, some wording or mark to show that they have been passed by this department."

"I am perfectly agreeable to any system that can be worked out as long as it doesn't hurt the business," declared Mr. Murphy. "I do not believe, however, in forcing the exchangemen to put on every film that has been passed for Sunday use, some line such as 'Passed by the State Police.' Moving picture exhibitors are peculiar in some ways. Once they get the idea that a film has been passed by this department for Sunday use they won't use that film on week days. And what's the result? That film becomes practically useless. They say they don't want it because it is too tame."

Mr. Murphy's sentiments were echoed by the other exchangemen. They said that if the title, heading, inscription or whatever it was was put on a "leader" that the operators in moving picture houses would be tearing them off and the exchanges would never know where they stood in shipping these Sunday films from one place to another. The same condition would maintain if the mark of identification was placed on the "trailers."

Mr. Vine and Mr. Eslow objected to punching the films as a mark of identification. They claimed the films would tear and that the operators would probably treat them in the same manner as the others. One suggestion after another went by the board as the hearing progressed until finally it was suggested that when any exchange manager sent a film into the state police for the department's approval he should be obliged to state the number of prints he had of that film and that if any eliminations were made the same eliminations should be made of the other prints in his possession and forwarded to the state police before that film was finally passed.

"That would hardly be fair to me and the people I represent," said Mr. Balsdon. 'I handle five and six-reel features. Sometimes I have four or five prints of the same subject, only one of which I want to use for Sundays as an accommodation for my clients. That one I send up here to be approved. You make certain eliminations and I put it aside only to be used on Sundays. The other prints from which nothing has been eliminated I use on week days. If this suggestion should go into effect I would have to send up the cutouts of all four or five films and then I couldn't use any of them on week days. My clients would not take them and it would mean the unjust loss of a lot of money to my firm."

"If you can't pass a film without eliminations, why not refuse to approve the whole reel?" asked Mr. Eslow.

"That might work well as far as the one and two-reel features are concerned," interrupted Mr. Balsdon, "but if I send up a five-reel feature and somebody finds an objection to one scene that does not interfere with the thread of the story, that whole reel would have to be thrown out and the entire film spoiled."

The Exhibitor Suffers Most.

"The exhibitor is the fellow who suffers," said Chief Plunkett. "We get word of somebody who is showing a film that has not been approved by us even though a film by the same title is on the approved list, and we send a man to his theater. His show is stopped and he loses whatever he had to pay for that film."

"Why don't you compare the programs in advance?" asked Mr. Hacking. "You know how many prints there are of a certain film from which parts have been eliminated, and if you find this film booked on more programs than there are prints recorded here in your office it ought to be an easy matter to find the trouble."

"That would be putting too much work on this department," interposed Clerk Macer. "This young lady here (pointing to the stenographer) has all she can attend to now trying to find out if the films scheduled on the programs have been approved by this department. The programs come in here on a Thursday and they have to be O. K.'d and sent out in the mail by Friday noon so that the exhibitors can get them on Saturday. We wouldn't have time for all that."

The conference then got away from the main subject and wandered into the question of disapproving Sunday programs because of inaccuracies of film titles filed for approval by exhibitors throughout Massachusetts. Clerk Macer told the exchangemen that sometimes exhibitors are denied Sunday permits because they have failed to put in the whole title of a film.

Deny Permits for Inaccurate Titles.

"You should not be too strict with the exhibitors," ventured Mr. Campbell. "Many of them are having a difficult time at present to make both ends meet. Business has not been any too good with a large number of the smaller houses and some of the big ones, too, and when a man loses the right to run a Sunday show through some slight inaccuracy in his program he has to pay for the film he has booked just the same, with the result that it costs him a good deal of money. This happened in the case of a house of mine in Marlboro where a stenographer left out part of a title, and I would not want to suffer the same experience again."

Mr. Eslow condemned the practice of withholding the state's approval of a Sunday show just because somebody in the office force of a theater failed to put in an "a" or an "an" in the title of a film. Clerk Macer denied that the department was acting as small as that and said that some of the exhibitors guess at titles and when they come into the office these films cannot be found under the proper index on the approved list.

Those present then entered into a long discussion of some method by which this trouble could be avoided and an exhibitor could be sure of securing a license for a Sunday show if he did happen to slip up on the title of a film. Clerk Macer said there were more than 5,000 films on the list of photoplays approved by the state police for Sunday use during the last seven years. He declared the office force were acquainted with the titles of most of them, but the principal trouble came with those films with which they were not familiar.

Give Sunday Film Numbers.

"Why not give every film a number?" asked Mr. Eslow. "That ought to simplify matters. Number the films as they are approved. Then every film will have a number and a title. When an exhibitor is looking up films for his Sunday show he can get the title and the number too. Then if the title to some film on his program should be wrong in some respect you would have the number to go by and his program would not have to be rejected. He will have two chances then instead of one. If he should have both the title and the number wrong why then you would have some excuse in throwing out his application and the exhibitor would have nobody but himself to blame."

This scheme met with the general approbation of the moving picture men present. Clerk Macer started to object on the ground that it would necessitate the keeping of two accounts and increase the burden of his office force, but his objections were gradually overcome and it is probable this system will be adopted.

MAINE NEWS LETTER.

By John P. Flanagan, Maine Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Flynn & Appleby Take the Jefferson.

PORTLAND, Me.—The Flynn & Appleby theatrical corporation has taken over the management of the old established Jefferson theater at Portland, which opened on Feb. 21 with "Under Fire" and will follow up with "It Pays to Advertise" and other high class productions. Messrs. Flynn & Appleby are well known in moving picture circles. George I Appleby was at one time manager of the Empire theatre in Portland, and has been manager of the Strand theater, Haverhill, Mass.

John Goodwin Gets Bangor's Palace.

Bangor, Me.—John Goodwin, manager of the Acme Amusement Co., operating several houses in central Maine, has acquired the Palace theater, Bangor, and will conduct it starting Feb. 28. He will use Universal service and expects to make extensive improvements. The most recent lessees of the house were Charles M. Stern and Samuel Stern of the New England Universal exchange at Bangor.

To Open Educational Exchange.

Ellsworth, Me.—Rev. T. S. Ross, pastor of the Ellsworth, Me., Methodist Episcopal church, is using pictures each Sunday in connection with his service. "Doc" a temperance story by Eleanor Gates, handled by Phoenix, was a recent successful Sunday film there. Mr. Ross has expressed himself as prepared to embark on a conservative scale in supplying theaters with an educational program. After negotations with various producers and dealers, a supply of films suitable for children has been arranged for and the program will first be put about March 1. Many local theaters with which Mr. Ross has been in communication have expressed a desire to use it.

Two Bangor Picture Men.

Bangor, Me.—Here are two of the live wires in the film trade in Maine, one an exhibitor and the other an exchange man. They are Geo. H. Newhall, recently appointed manager of the General Film Company exchange at Bangor, and Peter

Geo. H. Newhall and Peter H. Murray.

H. Murray, well known theatrical man and former manager of the Murray Stock Company, who recently opened a winter garden at Bangor and introduced the combination of moving pictures and dancing to Bangor, which is a novelty in this city. This photograph was made exclusively for the Moving Picture World by the Maine correspondent. Both gentlemen report that business is very satisfactory and they have nothing to complain of. They agree that General Film service is quite the thing.

Children's Matinee at the Star.

Fairfield, Me.—A new organization in Maine is known as the Parent Teacher association, designed to foster closer relations between teacher and parent for the child's benefit. The Fairfield, Me., branch of this organization gave a matinee at the Star theater recently in conjunction with Manager Wing of the theater. The program was "Landing of the Pilgrims," "Sunny Jim and the Valentines," "The Children's House," "The New York Zoological Park," "Seen through the Makeup" and "The Grouch Chaser," cartoon. The show was a success, socially, educationally and financially, and owing to its success, it is planned to hold a number of such matinees in the future. It would seem that theater managers in other Maine towns might follow the example of Fairfield with profit to themselves and the community.

Recalls Good Old Films.

Ellsworth, Me.—The Strand theater at Ellsworth has adopted a policy that is becoming quite general among Maine picture theaters, that of repeating many of the best features of the past year. "The Spirit of the Conqueror" and "As a Man Sows," two Phoenix features, have played this house twice.

CENSORSHIP CROPS UP.

By Jacob J. Kalter, Newark (501 Century Bldg.) Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ORANGE, N. J.—Mayor Daniel F. Minahan is again contemplating the forming of a local board of censorship because of complaints by patrons of the local motion picture houses.

Bloomfield, N. J.—Mayor Frederick Sadler appointed a board of censors Friday, Feb. 25. The board is composed of seven leading citizens, two of whom are women. The action has been deemed necessary because of the frequent complaints made concerning the films. There are but two moving picture theaters in Bloomfield.

Bayonne, N. J.—The Bayonne's Woman's Club has decided to aid a movement to secure federal supervision of moving picture films.

PARAMOUNT'S NEW MANAGERS.

Newark, N. J.—One of the most important transactions in local motion picture circles was the deal recently put through whereby the firm of Putnam & Jacobs, two of Newark's oldest theatrical men, gained possession of the Paramount theater, Broad and Hill streets. The Paramount is without doubt the prettiest picture house in the state. Designed at first for a place for high-class attractions, such as symphony concerts, recitals, etc., the Paramount finally became a picture house, showing nothing but first-class productions.

W. B. Putnam has been a film exhibitor for many years. He was one of the first to realize that the motion pictures were here to stay. He was accordingly among the first exhibitors in the state. When the pictures first appeared, Mr. Putnam posed for the then popular steriopticon views. He was president and general manager of the Essex Amusement Company, when that concern built the Criterion and Playhouse theaters.

George W. Jacobs, the other member of the firm, literally was born into the theatrical business. His father was one of the first producers to stage popular shows at popular prices in this city. He was also connected and associated with the Proctor interests. Four years ago Putnam & Jacobs organized the Progressive Moving Picture Exchange for the purpose of buying state rights on films. This combination was very successful, and when they were offered the Paramount theater, Messrs. Putnam & Jacobs accepted the proposition.

DELINQUENT IN TAXES.

Newark, N. J.—Warrants were issued for the arrest of three moving picture theater owners for failure to pay the special tax required by the govenment under the emergency revenue law. Those named are Chester Edwards, 91 Watson avenue; Abraham Sincoff, Montgomery and Charlton streets, and Samuel Singer, 7 Avon avenue, all of Newark.

Mr. Edwards called at the office of the collector Friday, Feb. 25, and stated that he was willing to pay his fee. Mr. Singer claimed that he was not the owner of the Avon theater, but that he was merely the lessee.

An impostor, according to Deputy Collector C. Irving Dennett, is going the rounds of the city collecting money and receipting bills, using Mr. Dennett's initials. The authorized collectors are supplied with credentials, and theater managers should be careful in paying their taxes.

ANOTHER JERSEY CITY HOUSE.

Jersey City, N. J.—The Mertens Amusement Company, which now runs the Regent theater and Apollo theater, is having plans prepared by Christian H. Ziegler, architect, for the erection of a new picture house this spring at the corner of Fulton and Jackson avenues, Jersey City. The approximated cost is $50,000.

Accessory Company Incorporated.

The International Film Accessory Corporation filed its certificate of incorporation in the office of the county clerk at Jersey City, with offices at 938 Angelique street, North Bergen, and Frederick G. Knapp as resident agent. The capital stock is $35,000, of which $20,000 is paid in. The incorporators are: C. J. Gotti, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., Antonio and Sebastian Fasanello, both of Brooklyn. The concern will make and sell the Gotti patented apparatus for the cleansing and waxing of moving picture films.

Fire in Lyric.

Elizabeth, N. J.—A small fire, evidently the work of small children, broke out in the Lyric theater, Main street, Elizabeth, last Sunday, but much damage was prevented by the prompt work of the firemen.

No Show Sunday.

Kearny, N. J.—The opening of the Grand theater, Kearny, Sunday, even though in the interests of religion, was protested by Mayor Robert E. Torrence and the town council. Since the rental for five Sundays had been paid in advance, Mrs. Augusta C. Treat, the lessee, refunded the amount to the International Bible Students' Association.

The largest staff of experts in all departments makes the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the one paper in the trade that fully fills the requirements of every reader.

Screen Club at Buffalo

Local Exchange Men Form New Club—Welfare of Picture Business Its Object—Officers Elected Are Dan Savage (General Film), President; G. H. Christoffers (Mutual), Vice-President, and F. S. Hopkins (Universal), Secretary-Treasurer.

By Billy Bison, Buffalo Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Buffalo, N. Y.—An organization known as the Screen Club of Buffalo was formed Feb. 21st at the Lafayette Hotel and its membership includes all the film men of the different exchanges represented in Buffalo. The film men in this city have been anxious for a long time to form some sort of an organization and the Screen Club bids fair to become a powerful one. Its object will be the welfare and the promotion of good fellowship between every person connected with the motion picture industry here.

B. J. Brandon acted as chairman at the first meeting until these officers were elected: Dan Savage, manager of the General Film, president; G. H. Christoffers, manager of the Mutual Film, vice-president; Frank S. Hopkins, manager of the Universal, secretary-treasurer.

These honorary members were elected: John F. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Company; J. C. Graham, assistant general manager of the Mutual Film Company; Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Company; P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Company; George Kleine, president of the General Film Company; A. H. Hodkinson of the Paramount Feature Film Company; H. E. Aitken of the Triangle Film Company; William Fox; W. S. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation; Arthur Speigel of the World Film Corporation; Fred B. Murphy of the United Film Company; R. A. Rowland of the Metro Film Service. E. M. Saunders, manager of New York Metro Film Service; Charles Pathe; A. S. Smith, president of V-L-S-E Company, W. W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E Company; Joe Brandt, general manager of the Universal Film Company.

Popular Film Exchange Grows.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Popular Film Exchange of 39 Erie Street, Buffalo, has taken over the All Theaters Film and Accessory Co. J. M. Sitterly and Harry Marsey are proprietors of the first-named concern. Their road men are George Buckley and James Coombs.

The Popular Exchange is successfully booking Annette Kellerman in "Neptune's Daughter" throughout New York State. They have also released "Traffic in Souls," "Damon and Pythias," "Williamson's Submarine Pictures," Henry B. Walthall in "Beulah," Carlyle Blackwell in "The Key to Yesterday" and other productions.

Becker Feature Film Co.

The Becker Feature Film Co. is now located at 29 Franklin street. The proprietors are Henry J. Carr, manager of Shea's theater, Buffalo, and Albert Becker, who has been a moving picture operator at that house for several years.

Joseph Kessel Likes "World."

Joseph Kessel, manager of the United Film Service, 23 West Swan Street, Buffalo, is an enthusiastic reader of The Moving Picture World.

"I couldn't go without this paper" said Mr. Kessel. "Even while I was in the film business in Brazil and Argentina last year The Moving Picture World arrived regularly, and I can assure you that it was mighty welcome."

Temple Theater, Geneva, N. Y.

Frank C. Pierce, a member of the firm of Pierce & Nagle, proprietors of the Temple theater, Geneva, N. Y., was a recent visitor at the Buffalo exchanges and downtown theaters.

"There are four moving picture theaters in Geneva" said Mr. Pierce. "These have a total of 3,800 seats, and the population of Geneva is 12,000. You will therefore understand that the total seating capacity is out of proportion to the size of the place."

Mr. Pierce's prices of admission are 10, 15 and 20 cents. He says his patrons want 80 per cent. moving pictures and 20 per cent. vaudeville. He uses the Triangle, Fox, Metro, and Big Four programmes. Receiving hints from the Strand theater, New York, Mr. Pierce has arranged his stage in an elaborate fashion and has built a $5,000 lobby. He has an orchestra of five pieces. He makes occasional trips to New York, Buffalo and other cities to get new ideas to help him in his business. He says audiences in the smaller cities are usually very critical. He is meeting with success in serving his high-class patrons. He will probably dispense with vaudeville entirely.

New Mutual Office.

Here is the smiling countenance of G. H. Christoffers, manager of the Buffalo branch of the Mutual Film Corporation, who recently arranged a new home for the Mutual at 106 Pearl street, this city. He is always ready to welcome visitors and show the Mutual programme, and the new Mutual Masterpictures De Luxe. Before taking charge of the Buffalo office nine months ago he traveled all over the United States as special Mutual representative. Mr. Christoffers says Buffalo will shortly have a Main street "franchise theater," using Mutual service exclusively. He will give details later. He has appointed J. M. Gorchof as his Rochester representative to succeed G. H. Penn, transferred to Cleveland. Jerome Wilson is covering the Pennsylvania territory for the Mutual office in Buffalo. Mr. Christoffers was one of the enthusiastic organizers of the Reel Fellows Club of Buffalo.

G. H. Christoffers.

Buffalo and Vicinity Changes.

William Leyser has taken over the management of the Rialto moving picture theater, Buffalo.

J. Leon Brick is the new manager of the Elmwood moving picture theater, Buffalo. He was formerly in charge of the Regent, this city.

M. J. Valley of the Savoy moving picture theater, Lackawanna, a Buffalo suburb, has reopened the Happy Hour theater, that village.

Manager Davis of Keith's theatre, Buffalo, is having that house generally refitted and redecorated, so it will be as bright as on the opening day.

WATERVLIET SUNDAY SHOWS.

No Legal Power in State Can Force Theaters to Close Sunday.

WATERVLIET, N. Y.—Mayor Foley recently received from the official board of the Third Avenue Methodist church a formal protest against the opening of the moving picture theaters on Sunday evening. The communication asks the Mayor to secure the immediate enforcement of the city ordinance which makes the Sunday opening illegal. No other church has yet taken action on the matter.

Mayor Foley stated that until the theaters opened he would make no decision on the matter. He informed the ministers that he would be glad to talk with them later and it is probable that another meeting will be arranged.

The matter from a legal point of view seems to be entirely up to the Mayor inasmuch as the supreme court has decided that the cities of the state have no right to adopt laws to close the theaters on Sundays. The Mayor, however, has the right to revoke licenses.

[To open on Sunday in the State of New York is not, at this time, an illegal act, according to decision of Court of Appeals, so the Mayor lacks the right to revoke licenses for that alone.]

PRICES IN PHILADELPHIA.

Higher Admissions Being Asked by More Exhibitors.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—It seems to be a sign of the times that each week witnesses an addition to the number of theaters who are raising their prices of admission from the traditional 5 cents to 10 cents, at least on several evenings a week. Three years ago the Philadelphia Exhibitors' League made a fruitless effort to accomplish this very point, but the higher prices now being paid for films, together with a decrease in attendance at the theaters located upon non-transit streets have compelled proprietors to take this step in order to keep their houses open. The better class of theaters are charging 15 cents and since they are doing a fine business it has dawned upon the smaller men to make the plunge. It is the only way nowadays to bring back prosperity.

THEATER AGAIN CHANGES HANDS.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Wyalusing theater, corner of 52d street and Wyalusing avenue, has once more changed hands, this being about the sixth change within a period of twelve months' time. This proves an excellent illustration of the fact that the 500-seat neighborhood theater which is forced to compete with a better program in a larger house is having a fight for its existence. This can be seen in the fact that the Bellevue theater, located at 61st and Vine streets, which a year ago was valued at $200 per month, has recently been in the market at $125, and there have been no takers.

PLAZA THEATER CHANGES HANDS.

East Stroudsburg, Pa.—Frank Fabel, former manager of the Plaza theater, East Stroudsburg, Pa., has relinquished his house to Messrs. Albert H. Beachh and A. L. Fox, who have leased this popular photoplay house. The theater was closed for several days recently for many necessary repairs to be made and much new equipment was added to the former stock. The new managers are young men of excellent reputation and have proved themselves to be energetic and enterprising. It is their plan to exhibit nothing but the best of films and they are preparing to give the moving picture fans of East Stroudsburg a run of the best pictures obtainable. Such methods are sure to meet with success.

TO ENLARGE GEM THEATER.

Reading, Pa.—James Calvin Young, well known architect, and who has drawn the plans for more than fifty moving picture theaters scattered throughout the country, has recently completed plans for the enlarging and renovating of the Gem theater, 10th and Spring streets, Reading, Pa., owned by Julius G. Hansen. The theater proper will be widened ten feet. The south wall will be removed and the addition built on the vacant lot adjoining the theater on the south side. The entire interior will be entirely renovated and beautified.

To Put Projection in Schools.

Allentown, Pa.—Following a discussion by the Jefferson Parent-Teaching Association of Allentown, Pa., relative to the topic of the uses and abuses of moving pictures, the association took steps toward securing a moving picture machine for the use of the pupils in the public schools, to be used in the co-ordination of various studies, particularly geography, history and natural science. This plan follows that adopted by the authorities of Quakertown, Pa., who have purchased a first class projecting machine and have met with excellent results as a result of their venture.

Leases the Olympia Theater.

Proprietor Wolf of the Empress theater, on South Seventh street, has taken a lease of the Olympia theater, Broad and Pine streets, which theater has a seating capacity of 4,000 people. On two evenings of each week this house is used as a boxing club and is owned by a syndicate controlled by Harry Edwards, a sporting celebrity of this city. Mr. Wolf reports having met with excellent results to date with his latest venture and declares that he is of the opinion that the attendance will continue to increase during the near future.

Broadway Theater Sold.

The Broadway theater, on the west side of Broad street, north of Snyder avenue, lot 157 feet by an irregular depth, has been conveyed by Solomon Hopkins to the Broadway Amusement Company, subject to a mortgage of $165,000. The theater is assessed at $160,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., NEWS LETTER.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

United Film Office in Kimball, W. Va.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sidney B. Lust, proprietor of the United Film Service in this territory, has opened up a branch office in Kimball, West Virginia, which he has fully equipped and prepared so as to give quick service to his patrons. This territory is in charge of Edward Leon, who is well known to the exhibitors of that locality by reason of his formerly having managed the Lyric theater, at Bluefields. At the main office in Washington, Mr. Lust has made a number of changes. He has increased his line of releases and has put in a supply of theater accessories, machine parts and deodorizers. He is adding to his lines and will soon be able to fill all requirements of the theaters.

Back for Metro Meeting in New York.

L. M. Day and Frank Brown, of the local Metro Film Service Company, have just returned from a trip to New York, where they attended a meeting of the managers handling the Metro output, just full of enthusiasm over the possibilities which they see in the ensuing months of the year. While in the "big city" they picked up a number of good ideas that will lead to greater efficiency in their office, which they will soon get into working order. These ideas, they declare, mean greater service to the exhibitors.

May Demolish Casino Theater.

It is reported that plans are under way to demolish the present Casino theater building on E street, near Seventh street, Northwest, and to erect on its site a modern department store building. This theater has been used for stock, traveling and vaudeville shows and is now being operated as a feature motion picture house by A. J. Faulkner. It is owned by the A. C. Mayer Amusement Company.

Mrs. J. A. Haga, formerly of Baltimore, Md., is reported to have secured control of the Raphael theater, at Ninth and O streets, Northwest.

Club Against Censorship

Pittsburgh Screen Club Working to Get Repeal of the Pennsylvania Censor Laws —Committee Appointed to Begin Aggressive Movement—Wants Co-operation of Allied Forces—Gets After Candidates for Election.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—The Pittsburgh Screen Club has started a determined fight against censorship, with its object the repeal of the present censorship laws in Pennsylvania. At the last meeting of the club preliminary plans were drawn up and a committee appointed for carrying out what is expected to be the most aggressive movement yet undertaken in this state on the censorship evil. Steps have also been taken to secure the co-operation of the allied forces in Eastern Pennsylvania.

For Rights of the Industry.

Before the coming election of delegates to the state legislature a state-wide battle will be waged to guarantee the rights of the industry. One of the club's first objects in view is to get in touch with all candidates for election to the Senate and House of Representatives, ascertaining their sentiments toward the moving picture industry and to support only those who agree to be friendly to the industry when the question of censorship comes before the state law-making bodies early next year. At the recent meeting evidence was presented by members of the club showing that the state board of censors desires to increase its powers by obtaining the right to confiscate films. A legislative committee to devise ways and means to prevent the carrying out of any such proposition and to combat the present obnoxious laws was appointed by President Kester. The committee consists of John McAleer, Mayer Silverman, M. J. C. Kornblum, M. A. Gibbons, Max Herring, Joseph S. Skirboll and C. W. Eckhardt. Meetings are to be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night.

Gets After Candidates.

The committee organized at its first meeting with the election of M. J. C. Kornblum as secretary and Mayer Silverman as treasurer. Arrangements were completed to send communications to all the present members of the state legislature inquiring whether they will be candidates for re-election, and if so, what their attitude is in regard to the censorship question. There are about 200 members of the legislature and 50 senatorial districts in the state, and each district will be covered in this way. As new candidates are announced the committee will communicate with them and by the time of the spring primaries a good idea will be had as to the standing of those seeking election. Plans were also formulated for the furthering of newspaper advertising and publicity and preparation of slides to be shown by moving picture theaters throughout the state.

BENDER & WILLIAMS DISSOLVE.

The firm of Bender & Williams, which has for a number of years past conducted in a successful manner the Colonial theater, Troy Hill, Pittsburgh, Pa., was recently dissolved. Ralph Williams has assumed the sole ownership of the house and will operate it alone. John Bender, who is a pioneer exhibitor in this city, is completing plans for the erection of a new theater of modern design in the near future on the North Side. The site has not yet been decided upon, two locations being held under consideration.

Buys Interest in Young's Theater.

Greenville, Pa.—Charles H. Rabson, of Monongah, W. Va., has purchased half interest in Young's theater, operated by D. B. Helm, at Greenville, Pa. Plans are being made to improve the house this spring.

Films of Pittsburgh Ball.

The moving pictures of the Screen Club Ball, February 14, are proving a good drawing card at local houses, having been shown by the downtown Cameraphone and other prominent theaters. The Universal made one film which is being booked by Charles F. Miller at the Independent Exchange. The other was made by the Photoplay Entertainment Company, J. Frank Martin, manager, and is being booked by the Hudson Exchange.

An Error.

State College, Pa.—Exhibitor C. C. Curry, lessee of the Pastime theater of this city, has called our attention to an error in a recent issue. He has not been appointed manager of the house by Mr. Wood; for that man has no interest in the house whatever. C. C. Curry is himself in authority at the Pastime.

Among Local Exchangemen.

Al. W. Cross, manager of the Hudson Feature Film Co., 212 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh, has returned from a very successful trip through Northwestern Pennsylvania, visiting Erie, Corry, Titusville, Franklin, Stoneboro, Mercer, Sharon and New Castle. Mr. Cross reports that industrial and general business conditions are thriving throughout that territory and that the theaters are receiving their share of the prosperity.

The Roshon Photoplay Service, of Johnstown, Pa., has removed its exchange and office from the Garden theater building, on Main street, to 130 Market street. The concern has increased its working forces and found larger quarters necessary. The company's service includes Mutual Universal and General and a variety of exclusive feature productions, and Manager Roshon reports business exceptionally active.

F. L. France, the busy road man of the Feature Film & Calcium Light Co., Pittsburgh, returned recently from a business visit in Chicago, and is now on a trip to various cities in West Virginia. Mr. France has just completed his biggest month, and his company also reports that the past month was the best in the history of the concern.

James T. Tarr, of the J. Frank Hatch Film Company, 109 Fourth avenue, left Pittsburgh recently for Newark, N. J., where he has assumed charge of that office of the company.

To Cleveland Club Women

President Benjamin J. Sawyer of Northeastern Ohio Exhibitors' League Writes an Open Letter to Cleveland Club Women and to Mrs. Maud Murray Miller on Activities of State Censors—Eminently Worth Reading.

By Hubert Persons, Cleveland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CLEVELAND, O.—Benjamin J. Sawyer, president of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, has forwarded to Cleveland club women and Mrs. Maude Murray Miller of Columbus, member of the state board of censors, a reply to her recent letter attacking the Cleveland exhibitors.

President Sawyer's Letter.

"There has come to my attention a letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Maud Murray Miller of the Board of State Censors of Moving Pictures and while no names are mentioned I am perfectly willing to wear one pair of shoes that seem to fit.

"I was interested and active in the referendum petitions and still have them in my possession for future reference. Mrs. Miller claims that because the referendum was not filed the State is overwhelmingly for censorship outside of Cleveland. Mrs. Miller's name has continually been in print on censorship and the papers have printed column after column for the Board. Now she desires to lecture, but why lecture or write if the people are so strongly for censorship. Why not earn the money paid so lavishly into the State Treasury by doing the work expected of an employee.

"The Supreme Court of Ohio has said it was double taxation to place upon an article a greater fee than necessary to pay for inspection. Would we be led to believe from Mrs. Miller's statement that the officers of the State of Ohio would place a double tax knowingly upon any of its citizens. It is not long past that Mrs. Miller was drawing a salary from Ohio to inspect pictures and one from a newspaper, and exchangemen were unable to get their pictures examined in time to keep business going. Now Mrs. Miller desires to go on a lecture trip at the expense of the picture men I believe, or would she remit her salary for the time she is away.

"It has always been a strange thought to me how any one could get the idea into their head that they held all knowledge of right and wrong and all others were incompetent to judge the same. Another strange thought is how any one can make themselves believe that the people have no sense of right and wrong and knowing of the same has been given by some strange power to a certain few, who give out their conception of right only at so much per right.

"Mrs. Miller has wonderful thoughts concerning the National Board of Censors because they work for nothing and because they are not legalized. Our experience with paid office holders has not proven to us that the question of pay gives any added assurance of either integrity or ability. We believe people can be honest without being paid to be so, and that they may possess ability even though they do not hold a political job. As for a board being legalized, from Mrs. Miller's letter we fail to see what the difference is, for she says her Board is unable to carry out their orders, the same trouble she finds with the National Board. There was a time when a political office was looked upon as one of high calling, one that called upon patriotic men to sacrifice both of their time and means to lead the people into broader paths. Now it seems that political office consists principally of making the people believe that they should continue one in office so that one can continue to draw the salary attached thereto and that it is a disgrace for any one to attempt to do anything for the moral uplift of the people without first creating a political office and having a salary attached to the same."

Eleven States Defeat Censor Bill.

"Mrs. Miller says other states are passing censor bills, did she name them? Did she mention the fact that Censor Bills were defeated in eleven States last year and that the States that have them are seeing the hand writing on the wall? I wish to say to Mrs. Miller that I have always been on friendly terms with the members of the Censor Board, as far as I know, and that if she is unfriendly toward me it does not worry me in the least, that while I would have all friends, life is too short to try and make friends of those who only are friends when you agree with them. I have said this of Mrs. Miller that in my opinion her disposition and entire lack of the sense of humor disqualified her for the work before her. I am still of that opinion.

"Let me say this, that as long as the Board does not agree among themselves why should they expect others to agree with them. Let me further say that I have never appeared before any body of people to talk upon Censorship except upon invitation and when I have tried to show how the Censor Board worked, I have been exceedingly careful to show their work by actual facts. Neither have I advised anyone to disregard the law. But so long as there is left a little freedom to think for oneself, would the Censor Board deny us the right? Concerning Mr. Bullock whom Mrs. Miller undoubtedly refers to as the exhibitor, I wish to say that while I do not always agree with Mr. Bullock's methods I agree with his spirit and must say that the world would be blessed if there were more Sam Bullocks, who takes a fatherly interest in every waif that comes to his picture shows. I have defended Sam Bullock and would do it again for though he makes mistakes his virtues hide them all.

The Sam Bullock Case.

"The State, with an attorney from the Attorney General's office tried to convict Sam, the jury stood seven for acquital and five for conviction. A word about that case. It was not a case of a picture but of a film having on it a criticism of censorship. The law says that the Censor Board shall pass such pictures as in their judgment are of a moral, educational and of an amusing and harmless nature. The words in the film, criticising Censorsh'p, not the Board, were ordered eliminated from the film on the ground that the words were harmful. I asked Mr. Williams, a member of the Board, in what way they were harmful. The State objected and the justice sustained the State. The State took the ground no matter how wrong the Board might be in rejecting a film the only question in a criminal case was, has it been rejected? Yet this is or was America.

"Mrs. Miller utterly fails to get a proper view point of the ladies of Civic Clubs. They are not wasting their time with the State Board of Censors, but are working along a line of helpfulness that means much. It is gratifying to know that Mrs. Miller is willing to hold the job on the Board of Censors in order to keep alive the Motion Picture business which she says would go to ruin but for the protection afforded by the Board. For myself I am old enough to remember that the business lived and the people lived before the Board existed and I believe will continue to live long after the Board ceases to exist. Mrs. Miller, give the people credit for a little brains and a few ounces of moral instinct and you may see the light.

A NEW DIRECTOR.

Robert H. McLaughlin, president of the Reserve Photo-Plays Company, has just announced that J. A. Fitzgerald of New York, will be director of the company's studio at 717 Superior ave., to succeed Ralph C. Cummings, formerly of the Kalem Company.

Johnny Ray.

Mr. Cummings, who came to Cleveland to supervise the installation of the studio equipment had returned to New York. He was in charge of the first two pictures in which Johnny Ray and Mrs. Ray appear.

The company will begin releasing comdies on April 1. The latest comedies the company is to produce, "Casey the Bandmaster," and "Casey's Dream," are now being made. Ten comedies will be ready on the release date.

Mr. Fitzgerald has twelve regular people at his disposal, in addition to the Rays, and a large staff of substitutes. "Flat-iron," former noted Barnum and Bailey circus clown, is a member of the producing staff.

CINCINNATI NEWS LETTER.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Cincinnati Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Billie Burke's Film Pleases.

CINCINNATI, Ohio—The first Cincinnati appearance of Billie Burke as a film figure was seen by repeated large houses at the Family, the first half of last week, the popular star appearing in the Triangle-Kay-Bee production, "Peggy." Advance notices regarding the attractiveness of the play, and the success of Miss Burke, were fully justified, in the opinion of local critics and of the large audiences who saw the picture. The five reels constituted the sole program at the Family during the engagement, the usual Triangle-Keystone being omitted. Manager Libson was immensely pleased with the success of the engagement, which may be classed as one of the most profitable of the numerous successes which the Triangle, in its comparatively short career, has already sent to the Family.

Liberty Will Have More Seats.

The New Liberty Amusement Co., which owns and conducts the Liberty, on West Liberty street, Cincinnati, recently acquired property in the rear of the house which will give sufficient space to enable the seating capacity to be increased to about 800. The necessary changes and additions to the structure will be made this spring, after warm weather sets in, and will afford an opportunity to make the house practically a new one, as well as much larger.

New Theater in Akron.

Akron, O.—The Mill & High Theater Co., recently incorporated at Akron, with a capital stock of $100,000, will probably construct a large modern house in that city. C. T. Grant and others are interested.

Kids With Big Triangles.

Urbana, O.—The management of the Clifford, at Urbana, O., recently put on a clever advertising stunt to get people talking about the Triangle program, which is now a part of the regular offerings at the Clifford. Free admisison was offered one Saturday afternoon to all children presenting big cardboard triangles, with equal sizes not less than 15 inches long, and it is recorded that cardboard was at a premium for several days preceding the date on which the offer was good.

ATLANTA NEWS LETTER.

By A. M. Beatty, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Local V-L-S-E Promotes.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Among the promotions made by the V. L. S. E. during the past week is that of H. P. Allen from the position of shipper to that of booker in the Atlanta office. Mr. Allen has only been with the V. L. S. E. for a short time, but has made an excellent record, and his advancement is well deserved. It is understood that another salesman will be added to the Atlanta office soon, making four representatives of the Big Four traveling out of the Atlanta branch.

"Nation" Film Back in Birmingham.

Manager Douglas, of the Jefferson, Birmingham, Ala., announces a return of "The Birth of a Nation" for two weeks, beginning Sunday, March 5. He announces it with a smile, as this wonderful film on its former showing at his theater, broke all box-office records for the season.

CHATTANOOGA NEWS LETTER.

By G. D. Crain Jr., Chattanooga Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

T. S. Wilcox to Build Theater.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—C. E. Bearden, an architect of Chattanooga, has completed plans for Thomas S. Wilcox, for the erection of a new fireproof theater at 116 East Ninth street. The theater is to cost about $5,000 and will be heated by gas. The building will be 40 x 100 feet.

New Knickerbocker Theater Ready.

Nashville, Tenn.—W. H. Wassman, of Nashville, Tenn., is preparing to have the new Knickerbocker theater ready for the opening date which has been set for March 15. A large Kimball organ costing $10,000, was recently purchased through W. A. Leatherman, of Nashville, and is now being installed in the new photoplay house. This instrument is divided into two sections, the main instrument to be placed behind the screen and in a concrete room built especially for it. The echo organ will be located in the other end of the building and will have an opening on the mezzanine floor. Manager Wassman states that the musical program along will be worth the price of admission.

Big Features in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Majestic theater, No. 2, of Memphis, Tenn., opened on February 27 for a week's run with the big film, "The Battle Cry of Peace." Prices were advanced to fifty cents on the first floor and twenty-five cents on the balcony, and all seats were reserved. Two shows were given daily one at 2.30 and one at 8:30.

Memphians took considerable interest in the recent exhibition by the Majestic Amusement Company of the five-reel Mutual Masterpiece, "The Drifter," featuring Lucille Taft, a former well-known Memphis girl. Miss Taft was very well known in the city before becoming a moving picture actress.

The Bijou theater, of Chattanooga, opened a three-day engagement with "The Birth of a Nation," starting February 28. Two shows were given daily. This picture has been so extensively advertised that the entire South is awaiting its showing.

"Stocking Inspector."

Louisville, Ky.—A new position, that of stocking inspector, was created temporarily at the Mary Anderson theater during the showing of "Green Stockings," the five-part Vitagraph feature starring Lillian Walker. Mrs. M. C. Russell, the theater matron, was assigned to the job as a result of the management's offer of free admission to any woman or girl wearing green stockings at the matinees during the showing of this film.

"Nation" Film Arrest

In Louisville, Kentucky, Exhibitor A. A. Bigelow of Macauley's Theater is Arrested Under Race Prejudice Law of 1906 After Showing "The Birth of a Nation" in His House—A Great Surprise to Picture Men.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Louisville Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Local exhibitors were greatly surprised on Friday afternoon, February 18, when a warrant was issued for the arrest of A. A. Bigelow, manager of Macauley's theater, on a charge of violating the Kentucky statutes in allowing the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation." The warrant was served, and Mr. Bigelow was at once released on bond to appear before Magistrate R. O. Dorsey the following day.

On Saturday a demurrer was filed by counsel for Mr. Bigelow questioning the right of the magistrate's court to try the case. The objection was based on Section 1093 of the Kentucky Statutes, which provides that the jurisdiction of the Magisterial court in penal actions is limited to those cases in which the punishment is fixed at a fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment not exceeding fifty days, or both.

Statute Was Passed in 1906.

Mr. Bigelow was arrested under section C, Kentucky Statutes 1376, which makes is unlawful to arouse race prejudice by stage presentation, this law having been enacted in 1906.

In the demurrer it was argued that the section of the law provides a fine of from $100 to $500 and imprisonment of from thirty to ninety days, or both. The defendant claims that the maximum punishment as to both the fine and imprisonment or for either of them is in excess of the jurisdiction of the magistrate's court.

The case was continued until a later date on order of the Magistrate and a ruling will be delivered as to the jurisdiction at the postponed hearing, which will then be of slight interest since the theater will have finished presentation of the film.

Mayor Buschemeyer Commended Film.

The entire case has been in the nature of a big surprise to moving picture circles. Before the showing of the picture delegations of negroes and others made efforts to prevent the presentation, but Mayor John H. Buschemeyer stated that he had seen the picture in Chicago, was pleased with it, and would not undertake to suppress it.

W. R. Heck, a local attorney, started the trouble when he swore out the warrant for the arrest of Manager Bigelow. Heck stated that there was no one behind him in the movement and that he was acting on his own initiative. He claimed that the picture was "demoralizing and anarchy-breeding," contending that it stirred up race hatred. He claimed that he overheard threats made by negroes and whites on the streets, and decided to take steps toward suppression of the film.

It is generally thought that prominent negroes were behind the movement for Manager Bigelow's arrest.

As injunction proceedings were not instigated the showing of the film was continued for the second week with even larger crowds than during the first week's run.

New Big Features Rights Corporation.

Louisville, Ky.—The Big Features Rights Corporation has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000 divided into shares of $100. The incorporators are Fred Levy, Lee L. Goldberg and Joseph Selligman, each holding three shares. The debt limit is placed at $25,000. The company has been formed for the purpose of booking big feature films in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee and will make its bookings through the United Booking Office Feature Co. The first film the company has undertaken to book is "The Battle Cry of Peace," for which bookings to run 120 days have been secured. The film was recently started at Winchester, Ky., having been shown in Louisville several weeks previously. Officers of the company include Fred Levy, president, and Lee Goldberg, manager of the Mary Anderson theater, secretary-treasurer and general manager.

New Capitol Theater Company.

Louisville, Ky.—The Capitol Theater Company of Louisville, with a capital stock of $3,000, divided into shares of $10 each, has filed articles of incorporation for the purpose of operating the Capitol Theater, of Frankfort, Ky., which has been operated for some time by the incorporators of the new company. The incorporators named are Fred J. Dolle, Dennis H. Long and Henry Reiss. These men are also actively interested in the Broadway Amusement Enterprises Company, of Louisville, operators of a string of theaters. The debt limit of the new concern is placed at $10,000.

Old Novelty is New Rex.

Louisville, Ky.—Work is being pushed on the repairs and redecorations of the old Novelty theater, which will open shortly as the Rex, showing the new DeLux edition of Mutual Masterpictures. It is generally thought that the house, after being thoroughly renovated and remodeled, and with a first run service will regain its old time popularity.

Helps Local Athletics.

Pineville, Ky.—Wrestling matches and basket ball games have been some of the added attractions which the management of the Lyric theater, of Pineville, Ky., has been featuring. A basketball game between two girl teams was recently featured on Tuesday night, and a two-fall match between professional wrestlers was featured on the following Friday night. The theater has started its matinees at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in order that patrons from Harlan, Ky., may make the afternoon train.

New House in Corbin.

Corbin, Ky.—Announcement has been made of another theater in the Cumberland mountains at Corbin, Ky. This theater will be opened by W. W. Sawyers and Jess Mershon, Former Manager Callaway, of the Palace Theater, will be in charge of the new house.

Alamo Theater Goes.

Georgetown, Ky.—The management of the Georgetown Opera House, at Georgetown, Ky., has decided to dismantle the old Alamo theater building, the programs having been consolidated with those at the Opera House some time ago. The building will be changed into store rooms.

Dreamland Leased.

Clay, Ky.—E. L. Rakes, manager of the Princess theater, of Sturgis, Ky., has leased the Dreamland theater, of Clay, Ky., and has announced that the new theater will be operated as the Princess under the management of his son.

May Build Near Bardstown.

Bardstown, Ky.—It has been announced at Bardstown, Ky., that George Mann is preparing to establish a new picture show. Mr. Mann recently purchased the equipment of a theater in a nearby city which quit business, and will not have to purchase much in the way of new equipment.

KUNSKY THEATERS CHANGE POLICY.

Detroit's Alhambra, Garden and Strand to Keep Films Two Days.

By Jacob Smith, Detroit Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

DETROIT, Mich.—John H. Kunsky announces a radical change in policy at his Alhambra, Garden and Strand theaters starting March first. These theaters have heretofore played new pictures every day, but under the new policy every picture will be run two days, excepting Sunday which will be "open."

WHAT EXHIBITORS ARE SAYING.

World Correspondent Asks Forty Managers What They Think.

Detroit, Mich.—Approximately 40 motion picture exhibitors were visited by the local correspondent of Moving Picture World in the past ten days and in talking with them he has found that they all have some complaint or some suggestion to make, which, in their opinion, would improve conditions in the trade. Space does not permit the mention of them all, but we will give some of the suggestions as we believe them worthy of consideration:

Names on Slides.

"Why do producers send slides with their own names in bigger type than the star or the name of the film? The things that draw people to a theater are the name of the star or the name of the film? The public is interested to only a small extent in the name of the producer.

Fewer But Better Films.

"Give us fewer pictures, but better pictures. There are altogether too many pictures on the market; manufacturers are getting them out so fast that they haven't time to give them the right kind of attention.

Advertise Running Time.

"Exhibitors should get the public educated to the running time of their shows. By starting their shows week in and week out on the same hour, the public would soon know it and the result would be less congestion in the lobby. It would also cause less trouble in seating your patrons, and would save much annoyance.

S. R. O. Sign Out.

"As soon as all seats are taken, a sign should go up in the box office 'Standing Room Only,' because it is wrong to sell tickets when your house is crowded and there are several hundred people standing.

On Captions and Leaders.

"Some of the captions used in films are very poorly constructed. The grammar is often wrong, the English is poor, spelling is wrong, punctuation is wrong and the wording is very amateurish. It looks as if there was a lack of attention on someone's part to see that their captions were properly constructed.

"All descriptive titles should be in big type so that they can be easily read from all parts of the theater. Another thing, it is wrong to show copies of letters which are written in small type. The average person cannot read small handwriting on the screen, especially if the lighting happens to be a little poor. If letters must be shown, then let them be reproduced also in regular printed large type."

On Prepayment for Films.

Detroit Mich.—There is a movement on among Detroit film exchanges to require exhibitors to pay in advance for film. Practically all of the Detroit exchanges, with the possible exception of one or two, are in favor of this policy. "There is nothing wrong with the pay-in-advance method if you give it a little careful thought," said one exchange manager. "People have to pay to get into the theatre; if they don't pay in advance, they don't get in. The producer has to pay his screen stars and the cost of a film before it is completed; the exchanges have to pay their rent in advance and other expenses. It is not a case of where the exchange does not trust the exhibitor; it is simply a business proposition. If the exhibitor is making money and expects to remain in business, why should he object whether he has to pay before he shows the film or after. It has to be paid for, and the amount he pays each day is really a small item. I am sure that if exhibitors will just think it over they will not have the least objection in the advance-payment policy."

At the New Crystal.

One of the most modern theatres on Detroit's west side the Crystal, is located at 1499 Michigan avenue, and is managed by Arthur D. Baehr. The Crystal opened for business the middle of January and accommodates 600. It is similar in style to the Fine Arts theatre on Woodward avenue. It is of brick and strictly fireproof. A pipe organ is now being installed. Manager Baehr shows only the best features at ten cents. The Crystal employes two ushers, a house fireman, doorman, and special officer. The projection equipment consists of two Powers 6a machines and a generator.

Geo. Sparth to Manage Majestic Garden.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—A. J. Gilligham, of Detroit, announces the appointment of George Spaeth as manager of the Majestic Garden theater in Grand Rapids, to succeed Bert Lowe, who has returned to New York. Mr. Spaeth was former manager of the Majestic Gardens.

Harvey Arlington to Run Isis.

Harvey Arlington has been appointed manager of the Isis theater Grand Rapids, having formerly been manager of the Orpheum theater, also controlled by Mr. Gilligham.

Enforcing "No Smoking" Rule.

The latest report of Insurance Commissioner John T. Winship of Michigan says: "Many of the theaters in Michigan are co-operating with the state fire marshal in enforcing the state law prohibiting smoking in and about the building and have posted notices of the law in the lobbies and upon the stage.

New Ferry Field Theater to Open May 30.

The Ferry Field theater in course of erection at the Boulevard and Grand River avenue has added a balcony which will increase the seating capacity by 300, making a total of 1600. A pipe organ has been ordered that will be the same size as the one at the Majestic; the seats will be of the barrel back type and specially constructed of mahogany and leather. This house will open about May 30th.

Kunsky Takes Paramount First Runs.

John H. Kunsky of Detroit has signed a contract with the Paramount Film Corporation for first run Detroit rights. The new contract starts March 1st and represents an investment on his part of $250,000 for 12 months. It is the biggest contract of its kind ever made by a Detroit exhibitor. The arrangement gives the first presentation of Paramount pictures to the Washington, Alhambra, Garden, Strand and Empress theaters, which he controls.

PRAIRIE STATE NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Princess at Omaha Gets Injunction.

OMAHA, Neb.—"Intimidation or Coercion" are forbidden to Local No. 343 of the stage employees' union of Omaha, Neb., in a permanent injunction granted by Judge Redick in the case brought by the Princess moving picture theater.

The defendants are restrained from interfering with the management of the theater or with the public, from loitering in the vicinity of the theater, either singly or in groups, from picketing or patrolling, from carrying placards or banners proclaiming the place to be "unfair" or requesting the public not to patronize it. The order states that it is not to be construed as preventing proper address to the public, either by speaking, or through newspapers or circulars, but will not permit intimidation or coercion.

A No Show Area.

Omaha, Neb.—Motion picture theaters are prohibited on Thirty-eighth avenue between Dodge and Farnam streets in Omaha, Neb., under a new building restriction ordinance passed by the city council.

Special Train for Film Patrons

Hastings, Neb.—The high school in a body and part of the townspeople of Kenesaw, Neb., went to see "The Birth of a Nation" at the Kerr theater at Hastings. A special train of four coaches was used. The Kerr reports that of the 6,199 paid admissions, 4,500 were from out of town.

Nebraska Theater Changes, Etc.

Franklin, Neb.—The Lyric theater at Franklin, has been leased to Austin Brothers.

Minden, Neb.—Dreamland theater here has been closed.

Ansley, Neb.—Rolla Townsley of Broken Bow, Neb., is now manager of the Star theater at Ansley.

O'Neill, Neb.—Mrs. Viola Brown, who operates a moving picture show in this place, will erect a modern building this spring.

Genoa, Neb.—H. O. Peterson has purchased the lease on the Grand theater at Genoa, from Charles Lucas.

Howells, Neb.—Thomas Verba has been making arrangements to open a moving picture theater in the Hein building here.

Tilden, Neb.—Vernon Hales is now manager of the Gem theater at Tilden.

West Point, Neb.—Will Brothers of Holstein, Ia., have purchased the Ideal theater at West Point, from E. W. Sass.

Hastings, Neb.—A. G. Hess has purchased the interest of H. S. Johnson in the local Plaza theater.

Guide Rock, Neb.—O. L. Ricord has sold the Electric theater at Guide Rock, to J. M. Nash.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

Theaters Change Hands.

Volga, S. D.—Joseph Daum has sold his moving picture theater at Volga to Lars Moen and Hugh Getty.

Crary, N. D.—A. H. Yeoman of Devils Lake has been making arrangements to open a moving picture theater at Crary.

Pettibone, N. D.—A building at Pettibone will be remodeled into an opera house.

Hitchcock, S. D.—H. B. Stewart of Hitchcock, has been giving moving picture shows in surrounding towns.

Volin, S. D.—The Nace Theater Company has leased the opera house at Volin, and will operate a moving picture show.

Wagner, S. D.—Manager Pyper has closed the Alco theater.

Devils Lake, N. D.—The Unique theater here, gave one day's proceeds to the Catholic church building fund.

SAGINAW CENSOR PLANS.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

SAGINAW, MICH.—From three plans for censorship the Civic League in Saginaw, Mich., selected the Chicago idea—police censorship and an ordinance is being drafted for presentation to the city council. A list of Chicago rejections and cut-outs will be secured and these will be demanded.

Constructive work in Saginaw, Mich., was promised by the Civic League. This will begin with Saturday morning childrens' shows at the Mecca theater.

Labor Approves Special Shows.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Organized labor in Kalamazoo, Mich., has gone on record as endorsing the educational work of the special moving picture shows for children at the Elite theater under the auspices of the Junior Branch of the Drama League. These shows are given free and the Elite has been unable to handle the crowds.

Acquits Sunday Exhibitor.

Colfax, Mich.—A jury acquitted George Harsh, manager of the only moving picture theater in Colfax, Mich., of a charge of violating the act which prohibits work on Sunday. The defense claimed this statute did not affect moving picture shows while the state alleged the operation of a theater was not an act of necessity or charity.

Praise for Muskegon Theaters.

Muskegon, Mich.—State Deputy Fire Marshal E. E. Winship says the theaters in Muskegon, Mich., are well guarded against fire dangers.

Michigan Changes.

Whitehall, Mich.—A new opera house to cost $7,500 will be erected in this city.

Reading, Mich.—W. A. Chancellor has sold Dreamland theater at Reading, to Clayton Birch of Fremont, Ind.

Ideas from Michigan Exhibitors.

Beechers theater, Division Avenue S and Franklin street in Grand Rapids, Mich., gave a special show for the boulevard lighting fund of a neighborhood improvement association.

When the Michigan Retail Hardware Dealers were in convention at Saginaw, Mich., the Empress theater made up a program of films showing various hardware industries.

The Temple theater at Sault St. Marie, Mich., had a special Saturday morning matinee of "The Rosary" for children.

Bird Day was observed at the Cozy theater in Big Rapids, Mich., by two shows of slides and films relating to bird life. The show was under the auspices of the Ladies Union Literary club.

Michigan Brevities.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Two free Saturday morning programs for children, under the auspices of the Junior Branch of the Drama League, were seen by more than 1,200 kiddies at the Elite theater.

Hillsdale, Mich.—The IXL theater has added the IXL orchestra under the direction of Raymond L. Amoreaux.

The Gem theater at Hillsdale, Mich., has added Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday matinees.

Munising, Mich.—The Delft theater gave a Paramount program and vaudeville for the benefit of the Sacred Heart Church.

Iron Mountain, Mich.—Only two cents admission was charged school children at matinees when the Bijou theater here showed Edith Taliaferro in "Cinderella."

The Paramount feature "Are You a Mason?" was an attraction for a joint entertainment given at the Lyric theater in Manistee, Mich., by the Order of Eastern Star and the Fellowcraft Club of the Masons.

A Benton Harbor, Mich., dry goods store with each 25-cent purchase gave a ticket to the Princess theater when the attraction was Blanche Sweet in "The Clue."

FIRE MARSHAL WILL INSPECT.

Springfield, Ill.—State Fire Marshal Walter H. Bennett and staff of Springfield, Ill., will go on an educational campaign, visiting all cities in the state over 5,000 population. They will inspect public buildings. They will carry a moving picture machine and use pertinent pictures including the film "The Story of the Flames." Later they will visit the smaller cities.

License Rates Increased.

Lincoln, Ill.—Licenses for moving picture theaters in Lincoln, Ill., have been increased by the city council from $30 to $100 a year, but license for the "legitimate" theaters remains at $30.

Exhibitor and Program

Exhibitor Burr Swan of the Knights of Pythias Opera House in Pittsfield, Illinois, Has Got the Program "the People Ought to Have"—Wants to Know Whether They "Want" It—Interesting Publicity.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PITTSFIELD, Ill.—Burr Swan of the Knights of Pythias opera house at Pittsfield, Ill., has started to give the people of that community "Education—Sugar-Coated," in that convincing style of his, he announces:

"Every motion picture exhibitor must, sooner or later, answer two question. 1. Shall I give my patrons WHAT THEY WANT? or 2. Shall I give them WHAT I THINK THEY OUGHT TO HAVE?

"I believe absolutely that my new Educational, See America First, Around the World Program, is what the people of Pittsfield should have. If Pittsfield people should determine that this program is not what they want, it will be the biggest disappointment in my near five years of picture show management.

"I will submit it to you Thursday Night, February 17, and every Thursday hereafter, just as long as I don't lose over ten dollars a day. I have for two or three years, lost six to twelve dollars a day on my average Thursday night program, an average of nine dollars a day. I am willing to lose a dollar more than that on this ideal program. I am not afraid of the first night. I am going to do a capacity business the first night, because I have done some spendid advertising, and because I have been playing to your CURIOSITY. I've got you interested. Anybody, nearly, can excite your curiosity. I have done that, now, I want to know if I've got the goods

"I know this—I HAVE DONE MY BEST.

"I Couldn't Buy a Better Program With a Thousand Dollars.

"I want to say something in parenthesis, right here. I am not going to get sore if this program doesn't get by. I won't even be discouraged. A good sport is ALWAYS willing to draw another hand."

Swan also is editor of the Pittsfield Republican. He is boosting both his enterprises by printing in his Wednesday issue a coupon good for admission to these Thursday shows. There are no strings—a coupon is as good as a ticket.

Then he has a special Thursday matinee of the same show for school children. Coupons clipped from the Republican will be good for admission. Without coupons, the admission will be five cents for children and ten cents for adults.

"I calculate that seeing this program will be as good as a half day in school for any child in Pittsfield. The children can go right from school to the opera house. The program will start at 4:15, and be over just about supper time. You will know where the kids are. They will be seeing America First, and traveling Around the World, and seeing How the Plants Grow, and How Birds and Animals Live, and How Railroads Are Built in Africa, and Oregon—and What people are Doing in Japan.

"This Educational, Seeing America First, and Around the World Program, is such a program as the Pittsfield public school or some Pittsfield church, should be showing each week. Neither the church or the school is showing it, and I'm going to show it myself.

"I'll either make it PAY or I'll be able to say that Pittsfield people do not want an educational program.

"When I put the matinee proposition up to Superintendent Reeder, he asked me, what about the boy or girl who has to stay in after school on account of deportment?

"I told him that any kid with a matinee coupon in his pocket would be pretty apt to be good in deportment on Thursday. Reeder thought so too.

"I believe this makes good on the proposition that I would arrange so that school children could see the program without staying out at night.

"I am not begging for anybody's commendation, support or sanction, or recommendation, or sponsorship of this program—I want it to make good on its merit.

"I am doing my best for you, but if my judgment is bad, I've got to take my medicine, and I'm good enough sport to take it without making any faces. The goods I've got are all right, but if you don't want them, I'll get something else. Here it is, my program de luxe, my IDEAL PROGRAM:

"Reel 1. Movements the Eye Misses. Reel 2. An Intimate Study of Birds. Reel 3. Mutual Weekly. Reel 4. Seeing America First. Reel 5. Burton Holmes Travelogue. Reel 6. South American Series. Comedy Sketch by C. R. McCauley. Does the program look WORTH WHILE to you? Am I a nut?"

Admission Price in Quincy.

Quincy, Ill.—More shows in this city are to exceed the ten cent maximum admission. The city council has given Anton Padavic, proprietor of the Gem and Savoy theaters, a new license which will allow him to charge up to twenty-five cents.

Sunday Referendum in Pontiac.

Pontiac, Ill.—Petitions are being circulated in Pontiac, Ill., to have placed on the ballot at the spring election the question of allowing moving picture theaters to open on Sundays.

Working With the Exhibitor.

Decatur, Ill.—Working with, not against the moving picture theaters is the policy of the women's organizations in Decatur, Ill. The mothers' club, college club, Drama League Art class and others will suggest programs to the moving pictures and vaudeville theaters.

New Illinois Charters.

Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield, Ill., has issued charters to the Dixie Film Company of Chicago which has $5,000 capital stock. The incorporators are William B. Fairchild, Lee Roy Brigham and B. Iralson, and to the Cicero Amusement company, also of Chicago, which has $500 capital stock and was incorporated by Max Shabsin, Samuel Spitzer and May Wolf.

Theater Changes and Notes.

Lewistown, Ill.—Pittman & Garn sold the Princess theater here, to Ralph Lee.

Marshall, Ill.—Lewis Brake of Mt. Vernon, Ill., has taken over the Pythian theater at Marshall.

Witt, Ill.—Antone Avena has added to the Avena opera house at Witt, a room 20 x 60 which will be a lobby and rest room with a refreshment counter at one end.

Tuscola, Ill.—Manager Brownie Linton expects to open the new Olympia theater at Tuscola, Ill., about March 1. He tried to get "The Birth of a Nation" for an opening attraction, but there are no open dates before June.

Oak Park, Ill.—D. R. Brothers of Marietta, O., has bought the Park theater, Park and Austin avenues in Oak Park.

Chatsworth, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Jacobs of Cuba, Ill., have repurchased the moving picture theater here.

Steger, Ill.—W. Rutowsky has opened a moving picture theater at Steger Hall.

Ellis Grove, Ill.—Harns & Schweppel have closed their moving picture show at Ellis Grove. Next summer they will open an airdome.

Bowen, Ill.—Dayne Walton is now manager of the opera house at Bowen.

Get-Together Meeting

New Orleans Exchange Men Hold Meeting to Revive the Former Film Trades Club, Organized Last Year, but Allowed to Grow Stale—The Object Is to Strengthen the Film Business Locally Through Co-operation.

By George M. Cheney, New Orleans Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Two important meetings, having as their object the forming of an exchange men's association, were held on Thursday and Saturday of this week. Every manager in the city attended the meetings, which were held at the De Soto hotel. At the Thursday meeting not much was accomplished, due to the lure of the races, which called many managers away from the solemn consideration of moving picture matters.

Saturday night's meeting brought out the same bunch. Al. G. Shear, manager of the Consolidated Film & Supply Company, who usually presides at all moving picture meetings locally, was again conspicuous at the head of the board of an interview with the correspondent for MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Mr. Shear said that it is the purpose of the local exchanges to place the business on a firmer and stricter basis to the end that many of the abuses now existing may be eliminated.

If the sense of the Saturday night meeting is carried out, organization steps will be taken within the next few weeks.

The Film Trades Club of New Orleans, an organization similar to the one now planned, was formed by New Orleans managers last winter. It did some good, and was meeting regularly, but was allowed to fall into a state closely resembling "innocuous desuetude."

MONTGOMERY CENSOR BILL.

Effort to Pass Drastic Censor Measure Combatted by Exhibitors.

Montgomery, Ala.—A determined effort to foist a local Board of Censorship on this city met with spirited opposition from Montgomery exhibitors, and their cooperation at a recent meeting of the City Commissioners has knocked the odious measure in the head; for quite a while, at least.

The measure was introduced by Commissioner W. T. Robertson. It gave absolute power to the censorial board. The picture men were not even to be allowed the right to appeal, according to the terms of this ordinance. On the day appointed for the public hearing a number of exhibitors appeared at the meeting of the City Commissioners. Walton Hill, an attorney and stockholder of the Strand Amusement Company, delivered the opening and very effective arguments against the measure. A. B. Meyer, of the Strand Amusement Company; Hoxey and Louis B. Farley, of the Empire theater, also spoke against the ordinance. The Rev. G. J. Gannon, assistant pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, advocated the passage of the measure.

After both sides had been heard the commissioners ordered an indefinite postponement of the ordinance, which means, practically, that it will not be reintroduced, moving picture men think. The censorship ordinance was as follows:

Happy Hour Opens.

New Orleans newest and finest suburban house, the Happy Hour, Magazine and St. Andrew streets, opened to record-breaking inaugurara audiences on February 18. The erection and construction of the theater cost the owners $20,000. It is owned by the Central Amusement Company, and managed by Bertrand Kiern.

Heard Along Exchange Row, New Orleans.

Manager J. A. Billett of the new College theater in St. Charles street, New Orleans, was suddenly taken ill last Thursday, and was removed to the hospital, where he is in a serious condition. The opening of the College theater has been indefinitely postponed.

The new Empire theater, which is nearing completion at 1010 Canal street, will not be opened until February 27, although at first the opening date was planned for February 15. "The Whirl of Life" will be the inaugural bill.

Harry K. Lucas, well known supply man of Atlanta, Ga., was suddenly taken ill here while a guest at the Hotel Grunewald, but is recovering rapidly. Mr. Lucas is a brother of Arthur Lucas of the Triangle Film Corporation, and was on one of his periodical visits to New Orleans when stricken.

Sid Berry, well known exhibitor of Meridian, Miss., was a visitor at the races this week. Mr. Berry is one of the old timers of the racing game, and is credited with bringing the first big string of horses to New Orleans for racing.

Gulf States Notes.

Monroe, La.—J. V. McStea, acting manager of the Sugar theater, in Monroe, La., has been named manager of the Lyceum in Duluth, and assumed his new duties in the far Minnesota city on February 14.

Alexandria, La.—The Saenger theater, in Alexandria, La., has installed a $10,000 pipe organ, the largest in Louisiana, outside of New Orleans. Fred. W. A. Witt, of Chicago, representing Hillgreen-Lane & Co., of Alliance, O., installed the organ in the theater.

Albany, Ga.—Newspapers here have started a movement for a children's day at the local picture theaters.

During the running of "The Birth of a Nation" in Albany, Ga., recently, the city celebrated "The Birth of a Nation" week in excellent style.

Galveston, Tex.—A. Martini, well known exhibitor of Texas, with several motion picture houses in Galveston, has announced plans for a new theater at 2114 Market street, Galveston. The new house will be known as the Dixie Vaudeville theater and the location of it is directly between two motion picture theaters owned by Mr. Martini, Dixie No. 1 and Dixie No. 2.

Birmingham, Ala.—Marvin Wise, of the Odeon, in Birmingham, Ala., has secured absolute control of the Mutual program in that city.

Our Correspondent Makes More St. Louis Calls

On Way to a New Building at End of Arsenal Street, Calls on Several Managers, Including a Renowned Jinx Killer

By G. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—"James," he said, as we climbed into our high-power domestic car at Sixth and Pine, "do you known where the Hudson theater is?"

"Sure I do," said James, "it's at 'leventh and Park."

"Can you drive there direct?" we asked.

"If I don't I'll be off the track, because we're supposed to pass right by the door."

"Do you care if we sit here with you, or do you prefer for us to go back and sit in the limousine part of the car?" we asked.

"You can camp over there on the sand box, but you'll have to shut down on that line of nutty talk," he said, pointing to a large sign which forbids conversation.

Soon we rolled over the velvety smoothness of Pine street, and then up and over the Twelfth street bridge, high above the turgid waters of the freight cars and switch engines that flow in a constant and smoky stream under this famous structure. Five more minutes and we made our first stop.

"Drive on, James," we said, to the chauffeur of the car. "Do not wait for us."

"Sure, I'll do that," he said, "but you ought to go on out near the end of the line, they're putting up a new place out there that you oughta see," and he sped away.

At Manager Rathheim's Hudson.

It was 8:30 when we arrived at the Hudson, at Eleventh and Park avenue. A lot of people were standing up in the back part of the house. "Why do these people stand up?" we asked Joseph Rathheim, the manager. "Do they like it?"

"Listen," he said, "and I'll tell you why. There are only four hundred seats in this house, and when six hundred come, somebody has to stand."

It was perfectly plain after that, but Rathheim contends that he didn't have much of a crowd. "They are packed in here tonight," he said, "but last Wednesday we had them packed out on the sidewalk."

We stayed with the Hudson a few minutes and watched Helen Gibson do one of her famous railroad thrillers, while Mr. Rathheim told us about his plan of starting Saturday matinees and charging ten cents admission. When we started to go we remembered James' words. "Is there a new house going up anywhere on Arsenal street?" we asked Rathheim. "Not that I know of," he said. "The only building out there is a new wing being added to the city insane asylum." We wondered if that motorman meant anything by that remark of his.

Calls on a Jinx Killer.

We next stopped at the 18th Street theater, and found the same condition as at the Hudson, people standing in the lobby. Wm. O. Reeve manages the theater, and there is an interesting story connected with the place. When Reeve took it over it was regarded as one of the worst Jonahs in that end of town. The bad luck jinx had built a nest in the lobby and had hatched out a brood of little jinxes that swarmed all over the place and occupied nearly all of the four hundred seats in the house, till there was no room for patrons.

Reeves was the tenth manager to take over the place, and he has made it pay, and the full house and crowded lobby is a regular thing. Reeve charges five cents admission on all but Saturday and Sunday, when he runs a V-L-S-E or a Metro subject, and gets a dime. "The Children of Eve" is one of the best pictures I have had this season," said Reeve. "Pass it along to others if you want to."

The Arsenal, a Fine Theater.

We took a little jump from the 18th Street theater to Grand avenue, and lit right in front of the Arsenal theater, on the corner of Grand and Arsenal street. Manager G. L. Loeffler opened the Arsenal just recently with a Triangle program. The Arsenal is one of the finest little theaters in the city, but it has been dark for more than three years on account of its closeness to the Juniata, a short block farther south on Grand. The Arsenal is being operated by a neighborhood stock company, and is doing a nice business. Mr. Loeffler says that the idea that the neighborhood would not support two theaters has been dispelled since his house opened. Both places are doing a fine business, he said, and the only thing he has to complain of is the fact that the Arsenal has such a small seating capacity, only a little over six hundred. There is talk of putting in a balcony by the management, however. Seven and eight reels of Triangle features constitute the program at the Arsenal.

A Comfortable Crowd at the Juniata.

We dropped down the street to the Juniata, and found Manager L. V. Stephens with a nice comfortable crowd. If the competition of the Arsenal is hurting him any, the crowd did not show it. It was 10 o'clock, and there was not a vacant seat in the house. Mr. Stephens has been at the Juniata, which is one of the string controlled by the Associated Theaters, of which W. J. Flynn is the head, for a long time, and he has built up a nice patronage for the house. Just now he is very proud of a brand new Minusa gold fibre screen that has just been installed.

At Joseph Halleman's Theater.

The hour was getting late, but we know that the folks down on Chippewa street keep late hours, so we made for that bailiwick as fast as we could. The first stop was at the Melvin, Joseph Halleman's beautiful theater, in the 2900 block on Chippewa. Mr. Halleman was showing Cleo Madison in "Souls Enslaved." "It's great stuff," he said. "I've watched it all through, and am now taking a second look at some of the finer scenes." Mr. Halleman has one of the neatest little program cards we have seen in a long time. It is small enough to slip in the pocket, and contains the program for a week. "People don't like to walk out of a theater with a great big program as big as a one sheet in their hands. That's the reason I have them small," is Halleman's argument for the size of the cards, and it is a good one.

We also met our friend, John Billmeyer, the crank-turner at the Melvin. Mr. Billmeyer is the oldest moving picture operator, in point of service, not years, in the city, and can tell some very interesting things of the early picture days in St. Louis. He comes down to work in his own automobile, just like any other plutocrat, and when we were bemoaning the fact that we had to depend on Shank's mare, and the street cars as a means of transportation, he showed the bigness of his heart by offering to sell us his "tin lizzie" at a bargain. Think of a trade-paper correspondent with an automobile. "Ain't it funny?" [Frame up, Mr. Correspondent. The seats are not comfortable near the end of the line].

The Monroe.

We went on down another block to the Monroe, owned and operated by Mrs. L. B. Stoddard, one of the five women managers in St. Louis, and found her not at home. But the Monroe looks very nice, and vastly improved since the seating capacity has been increased, and the new concrete floor has been put in.

The Chippewa.

There was one more stop to make and we missed it. When we got to the Chippewa, at 3807 South Broadway, the doors were closed, but the big electric lights were shining and winking away as big as life. This sign is one of the best we have seen. It stretches across the entire top of the building in long rows of winking colored lights about twelve feet high. Underneath are the words: "Chippewa Theater, The House of Quality."

Jai-Ali Building Passes.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Jai-Ali building, one of the largest amphitheaters in this part of the country, is to be dismantled. Seats over five thousand, was constructed some ten years ago at an expense of over $200,000. We bought the entire fixtures (sent you a quarter-page ad a few days ago) and will place it on open market.

Fees Under Protest

Kansas City Film Exchanges Are Writing "Paid Under Protest" on Their Checks to the State Censor Board for Passing Upon Films—Hope to Get Their Money Back on Unreasonable Profit Plea.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—A new move in the war of the film companies against the state censorship board was taken recently by several of the Kansas City film managers, who in their last payment for the inspection of the films, gave all checks for this purpose to W. D. Ross, state moving picture censor, marked "Paid under protest." This action is in line with the constant fight the moving picture exchanges have been having with the Kansas state censor board for the last year.

E. R. Pearson, of Kansas City, chairman of the executive committee of the Amusement Association of Kansas, is doing all he possibly can to carry this new idea through and is very enthusiastic regarding the outcome, being of the opinion that the new point will not only be gained, but that all money paid in fees will be returned.

Unreasonable Profit.

The main point involved in the action of the association in paying their fees under protest is backed by an opinion handed down by the State Supreme Court in the case of oil inspection fees. The oil companies were being charged ten cents per barrel for inspection, and brought suit to test the law which was making them do this. The constitutionality of the statute was upheld, but the opinion rendered was that this inspection fee was in excess in that it allowed an unreasonable profit. The constitutionality of the film inspection law already has been decided once by the United States Supreme court, in favor of the state, but the question of the size of the fee charged was not brought up as practically no fees had been charged.

Mr. Pearson was the person who thought of this idea. Some years ago a suit was on between commission houses regarding prices charged by railroads on iceing fees on cars from the Pacific coast and the railroads, which finally went to the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission. While the matter was in the hands of the commission, two of the houses, for one of which Mr. Pearson was a bookkeeper, paid all iceing charges with checks marked "Under Protest." The decision as finally rendered was in favor of the merchants, the commission declaring that the prices were in excess of what was fair and reasonable.

Want to Cut Down Inspection Rate.

Arguing on the same line and backed up by the victory of the oil men, the moving picture managers are endeavoring to cut down the price of inspection.

"With the profit the Kansas board shows for the past eleven months, it has enough money to run for two more years," said Mr. Pearson recently. "We are not trying to evade the law. We know that we have to pay, but we are surely going to protest and we think we will win. The oil case is identical to ours and the oil men got all of their money back, and so can we. We are protecting ourselves by adopting this measure so that when we finally do win out, the State will have to pay us back." Mr. Pearson further explained that one of the reasons he was protesting was because of the fact that this profit is being turned back into the general fund of the state and is being used for general purposes, thereby creating a tax on the moving picture men which is neither authorized or fair, as it is a tax on them alone.

Lew Nathanson, representative of several of the film exchanges in Topeka, who pays the inspection fees by a personal check and in turn is repaid by the various exchanges, has been notified of this procedure by Mr. Pearson, and acting accordingly, announced to the Kansas authorities that hereafter all inspection fees would be paid under protest. A similar course of action made the state take the initiative in bringing suit to test the validity of the oil inspection law.

Local Theater Changes.

Marshall, Mo.—The Orpheum theater at Marshall, has been sold by Arnote & Denton, former proprietors, to C. A. Rohner, who will take immediate possession. The Orpheum has not been opened for some time, and it is probable that a few improvements will be made.

Kansas City, Mo.—W. L. Lord announces that he has purchased the World theater, 8th and Highland, this city, from Mrs. Gertrude Harrington, owner. This is another theater in the Kansas City district that is opening after being closed for some weeks.

Trenton, Mo.—The Majestic theater here, formerly the property of Ted Lane was recently sold to R. A. Moore. Mr. Moore is the past owner and manager of the Orpheum at Ft. Madison, Iowa, and is an experienced moving picture man.

Lathan, Mo.—Dr. L. L. Lathan, of this place, has opened a moving picture theater. Dr. Lathan is the proprietor of the Lathan Sanitarium there and the picture house is in line with his general improvements for the town named after him.

Hamilton, Mo.—The Rex theater at Hamilton, which has previously been owned and managed by Hugh Fleming is now the property of B. M. Hick.

Worthington, Mo.—Don H. Crooks, owner of the Star theater here, has sold his interest in the house to Nova E. Husted, who takes immediate possession.

Clinton, Mo.—March 1 is the date set for the opening of a new modern picture theater at Clinton. Turpin & Hunkin, formerly of Conception, Mo., will be in charge of the house, which will seat nearly three hundred people.

Baxter, Kas.—The theater at Baxter, Kas., under the management of A. L. Rehm is closed for a short time, while the floor of the house is being elevated.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Rex Theater, 3919 Main St., Kansas City, Mo. was recently sold by Mr. J. D. Goldstein to Mr. Saunders, of Southwest City, Kas., who took possession March 1.

Among Kansas City Exchange Men.

P. O. Proctor, Kansas City manager of the General Film Co., is in the South recuperating from a minor operation which he recently was forced to undergo. During his absence, H. L. Orear, assistant manager, is in charge.

Harry A. Sherman, owner of the rights to "The Birth of a Nation," in sixteen states, including Kansas, was recently in Topeka conferring with attorneys regarding the mandamus writ filed against W. D. Ross, state censor to compel him to place the censor approval stamp on the big picture.

C. S. Edwards, Jr., manager of the Pathe Exchange, recently returned from Oklahoma City, Okla., where he, with two Pathe salesmen, attended the annual meeting of the Oklahoma Exhibitors' Association. Mr. Edwards reports that he was the only Kansas City exchange manager in attendance and incidentally remarks that the Oklahoma gathering was the biggest attended state convention that he has ever attended.

Wants Sunday Shows

Texas Sentiment Favors Liberal Sabbath Laws—Referendum at Waco Shows Splendid Majority for Open Shows—Vote Coming This Week at Fort Worth to Decide Same Question—Other Cities to Follow.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS, TEX.—Moving picture exhibitions in Texas seem to be gaining greater favor regularly, and it looks as if some of the narrow-minded blue laws in this state will soon go "kerplunk."

At an election held at Waco, Tex., February 15, the question of permitting the shows to run on Sunday won out most decidedly. The final count gave the Sunday exhibitions a majority of 1,686 out of about 2,000 votes cast.

Fort Worth, Tex., will vote on the same subject March 8, the city commission having taken official action and ordered the election for that day. The commission was unanimously in favor of the election, only the mayor opposing it. Quite a little opposition has developed in Fort Worth, but it is not anticipated that this will be strong enough to prevent carrying, as the labor element, which is very influential in that city, is in favor of it. A petition was gotten up by the opposition, but it is noted that a large proportion of the signers are students in the theological seminary there. The physicians composing the Doctors' Luncheon Club have gone on record in favor of Sunday shows.

Austin, Tex., is expected to be the next one in line, as the agitation has already started there.

Although there is a law in Texas—a state law—prohibiting Sunday exhibitions, there is a clause in the law which makes this, in so far as cities of a certain size are concerned, a local option proposition. This option has not been used heretofore, except in a few of the largest cities.

HOUSE COLLAPSES.

Mexia, Tex.—The old opera house building at Mexia collapsed on the evening of February 16 and the wreck and fire which followed caused a loss of nine lives, many injuries and property to the extent of about $100,000. The primary cause of the wreck is a little in doubt, but general opinion seems to favor placing the blame on a gas explosion.

An art exhibit for the benefit of the public schools was being given by the Mothers' Club in the vacant storeroom on the first floor of the opera house building and the crowd had just begun to gather when the upper floors fell in, crushing to death those who did not get away when the noise of the falling walls was first heard. The upper floors at the time were unoccupied. The wreck caught fire and the opera house and two adjoining buildings were burned.

SOME SPORTS.

Dallas, Tex.—Baseball season in film circles has opened up. The Consolidated offices took possession of the Fair Park grounds Sunday, February 20, and played a nice little game in which the Blue Birds won out over the Red Feathers by a score of 6-5. "Smiling Jimmy" umpired the game and came out devoid of black eyes, etc., and his "won't-come-off" smile still intact.

Clegg Banqueted.

El Paso, Tex.—C. A. Clegg, Texas manager of the Mutual, spent the week of February 14-19 in El Paso and other western Texas cities. While in El Paso Mr. Clegg was banqueted by a number of Mexican exhibitors from Mexico City Chihuahua, Monterey and Torreon who had come up to meet him, and he states that the banquet was one of the most enjoyable affairs that he ever attended.

Business conditions in the neighbor republic are most encouraging, says Mr. Clegg. All houses except one in Mexicc City have reopened, all in Torreon, and all in Chihuahua and Monterey have done likewise.

Mr. Clegg is also very enthusiastic about trade conditions in south and west Texas, and he looks for a fine year.

More Solid Ivory.

Another beautiful exhibition of "bone head" censorial authority was given in Dallas February 14, but in this case it was not the censor who pulled it off, but the president of the board of appeals. The Roseland theater had on a hypnotic stunt, and, as a ballyhoo, had a subject in front on a bicycle which caused quite a blockade of traffic. President S. D. Hanley took exception to this, ordered this place closed and put a policeman on the door. Manager Verne Phelps of the Roseland appealed to the welfare board and was told to go ahead and open his theater. Mrs. Finley, the censor, came to the rescue and after a search of a couple of hours Mr. Hanley was located and the policeman pulled off.

Pathe Incorporates.

A charter has been issue to Pathe Exchange, Inc., of Dallas, by the Texas secretary of state, with a capital stock of $20,000, and incorporated by Charles Pathe, Paul Fuller and L. E. Burgess.

Strictly speaking this makes no change in the local exchange, merely changing it from an agency to an independent corporation. W. G. Underwood will remain in charge.

New Houses and Changes.

Fort Stockton, Tex.—Edwin and Arthur Haefs of Pecos have closed a deal with H. H. Butz and James Rooney for a 40-foot front lot in Fort Stockton, on which they will erect at once an up-to-date opera house.

Durant, Okla.—The Colonial theater, a moving picture house in Durant, Oklahoma, has been sold to W. T. Davidge of Hugo, Okla., who has assumed charge of the show. The show was formerly owned by O. Gill, also of Hugo.

Stephenville, Tex.—Miller's theater, Stephenville, seating about 400, opened up February 20, under the management of J. R. Miller.

Brownsville, Tex.—The Queen, a new 500-chair house, at Brownsville, has been opened by Andrew Pappas.

Cuero, Tex.—A new house, the Royal theater, owned by Buckingham & Fought, has been opened here.

Trade Notes from Dallas.

J. D. Jones of the Crescent theater, Greenville, was in town during the week of February 13-19.

Mrs. LeRoy Bickel, wife of the Blue Bird special representative for this territory, was compelled to undergo a serious operation recently, but at last reports was doing fine. She was visiting in Oklahoma City at the time and LeRoy went up to be with her.

Mrs. H. T. Peebles and H. T. Jr. have gone from Dallas to San Antonio to be with Mr. Peebles, who is a Mutual traveler in that territory.

W. M. Byrd of the Fox office spent the early part of the week of February 14-19 in Houston.

Dave Reed of the Metro, Dallas office, has been in New York City on business.

F. A. LeRoy, from the Mutual's accounting department in New York, was recently in Dallas installing a new system of accounting.

Dallas was well represented at the convention of the Oklahoma Moving Picture Exhibitors' League at Oklahoma City, February 14-15. Among those who went up were C. A. Meade, Big Four; C. A. Logan, Paramount; L. B. Remy, Triangle; E. T. Peter, United; A. H. Russell, Metro, and C. A. Walker of Motion Picture Journal.

V. B. Andreas of the Grecian theater, El Paso, Texas, was a visitor in Dallas recently.

Chas. St. Clair, Corsicana, Texas, has bough the Texas state rights to "Guarding Old Glory," and will probably secure other big features. He will operate under the title Old Glory Feature Film Company.

C. R. Sullivan of the Deandi theater at Amarillo, Texas, was in Dallas recently, and reports good business, even though his house does seat 1,200.

Reesing & Co., Gatesville, Texas, have purchased for their Royal theater a new Minusa screen from H. K. Barnett.

The new house being constructed by J. J. O'Malley at Abilene, Texas, will have two 1916 Motiographs, purchased through H. K. Barnett at Dallas.

J. B. Wilson, an exhibitor from Knox City, Texas, was in Dallas February 21, "dickering" for a projection machine for his new house.

NEW INDIANAPOLIS KRITERION.

Exchange Reorganized, Will Have Fifteen-Reel Service.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Brandt C. Downey, banker and capitalist of Indianapolis; L. J. Meyburg and James Gavin have taken over the stock of the Kriterion Film Service of Indianapolis and will operate it hereafter. Mr. Downey of the Commercial National Bank of Indianapolis will be president of the new concern. Meyburg is the secretary of the new company.

By March 15 the new company expects to have a fifteen reel service and will supply sixty theaters in Indiana, Illinios, Ohio and Kentucky. They have taken over the business of the Old Kriterion and the Associated service. The combine is expected to prove a business getter and will liven up the keen competition already in the Indianapolis and Indiana field.

BUYS NEW ALBANY GRAND.

New Albany, Ind.—The New Albany Amusement Company of New Albany, Ind., purchased the Grand theater and will operate it with the Kerrigan, already the property of the amusement company. The sale was hailed as the end of a motion picture theater war in New Albany, but it is hailed with pleasure by the business men who are pleased with the announcement that afternoon shows will be put on at one of the theaters. The business men have been working for months to get this done.

Charles Miller, director for the amusement company, will have full charge of the two theaters. Louis Thorn is the president of the company. The Grand was bought from Michael Switow.

INSPECTOR STOPS CHURCH SHOWS.

Evansville, Ind.—Building Inspector Kerth of this city interfered in church motion picture and stereopticon shows and as a result several programs were cancelled at the last minute. The building inspector held that the churches were not equipped to give adequate fire protection and notified the congregations that unless they complied with the law to the letter that show would be stopped and that other action might be taken. The added expense put the performances out of the question.

Owned House for One Night.

Gary, Ind.—Employes of the Twentieth Century theater in Gary, Ind., became managers for one night and ran the show while the bosses stepped down. Manager U. V. Young turned over the theater to the employes and then watched the show from a seat in the audience. Miss Bessie Hardenbrook, who has charge of the ticket window; I. P. Loring and Foy Smith turned out a real performance.

Indiana Trade Notes.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Alterations are being made at the Crystal of Indianapolis. The house is closed.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—The Theatorium here, a pioneer motion picture theater, closed its doors when the owners of the building announced that they would remodel. The Theatorium was owned by A. S. Miller.

Nashville, Ind.—Brown county, the "wilderness" of Indiana, is to have a motion picture theater. Arrangements have been made by Dan and William David to erect a new building and install a modern theater in Nashville, the county seat.

Shelbyville, Ind.—Sam Grimes, who owns the four houses in Shelbyville, was in Indianapolis recently and visited the Mutual exchange.

Mishawaka, Ind.—The Princess theater here closed its doors temporarily and will remain closed for several weeks while extensive repairs are being made. John J. Berschiet and George Senger, the owners, announce that when the remodeling is completed "the folks won't know the new house."

Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Rose A. A. Kleinrichert, owner of a theater at Ft. Wayne, Ind., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court for the district of Indiana.

MINNEAPOLIS NEWS LETTER.

By Grace E. Polk, Minneapolis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

The Holmes Opens.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The Holmes theater is the latest addition to Minneapolis film houses. It is in Camden at forty-second avenue north and Washington, and seats 350. It is under the management of Edward A. Campbell.

Starland Changes Hands.

The Starland theater, one of the larger downtown St. Paul theaters on Ninth and Wabasha, has been bought by Morton S. Nathan, commercial traveler, residing in St. Paul. It was formerly owned by a Canadian company. No change of policy has been announced for the theater.

J. H. Margoles Heads Local Nest.

J. H. Margoles, formerly with the Minneapolis branch of the World Film, has succeeded Willis Kent as manager of the Minneapolis office of the Blue Bird Photo Plays corporation.

Health Department Slides.

Over fifty of the Minneapolic picture houses are running "germs in action" slides prepared by the Health Department and the Associated Chartites. The film men will be provided with a different set of slides each month. The February pictures show grip germs, and are under the caption "Ventilation and Hibernation."

Changes in Local Mutual Office.

Max J. Weisfeldt, assistant manager of the Mutual branch in Minneapolis, has recently been transferred to Omaha, where he is to have charge for the same company. George Fosdick, who was formerly booker for the branch here, has been promoted to assistant manager. The Minneapolis branch is in charge of W. H. Stafford.

Prosper Schwie Back at Lyric.

Prosper Schwie, for the last year manager of the Calhoun theater, has returned to the Lyric, and will have charge of that theater under its new regime of showing Mutual master pictures, with three changes a week.

Mr. Schwie was with the Lyric for several years under Saxe management. He made the house one of the most popular houses in the city, with a reputation for clean bills. He was also the first moving picture manager in the city to put on special programs for children working three seasons ago with the local chapter of the Drama League and with Minneapolis club women in giving a series of specially chosen programs at the Lyric.

When the Calhoun was built last May, he went there as Manager, being succeeded at the Lyric by William Mick. For several weeks the Lyric has been running "The Birth of a Nation." With its return to regular bill this week and the institution of Mutual program Mr. Schwie was called back as manager. Another change affecting the Lyric during the past week was the sale of the half of the contract owned by Sherman and Elliott to A. G. Bainbridge, Jr. This makes Mr. Bainbridge full owner of the Lyric contract.

Screen Club Opens Rooms

Rocky Mountain Screen Club Elects Officers for Its First Year—Committees Appointed and Club Rooms Opened in Savoy Hotel in Denver—Introductory Luncheon to Be First Public Activity.

By E. S. Day, Denver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DENVER, COLORADO.—An example of what can be done by those connected with the moving picture business when they set their minds on it is shown in the organization of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club. Within three weeks of the time that a casual suggestion was made that the exchange men and exhibitors should have an organization for the mutual benefit of both, a life sized club has been established, a full set of officers and committees elected and sumptuous clubrooms opened.

Harry Noland of the Swanson and Noland Supply Co. and owner of a string of theaters in this territory is the first president of the new organization. Other officers follow: First vice-president, W. S. Rand, second vice-president, Frank Tammen; third vice-president, F. H. Fairchild; fourth vice-president, E. L. Walker; fifth vice-president, Ed. Anderson; secretary, H. E. Huffman; treasurer, H. H. Quine, house manager, Thomas Foley.

The committees are:

Membership: W. E. Scott, Charles R. Gilmour, Louis Stern, Al Hagan and W. H. Cree.

Publicity; H. H. Buckwalter and Ed Anderson.

House Committee; Field Carmichael, H. H. Quine, Harry Nolan, James Curran and Frank Harris.

Legislature; William Foley, H. H. Buckwalter and George A. Killam.

Clubrooms have been opened in the Savoy Hotel in Denver. They consist of a suite of three rooms and are elegantly furnished. They have been equipped with billiard tables and a library. A piano is to be added later.

Plans have been put on foot for an Introductory Luncheon, the first of a series of such affairs that the club proposes to hold. This will be the first public activity of the club and it is planned to have city and state officials as honor guests.

At the last meeting of the club, resolutions were adopted putting the club on record as being opposed to the Hughes Censorship Bill now before the National Congress. Copies of the same have been forwarded to Colorado's senators and congressmen with the request that they vote and work against any legislation that tends to retard or injure, unjustly, the moving picture industry.

Harry Leonhardt Visits.

Harry Leonhardt, Western manager of the Fox, spent three days in Denver recently on his way to Chicago. His trip is in the nature of an inspection tour and he reports prosperous conditions throughout his territory. Mr. Leonhardt has just transferred his headquarters from Los Angeles to Chicago.

During his stay here he was the guest at a dinner given by Samuel Baxter, owner of the Isis theater. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Leonhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Field Carmichael and Mr. and Mrs. Baxter, Mr. Carmichael is local manager for Fox.

Harry Cassidy Back.

Harry Cassidy, road man for the Mutual Film Corporation in the Rocky Mountain territory has just returned from an extensive trip through Wyoming, the Black Hills and Western Nebraska. He reports extensive bookings on "Damaged Goods" and "The Girl and the Game."

W. B. Glasser Goes to Mutual.

W. B. Glasser, recently made booking agent for the Metro company here, has returned to the employ of the Mutual Film. He will be connected with the Kansas City office and will handle the company's features and serials. Mr. Glasser was in charge of the serial department of the Mutual exchange in Denver at one time and later was connected with the Detroit office of the same company. E. L. Hanson, formerly with Mutual, succeeds Mr. Glasser as booking agent for the Metro.

J. M. Hayden, V-L-S-E Roadman.

Manager Frank Harris of the V-L-S-E exchange has announced the addition of J. M. Hayden to his staff of road men. Mr. Hayden was formerly associated with the moving picture game in Chicago but recently has been in the automobile business in Denver.

Circuit Show in Colorado.

Wray, Col.—A rural moving picture route has been established out of Wray, Colorado, by Charles Moore. Once every week he goes to Otis and Eckley, rural communities near Wray and puts on picture shows. He travels by auto and takes his projecting machine and other paraphernalia right with him. Heretofore residents of these settlements were forced to go to Wray for entertainment. The plan of taking pictures to the patron instead of making him travel miles to it has proved exceedingly popular.

New Houses Projected.

Riverton, Wyom.—Mrs. Less Mote of Riverton has started work on a modern show house to replace her present theater building.

Chadron, Neb.—Jas W. Pace in this city will erect a $20,000 theater made entirely of concrete blocks. It will be the finest playhouse in Western Nebraska.

Bridgeport, Neb.—W. M. Busey of Bridgeport, has let a contract for a $15,000 theater building.

Julesburg, Col.—The Hipp theater at Julesburg, has been sold by C. W. Rozell to R. E. Tower of Pine Bluff, Wyoming.

Tax on Slot Machines

San Francisco Exhibitors Close Up Candy-Selling Machines in Theaters—City Board of Supervisors Levies Tax of Dollar a Year on Each—Validity of the New Ordinance Will Be Tested in the Courts.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Practically all of the candy vending machines installed in moving picture houses in San Francisco are closed at the present time, owing to the action of the Board of Supervisors in imposing a yearly license of one dollar on each machine. Several years ago a license was imposed upon machines of this character, amounting to eight cents a machine, but the owners of these carried the matter to the courts and last April the Supreme Court rendered a decision declaring that license taxes on merchandise vending machines were invalid, as a tax was thus imposed on methods of doing business. Soon afterward officials connected with the Tax Collector's office drew up a new ordinance to cover this matter and this was passed by the Board of Supervisors, going into effect on the first of the year. Many of the machines scattered around the city are still being operated, but the managers of moving picture houses desired to have no trouble with the city authorities and are not allowing the machines in their places of business to be used until a test of the validity of the ordinance is made. The services of attorney Fred J. Goble have been secured by the vending machine interests and a test case will probably be tried shortly. It is estimated that there are about six thousand candy vending machines used on the backs of chairs in local theaters.

VALENCIA THEATER IMPROVED.

San Francisco, Calif.—Extensive improvements are being made at the Valencia theater, at Valencia and Fourteenth streets, and the house will be redecorated and renovated throughout. A pipe organ to cost $10,000 is to be installed to supplement the orchestra and a specialty will be made of the musical program. Ben D. Levin has been placed in full charge of this spendid theater which will feature moving pictures exclusively. "The Strange Case of Mary Page" has been booked for this house and many invitations have been issued for the initial presentation.

YORK THEATER REOPENED.

San Francisco, Cal.—The York Theater at Twenty-Fourth and Bryant streets has been reopened under the management of Hannell & Matthews. Mr. Hannell is well known in the local exhibiting field, having for several years been with the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, and until recently manager of the Tivoli Theater conducted by this concern.

PROMINENT PRODUCER WEDS.

Alexander Ernst Beyfuss, vice-president and general manager of the California Motion Picture Corporation, which conducts a large studio at San Rafael, a suburb of San Francisco, was married in this city on February 17th to Mrs. Wilhelmina Steer Hudson of New York. The happy couple left shortly afterward for New York and on their return will reside at the St. Francis Hotel. While in New York Mr. Beyfuss will consult with Otis Skinner regarding the details of the coming production of "Kismet," which is to be produced this summer at San Rafael.

Collector of the Port Approves.

J. O. Davis, Collector of the Port of San Francisco, and a number of inspectors whose duty it has been for many years to search incoming vessels for contraband drugs, recently witnessed a private review of "Hop" in the exhibiting room of the California Film Exchange and highly commended the production. In a letter to the exchange Collector Davis states that the methods of search shown are absolutely authentic, as well as the devices employed by the smugglers.

J. Weinberger with All Star.

J. Weinberger has joined the forces of the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc., in the capacity of booker.

C. O. Winrick Joins Local Mutual.

C. O. Winrick, formerly of Indianapolis, Ind., has joined the staff of the local San Francisco branch of the Mutual and is now visiting the outside trade.

Visitors Here.

C. H. Howell, of the Gaiety theater, Porterville; Mr. Judah, of the Jewel theater, Santa Cruz; Dave Solari, of Stockton, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Di Stasio, of Sacramento, were recent visitors in San Francisco.

News from the Golden Gate.

San Francisco, Cal.—Max Alpert, who is well known in the Pacific Northwest, has joined the staff of the New Film Corporation as road man.

J. L. Warner, manager of the New Film Corporation, is the proud owner of a new Overland car and is using this to visit the nearby exhibitors.

The Elite theater on Market street, San Francisco, has done away with its former policy of changing daily and is now showing feature productions from five to seven days.

Walter Preddey recently installed a Powers Cameragraph No. 6B on the United States Supply ship Glacier, which makes its headquarters at San Francisco.

The Desmond Commissary Company has placed an order for two late model Motiograph machines with Edward H. Kemp and will send these on the road shortly in charge of lecturers to show the wonders of the Yosemite Valley.

E. H. Emmick, manager of the local branch of the Picture Playhouse Film Company, is making a visit to Los Angeles to open a film exchange. In addition to the present releases, Mutt and Jeff comedies will be handled, as well as the productions controlled by the Clune interests at Los Angeles.

The La Bonita theater at Twenty-fourth and Clement is now showing feature productions, and has booked the Triangle service for this district.

Leon Netter, of the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc., will leave for New York early in March.

The Cortland theater on Cortland Ave., has changed its policy and feature productions have supplanted the regular program.

G. A. Metcalfe has taken over the M. & F theater recently opened at Twenty-fourth and Castro streets.

California Business Pointers.

Wheatland, Cal.—C. R. Beilby is preparing to open a moving picture house at Wheatland.

Oakland, Cal.—Fest & Siedell will shortly open the Columbia theater on Tenth street, Oakland, with moving pictures and musical comedy.

Porterville, Cal.—A new theater with a seating capacity of about 800 is being erected here by Edward Howell.

Alameda, Cal.—A new Kimball pipe organ to cost $8,000 and to contain a number of distinctive features to adapt it for photo-play work is to be installed shortly in the New Alameda theater, Alameda, conducted by C. W. and Rex Midgley.

Los Banos, Cal.—A new Powers Cameragraph No. 6A has been installed in the Crescent theater at Los Banos, Cal.

Taft, Cal.—The Star theater at this place, which has been closed for more than two months, is to be re-opened by Claud Kennell, W. D. McElliott and C. E. Ellis.

Bakersfield, Cal.—M. R. Parra has disposed of his interests in Parra's theater here to Charles Freear and plans to leave shortly for South America to engage in the film exchange business there.

San Jose, Cal.—Exhibitors in a number of the towns between San Francisco and San Jose are now having their films brought to them and returned to the exchanges by automobile delivery, instead of carrying them or having them shipped by express. The notice of the railroads to the effect that the carrying of films in passenger cars after the first of March would be prohibited is responsible for the placing in operation of the new system.

Washington, D. C., Letter (Continued).

Earle E. Reese Here.

Earle E. Reese, formerly a member of the Exhibitors' Co-operative Booking Agency, is making a lengthy stay in West Virginia, where he is securing bookings for "In the Whirl of Life," on behalf of the Metro Film Service Company.

A. N. Watters in Ohio Valley.

The World correspondent was pleased to receive a postal card postmarked Louisville, Ky., from A. N. Waters, who is now in that state securing bookings on "The Spoilers." He reports this feature as proving very popular at the theaters where it has been shown. Mr. Waters is well known in Washington and his many friends here wish him a very successful trip.

Criterion Office in Film Exchange Bldg.

D. J. Sonneborn, proprietor of the Criterion Film Service, with offices in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, has secured quarters in the Film Exchange Building, 903 E street, Northwest, from which he intends to serve exhibitors in this locality.

Summer Films at the Belasco.

There is a rumor afloat that the Belasco theater, one of the best known playhouses of the city, will be devoted to the exhibition of motion pictures during the summer months. A number of exchange men are said to have received letters from the management which would indicate that a program of high class features is being projected for it. There has been more or less talk for many months to the effect that there are more legitimate houses in the city than the size of the population should warrant and that some one of these would either be dismantled, turned into vaudeville or utilized as a motion picture theater. It is to be remembered that the Columbia theater, on F street, was formerly a stock house, but some months ago was taken over by Marcus Loew, of New York, and is now devoted to high class features. This is one of the most successful motion picture enterprises in the city at this time.

Mrs. Hawkins Takes Georgia Theater.

Mrs. F. E. Hawkins, who operates the Revere theater, on Georgia avenue, Northwest, has also taken over the Georgia theater, formerly operated by S. Robbin & Bro. Mrs. Hawkins is one of Washington's best known film women. She is energetic, up-to-date, and has a very thorough knowledge of the motion picture theater business. The Revere theater is generally well patronized, it is always kept in first class shape. It is her hope that the new acquisition will soon attain some of the popularity now enjoyed by the Revere and from the present outlook this would seem about to be realized.

Reopens Elite Theater.

Mr. Clark, who was formerly connected with the Lafayette theater, at 13th street and Pennsylvania avenue, Northwest, has opened up the Elite theater, on 14th street, which has remained dark for some time.

New House in Alexandria.

Alexandria, Va.—The Alabama, a new motion picture theater for the colored motion picture fans of Alexandria, Va., has just been opened by Mr. Rowland.

Will the Washington Colonial Go?

It is understood that another of the city's photoplay houses is to be turned into a business property. For some time past the rumor has been afloat that a Baltimore cutlery merchant has been negotiating for the Colonial theater, on Pennsylvania avenue, near Ninth street, Northwest, operated by the Brylawski interests, and it may be that the coming month will see the passing of this house. The Colonial is one of the oldest and best known houses in the downtown district and it will be the second one in the same block to have been dismantled during the past few months. Pennsylvania avenue was the motion picture street of Washington until it was supplanted by Ninth street, although there still remains several houses along that thoroughfare.

Ira P. Gillette's New Offices.

Ira P. Gillette has taken quarters in the building at 1301 G street, Northwest, for the International Film Service, Inc., and the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial.

WISCONSIN NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Theatre Changes and Notes.

DELAVAN, WIS.—Gardner & Wilder purchased the Pastime theater at Delavan, from Ted Lewis.

La Crosse, Wis.—W. F. Gage has purchased from H. G. Wohlhuter, his partner for ten years, his interest in the La Crosse theater. The house is now owned by Gage who lives at Atoka, Okla., and D. J. O'Leary of St. Paul. Wohlhuter will retire as manager.

Cameron, Wis.—Edwin Hegna, who operates moving picture theaters at Bruce and Weyerhauser, Wis., has purchased another at Cameron, which will be managed by E. J. Bartlett.

Milwaukee, Wis.—After March 1, Hurley & Jones will devote their time to the Colonial theater in Milwaukee. They have been operating the New Park theater at 339 Broadway. Jacob Schiffman owner of the theater will take it over with his son in charge.

DePere, Wis.—Damage of $3,000 was done by fire to the Pearl theater in DePere, owned by G. A. Van Susteren and leased by J. A. Speaker. The operating room was the only thing not damaged. One reel of film was destroyed.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis.—Harvey Stock and Teddy Hayes of Sheboygan, Wis., have leased the Crystal theater at Sturgeon Bay, from Will Marquardt.

Richland Center, Wis.—Roscoe Anear and Thomas Bird contemplate the erection of a moving picture theater here.

Muscoda, Wis.—Fred Paulick will erect an opera house at this place.

Wisconsin Brevities.

"Marta of the Lowlands" was shown at the Antigo opera house at Antigo, Wis. under the auspices of the local lodge of Eagles.

The Toy theater at Milwaukee held "The Battle Cry of Peace" over for a second week.

Manager McWilliams of the Strand and Casino theaters and Gibson & Miller of the Dome at La Crosse will show "The Girl and the Game."

Southern Oregon Booms

Depression in Film Business South of Portland Has Apparently Passed—Theaters Open—Prices Raise to 15 Cents—Ashland, Grant's Pass, Cottage Grove and Albany Exhibitors Active.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, OREGON.—During the past six months road men making the territory south of Portland have returned to this city with tales of dull times among the exhibitors in the Willamette Valley and south. Recently, however, road men have come from this territory with reports that business has received an impetus and that a tone of optimism prevails.

At Salem and Grants Pass prices of admission were recently raised to 15 cents and George Bligh, who controls the theatrical situation in Salem, stated that the price raise had made no difference in the attendance of his theaters. At Grants Pass a $600,000 sugar beet factory is building, work on the Crescent City railroad has started and theater men there are pleased with the prospects. At Cottage Grove C. H. Hall will open the Arcade theater, which has been closed for some time.

J. H. Cook will open the Lyric, at Ashland, which was closed recently. A new policy of showing a mixed program will be in effect in this theater and the admission will be 5 and 10 cents. The Vining at Ashland will continue its policy of features at 10 and 15 cents.

At Albany C. A. Myers has taken charge of the Globe and at Glendale K. B. Wesleder has opened the Glendale theater, which will run twice a week.

NEW THEATER FOR PORTLAND.

Portland is to have a new downtown theater. It is being built in the Alisky block at Third and Morrison streets, near the center of the downtown shopping district. The Alisky block was recently gutted by fire and in being remodelled a theater auditorium was included in the plans. It was orginally intended to construct a theater with a seating capacity of 1,200, but after the plans were drawn it was seen that extensive trussing for the large auditorium would take up a large part of the building that was wanted for offices and an auditorium seating 400 was finally decided upon.

The new theater will be operated by J. G. Fleishman, who, with his son, S. M. Fleishman, has operated the Novelty in Portland for seven years. Mr. Fleishman has taken a five years' lease on the new theater and will occupy it in 60 days. He has already arranged for two Power's 6B machines for the lamp house and upholstered chairs for the entire auditorium. A policy of showing a mixed program at 5 and 10 cents is contemplated.

PATHE MANAGER TRANSFERRED.

Walter S. Wessling, manager of the Portland Pathe exchange, has been transferred to a better position in the eastern division of Pathe exchanges and left for New York City February 18. Mr. Wessling has been prominent in all the activities of the Portland film fraternity and his departure from the West is regretted.

Mr. Wessling's transfer resulted in a step-up of the Portland Pathe employes. B. J. Sperry, road man, was installed as manager; M. E. Wyman, booker, as road man; L. A. Samuelson, shipper, as booker, and Ed Hudson, poster clerk, as shipper.

FINED FOR CROWDING AISLES.

On a charge preferred by Fire Marshal Stevens of Portland, George M. Harris, manager of the Burnside theater, was fined $25 before the Municipal Judge for crowding the aisles of his theater. The judge stated that the practice of crowding aisles in theaters had been the cause of many tragedies during panics and imposed the fine as a warning to the managers of other theaters.

Essanay Representative in Portland.

W. Fay Lynch, special representative of Essanay, was a recent visitor at the General Film Company's exchange at Portland en route from San Francisco to Seattle.

R. R. Nave Goes to Seattle.

R. R. Nave, booker at the Portland Mutual, has been transferred to Seattle, replacing A. J. Smith, formerly of Portland, and who was recently assigned as booker to the Mutual office at Minneapolis. O. R. Hanson, bookkeeper in Portland, takes Mr. Nave's place as booker.

Sunset's Lobby Attractive.

One of the most unique lobby displays shown in Portland for some time was used at the Sunset theater, Portland, when that house showed "The Black Crook," commencing February 10. Hangings of black, toned with red and gold and lighted by concealed crimson lights gave the lobby a cavernlike appearance such as is credited to the nether regions. Skulls hung at random on the walls and a figure of his Satantic Majesty seated on a rock in the foreground added to the lobby's weirdness. The entire effect was just uncanny enough to be attractive and "The Black Crook," with an augmented orchestra, played to record houses during its stay at the Sunset.

Lobby of the Sunset.

Heard on Film Row.

South Portland, Ore.—A theater in South Portland has cut the price of admission to two cents. Fifty tickets for a dollar are said to be the rule.

Dalles, Ore.—C. C. Smith of this place was a recent visitor in Portland, buying equipment for his new theater which will open in March.

Salem, Ore.—George Bligh, now theater magnate of Salem, passed through Portland on his way home from Seattle. While in the Sound city Mr. Bligh booked "The Battle Cry of Peace" and "Damaged Goods" and also "Inspiration" from Portland for a return date.

G. A. Reed, manager for the Portland Mutual, made a flying trip through Southern Oregon recently and booked "The Girl and The Game" in every large town on the line.

No Standing in Lobbies

Edmonton, B. C., Manager Found Guilty in a Local Police Court of Permitting Patrons to Stand in the Lobby of His Theater While Waiting for New Reel to Start—Case Will Be Appealed.

By E. C. Thomas, Vancouver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

EDMONTON, ALBERTA.—A court decision of considerable importance to the exhibitors of Alberta has just been made in Edmonton. John Hazza, manager of the Empress theater in that city, was charged in the local police court with committing a breach of the Theater Act, in permitting patrons to stand in the entrance to the theater on a recent Saturday evening, and on Feb. 11 was found guilty.

Counsel for Mr. Hazza admitted that people were allowed to stand in the entrance, but contended that this did not constitute a violation of the Act. No charge was made that the theatre itself was overcrowded, nor even, so far as known, that the exits were blocked, but the court decided that the provisions of the statute covered the lobby as well as the interior of the theatre.

If the law is to be construed in this manner, and enforced, it simply means that patrons waiting to enter a theater must remain on the sidewalk, in which case the manager would probably be arrested for collecting a crowd and obstructing the sidewalk; and during inclement weather it can hardly be expected that people will stand outside for a half or quarter of an hour. If they walk up and down they are apt to lose their chance to get a good seat when the reel then running is finished.

Mr. Hazza has announced that he will appeal the case.

V-L-S-E PROGRAM HERE.

Vancouver, B. C.—W. P. Nichols, general manager of the National Amusement Company, and one of the incorporators of the National Film Service, Limited (the name chosen for the new company which has just been formed in British Columbia to handle the V-L-S-E features throughout Western Canada), last week informed the Vancouver correspondent of the Moving Picture World that arrangements are just being completed for taking over, as well, the distribution of the Triangle program in the same territory.

The whole program of fourteen reels per week will be used, according to Mr. Nichols, and both the Rex and Globe theaters in Vancouver will be first run Triangle houses, using a five-reeler and a Keystone for a half week each, with a V. L. S. E. subject the other half. Mr. Nichols stated that the Triangle Film Corporation have accepted the proposition made by the local men, and there remain only a few minor details to be settled.

NEW 1,000-SEAT THEATER.

Vancouver, B. C.—A new theater and store building is about to be erected at Main street and Broadway, Vancouver. The site comprises a plot of ground 100 by 100 feet, and the building will be of two stories, with offices on the second floor. The theater itself will have a seating capacity of about 1,000, and the building complete is expected to cost somewhat over $75,000. Work is to be started this week on preparing the site, and the house will probably be ready for opening some time in June. F. H. Gow, at present manager of the Broadway theater, near the location of the new building, will be manager of the theater when it is completed, and will have an interest in the company controlling it.

TO WATCH FOR ILLEGAL ADS.

Vancouver, B. C.—The discussion of illegal advertising at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Vancouver Board of Trade, and the ensuing consultation with the local Retailers' Association, has resulted in the promulgation of the following self-explanatory warning, officially issued by the Retail Merchants' Association of B. C.:

"This association wishes to warn merchants and others who advertise the sale of goods in newspapers or by any other method, that extreme care should be taken in verifying the accurary of all statements included therein before allowing the same to be published.

"Statements falsely representing merchandise as being of greater value or worth a higher price than that advertised are illegal and come under the section of the criminal code known as the False Advertising Act, which provides for a fine of $200 or six months' imprisonment, or both. Convictions have already been obtained under this act, in one case the maximum fine of $200 being inflicted.

"The Retail Merchants' Association has appointed a special committee from amongst its members for the purpose of watching statements contained in advertisements published locally, and advertisers responsible for the publication of any statements of a character likely to or intended to mislead the public along the above line, will be vigorously prosecuted."

A similar campaign has just been undertaken in Winnipeg, where the Manitoba Retail Merchants' Association, the Winnipeg Advertising Club and the local newspapers have combined to raise the tone of advertising. A permanent committee to consider complaints which may arise in the future, has been appointed, with H. W. Daly of Dingwalls, Ltd., as chairman, and J. H. Curle, secretary of the Merchants' Association, as secretary.

BECOMES A PICTURE HOUSE.

Calgary, B. C.—Still another important theater in Western Canada has joined the ranks of the moving picture theaters. The Grand in Calgary, one of the houses in the so-called Walker Circuit, beginning Feb. 17 will use picture programs during the last half of each week, with the first half of the week given over to vaudeville.

Manager R. J. Lydiatt has announced that Charles L. Cadwalader, of the Lee Lash Studios, who recently completed a special stage setting for the Walker theater in Winnipeg, has painted a very beautiful setting for the Grand, in the form of a Japanese Garden. With the inauguration of the new policy the orchestra, under the direction of Will H. Davis, has been considerably augmented. Seats at all performances are reserved, and prices range from 10 to 25 cents.

Pathe's "The Beloved Vagabond" was the feature for the opening week, and the first night of the new policy took the form of a benefit for the Returned Soldiers' Club, under the auspices of the Calgary Canadian Club. Many veterans are now returning from European battlefields, and the proceeds of this performance will be used in helping to furnish the club rooms which are being fitted up for them.

The Saturday morning "Children's Hour" is to be a feature at the Grand, and an effort will be made to have the juvenile programs especially attractive and suitable, as Mr. Lydiatt has for a long time been interested in this aspect of the business. A matron will be in attendance, and young ladies will act as ushers. The opening children's attraction will be Ince's five reel fairy tale, "Rumpelstiltskin," shown with shorter subjects at 5 cents admission.

E. A. Langley in Charge of Blue Bird.

Vancouver, B. C.—A telegram received by James E. Finch, Universal manager at Vancouver, from Clair Hague, Canadian general manager, says that, E. A. Langley, formerly with Pathe, has been placed in charge of the distribution of Blue Bird photo-plays throughout Canada. He took charge on Feb. 21.

CLEMMER'S ANNIVERSARY FILM.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH., Feb. 18.—Dr. H. S. Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer theater, has made special arrangements with the producers for the presentation of Mary Pickford in "Poor Little Peppina" to run for the entire week starting Sunday, February 20.

This picture is set for release for March 28, but Manager Clemmer obtained the permission to run it ahead as an anniversary feature, he having opened his theater a year ago.

CASINO'S NEW REST ROOMS.

During the week manager Will T. Reed of the Casino theater at Spokane threw open, to the women patrons, attractive and well equipped rest rooms under the main auditorium floor. There are three rooms and an entrance hall in the suite.

The rooms are carpeted in green, and lighter shades of the same hue are used in the walls and ceilings, with woodwork in Washington fir. The furniture is the new split fiber ware, of artistic design, and includes writing desk, tables, easy chairs and couch. The pieces are upholstered in cretonne in harmonious tones, the lighting fixtures are of the alabaster urn type, in classical design.

McWilliam Entertains Old Soldiers.

Members of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans and affilliated societies were the guests of manager Alexander N. S. McWilliam at the Majestic theater when "Fighting for France," was shown at that play house four days this week. The attraction was a good drawing card. Representatives of the Washington National Guard and soldiers from Fort George Wright also viewed the pictures.

Albert W. Eden Here.

Albert W. Eden of Chicago, representing the Fox Film is spending a few days in this territory, and plans to spend several months in the Pacific northwest, visiting theaters where Fox attractions are shown.

Local Film Hits.

Among the film hits in Spokane theaters for the week of Feb. 13, were Mary Pickford in "As it is in Life," at the Lyric; The German War pictures at the Hippodrome, Lois Meredith in "The Precious Packet," and Vivian Martin, in "Merely Mary Ann," at the Casino, "The Turmoil," and "The Five Faults of Flo," at the Class A.; "The Green Swamp," and "The Price of Power" at the Liberty and Dustin Farnum, in "The Call of the Cumberlands" and Pauline Fredericks in "The Spider," at the Clemmer.

To Open Exchange in Great Falls, Mont.

R. F. Kemble and B. F. Hibbard experienced exchange men, who recently organized the Interstate Film Supply Company in Spokane, announce that they will open a branch office in Great Falls, Mont., soon. Mr. Hibbard also announces that the new company will handle Fox's Box Office Attractions, Apex, Sawyer, Alliance, Warner Features and the regular releases of the United program, and that they are negotiating for some comedy cartoons and some big state right features.

Some of the features they are now handling include Henry B. Walthall in "Beulah," Max Figman in "The Hoosier School Master"; Carlyle Blackwell in "The Key to Yesterday," also "Prohibition," "East Lynn" "Hunting Big Game in the Artic," "Chocolate Soldier" and "Guarding Old Glory."

"Prohibition" was shown to a large audience in the First Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday, Feb. 13, Mr. Hibbard said, "We received the hearty endorcement of L. R. Horton district superindent of the Anti-Saloon League, and members of the W. C. T. U., and expect to show the picture in other sections of eastern Washington Idaho and Montana.

"THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN"

Filmland's Initial Revival of the First and Most Successful Movie Serial Story Featuring KATHLYN WILLIAMS, Supported by THOMAS SANTSCHI and a notable cast.

Cut to Eight Thrilling and Spectacular Episodes, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," Written by Harold McGrath, Scenario by Gilson Willets, is Chock Full of Soul-Stirring Situations. A Menagerie of Wild Beasts! Thousands of Performers!

Stands 'Em Up In Chicago's Fine Arts Theatre!

Characterized by excellent photography, it moves briskly from one point to another. "Kathlyn" has come back! The close-ups of wild animals are thrilling and effective.—Kitty Kelly, Chicago Tribune.

A great photodrama, clean, thrilling and worthy. A series of spectacular scenes and situations unsurpassed.—Chicago Post.

A thrilling revival that has captured the public.—Chicago American.

"The Adventures of Kathlyn," revival in eight reels, is an idea that has captured the public. A sensational feature drama that is crowding the Fine Arts theatre.—Luella O. Parsons, Chicago Herald.

"The Adventures of Kathlyn," a revival of the famous movie serial, has proved a tremendous success.—W. K. Hollander, Chicago News.

Eight reels of suspense, logical story, beautiful scenic effects.—Chicago Journal.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Chicago and Everywhere.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending March 11 and March 18

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 1730, 1732, 1734.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.

	Serial No.
BIOGRAPH—The House of Darkness (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 40)	20158
ESSANAY—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 7, "A Confession" (Two parts—Drama)	.....
LUBIN—Ophelia (Drama)	20159
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 19, 1916 (Topical)	20157
SELIG—The Dream of Eugene Aram (Three parts—Drama)	20153-4-5
VITAGRAPH—Pansy's Papas (Comedy)	20156
VITAGRAPH—Mrs. Bane's Danger (Four parts—Drama) (Unit Program)	U-1055-6-7-8
VITAGRAPH—Bittersweet (Comedy) (Unit Program)	U-1059

TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.

ESSANAY—The Intruder (Two parts—Drama)	20160-1
KALEM—Maybe Moonshine (Comedy)	20162
LUBIN—A Change of Heart (Two parts—Drama)	20163-4

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Mystery of Orcival (Three parts—Drama)	20167-8-9
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 6 (Cartoon-Comedy)	20166
KALEM—When Hubby Forgot (Farce—Comedy)	20165

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.

LUBIN—Soldier Sons (Three parts—Drama)	20170-1-2
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 20, 1916 (Topical)	20173
VIM—Bungle's Elopement (Comedy)	20174

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.

KALEM—She Came, She Saw, She Conquered (Comedy)	20178
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—A Slave of Corruption (Three parts—Drama)	20175-6-7
VIM—Their Wedding Day (Comedy)	20180
VITAGRAPH—Beaned By a Beanshooter (Comedy)	20179

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.

ESSANAY—A Man's Work (Three parts—Drama)	20181-2-3
KALEM—A Race For a Life (No. 70 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama)	20188
LUBIN—Some Boxer (Comedy)	20184
SELIG—The Passing of Pete (Drama)	20189
VITAGRAPH—The Human Cauldron (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature)	20185-6-7

General Film Company.

Advance Releases

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Lady and the Mouse (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 41).
ESSANAY—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 8, "The Perjury (Two parts—Drama).
LUBIN—The Butler (Comedy).
SELIG—The Regeneration of Jim Halsey (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 21, 1916. (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—Putting Pep in Slowtown (Comedy).

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Grip of Gold (Two parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—Ham Agrees With Sherman (Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary (Three parts—Comedy-Drama).
ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—The Eveless Eden Club (Comedy).

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1916.

LUBIN—The Gulf Between (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune No. 22, 1916 (Topical).
VIM—Nerve and Gasoline (Comedy).

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1916.

KALEM—A Flock of Skeletons (Comedy).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—Mismates (Three parts—Drama).
VIM—A Pair of Skins (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Freddy Aids Matrimony (Comedy).

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1916.

ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—The Girl Who Dared (No. 71 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
LUBIN—Dare Devil Bill (Comedy).
SELIG—Toll of the Jungle (Wild Animal-Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Miss Warren's Birthday (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

AB

No Release Date

New prints and posters of Biograph Comedies are now at your exchange ready for booking.

Featuring

Mabel Normand
Mack Sennett
Charles Murray
Ford Sterling
Fred Mace, etc.

The INDIAN

A Spectacular Three Reel Feature

Destined to rank with such great spectacles of Indian warfare as "The Massacre" and "The Battle at Elderbush Gulch."

Released
Wednesday, March 1

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 E. 175TH STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending March 11 and March 18

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 1730, 1732, 1734.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 1916.

	Serial No.
LAEMMLE—The Blackmailer (Drama)	01246
L-KO—Gertie's Awful Fix (Comedy)	01247
REX—Saved by a Song (Two parts—Drama)	01245

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.

NESTOR—Their Only Son (Comedy)	01250
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Target (Five parts—Drama)	01249
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 13—"The Powder Trust and the War" (Two parts—Drama).	01266

TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—The Winning of Miss Construe (Three parts—Human Interest-Comedy-Drama)	01251
IMP—Sunlight and Shadows (Western—Drama)	01252
REX—No release this day.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 10, (Topical)	01255
LAEMMLE—The Windward Anchor (Drama)	01253
L-KO—False Friends and Fire Alarms (Two parts—Comedy)	01254

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.

LAEMMLE—Lavinia Comes Home (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama)	01256
POWERS—Warriors of the Air	01258
—A Romance of Toyland (Novelty)	01258
REX—The Dumb Bandit (Drama)	01257

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.

IMP—The Doll Doctor (Two parts—Modern—Drama)	01259
NESTOR—When Lizzie Disappeared (Comedy)	01261
VICTOR—Their Act (Comedy—Drama)	01260

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.

BISON—The Quarter Breed (Three parts—Western Drama)	01262
JOKER—No release this day.
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work, No. 12 "The Heart of a Nation" (Educational)	01263

SUNDAY, MARCH 12, 1916.

L-KO—No Release this day.
REX—His Brother's Pal (Two parts—Drama)	01264
VICTOR—Love's Spasms (Comedy)	01265

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1916.

NESTOR—The Deacon's Waterloo (Comedy)	01268
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—Terence O'Rourke in "The Pool of Flame" (Five parts—Drama)	01267
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft No. 14. "The Iron Ring" (Two parts—Drama).

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1916.

GOLD SEAL—Born of the People (Two parts—Society-Drama)	01269
IMP—Her Invisible Husband (Comedy)	01271
REX—The Bold Bad Burglar (Comedy-Drama)	01270

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1916.

ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 11 (Topical)	01274
LAEMMLE—Lonesomeness (Drama)	01273
VICTOR—Orders Is Orders (Two parts—Comedy)	01272

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1916.

BIG U—The Fatal Introduction (Three parts—Western-Drama)	01275
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
POWERS—Sammie Johnsin, Strong man (Cartoon—Comedy)	01276
—Safety First (Educational)	01276

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1916.

IMP—Paterson of the News (Two parts—Newspaper-Drama)	01277
NESTOR—Across the Hall (Comedy)	01279
REX—The Cry of Erin (Drama)	01278

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1916.

BISON—The Iron Rivals (Two parts—Railroad-Drama)	01280
JOKER—Muchly Married (Comedy)	01281
POWERS—No release this day.

Mutual Film Corporation.

SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 1916.

	Serial No.
BEAUTY—Dad's College Widow (Comedy)	04527
GAUMONT—See America First No. 25 (Scenic)	04526
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04526
VOGUE—All Balled Up (Comedy)	04528

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—According to Law (Gaumont—Five parts—Sociological—Drama) (No. 77).

TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1916.

AMERICAN—The Silken Spider (Three parts—Society-Drama)	04529-30-1
FALSTAFF—Oscar The Oyster Opener (Comedy)	04532

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1916.

BEAUTY—The Gay Blade's Last Scrape (Comedy)	04536
THANHOUSER—The Cruise of Fate (Three parts—Society-Drama)	04533-4-5

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916.

FALSTAFF—Ambitious Awkward Andy (Comedy)	04538
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—True Nobility (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 78).
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 62 (Topical).	04539
VOGUE—Love, Music and Cannon Balls (Comedy)	04537

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.

CUB—Jerry's Big Game (Comedy)	04543
MUSTANG—Quagmire (Three parts—Western—Drama)	04540-1-2

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1916.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Flight of the Duchess (Thanhouser—Five parts—Comedy-Drama) (No. 79)

SUNDAY, MARCH 12, 1916.

BEAUTY—Persistent Percival (Comedy)	04545
GAUMONT—See America First No. 26 (Scenic)	04544
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04544
VOGUE—More Truth Than Poetry (Comedy)	04546

MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1916.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—In the Web of the Grafters (Signal—Five parts—Drama (No. 80)

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1916.

AMERICAN—The Suppressed Order (Three parts—Drama)	04546-7-8
FALSTAFF—Theodore's Terrible Thirst (Comedy)	04549

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1916.

BEAUTY—Blotters and Papers (Comedy)	04552
THANHOUSER—The Whispered Word (Two parts—Drama)	04550-1

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1916.

FALSTAFF—Rupert's Rube Relations (Comedy)	04554
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Fugitive (Thanhouser—Five parts—Modern—Drama) No. 81)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 63 (Topical)	04555
VOGUE—Title not yet announced	04553

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1916.

CUB—Title not yet announced	04559
MUSTANG—Curfew Corliss (Three parts—Western—Drama)	04556-7-8

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1916.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Overalls (American—Five parts—Modern—Drama) No 82)

From Seth D. Perkins, manager of the New Garrick Theatre, Los Angeles, comes a telegram reading:

"AM NOW EXHIBITING DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTION 'VENGEANCE IS MINE!' STARRING CRANE WILBUR. BROKE HOUSE RECORD AND HAVE ARRANGED RETURN DATE."

As the New Garrick Theatre has been doing big business it can be seen that this David Horsley production exerted extraordinary drawing power; and as Mr. Perkins has booked "Vengeance is Mine!" for a return date it is evident that his patrons were more than pleased with it.

And so it is with all David Horsley productions. They make good in the box office and on the screen.

Current and forthcoming five reel productions of the same high artistic calibre and attraction value are: "A Law Unto Himself," featuring Crane Wilbur, released Feb. 28; "The Heart of Tara," with Marvel Spencer, Margaret Gibson, William Clifford and the Bostock Animals, released March 4; "The Hidden Law," with Margaret Gibson, William Clifford and the Bostock Animals, released March 25; "The Love Liar," featuring Crane Wilbur, released March 27.

In addition, a David Horsley Cub Comedy production in one reel, featuring George Ovey, is released every Friday.

Bookings for these releases obtainable through exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation.

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

A CORRECTION.

Through an unfortunate error we have been announcing in the "Stories of the Films" department and in the "List of Current Film Release Dates" that the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial reel has been released through the General Film Company, whereas from the inception of this topical subject it has been going through the V-L-S-E. In this week's issue on page 1732 can be found a correct list of the dates of this picture. Hereafter the synopsis of this release will be found under the head of V-L-S-E, Inc., in this department.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE

A SLAVE OF CORRUPTION (Three Parts—March 10).—Mina is an apprentice girl in Mme. Louise's fashionable dressmaking shop. She is a shabby half-starved creature living with her dissolute mother in a tenement. Her mother becomes mixed up with Harry Lawton, a slaver, and is arrested. James Roderick, brother of Rev. David Roderick, is really the secret head of the slaver gang. James Roderick is engaged to Miss Graham and Mina first sees him when he comes to Mme. Louise's shop with his fiancee. She secretly admires him. She meets Rev. David the night her mother is arrested but runs away from him.

The secretary finds Mina's mother is his wife and Mina his child, and Rev. David says he will help him find Mina. Mina takes the place of a model who is ill and meets James Roderick. He, infatuated with her beauty, invites her to dinner at his apartment. She refuses, but later when she is discharged by Mme. Louise goes to him.

A month elapses and she is set up in a beautiful apartment as James Roderick's mistress. She cares nothing for him, but knows no better. He leaves to go on his honeymoon and Mina wanders into Rev. David's church, which is next door. He preaches of the Magdalene. The girl is touched and goes home heartbroken. Leaving all her beautiful clothes, she dons her shabby ones and goes back to Vespers. After service is over Mina remains. Rev. David and secretary coming out see her. Rev. David recognizes her and she is taken home with her father.

Three months elapse, and Mina assists Rev. David in references for his sermons. He avows his love for her and asks her to marry him. James, returning from his honeymoon, visits Rev. David and Mina and James are brought face to face. James tells Mina he will not tell, but Mina confesses to Rev. David she was James' mistress. She leaves, goes back to Mme. Louise's shop and gets back her position as an apprentice. An hour later Rev. David, knowing his love is stronger, goes in search for Mina, finds her and all ends happily.

KALEM.

"WINNING THE WIDOW" (Feb. 29.) The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); Smith, a jealous husband (Jack MacDermott); Mrs. Smith (Adoni Fovieri); The Butler (Gus Leonard); The Undertaker (Martin Kinney). Author, Frank Howard Clark. Producer, William Beaudine.

Ham and Bud fall out and become deadly rivals for the favor of a winsome widow. She isn't really a widow, but her jealous husband has pretended suicide and Ham and Bud seek the murderer to gain the widow's hand and fortune. The fix they find themselves in is laughable, but it causes the pair to turn with a disdainful, "Never again!" from the flirtatious invitation of a still prettier lass as the reel closes.

"A RIDDLE IN RASCALS" (March 1—Third of the Ethel Teare Series.) The cast: Ethel (Ethel Teare); Jack (Jack MacDermott); Raffles, Jr. (Victor Rottman). Written and produced by William Beaudine.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

A would-be "Raffles," a near-detective, and a real minion of the law are involved in a mixup that causes Ethel some terrifying hours.

"THE GIRL TELEGRAPHER'S NERVE" (No. 69 of "The Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—March 4.) The cast: Helen, the operator (Helen Gibson); Steve Nelson (Hal Clements); Dick Pearse (Guy Coombs); James Ogden, sheriff (Henry Hallam).

Steve Nelson, a clever crook, arrives at the little station where Helen is operator. He lives quietly at the village's little boarding house preparing for a coup when Helen receives instructions that lead her to suspect Steve. By a clever ruse she succeeds in exposing him and making him prisoner in the station. He escapes and flees on a stolen engine. Helen follows on another locomotive and after a thrilling chase overhauls him, couples the two engines together, and then crawls on the swaying coupling to the other locomotive to bring Nelson to bay.

"A LEAP YEAR WOOING" (March 3. The cast: Sis Hopkins (Rose Melville); "Sudden Sam" (Henry Murdock); Detective Joe (Frank Minzey); Mary Lee (Mary Kennedy); Phineas Lee (Richard Purdon); His Wife (Olive West); Mary's Sweetheart (Arthur Albertson); "Gentleman Joe" (Robert Ellis). Author, Frank Howard Clark. Producer, Robert Ellis.

Sis Hopkins makes her screen debut in this production. It shows Sis as a love-lorn slavey who gets herself and the Lee household in a merry whirl of excitement when she sets out to get a mate. Sis uses leap year methods to capture "Sudden Sam" who isn't at all averse to being captured.

"MAYBE MOONSHINE" (March 7.) The cast: Ham, at the age of seven (Gordon Griffith); Bud, at the age of five (Wesley Barry); Bud's sister, four (Mignon Fovieri); Ham, himself (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); His sister (Adoni Foivieri). Producer, William Beaudine.

The feud between the Ham and Bud families starts in childhood, and it continues until a revenue officer seeks out the mountain clans and the moonshiners combine for mutual protection. The revenue officer not only puts a stop to the moonshining, but captures the heart of a mountain belle.

"WHEN HUBBY FORGOT" (March 8.) The cast: Ethel (Ethel Teare); Her Hubby (Victor Rottman); Friend of the Family (Miss Griffith); "Soft-foot" Joe (R. Zell). Author, Ray Herzberg. Producer, William Beaudine.

In the first place, Hubby is absent-minded; secondly, Wifey saw him in the jeweler's with the friend of the family, though she didn't know that he was purchasing a lavalliere for her. When Hubby then hides the lavalliere and forgets where he put it there are terrible doings in the household. A sneak thief and a covetous maid complicate matters still more but the lavalliere finally turns up and with it a pretty smile and kiss from Ethel for forgetful Hubby.

"A RACE FOR A LIFE" (March 11.) The cast: The Operator (Helen Gibson); Helen's Friend (Robyn Adair); President of the Road (Charles Mulgro); His Son (Percy Pembroke). Author, Herman A Blackman. Producer, James Davis.

A college boy's prank imperils the life of the railroad president's son who has worked his way up to engineer in his course that starts "from the bottom." Tied to engine, the son is speeding on a runaway engine toward the Flicker Creek bridge which has been swept away by the floods. Helen and her friend, Steve, take a short cut on horseback that enables them to overtake the engine. She swings to the other horse, then climbs to Steven's shoulders, and standing in this perilous position on the racing horse, leaps to the engine which is brought to a stop on the brink of the river bank.

BIOGRAPH.

"THE HOUSE OF DARKNESS" (Biograph Re-issue—March 6.) The cast: The nurse (Lillian Gish); The doctor (Lionel Barrymore); His wife (Claire McDowell); The patient (Charles H. Mailes.)

The doctor at the insane asylum marries one of the nurses and sets up housekeeping nearby. A patient, whose outbreaks of homicidal passion are always lulled by music, escapes from his guards and, wresting a pistol from a man who tries to stop him, makes his way to the doctor's home, where he enters stealthily, the room in which the doctor's wife sits near the piano, playing with a kitten. When she discovers his presences he pleads for her life, he gives her five minutes' grace.

She can think of nothing; the time is up. Unstrung, she falls forward and strikes the piano with her hands, producing crashing chords. The effect upon the maniac is at once noticeable. Fearfully she begins to play under the threat of the pistol, until at last the madness dies out of the terrible eyes and the man hands her the pistol. Quietly he permits her to lead him out to where the searching party, headed by her husband, is approaching. Thereafter, every day, until he is dismissed as cured, she goes to the hospital and plays the piano, while he, seated outside the window, listens and is soothed.

"THE MYSTERY OF ORCIVAL" (Three parts—March 8.) The cast: Clement Sauvresy (Charles H. Mailes); De Tremorel (G. Raymond Nye); Lecoq, detective (Charles Perley); Plantat (Jack Mulhall); Mayor Courtois (Jack Drumeir); Bertha (Gretchen Hartman); Laurence (Vera Sisson); Jenny Fancy (Eva Smith.)

Jean Bertaud and his son, poachers, discover the body of a woman in a stream near the village of Orcival and notify Mayor Courtois, who summons M. Plantat, justice of the peace. At the home of Count de Tremorel, near-by, evidence of murder is found. The count and his wife, who are known to have received a large sum of money, are missing. The dead body is identified as that of the countess. The Bertauds are arrested. Suspicion is also directed toward Guespin, a gardener. Investigation discloses that the count and countess have been married less than six months. She was the widow of the count's friend, Sauvesy, who had idolized his wife.

Lecoq, the famous detective, enters the case and determines that the elaborate evidences of murder have been carefully arranged. The mayor's daughter, Laurence, disappears. Later her father receives a note to the effect that she has been dishonored and will commit suicide. Lecoq traces the note and finds Laurence. Prior to this, however, he becomes suspicious of one Roblet, a bone-setter, who shows alarm when informed that Sauvresy's body is to be disinterred. Plantat, the justice, opens a secret drawer in the Tremorel house and reveals some history; ruined by excesses, De Tremorel had determined on suicide when Kenny Fancy, demimondaine, restrained him. His friend Sauvresy had offered him a home. Between him and Mme. Sauvresy was born a guilty passion. Sauvresy died of slow poison.

Discovered by their victim, de Tremorel and Bertha had been forced to wed a year after his death, on pain of exposure through papers left in the lawyer's hands. After the marriage the guilty pair had quarreled bitterly because of the count's passion for Laurence. The murder had resulted. Lecoq discovers Tremorel with Laurence. The girl urges her betrayer to kill himself in order to cheat the guillotine. Coward, he refuses. Laurence then avenges her honor by shooting Tremorel. Plantat, who loves her in spite of all, hears Lecoq justify the act. He marries Laurence.

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 13 (Feb. 14.)
The Selig-Tribune Valentine:

Here we must use a girl or fail,
For films we cannot use the mail;
We thought to send her thus were best
Because reel hopes must be expressed!

Tampa, Fla.—King Gasparilla IX and his Mystic Krewe land here for the carnival named in his honor.

Chicago, Ill.—The new Roman Catholic Archbishop, George William Mundelein, leaves the Holy Name Cathedral after the celebration of Pontifical high mass.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Six persons are burned to death and two injured in a fire which destroys the $50,000 home of the widow of the President of the German-American Bank.

Saloniki, Greece.—The English soldiers here while away the time as best they may, awaiting the long expected German advance on this city, which the Allies have so strongly fortified.

New York, N. Y.—Vivacious Reba Porter, prettiest of artist's models, whose charming face is to appear on a new coin issue of the Canadian Government.

Newport, Arkansas.—After being threatened with jail and having 175 feet of pictures confiscated by the local authorities, the Selig-Tribune Cameraman succeeds in photographing the terrible flood conditions here.

Washington, D. C.—A new life saving suit for use in the water is demonstrated here to the Government officials.

Manila, P. I.—The active Filipinos, learning of the project now in Congress to grant the Islands independence, have started their own preparedness campaign.

Glenwood, Minn.—The National Ski Tournament held here, brings together champion ski jumpers from all parts of the world. Axel Henricsen "Loops the Loop" in skis, clearing 134 feet.

Selig-Tribune Feature Picture.—Luke Smithers says, "After holdin' down a bell hop's job in a menagerie, bein' a nurse to a baby camel ought to be easy fer me—but it ain't!"

Topeka, Kansas.—President Wilson arrives in this city where he stated that in his opinion the United States should have the greatest navy of any nation on earth.

SELIG-TRIBUNE No. 14 (Feb. 17.)

San Francisco, Cal.—Thoroughly imbued with the preparedness ideas, the educational institutions in this state have reached a high standard of efficiency.

San Francisco, Cal.—Though the American Flag has practically disappeared from the high seas, on merchant ships, this great oil tanker, will bear the Stars and Stripes to many distant lands.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—Scenes like these; vast flooded areas in this and other states, have prompted Congress to send an investigating committee to ascertain the steps necessary to prevent similar inundations.

Vernon, France.—After months of dreary waiting as reserves, "Tommy Atkins" gets his marching orders, strikes camp, and leaves here for active service at the front.

New York, N. Y.—Marjorie Sterrett, who started the "Dime for a Dreadnought" fund, inspects the Battleship Washington, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Winchester, Mass.—Quick to respond to a fresh air propaganda, the pupils of an outdoor school here wear Eskimo suits with evident comfort.

Washington, D. C.—Favoring the organization of a "Continental Army," and unable to agree with President Wilson's new policy, Secretary Garrison resigns and is temporarily succeeded by Major General Scott.

Providence, R. I.—Believing that men's secret thoughts, radiating from their brains can be read, Walter L. Massie conducts his experiments here:

Feature Picture:
Diki Diki's thirty-four,
His height the same, his weight no more;
His "Smoke" is of uncertain age,
This Prince's dance is narrow gauge!

Humble, Texas.—Blazing for one day only, this enormous oil gusher causes thousands of dollars of damage before the spread of the fire is checked by the felling of trees.

Chicago, Ill.—Archbishop Mundelein, on right, who, at a banquet given in his honor, narrowly escaped death, from soup poisoned, the police believe, by Jean Crones, alleged anarchist and anti-Catholic.

"THE PASSING OF PETE" (March 11.) The cast: Pete (Tom Mix); Loresta (Victoria Forde); The Prospector (Sid Jordan); His Wife (Betty Keller); Mona (Ethylyn Chrisman). Written and produced by Tom Mix.

Pete lives with his Indian wife, Mona, but has fallen in love with Loresta of the dance hall. Bob, a young prospector, and his wife, Betty, live near Pete. Pete oversees Bob find a pocket of gold. Bob takes the gold home, but after he leaves Pete enters. Pete's wife follows and sees her husband steal the gold.

After Pete obtains the gold he goes to Loresta and hands her the bag. Pete's wife tells the sheriff of her husband's theft, and the posse follows the desperado. After a desperate battle Pete is shot. His wife, Mona, finds a new home in Bob's family.

LUBIN.

"OPHELIA"—(March 6.) The cast: George Hunter (E. K. Lincoln); Ophelia (Ethel Clayton); Carter (Craufurd Kent); Mary (Helen Weir). Written by Shannon Fife. Produced by Joseph Kaufman.

Mary, a girl of eighteen, pleads earnestly with John Carter, of the city, to fulfill his promise of marriage. He leaves without giving a definite answer and Mary, frantic, appeals to her sister, Ophelia, who lives in the city. Ophelia is married to George Hunter, a good husband except that he is suspicious and jealous. Ophelia receives the letter telling that she has come to the city and wants her presence kept secret. Ophelia hears Mary's story, and pledges to do everything in her power to make Carter do the honorable thing. Ophelia leaves the hotel and carries a photo of Carter, because his address is on one side of it.

At the club, one of the members, declaring that there is nothing in a name, points out that his friend Hunter's wife is named Ophelia, meaning "serpent." Rather unpleasant for a chap like Hunter to realize that his wife's name stands for serpent, but he would have dismissed the thought except for what happened when he arrived home in the evening. Creeping softly into his wife's room he sees her hurriedly slip a photo under the dresser linen cover. The germ of jealousy prompts him to bring the photo from its place of concealment as soon as Ophelia leaves the room. The name "Carter" on the back of the photo means nothing to him, but his suspicions conquer and he copies the address.

Next day a fellow-member points out Carter to Hunter. "Yes, that's John Carter," the club member explains. "I hear he has had an unfortunate affair with a woman." Hunter is startled. He remembers the incident of the hidden photo the night before. For the first time he now really begins to take his own suspicions seriously. He tells Ophelia he will be at the office all day. Instead of going to the office Hunter watches and follows her. He sees her leave her own home and go in a cab to Carter's apartments. Furious, he follows her, knocking down the butler in the attempt to reach the room where she has entered to meet Carter. The door is locked. He breaks it in and stands face to face with Carter. The men struggle for the possession of the revolver. With the butler's aid Hunter is over-powered. As he continues to struggle Ophelia appears from the adjoining room, Mary clinging nervously to her.

In his moment of wild rage Hunter accuses her. Ophelia advances angrily upon him, bitterly denouncing him for his suspicions and his actions. She sinks into a chair hysterical and then Carter explains the truth, how he had married Mary that morning, had telephoned Ophelia the news, had asked her to come to his apartments, and to keep their marriage a secret until after their arrival in Europe—and how Ophelia had been the real agency through which happiness had been brought into the lives of Carter and Mary.

"A CHANGE OF HEART" (Two parts—March 7.) The cast: John Coglan, a retired merchant (George Berrell); Jane, his adopted daughter (Eleanor Blevins); Ralph, his son (Robert Gray); Ed Walters, a crook (George Routh); Rita Travers, a cabaret singer (Velma Whitman). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Leon D. Kent.

John Coglan, a retired merchant, finds his gas bills exorbitant, and has a quarter gas meter installed in his house. He lives with his adopted daughter, Jane, and Ralph his son. Ralph is young and fond of a gay life, thereby invoking his father's displeasure. Coglan dies, and when his will is read, it is discovered that Jane has been left two-thirds of the fortune. Ralph becomes infatuated with Rita Travers, a cabaret singer, who is under the influence of Ed Walters, a crook. Walters urges her to marry Ralph, as he thinks Ralph has been left the entire fortune. Rita therefore becomes Ralph's wife, and he brings her to his home.

Rita immediately conceives a violent dislike to Jane, but gradually the good woman's influence is felt. Rita ignores Walters one day while she is out with Jane, and Walters writes her a note, threatening to expose her past record if she does not bring him several hundred dollars. Rita asks Ralph for the money, but he tells her that Jane has received the greater part of the fortune, and that he has not the ready cash. When Walters learns the true state of affairs, he tells Rita they must get rid of Jane. Ralph leaves on a business trip and Walters determines to avail himself of the opportunity. He visits Rita, and forces her to turn on the flow of gas in Jane's room. Rita repents of her action a moment later, and wants to save Jane, but Walters struggles with her, and leaves her unconscious on the floor.

Shortly after the gas in Rita's room slowly goes out, the meter having run down. Jane, who has merely fallen asleep while reading, now awakens. Finding her room in darkness, she concludes that the meter needs another quarter. She puts one in it, thereby turning on the gas in Rita's room, and resumes her reading. An hour or two later, she detects the odor of gas, and is just in time to save Rita. The next morning Rita is thoroughly repentant, and confesses the whole story to Jane. Jane forgives her, but Rita says that it is best for her to leave, as Walters will continue to hound her. She writes out a confession, which she is about to hand to the unsuspecting Ralph, when Jane, who has been nervously handling a newspaper nearby, suddenly rushes up and snatches the letter away, telling Ralph it is all a joke. Alone with Rita, Jane shows her the headlines of the paper, which state that Walters was killed the night before while trying to escape arrest. Jane holds out her arms to Rita and tells her to remain.

SOLDIER'S SONS (Three parts—March 9.) The cast: Gen. James Bates (Benjamin Hopkins); Dick Bates (L. C. Shumway); Nina Rosario (Helen Wolcott); Jose Rosario (Melvin Mayo.) Written and directed by Wilbert Melville.

Dick Bates graduates from West Point when he is 22 years old. This is in the year of 1883. Dick visits Manila, Philippine Islands, and goes on a hunting trip. In the village of Iloilo, live Nina Rosario and Carlos Fulano, a scoundrel, who forces his attentions on Nina. Dick engages Carlos as a guide. Dick is seized with fever, Carlos deserts the young officer. Nina stumbles across Dick, helps him to her home and nurses him back to health. Dick's gratitude turns to love and he marries Nina.

Carlos learns of the marriage and vows vengeance. He discovers her alone and forces Nina to accompany him into the jungle. Dick believes that Nina has fallen over the cliff and her body carried out to sea. Returning home, Dick finds a letter there ordering him to join his regiment at once at San Francisco. Dick departs, leaving with Nina's father, a piece of paper which instructs that if Nina's body is found, Rosario is to notify Lieut. Dick Bates or Gen. James Bates, at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., U. S. A.

Carlos carries Nina into the jungle. Nina seizes a stone, knocks Carlos senseless and escapes. Carlos regains consciousness and starts in pursuit. Nina reaches her home safely. When she hears that Dick has left, believing she is dead, the girl is distracted. Later, a son is born to Nina and she names the boy Ricardo.

Fifteen years pass, Dick is now a captain of his regiment at San Francisco. The regiment is ordered to sail for the Philippines. Nina and her son, now a fine looking boy of 15, lives in Iloilo. Ricardo announces that he is going to join the Filipino insurrectos. Nina begs Ricardo not to join the rebels. The boy insists and the mother finally gives in. The regiment arrives at Manila and Dick and his company attack the insurgents. Ricardo, being a good shot, is stationed behind a stone as a sharpshooter. The boy fires several times at Dick, seeing that he is an officer, and finally succeeds in shooting away the captain's hat.

Later Nina and Dick come face to face. They recognize each other. Nina, agonized, tells Dick that the sharpshooter is his son. That night, Dick sits in his tent struggling between his devotion to duty and his love for Nina and his new found son. He writes his resignation from the army and goes to his home and family in Iloilo.

SOME BOXER (March 11.) The cast: Wilkens (Billie Reeves); His Fiancee (Margaret Adair); The Trainer (William H. Turner); The College Champion (Arthur Matthews). Written by Mark Swan. Directed by Earl Metcalfe.

Bill Sykes, an ex-heavy weight champion, tries to teach Wilkens to box, but the latter makes little headway and Bill doesn't think much of him. Wilkens, however, wants to make a bluff as a boxer and an athlete, so he sneaks around to pawn shops and buys all the trophy cups and belts he can find and decorates his rooms with them.

His wealthy fiancee, Amy Mortimer, accompanied by her mother as chaperon, and Tom and Harry call on Wilkens, and are astounded by his display of cups. He makes a bluff that he is some boxer; therefore all insist on seeing him take a lesson from Sykes. As Sykes is sore at him for being such a "dub," it loooks like his finish, but he bribes Sykes and the latter lets Wilkens knock him out.

Wilkens calls on Amy at an entertainment given by her mother, and finds her in company with Mr. Hammer, a burly young man who happens to be the college champion boxer. Hammer develops into quite a rival and Wilkens seems likely to lose his girl. Tom and Harry get up a carnival of amateur sports for charity. Hammer volunteers and signs. Not to be outdone, Wilkens volunteers and signs. He then arranges with Sykes to box four rounds with him. Wilkens is supposed to win.

However, when he goes to the hall the night of the carnival, he learns he can't box with Sykes. He is to go with Hammer. As he knows he is a bluff and Hammer will half kill him, he nearly swoons. When they get in the ring Hammer tells Wilkens the four rounds goes for the girl, too, and Wilkens can't help himself. They box and Hammer makes a monkey of Wilkens until he stops to wave his hand at Amy. This makes Wilkens mad, and as Hammer's head is turned away, Wilkens knocks him out and wins the girl.

VITAGRAPH.

"MRS. DANE'S DANGER" (Unit Program—March 6—Four parts.) The cast: Alice Dane (Lillian Walker); David Dane (Wilfrid North); Rex Gordon (Donald Hall); Jasper Dicey (William Dunn); Simon Corey (L. Rogers Lytton.) Author, Charles L. Gaskill. Produced by Wilfrid North.

David Dane, a rich man, much older than his wife, Alice, who is somewhat of a butterfly, is content that she amuse herself in society. They understand each other perfectly, but their attitude is misunderstood by others, who imagine them mismated. The gossips get busy and scent a flirtation between Mrs. Dane and her former admirer, Rex Gordon, man-about-town and gambler. Alice likes Rex, but when he attempts to take advantage of their friendship by forcing his attentions upon her, she proves that her husband's faith in her is justified by indignantly resenting them. Their friendship ceases until Rex apologizes, after which she forgives him.

Rex is deeply indebted to Simon Corey, a grasping and unscrupulous money lender, and urged on by threats of exposure, Rex one night takes the desperate chance of entering the Dane home with the intention of stealing Mrs. Dane's valuable pearl necklace. On that same evening Jasper Dicey, a down-and-out broker, whose ruin is indirectly due to David Dane's refusal of a loan a few months previous, enters for the same purpose. He had previously fed his hatred for Dane by sending him anonymous letters, telling him "to watch his wife," etc. Dane is out at the time of their entrance, but he returns shortly and hearing a noise upstairs, he rushes up to his wife's room to confront the two thieves and his sleeping wife.

In a frenzy of rage, Dane remembers the letters and he is about to shoot Gordon on the spot when Dicey stops him and explains the true cause of Gordon's presence there. Mrs. Dane awakens, and horrified, begs her husband not to become a murderer. With a sigh of relief, Dane, certain that Dicey speaks the truth, permits the two rascals to leave without molestations, and after they have gone, a happy reconciliation takes place between Dane and his wife. Thus Mrs. Dane's Danger but cements the stronger the love and faith between herself and her husband.

"BITTERSWEET" (March 6.) The cast: Farmer Slater (George Stanley); Joan, his wife (Anne Schaefer); John (Webster Campbell); Bob (Lawrence Weingarten); Ruth (Corrinne Griffith). Author, Daisy E. Smith. Produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

Farmer Slater, a typical old grouch, has tyrannized over his family for so long that they never think of defying him. Bob, the younger son, is sullen and a drudge. John, the elder son, is away at college. He has promised his father to return to the farm and work out his education debt. Just before his return he marries Ruth, a light-hearted, joyous city girl, who on being told of the conditions under which she will have to live, bravely promises to "make his people, her people."

But at the Slater farm she is made to feel uncomfortable, chided and browbeaten, from the first. The breakfast hour is 4:30 a. m., the parlor curtains are kept down to prevent fading the carpet, and no hilarity is allowed at any time. Still Ruth continues her vain efforts to teach the old folks the better and brighter ways, until finally, when the father angrily refuses to let either of his sons or Ruth go to a party, she and her husband pack up and leave.

Bob, filled with rage at his father's tyrannical ways, goes to the saloon and becomes partly intoxicated. Still bitter, he returns home steals money out of his father's strong box. The old man catches him and in a rage, orders him out of the house forever. Then Joan, his mother, turns on her husband, defies him and after telling him what she thinks of his meaness and narrow-mindedness, goes out with Bob. Slater, left alone, curses and curses until he finally falls in a fit. Bob and his mother hear his fall and go back. As a result of his attack, Slater is an invalid for life and partially paralyzed, but mentally, a changed man. He is transformed into a gentle, submissive and lovable man, so that, after a life of discord, the whole family reunite in harmony and love.

"PANSY'S PAPAS" (March 6.) The cast: Pansy (Mary Anderson); Her Papa (Otto Lederer); Jack (Webster Campbell); Tom (Jack Weatherby); Billy, the Cop (Jack Mower). Author, Edwin Ray Coffin. Produced by William Wolbert.

Being an attractive young lady, Pansy Hale has many admirers, and her father not being particularly partial to any of them, they have a hard time. Not knowing how else to cope with the situation, he finally sends her to a very strict school presided over by Miss Sourdough. Pansy does not take kindly to the "prison" life as she terms it, and sends Jack and Tom catalogues of the school containing a list of the rules and regulations. Both boys are struck by the clause about parents and guardians only, being permitted to visit the girls, and each disguises himself as a gray-haired gentleman of middle age.

In the meantime, Mr. Hale has bought an automobile and drives to the school to show it to Pansy. On the way he runs into and upsets a pushcart, and is pursued by a cop. Tom reaches the school first and readily gains admittance after introducing himself as Pansy's papa. The girl recognizes him but stifles her laughter and the two stroll through the grounds. Then Jack appears in his makeup and introduces himself as Pansy's papa! Miss Sourdough is speechless with amazement, and sends for Pansy. She and Tom enter the office just as the real papa Hale arrives, followed by the policeman.

Miss Sourdough goes into hysterics and papa Hale insists on the boys being arrested for impersonation. The cop takes them all to the station house, including Pansy. She there meets her childhood sweetheart, Billy, and while the three in trouble are being questioned, Billy persuades Pansy to slip outside and marry him. On their return from the minister's they find the three "Papas" in a cell, and when Pansy introduces her husband, they collapse completely.

"BEANED BY A BEANSHOOTER" (March 10.) The cast: The Gallant Hero (Charles Richman); The Shy Maiden (Arline Pretty); The Hero's Pal (Leo Delaney); The Pal's Loved One (Ethel Corcoran); The Villainous Count (William Dunn); The Equally Villianous Baron (Edward Elkas). Author, Frank Lawrence. Produced by Theodore Marston.

The gallant hero is wealthy and has a girl; he also has a friend who has a girl, but one summer day they both get the cold shoulder. Then Count Pastry De Creampuff butts in and spoils a happy little reunion meeting, although the pals win out. But the Count has a deadly accomplice in the Baron von Thumbtack, who is determined to win the heroine, Lizzie Linksausage at all costs, so after some fearful adventure in and out of a modern castle, the villain Creampuff abducts the fair Lizzie, but the hero rescues her and tells her to lock herself in her room.

But after holding a council with his pals, Creampuff secures possession of the girl again and is taking her off in an auto when he is beaned by a beanshooter in the hands of a ferocious small boy. Again Handsome Harry, the hero comes to the rescue and takes the beanshooter away from the boy. Later on that evening, Harry visits Lizzie and discovers an auger hole in the ceiling. Taking aim with his trusty beanshooter, he hits Pancake Pinhead, who is peering through a knothole, squarely in the eye.

Then the villian gets busy again and is again defeated by our hero. In the words of the subtitle, "It isn't the cough that carries 'em off, it's the Coffin they carry 'em off in!" But Harry is pinched by the villian constable for carrying concealed weapons (i.e. the beanshooter) and is appeared against in court by the "eye witness." He is held in a million dollar's bail, but being shy one cent, has to wait until he can cable for the other cent, meanwhile languishing in jail. In the end, however, virtue triumphs and villiany is punished, to the joy of all concerned.

THE HUMAN CAULDRON (Broadway Star Features—Three Parts—March 11).—The cast: Jack (William Dunn); Tom (Lionel Adams); Liz, Mugsy's sweetheart (Mary Anderson); Mugsy (Jack Bulger); Nell (Lillian Herbert). Aunthor, Seymour Galland. Produced by Harry Lambart, in co-operation with New York Police Department.

This picture shows the wonderful police system of New York City, and how the prisoners, for whom there is hope of reform, are weeded out from the incorrigibles, and given the proper environment.

Tom and Mugsy are leaders of rival gangs in the Underworld. In a gang fight both are arrested and sent to the reformatory. There their true natures begin to show. Mugsy rapidly goes the downward path among the lower criminals, while Tom is sent, for good behavior, to Hampton Farm. There he is soon on the way to becoming a good and useful citizen.

After his release he takes up the study of law, but when Mugsy's term has expired he is arrested as a pickpocket. Jack, a country boy, arrives in the city and after many interesting experiences, decides to join the police force. We see him go through the usual routine and he is assigned to the Detective Squad.

Then he is placed on a murder case, the clues of which lead straight to Mugsy's door, and after an exciting chase over the tenement roofs, he is caught. The Bertillon system confirms his guilt and he pays the last penalty for his crime, while Tom marries Nell, his former sweetheart.

ESSANAY.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE, Episode 5, "The Alienist" (Two Parts—Feb. 21).—While a way out seems to have shown itself to Philip Langdon, unforeseen circumstances serve to lessen the advantage he imagined he possessed. The young attorney defending Mary Page, accused of murder of Dave Pollock, calls a specialist in brain disorder, a Dr. Foster, who testifies concerning the unusual circumstances surrounding his first acquaintance with the case. He describes how Mary Page, insane, had lost herself in a wood for a night and how, when found by her lover, Langdon, had been brought to his attention.

He found her to be suffering from repressed psychosis, a stage of mind originating in a prenatal influence which caused her to lose her reason at the sight of intoxication. His operation on her and later meeting in New York, shortly before Dave Pollock spirited her away, were retold for the jury.

During the course of the testimony of the alienist, Langdon is obviously worried concerning a paper which the prosecutor's assistant presents to his chief. "Serve it," Langdon hears him order.

But before there is an opportunity for any development along this line a juror is stricken with heart trouble and court is adjourned.

Mary Page goes back to her cell and Langdon, worried, wanders about and finds himself walking into the office of Daniels, the theater manager, head of the show in which Mary Page was appearing when Pollock, the "angel" of the production, interfered.

A torn piece of paper catches his eye. He finds more and pieces together part of a note. It read:

"For any repetition of today's outrage you will answer to ME, even with your life. Daniels."

Langdon becomes a changed man as he reads. The note has changed his whole program of defense.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE, Episode 6, "The Depths" (Two Parts—Feb. 28).—Dr. Foster continues his testimony. He tells how Langdon, a detective and himself were led to an insane asylum by a crook. Here they found Mary Page under the care of quack doctors who had issued a written statement adjudging her insane. While here Pollock enters. All of them, including Pollock, go to the office of Dr. Foster, where Pollock offers Foster money to adjudge Mary insane. He is refused. Dr. Foster then testifies that his wife had seen Mary at work two weeks afterward and that was the last he had heard of her.

Daniels, the theater manager, is then called to the witness stand. He tells of accompanying Mary to the banquet the night of the murder and how he left through the back entrance after discovering the murder. He says he was unaware that Mary had escaped. Langdon then produces the note he had found in Daniels' office, which threatened Pollock and was signed by Daniels. The jury is asked to leave the court room during the showing of this evidence.

The judge rules that the letter is not admissable, unless proven that Pollock received the note. This is a blow to Langdon and a victory for the prosecuting attorney. Daniels then goes on to tell how he met Mary's father in a saloon the night of the murder, and how he nearly went insane when told of Mary being suspected, declaring that he had told her not to kill him. The jury is puzzled by the new evidence.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE, Episode 7, "A Confession" (Two Parts—March 6).—Philip Langdon calls Amy Lerue, companion of Mary Page, as a witness, and she tells how the two girls were even forced to steal off a dumb waiter in order to eat, so frequently were they rejected in seeking employment. How Pollock luckily happened to find them at this time and saved them from an embarrassing situation for their theft is related. How he further places Mary in his debt by saving her from the advances of a crooked theatrical man also furnishes part of her testimony.

Finally, according to the witness, the girls find places with a show. So well does Mary please the manager that he shortly advances her to speaking parts and then suddenly gives

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand..... $1.25
Ten Thousand..... $2.50
Twenty-five Thousand..... $3.50
Fifty Thousand..... $5.00
One Hundred Thousand..... $8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

her a place as leading woman. Thankful to him for making her a star, Mary goes to dinner, taking with her Amy, her companion. Pollock is introduced to them by the theater manager, and while he had seen them shortly before, he accepts the presentation without indicating previous acquaintance.

At this point in her testimony Langdon's aid hands him a note, which tells that the missing Dan Page, father of Mary, has been found. Langdon asks an adjournment, goes to the place with a detective and discovers his man.

"She's not guilty," shrieks Page. "I killed Dave Pollock."

Langdon is dumbfounded.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE, Episode 8, "The Perjury" (Two Parts—March 13).—This episode opens with a continuation of the testimony of Amy Lerue, companion of Mary Page, who was interrupted in the last episode by the sudden discovering of the missing Dan Page, which caused an adjournment of the trial.

The girl told how the show managed by Daniels strangely went on the road for one night stands, although doing quite well in the city. How it finally became stranded and only the appearance of Pollock saved their trunks from the sheriff. This was their first intimation that Pollock was backing the show.

Dan Page, found the preceding day by Philip Langdon, is offered as a witness by the latter. Page, the drunken father of Mary, relates the story of the crime in all its details, saying that he had gone to Pollock's office with the frenzied idea of killing him or doing anything else which would release him from the hold the capitalist maintained on him.

Here, according to the testimony, he found Mary, and, taking a pistol away from her, he shot Pollock. Then, excited, he forgot his faint-daughter and passed out of the room by another door.

The prosecuting attorney, skeptical, places five pistols before the eyes of the witness. Page picks out one with which he was supposed to have killed Pollock. It was not the right one. He is held as a perjurer.

THE INTRUDER (Two Parts—March 7).—The cast: Malcolm Jarvis, a broker (Richard Travers); Betty Marsh (Marguerite Clayton); Chandler Waldron (Ernest Maupain).

This story is a sequel to "The Edge of Things." Betty Marsh fells Malcolm Jarvis with a blow on the head when he tries to make love to her while intoxicated. Betty is arrested, but Jarvis orders the case dropped and, calling Betty to the hospital apologizes. Later they are married. Chandler Waldron, Betty's employer, who had tried to force his affections upon her one day, and was knocked down by Jarvis, learns of their marriage and plans his revenge.

By humble apologies he comes into the good graces of both Jarvis and his wife. He becomes a caller at their home. One night Jarvis and Betty quarrel. Jarvis goes to his club, telling Betty to phone him when she is more reasonable. In a rash impulse she phones Waldron. He tries to make love to her. As she fights him off, a burglar steps out and confronts Waldron with a gun. He proves to be a man whose downfall was caused by Waldron. After urging Betty to phone her husband and make up, he takes Waldron outside and gives him a good thrashing.

CANIMATED NOOZ NO. 6 (Cartoon by Wallace A. Carlson—March 8).—This is a split reel release containing five hundred feet of animated cartoons, part of which are a burlesque on the topics of the day, and the remainder one of the adventures of Dreamy Dud. Among the topics reviewed this week is the bombardment of Zipzowokwwowi on the River Blooey-blooey at midnight. Our camera man had great difficulty in filming this bombardment as the bursting of shells hardly furnished enough light to make the scene register well on the film. However, he got some good results. Another interesting topic, is the meeting of the Woman's Harmony Society at Kokomo to discuss international peace. A "sour note" broke up this meeting and our camera man says he took greater chances here than at the bombardment of Zipzowkowwowi. Also this week we have a terriffic duel between two airships at a height of 15,000 feet. This duel took place during the battle of Cheezancrackerz. The remainder of the cartoons is devoted to one of the adventures of Dreamy Dud.

Five hundred feet of the daring ice sports around Quebec are also shown on this reel.

A MAN'S WORK (Three Parts—March 11).—The cast: James Wilberton (Richardson Cotton); Thomas, his son (John Junior); Ellen Barth (Elizabeth Burbridge); Pete Gillon (John Cossar).

Thomas Wilberton, son of the wealthy James Wilberton, secretly becomes engaged to Ellen Barth, who lives with her sister, Mary, in a cheap boarding house. About this time Pete Gillon is released from prison, after serving 20 years. He happens to stop at the same boarding house. A man was convicted with Gillon, but escaped years before. Gillon recognizes Wilberton as the man. He tries to blackmail him and finally sends Mary Barth, over whom he holds an influence, to make the demands.

Thomas overhears the threat. A few days later Mary is found murdered in a hotel in one of the suburbs. Thomas, who had followed her and upbraided her for threatening his father, is accused. A detective traces a clue which leads to Gillon as the murderer. He is killed trying to escape. This same detective then discovers in the police files a picture which points to Wilberton as the escaped convict. When Wilberton is called to the station he breaks down, but soon is rejoicing when he learns that proof of his innocence was established after his escape.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

LAEMMLE.

THE WINDWARD ANCHOR (March 8).—The cast: Mr. Jamison (Frank Newburg); Mrs. Jamison (Myrtle Gonzalez). Written and produced by Lynn Reynolds.

Jamison is a big real estate operator and, like many of his kind, is land poor, due to depressed business conditions. One morning, at the breakfast table, his wife tells him of her need of new wearing apparel, such as evening gowns, hats, etc. The husband, depressed by poor business conditions, angrily refuses her requet, telling her he has no money. She calls his attention to the fact that he has five hundred dollars in the bank at home, and that will buy the articles she wants. Her husband seriously tells her that they have been living beyond their means and the money she speaks of he intends to set aside for a "windward anchor" so that in case of complete failure he will have something to fall back upon.

He leaves for his office, and she goes to her room and falls upon the bed, sobbing. She sees Jamison go to a large real estate concern and try to sell a piece of land upon which he holds an option. If he is not able to sell the land he will lose the option. She goes to the safe and takes out the money and buys the articles she wishes and has them sent to the house, while she goes to a cafe.

The husband, unable to sell the land, loses the option money and returns home. He learns that his wife has taken the money and bought the articles she desired. Angered beyond reason, he grabs a pistol and sets out in search of his wife, finding her in the cafe. Before her friends he accuses her of virtually ruining him by her extravagance and that this is the last she will see of him. He then hurriedly leaves.

She angrily follows, but cannot find any trace of him, and in despair she goes to a high bridge, climbs upon the railing and throws herself forward—and comes down on the bedroom floor with a thump. She awakens to find her husband in the room. He tells her that he has just closed a big deal and that she can have all the gowns and pretty things she wants.

LAVINIA COMES HOME (Two Parts—March 9).—The cast: Jonathan Parker (R. Sterling); Mme. Yvette (Marcia Moore); James Madison (William Quinn); Mr. Corwin (Thomas Jefferson); Mrs. Corwin (Helen Wright); Merry Andrews (Lee Morris). Scenario by Leonora Ainsworth. Produced by William C. Dowlan.

Zenus Corwin and his wife are enjoying a long expected treat at the circus. One of the numbers on the program is an equestrian act, listed as "Madame Yvette." With a tight grip, Zenus' wife grasps his arm and exclaims, "Our little Vinny!" The two set out to interview the girl. The girl's life among the show people has been a hard one. Her act is mediocre, and she has been held with the show for the simple reason there was no one better to take her place. Merry Andrews, the head clown, has done much to make her lot a little happier, and there was warm friendship between the two.

Zeinus and his wife, meanwhile, have sought out the manager of the show and explained to him that their child had been lost during a flood ten years before, and that the girl equestrian is the living image of their daughter. A shrewd scheme occurs to the manager, and after hesitating a bit he agrees to let the old folks meet the girl. Hastily calling his publicity man aside, the manager explains how they can let the girl go with the old folks as their long-lost child and later let her leave the old folks a note telling them that the lure of the show was too much for her. The publicity man agrees that it will be a great scheme, and will be profitable advertising for the girl's act.

While the manager is showing the old folks about, the publicity man broaches the subject to the girl. At first she refuses to have anything to do with the scheme, claiming that it will be too great a disappointment to the old people, but when she is threatened with being discharged, she is forced to agree to the deception. The meeting is a pathetic one. The girl fits into the home atmosphere, and proves to be a great comfort to the old people. Jonathan Parker, a neighboring farmer, learns of her arrival and comes over to welcome her to the community. A strong love grows up between the two latter. Lavinia, as she is now called, receives a note from the manager, telling her to return to the show, but she keeps it a secret from the old folks. Merry Andrews calls on the girl at the house, and asks her when she is going to return to the show. She informs him that she does not intend to leave the old folks. Merry Andrews then tells her that the manager is sore, and intends to tell the old folks of the girl's deception unless she returns immediately. Jonathan Parker overhears part of their conversation and upbraids the girl for being out with the "city fellow," as he thinks Andrews is. The two have a big scene, in which the girl acknowledges her deception, and claims that she did it for the happness of the old people. She then tells who she really is, and is very much surprised when Jonathan makes her an offer of marriage and pleads with her to stay on the old place.

Mrs. Corwin comes in and hears this conversation, and the girl again confesses her deception. The old lady then tells the girl that she has known for a long time that she was not her real daughter, but for the sake of her husband she had assisted in carrying out the deception. The old lady pleads with the girl to remain with them as their daughter, for Zenus need never know the difference. Jonathan adds his persuasion, too, and the girl finally consents.

The story ends happily when Jonathan tells the old folks that they can have Lavinia only for a short time, but as his house is close by, it will only result in her having two homes instead of one.

RED FEATHER.

THE LORDS OF HIGH DECISION (Five Parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Wayne Craighill (Cyril Scott); Colonel Craighill, his father (Jos. Gerard); Walsh (William Welsh); Gregory (Joe Daly); Jean (Margaret Scervin); Adelaide Churchill (Mildred Gregory); Mrs. Churchill (Mrs. Brundage). Adapted by William H. Lippert from the novel by Meredith Nicholson.

Colonel Roger Craighill, a Pittsburgh millionaire, is seen presiding at a meeting in the directors' room of the Hercules Bank. He tells them that he intends to crush Gregory, an independent coal operator. He decides to use his accomplice, Walsh, for this purpose.

In the next scene we see Gregory and his granddaughter, Jean. Gregory's mines have remained idle as the syndicate has refused him transportation to tidewater, and he has been rendered poor as the result of this oppression. Jean, who is an artist, earns a little money by the sale of her pictures for the upkeep of her family. Craighill's son, Wayne, while attending a football game, sees that Joe Denny, the son of an old miner of his home town, has been injured and goes to his assistance. He meets Adelaide Churchill and her mother. Wayne is very much taken with Adelaide, but when he sees her in a loving attitude with a student of his college at the last football game he decides to forget her.

After his graduation, Craghill places Wayne

High-Class Publicity
Shortest Cut to Success
Former "Birth of a Nation" manager and Triangle representative offers attractive service that brings results. Wire, write or telephone.
HENRY MACMAHON
371 W. 55th St., New York Phone—Col. 2969

THE STERLING
CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

SIMPSON'S
SOLAR SCREEN
AND CELEBRATED SLIDES
113 W. 132nd Street, New York
Pat. June, 1908

in charge of Walsh, who takes him to the town where Gregory's plant is located. There he meets Jean. Gregory asks Wayne to use his influence with the Pittsburgh syndicate to have his coal mine put in operation. When he learns that he has been talking to the son of the man who had ruined him he is about to attack Wayne when Jean intercedes.

We next see Jean in her cottage brooding over her grandfather's losses. She decides to take more active measures to assist him, and goes to the city to sell some of her pictures at an art store, where she happens to to meet Wayne, who had gone to the city to plead with his father to cease throttling his competitors. He is unsuccessful, however. Wayne gives Joe Denny a job as his chauffeur.

The scene shifts to the college town where Craighill is addressing a Chautauqua audience on the evils of the working classes. After the lecture, Addie and her mother are introduced to Craighill and he appears very much impressed with Addie. In the city Joe recognizes Jean while he is waiting in his capacity of chauffeur, before the Craighill office for Wane to come out. Wayne invites Jean to enter the car, and Jean motors them to her home. Joe shows his suspicion as he observes Wayne's attitude toward Jean.

Meanwhile, after a rapid courtship, Craighill and Adelaide are married. Brooks, a tool of Walsh, incites the men at the mills to strike and desert the furnaces at midnight, while Craighill is out of town. Wayne hears of the strike and rushes to the mills. He is successful in getting the men to return to the mills.

Craighill returns from his honeymoon, and introduces Addie to Wayne as his wife, not aware that they had ever met. Subsequently we see Wayne making love to Jean; but Jean tells him that there is a gulf between them she fears can never be bridged. When Wayne reaches home, he stops to engage in conversation with Addie in front of the house and they overhear a bitter argument that is going on between Craighill and Gregory. Suddenly there is a sound of a fall. Rushing up to the library, they find Gregory with Craighill bending over him. Wayne stoops to examine the prostrate form upon the floor just as Joe enters. Wayne announces that Gregory is dead.

Joe goes to Jean's house and tells her of her grandfather's death. Wayne goes to Jean's house for the same purpose and Jean tells him for the first time of her marriage to Joe. In the next scene we see the United States bank examiner at the Hercules Bank, where he discovers an overdraft of $100,000 together with other notes that have not been met. The bank is compelled to close its doors as Craighill cannot meet the required payments.

Just as Jean and Joe are returning from the funeral of Gregory, news reaches the mining town that Craighill's bank has failed. A mob storms the Craighill home and tries to batter down its doors. Craighill pleads with the mob without avail. Then Wayne goes out and tells the people that just as he settled the steel strike, he now pledges his word that he will pay dollar for dollar owned by the wrecked institution. It is now pay day at the steel mills, but no money has arrived. At the bank in the city, crowds are swarming, trying to get into the institutions which have closed.

In the mining towns we see the miners start to blow up the mines while Joe watches the men plant the fuse. Wayne starts from the city to try and pacify the workmen at the mills. When he gets there he finds that mine after mine has been destroyed. Joe has been seriously hurt and Wayne, seeing this, goes into one of the mines to get him. When Wayne comes out, the explosions have shaken the earth and from the interior oil has begun to spout. In the place of the wrecked coal mine we see geyser after geyser of shooting oil and natural gas, which greatly increases the value of Craighill's property.

Meanwhile the banks which have been appealed to for assistance have refused financial aid, as Craighill's assets were not ample security. The discovery of oil and natural gas changes matters completely and the banks now decide to come to the relief of Wayne and his father. We see Jean mourning for the death of Joe and then as she leans her head on Wayne's shoulder, it is evident they have plighted their troth.

GOLD SEAL.

THE WINNING OF MISS CONSTRUE (Three Parts—March 7).—The cast: Bob, the artist (Robert Leonard); Ella, the girl across the hall (Ella Hall); Bill, the actor (Marc Robbins); King, the floorwalker (Kingsley Benedict); Betty, the shopgirl (Betty Schade). Written and produced by Robert Leonard and David Kirkland.

Bob, a happy-go-lucky young artist, has painted several masterpieces which have failed to receive their due meed of recognition from an undiscriminating public; so he is forced to eke out a somewhat uneven existence from "pot boilers." As a model, he uses his friend, Bill, of the floor above. Bill is an old actor, who believes that "art" has gone to the "dogs," as his talents are unappreciated by unfeeling managers.

Across the hall from Bob lives Miss Ella Construe, who works in a department store. King, a floorwalker at the store where Miss Construe works, is piqued by the fact that she remains oblivious to his charms. After working hours he lies in wait for her around the corner, and insists on escorting her home, to the great chagrin of Betty, another shop girl, who has been casting languishing glances in his direction.

Bob has returned home to find that Bill, whom he left to wash the dishes, has gone to sleep before one of his portraits and neglected his task. Bob, hurrying out of the house for a bottle of milk, bumps into Ella and King, who are at the bottom of the stairs.

Betty has overheard that a search is to be made for missing goods, and determines to get rid of Ella, whom she considers her rival with King, by placing some goods in Ella's locker. Her ruse is successful, and Ella is discharged.

In the meantime, Bob has sold his "pot boiler" of Bill for five dollars, and so is temporarily in funds. Ella has been unable to find work, and returns home tired and hungry. King has decided that by this time Ella should be in a sufficiently chastened mood to listen to his advances. He forces his way into her room, and attempts to slip a bill into her hand. She repulses him and tries to eject him from her room.

Bob hears the noise of a disturbance from his room, and being unable to enter Ella's room because of the locked door, rushes upstairs through Bill's room, down the fire escape and through the window into Ella's room, forcibly ejecting King, who bumps into Bill and falls downstairs. Learning of Ella's desperate circumstances, Bob tries to render assistance. He attempts to slip some money into her hand and in the same manner chosen by King, which deepens her conviction that "all men are alike"; and she orders him out.

Bob determines that she shall not go hungry if he can help it, however, and surreptitiously leaves a plate of food outside her door; but a stray dog finds it and gratefully eats the food. Bob, thinking that Ella has taken the food, is hurt that she still refuses to speak to him; but finally discovers the culprit. Being out of money now, he "borrows" Bill's clothes and pawns them, spending the money for food. He lies in wait for Ella on the stairs, explains that he meant no harm, and tells her how the dog had helped himself to her "hand-outs." Ella accepts his invitation to the "feed," and Bill is rescued from the closet, where he has been locked. As they sit down to eat, a letter arrives telling Bob of the sale of his masterpiece, and his happiness is complete when Ella consents to share his lot.

VICTOR.

THEIR ACT (Three Parts—March 10).—The cast: Mr. Emmet (Marc Robbins); Eloise, his daughter (Jean Taylor); Bert (H. Ham); Billy (C. E. Hodge). Written and produced by Edward Ferguson.

Mr. Emmet, a theatrical agent, objects to the attentions paid his daughter, Eloise, by a dapper young actor, Bert. Nothing daunted by the father's attitude, the young folks continue to meet, until the father issues command that all relations must cease until such a time as Bert either takes up another profession or brings to Mr. Emmet an act that will be a knockout.

Several days later Eloise is seen meeting a strange young man in her garden. They compare and study some paper very closely. For weeks Emmet hears nothing of Bert, but finally he shows up at the theatrical agent's and is refused admission to Emmet's presence. Eloise is again seen meeting the stranger. They appear to have words, the man finally grabbing her by the throat, choking her and throwing her to a bench nearby, leaving her sobbing.

One night Emmet is alone in his library. A burglar enters and is about to rob him when the door bell rings. The burglar commands Emmet to see who it is, while he secrets himself in a closet. Emmet goes to the door and admits Bert. Emmet is overjoyed at the opportune interruption and greets him effusively, backing into the library. As they enter the room, Emmet looks in a startled way at the closet. Bert follows his gaze and sees the point of a gun protruding from the crevice of the door. Bert backs over toward the closet, apparently deep in conversation with Emmet, then swings suddenly, throws open the door and knocks the gun from the burglar's hand; they grapple.

Eloise, in her room, hears the noise and comes down to the door of her library. The burglar finally forces Bert back over the table and, reaching into his shirt, draws a knife, raises it ready to strike when Eloise enters and exclaims "My husband." The burglar drops the knife and rushes to her, but she repulses him

The
"Dyed-in-the-Wool"
"Blown-in-the-Bottle"
"Simon Pure"
"One and Original"

GOLD FIBRE SCREEN

Is the RADIUM

GOLD FIBRE
SCREEN

"What's in a
Name?"—

Why, everything in the way of perfection, when the name is RADIUM GOLD FIBRE and Projection Screens are under discussion.

Be Sure It's a RADIUM

Write Today for Price and Detailed Information

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN Inc.

220 West 42d Street
New York City

and tells him to wait until he hears her story, which follows:

She was a young girl in the chorus; she met and loved the leading man of the company and they were married. Several thefts had been reported to the management, but the thief could not be apprehended. One night the prima donna asked Eloise to come to her dressing room to look at a new gown, and Eloise saw a string of pearls on the dressing table. While the prima donna's back was turned, Eloise took the pearls and hid them in her bosom. Later the loss was discovered. The manager ordered a search and the pearls were found in the leading man's pocket. He was arrested and sent to the penitentiary, while Eloise went back to her father's home, he never knowing she was married, and her husband not knowing that she was guilty of the theft.

As she finishes her story, the burglar makes a dash for her, grabs her by the throat and, throwing her to a couch, turns to rush from the room. As he does so, Bert gets the revolver from the floor and aims it at him. Eloise recovers in time to throw herself on Bert, telling him that she is unworthy of his love and to let her go and try to make reparation to the husband who has suffered so much for her. She goes to the burglar, who puts his arm around her. They are about to leave the room, when they turn at the door. The burglar removes his wig and Bert turns, smiling to the old gentleman crouched in the corner and says, "How do you like our act?"

The old man cannot help but see the cleverness of the young people in so completely taking him in and, of course, consents to Bert becoming his son-in-law.

BISON.

THE QUARTER BREED (Three Parts March 11).—The cast: The Quarter Breed (Leon Kent); Sheriff Jim Larkin (Jack Livingston); Jim Glass (Malcolm Blevins); Flossy Larkin (Mina Cunard); Jess Melton (Hart Haxie); Spike (Bud Osborne). Written and produced by Leon D. Kent.

The "Quarter Breed," known as "Wolf," was an outcast from civilization. In the last town he was in, the sheriff issued a warning to his brother sheriffs in adjoining counties telling them to beware of the "Quarter Breed," as he was a thieving no-account.

He wanders into the town of Sparks Canyon and enters a saloon. He is seen by the sheriff, who recognizes him. The sheriff orders his deputies to watch the Breed. The sheriff receives a letter from his sister Flossy, stating that she is on the way to visit him.

The Breed joins a game of cards and is caught cheating. The men threaten to lynch him, but the sheriff's cooler judgment prevails, and the Breed is driven out. The sheriff's sister arrives at the railway station and boards a stage for Sparks Canyon. The driver has been indulging in drink and on the way becomes jolted from his seat. The horses run away. The Breed sees the runaway stage and stops the horses. The girl is very grateful for this brave deed and persuades him to drive the stage to its destination.

Upon his arrival the Breed is greeted suspiciously, having been run out of town, but when the girl explains, everyone greets him with cheers. The girl has made a strong impression upon the Breed and his habits change from that time on. He is given a position as stage driver through the sheriff's influence. In the days that follow the Breed loves the girl more and more, but keeps this from her.

Jim Glass, a stranger, arrives in town, and presents a letter to the sheriff proving him to be a brother of an old-time friend of the sheriff. The sheriff takes the boy in and treats him as one of the family. Jim and Flossy become very much attached to each other. A short time later the Breed gets an opportunity to propose to the girl. She rejects him when she tells him that as he is only a half-breed, she can never marry him. The Breed's manner changes. He takes to drink and loses his position as stage driver.

A new driver is assigned to the stage, and is told by the superintendent that on his next trip he will have charge of the pay money for the mines. Flossy goes to the railroad station to do some shopping. The new stage driver is too weak to overcome the temptation and tells a pal about the gold shipment. He and his pal persuade the Breed to participate with them in the hold-up. When the stage leaves the station, the Breed gets inside. The other partner drives ahead of the stage to prepare for the hold-up. Just as the stage leaves, Flossy enters. The Breed is very much surprised to see her.

In the girl's presence the Breed's manner changes again and better qualities prevail, and instead of joining in the hold-up, he prevents it. He knocks the driver from the stage and takes his place himself. Arriving at the point where he is to meet the other member of the party, he shoots him, and the money is delivered safely at Sparks Canyon. Everyone is surprised to see the Breed in charge of the stage, and when the girl tells of his bravery in bringing the money through, everyone greets him enthusiastically.

In recognition of his brave service the Breed is assigned the regular night run on the stage. The sheriff takes him in his home and on their arrival Flossy and Jim are discovered in a love scene. The Breed's real noble character comes forward and with great emotion he tells him to take the girl as she is too good for him and his only place is to drive the stage—that in the future he will be friends to them and watch over their happiness.

PANNILL MIRO SCREENS

Erected in all Theatres of the

E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co.

at Hopewell, Va.

Four installed and working on two more.

These screens sold after investigation of all others by the company officers.

We have installed the world's largest moving picture screen in the Orpheum Theatre, Portsmouth, and many others that are proving to be all we claim.

Our guarantee with every screen to do all we claim or we will refund all the money.

Write for samples and recommendations

Pannill Miro Screen Corp.

Norfolk, Va.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE

"GRAFT" NO. 13—THE POWDER TRUST AND THE WAR (Two Parts—March 6).—The cast: Robert Harding (Richard Stanton); Jack Stevens (Jack Abbot); David Du Berg, head of the Powder Trust (George Bonn); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Molly Kelly, her old nurse (Mary Haines).

Stanford Stone sees the circle of the Graft Trust narrowing down and it worries him. He knows that while Dorothy Maxwell lives he is in danger, as Dorothy will expose his connection with the Trust organization whenever her sense of loyalty to her father shall have succumbed to her sense of duty to the right. So he determines to put the girl he was once engaged to out of the way. Dorothy has seen the look in Stone's eyes and reads the threat they contain. The worry causes her illness. Stone discovers that the Maxwell family physician is out of town, and that they have sent for a strange doctor. Stone has one of his secret agents call on Dorothy as the doctor, while he introduces one of his female spies to Dr. Parks, the physician called in the case, as Dorothy. Dr. Parks finds there is nothing the matter with the supposed Dorothy, leaves a simple prescription and says there is no need to make an additional call. Stone has the prescription filled—then adds enough strychnine to make a single dose fatal and has his agent deliver it to Dorothy.

Old Molly Kelly, the good-natured nurse, is in charge of the sick room. She does not like the looks of the "doctor," nor has she much faith in his medicine. She tastes it—and, with the remark, "I don't believe the bitter stuff will do the poor darlin' any good,"—she tosses the bottle and all out of the window, giving Dorothy a spoonful of whiskey, from her own private bottle instead.

In the meantime, the activity of the Powder and Arms companies have attracted the attention of Robt. Harding. Their taking up of a large part of the foreign war loan—their handling of several minor strikes by the "closed shop" system, and the suspicion that they are engaged in furthering the interests of the warring nations to the detriment of the neutrality of the United States, causes Harding to think that the syndicate is a ripe field for his investigation. With the aid of Jack Stevens, the reporter, Harding unearths a shipment of arms and ammunition being smuggled into Mexico. A clue connecting the powder company with the shipments is found. The news of the discovery of the smuggled arms is telephoned to Du Berg, head of the Powder Trust, who was just in the act of receiving a large check from the Mexican Junta. Their rage is mingled with his and directed against Harding, the meddler. They openly declare they will kill him, if given the chance. Du Berg telephones this information to Stone, asking if Harding can be gotten out to the factory. Stone thinks it possible, and goes to the Independent office to try. He finds Harding and Stevens preparing a big article aimed against the Powder concern. Stone tells Harding that Du Berg is the head of the merger and advises him to see him personally before publishing the article. Harding thanks Stone for the information and starts at once. A little later, in the office of the Graft Trust, Stone informs the two members present that Robt. Harding is rushing to his death at that very moment, and their other enemy, Dorothy Maxwell, is, in all probability, dead.

But Dorothy was phoning to the Independent office for Harding. When Stevens informs her that Stone had sent Harding to the Du Berg Powder Plant, Dorothy suspects a trap, and, despite the protests of Molly, she rushes after Harding in an automobile.

While Du Berg and the Mexicans prepare to treacherously assassinate Harding, a spy of one of the warring foreign nations, is planning to destroy the Powder Plant. He places an infernal machine with a clock-like arrangement outside the wall near the powder house. A little school girl stops beside it, attracted by the ticking. The spy sees her, and, horrified at the needless sacrifice of the child, rushes past her, grabbing her up in his arms as he runs. She screams. Harding is just walking into the tunnel leading to the works, where the assassins are waiting for him, when he hears the scream. Seeing a man fleeing with a child, he thinks it an abduction and sets out after him. The Mexicans, disappointed, follow him. They arrive opposite the infernal machine just as the explosion occurs which blows up the plant, kill-

(Continued on page 1706.)

COMEDY FILMS

ARE WINNING GENERAL APPROVAL. "Best available today," "Funniest yet." "Our customers are very enthusiastic about these releases." "Vims are meeting with good success." "People look for them." ONE LETTER IN FULL THAT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

COMING RELEASES

Thurs., March 9

"BUNGLES' ELOPEMENT"

"Bungles never does anything by halves.

Friday, March 10

"THEIR WEDDING DAY"

Pokes and Jabbs prepare for weddings that do not "happen."

Thurs., March 16

"NERVE and GASOLINE"

Plump and Runt, in avoiding work, find something worse.

Friday, March 17

"A PAIR OF SKINS"

Pokes, a "four-flush" hunter, disturbs the romance of Jabbs, the ambitious lover.

NASHVILLE ELITE ALHAMBRA PRINCESS FIFTH AVENUE CRESCENT HIPPODROME BOWLING GREEN COLUMBIA ELITE CLARKSVILLE ELITE LILLIAN

TONEY SUDEKUM, President W. J. WILLIAMS, Secretary

KNOXVILLE MAJESTIC COLUMBIA DIXIE NEW GRAND JACKSON ELITE HOPKINSVILLE PRINCESS MURFREESBORO PRINCESS

The Crescent Amusement Company

Majestic Theatre

C. D. HAUG, Local Manager

Knoxville, Tennessee

Feb,8th,16th,

Mr,J.L.Marentette,Manager,

General, Film, Co,INC,

Atlanta, Ga,

Dear, Sir:-,

I want to say one good word for the'Vim'Comedies, they certainly are great and veryfunny especially'Pokes,& Jabes' they certainly are great these comedies are giving the 'Chaplin' comedies a very good race and I belive if they keep it up they will draw better than 'Chaplin'

I would advise any exhibitor that they are makeing a big mistake by notbooking the 'Vim' comedies they are good moneygetters.

I certainly appreciate your kindness by putting these comedies on my program and hope they continue always.

With all good wishes and best regards,

I am,
Yours very truly,
Majestic Theatre,
Manager,

CDH/o

FRIDAY IS "POKES AND JABBS" DAY, with Burns and Stull.

THURSDAY IS "PLUMP AND RUNT" DAY, with Hardy and Ruge.

Special one and three sheet Posters for all Vims.

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

MARCH 10

Jackie Saunders

IN

"A Slave of Corruption"

—

Dramatic Portrayal of An Upward Struggle

A Startling Adventure Upgrade

Intrigue and Cunning. Fruitless Attempts to Defeat Justice and Right.

—

Right Wins

Three-Part Knickerbocker Star Features

MARCH 17

—

Should Youth and Age Marry?

—

A Strong Story See

"Mismates"

Featuring

Margaret Landis

Strong Cast

Excellent Direction

A Story That Appeals

No Mistake as to Value of "Mismates"

One, Three and Six-Sheet Posters

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

(Continued from page 1703.)

ing them as well as Du Berg. Dorothy has arrived too late to warn Harding, and fears he is lost in the explosion. She is overjoyed to find him alive and well.

Harding adds another name to the list.

NESTOR.

THEIR ONLY SON (March 6).—It's great to have a rich uncle who keeps on sending money from time to time for the education of a son you never had, so Ray thought, for he had been getting away with it all along and his business was flourishing on account of it.

One morning when Ray stepped into the office after his honeymoon, he was shocked to learn that his uncle would pay him a visit very shortly. He hardly had time to finish the message when in stepped the jolly old gent. Ray, who was not an advocate of preparedness, was at a loss what to do, for he was sure that his uncle would want to see his educated son. Babies in town were kind of scarce, and there was only one alternative and that was to get his undersized partner to pose as the child. Luckily for his partner, his wife was out of town, and it was a question of sacrificing his dignity and acting the part of the child, or else lose his future income, which was made up mainly of the money sent in by the uncle from time to time.

A pink linen suit with nice socks and small booties made the change perfect and you never saw a more handsome cherub. Ray, acting the proud father, brought the supposed son home and presented him to his uncle, who was very much delighted to meet him. To the uncle the child was abnormal as far as intelligence was concerned and no doubt he felt that the money sent to his nephew was being used to a good advantage. The child could smoke, play cards and in fact do everything that a man of mature age could do.

Things were runing very nicely for a while and Ray's wife became accustomed to holding the supposed child on her lap and hugging and kissing him, until one fine morning in stepped Ray's partner's wife, demanding her husband. The poor fellow found himself in an awful predicament, for she caught him just as he was sitting on the lap of his partner's wife and playing the baby. It did not take long for his wife to recognize him in his make-up, and a terrible rumpus ensued.

Uncle, on the other hand, almost succumbed to heart failure when he saw what had happened and it was only after a lengthy explanation that his nephew straightened matters out to the satisfaction of all.

UNIVERSAL.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 8. (Feb. 23.)

$6,000,000 Loss in Two Fires—Flames destroy large part of city—Fall River, Mass. Subtitles. Two steamers, ten barges and 900-foot pier swept by blaze, Brooklyn, N. Y. Ruins of pier.

Daring Fire Drill.—Throngs given safety first lesson as firemen's sensational feats bring applause; New Orleans, La. Ringing alarm. Quick response. To the rescue.

The Bowery's Bread Line.—Scores of unfortunates given 1,000 loaves of bread daily on famous street, New York City.

War Aviator Runs for Office.—Air hero takes aeroplane with him on speech-making tour for Parliament seat; East London, England.

Women Ready for War.—Signal corps, recruited by Earl Kitchener's sister, drilling in parks; London, England.

From Camp to Church.—150th battalion, French-Canadians, march from armory for religious service; Montreal, Canada.

Soldiers Prepare.—U. S. Army men go to chauffeurs' school at Y. M. C. A.; New York City.

Garrison for Mexican City.—General Gavira leads troops into border town; Juarez, Mexico.

Universal Stars in Spring Styles.—Created by Harry Collins, New York. Sub-titles—Coin-spotted "pussy willow" frock, Edith Roberts. White taffeta evening gown, reversed panniers of Georgette crepe, Edna Hunter. Picture dress of net, trimmed with pink ribbon and roses, Sydell Dowling. Gown of striped pink taffeta, panels of silver cloth, Florence Everett.

Under King Winter's Rule.—Records shattered when stars meet at National Tournament; Gary, Ill.

Bob-Sledding Some Sport.—Dizzy down-hill speed make spectators gasp in championship carnival; Oyster Bay, L. I.

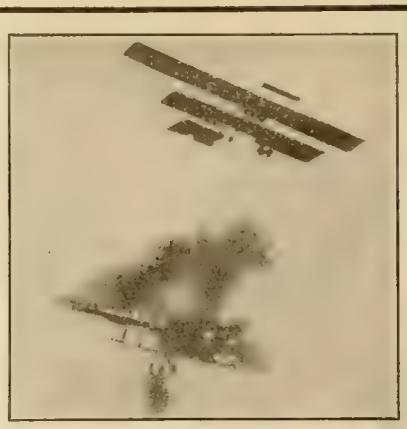
Thrills in Ice-Boating.—"Zipp 1" defeats all competitors by mile-a-minute speed; Lake St. Clair, Michigan. Sub-titles—Jibing at full speed; 75-mile ice autoing; ice motor-cyclists.

National Skating Championships. — Speedy stars contest in thrilling races; Saranac Lake, N. Y. Sub-title—Over the hurdles.

Record Ski Jumps.—Dartmouth students hold carnival—Hanover, N. H. Sub-titles—Starting ski race; tobogganing; ski-jumping; somersaults in air.

Shriners Capture City.—Great ceremonies welcome Shriners from all over the country on pilgrimage to Tampa, Fla.

Cartoons.—By Hy Mayer.



"The Picture that Set All New York Talking"

The Only German War Film to play the B. F. Keith Houses

The Fatherland Magazine Presents

'Fighting the Allies'

(Or "Germany at War")

Five reels full of action. Actual Battle scenes in the sky, land and sea. Absolutely the best attraction that ever played any house.

Mr. Murdock and Mr. Albee, of the B. F. Keith's Vaudeville Circuit, after seeing the picture, booked it as a headliner in the Colonial, Orpheum and Alhambra theatres, New York City. This is the first time in history of big time vaudeville that a motion picture was booked as an extra feature act.

Max Spiegel booked them with the "Tourists" at the Casino Theatre, Brooklyn, Jan. 17th. It was such a tremendous success that he booked it for the Miner's Bronx, then Empire Theatre, Brooklyn, and for seven weeks thereafter on tour.

Jacob and Jermon, who noticed the pulling power of this wonderful picture, booked it for the Casino Theatre, Philadelphia, Jan. 31st, with "The Sporting Widows." It made such a tremendous hit that they had booked it for Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh and three weeks in the West.

Mr. Curtin, of the Empire Theatre, Brooklyn, also noticed the pulling power and immediately booked it for his house the week of February 14th.

Mr. Wolford, of the Yorkville Theatre, New York, who observed what the picture was doing, immediately booked it for the week of Feb. 21st at his theatre with "The Cabaret Girls."

These pictures are entirely new. First time shown at the Colonial, Alhambra and Orpheum Theatres recently.

Variety, Dec. 31, 1915—There also are a number of rather thrilling scenes; one in particular would make the picture worth while even if it had no other feature about it that contained action, it shows a battle scene in which several men fall. It will undoubtedly attract business if played as an added attraction to a regular program.

New York American, Dec. 21, 1915—German war pictures of the Fatherland Magazine not only show the fighting on the western front of France and the eastern front of Russia, but also at the Dardanelles. Sons of the Fatherland are seen dropping by the score, as they storm and take positions held by the allies.

The Brooklyn Eagle, Dec. 21—The grim reality of war is evident in every foot of the picture. Daring charges over space between trenches. The audience witness men fall by the score, bayonet charges, skirmishes, the storming of cities and conflict in the air are faithfully portrayed with exactness and realism attainable only under conditions of actual warfare.

The Brooklyn Citizen, Dec 21—A most interesting and vivid display of operations and methods of the greatest war machine in the world, and several of these pictures are thrillers showing the opposing troops, the actual combat.

The Herald, Dec. 21, 1915—Official motion pictures of Germany at war. These pictures show a sight of the European battle fields as they actually are.

Will accept bookings on percentage or flat rental.

State Rights for Sale

SAMUEL CUMMINS

904 Longacre Building
Broadway and 42nd Street, New York City

L-KO.

FALSE FRIENDS AND FIRE ALARMS (Two Parts—March 8).—The cast: Billie, the jockey (Billie Ritchie); The Oil Magnate (Gene Rogers); His Daughter (Peggy Pearce).

The oil magnate owns extensive oil well properties, has a daughter and a villainous partner in whom he trusts. The latter bribes the foreman to deceive the magnate. This man tells his employer to sell out as the wells are rapidly drying and ruin faces him. This saddens the old man, who returns home with his partner and does not suspect his treachery.

The oil magnate's daughter loves Billy, a jockey. The partner has an idea and induces the old oil magnate to bet on Billy's mount, and then he tries to bribe Bill, who refuses to be corrupted. Then Bill has to hurry to the track and borrows a seedy fire horse. He arrives in time to learn of a plot to throw the race, slugs the tricky jockey and starts away in the race with the fire horse. He knows its speed. The villain has persuaded his partner to make a heavy bet with him.

Bill, on the fire horse, speeds to the front and the villain almost collapses as he realizes he is going to lose his bet. At this moment a fire, which started in the waste paper basket, has assumed such proportions that the department is called out. Bill's horse hears the bells and leaps the track fence and speeds down the road after the engines, and Bill is powerless to restrain him.

The family are dismayed when they see their horse bolt the track. They are hastily summoned to their burning home and mourn the loss of their securities and cash, but Bill, who has been carried after the fire engines, rushes in the house and saves the valuables. Thus the villains are discomfited and their schemes exposed.

REX.

THE DUMB BANDIT (March 9).—The cast: The Sheepherder and the Dumb Bandit (Francis Ford); His Wife (Edna Maison). Written by Grace Cunard. Produced by Francis Ford.

Far away in the wilderness nestles the sheepherder's cabin. Due to the depredations of wolves and other prowlers the herder is kept on the go all the time to preserve his flock. As a consequence of his absence all day, and sometimes far into the night, his wife is much alone.

The wife wishes for some one to break the monotony of her loneliness, and so one day when a masked man comes into the house, she is more pleased than scared. The man tells her by means of a note that he is dumb. The wife is glad of company, even though it comes dumb and masked and the two have a pleasant visit. As dark comes, the man leaves, after promising to call again next day.

The herder had previously noted the effects of loneliness upon his wife and notes that she is particularly happy that night. The next day the wife and her strange caller spend another happy day and as time passes the two become very friendly. Each night as the bandit leaves, he kisses the girl good-bye, and the husband notices her growing animation.

At last one day the husband returns unexpectedly earlier than has been his custom. The wife sees the dog coming over the hill and in fear hustles the dumb bandit into an adjoining room. So great is her haste that she fails to see the bandit's hat is still on the table. A few minutes later, the herder comes in. The wife, nervous and confused, tries to regain her composure. The husband notices the hat on the table and accuses his wife of having a lover in the house. The husband starts to the door of the other room. The wife bars his way and they have a scuffle, the wife being thrown aside. The husband enters the room.

A few minutes later the wife sees the bandit, and, going to him, pleads with him to hurry away, but the bandit pulls his gun, tells the wife in dumb he is going to kill her husband. This threat brings the wife to her senses and she begs for her husband's life, pleading that she still loves him. She tells the bandit she hates him and, springing on him, tries to wrest the gun from him. In the struggle the mask is torn from the bandit's face and the wife sees the face of her husband, who has been trying her love. She begs forgiveness and the husband takes her into his arms, promising that he will never leave her alone so long again.

IMP.

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW (March 7).—The cast: Betty (Betty Gray); Harry, her brother (Harry Spingler); Paul Vernon (Paul Panzer).

Betty and her brother, Harry, live with their invalid mother in a little hut, away up in the Northwest. They are very poor. The mother is ill—practically dying. Betty is hungry. One day she runs down the road to the village grocery store—just to look at the provisions. And the rows of jam, and crackers and cheese and things look so good that she asks the grocer to trust her. He refuses because he knows she has no prospect of ever getting any money. A tall mounted policeman, Paul Vernon, is also in the shop getting his provisions. He sees the crestfallen hungry little girl and because she is good to look at and because he has a big heart, he buys her a large basketful of food and sends her home happy.

On her way home Betty dances along gaily until she hears Paul coming after her. Then her one thought is that he wants to take the food away. She breaks into a wild run. He finally catches up with her. She begins to cry and pleads with him to let her have the food. He laughs at her fears and tells her he only wanted to say that they would meet again. She drops him a little bob courtesy and runs home. She brings in her basket and shows it to mother. Betty doesn't know that her mother is too ill to care about food, but that she needs medicine and wine.

The boy, Harry, knows, however, and he blames himself for being so worthless and no-account that he cannot support his own mother. He gathers together all his forces in one supreme effort and stumbles out of the shack to get help for his mother at any cost. He steals an expensive saddle, sells it and with the money buys medicine. But too late. In his absence his mother has died. The owner of the saddle traces it to Harry and Paul is sent to arrest him. The boy hides upstairs when the girl hears Paul coming. Paul comes in and at once recognizes Betty. This makes his task doubly hard. She tells him her brother is gone. He sees her raise her eyes to the loft, so at the point of his gun he brings Harry down.

Harry puts an arm about his sobbing sister and then Paul sees the body of the mother. For the sake of the little girl alone in the world, he refuses to take Harry away. He leaves him with Betty. Later he returns the money to the saddle owner and the matter is patched up between them. Then Paul sends Harry and Betty away to another town, where the boy is to have a chance to start all over again. But before he helps little Betty into the big Prairie schooner, he tells her he will come for her soon and that she must wait for him. And so she raises her lips to his and receives her first kiss. The sun goes down and the wagon ploughs its way across the prairie, the boy with his face set toward the West, while the girl, also hopeful, looks back once or twice toward where Paul is, and overcome with sweet memories, she rests her cheek against her hand as the picture fades out.

POWERS.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 9 ("Bureau of Standards, Weights and Measures"—Feb. 19).—Interesting details of the Bureau of Standards form the subject of Release No. 9 of "Uncle Sam at Work." The comparison of the weights from different states with the government standard weight is shown. The smallest weight in the world, shown on the head of a common pin, is exhibited to us. It takes 9,000,000 of these to make a pound. The largest weight, 10,000 pounds, is compared with this. The testing of watches, thermometers, and of radium is illustrated.

We see the standard meter, and a bar of platinum, worth more than its weight in gold. It must be packed in ice.

The testing of fabrics, of paper and other materials is demonstrated in a vivid and intensely interesting manner, with intricate machines for measuring all kinds of things from heat to strength of a single human hair.

BUILDING UP THE HEALTH OF A NATION, NO. 5 (Feb. 19—On same reel with the above).—Bernarr Macfadden, founder of the Physical Culture Magazine, continues his lessons of health building. He shows, so clearly that all can follow them, a series of simple, but effective exercises without the aid of apparatus. One exercise develops the muscles of the arms, another rounds out the ribs, builds up the chest and increases lung capacity. Different movements, graded according to effort, are illustrated for the benefit of the moderately strong, and for strong men only.

A ROMANCE OF TOYLAND (March 9).—"A Romance of Toyland" is described as a miniature. The little son is going to bed, but wants to hear just one more story. In his arms are his two treasured dolls, Harold and the lady doll, his sweetheart. He begs his nurse for a tale about them. She complies, and as she tells the story, we see the dolls on their adventures.

The maiden is stolen by the villain and his gang, she is tied to a tree and threatened with death, but the doughty Harold hears of her peril, and sets out on his trusty steed to rescue her or die in the attempt. After a long search he finds her just as the villain is about to take her life. His trusty automatic soon puts an end to them all, and the maiden fair falls into his arms. After this thrilling tale, little son looks upon Harold with admiring eyes and takes the hero to bed with him in his cot.

WARRIORS OF THE AIR (On same reel as foregoing).—"Warriors of the Air" is a series of pictures of the air craft of the Allies. We are shown several varieties of machines, monoplanes and biplanes and the new type which carries several passengers. Very remarkable views taken from a machine in flight are seen. We look down from our own craft upon smaller machines executing all sorts of maneuvers below us.

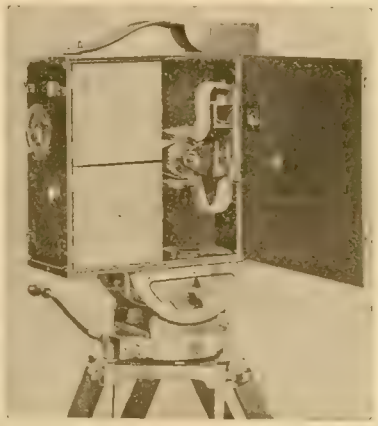
From this great height the earth looks like a patchwork quilt, and the roads like white scratches on the negative. We fly through actual clouds, and mount above them. They look like films of mist, but thicken until they nearly obscure the ground below.

They Made Us Do It!

The popularity of the Universal Camera has caused a demand for these instruments far beyond our ability to supply.

Every camera has been sold from one to ten weeks before it was completed.

To meet this demand we have secured larger quarters—four times the amount of floor space—and we will immediately double our equipment and capacity.



We have always maintained the very finest workmanship and highest efficiency in the construction of every camera that we have ever made, and every instrument that we have sold is giving entire satisfaction to its owner.

Send now for our demonstrational catalogue, and place your order as early as you can conveniently do so.

Every instrument is backed by an iron clad guarantee; the purchaser takes no risk when he buys a Universal Camera.

UNIVERSAL CAMERA COMPANY

25 E. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

1209 Times Bldg., New York
821 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.
229 E. 6th St., Los Angeles

Mutual Film Corp.

FALSTAFF.

RUSTY REGGIE'S RECORD (Feb. 29).—The cast: Reggie (Claude Cooper); Millionaire (Frank E. McNish); His Daughter (Isolde Illian); Her Sweetheart (Fred Abbott).

The banker spent every leisure hour studying hypnotism, and practicing it. When the banker's daughter wanted to marry the penniless young man she loved the father decided it was time to get some practical benefit from his studies.

With many weird and complicated motions father backed the poor boy to the library window. The young man then jumped out of the window. He landed on top of Rusty Reginald, a tramp, who was eating the last of a purloined pie. The sweetheart scrambled to his feet and was off. When father came to the window he saw the tramp and said to his daughter that his wonderful mental powers have changed the young man's clothes.

Daughter looked. A bright idea came. She knew pa would want to exhibit his handiwork at the Hypnotists' Club; and while he was there she had other plans. She induced pa to take his prize materialization to show the other hyps. When he had gone, she found her sweetheart, packed her bag, and left a little note for father. At the club father was amazed at his own powers. He didn't know that most of his orders were obeyed because of the policeman that bobbed up every few minutes where Reggie could see him.

Father planned a last big climax for his amazed fellow club members. "I will show you the supreme test of the true hypnotist!" he announced. "Having transformed this man from a well-dressed person to a ragged tramp, I will now make him disappear absolutely!" Father made the preliminary motions. Then came a tap on the window. The club members all turned and so did the banker. Two cops were looking in on the scene and pointing at Reggie. They jumped from the window. But Reggie had seen enough. He dove under a convenient couch. The banker and his fellow members turned. The subject disappeared and the audience was astounded.

Then the cops came and spoiled it. From under the couch they drew the struggling Reggie. The banker tried to protest, but he and his explanation were waved aside. The banker tried to get sympathy from the other members. But they turned away from him coldly. Sadly he wended his way homeward. And there came shock number two. On the library table was the note his daughter had written.

"Dear father," it said. "My darling John is afraid that the hypnotism has gone to your head and he has eloped with me to protect me."

And the shock kept father away from the bank for a week.

MAUD MULLER MODERNIZED (March 2).—The cast: Maud Muller (Louise Emerald Bates); Judge (Riley Chamberlin).

The Police Court Clerk was telling the story to one of his chums at the district Political Club.

"It was Maud Muller over again," he commenced, for the Police Court Clerk posed as a literary light among his neighbors in the "Gas House Precinct."

"Is that Fatty Muller's daughter?" asked his friend with interest, "that big bleached blonde who plays the typewriter at Campaign

(Continued on page 1710.)

They read it in the Newspapers may well apply to TRIANGLE PLAYS. It matters not where you or your patrons look you will find the mention of TRIANGLE PLAYS constantly before you. In the news and advertising columns of the press throughout the country TRIANGLE PLAYS have secured volumes of publicity.

ALL STAR FILM BILL IS TRIANGLE OFFERING

Weber, Fields, Collier and Bernard to Be Seen at the Knickerbocker.

The day of the all star motion picture has arrived to compete with the familiar all star cast of the speaking stage. One of the first of the series was seen yes- ... at the Knickerbocker Theatre. ... part included William ... and Fields, Roscoe Ar- ... nett, Sam Bernard, Joe ... foran, ... Busch ...

for the ... not have ... vantage. ... of social ... ing indictme... ditions of ... re suppos... Miss ... ra, the d... er, who ... anarchis' ... rthrow ... her ... y mine ... ork ... ack ... s the ... disas... al Rev ... usica ... grami ... s for ... s Jock... ing finished ... y completing ... ummer's rac... w tackle ... problems that ... the stewards ... ication of Miss ... a jockey life ... the suffrage question, instead ... legislative measures, will occ... the minds of Messrs. August ... ndrew Miller, Alge... and the other exp... oughbred developme... may be classed ... she lays no cl... the profess... she merely p... In "In Old ... affords her ... atmosphere ... ttract atte... jockey life ... f the plain ... ston she st... she is in ... is not in ... rough-rid... ockey is ... aching stable ... ray, who ... in a ... Adams' sche... ...or the season. This will ... play by Sir J. M. Barrie ... Mr. Hayman and ... conferen... betwee... ss Mary Pickford ... Edwin Morda... Miss Edith Shay ... Eugene O'B... ... Antonio M... ... Ernesto ... ... Cesare Gr... ... Jack Pi... ... W. T. Ca... ... N. ... rs. A. ...

For instance, a glance through the clippings from New York papers would reveal column after column of praise about the TRIANGLE PLAYS which were first shown to the public at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Critic after critic has expressed his approval through the columns of his newspaper.

And so it goes all over the country. Everywhere notices and pictures on TRIANGLE PLAYS are appearing. Here there's a full column, there there's only a few lines, but you can't get away from the constant reappearance of the name TRIANGLE. All this means increased TRIANGLE popularity, increased enthusiasm over TRIANGLE PLAYS, increased box office returns for the exhibitors who are running TRIANGLE regularly. Day after day the number of TRIANGLE boosters is increasing, and day after day the number of TRIANGLE exhibitors is getting bigger.

The star number of the bill is "The Coward," staged by Thomas H. Ince. It tells the story of a young Southerner who is afraid to go to war when his country calls him. He is really not so much afraid of war as he is afraid of fear. His father, an old colonel, played by Frank Keenan, is admirably depicted in the style for which Mr. Keenan is famous.
The hit of the picture, however, is made by Charles Ray, who plays the coward. His struggle with his fear is admirably done. His efforts to overcome his fear are mainly shown and also his relief when a greater fear, the threat of his father to shoot him, seizes him and he enlists. Once in the ranks his fear comes on him again and he deserts. His old father taking his
The Star Number

The large volume of paid advertising and the great amount of free publicity which TRIANGLE PLAYS have received during the past six months have been a big asset in building up the ever-increasing demand for TRIANGLE PLAYS.

Almost every exhibitor knows the value of all this publicity. He knows that it means money in his pocket.

The business-like man is accepting this opportunity to increase his box office returns. If the number of TRIANGLE contracts which are being received every day is any criterion there are many who believe that it is to their own advantage to show TRIANGLE PLAYS.

If you have not already asked for particulars in regard to the presentation of TRIANGLE PLAYS in your town why not drop a line to the main office or your nearest branch.

Triangle Film Corporation

1457 Broadway, New York

Branches: Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Atlanta, Chicago, Boston, Minneapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Buffalo, New York, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Dallas, Seattle.

(Continued from page 1707.)

Headquarters Election time?"

The Clerk looked at the other with contempt.

"No-o-o," was the disgusted reply. "Maude Muller was in a poem. She raked hay out in the Hick country, and said, 'Good morning, Judge,' but the Judge wouldn't marry her. He was wise, or scared, or something. I forget that part.

"This other girl's name wasn't Maud Muller, but I called her that just to show you my education isn't neglected. She said, 'Good morning, Judge,' but Clancy, the motorcycle cop, brought her in to say it. He swore her auto had smashed a car another guy was driving, smashed it all up, and when he chased her she threw tacks in the road and busted Clancy's tires. He had a great time before he landed her. Why, there were charges enough against that girl to send her to prison for life."

"What did the Judge do?" asked the friend.

"He fined Clancy $10," replied the Clerk. "Sometimes those cops get it fierce. The Boss was mighty smitten with that girl. I'll bet he don't run away like that rube Judge in the poem."

But although the Clerk did not know it, this was exactly what the Judge did. For when next he met his charmer, she upset him with her auto and got so mussed up herself that he knew she was false—at least her hair, teeth and complexion were, and he had doubts as to her heart.

So the Judge quickly made his escape, being convinced that the original Judge in the poem knew what he was doing when he hastily fled from the beauteous maiden who was demurely posing in the hay field.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE.

"EMBERS" (American—5 Parts—March 2.) The cast: Rhea Woodley (Constance Crawley); Martin Woodley (Arthur Maude); Maysie Stafford (Nell Franzen); Wesley Strange (William Carroll). Directed by Arthur Maude.

Rhea Woodley's child dies at birth, and the doctor tells Martin Woodley that his wife must never be subjected to such an experience again. This forms the basis of separation between them.

Rhea is a semi-invalid, and Martin's virile manhood seeks the physical companionship he is denied and finds it in the person of Maysie, a young cousin of Rhea's, who comes to visit in their home. The breach between the husband and wife continues to widen. A former rejected lover of Rhea's discovers the situation and takes a malicious pleasure in exposing it to Rhea.

Rhea offers her husband his freedom, but he will not admit his love for the other woman, even to himself and refuses to be released. As a last resort, Rhea permits the attentions of Welsey, and goes with him to a road house, leaving an annoymous note advising her husband of their destination. Martin and Maysie follow Rhea and her lover and discover them together. Rhea pretends a passion for Welsey until her husband is gone, when she turns upon him in scorn and denunciation.

Martin obtains a divorce and Maysie, with a chaperon, takes charge of the household. Rhea goes to a sanitarium, where the doctor, to save her life, hits upon the inspiration of giving her a motherless baby to care for. Martin, going to his wife's room, drawn by the memory of happier days, finds in her diary the record of her sacrifice and overcome by his injustice, breaks with Maysie and returns to find Rhea with the baby, which will have its part in helping to fulfill his dream of home and happiness.

"ACCORDING TO LAW" (Gaumont—Five parts—March 6.) The cast: Robert Bland (Howard Hall); John Bland (E. K. James); Ralph (boy) (Madison Weeks); Ralph (man) (Alan Robinson); Sidney Austin (Albert Macklin); William Proctor (John Reinhard); Judge Randolph (Chas. W. Travis); Isabel Bland (Mildred Gregory); Bella (Helen Marten); Mrs. Randolph (Mathilde Baring). Written by Paul M. Bryan and Joseph H. Trant. Directed by Richard Garrick.

The Blands are of high social standing in their town. Robert Bland, the husband, is a successful business man who cares nothing for the pleasures of society. His wife Isabel, does. Robert Bland desires children. His wife does not. They are a childless couple. This fact causes them to drift apart though living under the same roof. Bland, forced to crush his conscience by his wife's coldness, seeks the companionship of another woman. An anonymous letter to Isabel tells her of her husband's liaison with the woman.

Isabel demands to know from her husband if it is the truth. Robert replies yes. A divorce is grantled to the wife. By chance the court fees remain unpaid. Robert, embittered with the world, retires to the Everglades (the Blands are living in Florida) and Isabel goes to their country home on an island far from the mainland. Robert Bland receives a note from a former sweetheart of his wife's, by the name of Proctor, who is ignorant of the divorce, saying that he would visit them at their island home. The old love for his wife prompts Robert to take the letter himself to the island.

In the meantime Proctor has arrived on the island. He finds Isabel alone as she had sent her two servants to the mainland for household supplies. A sudden storm-arises. The servants do not dare to venture back to the Island. Isabel and Proctor make the best of the situation. They prepare supper and enjoy talking over old sweetheart days. Finally Isabel tells Proctor of her divorce. He is surprised and delighted.

The night shadows creep on. The storm is at its height. Proctor makes passionate love to Isabel. For the first time in her life she feels the thrill of desire. Isabel fights off the desire, but is about to submit when a flash of lightning reveals her husband's face at the window. Isabel thinks it is a figment of her mind—nevertheless it gives her strength to resist. Isabel returns to her husband in the Everglades. Both decide to live there. Robert's business is placed in the hands of his brother, William. Isabel, a year later, dies in giving birth to a baby girl.

Twenty years have elapsed. Bland and his daughter, Bella, are still living in the Everglades. Bland is suddenly stricken. Bella, in seeking help, meets her cousin, Ralph, and his friend, Austin, who are hunting in the Everglades. They go with Bella to her father's hut. The old man, discovering Ralph to be his nephew, orders him to tell his father to turn over his (Bland's) property to Bella, as she is his heir and only child. The old man dies in Bella's arms.

The rest of the story relates the fight of William Bland to keep the property of his brother in his own hands. Bella has a champion in Austin. With the help of Austin's father, a retired judge, the same one who had sat on the Blands' divorce case, the property is saved for Bella. Austin finally wins the hand of Bella as the story ends.

VOGUE.

ALL BALLED UP" (March 5).—The cast: Rube (Rube Miller); Madge (Madge Kirby); Alice (Alice Neice); Art (Arthur Tavares). Directed by Rube Miller.

Two business friends, Rube, the boot-black, and Art, cigar-stand keeper, are keen bowling rivals. One day when bowling, Art becomes so engrossed in the game that he forgets an appointment that he has with Madge, to whom he is engaged. Madge comes to the alley to get Art. There she meets Rube and they are mutually attracted. This so angers Art that on the way home he quarrels with Madge. Madge returns Art's ring. Art then seeks Alice, who is queen of the bandits, and engages her to abduct Madge.

Madge later arises in her sleep and goes to Rube's stand. Rube talks to her and not getting an answer concludes she wants a shine; so starts to shine her bare feet. Art, seeing this from the bowling alley, runs over. Alice, who is fond of Rube, also comes over and there is a general quarrel. Rube takes Madge home, foils the abductors, returns and engages in a bowling match with Art, who has previously nailed the pins to the alley, then persuades Rube, who has no money, to play for Madge against his money.

In the meanwhile, Alice's bandits have succeeded in placing a bomb under Madge's bed. Madge, walking in her sleep, picks up the bomb and carries it to the bowling alley, where it explodes and blows Art, Alice and the bandits up into the skies, leaving Rube and Madge to the enjoyment of their mutual infatuation.

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

Our frames are made to stand very rough usage. The heavy sheet brass is drawn through a die together with the moulding that clinches the brass to the wood in such a manner that it forms one solid piece, with no sharp edges to cut your hands when cleaning. Insist on the name "Newman" when buying frames.

Get our New Catalog

The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK CINCINNATI CHICAGO
101 Fourth Ave. 717 Sycamore St. 68 W. Washington St.
Established since 1882

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

We print and develop titles
EXCLUSIVELY
One Price—One Quality
Pan American Film Service
145 West 45th Street New York City

Developing and Printing

High Grade Work	Prompt Delivery
Developing Negative	1c. per foot
Printing	5c. per foot
Titles	8c. per foot

ATLAS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
709-10 Smith Bldg. Detroit, Mich.

When Writing to Advertisers
Kindly Mention Moving Picture World.

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS
1544 BWAY. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

AMERICAN.

"THE SILKEN SPIDER" (Three Parts—March 7.) The cast: Bona Leonard (Vivian Rich); Rev. Lewis Dunstan (Alfred Vosburgh); Brian Leonard (George Periolat); Ursula Jacques (Louise Lester); Neal Jacques (King Clark); Caleb Giles (Warren Ellsworth); Mrs. Dunstan (Lillian Knight). Directed by Frank Borzage.

Brian Leonard is a millionaire whose sole occupation is the amassing of wealth. He is cold, hard, and the element of love has been almost extinguished. In this environment, his motherless, loveless daughter, Bona, grew up to womanhood. Ursula, Leonard's mistress, inveigles him into marriage, and when he learns that she is playing fast and loose with his affections, he makes a will in which he leaves the major portion of his estate to Bona, and bequeathes an income upon Ursula. Learning of this, Ursula plans to gain possession of his estate in the event of his death, and to further her ends she endeavors to bring about the marriage of her son, Neal, and Bona. But Bona detests Neal.

Then Ursula recalls a remark of Leonard's that should Bona ever bring disgrace upon his name, he would disown her. She conspires with Caleb Giles, a society idler, to affect Bona's ruin. When she begs him to marry her, he refuses. Bona confesses to Ursula and Neal is persuaded to again ask her to marry him. Believing Neal's love to be sincere, Bona agrees.

Shortly before the wedding Neal is killed in a gambling row. Disgrace now seems inevitable and Bona determines to commit suicide. She goes to the wharf, but is prevented in her purpose by the Reverend Lewis Dunstan, who takes her to her father. When Leonard hears her story he disowns her. Rev. Dunstan denounces him for his heartlessness, but this results only in his being forced to resign his pastorate. Dunstan takes Bona to his home, where she is cared for by his mother. The child dies and Bona enters settlement work. Giles, a fugitive from justice for the murder of Neal, enters the settlement home one day, in a dying condition. On his death bed he sends for Ursula and Leonard and confesses the conspiracy. Bona is forgiven and both Leonard and Ursula see the folly of their pursuit of wealth. They begin anew to live for love, and it is obvious that Bona and Dunstan will eventually marry.

BEAUTY.

"A GAY BLADE'S LAST SCRAPE" (March 8.) The cast: Lord Phoppie (John Sheehan); Carol (Carol Halloway); Belle, the barber (Mary Talbot); The Valet (Rea Berger); Briggs, a Police Captain (George Clancy); Briggs' Wife (Edna Frawley); Carol's Mother (Dixie Stewart). Directed by Archie McMachin.

Mrs. Halloway is determined that Carol shall marry Lord Phoppie, even though Carol doesn't want to. George Rosebush is in love with Belle, lady barber, and just as soon as he can find a job, Belle says she will marry him. So George, seeing an ad. for a valet, sets out to "land the job."

Lord Phoppie sends out invitations for an afternoon tea, at which his engagement to the unwilling Carol is to be announced. George appears at his apartment, applies for the position advertised and gets it. However, in attempting to shave his master, his thoughts stray to Belle, but he is rudely brought back to life by Lord Phoppie's indignant tones, and banished forthwith. Lord Phoppie then telephones the first barber shop he finds listed and orders a barber sent up. It so happens that he gets a lady barber shop on the phone, and Belle is commissioned to do the job.

In the apartment adjoining Lord Phoppie's, lives a police captain and his wife. He mistakes his wife's amusement at Phoppie's half-shaved condition for a flirtation, as is the way with jealous husbands. Belle, hurrying to Phoppie's apartment, bumps into George, who tells her he has a position. She tells him she will marry him at 3 o'clock at the shop and he goes to make arrangements while she proceeds on her way.

The guests start coming, and Phoppie, forgetting his predicament, starts entertaining. When Belle arrives he mistakes her for another guest and she is introduced to the others. Finally, getting nervous, she whispers to Phoppie and gets him into the bedroom, to the horror of Carol and her mother. She takes out her razor and poor Phoppie believes his end is near. He throws a sponge at her and when she falls he believes he has killed her and locks the door.

For Sale Cheap

3 CONTINUOUS PRINTERS

Output 12,000 feet per day, each machine. All in first-class working order and in present use. Address: Continuous Printer, Moving Picture World.

EVERYTHING FOR YOUR PLAYHOUSE
MACHINES - SUPPLIES
REPAIR PARTS
HOMMEL'S
422 FIRST AVE., PITTSBURGH, PA.

COMPENSARC

That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our

BOOKLET 15018

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA
733

Improved Projection for Only Particular People.

We only sell MENISCUS-BICONVEX CONDENSERS COMBINATION to managers who are endeavoring to specialize in improved projection and better light, and the operator who is particular and wants to give the best there is in him, at a saving of electricity.
Meniscus Biconvex condensers are proven scientifically and optically correct. We guarantee you improvement by the endorsement of all good authorities on projection. We are exclusive importers. You must buy here for the pure white glass. Give distance, send $4.20 today (20c. for postage) for 1 set Meniscus Biconvex Condensers.
Use System in your business and keep your records of receipts and expenses by day, week, and year, by using THE THEATER RECORD LEDGER SYSTEM. Send $2.70 (20c. for postage) and commence a business system. Money returned if wanted.

The Northwestern Motion Picture Equipment Co., Inc.
Distributors of Power's and Simplex Machines and everything for your theater.
622 Hennepin Ave. Minneapolis, U. S. A.

George, all ready for the wedding, comes to the barber shop, and when he learns that Belle has gone to shave Lord Phoppie, he believes his boss is trying to steal his girl, and rushes to the apartment. Phoppie escapes via the fire escape, to the next apartment, and hides in the bed with the dressmaking form which the captain's wife had put there to cure her jealous husband. The police captain returns with a revolver to spy on his wife and demands to know who is in the bed. When he discovers Phoppie, she is the most surprised of the three. Belle revives and departs with George and Phoppie loses out all 'round.

"PERSISTENT PERCIVAL" (March 12). The cast: Percival (Orral Humphrey); Billy (Billy Frawley); Woman (Mary Talbot); Girl in Cafe (Edna Frawley). Directed by Natt Watt.

Billy entertains a young women in a cafe, and is relieved of his valuables. Leaving the cafe in disgust he meets his father, and Dad tells him that he needs a guardian. Billy, however, can't see the joke, but when he is rescued from an automobile accident by a droll individual, Percival Somber, he sees the wisdom of his father's remark, and offers Percival the job of guardian.

Together they go to the club, where Percival asserts his guardianship when Billy starts drinking too much, and finally consents to let Billy sit in at a game of poker. When the game grows interesting and the stakes high, Percival compares the two hands and stops Billy's betting with "don't bet. He's got four kings!" Percival stops the row which ensues and takes his charge out for a stroll. Passing a garden Billy, of course, spies a handsome women. The fair one is not averse to flirtation, and under the spell of the garden, the romance progresses rapidly. Billy and the lady are about to clasp hands when Percival interrupts with "Cease! It is too soon for that!" They continue their stroll, with Percival following at a distance. Again the ardent one presses his suit and is just about to win a kiss when Percival warns "That's not sanitary."

There is too much Percival for Billy, who rushes to a secluded spot with the lady of his affections. Not being able to find his charge, Percival does the next best thing and discovers a nursemaid in charge of six children belonging to the lady. Frantic search reveals Billy on bended knee for his final plea. Percival drags Billy forth to view his discovery and Billy does not comprehend until the lady overtaking them is greeted by a chorus of "Hello, Mamma!" As they stand on the outside of the garden looking in, Billy views his "almost" stepchildren and then turns and gazes fondly on Percival, who is thoroughly composed.

SIGNAL FILM CORP.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME (Episode No. 10, "A Dash Through Flames"—Two Parts—Feb. 28).—Having granted a right-of-way to Rhinelander, the city fathers of Las Vegas refuse Seagrue's pleas for a right-of-way through their city. Rhinelander's original copies of right-of-way contracts were destroyed by fire in the derailed construction car, and Rhinelander dispatches Helen and Storm with a note to the Recorder to secure certified duplicates. Seagrue instructs Bill, his foreman, to "bring the outfit into town." While breaking camp, Bill discovers the absence of Seagrue's automobile, which had been commandeered by Helen to rescue the men from the runaway car.

Helen, Storm and Spike drive into Las Vegas in Seagrue's auto. Spike goes to construction train to obtain his clothes, while Bill accuses Helen and Storm of stealing the auto, and threatens arrest for the theft. Helen and Storm go to lunchroom to eat, where Seagrue finds them, and accidentally sees Rhinelander's note to the Recorder asking for copies of the deeds.

Having learned of the destruction of Rhinelander's contracts, Seagrue hurries Bill, Spike and Lug to the Recorder's office and during the noon hour they steal the objective book of records. Spike, through a clever ruse, distracts Bill's attention, and hastily tears out the pages containing the record of Rhinelander's deeds, thrusting the valuable pages in his shirt. Bill conveys the book to Seagrue's office, where the latter discovers the absence of the desired pages. Bill suspects Spike of tearing out the pages, and at Seagrue's command goes to fetch Spike.

Coming upon Spike on the street, Bill's accusation leads to a war of words. In an adja-

(Continued on page 1714.)

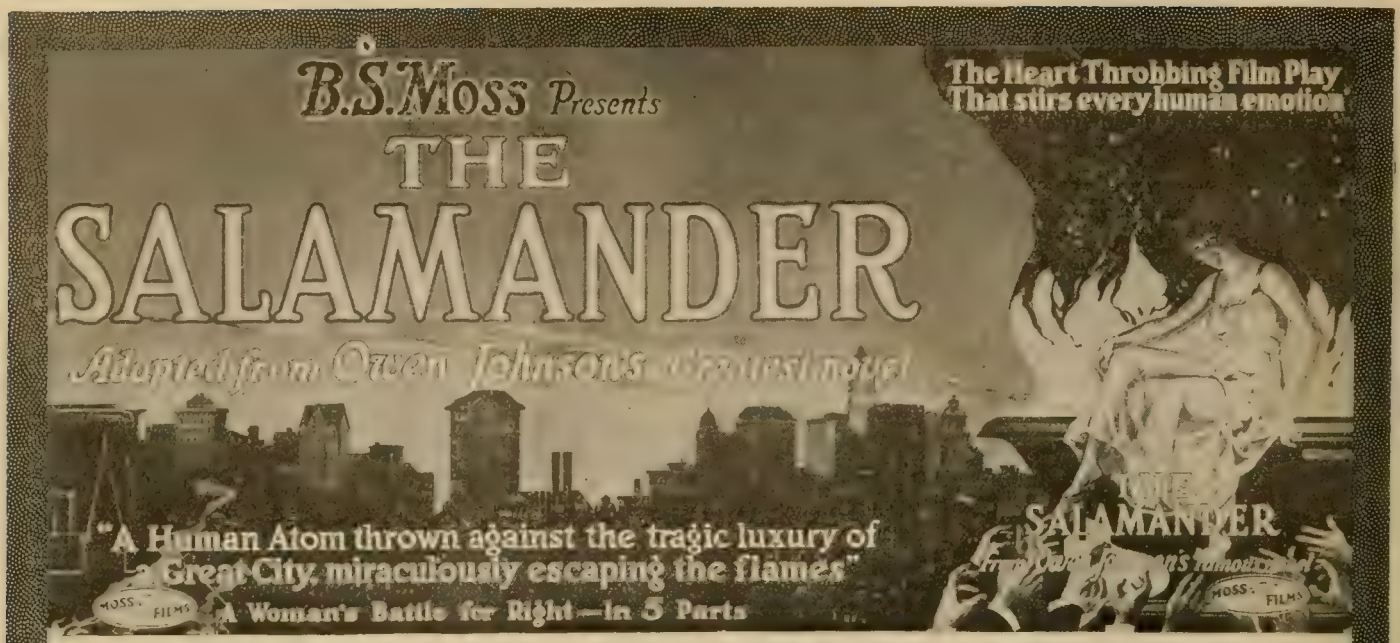
PROJECTION MACHINES of exceptional value.

2 SIMPLEX, used, PERFECT, with 110 V., A. C. Motors and all attachments, $235.00 each (regular $350.00 equipment).
One Edison Model D, good as NEW, $130.00.
1 No. 6 A with LOOP SETTER, used two weeks only, almost new, $200.00 or $235.00, with motor and attachments.
Privilege of examination on receipt of 20% payment on account, balance C. O. D. The projecting of good pictures is usually seen on a Mirroroid Curtain. Can we quote on one for you?

1—No. 6, complete, in good condition $115.00
1—No. 6A complete 155.00
1—No. 5 complete 65.00
1—Exhibition Model, perfect running order 45.00
1—Simplex, slightly used, good 200.00
1—Mirroroid Curtain, PERFECT, 9 x 12 ..... 35.00

THE STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa



B.S.Moss Presents
THE SALAMANDER
The Heart Throbbing Film Play
That stirs every human emotion
"A Human Atom thrown against the tragic luxury of a Great City miraculously escaping the flames"
A Woman's Battle for Right—In 5 Parts
MOSS FILMS

"THE SALAMANDER"

Shows how any girl may get three meals a day without going behind the ribbon counter.

BUT

It also shows that the ribbon counter is the safer way. It is the greatest story ever written by the popular author

OWEN JOHNSON

Who now writes exclusively for the Cosmopolitan Magazine

Exhibitors, Do You Know Real Value?

Do You Know?

- THAT TEN MILLION PEOPLE READ THIS BOOK?
- THAT OVER FORTY MILLIONS HAVE HEARD THE STORY?
- THAT ONE HUNDRED MILLION WILL SEE THE PICTURE?

Then Do Not Fail to Exhibit It!

The Hamilton Theatre
146th Street & Broadway
New York, N. Y.

February 17, 1916.

Mr. B. S. Moss, President,
B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation, Columbia Theatre Building, New York City.

Dear Sir:—

For the past three days, I have exhibited your recent production "The Salamander," and I thought you would be pleased to learn of its phenomenal success at the box office. The total receipts for the three days amounted to $1798.65, which is far in excess of any amount taken in on other productions. Thanking you for the opportunity to show this great picture early, I am,

Yours very truly,
J. C. BLOCKHAUS,
Manager.

State-Rights went rapidly. Some little territory left that may interest the State-Right Buyers who have not yet "GOT IN" on this proposition NOW registering the biggest hit in the history of the silent drama.

Bijou Dream Theatre
Automatic Exposition Company - Incorporated

116-118 SO. STATE STREET

CHICAGO, Feb. 7, 1916.

Mr. E. A. Sparuth, Mgr.
Central Film Company,
110 S. State St.,
Chicago, Ill.

My dear Mr. Sparuth:-

Permit me to take the privilege of complimenting you upon securing for this territory, the B. S. Moss film, entitled, "THE SALAMANDER".

After playing this picture at my theatre on State Street for the past week I was surprised to find that this production has played to a larger volume of business than I played to on my first opening days with "Damaged Goods", which held the record until it was broken by your production, "THE SALAMANDER". I was so elated with this fact that I took the privilege of informing you, believing that you would be interested in knowing it.

Whenever you have anything more like "THE SALAMANDER" be sure and call upon me.

Yours very truly,
Eliz Faller

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION
Columbia Theatre Building
701 Seventh Avenue
New York, N. Y.

COMING SOON
"THE UNDERTOW"
"BOOTS AND SADDLES"

COMING SOON
"ROSEDALE"
"CALL OF THE CRICKET"

MOSS FILMS

MOSS FILMS

At Last America Is Awake!

Everywhere! Everybody!

Is Going Wild Over the Most Absorbing Soul-Stirring Love Drama Ever Produced

A Beautiful Love Story

"ONE DAY"

Full of Heart Throbs

A Five-Reel Production, Sparkling with Clean Continuous, Sensational Romance, that Fills You with Great Thoughts and Never Ending Thrills.

This Picture Has Already Brought A Fortune to the Producer, B. S. MOSS, and Proven Itself a Winner for the Box Office !

State Rights have gone like "hot cakes." A little unsold territory on hand. Perhaps it is yours, and if you act now, maybe you can secure it at a figure on which you can "clean up."

Notice to Exhibitors:

We are being flooded with inquiries, asking for bookings on "One Day," and such inquiries are being referred to your nearest State Right Buyer. Other Exhibitors wanting bookings, please get in touch with your nearest State-Buyer and avoid unnecessary delay. WE DO NOT BOOK DIRECT.

B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation, New York, N. Y.

Columbia Theatre Building, 701 Seventh Avenue

MOSS FILMS

(Continued from page 1711.)

cent lot a man cleaning a rifle near a bonfire drops one of the shells into the blaze, it explodes, and as the bullet whizzes past Bill dodges, striking his head against an awning cleat. At the sound of the shot idle and enraged laborers see Bill drop to the ground and accuse Spike of shooting him. As the crowd works in, the sheriff arrests Spike, and discovers one exploded shell in the gun which Spike carries and which he wrested from Bill, who at the Recorder's office wanted to shoot the watchman.

As the angry mob tries to take Spike from the sheriff, Helen and Storm are informed of Spike's predicament. The sheriff and deputies succeed in getting Spike to the calaboose. Helen sends Storm to wire Rhinelander to bring the men in from the camp to prevent a mob lynching. Rhinelander starts his crew to Las Vegas posthaste by train. In the meantime, the sheriff attempts to spirit Spike away from the calaboose, but is seen by one of the mob, who instantly spreads the alarm. With their auto headed off by the mob, the sheriff with his prisoner takes refuge in the City Council Chambers, where he barricades the door with furniture and handcuffs Spike's arms around a post, that the sheriff may be free to stand off the beseigers.

A stray shot from the mob cuts the telephone wires, from which a short circuit starts a blaze which rapidly grows. Helen was first to discover smoke issuing from the windows of the building. The sheriff dashes out to meet Rhinelander's men, and suddenly exclaims that he has a prisoner, helpless, handcuffed in the burning room. Closely followed by Storm, Helen rushes into the smoke and flame, where the superhuman efforts of the three release Spike.

In the meantime, a physician has learned that Bill's injury is not a gun wound and Spike is released. Helen sees the stolen record book in Seagrue's room and orders the sheriff to arrest Seagrue as Spike produces the important pages from his blouse.

CUB.

THE DESPERATE CHANCE (March 3).—The cast: Jerry (George Ovey); Bandit (George George); Sheriff (Louis FitzRoy); Deputy (Henry Jackson); 1st Cop (Gordon McGregor); 2d cop (Arthur Mund); 3d Cop (Bob Kenyon). Directed by Milton Fahrney.

Here we find Jerry where he will do no harm "behind the bars." But Jerry manages to effect his getaway by pulling apart the bars. As he climbs out of the cell window he is seen by one of the guards who tries to follow him but is caught between the bars.

Jerry drops over the prison wall onto the heads of two policemen, who are so dumbfounded that they run in opposite directions. Near the prison Jerry discovers an automobile, jumps in and is off in the nick of time, as half a dozen guards and a number of policemen are just about to grab him. They all fall in a heap as Jerry speeds on. A desperate bandit stands at the roadside, garbed as a minister. He carries half a dozen guns and holds up everyone, making his victims come to him to give up their valuables. He is described as being short in stature but in reality is more than six feet tall and kneels at all times so as to mislead those who attempt to give a description of him.

As luck would have it Jerry happens to get on the road which has been picked out by the bandit for that day's work. His ride is suddenly interrupted by friend minister, who orders Jerry to alight and change clothes with him while he speeds off in Jerry's car. Jerry thinks this is a good scheme as they will never suspect him of being a fugitive from the prison while garbed as a minister, so he walks off to town.

In the meantime the bandit rides off a few feet when there is a terrible explosion, which attracts the attention of a posse of guards, police, etc., who give chase after the car. Jerry arrives in town and enters a food shop, but is surprised to find they all flee at sight of him and leave him alone. He is mystified by such actions, but it doesn't worry him much for he sits down and has a good meal.

While Jerry is eating the bandit arrives in the car and, seeing Jerry in the restaurant, decides to get his shooting irons back. He grabs the guns and starts to shoot up Jerry but the latter rushes to the street only to be confronted by the police. He runs back to the restaurant and hides; guards, etc., enter and are greeted by a volley of shots from the bandit's gun.

Jerry runs to make his getaway in the automobile, followed by the bandit, who sits beside him and they speed off. Jerry loses control of the machine at the edge of a cliff, they are hurled off into space and land at the bottom with about a ton of wreckage on top of them. The posse rushes down to learn the worst, but find that they are unhurt. They grab Jerry, believing him to be the bandit, but he tells of the exchange of clothing and the bandit is nabbed. Jerry is about to rejoice when the guard whom he had pelted with stones recognizes him so he, too, is arrested and the entire party start back to the prison.

COMEDY DIRECTOR AT LIBERTY

Years of experience. Capable of taking entire charge of studio. My pictures average $400 to $450 per reel. Have my own scripts. Address J. M., c/o Moving Picture World, New York.

ALL THE PLAYERS

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 61 (March 2).

Latest War Pictures.—Canadian cavalry in action. Aiming exercises on board a French battleship.

San Francisco, Cal.—S. S. "Excelsior" wrecked in bay. Turbiner "Harvard" rams schooner in dense fog.

Galveston, Texas.—Repairing damage done by great storm. Famous Rip Rap being strengthened against next big hurricane.

Washington, D. C.—President Wilson joins in patriotic service. Geo. Washington's 184th Birthday is observed at Memorial Hall.

Paris, France.—Latest fashions in colors. Spring's modes for young women.

Bremerton, Wash.—Big guns recovered from Puget Sound. Divers and derricks drag 40,000-pound rifles from mud 100 feet under water.

Milford, Conn.—Ten dead, 75 hurt in double wreck on New Haven Road. Local, speeding to make up lost time, rams New York express. Freight train sideswipes both.

San Francisco, Cal.—U. S. Grand Jury indicts 61 prominent business men here for alleged neutrality violations. Subtitles: Lieutenant Baron Von Bricken, attache of German Consul's office. German Consul Bopp dodges movie camera.

Galveston, Texas.—Cargo of wheat for Belgians destroyed. The "Clematis," rammed by "El Monte," sinks.

Creusot, France. A new submarine for France. The "Gargene" leaves the ways.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Moving picture players entertained by city. Gaumont stars given reception by Board of Trade and Mayor of city. Subtitle: Director Garrick and Mayors of Jacksonville and South Jacksonville.

New York, N. Y.—American Ambassador to Turkey returns home. Henry Morgenthau gets leave of absence.

New Orleans, La.—Safety first lesson by firemen. Daring drills thrill great throng.

San Antonio, Texas.—Citizens here get preparedness training. Soldiers from Fort Sam Houston give them first lesson.

New York City.—Five perish in fire near Broadway. Quick blaze guts boarding house.

Mexia, Texas.—Nine killed in collapse of opera house. Subsequent explosion of gas adds to horror. Loss, $150 000.

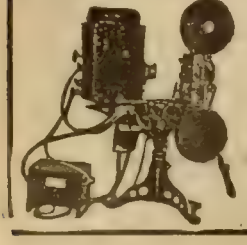
Lincoln, N. J.—Analine dye plant explodes. Two men killed. Entire town shaken by the concussion.

Triangle Film Corporation

"DON QUIXOTE" (Fine Arts—Five parts—Feb. 27.) The cast: De Wolf Hopper, Fay Tincher, Max Davidson, Rhea Mitchell, Chester Withey, Julia Faye, George Walsh, Edward Dillon, Carl Stockdale and William Brown.

His mind unbalanced by much reading about knight errantry and lack of sleep and loss of food, Don Quixote decides to sally forth and right the wrongs of the world. The muddle-minded old idealist takes with him Sancho Panza, his stable man, who from then on vainly tries to dissuade his master from embarking upon all sorts of rash adventures. Notable among them is the episode of the windmills, which the Don thinks are devils, even after he has charged them and been carried around and around and dropped unconscious on the ground.

When he recovers Dorothea tells him of her affair with Don Fernando, which has forced her to leave home to avoid disgrace. He determines first of all to right the young woman's wrong



Easiest To Operate

Why is it that those operators who just run the American Standard Motion Picture Machine once become enthusiastic? Well, first of all, they find it the easiest to operate. Secondly, the longer they run the American Standard the more they are convinced that it produces perfection in projection with least effort, without costly repairs, without dangerous breakdowns.

It is the wise exhibitor who knows the American Standard. He is the man who is freed from all projection troubles, who has no cause to grumble over big repair bills. With the American Standards in his booth, satisfaction comes to him, his operator and his patrons. Write for catalogue.

THE AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE CO.

One Hundred Ten and Twelve West Fortieth Street NEW YORK

"Another Fox Success"

THE WITCH

Inspired by Victorien Sardou's "The Sorceress"

DUE TO THE STAR

MISS NANCE O'NEIL

THE SUPPORT

ALFRED HICKMAN

and

The Masterful Direction of

FRANK POWELL

and goes on to an inn, which he imagines is a castle. The maid-of-of-all-work he dubs the fairest lady in all Spain. One night at the inn is enough. The proprietor throws him and his man out the next morning. While riding along the road they meet several prisoners and their guards on the way to the galleys. Without hesitation the Don spurs his ancient steed, Rosinante, among them, and puts the guards to rout.

It develops that one of the prisoners is Cardenio, who has been guilty of loving Lucinda against her father's will. Don Quixote offers to intercede in his behalf and together they start back. Cardenio goes ahead and arrives as his beloved is about to become the wife of Don Fernando. Thinking she has been faithless he seeks to end his life with the poison of an adder. The Don, arriving later, invades mansion and halts the wedding just in time. "How about Dorothea?" he asks, and Ferando cowers. Then the Don seeks Cardenio and brings him back to his lady.

But Don Fernando is not so easily defeated. With his retainers he kidnaps Lucinda. A pursuit follows and there is much matching of steel when the two parties meet. Don Quixote, who has gone his way, incidentally rescuing Dorothea from a cruel master for whom she has been tending goats, arrives in the midst of the melee. He has become more insane on his favorite subject and every time he comes upon a prostrate form he rushes forward and claims the honor of slaying the villain. As the encounter becomes hotter a blunderbuss is brought into play and the Don is shot in the breast.

While he is dragging himself to the inn of the fair Dulcinea, the scoundrel Don Fernando has been attacked by Cardenio. At length the latter is victorious and the body of Fernando crashes into a ravine. Dorothea, who has seen the struggle, goes to it as the the others repair to the inn. There is a happy reunion between Lucinda and Cardenio and permission to wed is freely granted.

Into this happy group staggers the Don. His faithful Sancho Panza and Dulcinea help him to the stable, discover the hole through his armor and try to staunch the wound. But all efforts fail. To the accompaniment of the merry making above the lovable old character expires in the straw and the devoted pair beside him grieve.

"THE LAST ACT" (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Feb. 27.) The cast: Ethel Duprey (Bessie Barriscale); Mrs. Cora Hale (Clara Williams); Suzette (Miss Allen); Ernest Hale (Harry Keenan); Lewis Bressler (Robert McKim).

Ethel Duprey, an actress, after a vain tour of the theatrical agencies, finds herself wandering in a city park. She seats herself on a bench thoroughly discouraged. Mrs. Hale, wife of Lewis Hale, a successful attorney, whose sympathies for the world's unfortunates have crowded out all thoughts of self, offers to help Ethel. The latter's pride makes her reject the offer, but Mrs. Hale slips a bill in Ethel's purse unobserved.

Ethel is both hurt and pleased when she finds the money, and returns to Mrs. Murphy's boarding house, where she finds a note from a manager, telling her he can offer her a small part in the new play "Retribution." Ethel's chance comes when, two weeks before the opening performance, the leading woman sprains her ankle so badly that she is unable to continue rehearsals.

The morning following the opening performance finds Ethel famous. At a dinner which the manager gives in honor of Ethel, she meets Lewis Hale, attorney for the company, putting on the show. It is a case of mutual infatuation. Later, when Hale begs Ethel to go away with him, telling her that he cannot marry her until he obtains a divorce, Ethel is undecided, and asks time to decide.

Mrs. Hale in the meantime, has discovered that her husband's love has been taken from her and makes inquiries as to who the girl is. Suzette, a "slavey" befrinded by Ethel in her boarding house days, now becomes her maid, goes to Mrs. Hale, thinking to save her mistress from herself. On the afternoon Hale is to receive his answer, Mrs. Hale makes her appeal to Ethel, entering her apartment veiled. The last act of the play in which Ethel has made her success is now acted in real life.

Ethel has been searching for the woman who befriended her that gray day in the park, but has been unable to find any trace of her. While Mrs. Hale is pleading with Ethel for her husband, a line of the play comes to Ethel and she tells the wife "The man belongs to that woman who can best hold his heart." Mrs. Hale realizes that she has lost, turns to leave, but collapses in a dead faint. Ethel removes Mrs. Hale's veil and finds the woman who helped her. She has made a vow that no sacrifice would be too great for her to make for that woman, and now the time has come when she must pay. She revives Mrs. Hale and tells her she will give her back her husband.

Hale comes for his answer from Ethel and finds a note from her, telling him all is over between them. The story closes with Suzette soothing her broken-hearted mistress.

"CINDERS OF LOVE" (Keystone—Two Parts—Feb. 27.) The cast: Chester Conklin, Slim Summerville, Billie Bennett, Claire Anderson, Lois Holmes and William Mason.

Chester Conklin, as the fire chief, clashes with Slim Summerville, police chief. They first match wits as well as strength at a field meet. There is a tug of war as the main event. Slim ties the rope around himself and then anchors to a tree. The strong man of the fire force has been put in a jail on wheels that is drawn by mules. It looks as if the police would make a clean sweep. But they have not reckoned with the crafty Chester. He hands his end of the rope to the strong man, starts up the mules and along come Slim, tree and the whole Keystone police force.

The bad blood between the two factions is increased when Chester is found enjoying the society of Slim's wife. Slim, in a rage, threatens to shoot Chester on sight. There is a fire in the house, Chester's wife yells for aid, the gallant police chief hurries to the scene with his trusty men at his heels. Mounting a ladder Chester reaches the room only to find his wife with the obnoxious Slim.

Chester leaps at his rival and they rain blows on each other, regardless of the flames around them. The encounter ends in the discomfiture of Chester, who makes a flying exit down the ladder. Then follow more cries for help from the police chief's wife. Finally Slim and the woman jump into nets, after the front of the house has fallen, disclosing them to the shouting multitude below.

HIS PRIDE AND SHAME (Keystone—Two Parts—Feb. 27).—Originally scheduled for release during the week of February 6, this picture was withheld from bookings until February 27. A synopsis of it can be found on page 1192 of the February 19 issue. "Fido's Fate," which was booked for release during the week of February 13, was released during the week of February 6 in place of "His Pride and Shame."

THE JUDGE (Keystone—Two Parts—March 5).—The cast: Charles Murray, Louise Fazenda, Harry Booker, Wayland Trask and Phyllis Allen.

Miss Fazenda is a manicurist who inspires flirtatious tendencies in all the men with whom she comes in contact but is true to her husband, Wayland Trask. Charles Murray, a motorcycle policeman, tries to flirt with her in her shop and when she repulses him places her under arrest. In the court over which Harry Booker presides the manicurist makes a distinct impression on the judge. She permits him to flirt with her until she gets her discharge. As she leaves the court Judge Booker adjourns for the day and follows her home.

Because of his age the manicurist is patient with him. To prove that a man is not old because he has lived long the judge dances so violently about the shop that he rips his trousers. In sympathy Louise offers to mend them while he waits. This is the situation when the husband returns. There is a lively fight in which Officer Murray takes part, ending with the escape of Trask and the ejection of Booker minus his trousers.

The judge rectifies this deficiency in a nearby second-hand store and goes back to the bench. The first prisoner is Trask, who has been brought in by Murray on a charge of speeding The judge is about to impose the maximum sentence when Louise enters with the mend-

DEVELOPING and PRINTING
5c. PER FOOT COMPLETE
Let Experts Do Your Laboratory Work
PERFECT TITLES
Give Us A Trial
H. N. NELSON
LABORATORY and STUDIO
79 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Successful Concerns
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 8 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO
Moving Picture Exhibitors
Get your supplies from FULCO the house that carrieseverything you need
E. E. FULTON CO., 152 W. Lake St., Chicago
FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO

MAKE YOUR OWN CURRENT WITH A
Brush Electric Lighting Set
Send for 125 page catalogue with very complete information about electrical matters
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

The First Moving Picture Journal in Europe
The Kinematograph Weekly
The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—
The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

A perfect white opaque light-saving screen can be obtained by the use of a gallon of the WONDERFUL D-D SCREEN PAINT
Will Not Fade, Run or Crack. $4.50 GALLON Easily Applied. Gallon will give large screen two coats.
Used by Keith's, Stanley, Lincoln, Famous Players and hundreds of prominent theatres. Send for testimonials, circulars, etc.
D-D SCREEN PAINT CO., 1430 MASONIC BUILDING, 23d STREET and 6th AVENUE, N. Y. Phone 4454 Gramercy

Extract from the March 4th issue Moving Picture World

Pathe's "The Iron Claw" to Be in Fourteen Episodes.
A unique tribute has been paid "The Iron Claw," Pathe's new serial. Exhibitors were so impressed with the strength of the cast and the excellence of the first episode shown them privately that a large majority have requested Pathe to make the serial in fourteen episodes instead of twelve. These requests have come from all over the country. Consequently it is announced that the serial will be in fourteen episodes.

The above episode was directed solely by me

Carroll Fleming

Open for Offers
Address 607 West 147th Street
New York City

ed trousers on her arm. As Booker again becomes a lenient judge his wife enters. As she sees the manicurist with her husband's trousers she yanks Booker from the bench and leads him from the courtroom crestfallen. Trask then grabs the gavel, knocks out Murray with it and leaves the court triumphantly with Louise.

A VILLAGE VAMPIRE (Keystone—Two Parts—March 5).—The cast: Fred Mace, Anna Luther, Joseph Swickard, Earl Rodney, Billie Brockwell and Dale Fuller.

Fred Mace is the station agent of a railroad at a small town. His daughter is in love with the son of the cashier at the mill, while he himself is the adored of an old maid. The cashier meanwhile has answered a matrimonial advertisement and in response receives a letter and picture of Billie Brockwell, followed in due time by the lady herself. The cashier shows her through the mill and incidentally displays the large amount of money which is in his care. She urges him to take it and elope with her, and he agrees to do so.

To avoid suspicion she suggests that he go on an earlier train. In the confusion of starting he takes the wrong grip and when the holdup men who have received the tip to rob him search the grip they find that it does not contain the money. Miss Brockwell discovers the mix up in the grips and summons the prospective robbers. The cashier enlists the aid of the police and follows them. There is a stirring chase and a running fight between the crooks in an auto and the pursuers on a railroad engine.

The crooks arrive first by taking a short cut and rob the mill safe. Mace and the old maid, who have followed out of curiosity, are bound and gagged. The son of the cashier is tied to a machine that carries his body slowly toward a big crusher. The crooks even turn on their chief, Miss Brockwell, and then endeavor to make their escape by a bucket line across the canyon. The station agent's daughter, riding to the mill, finds that the desperadoes have blown up all the bridges, but she makes a thrilling leap into the water with her horse, breaks through the doors of the mill and saves everyone from the flames which are now roaring through the structure. The police posse across the canyon captures the crooks one by one as they come over the wire in buckets.

HELL'S HINGES (Kay-Bee—Five Parts—March 5.)—This picture was originally scheduled for release during the week of February 20, but has been postponed until the aforementioned date. A description of it was published on page 1366 of the February 26 issue, "Bullets and Brown Eyes," was released on February 20.

DAPHINE AND THE PIRATE (Fine Arts—Five Parts—March 5).—In place of this picture, which was slated for release on its program for the week of February 20, the Triangle Company has released "Martha's Vindication," a five-part Fine-Arts subject. A story of "Daphine and the Pirate" was published on page 1366 of the issue dated February 19.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 15. (Feb. 19.)

Newport News, Va.—The U. S. S. Pennsylvania, Uncle Sam's latest superdreadnaught, leaves for her speed trials. Sub titles: 1. The final clearing is made of the decks of the vessel. 2. The feature of her construction is the superimposed turrets, each of which carry three huge guns.

Red Bank, N. J.—(Except Boston, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle.) Ice boat enthusiasts, threatened by a coming thaw, assemble their craft in record time to enjoy the last days of the season's sport.

Pathe News Fashions.—Footwear Fashions. Some dainty models for the Spring. (By courtesy of I. Miller, Broadway, New York.) Subtitles: 1. Walking boot with salmon-colored vamp, ivory back and Louis heel. 2. Colonial slipper, Havana brown vamp, ivory back and Louis heel. 3. Pumps with blue kid vamp, ivory sole. 4. Pump with small tongue and white inlay. 5. Patent leather pump of zebra design. 6. Sport shoe of white buckskin and tan leather trimmings.

Boston, Mass.—Car lines employ a very ingenious rotary plow to clear their tracks from the heavy snowfall.

Salonica, Greece.—Small mountain guns which can be easily detached and transported over the rocky hills are being used by the Allies. Subtitles: 1. Immense quantities of cartridges are kept ready. 2. The huge expenditure of large shells in modern warfare necessitates a constant supply.

Monikendam, Holland.—The famous seawalls of Holland are broken during the fiercest storm for generations, and hundreds of square miles of rich pastures are devastated. Subtitles: 1. Thousands of cattle were drowned by the waters.

Athens, Greece.—King Constantine reviews the troops of the Greek army which is kept mobilized for any emergency.

Fall River, Mass.—(Boston only.) The thriving business section is compeltely devastated by fire which levels scores of buildings and causes damage of $1,500,000.

Brooklyn, N. Y. (New York only).—Charred timbers of 900 foot pier and empty hulls of three munition ships are all that remain of $5,000,000 fire.

Vosges Mountains, France (New York only).—The heavy traffic of war has rendered necessary the employment of huge caterpillar tractors for the transport service. Subtitle: 1. The massive wheels can travel almost anywhere.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—(Except New York.) A rapidly spreading fire destroys three munition ships, several barges and a nine hundred-foot pier causing $5,000,000 damage. Subtitles: 1. Firemen cut through the pier to tackle the flames with high pressure hose. 2. Charred timbers and empty hulls are all that remain after the conflagration.

Gary, Ill.—(Chicago only.) Chicago Norge Club Skiers make some thrilling jumps at the annual tournament. Subtitle: 1. Miss Hildur Erlandsen is the winner of the Cross Country race.

Hanover, N. H. (Chicago only.) Dartmouth college students exhibit real Alpine skill on skis in their annual winter games. Sub-title: 1. Ski racing with horses is an exciting feature.

PATHE NEWS NO. 16 (Feb. 23).

New York City—Mr. Henry Morgenthau arrives home on leave after two years of service at Constantinople as Ambassador to Turkey.

Red Bank, N. J.—Ice boating fans race their yachts when the Shrewsbury River freezes five inches thick.

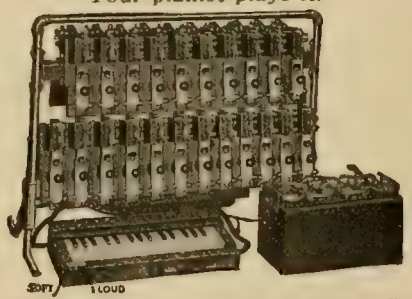
Chicago, Ill.—Incensed over their losses caused by the failure of Modestino Mastrogiovanni's bank, the "Black Hand" wreck his home with a bomb. Subtitle: The bed in which the banker was sleeping when the explosion occurred.

Fort Montgomery, N. Y.—Jacques Suzanne, artist-explorer, has a complete Alaskan dog pack to help give "local color" for his pictures. Subtitles: 1. It's too cold to paint all day, so they take a little exercise at intervals. 2. The reward for posing nicely.

New York City—Although the Allies need soldiers they have refused to accept for service Baptiste Ugo, an Italian nine foot tall, and Esmiliare Adrien, a twenty-nine inches high Frenchman. Subtitle: The two men compared with a "stock size" person.

Paris, France—The grim realities of Europe's slaughter are strikingly presented in the ef-

EXHIBITORS
Don't "wait" for business
"Go after it"
with a
DEAGAN
Portable Electric Una-Fon
as a
Street and Lobby Ballyhoo
A 12-piece Brass Band in a 31-inch space. Weighs 125 pounds.
Your pianist plays it.



Write for Catalog "F" and Free Trial Offer
J. C. DEAGAN
DEAGAN BLDG. 1776 BERTEAU AVE.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

CREATIVE IDEAS
FOR POSTERS
GOES LITHOGRAPHING CO.
CHICAGO
286 Broadway NEW YORK

TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
4987 General Office, Schenectady, N. Y.

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

"Better-than-Program" Pictures
CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
San Rafael, Cal.

TransVerteR
Means a superior projection light under perfect control of operator.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
431 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

Quality means EVANS means Perfection
We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY
EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Telephone 6881 Audubon
416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

SEND FOR FREE BULLETIN No. 1

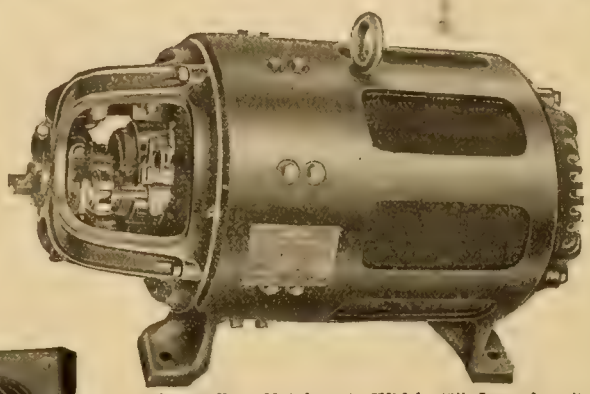
JUST OFF THE PRESS, DESCRIBING THE

HALLBERG 20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR

$249.

ADJUSTABLE FOR ONE 30 TO 70 AMP. D. C. ARC

$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arcs.—



Weight 475 lbs. Height 15", Width, 15", Length, 30".

For 110 or 220 volts, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted upon Request

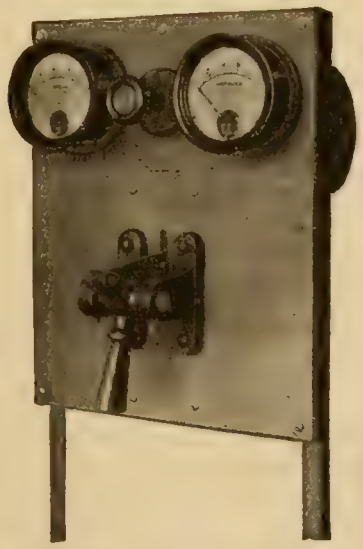
This Perfect 2 Lamp Switchboard

ONLY

$50.

for (2) 30-40 amp. arcs with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat — No live part on front of board.

15" wide—18" high—10" to 12" from wall. With angle iron legs.



D. W. Griffith's
"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"
New York, N. Y., December 21, 1915.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg.

Dear Sir: After a thorough investigation and test of the various Motor Generators and other devices for changing Alternating to Direct Current and for the control of projector arcs, your Hallberg Motor Generators have been adopted as the standard for the shows exhibiting Griffith's Birth of a Nation and Triangle Films.

We are much pleased with the performance and efficiency of your Motor Generators which we have so far installed and shall continue to use more of them from time to time as we require such devices.

Yours very truly,
CECIL R. WOOD,
Electrical and Projection Expert, Griffith's Birth of a Nation and Triangle Film Company.

For Sale by all leading M. P. Machine Distributors

POWER'S 6A

EXHIBITED BY

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.
166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

E. E. FULTON CO.
154 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

SWANSON & NOLAN
1744 Curtis St., Denver, Colo.

G. A. METCALFE
117 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO.
1301 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

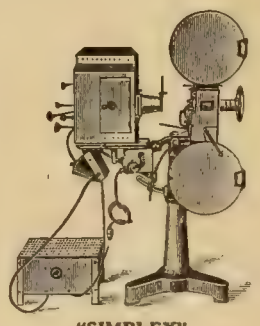
LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

FEATURE FILM & CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
125 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

H. J. MANDELBAUM
Columbia Building, Cleveland, Ohio

F. H. THOMAS
691 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

I equip your theatre completely; all makes machines, carbons and supplies. Send $2.50 for latest Operators' Book, "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY."



"SIMPLEX"

Manufacturer and Main Distributor

J. H. HALLBERG

SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER 38 EAST 23rd STREET, NEW YORK, U. S. A.

forts to re-educate those maimed in the service of their country. Subtitles: 1. The making of toys is found to be one of the most suitable occupations for partially trained hands. 2. Carving the face of a helmeted enemy is a particularly agreeable task. 3. An apt scholar in writing with the left hand.

Brest-Litovsk, Russia.—Russian prisoners taken by the Germans in recent fighting are interned in the camp which was once their own famous fortress.

Voges Mts., France (except New York).—The heavy traffic of war has rendered necessary the employment of huge caterpillar tractors for the transport service. Subtitle: The massive wheels can travel almost anywhere.

Mill Neck, L. I. (except Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis, Indianapolis).—Mr. Irving Brokaw, the famous skater, demonstrates his skill in fancy figures on the ice.

Brest-Litovsk, Russia (New York only).—German soldiers regulate traffic over a pontoon bridge, built after the retreating Russians has destroyed the ordinary bridges over the River Bug.

Alki Beach, Wash. (except Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and Boston).—A whole row of houses is wrecked as avalanche of mud and rocks crashes from crumbling cliffs. Subtitle: Rescuing the piano.

Boston, Mass. (Boston only).—Sleeping out of doors in zero weather is now the vogue, and the Hotel Lenox has pitched some tents on the roof to cater to the Polar fans. Subtitle: "Your tent, sir," is the new cry of the bell-boy.

Detroit, Mich. (Detroit only).—The Rotary traffic method enables five streams of vehicles to be handled in one-third the time previously occupied.

"THE IRON CLAW"(No. 1. "The Vengeance of Legar" Two Parts—Pathe—Feb. 28.)

The story begins years ago on an island in the South. Enoch Golden, a wealthy planter, catches Jules Legar, a scheming physician, making love to his wife in an attempt to learn the secret hiding place of Golden's wealth. Suspecting the worst, Golden sends his wife away, and as punishment to Legar has his handsome face branded with white-hot irons and his hand crushed in a vise. Then Legar, set free, swears vengeance and begins his villainy by opening the sluice-gates that keep the sea from inundating the island. The waters rush in and the entire island is flooded and its houses swept away in the swirling waters. Legar kidnaps Golden's daughter, Margery, whom, in the next scene, twenty years later, we see grown to beautiful maidenhood, in his ominous power. Hate still lives in Legar's heart, and he sends Margery to a denizen of the underworld in whose house she is to be detained. But here steps in a mysterious gallant known as "The Laughing Mask," who saves her, for the nonce, from her fate.

"LUKE AND THE RURAL ROUGHNECKS" (Phunphilms—March 1.) The village blacksmith has a hard time holding onto his assistants. This is due, primarily, to the presence around the shop of the village belle. Finally, the brawny smithy is compelled to hire as his helper a man who is without any female affiliations. He hits upon Lonesome Luke as the ideal man for the job and that well-known worthy accepts the position with alacrity. But unfortunately the queen of queens crosses Luke's path and disconcerts him. Several clashes he has with his employer in his efforts to win the affections of the girl and his position is in jeopardy. Finally Fatty, his chief rival, steals a horse whose hoofs are being manicured and runs away with the girl in true Lochinvar style. But Luke rushes to the father-in-law-he-would-like-to-have and gathers a posse to pursue the elopers. They come together far down the road to the city and all hands get into a mixup in a delightfully muddy pool and have it out then and there in a no-decision bout.

"SIBERIA, THE VAST UNKNOWN" No. 2 (March 1.) After a perilous journey from Alaska through the ice-clogged waters of Behring Strait and the Arctic Ocean, the expedition which took these excellent pictures reaches Cape North, situated 'way up there on the east coast of Siberia. Here is seen a lonely mass of barren rock, which symbolizes perfectly the desolation and misery of the whole country.

The people inhabiting this woeful region are the Chukchis, a sturdy Mongolian folk. They are splendid watermen, and spend most of their time hunting and fishing, for it is by this means that they are able to get food and clothing. The pictures show these people at their daily tasks. They are pictured dealing with the members of the expedition, trading with the Russians, herding up reindeer, and in other interesting pursuits.

"THE RED CIRCLE" No. 12 ("Like a Rat in a Trap" (Balboa—Two parts—March 4.) Lamar struggles to stifle a suspicion that June is responsible for the Red Circle crimes. June, to return to the employees of the Rarwell Corporation the money which rightfully belongs to them, and which she has stolen, mounts her horse and throws the cash to the men as they stand by the factory. A mounted policeman takes up the chase, but when near June she strikes him with her riding crop and throws him from his horse.

Meanwhile "Smiling Sam" is safely hidden in the Travis attic, placed there by June because of his threat to expose her relationship to "Circle" Jim Borden, the crook. But one day Lamar sees the familiar features of the fugitive at the window of his retreat. He then goes into the house and after a terrific struggle masters the criminal. How will June explain Sam's presence in the house and will he expose her parentage?

The preceding chapters of this serial tell the story of June Travis, supposed daughter of a wealthy society woman, but really the daughter of a notorious crook. She inherits an instinct for crime, and each time it manifests itself a Red Circle appears on her hand. Her crimes are all benevolent, however, and Max Lamar, crime specialist, who is on the chase of the criminal, falls in love with the beautiful girl. "Smiling" Sam, a pal of her father, learns of her origin and forces June's nurse, Mary, to hide him in the Travis home. June steals from the Farwell Corporation the papers which have falsely incriminated Charles Gordon, an attorney. Lamar is baffled.

Miscellaneous Features

V-L-S-E, INC.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL No. 9 (January 31).

New York.—Thousands cheer President Wilson as he starts speaking campaign in favor of administration program for increasing national defense.

Stockholm.—Picked soldiers of the Swedish army guard the royal palace. Interesting motion pictures show the ceremonies as the guards are changed.

New York.—In a suburb, twenty-one stories above Broadway, on the roof of the Arona Building, children raise vegetables in a novel roof garden.

Washington, D. C.—Girls of the Western High School form a rifle club and will compete with boys for honors on the Target Range.

Washington, D. C.—Louis D. Brandeis, whose nomination for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court has aroused the interest of the entire country, poses for the Hearst-Vitagraph News.

Quebec, Canada.—Canadian athletes gather on the ice to contest in the ancient Scot game of Curling.

Manchester, Mass.—Dare-devil Jack Murphy plunges one hundred feet into the icy Merrimac River while spectators gasp.

New York.—Latest fashions in negligees and morning robes from leading Fifth avenue designers.

Portland, Texas.—Big gas well catches fire and becomes a torch, throwing the flames 150 feet into the air, illuminating country for miles around.

Washington, D. C.—Ralph Coffin, member of the Washington Hunt Club, uses friend's automobile as obstacle and rides his pony, "Rabbit," in a daring leap over the machine.

Sahara Desert.—French army engineers rush work on strategic railway through the desert, designed to carry troops to the defense of the Suez canal.

Quebec, Canada.—Canadians enlisted for over-seas services drill on ice-covered ground and scoop trenches in snow drifts.

Mr. Nobody Holme Buys a Jitney.—Cartoonist T. E. Powers gives a graphic picture of his troubles.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTURE NO. 10 (February 4).

Norfolk, Va.—British liner Appam seized by German sea raider that snared eight other vessels, is brought into American port by prize crew.

Washington, D. C.—Members of the Washington Riding and Hunt Club hold school for horses where steeds are taught to drive tandem in preparation for coming horse show.

New York.—General Goethals, builder of Panama Canal, and Brigadier-General Edwards, Military Commander, pose together for the Hearst-Vitagraph News Pictorial, denying reports of friction in their administration.

New York.—Members of Y. W. C. A. in their new home at Brooklyn, prepare for the coming fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the National organization.

Charlestown, Mass.—Work on the new naval supply ship, one of the accessories of preparedness, is rushed at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Within sight of the new floating machine shop the old frigate Constitution, better known by its nickname "Old Ironsides," lies at her dock.

St. Paul, Minn.—In spite of extremely cold weather, thousands gather for northwest winter carnival and take part in spirited out-door contests.

New York.—Newest fashions in Sport Suits for Spring from Fifth avenue.

On Western Front.—German cavalry rides forth in Belgium, acting as escort to the supply train.

Boston.—Midgets from all parts of the United States are received at the executive offices by General McCall.

A Swing Around the Circle With the President.—An extremely interesting and intimate series of pictures of the trip of President Wilson on his crusade for increased national defense showing him in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Waukegan and giving a new and graphic idea of what such a trip for the country's chief executive means.

Poor Si Keeler.—As a traffic cop, he has experiences which bring a whole flock of boys out to gloat over him. A funny cartton by T. E. Powers.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 11 (February 7).

New York—Wonderful motion pictures made by new process, showing New York at night. Tower of the Woolworth Building and the Singer Building, raised high above the cavern of lower Broadway, and 42d street and Broadway, and the wonderful Brooklyn Bridge, blazing with lights, are thrown on the screen.

San Francisco—Eight die when schooner Aberdeen, driven by a 95 mile gale, is broken up on a rock off Golden Gate Park.

Marfa, Texas—Pack trains, crawling over a difficult trail, carry food and ammunition to troopers on Mexican border.

St. Paul—Motor-driven sleds sail over ice on upper Mississippi River, replacing old-fashioned ice yachts.

New York—Latest designs show Fashion's decree in suits and hats for spring.

Ottawa—Death, and loss of three million dollars, come with the destruction of the Canadian Parliament Buildings, in a blaze believed to have been incendiary.

San Francisco—A million and a half in gold coin is moved from a bank to meet payment in bond for a new water system.

Newport News, Va.—Prisoners held on the English liner Appam, seized by a German sea-raider, are freed by order of the United States authorities, when the vessel is brought into a neutral port.

You will pity poor Parcel Post Pete when you see his struggles with a mountain lion in a funny cartoon by T. E. Powers, the famous cartoonist.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 12 (February 11).

Hickman, Ky.—Entire population of village lives in tents after fleeing from the rising water of the Mississippi. Boy scouts aid in handling refugees. All streets of the town are shown under 14 feet or more of water.

Locust Valley, N. Y.—Many young women take part in exciting bob sled races.

Wilmington, Del.—Release of a dove from a basket of roses launches the Helen C. Julliard, hospital ship of St. John's Guild, built to care

WE ARE ACTIVE
in every branch of the film business, Animated Cartoons, Trade Marks and Developing, Printing and Stock Titles. Write us today.
ACTIVE MOTION PICTURE CO.
1101 W. Randolph Street CHICAGO
PORTABLE MOTION PICTURE PROJECTORS

"PERFECTION IN PROJECTION"
GOLD KING SCREEN
GOLD KING SCREENS ARE BEST
TEN DAYS FREE TRIAL
GOLD KING SCREEN CO., ALTUS, OKLA.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS

COMEDIES THAT ARE

Phunphilms

Produced by Rolin

Direction of Hal Roach

LONESOME LUKE	HAROLD LLOYD
Snub	Harry Pollard
Ethel	Bebe Daniels

Rolin Film Company—Los Angeles

D. Whiting, Gen. Mgr.

EL DORADO FEATURES

(BRUCE F. BUNDY)

ANNOUNCE TO THE TRADE THEIR POLICY OF ONE FIVE-REEL FEATURE EACH MONTH COMMENCING WITH

THE IMPERSONATION

FEATURING THAT WISP OF DAINTINESS

MISS NEVA GERBER

SUPPORTED BY

LAMAR JOHNSTONE and REX DOWNS

PRODUCED UNDER DIRECTION OF

HARRIS L. FORBES

NEXT RELEASE NOW IN PREPARATION WATCH FOR ANNOUNCEMENT

Address all inquiries to

HARRIS L. FORBES, Managing Director

EL DORADO FEATURE FILM CO.

40 West Mountain Street, Pasadena, Cal.

for sickly children of New York tenement districts.

Washington, D. C. "Under the Capitol Dome."—Interesting side lights of the nation's capitol. Champ Clark, speaker of the House, who in a recent speech advocated placing 17-inch guns on U. S. battleships, is shown leaving the Capitol. United States Chamber of Commerce in session.

San Francisco, Cal.—Motor boat, "Bohemia," driven by its owner, J. Paulding Edwards, proves fastest on Pacific Coast.

El Paso.—Brig. General Pershing, U. S. A., reviews some of the U. S. Border Patrol. Cavalry men are shown in exciting saber drills, charges and hurdle jumping.

New York.—Latest designs in spring fashions by Fifth Avenue modiste.

St. Paul—Axel Henrickson, dare-devil ski jumper, braves death by a somersault from the ski slide at St. Paul Winter Carnival. Twenty thousand persons parade in 17 below zero temperature as carnival is brought to a close.

Norfolk, Va.—Staunch old frigate, Franklin, flagship of Admiral Farragut, is sold for junk.

Newport News, Va.—Vernon Castle takes instructions in operating aeroplane and plans to offer services to England as war pilot.

Niles Canyon, Cal.—Girls in winter pajamas introduce novel fad of sleeping outdoors in auto as aid to beauty.

Port Jefferson—Here are real candidates for hero medals, children at St. Charles Hospital for crippled children who fight battles against forces in despair.

Viaduct—Pecos River Bridge, highest in America, eight miles from Mexican border, is guarded against bandits by U. S. troops.

Cartoon—A comic animated cartoon by T. E. Powers, America's foremost comic artist, in which Mr. Powers depicts the experience of a gentleman ordered to indulge in "Gentle Exercises" by his medical adviser, "Old Doc Gloom."

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

THE MARBLE HEART (Five Parts—March 6).—Therese Roger, daughter of a West Indian planter, whose parents are murdered while she is a baby, becomes the adopted daughter of her aunt, Madame Roger, keeper of a haberdashery shop in one of the smaller villages in southern France. She grows up with Camille, Madame Roger's son, a sickly, sexless creature, whom she ultimately marries in deference to her aunt's wishes.

The monotony of Therese's married life tells on her. The uninteresting Camille each day drones out his existence in an office. At night he returns ever at the same hour, ever in the same enfeebled health and depressed spirits. Two neighbors, Dr. Gribet and Michaud, the latter prefect of police, drop into the Roger household for their weekly game of dominoes with Madame Roger. Suzanna, daughter of Dr. Grivet and Oliver, son of Michaud, who are in love, call frequently on the aged Madame Roger to pay their respects. Therese, full of youth and life, tires of her environment and its unchanging cycle of events.

Camille collapses one day at the office and is brought home by his friend, Laurant. The latter, who is the opposite of Camille, meets Therese. They are attracted to each other and when Laurant becomes a frequent visitor at the Roger home a liaison develops between him and Therese. In Camille they see the only obstacle to their happiness.

The two evil lovers decide to kill the husband. Soon an opportunity presents itself and they drown Camille. They manage to escape suspicion from the murdered man's mother and in course of time marry each other with the old woman's consent. But they have not attained the happiness which they thought would be theirs with Camille out of the way, for their crime haunts them. It shows in their faces. It stalks through their home. It leads them into quarrelling with each other. During one of their stormy scenes they are overheard by Madame Roger, who becomes stricken with paralysis and the total loss of speech upon learning how her son died.

The helpless old mother gloats over the torture which Therese and Laurant suffer from their consciences. In time, when guests are present, she tries to write her accusation of them upon the tablecloth with the edge of a domino, but her fingers can not complete the sentence. She sees distrust continue to grow between the unhappy pair. Therese and Laurant plan to kill each other, but both are too great cowards to add a new crime to their records, and they drink poison together, paying at last with their own lives for their earlier crime.

PARAMOUNT.

BOBBY BUMPS AND HIS POINTER PUP (Paramount—Bray Cartoon—Feb. 24).—Bobby Bumps, a little boy, seeing a pup in the window for sale, longs to be the possessor of same. He remembers having a savings bank at home and hustles home to find it is on a shelf above the couch on which his father is taking a restful nap. He takes courage and jumps for the savings bank, which he finally gets and runs to find an axe to smash it, so he may buy the dog. But luck seems to be against him, he encounters a lot of unpleasant experiences, the little bank is stronger than he thought, it flies and upsets his old mammy and washtub, and finally smashes the window in which the little pup is waiting for his liberty.

Bobby is sure that his new purchase is a Pointer dog, and wherever he points his tail there is something to shoot at. They both have now a great deal of fun, so much that everybody telephones to the police station. Policeman comes and arrests him and dog. Both are being seen in the last scene in prison breaking stones. Bobby swears he will never take another pointer from his pup.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

"THE STRENGTH OF THE WEAK" (Five parts—March 12.) The cast: Pauline D'Arcy (Mary Fuller); John Adams—Abbott (Edwards Davis); Richard Adams (Harry Hilliard); Tom Dare (Curtis Benton). Adapted by William Addison Lathrop from the play of that name. Directed by Lucius Henderson.

Pauline D'Arcy just emerging from girlhood, meets and is attracted by a man many years her senior whom she knows by the name of Abbott. Abbott fascinates the inexperienced girl and makes her his mistress. Endowed with a keen desire for knowledge, Pauline has yielded herself, partly influenced by his promises that she shall have an education. He has promised to send her to the University, assist her to establish herself in a literary career, and then marry her.

Pauline, accordingly enters a university for women. She becomes a favorite and develops her literary talent so that as graduation approaches, she has already completed a novel founded on her own experience. It is accepted and published anonymously, quickly becomes a "best seller" and everyone is eager to learn the identity of the author. The success of her book has made her financially independent and when, on her graduation day, Abbott proposes to take her away with him, she rebels and begs him to go his way and let her go hers.

Pauline meets a young man named Richard Adams, and an affection quickly ripens into love. They are both invited to a house party given by Mrs. Dare. During the party, Richard Adams presses his suit, but Pauline gives him little encouragement, for her secret restrains her. A rival for her favor develops in Kitty's brother, Tom Dare. Tom has found

Hydroquinone
(Pure)
Firm manufacturing will be open shortly to make contracts for yearly supply. Answer with particulars of monthly requirements.
Address "Hydroquinone" c/o M. P. World

Irvine Movie Mascot
$1.50—Postpaid—$1.50
ASH TRAY
PIN TRAY

Paper Weight
Auto Ornament
CLARKE IRVINE
305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Perfect Developing and Printing
Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS
NEGATIVES DEVELOPED ....1c. FT.
POSITIVE PRINTING .....4c. FT.
Special price on quantity orders.
TITLES in any language
5c. per foot complete
Cards Free—Tinting Free
Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
145 West 45th Street New York City

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

In answering advertisements please mention The Moving Picture World

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Motion Pictures Projected Without Your Machines
This may seem strange to you, but it is an indisputable fact. Every Exhibitor who booked THE BIRTH OF A NATION will tell you that this remarkable photo-play was not projected on his machines. It was projected by UP TO THE MINUTE MACHINES specified by B. F. PORTER. They always insure themselves against poor projection. Why not take a Tip and consult
B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK
THE ONLY SUPREME QUALITY SUPPLY HOUSE IN AMERICA

"The Regeneration of Jim Halsey"

A Selig Feature Drama Written and Produced by COLIN CAMPBELL and Featuring THOMAS SANTSCHI and BESSIE EYTON, Two of Movieland's Most Popular and Capable Stars. Released Monday, March 13, Through General Film Service.

The Selig-Tribune

The World's Greatest News Film

Issued Every Monday and Thursday Through General Film Service. The Selig-Tribune Gets the News and Shows It First!

"TOLL OF THE JUNGLE"

A Selig Jungle Zoo Wild Animal Drama Filled with Thrilling Situations. Edith Johnson in the Leading Role. Released Saturday, March 18, Through General Film Service.

Selig Polyscope Co.

Chicago and Everywhere

The Function of the Open-Market

In recent issues of this publication we have endeavored to point out wherein you are being imposed upon.

There must be a way out from taking what is forced upon you to being able to decide for yourself the kind of pictures which best suit your patrons, to the end of increasing your profits. This is exactly the function it is intended the OPEN-MARKET shall perform, and in declaring ourselves for the OPEN-MARKET policy, we realize that it involves nothing short of delivering the goods all the time. It deals the death-knell to edging in a "lemon" every little while.

Lest you have forgotten our previous announcements, we mention again our first six releases, to commence late this month. They are:

"Sins of the Father,"
In 4 parts, with HAMILTON REVELLE acting the stellar role.

"Denise,"
Alexander Dumas's greatest play, made into a picture of 4 parts.

"Love's Sacrifice,"
In 6 parts. A mammoth production of Oriental splendor, featuring RITA JOLIVET, noted American star and beautiful survivor of the "Lusitania."

"Her Redemption,"
In 4 parts, with RITA JOLIVET.

"Under the Mask,"
Coupled with "The Poisoned Kiss," 5 reels of exceptional strength—another JOLIVET picture.

"A Woman's Awakening,"
From the story by Abel Gance, which quickens the patriotic spirit and touches every human heart.

These features conform to the OPEN-MARKET standard and of their success there can be no doubt, because better pictures, better produced, and more finely acted, cannot be obtained. At any rate we think so, and we would rather sell no pictures at all than sell what would undermine the very pillars of our organization.

Authors' Film Co., Inc.

1432 Broadway New York

Eastern Booking Office, Philadelphia, booking for Authors' Film Co., Inc., in Eastern Pennsylvania, Northern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia.

Correspondence invited from independent exchanges of highest financial and business responsibility.

out that Pauline wrote the novel that has caused such a sensation and shrewdly suspects that she is the heroine of her own book. He tries to force Pauline into illicit relations with him by threatening disclosure of her story to the assembled guests. She defies him, and that night in the presence of all the guests, Tom makes the public accusation.

Driven to admit the authorship of the book, Pauline, nevertheless, defends, in a spirited speech, a woman's right to redeem herself and make a worthy future out of an unfortunate past. The guests are divided between admiration and horrer when Richard Adams comes to the rescue and turns the tide into a complete triumph for Pauline, by stating they are going to marry.

Loving him as she does, Pauline has not the heart to draw back, but she feels that she cannot allow him to marry her until he knows all the truth. When in an agonizing confession, she lays bare her soul and tells Richard of her trials, he takes her in his arms, tells her that he honors her truth and nobility and is more than ever determined to make her his wife.

When Mr. Abbott, her former lover appears and demands an interview, Pauline faces him fiercely and demands why he returns to trouble her. She spurns him and tells him she is about to marry a man whom she loves. He threatens to find him out and reveal her past. She tells him that has already been done.

In the final scene the men come face to face and Pauline discovers for the first time that they are father and son. In the original Pauline kills herself; in the film Pauline and Richard "fade out" in fond embrace.

WORLD—EQUITABLE.

THE PAWN OF FATE (World—Five Parts—Feb. 28).—The cast: Pierre Dufrene (George Beban); Marcine Dufrene, his wife (Doris Kenyon); Father Dufrene (Charles W. Charles); Andre Lesar (John Davidson); Giradot (John Hines); Abbe Paul (Alec. B. Francis); Suzanne (Mary Booth).

Pierre Dufrene and his wife Marcine live contentedly on their farm in Normandy, France. With Pierre's old father to aid them, they pursue their simple rural lives. While romping through the meadows, Marcine stumbles upon Lesar, a young painter from Paris, who is sketching at his easel. Pierre, in pursuit of his wife, finds her and Lesar picking up the scattered paraphernalia with which she had collided.

Lesar, who is a wealthy Parisian and dabbles in art on the side, is attracted by Pierre's pretty wife. He returns to Paris for a few days, leaving his painting materials in Pierre's keeping. Pierre, who has become deeply interested in watching Lesar at work, conceives the idea that he, too, can paint. With Marcine as his model he daubs upon one of Lesar's canvasses a crude portrait, which, to the untrained ideas of Marcine and Pierre's old father, appear as a marvelous work of art. Lesar returns to find the little family imbued with the idea that Pierre is a genius. The unscrupulous Parisian sees the humor of the thing and also a chance to make Pierre's artistic ambition the means to a successful culmination of his interest in Marcine.

Lesar declares his admiration for Pierre's first work of art and assures him that he has only to come to Paris to make the sensation of the century in artistic circles. He induces Pierre and Marcine to come to the city as his guests. Pierre and Marcine are established in luxurious quarters and Pierre begins what he hopes will be a picture that will make him famous. While Pierre labors at his canvas, Lesar pays insidious suit to Marcine, who slowly but surely finds herself drifting under the spell of the young Parisian's charms.

At last Pierre's picture is finished and Lesar arranges, as the climax of his joke, to unveil the canvas at a big party to which he invites all of the revellers of his Parisian circle. Lesar works the hoax to its climax with malicious cruelty. Suspecting nothing, Pierre is led to the veiled painting and proudly draws aside the draperies, disclosing his crude and ridiculous attempt to paint a rural landscape. The peals of laughter and satirical comment come as a terrific shock to the poor peasant-painter, and he undergoes all the tortures of bitter disillusionment.

To add to Pierre's fury, when he discovers that he has been the butt of a joke, comes a seemingly well-founded suspicion that his wife Marcine has been as unfaithful to him as Lesar. With the rage of a maddened bull, Pierre springs upon Lesar and a terrific fight ensues, ending with Pierre the victor and Lesar apparently in a dying condition. Pierre rushes into the streets of Paris. He attempts to bolster up his courage with absinthe and is about to end it all by leaping into the Seine, when arrested and taken back to Lesar's apartment.

Although desperately wounded, Lesar, conscience-stricken by the result of his scheme, confesses to Pierre and forces Pierre to believe in Marcine's innocence. A reconciliation between Pierre and Marcine takes place in the home on the farm.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

THE MAN WITH THE MISSING FINGER—(Episode No. 1—"The Tragedy in the Villa Falcon—February.) A wealthy widow has been robbed of her jewels and murdered. Harvey Stacey and his assistant, George Warren, Central Office men, have been detailed on the case. With the exception of a torn telegram, advising the widow that night of the arrival of her nephew, there seems to be no clues. Suspicion points to the nephew, and the detectives search for more evidence. A sheet of paper, upon examination, reveals finger marks—one finger is missing! Stacey telephones to headquarters ordering a watch kept on all railway stations, and any man with but four fingers on one hand detained.

Meanwhile, in his house, Morton, the real murderer, decides it will be safer to make his get-away. Hurriedly he puts on his coat and gloves, which almost conceal his deformed hand, and hastens to the station. At the ticket office a detective "spots" him, and notifies Stacey, who orders the train held. Morton becomes uneasy at the delay and seeing central office men approaching, makes his escape.

Pursued, he reaches his house, and disguises himself as an old woman. Later Morton sends a telegram to Warren telling him to go to the Villa Falcon. The latter is met upon his arrival by Morton and his accomplice, who bind and gag him. Then they telephone for Stacey, who is suspicious of the message, and takes four policemen with him. These he orders to remain outside, and enters the Villa. He also is bound. A time bomb is placed, but Stacey manages to fire a pistol, whereupon the police rush in, rescue the detectives, and place the desperadoes under arrest.

In Answering Advertisements Please Mention The Moving Picture World

EVERYTHING!!!

THE KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY sells EVERYTHING for the equipment of a motion picture theatre. EVERYTHING that has merit and is of proven worth.

WE have done this from the beginning of the business as we were the first to exploit the field. For over twenty years we have devoted our exclusive energies to this one line. WE are therefore the oldest and largest house in the country. We are

The EXCLUSIVE Edison Distributors
The EXCLUSIVE Simplex Distributors
Distributors of Power's Cameragraphs
Distributors of Motiograph Machines

in Chicago and tributary territory and are the only concern so recognized. THIS SHOULD MEAN VOLUMES TO YOU. THINK!!!

REPAIRS. We have the best equipped shop in the country. WE REBUILD—NOT MERELY REPAIR.

On account of our facilities for rebuilding we take back standard makes of machines in part payment for new machines. WRITE US ON THIS SUBJECT.

OUR CATALOGUE is an education. Not a dull, dry price list. You should own one. We will send it free on request.

THE KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

GEORGE KLEINE, President

The oldest and largest distributors of motion picture theatre equipment in the country.

166 N. STATE STREET CHICAGO

WHY NOT LET THE EXPERT DESIGN IT?

World Film Corp.'s Peerless Studio, Fort Lee, N. J.

MODEL DAYLIGHT STUDIOS with PORTABLE ELECTRIC LIGHTING

New Gaumont Studio, Flushing, N. Y.

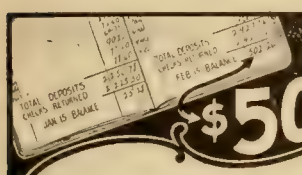
EDWARD BARNARD KINSILA, ARCHITECT AND SPECIALIST 2 8 West 42nd Street, New York

THE CREATOR AND DESIGNER OF THE MODERN TYPE OF GLASS STUDIO NOW BUILT IN THE EAST

Now Building: Ideal Laboratory and Studios on brink of Palisades, N. J., Prudential Studio, Worcester, Mass., New Gaumont Studio, Flushing, N. Y.

Also designing the Famous Two Million Dollar Film City, College Point, Long Island.

Complete Plans and Specifications for any size Structure. 3% on cost. Personal Supervision 1% Extra. Information and Estimates Free.



$502.26 TO THE GOOD IN 30 DAYS!

We get so many letters written in an enthusiastic vein that they are common, but a few days ago we got the biggest "gloom killer" we ever received. It was from a dealer and covered three and a half pages single spaced.

This is an actual experience, but, of course, the exhibitors had many things in their favor, such as location, house capacity and an exceptionally good building—but their old screen almost put them on the "rocks."

The following will give you the drift of it:

About the first of the year a salesman for one of our eastern dealers stopped off at a busy little city and called on what he thought was the livest exhibitor in town (judging from outward appearances). This house was directed by two seemingly alert business men, but the salesman did not talk long before these men poured out their tale of woe. Both claimed that they had planned and schemed day and night trying to get the people coming, but all they ever got out of it was a mere living—THAT'S ALL.

Mr. Salesman went over every detail with them, looking for flaws, when he discovered the "joker"—it was one of these light-eating, eyesight destroying screens. He at once suggested a Minusa Gold Fibre Screen. "Built by Brains," explaining that it saved 50% of the light because of its greater reflective power, and that it would NOT cause EYE STRAIN. He told them about the greater patronage they would enjoy because of the NATURAL BRILLIANT picture a "Minusa" shows, but these men were hard to convince. Finally they said, "We'll take one last chance, but we had about decided to sell out."

The famous "Minusa" was installed on the 16th day of January. A month later Mr. Salesman dropped in to see how things were—these near-quitters were so happy they almost kissed him. Then they displayed their bank book, which showed they were $502.26 TO THE GOOD after using the "Minusa" for 30 days.

These men were like many others, exerting every effort in perfecting their "House," forgetting the most vital part of the theatre—the SCREEN.

Moral:—If you would have a healthy bank balance, get a "Minusa."

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY

SAINT LOUIS | CHICAGO | SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH | CALGARY, ALBERTA | NEW YORK

SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

SCENIC AND EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for our catalogue of subjects from all parts of the world

Photographic Quality Unexcelled

Positives or Negatives For Sale

(No Rentals)

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.
110 W. 40th St.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

You Need Them in Your Business!

Each issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD represents the fruit of studied effort on the part of experts to provide just what the average reader of trade publications in the moving picture field can use to best advantage in his business.

Since this is true, the bound volumes of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, each comprising the complete issues printed during a period of three months, take immediate standing as

The Reliable Reference Book of the Trade

NOW READY—VOL. 26.

WE HAVE AT YOUR DISPOSAL

Bound Volumes for the years 1912, 1913, 1914 and 1915. Four volumes each year. Shipped as per your instructions at $1.50 per volume—transportation charges additional.

The Record of Moving Picture History in the Making

OCTOBER TO DECEMBER, INC., 1915

INVEST TWENTY-FOUR DOLLARS

and have at your hand for ready reference every issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD which has been printed during the past four years. These neatly bound books are invaluable to the wide-awake moving picture man.

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., 17 Madison Ave., New York City

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

ATTENTION.

MR. BENNETT STEVENS—Joplin would like to hear from you.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

LONG EXPERIENCED and successful young man desires position as manager or to rent picture show, with intentions of purchasing same later. Can give reliable reference. Elmer R. Wilson, Canyon, Tex.

AT LIBERTY—Live manager, five years' experience, sober, reliable, with best of references, prefer Pennsylvania, the Virginias or nearby states. Address Live, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

LIVE WIRE—Expert manager, operator, booker. Nine years' vaudeville and moving picture experience. Sidney, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR—Wishes position. A-1 references. Will go anywhere. State salary, equipment, etc. Address D. E. Kleist, care Ethlin Hotel, Spokane, Wash.

POSITION—Theater manager; owned and managed theater six years; furnish good reference. Would probably rent or lease theater. M. M. Hayes, Lenoir City, Tenn.

A-1—Thoroughly experienced all machines, projection assured; reliable, furnish best references. Strictly sober and go anywhere. Write or wire Rix, 3419 61st Place, Chicago, Ill.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATOR—Desires permanent position. Satisfaction guaranteed; best of references. Contract if desired. Earl Light, Arapahoe, Neb.

SITUATION WANTED—Manager, publicity and efficiency expert wants good opportunity in live city above 30,000 that needs results. Address R, care Olly Logsdon, Putnam Building, New York City.

ORGANIST—Young lady desires theater engagement. Thoroughly experienced picture accompanist. Address Lady Organist, care of M. P. World, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS MANAGER—Or executive assistant. Young man, big personality, wide influence, extensive business experience commercial and otherwise, now assistant to president large motion picture producing concern, experienced editing and writing titles, heralds, advertising matter, stories, press material, etc. Excellent executive and selling correspondent. Master of English, will consider proposition either producing or from exhibitor. Unexcelled reference from present employer. Address Frank Kluger, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

SITUATION—Assistant cameraman. Can also do work in dark room. Five years' picture experience, salary no object. J. R., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN—Experienced studio, industrial, laboratory work. Desires position reliable company. Moderate salary. Address Technical, care M. P. World, Chicago, Ill.

WANTED POSITION—A-1 operator, eight years' experience. Best of references. Prefer middle west. M. W., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CASTING—Or assistant director, experienced. I have some money saving ideas about casting. Have been assistant director with some of the largest companies and stars; am open for a good proposition. T. T. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

MILES BROTHERS—Stock of 3,500 reels. Excellent choice of subjects, splendid condition, many with paper. As a whole or in lots, price upon application. 1145 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal.

THEATERS WANTED.

WANTED—To buy or lease. Picture theater with stage suitable for vaudeville. Full particulars. State opposition houses in city. Prefer Sunday town that is non-union. Walter X. Miller, Gen. Del., Erie, Pa.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE THEATER—Wanted in small town New York or adjacent states. Chambers, 81 Romaine Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

LEASE AND EQUIPMENT of an up-to-date theater in New England city of 25,000 population. Capacity 1,000, large stage; equipped to handle road shows, vaudeville or photoplays. Net profits run from $100 to $600 per week—according to attractions. Partnership disagreement the reason for selling. An excellent proposition for party who can handle a house of this kind. For particulars address Theater, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR RENT—Moving picture theater, only one in town, 225 seating capacity. Fixtures for sale reasonable. Box 261 Mt. Carroll, Ill.

PHOTO-PLAY HOUSE—Medium sized; town of 15,000 inhabitants; leather upholstered chairs; new machinery; running 7 days and 7 nights; admission 10c.; actual expenses to operate this money-maker, $99.75 per week; receipts for the last 20 weeks average $187.74; if you have no experience we will teach you free; positively worth $7,500; will sacrifice for $4,500. Lewis, Movie Broker, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVIE—Buffalo, N. Y., with or without real estate; running seven days week; two matinees; weekly expenses about $85; receipts $125-$175; capacity 375; stage 12 x 18; new equipment; 6-A Power's machine; motor driven; 5-10 year lease; price $3,500; with real estate $12,500; will trade; reasonable terms. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

(Continued on page 1727.)

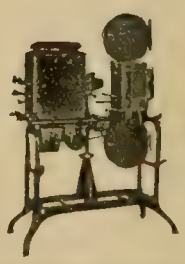
POWERS 6-B

C. W. PEAK of Troutville, N. Y.



EDISON SUPER

Wanted Equipment of the finest for his new playhouse. We furnished Machines, Special Condensing and Projection Lenses and produced Perfect Projection.

We Have It. When You Want it Try Us.

He was convinced we have the goods.

Ask him about it.

We can do the same for you.

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET
NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET
BUFFALO, N. Y.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS
CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS---Continued from page 1726

FOR SALE—Theater, town 1,800, running Sundays. No opposition, playing now to capacity. Positively a money maker. Price only $950—cash $600. Family Theater, Richmond, Mich.

MOVING PICTURE BUYERS—Here is a remarkable opportunity in a moving picture theater with real estate; seating capacity 1,080; standing room for at least 100; 5-10-15c. admission; box seats 25c.; large stage, beautiful red brick building; fireproof; the right man can make from $15,000-$20,000 year, price $67,500; reasonable terms. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE BUYERS—We have been fortunate in placing on our list a wonderful money-making movie; located at Troy, N. Y.; one of the most beautiful show houses in that town; admission five and ten cents; when features are played, ten and twenty-five cents; big receipts; expenses $300-$400 week; will sacrifice for $6,500; $4,000 cash required. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE BUYERS—Here is an unusual opportunity to buy two movies at Schenectady, N. Y., population 90,000. These two theaters can be operated under one manager; total weekly receipts about $600. Profits $185-$200 week. Five and ten cents admission; seating capacity 500 and 425 respectively. Week's or month's trial. Reason for selling our client purchased large house at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and he has left Schenectady never to return otherwise those two houses would not be sold for less than $10,000. Will sacrifice both for $6,500. Lewis, Moving Picture Broker, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Power's 6a complete, one at $175, one at $165 and one at $160. Rebuilt and as good as new; condition guaranteed. Motiograph 1912, $100. 1910, $75. Edison Exhibition Model $80, $65 and $75. Power's 5, $75. All complete and ready for the reels. Write us for particulars. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Slightly used Simplex projectors, guaranteed perfect and good as new at reasonable prices. Second hand Motiograph in good condition, cheap. Room 206, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

"'AMBERLUX' FILTERS — Have nearly doubled our business." "Best way to invest $3.50 I know of"—say two "Amberlux" exhibitors. Write for particulars to W. D. Warner, U. S. Distributor, Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Patent device for cleaning moving picture films. J. J. Ormsby, 824 Amsterdam Ave., N. Y. City.

SCENERY—For picture theaters. Boon Scenic Studios, Hicksville, Ohio.

GUIL PASTILS—Large size, $1, postpaid and insured. C. E. Lindall, 79 West 45th St., N. Y. City, or Bar Harbor, Me.

FOR SALE—Rebuilt machines, Motiograph 1908, $60.00. Edison Exhibition, $65.00 Power's No. 6, $115.00. Power's No. 5, $75.00. Motiograph 1911, $125.00. A-1 condition guaranteed, many others. Write for catalog and list. Amusement Supply Co., 160-H North Fifth Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—No. 6 Power's machine, perfect condition, complete with lenses, rheostat, rewind and 75 carbons $100.00 takes outfit. Shipped on approval on receipt of $25.00. Lyric Theater, Spencer, N. Y.

REBUILT 1911 MOTIOGRAPH—With outside shutter, big bargain at $85. Arthur Close, 1120 Branson St., Marion, Ind.

FOR SALE—215 splendid folding chairs, like new, $72.00 for the lot. Sample sent for 50c. Thornton & Emmons, Spencer, N. Y.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—New opera 350 located sothern factory 90c. each. Special 400 lot maple folding chairs 35c. each. 3,800 slightly used opera bargains. Write for catalog with direct factory prices on new chairs. Atlas Seating Co., 10 East 43d St., New York City.

FOR SALE—Booth 6 x 8 x 8 feet, angle iron frame, covered with galvanized iron, approved by underwriters. Easily taken apart. 10 x 14 screen and electric fan included. All for $25.00. Lyric Theater, Spencer, N. Y.

BARGAINS—For quick sales Power's 6-B machine complete $185, Edison Exhibition model like new $50, Power's 6a slightly used $160. Professional 400 foot capacity camera new condition, cost $500, our price $240. Stelzer Bros., Lincoln, Ill.

FOR SALE—Complete equipment of modern motion picture theater 600 seats, mirroroid, electric sign, exhaust fans, 2 Simplex projectors (motor driven), one Ft. Wayne compensarc, 400 feet carpet runners, upright piano used less than six months. Goldman & Schine, 771 Seaview Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—3,200 opera at bargains shipped subject to inspection. 800 maple folding 35c. up. Write for catalog with direct factory prices on new chairs. Atlas Seating Company, 10 East 43d St., N. Y. City.

CAMERAS WANTED.

WANTED—Motion picture camera for cash. Professional, any condition, any price. Address H. R. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

WANTED—Second hand moving picture camera. State make, condition and price. H. F. Harvey, 11 Foster St., Worcester, Mass.

WANTED—A first-class professional moving picture camera at a very reasonable price. Max Wentel, New Jackson Hotel, Chicago, Ill.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic take-up, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 5961 Franklin.

NEW PROFESSIONAL—400 foot magazines, automatic dissolve $200. New 200 foot $90.00; 150 foot $60. F. 3-5 lenses on all. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

PHOTOS PATHE PROFESSIONAL CAMERA—12 different views 6½ x 8½, $7.50 prepaid. Cash or money order. Artographer, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

NEW Professional "Angelus" camera, cost $400; used twice. 400-foot capacity, $240. L. Jones, 331 S. Kickapoo, Lincoln, Ill.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED—Single reel comedies and westerns. No junk, must stand screen examination. List must give name of maker. Arthur Close, 1120 Branson, Marion, Ind.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

OVER SEAS BUYERS should communicate with me; second-hand American pictures at European prices. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

MILES BROTHERS—Stock of 3,500 reels. Excellent choice of subjects, splendid condition, many with paper. As a whole or in lots, price upon application. 1145 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal.

"STRUGGLE EUROPEAN WAR" five parts, "Italian Austrian War," three parts, new prints and negatives with 600 six, 600 three, 600 one sheets and heralds. 50 features three, four, five, and 100 singles. Cheap. Photoplay Brokers, 1 Delray St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEGATIVE and exclusive rights — 500-foot animated cartoon comedy, ready March 10th. Most elaborate cartoon drawings yet produced. "Dookie Dooins the Conductor." If interested write for photographs of scenes. A cartoon so much different. Write Buckeye Motion Picture Co., Wapakoneta, Ohio.

WE ARE CLOSING OUT—The balance of our films at less than cost. New films of "King Charles II," 4,000 feet at three cents per foot. "Held for Ransom," 3,200 feet. "Where is Coletti?" featuring Madge Lessing, 4,000 feet. "The Sacrifice of Pauline," 3,800 feet, all at four cents per foot. "The Long Arm of the Law," 3,200 feet at five cents per foot. Was He a Coward?" featuring Barney McPhee and Margaret Vale, niece of President Woodrow Wilson, 3,200 feet at six cents per foot. One sample print of "Cellar of Death," 2,800 feet at three cents per foot. One sample print, "Was He a Coward?" at four cents per foot, both in positive good condition, 1-3 and 6 sheets, seven cents per sheet. Heralds $1.25 per M, Photos $1.50 per set. Write at once to the I. S. P. Co., 220 West 42d St., City.

FOR SALE—3-4 and 5-reel features in good condition, also European War films, original posters on all subjects. Select Film Service, 145 W. 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Ten single reels, fine condition, $2 each, cash with order. Some with paper. Clayton S. Hitchins, Hitchins, Kentucky.

FOR SALE—Several reels struggle European War and a five-reel feature "Satan" good as new, a bargain at 3½c. a foot, numeral of posters. Write R. A. Lesaius, 1349 N. Main Ave., Scranton, Pa.

I HAVE several strong features, like "Tracy the Bandit," "At Cripple Creek," "A Texas Ranger," "The Gamblers," etc., that I sell at a bargain. Write for list. H. Davis, 79 S. Washington St., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

FOR SALE—Four Chaplin comedies, $15.00 each, and "The Lusitania, $15.00. S. Baldwin, 314 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

1,000—Single reels American and foreign subjects at $3.00, in first-class condition. Try one or two and be convinced of the condition. Cash with order. Federal Feature Film Co., 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SEND $1.00—For pint bottle Magic Film Cleaning fluid (non-Inflammable). Makes films like first run. Film Renovating Co., Hartford, Conn.

MOTION PICTURE NOVELTY—Rotating disc illusion, also a great Panama Exposition Souvenir at $0.20. Particulars free. Novelties, Box 2718, Boston, Mass.

A Welcome Visitor Each Week in Every Business Home Where Moving Pictures Are of Interest

The Moving Picture World

Is Admirably Adapted to Carry Any Little Message Which You May Wish to Send

Our Classified Advertisements at Three Cents Per Word Will Produce Remarkable Results

Send Copy, with remittance, to CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., 17 Madison Avenue, New York City

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Actors' Fund Campaign Progressing.....1623
Advertising for Exhibitors.....1645
Among the Picture Theaters.....1641
At Leading Picture Theaters.....1634

Big Canadian War Tax.....1677
"Bright Lights, The" (Keystone).....1663
British Notes.....1643

Calendar of Daily Program Releases..1694, 1696
Chaplin Signs with Mutual.....1622
Chicago News Letter.....1633
Club Against Censorship.....1681
Comments on the Film.....1665
"Craving, The" (American).....1661

"Diplomacy" (Famous Players).....1664
"Discard, The" (Essanay).....1660
"Drugged Waters" (Red Feather).....1662

Exhibitor and Program.....1685

Facts and Comments.....1619
"Fate of the Flood Waters" (Universal)..1663
Fees Under Protest.....1687
"Fighting Blood" (Fox).....1660
Films for Sunday Shows.....1678

Get-Together Meeting.....1686
Gillette in Essanay Production.....1656
Good Triangles for March.....1626
"Grip of Gold, The" (Biograph).....1659

"Immortal Flame, The" (Ivan).....1662
Interesting Horsley Productions Coming...1656

Kleinschmidt, Capt., Back from Europe....1658

List of Current Film Release Dates, 1730, 1732, 1734
"Little Orphan, The" (Olympic).....1661
London Trade Notes.....1640

Manufacturers' Advance Notes.....1668
Metro Announces "No More Balls".....1623
Motion Picture Educator.....1644
Motion Picture Photography.....1654
Music for the Picture.....1655
Mutual Seizes Pirated Film.....1658
My Opposition.....1621
Mystery of Laughter, The.....1621
"Mystery of Orcival, The" (Biograph).....1659

"Nation" Film Arrest.....1683
New Jersey Exhibitors Oppose Censorship..1632
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity.....1635
News Reel.....1625
New York Fights Censorship.....1628
No Standing in Lobbies.....1692
Notes of the Trade.....1675

Observations by Man About Town.....1639
Oklahoma's Biggest Convention.....1631

"Pawn of Fate, The" (World Film).....1663
Peacocke with California Co.....1627
"Peppina" Causes Riot at Theater.....1629
Photoplaywright, The.....1648
Picture Plays for Sothern.....1624
Picture Theaters Projected.....1676
Power Company's Employees' Dance.....1657
Projection Department.....1649

"Raiders, The" (Kay Bee).....1663
"Redemption of Helene, The" (Lubin).....1661
Red Feathers for March.....1627
Reviews of Current Production.....1659
Royal of Chattanooga Rebuilds.....1626

Screen Club at Buffalo.....1680
Screen Club Opens Rooms.....1689
"She Came, She Saw, She Conquered" (Kalem).....1662
"Social Pirates, The," Ready.....1657
Stories of the Films.....1698
"Strength of the Weak" (Bluebird).....1659

Tax on Slot Machines.....1690
Three in One for Equitable.....1622
To Cleveland Club Women.....1682
Totality of Effect.....1620
Triangle Program.....1663
Triangle Retains Knickerbocker.....1623
Two Biograph Productions.....1659

Vitagraphs for Week of March 4.....1624
V-L-S-E Has Much to Offer.....1626
V-L-S-E Managers Promoted.....1657

Wants Sunday Shows.....1688
Washington Exhibitors Get Together.....1630
What the People Want.....1640

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack.....1738
Speer Carbon Co.....1733

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co.....1741
Andrews, A. H., Co.....1741
Lears Theater Supply Co.....1737
Steel Furniture Co.....1741

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co.....1739
Calehuff Supply Co.....1740
Erker Bros.....1740
Foos Gas Engine Works.....1739
Fort Wayne Electric Works.....1711
Fulton, E. E.....1716
General Electric Co.....1718
Hallberg, J. H.....1719
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co.....1718
Hommel, Ludwig & Co.....1711
Kleine Optical Co.....1724
Lucas Theater Supply Co.....1736
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip. Co...1711
Picture Theater Equip. Co.....1726
Porter, B. F.....1722
Stern Mfg. Co.....1711
Strelinger, Chas. A.....1716
Swaab, Lewis M.....1738
Typhoon Fan Co.....1710

FILM EXCHANGES.
Fredenburgh, G. W.....1738
Central Film Co.....1718
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.....1741

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.....1735

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Film Co., Inc.....1593
Authors' Film Co.....1723
Biograph Co.....1694, 1695
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.....1578-79
California Motion Picture Co.....1718
Clara Kimball Young Film Corp.....1582
Cummins, Samuel.....1706
El Dorado Feature Film Co.....1721
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....1575, 1601-06
Famous Players Film Co.....1583
Gaumont Co.....1591
Great Northern Film Co.....1725
Hippodrome Film Co.....1736
Horsley, David, Productions.....1697
Ivan Film Productions.....1590
Kalem Co.....1615-18
Kleine, George.....1612-13
Knickerbocker Star Features.....1705
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co.....1584-85
Lesser, Sol.....1603
Lubin Mfg. Co.....1743
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Moss, B. S., Motion Picture Corp.....1712-13
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored Insert
Olympic Motion Picture Co.....1611
Paramount Pictures Corp.....1586-89
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....1596-1602
Ris-mor Comedies.....1614
Rolin Film Co.....1721
Selig Polyscope Co.....1693, 1723
Signal Film Corp.....1594
Sterling Camera & Film Co.....1701
Thanhouser Film Corp.....1574, 1592
Triangle Film Corp.....1708-09
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....1576-77
Vim Comedies.....1704
Vitagraph Co. of America.....1607-10
V-L-S-E, Inc.....Colored Insert
Vogue Films, Inc.....1595
World Film Corp.....1580-81

MISCELLANEOUS.
Active Motion Picture Co.....1720
American Film Laboratories, Inc.....1740
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co.....1740
Bioscope, The.....1740
Classified Advertisements.....1726
Columbia Film Mfg. Co.....1739
Corcoran, A. J.....1716
Eastman Kodak Co.....1735
Erbograph Co.....1710
Evans Film Mfg. Co.....1718
Fleming, Carroll.....1717
Grinden Art Metal Co.....1739
Gunby Bros.....1722
"Hydroquinone," care M. P. W.....1722
Industrial Moving Picture Co.....1740
Il Tirso Al Cinematografo.....1740
Irvine, Clark.....1722
"J. M.," care M. P. World.....1714
Kinematograph Weekly, The.....1716
Kraus Mfg. Co.....1714
MacMahon, Henry.....1701
Motion Picture Campaign.....1742
Motion Picture-Scope Co.....1735
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides.....1741
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon.....1741
M. P. Directory Co.....1736
Moore, Wm. N.....1718
National Stars Corp.....1738
National Ticket Co.....1700
Nelson, N. H.....1716
Netschert, Frank.....1737
Pan American Film Service.....1710
Powell, Frank.....1715
Standard Motion Picture Co.....1710
Trade Circular Addressing Co.....1739

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Los Angeles M. P. Co.....1722
Universal Camera Co.....1707

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photo Player Co.....1741
Deagan, J. C.....1718
Harmo Pipe Organ Co.....1740
Schirmer, G., Inc.....1738
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co.....1731
Simon, Walter C.....1740
Sinn, Clarence E.....1741
Wangerin-Weickhardt Co.....1735

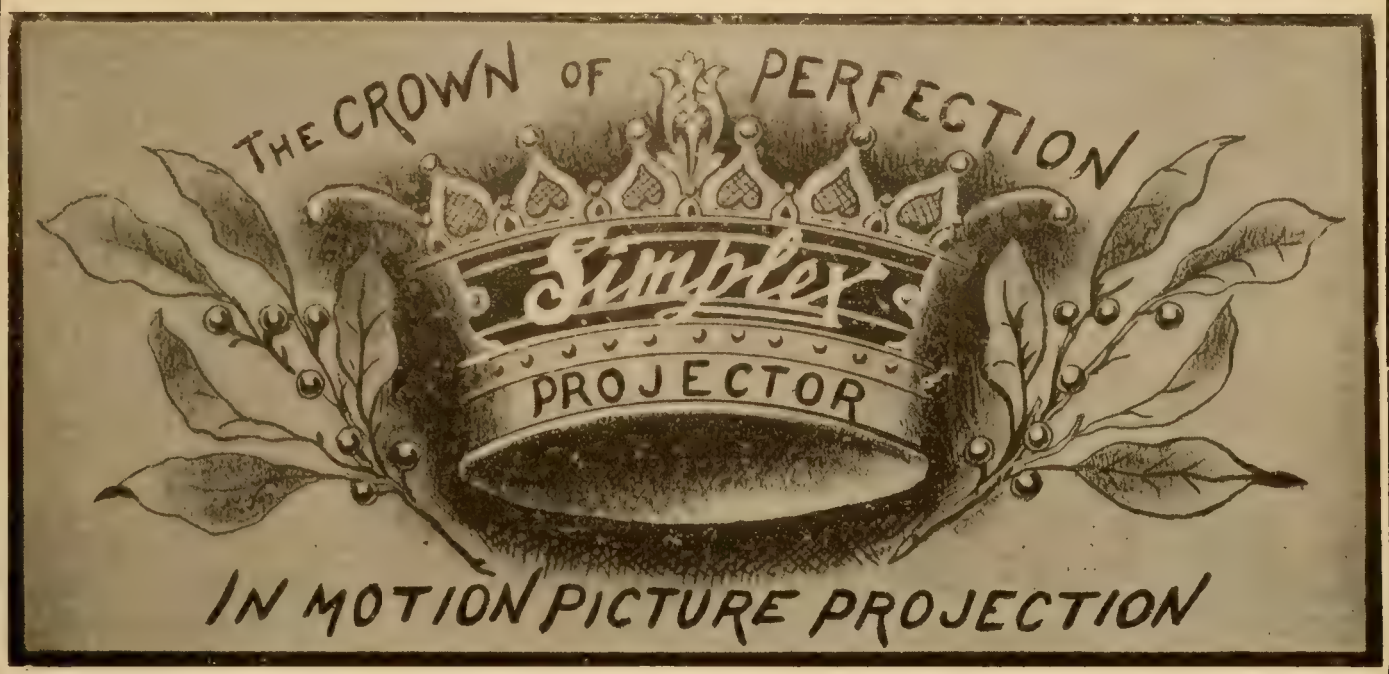
POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Goes Lithographing Co.....1718
Menger & Ring.....1722
Newman Mfg. Co.....1710

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Mch. Co.....1714
Enterprise Optical Co.....1737
Power, Nicholas, Co.....1744
Precision Mch. Co.....1729

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
D-D Screen Paint Co.....1716
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc.....1736
Gold King Screen Co.....1720
Minusa Cine Products Co.....1725
Pannill "Miro" Screen Corp.....1703
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc.....1702
Simpson, A. L., Inc.....1701

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.
Niagara Slide Co.....1676
Utility Transparency Co.....1736

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Decorators' Supply Co.....1739
Kinsilla, Edw. Barnard.....1725



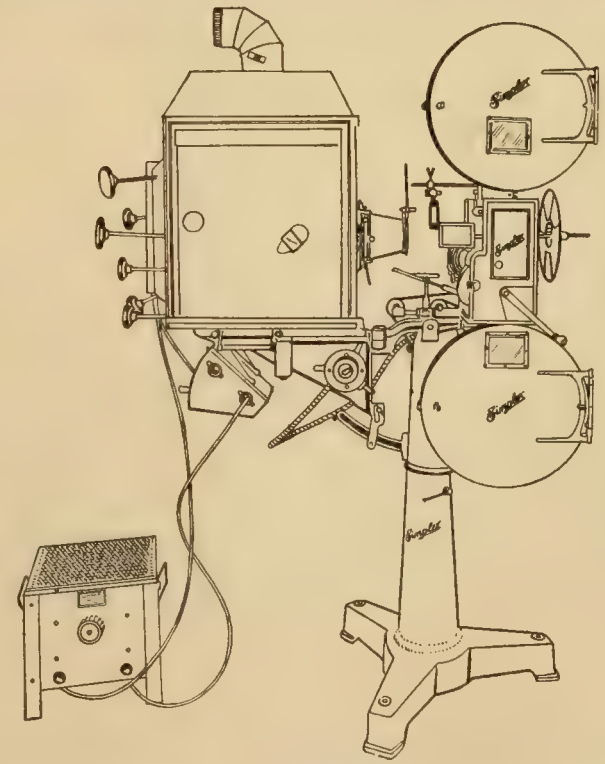
Simplex

demanded by Leading Motion Picture Theatres because of the FLICKERLESS PICTURES which it PROJECTS.

Simplex

The ONLY MACHINE on which it is possible to set the shutter while the machine is in operation.

SIMPLEX MACHINES used EXCLUSIVELY by "BIRTH OF A NATION" EXHIBITIONS



Simplex

PROJECTORS USED BY:

All the Theatres in the Chicago Loop District.

Simplex

Used in China, Canal Zone, Porto Rico, Philippine Islands, Hawaiian Islands, and in the Army Posts all over the United States and the World.

Over 90% of the Film Manufacturers use Simplex in testing their product.

ALL GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS DEMAND

Simplex

THE PROJECTOR THAT RECEIVED THE GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION

SEND FOR CATALOG "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1694, 1696.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Laemmle, L-KO, Rex.
Monday—Nestor, Red Feather, Universal Special.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor.
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Rex.
Saturday—Bison, Joker, Powers.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Feb. 9—Number 6 (Topical).
Feb. 16—Number 7 (Topical).
Feb. 23—Number 8 (Topical).
Mar. 1—Number 9 (Topical).
Mar. 8—Number 10 (Topical).
Mar. 16—Number 11 (Topical).

BIG U.

Feb. 10—No release this day.
Feb. 17—No release this day.
Feb. 24—A Beast of Society (Three parts—Modern—Drama).
Mar. 2—Shackles (Drama).
Mar. 16—The Fatal Introduction (Three parts—Drama).

BISON.

Feb. 12—His Majesty, Dick Turpin (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—A Recoiling Vengeance (Three parts—Animal—Drama).
Feb. 26—The Stampede in the Night (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 4—The One Woman (Three parts—Smuggling—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Quarter Breed (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 18—The Iron Rivals (Two parts—Railroad—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

Feb. 15—The Family Secret (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Feb. 22—The Dupe (Three parts—Underworld—Drama).
Feb. 29—Lord John's Journal (Adventures No. 4, "The Eye of Horus") (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 7—The Winning of Miss Construe (Three parts — Human - Interest - Comedy Drama).
Mar. 14—Born of the People (Two parts—Society—Drama).

IMP.

Feb. 11—The Trail of Wild Wolf (Two parts—North Western—Drama).
Feb. 15—Cinders (Drama).
Feb. 18—Plot and Counterplot (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 22—No release this week.
Feb. 25—I'll Get Her Yet (Two parts—Com.).
Feb. 29—Some Heroes (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Hoax House (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 7—Sunlight and Shadows (Western—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Doll Doctor (Two Parts—Modern—Drama).
Mar. 14—Her Invisible Husband (Comedy).
Mar. 17—Paterson of the News (Two parts—Newspaper—Drama).

JOKER.

Feb. 19—No release this day.
Feb. 26—Married on the Wing (Comedy).
Mar. 2—Love Laughs at the Law (Comedy).
Mar. 4—No release this day.
Mar. 11—No release this day.
Mar. 18—Muchly Married (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Feb. 6—No release this day.
Feb. 10—The Living Lie (Three parts—Drama of the Latin Quarters).
Feb. 13—Arthur's Last Fling (Comedy—Drama).
Feb. 16—As Fate Decides (Drama).
Feb. 20—No release this day.
Feb. 24—John Pellet's Dream (Comedy—Dr.).
Feb. 27—Her Greatest Story (Drama).
Mar. 2—The Heart of Bonita (Two parts—Mexican—Drama).
Mar. 5—The Blackmailer (Drama).
Mar. 8—The Windward Anchor (Drama).
Mar. 9—Lavinia Comes Home (Two parts—Heart-Interest—Drama).
Mar. 15—Lonesomeness (Drama).
Mar. 16—No release this week.
Mar. 19—No release this week.

L-KO.

Feb. 20—Twenty Minutes at the Fair (Comedy).
Feb. 27—Dad's Dollars and Dirty Doings (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 1—Blue Blood But Black Skin (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 5—Gertie's Awful Fix (Comedy).
Mar. 6—False Friends and Fire Alarms (Two parts—Comedy).
Mar. 12—No release this day.
Mar. 19—Live Wires and Love Sparks (Three parts—Comedy).

NESTOR.

Feb. 21—The Disappearing Groom (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Her Friend the Doctor (Comedy).
Feb. 28—Cupid Trims His Lordship (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Lion's Breath (Comedy).
Mar. 6—Their Only Son (Comedy).
Mar. 10—When Lizzie Disappeared (Comedy).
Mar. 13—The Deacon's Waterloo (Comedy).
Mar. 17—Across the Hall (Comedy).

POWERS.

Feb. 19—Uncle Sam At Work; No. 9, "Bureau of Weights and Measures (Educational).
Feb. 24—No release this week.
Feb. 26—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 10, "Preparedness" (Educational).
Mar. 4—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 11, "To Arms" (Educational).
Mar. 9—Warriors of the Air.
—A Romance of Toyland (Novelty).
Mar. 11—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 12 "The Heart of a Nation" (Educational).
Mar. 16—Sammie Johnsin, Strong Man (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Safety First (Educational).
Mar. 18—No release this day.

RED FEATHER PHOTO-PLAYS.

Feb. 21—Sons of Satan (Five parts—Detective—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Lords of High Decision (Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Target (Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—Terence O'Rourke in "The Pool of Flame." (Five parts—Drama).

REX.

Feb. 27—No release this week.
Feb. 29—No release this day.
Mar. 3—In the Heart of a Shell (Juvenile—Drama).
Mar. 5—Saved by a Song (Two parts—Dr.).
Mar. 7—No release this day.
Mar. 9—The Dumb Bandit (Drama).
Mar. 12—His Brother's Pal (Two parts—Detective—Drama).
Mar. 14—The Bold Bad Burglar (Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 17—The Cry of Erin (Drama).
Mar. 19—Behind the Curtain (Drama).

VICTOR.

Feb. 23—Madam Cubist (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 25—After the Play (Drama).
Mar. 1—No release this day.
Mar. 10—Their Act (Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 12—Love Spasms (Comedy).
Mar. 15—Orders Is Orders (Two parts—Dr.).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Feb. 21—Graft, No. 11, "The Illegal Bucket Shop" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Graft, No. 12, "The Milk Battle" (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Graft No. 13, "The Powder Trust and the War" (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—Graft No. 14, "The Iron Ring" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Beauty, Gaumont, Vogue.
Monday—Masterpicture de Luxe (5).
Tuesday—American (3), Falstaff.
Wednesday—Beauty, Thanhouser (3).
Thursday—Falstaff, Mutual Weekly, Masterpicture de Luxe (5).
Friday—Mustang (2), Cub.
Saturday—Masterpicture de Luxe (5).

AMERICAN.

Jan. 25—The Man in the Sombrero (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Jan. 28—A Sanitarium Scramble (Comedy).
Feb. 1—The Broken Cross (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 4—Mammy's Rose (Southern—Drama).
Feb. 8—Lillo of the Sulu Seas (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 15—A Modern Sphinx (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 22—Life's Harmony (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Feb. 29—The Happy Masquerader (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 7—The Silken Spider (Three parts—Society—Drama).

BEAUTY.

Feb. 13—Billy Van Deusen and the Vampire (Comedy).
Feb. 16—Ella Wanted to Elope (Comedy).
Feb. 20—The Battle of Cupidovitch (Comedy).
Feb. 23—Too Much Married (Comedy).
Feb. 27—Cooking His Goose (Comedy).
Mar 1—Johnny's Jumble (Comedy).
Mar. 8—The Gay Blade's Last Scrape (Com.).
Mar. 12—Persistent Percival (Comedy).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psycio—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Smugglers of Santa Cruz (Three parts—Seacoast—Drama).

CUB.

Feb. 4—The Defective Detective (Comedy).
Feb. 11—Jerry's Millions (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Too Proud to Fight (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Going Up (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Deseperate Chance (Comedy).
Mar. 10—Jerry's Big Game (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Jan. 18—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy).
Jan. 20—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy).
Jan. 25—Lucky Larry's Lady Love (Comedy).
Jan. 27—Beaten at the Bath (Comedy).
Feb. 1—A Clever Collie's Coming Back (Comedy).
Feb. 3—Harry's Happy Honeymoon (Comedy).
Feb. 8—Booming the Boxing Business (Comedy).
Feb. 10—Snow Storm and Sunshine (Comedy).
Feb. 22—Ruth's Remarkable Reception (Com.).
Feb. 24—Perkins' Peace Party (Comedy).
Feb. 29—Rustle Reggie's Record (Comedy).
Mar. 2—Maude Muller Modernized (Comedy).
Mar. 7—Oscar the Oyster Opener (Comedy).
Mar. 9—Ambitious Awkward Andy (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Jan. 30—See America First, No. 20, "St. Paul and Minneapolis" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 6—See America First, No. 21, "A Trip Through Duluth, Minn (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 13—See America First; No. 22, "The Home of the Lumber Jack" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with t' Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 20—See America First, No. 23, "Key West, Fla." (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 27—See America First, No. 24, Miami, Fla. (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy).
Mar. 5—See America First No. 26 (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).

(Mutual Realeses continued on page 1732.)

When You Buy a

Seeburg Pipe Organ

or

Self Playing Orchestra

You Are Buying

Satisfaction

Ask Any Owner

ADVANCE THEATRE
3948 North Robey Street
Our Daily Matinees Begin at 1:30 P. M.

Chicago, Feb. 22, 1916.

J. P. Seeburg Piano Co.,
209 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—During the eighteen months that I have had my SEEBURG, it has not given me one moment's trouble.

I hardly think that you have sold an instrument to any other theatre which has had to stand a more severe test, as my instrument is used continuously for ten hours daily.

I expect soon to show my favorable opinion of your instrument by purchasing another SEEBURG for my new theatre.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) CHAS. BUGG.

P. S.—The instrument made it possible to advance my prices from 5c. to 10c. The change was made the day the SEEBURG ORGAN was installed.

All Seeburg Owners Will Tell You---

They have solved the music question

J. P. Seeburg Piano Company

Manufacturers

1004 Republic Building, Chicago

BRANCHES:

New York	Boston	Philadelphia	Pittsburgh	Atlanta	San Francisco
127 W. 65th St.	M. Steinert & Sons 162 Boylston St.	923 Walnut St.	431 Liberty St.	85 N. Pryor St.	52 Turk St.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1694, 1696.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 1730.)

MUSTANG.

Feb. 18—When the Light Came (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Feb. 25—Double Crossed (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 3—Margy of the Foothills (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Mar. 10—Curfew Corliss (Three parts—Western—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Feb. 17—Number 59 (Topical).
Feb. 24—Number 60 (Topical).
March 2—Number 61 (Topical).
Mar. 9—Number 62 (Topical).
Mar. 16—Number 63 (Topical).

THANHOUSER.

Feb. 9—The Spirit of the Game (Three parts—Football—Drama).
Feb. 16—Outwitted (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 23—The Reunion (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—What Doris Did (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 8—The Cruise of Fate (Three parts—Society—Drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Feb. 12—The Soul's Cycle (Centaur—Five parts—Psychological—Drama) (No. 67).
Feb. 14—Life's Blind Alley (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 68).
Feb. 17—The Dead Alive (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 69).
Feb. 19—Silas Marner (Thanhouser—Seven parts—Drama) (No. 70).
Feb. 21—I Accuse (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 71).
Feb. 24—The Oval Diamond (Thanhouser—Five parts—Detective—Drama) (No. 72).
Feb. 26—The Craving (American—Five parts—Society—Drama) (No. 73).
Feb. 28—A Law Unto Himself (Centaur—Five parts—Western—Drama) (No. 74).
Mar. 2—Embers (American—Five parts—Sociological—Drama) (No. 75).
Mar. 4—The Heart of Tara (Centaur—Five parts—Oriental—Drama) (No. 76).
Mar. 6—According to Law (Gaumont—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 77).
Mar. 9—True Nobility (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 78).
Mar. 11—The Flight of the Duchess (Thanhouser—Five parts—Comedy—Dr.—No. 79).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Feb. 7—The Girl and the Game, No. 7, "Spike's Awakening" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—The Girl and the Game, No. 8, "A Race for the Right-of-Way" (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—The Girl and the Game, No. 9 (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Girl and the Game, No. 10 (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Girl and the Game, No. 11 (Two parts—Drama).

VOGUE.

Feb. 10—Paddy's Political Dream (Comedy).
Feb. 13—Igorrotes' Crocodiles and a Hat Box (Comedy).
Feb. 17—At the End of His Rope (Comedy).
Feb. 20—Heaven Will Protect the Woiking Goil (Comedy).
Feb. 24—Flooded With Trouble (Comedy).
Feb. 27—The Candy Cook (Comedy).
Mar. 2—Love, Dynamite and Baseball (Com.).
Mar. 5—All Balled Up (Comedy).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

BALBOA.

Feb. 26—The Red Circle No. 11, "Seeds of Suspicion (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 4—The Red Circle No. 12, "Like a Rat in a Trap" (Two parts—Drama).

GLOBE.

Feb. 14—Watching Flowers Grow (Educational).
Feb. 21—Along the Deschuten River (Scenic).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Feb. 4—New York (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 11—The Precious Packet (Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 18—The Shrine of Happiness (Three parts—Drama).

PATHE.

Feb. 28—The Iron Claw, "The Vengeance of Legar" (Two parts—Drama).

PATHE NEWS.

Feb. 19—Number 15, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 23—Number 16, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Feb. 14—Siberia, the Vast Unknown (Scenic).
Feb. 21—By the Zuyder Zee (Picturesque Holland) (Scenic).
Mar. 1—Siberia, the Vast Unknown (Scenic).

PHUNPHILMS.

Jan. 31—Luke, the Candy Cut-Up (Comedy).
Feb. 14—Luke Foils the Villain (Comedy).
Mar. 1—Rural Roughnecks (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Feb. 7—Hapless Happenings (Comedy).
Feb. 21—Starved to Death In a Restaurant (Comedy).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AUTHORS FILM CO., INC.

Feb.—Denise (Topnotch—Four parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Red Cross Nurse (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—Claudia (Topnotch—Four parts—Drama).
Feb.—Ten O'Clock Mystery (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Redemption of a Rogue (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—Paddy's Heroism (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—Under the Mask (Topnotch—Five parts—Drama).
Feb.—The Fatal Hour (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).
Feb.—The She-Wolf (Topnotch—Three parts—Drama).

BRAY-GILBERT SILHOUETTE FANTASIES.

Mar. 2—How Dizzy Joe Got to Heaven.
Mar. 23—Inbad, the Sailor, Gets Into Deep Water.

BLUE BIRD PHOTOPLAYS.

Feb. 28—Grip of Jealousy (Five parts—Dr.).
Mar. 6—Rupert of Hentzau (Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—The Strength of the Weak (Five parts—Drama).

CLARIDGE FILMS, INC.

Feb.—The Heart of New York (Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Feb. 13—The Fool's Revenge (Drama).
Feb. 20—Fighting Blood (Drama).
Feb. 27—The Witch (Drama).
Mar. 6—The Marble Heart (Drama).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS, INC.

Feb.—A Fool's Paradise (Six parts—Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Feb. 21—A Corner In Cotton (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—The Price of Malice (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Soul Market (Popular Plays and Players—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The Blindness of Love (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Feb. 21—Blacklist (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.).
Feb. 28—Diplomacy (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 2—Poor Little Peppina (Famous Players—Six parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—To Have and to Hold (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 9—Ben Blair (Pallas—Five parts—Dr.).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS.

Feb. 24—Bobby Bumps and His Pointer Pup
Mar. 9—Colonel Heeza Liar and the Pirates (Comedy).
Mar. 16—Farmer Al Falfa Invents a New Kite (Comedy).

PARAMOUNT—BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL—PICTURES.

Feb. 21—A Day With the West Point Cadet (Military).
Feb. 28—Our Middies At Annapolis (Military).

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS.

Feb. 13—No. 2, Theo. Roosevelt, Hugo Munsterberg, Zalud, J. R. Bray and others.
Feb. 20—No. 3, Major General Leonard Wood, former Secretary of War, Hugo Munsterberg, J. R. Bray and others.
Feb. 27—No. 4, Frederick Palmer, Hugo Munsterberg, J. R. Bray and others.
Mar. 6—(No. 5) Summer Days Near San Diego (Scenic).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week Feb. 20:
Honor's Altar (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
Hell's Hinges (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
Daphne and the Pirate (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Releases for week Feb. 27:
Don Quixote (Fine Arts—Five parts—Dr.).
The Last Act (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Dr.).
His Pride and Shame (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
Cinders of Love (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).

WORLD-EQUITABLE.

Feb. 28—The Price of Happiness (Equitable—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Pawn of Fate (World—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Passers By (Equitable—Five parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—As in a Looking Glass (World—Five parts—Drama).

V-L-S-E, INC.

Feb. 21—Kennedy Square (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 21—Mr. Jack a Hallroom Hero (No. 1 of Frank Daniels Comedies—Vitagraph).
Feb. 28—Her Bleeding Heart (Lubin—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Discard (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—For a Woman's Fair Name (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Mr. Jack Wins a Double Cross (No. 2 of the Frank Daniels Comedies—Vitagraph).

Jan. 3—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 1 (News).
Jan. 7—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 2 (News).
Jan. 10—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 3 (News).
Jan. 14—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 4 (News).
Jan. 17—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 5 (News).
Jan. 21—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 6 (News).
Jan. 24—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 7 (News).
Jan. 28—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 8 (News).
Jan. 31—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 9 (News).
Feb. 4—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 10 (News).
Feb. 7—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 11 (News).
Feb. 11—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 12 (News).
Feb. 14—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 13 (News).
Feb. 18—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 14 (News).
Feb. 21—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 15 (News).
Feb. 25—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 16 (News).
Feb. 28—Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 17 (News).

KLEINE-EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Feb. 9—When Love Is King (Edison—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—The Scarlet Road (Kleine—Five parts—Drama).

PREPARE YOURSELF

AGAINST CARBON SHORTAGE. WE OFFER YOU OUR

SPEER

Projector Carbons

AND GUARANTEE RESULTS

IDLE HOUR THEATRE
S. V. WALLACE, Mgr.,
Cambridge Springs, Pa.

February 4th, 1916.

Gentlemen:—

The hurry up order for carbons came through in good time and they seem to be even better than those you sent me in December.

I can cheerfully recommend them for I have no fault to find, and will have to be shown why I should pay more for the foreign make, when I can get the same results with "SPEER'S."

Yours truly,
(Signed) S. V. WALLACE, Manager.

FIRST COME FIRST SERVED

NET CASH PRICES

½x12, cored, pointed both ends, $37.50 per M. (1,000 in a case)
9/16x12, cored, pointed both ends, $40.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅝x12, cored, pointed both ends, $50.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
¾x12, cored, pointed both ends, $70.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅞x12, cored, pointed one end, $115.00 per M. (500 in a case)
1x12, cored, pointed one end, $150.00 per M. (500 in a case)

We Fill Sample Orders for 100 Carbons at 10% Advance on the Above Cash Lot Prices

TRADE MARK

Our Speer Carbons are absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction or money back

Speer Carbon Company Dept. "W"

(Makers of carbon for Electrical purposes during the past 25 years)

Saint Mary's, Pa.

For Sale by Leading M. P. Machine Distributors, Including the Following:

J. H. Hallberg, 36 East 23rd St., New York, N. Y.
E. E. Fulton Co., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Co., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 1694, 1696.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Selig, Vim.

Friday—Kalem, Knickerbocker, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Feb. 2—The Smugglers (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—A Chance Deception (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 36).
Feb. 9—The Iron Will (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—Just Gold (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 37).
Feb. 15—His White Lie (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—Pique (Three parts—Drama). Reissue No. 38).
Feb. 21—His Mother's Son (Drama) (Biograph
Feb. 23—The Guilt of Stephen Eldridge (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Burglar's Dilemma (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 39).
Feb. 29—What Happened to Peggy (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—The Indian (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—The House of Darkness (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 40).
Mar. 8—The Mystery of Orcival (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—The Lady and the Mouse (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 41).
Mar. 14—A Grip of Gold (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 15—The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary (Three parts—Comedy-Drama).

ESSANAY.

Feb. 5—The Primitive Strain (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Strange Case of Mary Page (No. 3, "The Web"—Two parts—Dr.).
Feb. 9—The Fable of the Grass Widow and Mesmeree and the Six Dollars (Comedy).
Feb. 12—Golden Lies (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—The Strange Case of Mary Page (No. 4—"The Mark"—Two parts—Dr.).
Feb. 15—Gold Dust (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 16—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
Feb. 19—Politeness Pays (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 5, "The Alienist" (Two parts—Dr.).
Feb. 22—The Bridesmaid's Secret (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 23—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 5 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Feb. 26—The Despoiler (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 6 "The Depths" (Two parts—Dr.).
Feb. 29—The Surprise House (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—Cartoon of City of London (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Mar. 4—Beyond the Laws (Three parts—Dr.).
Mar. 6—The Strange Case of Mary Page No. 7 "A Confession (Two parts—Dr.).
Mar. 7—The Intruder (Two parts—Drama).
Mar. 8—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 6 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
Mar. 11—A Man's Work (Three parts—Drama).

KALEM.

Feb. 9—The Darkest Hour (No. 12 of the "Stingaree" Series—Drama).
Feb. 11—The Trail's End (No. 16 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Feb. 12—The Peril of the Rails (No. 66 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Feb. 15—Ham Takes a Chance (Comedy).
Feb. 16—A Molar Mix-Up (Comedy).
Feb. 18—The Guiding Hand (No. 17 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Feb. 19—The "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (No. 67, "The Perilous Swing"—Drama).
Feb. 22—Ham the Diver (Comedy).
Feb. 23—Earning His Salt (Comedy).
Feb. 25—The Night Watch (Drama).
Feb. 26—Title not reported.
Feb. 29—Winning the Widow (Comedy).
Mar. 1—A Riddle in Rascals (Comedy).
Mar. 3—A Leap Year Wooing (Comedy).
Mar. 4—The Girl Telegrapher's Nerve (No. 69 of "The Hazard's of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Mar. 7—Maybe Moonshine (Comedy).
Mar. 8—When Hubby Forgot (Farce—Comedy).
Mar. 10—She Came, She Saw, She Conquered (Comedy).
Mar. 11—A Race For Life (No. 70 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Mar. 14—Ham Agrees with Sherman (Com.).
Mar. 15—The Eveless Eden Club (Comedy).
Mar. 17—A Flock of Skeletons (Comedy).
Mar. 18—The Girl who Dared (No. 71 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).

LUBIN.

Feb. 3—A Modern Paul (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 5—The Election Bet (Comedy).
Feb. 7—The New Janitor (Comedy—Unit Program).
Feb. 8—The Last Shot (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 10—Sold to Satan (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 12—Billie's Lucky Bill (Comedy).
Feb. 14—A Song from the Heart (Drama).
Feb. 17—The Uplift (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—A Temporary Husband (Comedy).
Feb. 21—The Repentant (Drama).
Feb. 22—Four Narratives (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 24—The Redemption of Helene (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 26—Billie's Revenge (Comedy).
Feb. 28—At the Doors of Doom (Drama).
Mar. 2—Her Wayward Sister (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 4—Hamlet Made Over (Comedy).
Mar. 6—Ophelia (Drama).
Mar. 6—A Change of Heart (Two parts—Dr.).
Mar. 9—Soldiers Sons (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Some Boxer (Comedy).
Mar. 13—The Butler (Comedy).
Mar. 16—The Gulf Between (Three parts—Dr.).
Mar. 18—Dare Devil Bill (Comedy).

SELIG.

Feb. 3—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 10, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 5—The Desert Calls Its Own (Western—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Dragnet (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 11, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 10—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 12, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 12—A Mix-up in Movies (Western—Com.).
Feb. 14—The Black Orchid (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 14—Selig-Tribune, No. 13, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 17—Selig-Tribune, No. 14, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 19—Making Good (Drama).
Feb. 21—Virtue Triumphant (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—Selig-Tribune No. 15, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 24—Selig-Tribune No. 16, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 26—A Safe Risk (Comedy).
Feb. 28—Selig-Tribune No. 17, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 28—The Grinning Skull (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 2—Selig-Tribune No. 18, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 4—The Uncut Diamond (Drama).
Mar. 13—The Regeneration of Jim Halsey (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—Selig-Tribune No. 21, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 16—Selig-Tribune No. 22, 1916 (Topical).
Mar. 18—Toll of the Jungle (Wild-Animal—Drama).

VIM.

Feb. 11—The High Sign (Comedy).
Feb. 17—One Too Many (Comedy).
Feb. 18—Pluck and Luck (Comedy).
Feb. 24—Bungles Inforces the Law (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Love and Lather (Comedy).
Mar. 2—The Serenade (Comedy).
Mar. 3—The Artist's Model (Comedy).
Mar. 9—Bungle's Elopement (Comedy).
Mar. 10—Their Wedding Day (Comedy).
Mar. 16—Nerve and Gasoline (Comedy).
Mar. 17—A Pair of Skins (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Feb. 12—From Out of the Past (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 14—You're Next (Comedy).
Feb. 18—In Arcadia (Comedy).
Feb. 19—The Man He Used to Be (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 21—Hughey, the Process Server (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Freddy's Narrow Escape (Comedy).
Feb. 26—The Road of Many Turnings (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 28—Her Bad Quarter of an Hour (Comedy—Drama).
Mar. 3—Tubby Turns the Tables (Comedy).
Mar. 4—La Paloma (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Pansy's Papas (Comedy).
Mar. 6—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Unit Program—Four parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Bittersweet (Unit Program—Comedy).
Mar. 10—Beaned by a Beanshooter (Comedy).
Mar. 11—The Human Cauldron (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 13—Putting Pep in Slowtown (Comedy).
Mar. 17—Freddy Aids Matrimony (Comedy).
Mar. 18—Miss Warren's Birthday (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Feb. 5—Bill Peters' Kid (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 12—From Out of the Past (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 19—The Man He Used to Be (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 26—The Road of Many Turnings (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 4—La Paloma (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Human Cauldron (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Miss Warren's Birthday (Three parts—Dr.).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Feb. 11—The Big Brother (Three parts—Dr.).
Feb. 18—The Child of the West (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 25—Who Knows? (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 3—The Master Smiles (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Slave of Corruption (Three parts—Drama).
Mar. 17—Mismates (Three parts—Drama).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle (Lubin—Comedy).
Feb. 7—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Feb. 7—The New Janitor (Lubin—Comedy).
Mar. 6—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Mar. 6—Bittersweet (Comedy).

Weickhardt Pipe Organ Music in conjunction with good pictures always draws crowded houses

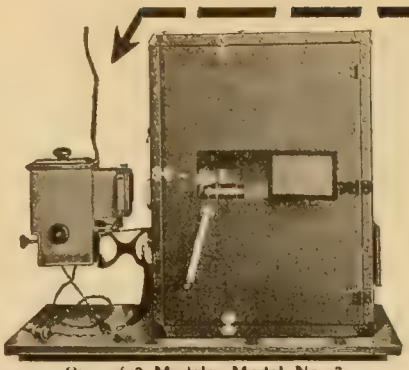
WRITE FOR OUR

THEATER ORGAN CATALOG

WANGERIN-WEICKHARDT CO.

112-124 BURRELL STREET

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN. U. S. A.



One of 3 Models—Model No. 3

HERE IT IS!!
A Portable STANDARD Motion Picture PROJECTOR
Price $135.00 Complete

The PORTOSCOPE

It is really portable—weight about 35 lbs. complete. Sturdily constructed. The Portoscope is a practical machine. It takes standard film—projects steady, brilliant pictures. Is absolutely flickerless. Equipped with either a 1000 C. P. incandescent lamp, arc lamp or calcium light. Takes 2 minutes to completely adjust ready for operation. Set on any table.

No Booth Needed

The Portoscope is absolutely safe. Mechanism is completely built into an asbestos lined carrying case. Film magazines are fireproof. Case door must be closed before operation is possible.

"Still" Pictures Safely Shown

The Portoscope Heat Eliminator allows only cool white light to strike film. Stop machine and examine detail in any picture without fire risk. Equipment includes Stereopticon Attachment.

Dealers

Just the thing you've been looking for. You can't afford to wait! Send today for attractive Portoscope Proposition. Secure your territory before it is too late.

Motion Picture-Scope Company
563 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

The film that first made motion pictures practical remains, to-day, through its consistent excellence, a big factor in their success.

It is easily identified by the stencil mark

"EASTMAN"

in the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Clear Pictures More Attractive Than Catchy Titles

The sensational title may attract the chance passer-by but the reputation for clear, vivid, sharply defined pictures is what makes the steady patronage.

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses produce the sort of screen pictures that bring the crowds coming day after day—the sharp, clean cut pictures that put across every detail of the story.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are the choice of experienced operators everywhere. You can get them through any film exchange.

Nicholas Power and Edison Machines are regularly equipped with our lenses.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

566 ST. PAUL ST., ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Leading American makers of Photographic Lenses, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), Microscopes and other high-grade Optical Products.

This Is What You've Been Waiting For!

"AT THE FRONT WITH THE ALLIES"

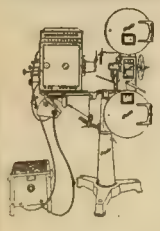
The Picture That Shows War AS IT IS!

DISTRIBUTED BY

HIPPODROME FILM COMPANY, INC.

(Telephone Bryant 8125)

H. S. CLARK, Manager
Room 501, 110 West 40th Street
New York City



We Never Disappoint

Particular exhibitors rely upon us for everything. They know our reputation for promptness and accuracy

Largest and Most Complete Stock of M. P. Supplies

Sole Southern Distributors SIMPLEX Projectors

LUCAS THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY
SUCCESSORS TO HARRY K. LUCAS
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W49.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

HANDY EQUIPMENT

Make'em Yourself Slides

These slides are written with pen and ink or on the typewriter, and they are neat and look well. Used for advertising slides, to announce future and feature programs, vaudeville and musical acts, etc. In fact, they may be used for anything you wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips of gelatin of four different colors—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Address all orders and remittances

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.
1733 West 9th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mirroroid Means Merit

Efficiency, Service and Profit for YOU

This statement is made without reserve, and the proof will be more profitable to you.
Let us send you a large, free sample of MIRROROID, the world's greatest projection screen. Test, compare and prove. The truth is that 9,500 exhibitors have already proven.

3 Tints	2 Finishes	One Price
Silver White Silver Flesh Pale Gold	Rough or Matte	36 1/9 cts. per sq. ft.

Patented June 9, 1908—Feb. 16, 1915
Yours for projection contentment,

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc. Newburgh, N. Y.

For Artistic Lobby Display

AND STAGE DECORATIONS

Install our Line of Artificial

FLOWERS, TREES, VINES, LEAVES, GARLANDS, WREATHS, PALMS

Estimates made and theatres decorated under contract by our expert.

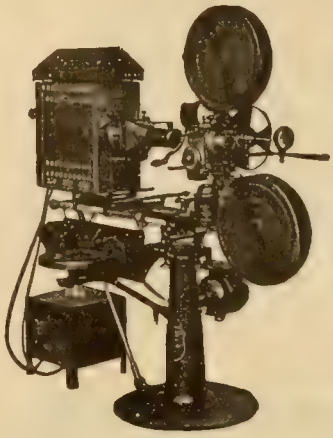
Our Thirty-two Page Catalogue No. 10, illustrating in colors the latest Artificial Flowers for Theatre Decoration, FREE.

FRANK NETSCHERT CO., Inc.
61 Barclay Street New York City

Opera Chairs
65c Each

Any part of 5,000 heavy 5 - ply Opera Chairs with wood arm rests and number plates. Good as new. Cost $1.35 each. Used only a few months. Must sell them immediately.

Lears Theatre Supply Co.
509 Chestnut Street, St. Louis, Mo.

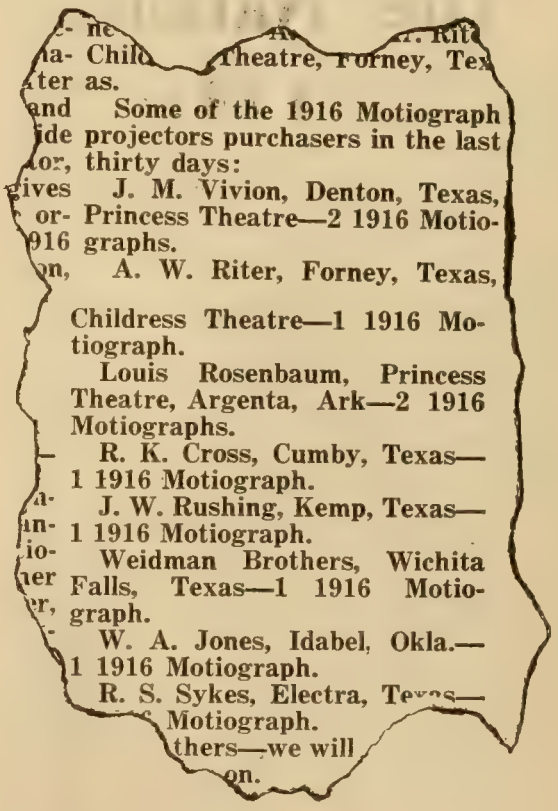


Why Close Your Eyes To Facts?

The Motiograph's

high standard of quality and superior projection makes it the ideal projector for all theatres.

(NEWS FROM TEXAS.)



...Theatre, Forney, Tex...as.

Some of the 1916 Motiograph projectors purchasers in the last thirty days:

J. M. Vivion, Denton, Texas, Princess Theatre—2 1916 Motiographs.

A. W. Riter, Forney, Texas, Childress Theatre—1 1916 Motiograph.

Louis Rosenbaum, Princess Theatre, Argenta, Ark—2 1916 Motiographs.

R. K. Cross, Cumby, Texas—1 1916 Motiograph.

J. W. Rushing, Kemp, Texas—1 1916 Motiograph.

Weidman Brothers, Wichita Falls, Texas—1 1916 Motiograph.

W. A. Jones, Idabel, Okla.—1 1916 Motiograph.

R. S. Sykes, Electra, Tex...—...Motiograph.

...thers—we will ...on.

If you want the best Projector and at the same time save a substantial amount on first cost, you must consider the Late Model MOTIOGRAPH.

Write for Literature.

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.
568 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office: 19 W. 23rd St., New York City
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Front

A Popular Plan

To increase your box-office receipts and meeting with Great Success!!

The National Film Star Spoons

offers to exhibitors a method whereby Wm. Rogers & Son silver spoons, together with our coupon plan will increase the popularity of your house.

Each spoon bears a reproduction of a popular star and the "fans" will want a collection of them. You, Mr. Exhibitor, can give them to your patrons at very little cost.

The advertising helps we will supply you with will create interest immediately without any effort on your part and automatically increase your attendance.

Write for free detailed explanation of our "Easy Path to Popularity"

Back

National Stars Corporation

1328 Broadway, New York

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland

THE QUALITY CARBONS OF THE WORLD
REFLEX D. C. CARBONS HAVE A SPECIALLY CONSTRUCTED NEGATIVE WITH COPPER COATED CORE

Have you tried REFLEX Carbons?
If not, send in your order now.

¾ x 12 Plain Cored, $10.00 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 12 Plain Cored, 7.50 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 6 Copper Coated Cored, $3.75 per 100 carbons
½ x 6 Copper Coated Cored, 2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with REFLEX carbons, send cash with your order, or instruct us to ship C. O. D., and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Write us for Descriptive Circular

JONES & CAMMACK

SOLE IMPORTERS

Corner Bridge and Whitehall Streets New York City

G. W. BRADENBURGH

802 Vine Street Philadelphia, Pa.

HER LIFE FOR LIBERTY
4 reels War 32-1/50-3/ 17-6/500 heralds $75.00
GOLDEN WEDDING
3 reels 6-1/ 6-3/ 6-6 ..... 50.00
GRANDMOTHER'S LAMP
3 reels 25-1/ 6-3/ 4-2/2-8 ..... 50.00
STREETS OF NEW YORK (Drama)
3 reels 20-1/ 10-3/ 5-6 ..... 60.00
MOVIE QUEEN (Drama)
5 reels Asta Nielsen, 12-1/15-3/6-6 ..... 100.00
HEART OF MIDLOTHIAN (Drama)
5 reels Hepworth, 24/1 18/3 18/6 ..... 100.00
POSSESSED OF A DEMON (Drama)
5 reels 24/1 24/3 18-6 ..... 100.00

One Thousand Single Reels at $3.00 and $4.00 each

PRICE LIST OF MUSIC

suggested in the cue sheet for the current Metro release

"THE SOUL MARKET"

Waldteufel—Woodland Dream Waltzes $0.90
Nevin—Oh, That We Two Were Maying .80
Friml—Katinka Selection 2.00
Densmore—La Gloria .80
Edwards—The Primrose Way .60
Hill—The Trombone Man .60
Meyer-Helmund—Dialogue .80
Lehar—Eva Waltzes 1.00
Albers—Basket of Roses 1.05
Onivas—La Coquette $0.75
Vecsey—Heartstrings .75
Gounod—Faust Ballet Music, Four Parts 2.00
Berger—Free and Easy .75
Adam—Liselotte 1.00
Jarnefelt—Prelude } 1.25
Schumann—Aria from the F Sharp Minor Sonata }

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to net amount. Quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

The numbers in the cue sheet preceded by an asterisk (*) refer to the Schirmer Photoplay Series a loose leaf collection of dramatic numbers specially written for motion picture use. Two volumes now ready.

Price per volume (containing 10 numbers): Small Orchestra, $3.20; full orchestra, $4.40. Each number separately, 60c., small; 80c. full.

G. SCHIRMER (INC.) 3 East 43rd Street New York City

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

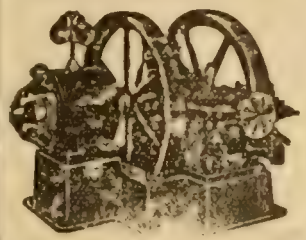
THE FOOS

ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANTS



3 to 400 H.P.
Make current for 2 cents per K.W.
Special Electric Engines 3 to 75 H. P., make current as cheap as a 5000 H.P. steam plant. Your central station bills will pay for an outfit in your theatre in 3 or 4 years.
Send for Catalog 98

We Want Your Orders for Machines and Supplies

We have some SPECIAL OFFERS that are worth writing for today.
Let us show you what you can save in the cost of equipment, supplies, etc., and how much better service you can give your patrons, how to increase your receipts and especially, we ask the privilege of acquainting you with the class of service that we give to the exhibitors.
We are LEADING DEALERS in all makes of machines and supplies for the Picture Theatre.
WRITE FOR SPECIAL OFFER TODAY
Amusement Supply Company
6th Floor, Cambridge Bldg.
N. W. Cor. 5th and Randolph, Chicago, Illinois
Distributors of the Motiograph, Power's, Simplex, Edison and other machines and Genuine Parts

We are not content to merely do your DEVELOPING
and
PRINTING
We want to be certain that you are thoroughly satisfied.
The Columbia Film Mfg. Co.
1514 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio

FOR SALE
MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS
Only complete one to be had, numbering 24,050; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.
1173 Film Exchanges $4.00
205 Manufacturers and Studios..... 1.50
235 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers. 1.50
Write for particulars
Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago
Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

Ornamental Theatres
Plaster Relief Decorations
Theatres Designed Everywhere
Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs
THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

GRINDEN
PERFECT
PORTABLE
SHEET STEEL PROJECTOR
BOOTHS
Warranted
Fire Proof

Developed from suggestions made by an expert operator and perfected through the introduction of a number of novel mechanical devices. Can be assembled in half an hour by one man.
Projection openings so arranged that by raising or lowering the shutter any pitch of the projection machine can be obtained and at the same time conform to the ruling of the authorities as to its size. Every opening may be tightly closed and automatically locked.
Can be packed in a crate 30 inches wide by 24 inches high by 6 feet 6 inches long, crate weighing approximately 100 pounds. Net weight of booth complete is 490 pounds.
For Prices and Complete Descriptive Circular Address
GRINDEN ART METAL CO.
419-427 Marcy Avenue Brooklyn, N. Y.

CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO. Inc.

1301 Race Street, Philadelphia

JOBBERS OF POWER'S, SIMPLEX, MOTIOGRAPH, STANDARD AND THE NEW EDISON DREADNAUGHT MACHINES AND GENUINE PARTS

No difference what screen you are using, we will improve your picture seventy-five per cent. Better light, greater depth of Focus with Rembusch Famous Crystal Fibre Screen. Seeing is believing. Let us prove to you by demonstrating. Special Eastern Agents.

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

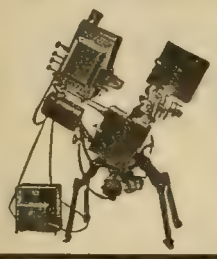
HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

128 West 46th Street NEW YORK — 1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO



"Follow the Bargains"

Get Erker's New Theatre Supply Catalogue and Supplement "S." It is just bristling with bargains for theatre owners.

Write Dept. "P" for prices on Developing and Printing of Motion Picture Films.

608 OLIVE ERKER'S ST. LOUIS

Estd. 1879

MUSIC SALE

I have a limited number of copies of music, written for about 20 productions. Each copy is from 12 to 26 pages in length. Original price 25 to 50 cents. I will close out entire lot FOR 10 CENTS per copy. Each one is different. Music is composed of old songs, original "Hurrys," Marches, Waltzes and Pathos. Two of the pictures are arranged for 4-piece orchestra. 5 cents additional required for these two for mailing. An assortment of copy of each one sent on request. Here's your chance for Original Music CHEAP.

W. C. SIMON, 50 W. 110th St., New York City

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

The most important Film Journal in Italy.

Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.

Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy.

Perfect Developing and Printing

FOR AMATEURS AND PROFESSIONALS IN ANY QUANTITIES

We guarantee quality plus prompt delivery and personal service

Prices, References and Factory Description Sent at Your Request

Industrial Moving Picture Co.

223-233 West Erie Street, Chicago

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.

For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.

For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation

American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush of "Moving Picture World"

85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.

Specimen on Application

THE BEST REASON IN THE WORLD FOR BUYING AN AUTOMATICKET SELLER IS WHAT THE 3800 USERS THINK, KNOW AND SAY ABOUT THE AUTOMATICKET SELLING SYSTEM

AUTOMATICKET

"USED WHEREVER TICKETS ARE SOLD"

We are specialists in the manufacture of Automatic Ticket Selling Machines and all kinds of Tickets

THE AUTOMATICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER CO
1735 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

American Film Laboratories, Inc.

"The Tiffany of the Film Trade"

THE FINEST FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIO IN THE WORLD

We are still doing the best work in the country and will continue to do so.

LOUIS B. JENNINGS
Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

EDWIN S. PORTER
Vice-President

69-71 West 90th Street — New York City

Telephone Riverside 1410

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs
immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have

50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK

in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and

IMMEDIATE SERVICE

Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered, kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY
General Offices: 1010 Lytton Bldg., Chicago
Sales offices in all principal cities

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th St. New York City

OPERA CHAIRS

1000 Styles
For every purpose
Established 1865
Write for Cat. No. 31

Branches in leading cities
1472 Broadway, New York
728 Mission St., San Francisco
512½ First Ave. So., Seattle
Broadway & Yamhill St., Portland

THE A. H. ANDREWS CO., 115-117 SO. WABASH AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

Are You Tired
of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection
contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3
Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

Anti-Censorship Slides

Four Slides		50c.
Six Slides		75c.
Twelve Slides	All Different	$1.50

Address
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City

Moving Picture Exhibitors and Theatre Managers. The fight against Legalized Censorship of Moving Pictures is your fight. Show these slides on your screen for the next few months and help create a strong, public sentiment against this unnecessary and un-American form of legislation. See page 1743 of our issue of March 20th for text matter. All slides neatly colored, carefully packed and postage paid.

"Keeping Everlastingly at it Brings Success"

Send your slide orders and remittance at once to

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y.

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR $3.00
SIX MONTHS..... $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....
Cut out and mail today. Theatre.....

QUICK RESPONSE TO THE GREAT CHARITABLE APPEAL OF THE

Motion Picture Campaign

[FOR THE

Actors' Fund of America

In its Stupendous Effort to Raise $500,000 in 15 Weeks

Marcus Loew B. S. Moss Aaron Jones

Titanic Triumvirate

Immediately volunteer percentages of receipts in their chains of vaudeville and moving picture theatres on Monday, May 15th, final and culminating day of the whirlwind, nation-wide movement.

Writing to Samuel Goldfish, Chairman of the Executive Committee, they voice these sentiments:

MARCUS LOEW—"Every person identified in any capacity with the moving picture industry should welcome the opportunity to put the Actors' Fund of America permanently beyond financial need. I know no more worthy human charity. The men and women of the pictures will be proud and prompt, I am sure, in responding to the call. It is in their power to establish a new record in the history of American benefactions, and their only chance to help their fellows of the spoken drama. And the picture loving public can show its approval by packing the theatres of the country on May 15th."

AARON JONES—"Success and good luck to this great philanthropic undertaking. It is with great pleasure that I donate ten per cent of the gross receipts from all of our theatres for the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund of America on Monday, May 15th, 'National Tribute Day.' I want to see every theatre in the United States keenly interested in the work of collecting $500,000 by May 15th. You will get the co-operation of everyone in the film business, especially exhibitors, regardless of any rivalry, because the object is so noble a one."

B. S. MOSS—"Consider me heartily in accord with all the other men in the film business in this humanitarian undertaking. I will do the best I can to foster and promote the campaign. It is with great pleasure that I offer what theatres are in our charge for the cause. Personally I thoroughly believe in this great philanthropy, I think the results will be immense, and that you will get the $500,000 by May 15th."

LET EVERY OTHER MEMBER OF THE INDUSTRY, IN WHATEVER CAPACITY, EXHIBIT AN EQUALLY LARGE HEART AND OPEN HAND AND SWELL THE GOLDEN FLOOD!!

Send contributions to Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, Treasurer, at the offices of the Finance Committee in Locust Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Executive Headquarters, Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors' Fund of America, Room 704, 30 East 42nd Street, New York City.

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, Chairman

LUBIN

Releases week of March 6th

March 6

"OPHELIA" ALL STAR CAST

ONE ACT DRAMA

March 7

"A CHANGE OF HEART"

TWO ACT DRAMA

March 9

"SOLDIER SONS"

THREE ACT DRAMA

March 11

"SOME BOXER"

ONE ACT

BILLIE REEVES COMEDY

GENERAL FILM LUBIN RELEASES

"SIXTEEN YEARS N.P.Co OF KNOWING HOW"

Power's Cameragraph

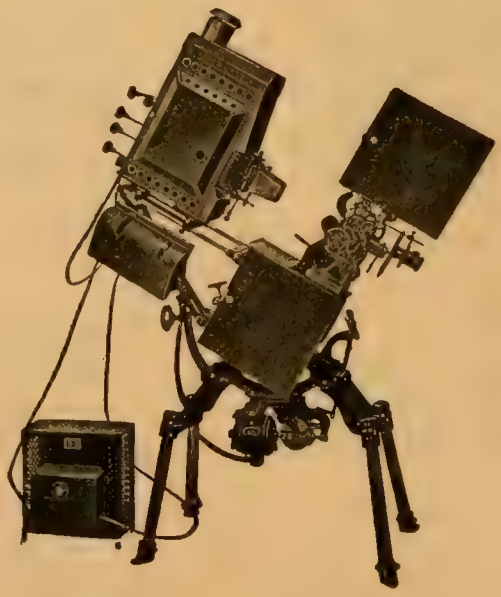
Has maintained its supremacy since the inception of the motion picture business through sheer force of merit. In it are to be found more good points than can be discovered elsewhere, and it approaches closer to absolutely perfect projection than any other machine.

PROJECTION

Power's has developed this to the highest point of efficiency, pictures without flicker, clear and steady.

PARTS

Interchangeable, easy of access and constructed of the best material that money can buy and all made by us, bearing our name and guarantee.



INTERMITTENT MOVEMENT

Exclusive with Power's, is many times stronger than any other make, longer period of picture on screen is obtained, films are better protected, and quicker of motion, and greater definition and clearer pictures are accomplished.

NO MORE DARK SCREENS

Power's Cameragraph is equipped with our patented loop setter device which will reset the lower loop automatically without stopping the machine.

These Are But a Few Points Which Make For

Power's Supremacy

Write for Catalog G

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 27, No. 11 March 18, 1916 Price 10 Cents

H. E. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "Ophelia" (Lubin).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MUTUAL PICTURES

EDWIN THANHOUSER

PRESENTS

THANHOUSER FILMS.

GRACE DE CARLTON

in

"The WHISPERED WORD"

A DRAMA OF UNUSUAL APPEAL AND CONVINCING PLOT.

THE CAST INCLUDES

WAYNE AREY & J.H. GILMOUR

STAGED IN 2 REELS BY WM. PARKE

RELEASED MARCH 15th.

FALSTAFF COMEDIES

THE FOLLOWING SINGLE REEL RELEASES

THEODORE'S TERRIBLE THIRST:

RELEASED MARCH 14TH

With FRANK E. McNISH AS CHIEF LAUGH-MAKER

RUPERT'S RUBE RELATION:

RELEASED MARCH 16TH

RILEY CHAMBERLIN AND WALTER HIERS

ARE THE RUBE AND HIS KIN

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.

New Rochelle, N.Y.

GLADYS HANSON

is presented in

"The Havoc"

in 5 acts

H. S. Sheldon, author
Arthur Berthelet, director

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY
V L S E

BLUEBIRD
'PINIONS

"Mary Fuller in 'The Strength of the Weak' at her positive best. Sets are magnificent."—New York Mail.

BLUEBIRD
Photo-Plays
(Incorporated)
The world's finest
Screen
Productions
Present

"The Yaqui"
with HOBART
BOSWORTH

A dramatic portrayal of an unusual Romance of the Mexican Border. Time, the present. Direction of Lloyd Carleton. Book through the Executive Offices of BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (Inc.), 1600 Broadway, New York, or your local BLUEBIRD Exchange.

Special music for all BLUEBIRD Photo Plays may be secured from your Exchange

BLUEBIRD 'PINIONS

Jeanne Dore—"To see this greatest of actresses in pictures is to see the best the screen can do in drama."—Newark Star Eagle.

BLUEBIRD
Photo-Plays
(Incorporated)
The world's finest
Screen
Productions
Present

Sarah Bernhardt in "Jeanne Dore." January 24.

Helen Ware in "Secret Love." January 31.

Ida Schnall in "Undine." February 7.

Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley in "Hop, the Devil's Brew." February 14.

Carter DeHaven in "The Wrong Door." February 21.

Louise Lovely in "The Grip of Jealousy." February 28.

"Rupert of Hentzau" with Jane Gail. March 6.

Mary Fuller in "The Strength of the Weak." March 13.

For bookings communicate with the Executive Offices of BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (Inc.), 1600 Broadway, New York, or your local BLUEBIRD Exchange.

Special music for all BLUEBIRD Photo Plays may be secured from your Exchange

RED FEATHER PHOTO PLAYS PRESENT . . . .
HOBART BOSWORTH
In a screen adaptation of BRET HARTE'S classic

"TWO MEN of SANDY BAR"

A tale of the days of '49
Direction of Lloyd Carleton . .
A RED FEATHER Play that will mean a RED LETTER DAY . . .

Book through your nearest UNIVERSAL Exchange

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS

PATHÉ'S

HIGHLY ORIGINAL and SUCCESSFUL SERIAL

THE

RED CIRCLE

HAS BROUGHT NEW LAURELS TO A POPULAR FAVORITE-

RUTH ROLAND

MADE A NEW STAR –

FRANK MAYO-

AND BECOME A TOPIC OF WIDE DISCUSSION BECAUSE OF ITS FASCINATING STORY OF ROMANCE AND HEREDITY. FURTHERMORE IT CONSISTENTLY PLAYS TO

BIG BUSINESS.

PRODUCED BY BALBOA IN FOURTEEN INSTALLMENTS

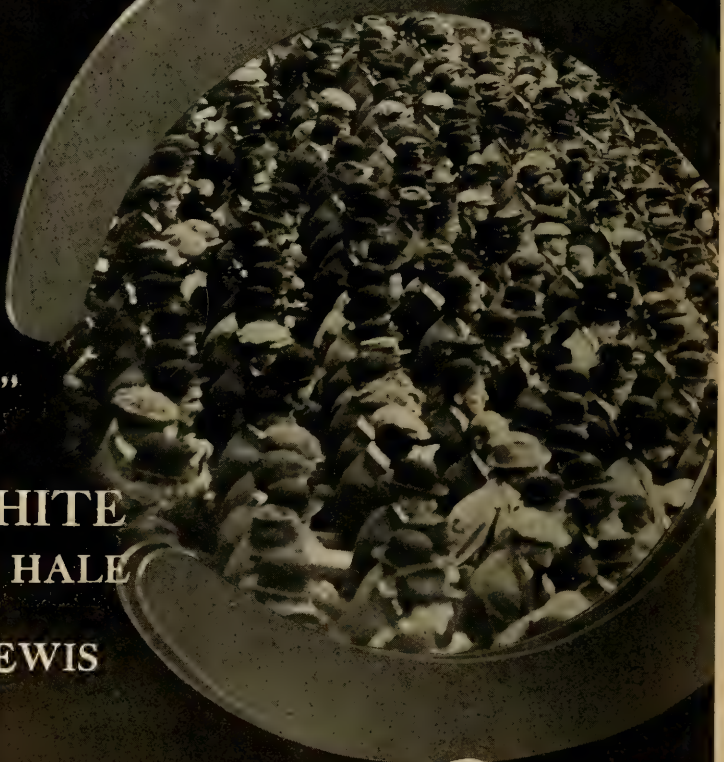
The PATHÉ EXCHANGE, Inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES 25 W. 45th ST., NEW YORK

$500,000 IN 15 WEEKS
MOTION PICTURE
ACTORS FUND
MAY 15th
NATIONAL TRIBUTE DAY

PATHÉ'S THE IRON WILL GRIP YOU

Take our word for it, this is the most sen



Featuring
the "ELAINE" favorites
PEARL WHITE
CREIGHTON HALE
and
SHELDON LEWIS

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

red-blood serial

CLAW

AND YOUR PUBLIC!

sationally dramatic serial ever produced.

Story by ARTHUR STRINGER.

Scenarios by GEORGE B. SEITZ.

Produced by the FEATURE FILM CORPORATION, and directed by EDWARD JOSE.

Advertised by the Newspapers everywhere.

14 installments of 2 parts each.

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES

NEW YORK

Lewis J. Selznick

Announces a

Publicity Service Department

For the Benefit of

EXHIBITORS

Mr. Selznick, President and General Manager of the Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, announces that he has organized a Co-operative Publicity Service Department for the individual exhibitor. It is not a profit making scheme; but a wise, carefully considered, co-operative way of helping you, Mr. Exhibitor. By this method the best brains of the artistic, engraving, printing and novelty-making world are placed at your service at a

Price You Can Afford for Distribution

THE OPENING GUN

This Department is now able to offer you a handsome, artistic and finished

Hand-Painted Photograph

of

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

(Size 5 x 7 Inches)

at the ridiculously low price of

ONE CENT EACH—THINK OF IT

The Broadway Strand Theatre of Detroit, Michigan, has ordered 10,000 of these handsome souvenirs at $10.00 per thousand. We will ship these to you at the same price,

$10.00 PER THOUSAND

(F. O. B. New York, Cash with order)

RUSH YOUR ORDER NOW

From time to time we will offer you, Mr. Exhibitor, novel, brainy, effective,

Publicity Bargains

The sort of "punch" ideas which get business and will be representative of the art and popularity of the greatest motion picture actress in the world

---

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG
FILM CORPORATION

Lewis J. Selznick, Pres. and Gen'l Manager

126 WEST 46th STREET NEW YORK

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

METRO
PICTURES CORPORATION
presents
MABEL
TALIAFERRO
in
HER GREAT PRICE
A Metro wonder play in Five Acts by June Mathis from the romance by Florence Auer
Directed by Edwin Carewe
Produced by
ROLFE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc.
Released
on the Metro Program
March 20th

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Union Labor Applauds Lasky Production

Everywhere in the United States that Blanche Sweet in "The Black-List" has been presented it has called forth unqualified endorsement from

Labor Leaders and Union Members

On Sunday night, March 5, "The Black-List" was presented by request to 2,000 persons at the LABOR FORUM, New York City. Representatives of the UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA were present. It was cheered and applauded as a Masterful, Throbbing, Dramatic Exposition

of

Capital and Labor

The word has been passed! Notify officers of labor unions in your city when you present "The Black-List."

They'll Do the Rest

LASKY PRODUCTIONS EXCLUSIVELY ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS, FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE (Ltd)

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO (Inc)

FOUR EIGHTY-FIVE FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

Jesse L. Lasky, Pres. — Samuel Goldfish, Vice-Pres and Treas. — Cecil B. DeMille, Director Gen.

PALLAS PICTURES

PRESENTS

DUSTIN FARNUM

IN

"BEN BLAIR"

SUPPORTED BY

WINIFRED KINGSTON

AND A STRONG CAST

RELEASED MARCH 9

PALLAS PICTURES

NEW YORK LOS ANGELES

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS THE FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE LTD. MONTREAL, TORONTO, CALGARY

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

Your Theatre

Should come to be known as the best theatre. You are working along definite lines and with a fixed policy for making it the best. You are "building up."

No matter how fine your house, no matter how cleverly you advertise, no matter how good your music, projection, stage setting and lighting, no matter how perfect your courtesy toward patrons—you must have a consistently high grade program.

Paramount Pictures

are produced up to a standard, not down to a price. They build!

Ask our nearest exchange

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Are These Coming To Your Theatre?

A Program like this makes you secure against real competition in any territory

MARCH

Mary Pickford	Poor Little Peppina	Famous Players
Mae Murray	To Have and to Hold	Lasky
Dustin Farnum	Ben Blair	Pallas
Fannie Ward	For the Defense	Lasky
Constance Collier	Code of Marcia Gray	Morosco
John Barrymore	The Lost Bridegroom	Famous Players
Hazel Dawn	The Sales Lady	Famous Players
Pauline Frederick	Audrey	Famous Players
Blanche Sweet	The Sowers	Lasky

APRIL

Lenore Ulrich	Heart of Paula	Pallas
Victor Moore & Anita King	The Race	Lasky
Marguerite Clark	Molly Make Believe	Famous Players
Wallace Reid & Cleo Ridgley	The Love Mask	Lasky
Mary Pickford	The Eternal Grind	Famous Players
Peggy Hyland	Mind-the-Paint-Girl	Famous Players
Marie Doro	In Service	Lasky

Write our exchange today

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Advertisements Are Appearing Like This:--

"A program supplied in its entirety by the Paramount Pictures Corporation, whose photoplays have been used uninterruptedly in this theatre since its opening."

The Stanley Theatre, Philadelphia.

Paramount Pictures

Released This Week

Jesse L. Lasky presents Mae Murray supported by Wallace Reid and an all star cast in a faithful representation of the historical romance

"To Have and To Hold" By Mary Johnson

Pallas Pictures present Dustin Farnum in a tense drama of human interest adapted from the famous story

Ben Blair

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures No. 5

Summer Days Near San Diego, California

The Wonderful Exposition—A The Dansant at Coronado Beach—The Bathing Beaches at Point Loma—then by motor across the Mexican Border.

Paramount-Bray Cartoon Comedies No. 10

Bray Studios, Inc.

"Colonel Heeza Liar and the Pirates"—The wily Colonel walks the plank and plays submarine with a shark—this picture would make the shark laugh.

Paramount Pictographs No. 4

Playing the War Game — By Frederick Palmer
Measuring Baby
Are you in the Right Job? — By Hugo Munsterburg.
Shadows worth Millions
Political Cartoon—J. R. Bray

Write our nearest exchange today.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Burton Holmes, the famous traveler and lecturer, will take you through California this month

Better every week—is the verdict everywhere. A high class short subject that helps to bring your entire performance up to the Paramount Standard.

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures

are attracting new patrons to theatres showing them. A class of people who do not usually attend photoplay theatres are being converted to this form of amusement and convinced of the pleasure in store for them through such short subjects as these.

"There's an idea behind this series."

See for yourself at our nearest Exchange

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

541A

STATE RIGHTS

THE BIRTH OF CHARACTER

A MODERN PSYCHOLOGICAL DRAMA

5 PARTS · 500 SCENES · 5,000 FEET OF SUSPENSE

IT'S STAR

WILLIAM COURTLEIGH

Starring Mr. William Courtleigh

SUPPORTED BY A CAST OF WELL KNOWN MOTION PICTURE PLAYERS

A STARTLING & STRONG STORY PRODUCED IN THE HIGHEST CLASS MANNER. STUPENDOUS SCENES & SETTINGS THROUGHOUT. A FEATURE AMONG FEATURES AND REPLETE WITH MOST STIRRING SITUATIONS. A DRAMATIC GEM WITH ALL THE "REPEAT DATE" QUALITIES WORTHY OF "FIRST RUNS" IN THE FINEST THEATRES. BIG IN THE TRUE SENSE OF THE WORD.

ONE OF IT'S THRILLING SCENES

COMPLETE LINE OF ADVERTISING— READY

THERE IS LOVE, ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE TOO

SOME TERRITORY STILL AVAILABLE ON "THE HEART OF NEW YORK" FEATURING ROB'T T. HAINES

ADDRESS

CLARIDGE FILMS INC. LONGACRE BLDG. 42ND ST. & B'DWAY. NEW YORK

A. EGAN COBB GENERAL MANAGER

CALIFORNIA

ANNOUNCES

An Unprecedented Opportunity for State Rights Buyers

Beatriz Michelena

and

Otis Skinner

In its

two forthcoming

BETTER-THAN-PROGRAM

Features

Beatriz Michelena

SUPREME IN EMOTIONAL ART

in

"THE WOMAN WHO DARED"

A Story of Love, Adventure and Political Intrigue

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON

Authors of the

"Lightning Conductor," "The Golden Silence,"

"My Friend, the Chauffeur," etc., etc.

To Be Released

in May.

By Arrangement with Alice Kauser

BEATRIZ MICHELENA
as The Woman

Otis Skinner

AMERICA'S FOREMOST ROMANTIC ACTOR

in

"KISMET"

A picturization of EDWARD KNOBLAUCH'S

Oriental Pageant-Drama

in which Mr. Skinner scored his Greatest

Stage Success.

To Be Released

in July.

By Arrangement with Alice Kauser.

OTIS SKINNER
as Hajj

"I can think of no play more magnificently equipped for picturization than Edward Knoblauch's 'Kismet,' as interpreted by Otis Skinner." EDWARD SHELDON.

"With its absorbing story and its gorgeous Oriental color, 'Kismet' should make an epochal motion picture. No subject that I know of is so well suited to the magic of the screen." MRS. FISKE.

Phenomenal Success Attends INITIAL RELEASE
by State Rights of BETTER-THAN-PROGRAM Features

"THE UNWRITTEN LAW"

A seven reel film dramatization

By EDWARD MILTON ROYLE
Author of "The Squaw Man," etc.

California Motion Picture Corporation

New York Offices:
(Temporary)
509 FIFTH AVENUE
Phone: Murray Hill 9791

Executive Offices,
Studio and Laboratories:
SAN RAFAEL
California

cene from the seven reel feature
"THE UNWRITTEN LAW"

Thos. H. Ince rehearsing Billie Burke in a scene for "Peggy"

Back of the TRIANGLE

TRIANGLE KAY-BEE

Back of the Triangle is the earnest desire to produce pictures that will meet the demands of the public and push cash through the box-office window—pictures the equal of such plays as "Honor's Altar."

In presenting Bessie Barriscale, the popular star in this picture and many other successes, we are meeting the public desire for an actress who has proved her worth.

TRIANGLE FINE ARTS

"His Picture in the Papers," the latest Triangle Play, in which Douglas Fairbanks appears, has been found a winner. Full of the personality and individuality of its star the success was instantaneous.

Douglas Fairbanks has already proved his worth both in meeting the popular demand and increasing box-office receipts. His is the kind of personality the public love.

TRIANGLE KEYSTONE

When it is known that "The Bright Lights," a late Triangle-Keystone release, again presented Mabel Normand and Roscoe Arbuckle, the financial success of the picture was assured.

The mere mention of the name Mabel Normand is an asset. The announcement of her appearance on the screen is often the sign for instantaneous applause.

TRIANGLE STARS

May Emory, the Triangle-Keystone star, has created more laughs in a moment than many an actress in a week. Miss Emory would be an asset to any house.

Clara Williams, the popular Triangle actress whose next appearance will be in "Hell's Hinges," has a following to which it would pay any house to cater.

TRIANGLE STARS

A star like Dorothy Gish, who has so many Triangle successes to her credit, has a decided drawing power. Her appearance means money for the exhibitor.

Dorothy Dalton is another Triangle star whose reputation is increasing by leaps and bounds every day. And reputation means box-office revenue.

TRIANGLE PLAYS
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
WITH LORETTA BLAKE
IN
His Picture in the Papers
Lillian Gish
in
Daphne & the Pirate
Did you know that not so many years ago the men in this country bought and paid for their wives.
"Daphne and the Pirate" the latest TRIANGLE PLAY is a gripping tale of those old-fashioned days. The thrilling tale of the lover who lost his sweetheart and finally found her again on the auction block will impress you.
Name of Theatre
Address

In addition there is back of the Triangle a competent Publicity Department to serve the interests of Triangle Exhibitors. The proper preparation of advertising material is given every attention.

Special Newspaper advertisements on each drama release have been prepared as well as attractive slides, heralds, lobby displays and other special displays.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
RECEIVED AT 24 WALKER STREET, NEW YORK CITY
ATLANTA GAFEB 28 1b
G114 AN TA43 NL 2EXA
J.N NAULTY
1457 BROADWAY NY CITY
PEGGY BROKE ALL MOTION PICTURE RECORDS FOR ATLANTA BIGGEST BUSINESS
SINCE OUR OPENING 5 YEARS AGO EXHIBITED TO ABSOLUTE CAPACITY
SIX DAYS LAST WEEK FORCED TO RUN MIDNIGHT PERFORMANCE GREAT MANY PEOPLE SAW PICTURE THREE DIFFERENT DAYS IT WAS SOME PICTURE
VAUDETTE THEATRE
UNO EVINS
1145/M
BILLIE BURKE
IN "PEGGY"
THE SWEETEST EVER

If you were running Triangle Plays you too would be sending in a telegram about the increased business which you have been doing—a word about the increased box office receipts.

And you too would probably be proud of a showing like the above. You'd enjoy watching the crowds at your Box Office window as they waited in line to increase your receipts.

Use this coupon for information about TRIANGLE PLAYS

Triangle Film Corporation, 1457 Broadway, New York City.
Gentlemen:

I am an exhibitor and am interested in the presentation of Triangle Plays. Please place my name on the mailing list for the Triangle Weekly and send me all other information.

Name ..... Theatre ..... Address ..... Capacity ..... series one

two reels

Harry R. Raver Presents

"AUSTRIA AT WAR"

CINEMATOGRAPHED FOR THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT
BY AUTHORITY OF
HIS MAJESTY
FRANZ JOSEPH

DISCLOSING FOR THE FIRST TIME
The AUSTRIAN SIDE OF THE WAR
IN VIVID AND STARTLING SEQUENCE

STATE RIGHTS GOING!

THESE EXCLUSIVE FILMS
WILL BE SNAPPED UP QUICK.

EVERYBODY IS WAITING TO SEE THE GREAT
AUSTRO-RUSSIAN STRUGGLE

NAME YOUR STATE - GET PRICE

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS RAVER FILM CORP. HARRY R. RAVER PRES. 110 WEST 40TH ST. NEW YORK

SHUBERT FILM CORPORATION Presents

HOLBROOK BLINN

IN

"The Unpardonable Sin"

¶ "The Unpardonable Sin" Is An Unusual Feature In Every Sense. ¶ The star is the most eminent in his profession. ¶ The direction is faultless, the photography superb. ¶ This photo-drama is fairly galvanic with swift-moving vivid action. ¶ Pronounced to be another Holbrook Blinn triumph. ¶ "The Unpardonable Sin" tells the stirring, heart-moving story of a man's fall, his rise, his betrayal and final regeneration through the power of a great love. ¶ Scenes in Modern New York Society and in the marts of big business

WORLD AND EQUITABLE FEATURES ARE

First—Each is headed by a noted star of proven drawing power.

Second—Each is based upon a really worth while book or play or an original scenario by a noted author.

Third—Each is staged by a master craftsman of the fine art of screen production.

RELEASED THROUGH WORLD FILM

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORP'N Presents II

JANE GREY

IN

"Man and His Angel"

¶ "Man and His Angel" stars that most popular and winsome of all actresses Jane Grey, who was a famed artist of the dramatic "boards" before making her premiere on the silent stage. ¶ Every exhibitor playing this feature is bound to reap a golden harvest and enhance his reputation for presenting photo-dramas that are worth while. ¶ The story deals powerfully with a theme of universal appeal ¶ Strong climaxes, a consistent, interesting plot, and a splendid supporting cast contribute to make "Man and His Angel" a screen play supreme.

TRIUMPH FILM CORPORATION PRODUCTION

SUPREME FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

Fourth—The photography is brilliant and perfect.

Fifth—Our pictures once shown create comment that results at once in a marked benefit to exhibitors' receipts.

Sixth—A theatre showing World and Equitable Features places itself automatically in the class where when people speak of "going to the movies" it is your "movies" they are thinking of.

CORPORATION

130 WEST 46th STREET NEW YORK

"The WITCH Of The MOUNTAINS"

FEATURING

MARGUERITE NICHOLS

Release for March 24

A Startling Adventure in a Trail of Treachery

MYSTERY—ROMANCE—TRAGEDY—INTRIGUE

------ Three-Part Features -------

"THE HOME-BREAKERS"

FEATURING

MARGARET LANDIS

Release for March 31

An absorbing drama of everyday life; Honest ambition rewarded with a success that is coveted by social vultures, who prey upon the innocent.

One, Three and Six Sheet Posters for all Features

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

VIM

COMEDY FILMS

The Pick of Comedies for Particular Programs

Thursday, March 23

"BUNGLES LANDS A JOB"

Bungles, while seeking work, finds something worse.

Friday, March 24

"POKES AND JABBS"

in

"BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS"

with

BURNS AND STULL

Pokes, the Property Man, and Prof. Jabbs, the "Escape King," in a mix up involving a famous singer, Lily Lemon.

Thursday, March 30

"PLUMP AND RUNT"

in

"THEIR VACATION"

A vacation which proves more damaging than hard work.

Friday, March 31

"POKES AND JABBS"

in

"ANVILS AND ACTORS"

Pokes, the blacksmith apprentice, and Jabbs, a would-be actor, try rough shod methods with Ethel, the blacksmith's daughter.

One and Three Sheet Posters for all 'Vims'

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

LUBIN

Releases week of March 13

MARCH 13

"THE BUTLER"

DAVY DON

(ONE REEL COMEDY)

MARCH 16

"THE GULF BETWEEN"

(THREE ACT DRAMA)

BILLIE REEVES COMEDY

(ONE ACT)

"DARE DEVIL BILL"

GENERAL FILM LUBIN RELEASES

The Strange Case of MARY PAGE

It Has Set a New Record For Series Productions

WHY?

Henry Walthall and Edna Mayo Are the Stars
The Story Is a Splendid Tale of Love and Mystery
Lucile (Lady Duff Gordon) Designed the Gowns
A Tremendous Advertising Campaign Is Behind It

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

George K. Spoor, President

The Most Successful Program Is a Varied One

ESSANAY'S SHORT SNAPPY SUBJECTS

JOYCE'S STRATEGY

2 act drama — March 14

presenting

JOYCE FAIR
DARWIN KARR
and LILLIAN DREW

★★★

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK OF PHILADELPHIA

One reel with scenic — March 15

★★★

UNKNOWN

3 act drama — March 18

presenting

MARGUERITE CLAYTON
and RICHARD C. TRAVERS

Released through the General Film Co.

ESSANAY'S GREAT FEATURE PLAYS

Vultures of Society
The Misleading Lady
Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines
A Daughter of the City
The Alster Case
The Raven
The Crimson Wing
The Man Trail
A Bunch of Keys
The Blindness of Virtue
In the Palace of the King
The White Sister
The Slim Princess
Graustark

Released through the V. L. S. E.

COMING

a new

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN

"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

"The Ne'er-Do-Well"

By Rex Beach

—with all its depth of love and soft, sweet tropic beauty, and fiendish jealousy and black intrigue—with the naked passions of men and women bared before you as only Rex Beach can bare them—with its hero football player from New York ensnared alike by the dazzling Southern beauty, "Chiquita," and the seductive Edith Cortlandt, WIFE OF THE "OTHER MAN."

"In return I give you my wife-You've always had her-Now She's Yours"

"Kirk Anthony's pulses pounded to a thrill he'd never known before. Cortlandt's wife lay in his arms. Her face was close to his; her lips within his reach."

Produced by SELIG in Panama
With Kathlyn Williams and "The Spoilers" Cast

This play is Selig's greatest masterpiece since "The Spoilers." The profits that were made on "The Spoilers" will be duplicated on "THE NE'ER-DO-WELL."

10 THRILLING ACTS

For Bookings or Circuit Rights, Address

SOL L. LESSER, Sole Owner U. S. Rights
218 W. 42nd Street, NEW YORK CITY

POSTERS BY

LL
24 SHEET

EE
3 SHEET

GG
6 SHEET

SELIG Presents Rex Beach's Stirring Story
"THE NE'ER-DO-WELL"
SCENES FILMED IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE!
A WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO "THE SPOILERS."

II
8 SHEET

AA
1 SHEET

BB
1 SHEET

Goes Lithographing Co.
CHICAGO - NEW YORK

Presents Rex Beach's Stirring Story
NE'ER-DO-WELL"
THE EXCEPTIONAL COMPANY OF SELIG
ERS WHO MADE THE SPOILERS' FAMOUS, INCLUDING
LYN WILLIAMS, WHEELER OAKMAN, EUGENIE BESSERER,
LONSDALE, FRANK CLARK, AND SIDNEY SMITH
THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE! A WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO THE SPOILERS!

SELIG Presents Rex Beach's Stirring Story
"THE NE'ER-DO-WELL"
FEATURING THE EXCEPTIONAL COMPANY OF SELIG PLAYERS WHO MADE "THE SPOILERS" FAMOUS INCLUDING KATHLYN WILLIAMS WHEELER OAKMAN, EUGENIE BESSERER, HARRY LONSDALE FRANK CLARK AND SIDNEY SMITH.
SCENES FILMED IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE
A WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO "THE SPOILERS"
FF

3 SHEET

JJ
CARD

KK
CARD

SELIG Presents Rex Beach's Stirring Story
THE NE'ER-DO-WELL
FEATURING THE EXCEPTIONAL COMPANY OF SELIG PLAYERS WHO MADE THE SPOILERS FAMOUS INCLUDING KATHLYN WILLIAMS, WHEELER OAKMAN, EUGENIE BESSERER, HARRY LONSDALE, FRANK CLARK AND SIDNEY SMITH
"In return I give you my world! You've got her option and now she's yours!"

GG 1 SHEET

HH

6 SHEET

— Selig's Stupendous 10 Act Film of Rex Beach's

"THE NE'ER-DO-WELL"

"Kill the American."

"From Your Lover."

PLAYED TO

132,450

PAID ADMISSIONS

AT ADVANCED PRICES

in a three week's run at Clune's 3,000 Seat Auditorium, Los Angeles. On its opening night in San Francisco, it topped the opening night of "THE SPOILERS." Los Angeles and San Francisco are the only cities in which it has been shown. All America is waiting for it.

This Passion-Throbbing Film is the Successor to Rex Beach's Other Great Success

"THE SPOILERS"

It is even greater than "The Spoilers." Its flights of sweet romance are higher—its depths of dastardly intrigue are blacker—its action and its risks and dangers more overwhelming.

The great success of "The Spoilers" is fresh in the minds of the public, and the success of "THE NE'ER-DO-WELL" will be even more phenominal.

LARGE THEATRES OR CIRCUITS WHO WANT THE GREATEST ATTRACTION OF THE YEAR—Address

SOL L. LESSER, Sole Owner U. S. Rights

218 W. 42nd Street. NEW YORK CITY.

AN ADVERTISEMENT ON V-L-S-E BY A DISINTERESTED BUSINESS INVESTIGATOR

BY HENRY HALE, JR.
THE ETHRIDGE CO., NEW YORK

I LIKE the way V-L-S-E is working with the exhibitor.

In my experience, I cannot recall any manufacturer in any line, who has had the interest of their retailers as much at heart, as has V-L-S-E.

The "Open-Booking" Plan and "Minimum and Maximum" Price Policies; the sales promotion system; the advertising and publicity departments; the methods prescribed for salesmen—all favor the exhibitor.

This company insists that an exhibitor shall make money, not simply on some of their productions, but on every one of them.

To insure this, they leave the door wide open for an exhibitor to select the pictures which are best suited to his needs.

Then they go a step further and grade the price on each picture according to its box office value to the individual exhibitor showing it.

In other words, V-L-S-E is operated from the exhibitor's viewpoint, rather than from the manufacturer's, to the end that every release of this organization shall be an absolute guarantee of profit to every exhibitor.

V. L. S. E. Inc.

"THE HUNTED WOMAN"

is both huntress and hunted, who goes from a loveless marriage in torpid India to a heart healing adventure in the desolate North

Featuring

S. RANKIN DREW

and

VIRGINIA PEARSON

A powerful picture of a woman who strives and of men who dare

Based on the novel of the same name by James Oliver Curwood

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

"A Thoroughly Good Drama"

is the manner in which "The Moving Picture World" describes that most spectacular picture,

"THE GODS OF FATE"

Featuring

ROSETTA BRICE

and

RICHARD BUHLER

"The story rings true, and natural acting brings out the human qualities of the characters," continues the reviewer. "Seemingly, the producer determined to make this a strong picture at any cost."

"Motion Picture News" characterizes the picture as one which will find "widespread favor." "Two remarkably realistic scenes," says that publication, "a factory fire and a head-on collision, cause the spectator to hold his breath."

"These spectacular scenes," says "Motography," "have a real place in a story dealing with convincing people and interesting situations."

LUBIN FEATURE

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

WILLIAM
N. SELIG

Takes Pleasure in Introducing to Lovers of SELIG RED SEAL PLAYS Charming

FRITZI BRUNETTE

Filmland's Most Vivacious Star, in James Oliver Curwood's Most Intense and Moralistic Drama in Five Spectacular Reels.

"UNTO THOSE WHO SIN"

"The Wages of Sin Are Death"

SELIG

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG
U.S. PAT OFF

THE DISCARD

in 5 Acts

By Charles Michelson

Presenting

VIRGINIA HAMMOND

Famous Frohman Star

ERNEST MAUPAIN

and

HARRY BEAUMONT

A powerful drama of life beyond the pale.

A story of international swindlers, who play the game for millions, risking life and fortune on the throw of a die.

Stirring the depths of emotion by showing how mother-love reclaims a woman sunken to the depths of crime and degradation.

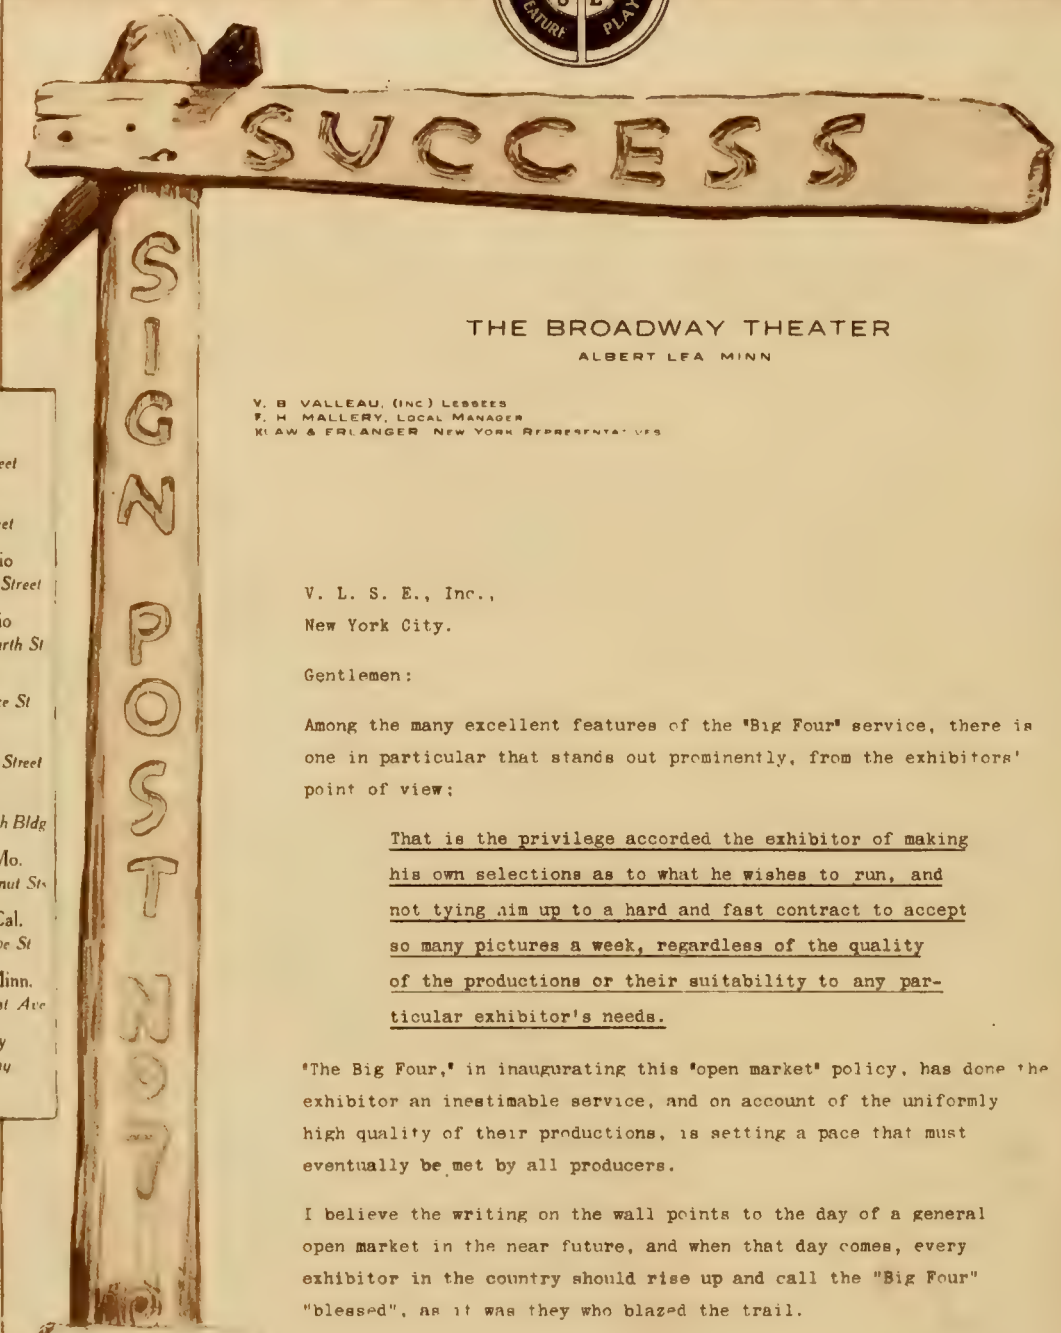
Directed by
Lawrence Windom

Essanay

"FIRST TO STANDARDIZE PHOTOPLAYS"

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY
V L S E
LUBIN



Atlanta, Ga.
75 Walton Street
Boston, Mass.
67 Church Street
Cincinnati, Ohio
129 West 7th Street
Cleveland, Ohio
2077 East Fourth St
Dallas, Texas
1900 Commerce St
Denver, Col.
1433 Champa Street
Detroit, Mich.
502 Peter Smith Bldg
Kansas City, Mo.
12th and Walnut Sts
Los Angeles, Cal.
644 South Olive St
Minneapolis, Minn.
608 North First Ave
New York City
1600 Broadway

THE BROADWAY THEATER
ALBERT LEA MINN

V. B. VALLEAU, (INC.) LESSEES
F. H. MALLERY, LOCAL MANAGER
KLAW & ERLANGER NEW YORK REPRESENTATIVES

V. L. S. E., Inc.,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

Among the many excellent features of the "Big Four" service, there is one in particular that stands out prominently, from the exhibitors' point of view;

> That is the privilege accorded the exhibitor of making his own selections as to what he wishes to run, and not tying him up to a hard and fast contract to accept so many pictures a week, regardless of the quality of the productions or their suitability to any particular exhibitor's needs.

"The Big Four," in inaugurating this "open market" policy, has done the exhibitor an inestimable service, and on account of the uniformly high quality of their productions, is setting a pace that must eventually be met by all producers.

I believe the writing on the wall points to the day of a general open market in the near future, and when that day comes, every exhibitor in the country should rise up and call the "Big Four" "blessed", as it was they who blazed the trail.

Very truly yours,

V. B. Valleau, Inc.,

Valleau

Philadelphia, Pa.
229 North 12th St
Pittsburgh, Pa.
117 Fourth Avenue
San Francisco, Cal.
986 Market Street
Salt Lake City, Utah
129 E. 2nd South St
St. Louis, Mo.
3630 Olive Street
Seattle, Wash.
415 Olive Street
Washington, D. C.
811 E Street, N. W.
New Orleans, La.
610 Canal Street
Toronto, Ont., Can.
15 Wilton Avenue
Syracuse, New York
117 Walton Street
Montreal, Canada
204 St. Catherine St.

"I know not how to govern our own course save by the proven experience of others."

GUARANTEED SELECT FILMS

V.L.S.E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REGISTERED U.S. PAT. OFF.

HEARST-VITAGRAPH

HV

THE GREATEST NEWSPAPER

In the world is published by THE HEARST SYNDICATE and THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

It is known as the HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS REEL.

Its reporters circle the globe.

Its news is up to the minute.

Its photographs are the finest in the world.

On Tuesday, February 22nd, a New Haven engine smashed into the rear of a passenger train. Ten people were killed.

On Friday, February 25th, hundreds of thousands of people in the United States saw the accident only a few hours after it happened.

A few days ago Fall River, Massachusetts, suffered a two million dollar fire loss.

Before the fire was extinguished, pictures of the conflagration were being viewed by the patrons of hundreds of successful exhibitors.

But there's a reason :

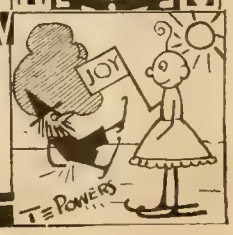
HEARST-VITAGRAPH has camera men in every section of the world—who are eager, alert and daring. There is no task too difficult and no task too dangerous.

It is no wonder that successful exhibitors DEMAND the HEARST-VITAGRAPH NEWS REEL and will take no other.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

RELEASED TWICE A WEEK
Through the V-L-S-E

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS



VITAGRAPH

EXHIBITORS ARE LAUGHING AT
"THE ESCAPADES OF MR. JACK"

Partially because they love to see
MR. JACK in his toils and dilemmas on the screen—but mainly because their box offices are working overtime.
Results count—and the MR. JACK Comedies count double.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY and the HEARST SYNDICATE
offer

"THE ESCAPADES OF MR. JACK"

These One Reelers are Guaranteed Comedies
ONE A WEEK—
EVERY MONDAY
Following the Syndicate Stories in all the HEARST SUNDAY PAPERS

Featuring
THE WORLD'S SUPERLATIVE COMEDIAN
FRANK DANIELS
The Maker of a Million Laughs a Day

This Week's Adventure
"MR. JACK, THE HASH MAGNATE"

A slippery farce that takes a hash foundry operator into the Four Hundred—BUT it also takes him—
Back to Lizzie and the biscuits and the beans.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

Released Monday, March 13th
Through the V. L. S. E.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

"The Two Edged Sword"

Is not used by battling warriors—
But by a woman who seeks revenge—
By a woman who uses her sexual charm—
To pierce the heart of a man.

But—

"The Two Edged Sword"

Cuts deep the hand that wields—
Until illusion is banished—
And Life and its Greater Lesson—
Are viewed through the light
Of deep purple.

This Five-Part

Blue Ribbon Release

Features
The Superb Actress

Edith Storey---

Who won the love of millions
In "The Island of Regeneration"

Released March 27th
Through the V. L. S. E.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

THE REGULAR VITAGRAPH PROGRAM

For the week
Commencing March 13th
Presents
Wally Van in a
Side splitting comedy
For Monday.
Regular Weekly Release of "The Freddy Series"
On Friday
And a
Three-part
Broadway Star Feature
With Joseph Kilgour and
An all star cast
For Saturday.

REGULAR RELEASES

"Putting the Pep in Slowtown"

One-part Comedy, Monday, Mar. 13th,
Presenting:
Wally Van, William Shea and Zena Keefe

"Freddy Aids Matrimony"

One-part Comedy, Friday, Mar. 17th,
Presenting:
William Dangman, Daisy De Vere,
Jack O'Donnell, William Lyttel, Jr. and Tod Tolford

"Miss Warren's Brother"

Three-part Drama, Saturday, Mar. 18th,
Broadway Star Feature
Presenting:
Joseph Kilgour, Arline Pretty,
Robert Whitworth, Charles Kent,
Arthur Cozine and Huntly H. Gordon

Released through the General Film Company

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
PRESENTS
REGINA WETHERGREN
THE NORWEGIAN SARAH BERNHARDT
IN "THE MOTHER WHO PAID"
FORCEFULLY DEPICTING A MOTHERS SUPREME RENUNCIATION OF HER NAMELESS CHILD SUPPORTED BY AN ALL STAR CAST
TERRITORIAL RIGHTS TO THIS EXTRAORDINARY PRODUCTION NOW AVAILABLE WRITE OR WIRE AT ONCE FOR OUR ATTRACTIVE PROPOSITION
A SUPERB PRODUCTION IN FIVE FASCINATING ACTS
GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
110 WEST 40TH ST. NEW YORK, N.Y.

GEORGE KLEINE

The Mishaps of Musty Suffer

(Produced by LOUIS MYLL)

Featuring HARRY WATSON, JR.

"A Bull's eye hit! They were greeted with storms of laughter in all my theatres."
Alfred Hamburger, Chicago

"Strand Theatre patrons are ultra-critical; and the way they welcomed 'Musty Suffer' is the best evidence in the world that you've made a winner!"
W. A. TRUE, Treasurer,
Strand Theatre, Hartford, Conn.

"We promised patrons of our theatres the best film comedy ever produced. We thought we could make good. Now we know we did!"
WALTER M. HOFFMAN,
Bijou Theatre, Orange, N. J.

"Along About After Awhile"

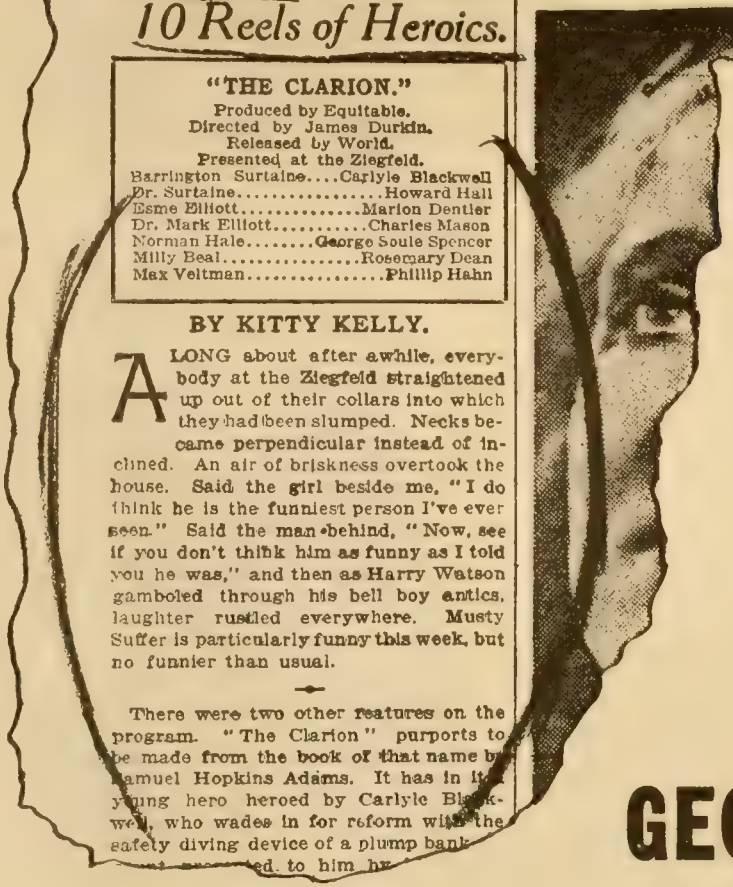
THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE: TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1916.

FLICKERINGS from FILM LAND

Watson's Fun vs. 10 Reels of Heroics.

"THE CLARION."
Produced by Equitable.
Directed by James Durkin.
Released by World.
Presented at the Ziegfeld.

Barrington Surtaine....Carlyle Blackwell
Dr. Surtaine.....Howard Hall
Esme Elliott.....Marion Dentler
Dr. Mark Elliott.....Charles Mason
Norman Hale.....George Soule Spencer
Milly Beal.....Rosemary Dean
Max Veltman.....Phillip Hahn



BY KITTY KELLY.

ALONG about after awhile, everybody at the Ziegfeld straightened up out of their collars into which they had been slumped. Necks became perpendicular instead of inclined. An air of briskness overtook the house. Said the girl beside me, "I do think he is the funniest person I've ever seen." Said the man behind, "Now, see if you don't think him as funny as I told you he was," and then as Harry Watson gamboled through his bell boy antics, laughter rustled everywhere. Musty Suffer is particularly funny this week, but no funnier than usual.

There were two other features on the program. "The Clarion" purports to be made from the book of that name by Samuel Hopkins Adams. It has in its young hero heroed by Carlyle Blackwell, who wades in for reform with the safety diving device of a plump bank [illegible] to him by "No better comedies have ever been made. We want the entire series, first run, in this city. You should be able to book them in every theatre in the country—"

FRANK T. MONTGOMERY, Mgr.
Strand Theatre, Bridgeport, Conn.

Why Say More?

GEORGE KLEINE 805 EAST 175th STREET NEW YORK CITY

New York
226 West 42nd St.
Chicago
166 N. State St.
Atlanta
71 Walton St.
Boston
14 Piedmont St.

Denver
405 Railroad Bldg.

Philadelphia
1309 Vine St.

Minneapolis
708 First Ave., N.

Pittsburgh
123 Fourth Ave.

Kansas City
209-12 Ozark Bldg.

Seattle
204-5-6 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.

San Francisco
234 Eddy St.

Cincinnati
138 West Seventh St.

Dallas
1812½ Commerce St.

Los Angeles
514 West 8th St.
Montreal
204 St. Catherine St., W.
Toronto
96 Bay St.
New Orleans
163 Nola Building

The HIPPODROME FILM CO. Inc. Presents

"AT THE FRONT WITH THE ALLIES"

The Picture That Shows the Present War AS IT IS

The Last Word in Graphic Realism—One Sensation After Another, With Sentiment Blended in Right Proportion to Control the Military Ardor the Action Will Arouse.

As Good As a Trip to the Front And Much More Secure

Complete Line of Attractive Publicity. Take Advantage of the WAR SPIRIT. Write, wire, phone or call.

Hippodrome Film Co. Room 501, 110 W. 40th St. NEW YORK CITY

H. S. CLARK, Manager Incorporated (Telephone Bryant 8125)

GAUMONT

Releasing Through
MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

You are always SURE of SUCCESS when you book a GAUMONT Feature. A Gaumont Photoplay is always a powerful Story, Thrillingly Told on the Screen by Popular Gaumont Stars who are Favorites Everywhere.

Gaumont Five-Reel Productions are released as Mutual Masterpictures, de Luxe Edition, with the following International Stars:

Marguerite Courtot	Alexander Gaden
Gertrude McCoy	Gertrude Robinson
Iva Shepard	Mildred Gregory
Sydney Mason	Helen Marten

Two Popular GAUMONT Single Reels

MUTUAL WEEKLY—News of the World FIRST. Gaumont Gives on the Screen What You Read on the Front Page of Your Newspaper.

ANIMATED CARTOONS—A New Series of the Original Gaumont Komic Kartoons by the Original Kartoonist, Harry Palmer, on a Weekly Release Split-Reel With Gaumont's Famou s

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"—Scenic Series, Weekly Trips to Cities and Sites of Scenic and Historic Interest.

For Bookings Write or Call on Any Mutual Film Corp. Branch Manager

GAUMONT CO.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. FLUSHING, N.Y.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

Edwin Thanhouser presents

A BIRD OF PREY

STAGED IN 5 Reels
by EUGENE NOWLAND

FROM THE STORY BY PHILIP LONERGAN
Released March 16

WITH

KATHRYN ADAMS

AND A CAST INCLUDING
JOHN LEHNBERG & ROB'T. WHITTIER

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

For Thrills That Are Real-

Story by
Frank H. Spearman

Director
J. P. McGowan

Chapter Twelve
" Buried Alive "

For thrills that are true to life — for thrills that are vivid, and absolutely astounding—Book "The Girl and The Game."

Helen Holmes, in this great railroad film novel, will pack your theatre regularly, week after week.

A new, two act chapter every week for fifteen weeks. Twelve chapters now appearing.

Powerful Newspapers as Exhibitors' Aids

New York World Pittsburgh Press
Philadelphia North American
Atlanta Constitution Omaha Bee
Memphis Commercial Appeal
Buffalo Courier Indianapolis Star
New Orleans Time-Picayune
Chicago Evening Post Detroit Journal
San Francisco Chronicle
Baltimore American Boston Globe
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Cincinnati Times-Star Dallas Journal
Seattle Post-Intelligencer
Kansas City Journal Cleveland Leader
Los Angeles Tribune
Milwaukee Sentinel Louisville Herald
and One Thousand Others:

These biggest newspapers and a thousand others print the story week by week.

For bookings apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of any Mutual Exchange

Signal Film Corporation

Samuel S. Hutchinson, President
Publicity Offices:
222 South State Street, Chicago

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

MUTUAL PICTURES

Something Really New—

CURLEW CORLISS

The first of the "Happy Family" series
Film versions of the famous stories by
B. M. Bower

Book through MUTUAL exchanges.

An entirely new series of motion pictures, to be presented by American as three-reel "MUSTANG" features. They are real life stories.

ART ACORD and NITA DAVIS are the stars in the first picture, which is entitled
CURLEW CORLISS
Director—William Bertram
Released March 17th

American Film Company Inc.
Samuel S. Hutchinson, President
Chicago, Illinois.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

True Nobility

Five Reels of Throbbing Drama Portraying the Awakening of Love in a Woman's Heart

Helene Rosson and E. Forrest Taylor enact the leading roles in this

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE
DE LUXE EDITION
Directed by
DONALD McDONALD
Released March 9th

Other American Winners

The Code of Honor
Three Reel "Flying A" drama.
Alfred Vosburgh and Vivian Rich
Director—Frank Borzage. Released March 21st.

Cupid at Cohen's
Single Reel "Beauty" comedy.
Carol Halloway and John Sheehan
Director—Archer Mac Mackin. Released Mar. 22.

Bubbles and the Barber
Single Reel "Beauty" comedy.
Orral Humphrey
Director—Nate Watt. Released March 26th.

Book Through Mutual Exchanges

American Film Company, Inc.
Chicago, Illinois. Samuel S. Hutchinson, Pres.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Vogue Films, Inc., Presents

Bungling Bill's Peeping Ways

Whoops, my dear! Here is some comedy. Big, fat Russ Powell is the chief funny man, and pretty Priscilla Dean the leading lady. Nuff said! It's a scream! 1000 feet of laughs — Directed by Jack Dillon.
Released St. Patrick's Day (March 17th).

Troubled Waters

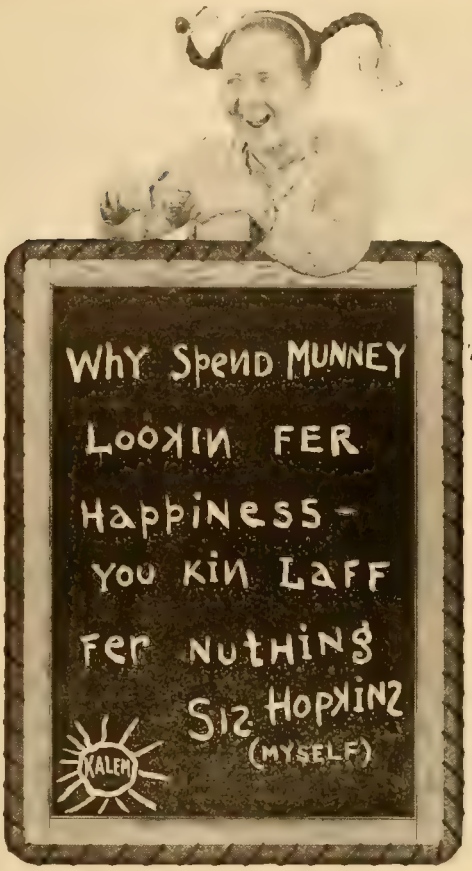
And here's crazy Rube Miller again in a sure-fire rib tickler. Miller's a comedy nut. He directs his own pictures. That's why they're so darned funny.

"Troubled Waters" is released March 19th.
Book Vogue Comedies—They're all the go.

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Executives:
JOSEPH H. FINN
SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON
Publicity Offices: 222 So. State St.
Chicago, Ill.



One-a-Week Each a Single Reel Laugh-fest

Book From the Nearest General Film Exchange

TAKE the advertising value of America's most famous fun-maker—add to it sure-fire stories by screen comedy experts, an unexcelled supporting company, top-notch direction, and you get—A WINNER—you get

SIS HOPKINS COMEDIES

"A Flock of Skeletons"

is the next release, on FRIDAY, MARCH 17TH. A whirlwind example of the new comedy line that has set the nation to laughing again.

Delightful characterizations—rapid-fire action, without vulgarity, those are the points that have made Sis Hopkins Comedies the sensation of 1916. They are establishing new booking records—and cleaning up wherever shown. Have you cashed in your share of the winnings?

See Your General Film Exchange Now!

Kalem Company

235-239 West 23d Street New York

The Social

THE PHOTOPLAY
By George

Preeminent in Story!

GEORGE BRONSON HOWARD — the biggest name you ever advertised—presents a theme of startling daring and strength, depicting the amazing adventures of two clever girls who match keen-edged wits and fascinating beauty against the unscrupulous schemes of the vultures of society.

Preeminent in Cast and Production!

MARIN SAIS and Ollie Kirkby—stars of countless screen successes—with a cast including such other well known favorites as True Boardman, Frank Jonasson, Thomas Lingham, Paul C. Hurst, Edward Clisbee, etc. The screen mastery and unstinting lavishness that gave you "Stingaree" guarantee a production of "class"—a production pre-eminent.

Each two-reel episode is complete in itself—each surcharged with action—each the sort that will bring your patrons BACK, week after week, for fifteen trips. There won't be a lagging moment in "The Social Pirates" fifteen weeks' cruise to the land of big profits and enthusiastic audiences.

Will You Be Aboard?

Wire Your General Film Exchange To-Day!

KALEM COMPANY, 235-239 W. 23d St., N.Y.

Pirates

SERIES PREEMINENT

Bronson Howard

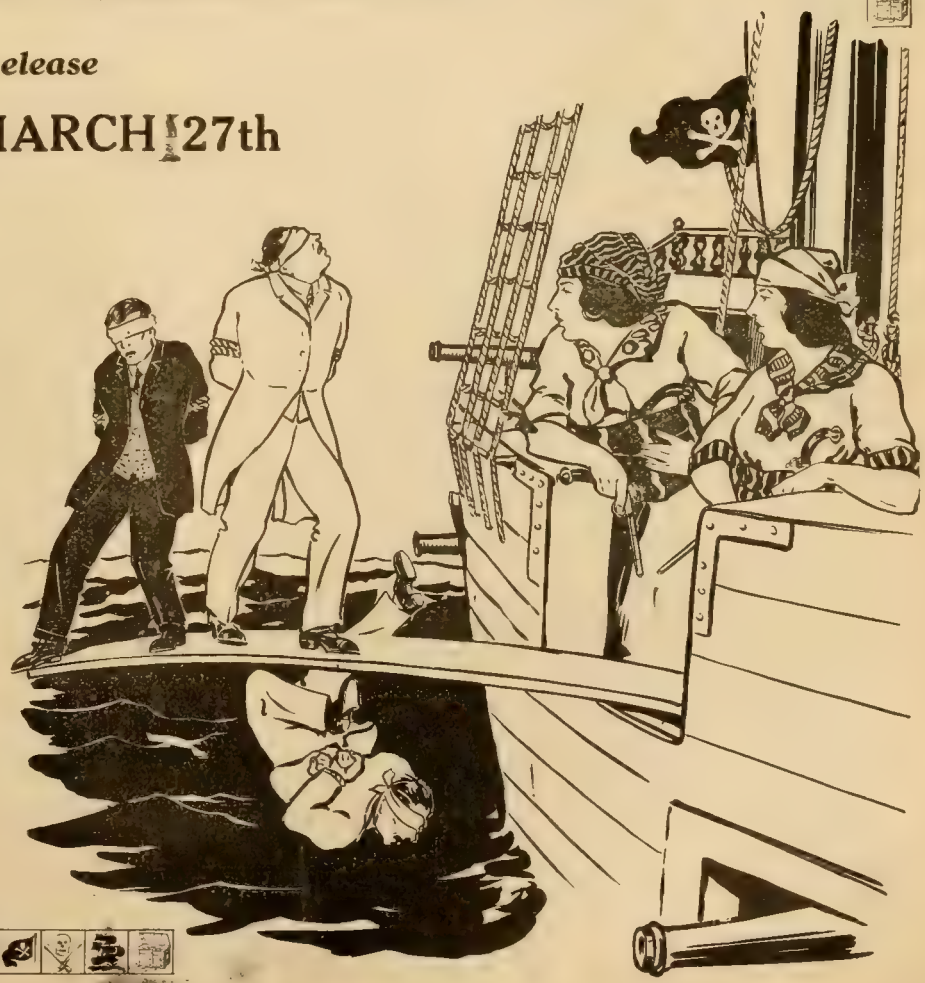
Preeminent in Publicity!

THE New York World —The Chicago Record-Herald—The Philadelphia Press—The Buffalo Times—such are the class of papers that will publish the stories—fictionized by Hugh C. Weir—in every corner of the country. Dazzling twenty-four sheets, striking six-foot lobby cut-outs, colored heralds, in fact, "The Social Pirates" will have every form of publicity aid that could be devised to make a sure-fire production a dead-certain hit.

First Release

MONDAY, MARCH 27th

"THE LITTLE MONTE CARLO"



Your General Film Exchange manager has some surprising information for you regarding the prices at which the advertising aids will be supplied. See him to-day!

Not One Thrill! But Thrill After Thrill Are Given You in

The Detective's Peril

A Stirring "Hazard of Helen" Episode

Released Saturday, March 25th

Twice during this picture does Helen Gibson, the most daring actress in pictures, reach the height of audacious courage and throughout the one reel the action is tense with excitement. The railroad detective, facing certain death, is saved by Helen's perilous swing over the waters of the river. Later Helen boards the train she is pursuing on a hand-car by throwing a lasso over the brakebeam and then climbing hand over hand to the top of a freight car while it tears along at terrifying speed. This release is another proof that Kalem's "Hazards" are the Last Word in Thrills — Beyond All Competition!

These sensational scenes are on the 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs.
Get them at your General Film Exchange.

At Bachelor's Roost

A corking Ethel Teare comedy with that vivacious comedienne seen in almost every foot of the film. Ethel finds a lover even in the lonely confines of Bachelor's Roost.

Released Wednesday, March 22nd. Attractive 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs.

When Things Go Wrong

The screen's most famous fun-maker—Sis Hopkins—in a whirlwind comedy. Things surely do go wrong in the home of the Newleyweds where Sis is the only servant.

Released Friday, March 24th. Catchy 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs

A Dollar a Kiss! and Ham Has Only Eighty Cents! But It's

FOR SWEET CHARITY

Released Tuesday, March 21st.

A charity bazaar and scores of pretty girls furnish the background for a corking good Ham and Bud comedy. The two funny fellows have an exciting time—even if things do not always go just right—and then wind up as oyster openers in a fashionable restaurant. Suffice it to say that they do not earn the other twenty cents, though they deserve it for the laughs they give us.

Stock Ham and Bud 3-sheets of proven value in addition to the special 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs on this release.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company offices.

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 1908)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, March 18, 1916

Facts and Comments

THE state convention of New York Exhibitors, which has just adjourned, furnishes new proof of the profound change in the personnel of the men who own and manage motion picture theatres. It is most creditable to these men that they are capable of looking at the great questions in this industry from an angle other than their own. Read their resolutions and study their underlying spirit and you must come to the conclusion that they ask for nothing more than an "even break." On the vital questions affecting the industry they are absolutely sound. They know of no compromise with censorship, which they have condemned in all its forms. Occasions will constantly arise which demand the co-operation between producers and exchangemen on the one hand and exbititors on the other. Whenever properly approached the exhibitors have never hesitated to co-operate. The successful among the producers freely recognize this fact and support the exhibitor in every movement which aims at the improvement of conditions within the industry or which is directed against enemies from without. The work of the Albany Convention may well serve as an inspiration for exhibitors in other states.

* * *

IN considering the cause of organization it is well to remember the trials and vicissitudes through which exhibitors had to pass in the early days. Conditions did not favor any spirit of initiative or enterprise, in fact any assertion of individuality on the part of the exhibitor. No man can rise above his environment in a flying machine—on the contrary it is a slow and laborious and often painful process.

* * *

WHEREVER managers and owners of motion picture theaters discuss programs "locked reel system" and methods of booking, one hears nothing but unbounded praise for open booking. From the best information obtainable we are convinced that open booking is proving very profitable to the producers who have developed this system. There is no reason in the world why it should not. If the exhibitor is allowed to have his pick he is able and willing to pay more.

* * *

OPEN booking in our judgment is the surest and safest remedy for overproduction of feature films. We have come to a point where the exhibitor cannot possibly absorb a hundred per cent. of the supply of features. The resultant loss due to this overproduction falls in some measure upon the exhibitor. Open booking is bound to eliminate inferior releases. Open booking means a sure "boom" for quality. Open booking will bring about the realization of a wish often echoed in these columns even in the days of the founder; fewer pictures but better ones.

* * *

ANOTHER word we would very much like to see on the retired list in the shortest possible order is that dreadful verb "to picturize." We confess it makes us shudder. Some of its derivatives such as "picturization" verge on disorderly conduct. We don't want to go into any labored etymological argument, it's not necessary—the word must grate on every normal ear. We ought not to allow these abominations to creep into an art, which is capable of visualizing the great masterpieces of the world's literature.

* * *

EXHIBITORS who protest against the free use of state armories and other state buildings for free motion picture shows are clearly within their rights. Such cases have occurred quite frequently in the state of New York. When an exhibitor recently complained about this in a letter addressed to "State Board of Armory Commissioners" at Albany he received very scant comfort and but scant courtesy. To the ordinary and non-military mind it seems an obvious wrong for the state to exact a license from an exhibitor and then compete against him without a license. In these days of preparedness it seems to us that the armories might be used to better advantage than giving complimentary motion picture entertainments to the friends and admiring relatives of the warriors.

Inconsequential*

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

FRAIL Wife leaves the compromising letter in a magazine she happens to be reading when it arrives, the logically correct thing to do in current photoplays and madeover melodramas, notwithstanding the fact that both maid and butler are present. The latter pounces upon it as soon as Frail Wife is gone, but he is compelled to disgorge when stern and unrelenting Husband unexpectedly returns. Husband grits his teeth and clenches his hands. He dashes out. He reappears in the main dining room of notorious restaurant. He slips a bill of large denomination to head waiter. H. W. rolls his eyes significantly in a certain direction. Husband exits and soon reappears in private dining room, where Frail Wife and False Friend are clasping hands over table. Husband regards them sternly and locks the door!

During the early part of the presentation, the piano tinkles monotonously, while the fiddlers tune their instruments. Then the orchestra leader makes his bid for attention with a snappy tune. While the music is reaching a noisy conclusion, the stern Husband is choking the life out of False Friend, pressing his thumbs in the latter's Adam's Apple. Slowly the False Friend succumbs, while Frail Wife cringes in the corner unable to do else than watch the killing. Ah! The arms of False Friend drop helplessly—all is over—and the music comes to an end with a zipp and a boom.

At this point a thousand or more people burst into an uncontrollable roar of laughter, a recent and actual occurrence. Of course it was largely due to coincidence, but the people were venting their scorn in a good-humored way, scorn for the stupidity of the story, a weary re-enactment of a situation moth-eaten years and years ago.

Audiences are growing more and more critical at a time producers are doing little more than demonstrate their limitations. They keep repeating the same old stories, or the same old situations, over and over again, and, as a consequence, there is a growing tendency to use pictures, as they were formerly employed, to fill the gaps in continuous performances, where vaudeville is the big drawing card. The best time in such houses is given to the variety performance, pictures being shown in the interim.

People will never grow tired of moving pictures when the importance of artistry comes to be fully recognized, but a very large part of present production is merely repetition, or reversion or is seriously marred by the inconsequential. People laugh in a generous sort of way at errors, but there is a serious meaning to that laugh when it occurs in the midst of serious presentations. There is even contempt in it at times. No man feels it incumbent upon him to get up and announce that what is being shown on the screen is utter rot, but he will release his derision when afforded an opportunity.

Another large audience, viewing a feature distinguished by one fine characterization, that of an unselfish family-provider, burst into laughter near the end, right on the eve of tragedy, because of an inconsequential bid for sympathy. In dire extremity, the unselfish provider decides to commit suicide so that his family may benefit from his incontestable insurance policy—that familiar device is used in spite of the fact that it only excites a feeling of nausea among people of common sense—and he goes to a hotel for that purpose. He is shown in a handsome hotel office pulling out his pocketbook to pay for his room, and a closeup is given of his hand and pocketbook that pity may be excited—he has only fifty cents. He registers and is conducted off scene by the bell-boy. The latter immediately ushers the fifty-cent guest into a spacious and well-furnished bed chamber. At this point the whole audience roars.

There was not the slightest necessity for showing what the room cost, particularly of enforcing that cost in a closeup. The price of the room was of no consequence when a man was about to take his own life, so the people in front laughed and thus vented their disapproval of a course which seemed to them to be uncalled for under the circumstances. Many of those people in front had been in dire extremity themselves and had fought their way out by continuous exhibitions of courage in the face of suffering, but they might not have laughed at the presentation if the director had not provided an opportunity by an enforcement of the absolutely inconsequential. Another play of merit, one of exceptional artistry in treatment, deserving the applause usually given on that account, fell flat at the end before a friendly audience. It was of the olden time. The hero, an expert swordsman, becomes embroiled in a tavern row and thrusts his rapier into a half dozen people before making his escape. He is separated from the heroine, but a long series of exciting adventures, leading to a land thousands of miles from home, results in bringing them together at the end. Interest is entirely centered on their fortunes, but the director issues an explanation at the very moment of their happy reunion, citing that the most prominent of those who went down in the tavern brawl, to whom no interest had been attached, had not been killed at all.

The example just cited illustrates the destructive effect of unimportant explanatory details injected after the crisis, so destructive as to warp judgment of a play otherwise highly meritorious. The second example points out how those useless details, thrust upon attention at an important moment, may excite derision. The first example, while the laugh was excited by an amusing coincidence, indicates that audiences are weary of such wornout devices as that of the compromising letter left where it will do most harm. Only feeble invention depends upon the hackneyed.

The effect of the inconsequential is jarring when it is not ridiculous, as jarring as the sudden appearance before the curtain of an actor who has just been seen lying dead on the stage. It is absurd for a director, or for an author, to build up interest with infinite pains and tear it down at a crucial moment by thrusting upon attention the inconsequential. It is a sure sign of technical inefficiency—not that technique is an end, but it is surely a means to an end.

The employment of whatever is really inconsequential diverts attention at any point of development in the story, and it becomes positively obnoxious during intense action. Lack of hard concentrated work on the part of an author, and consequent lack of material in the scenario, may lead to the interpolation of irrelevant and superfluous matter by the director, but his reputation is at stake, and he is certainly lacking in those qualities of judgment which he should possess when he sets in motion the complicated mechanism of feature production only to clog it when under full headway and thus dissipate his energies to no complete and satisfactory purpose.

*Copyright, 1916, Louis Reeves Harrison.

New York Exhibitors Gather at Albany

Largest Rally Ever Held by State Organization—Every Section Represented, Attendance Reaching Three Hundred—"Unalterably Opposed to Any Form of Censorship"—Important Resolutions and Measures of Constructive Policy Adopted—Spirit of Organization Dominates the Meeting and Overflows at a Splendid Banquet in the Ten Eyck Hotel

THE Fourth Annual Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the State of New York—by far the most important and successful ever held—was opened at 10.30 o'clock Wednesday morning, March 1, in the grand banquet hall of the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany. Mayor Stevens of Albany had promised a committee of local exhibitors to make the opening address. Urgent official duties prevented him from fulfilling his promise and the address of welcome was made by Corporation Counsel Arthur L. Andrews. Mr. Andrews dwelt on the responsibility of the Motion Picture Exhibitor and the importance of his theater as a factor in the civic and social life of his community. Mr. Trigger spoke briefly in a reply whereupon a vote of thanks was extended to the City of Albany. State President Ochs then announced that the election of officers of the convention was in order. The election, which followed immediately, resulted in Mr. Trigger being chosen as chairman; L. A. Buettner, of Cohoes, secretary, and W. H. Linton, of Little Falls, treasurer. The following committees were appointed:

Committee on Resolutions—A. N. Wolff, Rochester, chairman; Louis Blumenthal, New York; L. Hollander, Brooklyn; Thomas Howard, New York; P. J. Donlon, Utica; W. C. Hubbard, Rochester; George C. Germain, Syracuse.

Committee on Grievances—George N. Wright, Albany, chairman; B. E. Cornell, Syracuse; E. M. Day. Rome; Louis Blumenthal, New York; A. Buettner, Cohoes.

"The Present Perils of Censorship in the State of New York."

In accordance with the program mapped out the first address was made by W. Stephen Bush, whose topic was "The Present Perils of Censorship in the State of New York." Mr. Bush spoke substantially as follows:

When this topic, "The Present Perils of Censorship in the State of New York," was assigned to me we knew from the indiscreet utterances of the Rev. Canon Chase of Brooklyn that state censorship was about to be attempted at Albany. Next we saw this Ahearn Bill. Its very absurdity and weakness disarmed our fears. We could not conceive the possibility of so crude a measure being taken seriously by anybody. We had great confidence in the common sense and in the constructive statesmanship which we felt abounded at the State Capitol. We had never heard of Mr. Ahearn. When we finally met him in the room of the Codes Committee we found him an active and courteous young man, much respected by his fellow-legislators, but profoundly, and it appeared to us, cheerfully ignorant of the subject on which he attempted to legislate. I do not believe that, even at this day, he fully realizes that his censorship would not only establish a legislative and irresponsible Bureau of Taste and Morals, but is also bound to ruin the motion picture industry and spoil the people's entertainment. I will not speak of the millions of capital invested by the producers, the exchangemen and the exhibitors of this state, I will pass by the fact that the metropolitan district and the imperial city of New York are the great centers for the production and distribution of American film, nor will I speak of the millions upon millions of dollars invested in motion picture theaters throughout this state. Mr. Ahearn says that this censorship question is a moral one, and not one of dollars and cents. I quite agree with him, and I challenge him here and now to point to a single instance in the history of the world where censorship has ever improved the morality of any nation or of any individual.

I confess to you gentlemen that when I heard yesterday from the manager of the Associated Press in this city that the Committee on Codes had met and had decided to report this bill favorably to the house I was amazed. I have been a close student of motion picture conditions for the last ten years. I know of no industry which presents such intricate problems, none which undergoes more rapid changes, none which invites deeper thought, none which requires closer application. A handful of young men with all the ardor of commencement day and filled with the belief that the world is out of joint and they must set it right recommend the passage of a bill, which strikes at the vitals of democracy, and which will entail incalculable financial damage. These young men know absolutely nothing about motion pictures. Do they realize how many reels—a thousand feet to the reel—are put on the market every week. Not less than 250 and probably more. This means that three individuals have to examine about 35,000 feet of films every day. Even if you look at the pictures just for amusement eight or nine reels will tire you, but these censors are supposed to examine the films for their moral merits or demerits.

Gentlemen, I have repeatedly passed from New York to Pennsylvania and from Ohio into Indiana. Have I discovered a superior brand of morality in the State of Pennsylvania, the home of censorship? Have I noticed a marked difference in the moral standards and the moral conduct of Indianapolis and Cincinnati? Have Ohio and Pennsylvania grown conspicuously moral since they fell under the stern guardianship of Maude Murray Miller and that great paragon of censorial wisdom, Louis J. Bretinger?

All Eyes on New York.

After Mr. Bush had finished his address National President Frederick J. Herrington, spoke at some length on the need of strengthening and increasing the national organization. He told of the fine spirit that he had found among the exhibitors in the state of Oklahoma where the exhibitors were successfully battling for what they believed to be their rights. He said he had come to New York because he felt that the eyes of the organized exhibitors throughout the country were turned towards the Empire State and he wanted to be able to cite from his own personal knowledge the example of New York to all exhibitors who began to feel the need of organization. Mr. Herrington expressed his gratification at the large attendance and added that he found the same revival of the spirit of organization on all his travels throughout the country. The speaker launched into an attack upon censorship and congratulated the New York exhibitors on their firm and logical stand. Mr. Herrington was listened to with profound attention and was heartily applauded at the end of his remarks. He was followed by Mr. Louis F. Blumenthal,. of New York City, who expatiated on the grievances of the exhibitors. The subject to which he devoted particular attention was the present method of payment for film service. He said that in his judgment it was unjust to demand film payment four weeks in advance.

New York Exhibitor's Rally at Albany. Group Photographed in Front of Ten Eyck Hotel.

"I do not wish to say," continued Mr. Blumenthal, "that all exhibitors are absolutely reliable and prompt in the payment of their film bills. I know, however, for one thing, we have no protection in case anything goes wrong with any firm with which we deposit our money. There are cases where through this deposit system exhibitors have now owing to them small and large sums of money which they simply cannot get although they are justly entitled to the full return of their deposits."

This statement brought forth considerable applause. Mr. Blumenthal said he had given much thought to the subject and had taken up the question with the Superintendent of Banking in this state and with the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The officials of these departments disclaimed jurisdiction and said they could do nothing. The speaker said he thought the only remedy was a unanimous refusal on the part of the exhibitors to comply with what all of them felt to be a harsh and unreasonable exaction. There was considerable discussion of this topic and various suggestions were made all of which were submitted later to the committee on grievances.

Lee Ochs spoke on the proposed bill to admit minors to motion picture theaters during certain hours of the day unaccompanied by parent or guardians. The bill drafted for this purpose Mr. Ochs said was not in its present shape entirely satisfactory and he added that he would like to hear from the men on the floor of the convention as to their opinion on the subject. A lively discussion ensued and it was decided to accept the suggestion made by a prominent Assemblyman in regard to certain provisions in the bill. It is expected that the bill will be introduced before the expiration of next week.

Proceedings of the Second Day.

On the opening of the second day Samuel L. Rothapfel, who has recently joined the ranks of the organized exhibitors of New York City, was presented to the convention. When the committee of resolutions was called upon to report its chairman submitted the following to the Convention:

Resolved: First, that we are unalterably opposed to censorship and that we fell constrained to consider all the people who champion it as inimical to our business interest and we recommend that steps be taken to put the political parties in state and Nation on record touching their attitude on this vital principle.

This resolution was adopted unanimously. The second resolution read as follows:

We favor the appointment of a committee within easy reach of New York City, whose duty it shall be to confer with the Motion Picture Board of Trade on any matters affecting the industry, but who shall report its deliberations to the M. P. E. L. Executive Board for final action.

This resolution was overwhelmingly defeated, only four men voting for it. After the word "Manufacturers" had been substituted in place of "The Motion Picture Board of Trade," the resolution was unanimously adopted. Resolution number three read as follows:

We request that the film companies exacting a deposit from exhibitors be asked to accept the league's bond for security for its members only, and in the event of their refusing we recommend such legislative action as will put our money under the supervision of the proper department and give us interest thereon.

This resolution precipitated a lengthy debate. The opponents objected to the league becoming a collection agency for the manufacturers and when a vote was taken the resolution was defeated by a narrow margin. At the end of the discussion it was decided to have the chair appoint a committee of three to take up this question with all the manufacturers who now insist on monthly advance payments. The next resolution passed unanimously. It read as follows:

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League is opposed to the program system now enforced by a majority of the producers and we favor a system of open booking.

A National Bureau of Information, Advice and Assistance.

The next resolution provided for the co-operation on the part of the State League in the establishment of a "National Bureau of Information, Advice and Assistance." This bureau is to be national in its scope and intended for the exclusive benefit of the exhibitor. It is proposed to collate all the existing state and local laws affecting motion pictures and to place them on the shelves of a motion picture library ready for constant use and reference as the needs of the exhibitor may arise. The Bureau will likewise render assistance in all matters of legislation and direct such campaigns of education as may from time to time become necessary and furnish to the exhibitor a weekly bulletin of all multiple reel productions carefully grading and classifying them and reporting exhaustively the merits and demerits of each.

The Bureau will also take up such questions as may from time to time arise between local branches and exhibitors, the idea being to take every serious difficulty to headquarters in New York. The resolution dealing with such a Bureau was carried unanimously. The last resolution denounced certain advertising matter sent out by a producing company. It was coupled with a general request to all manufacturers to refrain "from using obscene matter in the advertising." The resolution was adopted without dissent.

In the afternoon Mr. Rothapfel spoke on exhibition and told his personal experiences in a most instructive and diverting fashion. He said that being new in the ranks of the organized exhibitors he did not want to be critical, but that it seemed to him as if a state of the size and prominence of New York ought to have a much larger and stronger organization. When he promised to hereafter help in furthering the work of the organization he was applauded to the echo.

Election of Officers and Delegates to National Convention.

After a short recess the election of officers for the ensuing year was gone into resulting as follows:

Lee A. Ochs, New York, president; B. E. Cornell, Syracuse, treasurer; Thomas Howard, New York, secretary; first vice-president, L. A. Buettner, Cohoes; second vice-president,. S. Suckno,. Albany; third vice-president, John J. Wittman, New York City; national vice-president, Samuel Trigger; W. L. Hilkemeier, sergeant-at-arms, New York. The following delegates and alternates to the National Convention in Chicago were elected by acclamation: Louis Blumenthal, New York; L. A. Buettner, Cohoes; D. A. Gibbons, Syracuse; A. M. Wolff, .Rochester; J. L. Miners, Schenectady; E. M. Bay, Rome, and W. H. Linton, Little Falls.

A petition of considerable length setting forth all the vital objections against Censorship was read by Mr. Ochs and approved by the Convention. The petition will be filed with the Assembly.

It was decided to hold the next and fifth annual convention in the City of Rochester, the time to be announced later.

Vote of Thanks to Moving Picture World.

At the end of the business session Chairman Trigger arose and rapping the assemblage into silence with a few strokes of the gavel he said "that the most important resolution had been saved to the last." He went on to speak in terms of great praise of the work which the Moving Picture World had done for the organized exhibitor and indeed for all the exhibitors and for the entire industry. He added that he but voiced the general sentiment of all present in introducing a resolution thanking the Moving Picture World for its splendid work, for its clean and reliable columns, for its maintenance of high standards and for its unfailing sense of justice. Mr. Trigger's reading of the resolution was punctuated with loud expressions of approval from the floor of the convention and the resolution was carried amid cheers followed by a rising vote of thanks.

The Banquet.

It had been expected that Governor Whitman would be the guest of the Convention at its banquet. The death of Judge Werner of the Court of Appeals upset the Governor's schedule as he was compelled to leave Albany at seven o'clock in the evening to attend Judge Werner's funeral at Rochester. The Secretary of State was represented by his first deputy, Addington B. Parker; he was given the seat of honor beside the toastmaster. There also sat at the speaker's table former Deputy Police Commissioner Charles J. Rubin, of New York City, Samuel Rothapfel, Frederick J. Herrington and Samuel Trigger. A very pretty menu had been designed for the occasion and met with much commendation from the banqueters. In the text of the souvenir were such mottoes as "The Day of the Exhibitor Has Arrived;" "Great is the Screen and the Exhibitor Its Profit;" "A Simple Word and Yet a Magic One: 'Organize';" "A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand;" "The Bond Between Exhibitor and Exhibitor Is the Bond of Intelligent Interest and Co-operative Brotherhood;" "The Local is the Cornerstone: The State League is the Foundation: The National League is the Great Arch;" "In the Dawn of To-morrow the Exhibitor Looms Largest."

In response to invitations by Toastmaster W. Stephen Bush short speeches flavored with wit and wisdom were made by Deputy Secretary of State Parker, Mr. Ochs, ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin, National President Herrington and Samuel L. Rothapfel. A spirit of the utmost good fellowship and jollity dominated the occasion, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everybody. In the midst of the proceedings the toastmaster was surprised by State President Ochs, who, on behalf of the exhibitors, presented to him a beautiful gold watch suitably inscribed for which the toastmaster returned his sincerest thanks.

A Genuine Exhibitors' Convention.

The current comment dwelt on the fact that this was a convention without any adjuncts or advertising side lines. A complete roster of all who came would fill something like a page and would dwarf the record of the proceedings. The great banquet hall at the Ten Eyck resembled at its entrance a busy hive in midsummer, and to keep track of all the delegates and visitors was quite impossible. A partial list is printed here: Chester Ferngolsky, Keith's theater, Troy; Paul A. Fenyverry, Buffalo; A. C. and J. W. Gardner, Pearl theater, Albany; George Cohen, owning theaters in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Matteawan, Fishkill Landing and Wappingers Falls; Sol Coleman, owner of the Coleman and "The Avenue" theaters, Brooklyn; Joseph Forster, Globe theater, Brooklyn; Charles Meyerson, Park avenue theater, Mechanicsville; Henry Cole, vice-president Cinema Exhibitors' Association of Bronx County; M. G. Kronacher, New Film Corporation, New York City; W. C. Hubbard, Regent and Gordon theaters, Rochester; George J. Kress, Hudson theater, Rochester; Fred R. Billman, the Madison theater and the Hudson theater, Albany; Geo. W. Roberts, same theaters, Albany; A. L. Harston, Regent theater, New York City; Samuel Rhonheimer, Ronly theater, Brooklyn; Benjamin Lyons, same theater, Brooklyn; B. E. Cornell, Eckel theater, Syracuse; Fred J. Slater, New Broadway theater, Schenectady; Otto Lederer, Colonial theater, Brooklyn; J. Ensler, Sheridan theater, Brooklyn; Samuel Suckno, White Way and Park theaters, Albany; J. N. Hartstall, Bunny theater, Brooklyn; Lee A. Ochs, Costello theater, New York City; Louis F. Blumenthal, owner of theaters in New York City and Brooklyn; Frank Petters, president Petters Amusement Corporation, Bronx; Adolph Weiss, Avenue A theater, New York City; A. J. Santiro, Savoy theater, Syracuse; M. H. Powell, American Fotoplayer Co., New York City; L. D. Wolfe, Syracuse; Harry Danto, W. L. Sherry Film Co., Albany; John J. Wittman, president Cinema Exhibitors of Bronx County; J. J. Battle, B. B. theater, Bronx; J. Edward Derrick, Garden theater, Bronx; A. Malbin, Booth theater, Bronx; N. Matchet, Tiffany theater, Bronx; M. Goldman, Banner theater, Bronx; J. J. Haggerty, Model theater, Bronx; F. Peters, Port Morris theater, Bronx; Charles Steiner, New 14th Street Photoplay theater and "American Movies," New York City; William Hickemeier, Jefferson Photo Show Co., Brooklyn; Geo. F. Wright, Clinton Square theater, Albany; Joseph Klein, Electra theater, Brooklyn; Edwin O. Weinberg, Plaza theater, Troy; G. H. Primmer, Hudson theater, Watervliet; Frank N. Barhydt, Garden theater, Bijou theater, Glen theater, Troy; E. G. Briggs and Alfred Epstein, Pathe Exchange, Albany; H. L. Levy, Casino, Waterford; Wm. H. Hollander, Old Postoffice theater, Brooklyn; Charles Fisher, Decatur theater, Brooklyn; L. A. Buettner, Majestic theater, Cohoes; John Christie, Third Avenue theater, Watervliet; Tom Howard, King theater, New York City; W. M. Powers, Colonial theater, Albany; A. E. Hamilton, Hamilton theater, Yonkers; Charles A. McCarthy, Hoosick Falls; Joseph L. Romaine, Ballston Spa; Samuel H. Trigger, Tremont theater, New York City; Jacob E. Rosenthal, Majestic Amusement Co., New York City; John D. Walker and F. Y. Bergmaier, Lincoln theater, Schenectady; E. M. Day, Carroll theater, Rome; A. N. Wolff, Colonial theater, Rochester; Michael Warshower and A. Taffelstein, Mt. Morris theater, Brooklyn; J. H. Farrington, Colonial theater, Saranac Lake; Wm. P. Donlon, Orpheum theater, Utica; Daniel Sturmwald, Monroe Park, Brooklyn; Wm. H. Buck, Arbor theater, Albany; Alexander Jutkowitz, Columbia theater, Far Rockaway; W. H. Linton, Hippodrome theater, Little Falls; Alexander Leon, the Moving Picture Theater of Johnsville; Samuel Bernstein, Palace theater, Albany; James H. Roe, Rex theater, Syracuse; Lawrence M. Dillon, Cortland theater, Cortland; Walter A. Zeiser, Central Park theater, Schenectady; Joseph Weidman, Central theater, Albany; William Frisch Knecht, Orpheum theater, Albany; Samuel L. Rothapfel, Knickerbocker theater, New York City; Fisher and Sullivan, Sans Souci theater, Watervliet. Among the exchange men who registered were: V. H. Bendell, Essanay Co.; E. J. Schmidt, Rex Film Co.; C. G. Sidney, Bluebird Photoplays Co.; G. R. Germain, Fox Features. The Automatic Ticket Selling Company was represented by Mr. Baumann, general sales agent.

Sidelights in the Convention.

The film men of Albany accorded the convention no mean degree of hospitality. The Pathe offices were decorated in handsome style. Alfred Epstein the manager and his able assistant, D. E. Briggs, extended the freedom of the buildings to many of the delegates.

In the Universal branch, E. A. Charles and Richard Landon had the smile of welcome for all visitors.

The Mutual office, still presided over by J. R. Mullen, had all its representatives at the convention and at the banquet.

R. Dewey, the hustling young cameraman, filmed several groups of delegates for the Pathe weekly. Friday morning he was the first man on the scene of a railroad wreck in the city and Saturday morning he turned the crank in front of Proctors just as the youngsters poured out of the theater after their special entertainment.

Delegate Hartstall, also known as the "cancelling kid," edified the City delegates on the way up with several astonishing Oriental and Occidental dances.

The most popular morning cocktail was a pint of Hathorn in Keelers. Testimonials may be secured from President Ochs and others.

The hopeful refrain at parting was Au Revoir at Rochester in 1917. Rochester was handsomely represented but we missed G. L. Tyler and his beaming countenance.

Everybody listened when Sam Rothapfel told how he had graduated from bartender to premier exhibitor. Sam may not be an orator but he carries conviction.

Not a nickel house in Troy, thanks to L. A. Buettner. Buettner will be heard from in the future of filmdom. Albany will follow Troy in raising the price.

The Albany papers classed the convention news with the war dispatches—we got on the front page three distinct times.

Geo. A. Blair, of the Eastman Kodak Co., came with the Rochester delegation and spoke words of encouragement to every delegate he met.

National President Herrington won golden opinions from all who attended the convention. His speech at the banquet was a masterpiece.

BOARD OF TRADE GETS CENSORSHIP CARTOON.

Charles R. Macauley, the famous cartoonist, has presented to the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America the negative of his animated cartoon on censorship. This cartoon, in its screen form, shows the first page of a newspaper with the black hand of censorship reaching up and blotting out much of the important news of the day. The second panel shows the public rostrum, with the speaker preparing to deliver an oration, when two black hands of censorship reach up and close over his mouth. The third panel represents the motion picture screen, the great public forum. The figure of a holier-than-thou, Crafts-like individual rises up, long hair and coat-tails flying in the breeze, and shuts off the view of the people assembled. The caption under the newspaper reads, "Would You Stand for This?" Under the public rostroum, "Or This?" and under the motion picture screen, "Then Why Stand for This?" An arrangement has been made whereby the film exchanges will attach the Macauley cartoon "Approved by the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America" to news or other reels distributed throughout the country.

"RACE SUICIDE" PASSED BY OHIO BOARD.

After the original rejection at two showings, and a later appeal by Treasurer and General Manager Frank Greenwald of the Exclusive Photoplay Service, the big six-part theme motion picture attraction, "Race Suicide," has finally been passed by the Ohio State Board of Censors at Columbus, and been accorded their certificate, permitting its showing.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Fighting Legislation in Boston

Motion Picture Men Making Hard Fight to Prevent Passage of Mischievous Laws.

THE Massachusetts Legislature's Committee on Mercantile Affairs held hearings on three bills affecting the display of moving pictures in Massachusetts, all of which were later turned down by the committee in executive session. Two other petitions affecting the sale of tickets which were aired at a previous hearing before the committee were also given "leave to withdraw."

One of the three bills, which was taken up before the two intermission measures, was introduced on the petition of James H. Brennan and prohibited any proprietor or manager of a moving picture house to allow the use of his screen for the display of advertisements or announcements except for religious or charitable purposes or when such advertisements or announcements referred to his own theatrical affairs. Nobody appeared in favor of the bill and after Attorneys James and Miller and Rep. Levenson were recorded against it the hearing was closed.

William C. Francke, Business Agent of the Boston Moving Picture Operators' Union, entered a vigorous protest against the passage of two bills, both of which sought to take cinematographs out from under the rigid regulations governing the exhibition of motion pictures in Boston and other parts of the state.

One of these bills was introduced in the interests of the Portoscope people and was along the lines of the bill passed last year at the request of the Pathoscope company. Allen Goulston, who said he represented the petitioner, told the committee that the exemption given the Pathoscope company should also be extended to the Portoscope. He said they desired the change in the law simply for commercial purposes.

Mr. Goulston explained that the films supplied by this company were non-inflammable and that they were sought by business houses for the instruction of their help. He read a letter from Gardner W. Pearson, addressed to Senator Eldridge, chairman of the committee, in which Mr. Pearson stated that moving pictures were too expensive to present for industrial purposes under the existing Massachusetts laws.

Leon G. Dadmun, who also spoke in favor of the bill, said that a piece of the film used in the Portoscope had been subjected to the heat of an electric lamp for ten hours without the film showing the least signs of melting or igniting. To further safeguard against any possible danger he suggested that a scheme could be worked out whereby the films to be shown could be passed upon by the police similar to a system now in force in Montreal.

Business Agent Francke argued that the bill was an attempt to tear down much of the constructive legislation that has been placed on the statute books of Massachusetts during the last four or five years.

"There is nothing in this bill to limit the length of the films to be shown," he said. "The halls and other places where these films are planned to be exhibited are not fitted up as theaters and if this bill goes through I believe it will be a step in the wrong direction."

James H. Devlin, Jr., Assistant-Corporation Counsel of the City of Boston, also opposed the bill. He stated that Building Commissioner O'Hearn of Boston saw danger in the bill as it was drawn as it did not satisfy his views in the matter of egress from the buildings in which the bill would permit these films to be shown.

Business Agent Francke used practically the same arguments against a bill introduced by Rep. Edward I. Kelley of Boston authorizing the use of cinematographs in church halls or any buildings under the control of religious corporations provided "that the operators and the apparatus are duly licensed and the buildings and arrangements conform to such rules and regulations as may be imposed by the inspector of buildings, or building commissioner, or other like authority in the city or town concerned. Mr. Francke opposed the bill because it took the question of supervision out of the hands of the state police and the Fire Prevention Commissioner and placed it in the hands of people who might be subject to "local influence."

"Theaters are held to a strict accountability as to exits and other things and it isn't fair for any religious body or any group of religious bodies to try and escape laws which the theaters are required to live up to in the matter of displaying moving pictures," he said.

The other two bills rejected by the committee were introduced by Rep. John W. Craig of Boston. One of these bills made it unlawful for any theater or other place of amusement to charge for admission, on any occasion a greater sum than the ordinary and usual price. The other bill was a speculator proposition and read as follows: "It shall be unlawful for the proprietor of any theater or of any other place of amusement, or for any agent or employee thereof, to sell tickets of admission at any other place except the regular box office of the theater or other place of amusement, or to sell such tickets through any broker or other person except the person or persons employed at the box office."

INDIANA FIRM AGAINST CENSORSHIP.

Exhibitors in Convention at Indianapolis Adopt Strong Resolution—Big Ball Concludes the Session.

THE exhibitors of Indiana held a convention on March 2 and 3 at Indianapolis, Ind. The Hotel Severin was headquarters and the picturemen occupied the entire floor of the building. The meeting was the largest and most successful that has ever been hehld by Indiana exhibitors and was concluded with a grand ball in Tomlinson's Hall at which fully three thousand persons were present.

One significant action taken by the convention was the adoption of a resolution condemning censorship. It also sent the following message on the subject of freedom of the seas to President Wilson:

"The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Indiana heartily and unanimously commends the stand you have taken to insure to Americans that freedom of the seas which is their inalienable right. We pledge you our undivided support in whatever steps you may take to maintain this right. We have telegraphed to the members of Congress from Indiana asking them to support your proposals on this question without delay."

In introducing the resolution J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, said that as President Wilson had honored the motion picture industry by being its guest at the recent dinner given by the Board in New York it was only fair that the industry should now reciprocate by supporting the position the President had taken in his controversy with certain elements in Congress.

The afternoon session of the convention was devoted to a discussion of censorship. Resolutions were adopted placing the convention on record against all forms of censorship, whether Federal, State or municipal, and pledging the support of the exhibitors in the suppression through laws now in force of any pictures which are immoral, indecent or obscene.

There were registered at the convention 276 out of Indiana's 630 exhibitors. The meeting was held in the ballroom of the Hotel Severin. Frank J. Rembusch, exhibitors' vice-president of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, presided at the opening session in the absence of State President Lyman H. O'Donnell, of Washington, Ind., who reached the convention hall later in the day. Among the speakers were representatives of the Universal, Pathe, Bluebird, World, Mutual, Metro, Nicholas Power, Seeburg Piano, Speer Carbon and other companies.

"Organization and co-operation—what these will do for the motion picture industry," was the subject of Mr. Binder's address at the main session. Other speakers on the same general topic were Henry Weiss of Chicago, and S. H. Grimes of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Dr. James Rhodes and Joseph Gavin of Indianapolis.

A telegram of fraternal greetings was sent to the New York exhibitors. The ball given Friday night which, by the way, did not close until early morning, was attended by more than three thousand persons. It was held in Tomlinson Hall, the largest in the city. Many famous film stars were present, including several each from the Metro, Essanay. Vitagraph and David Horsley companies.

Exhibitors Quiz Hodkinson

Letter of New York State Convention on Paramount's Support of Federal Censorship.

THE following letter, addressed to William W. Hodkinson, of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, was read at the annual convention of the New York state exhibitors, held at Albany. It was resolved to send the letter to Mr. Hodkinson as the unanimous expression of all the delegates present:

Mr. W. W. Hodkinson, Pres., Paramount Pictures Corporation,
41st Street and Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City.

Dear Sir—I am glad to have your statement to the effect that you are entirely opposed to state and local censorship "with their variable standards." I regret that the same light of reason which enables you to perceive clearly the evils of state censorship fails you utterly in your consideration of the evils of national censorship. You have been reported as saying that the opponents of censorship seem to have no reason for their stand and that their only argument is reiteration.

Let me ask you: Why do you oppose state censorship? You speak of the variable standards of state and local censorship. What makes these standards variable? Nothing but the variable action of the variable human mind. What reason have you to suppose that the censor because he is called "federal" will be less variable, less liable to err and less liable to do injustice to the film interests? Is it possible that you fail to understand our principle? We are opposed to censorship as a principle. This means that the personality of the censor has absolutely nothing to do with the question of censorship. A principle which is essentially vicious remains vicious no matter in whom it may be embodied. The most truthful man is not believed when he tells us that twice two makes five.

If censorship were a new idea we might be tempted to give it a trial. The fact is that nothing has ever been tried more thoroughly and found more inefficient than censorship. The English-speaking races have for the last two hundred years rejected censorship because it utterly failed to accomplish the ends for which it had been instituted. After long and costly experiments accompanied by much cruelty and oppression it was decided by the parliament of England that printing should be free and that it was no longer a crime to conduct an unlicensed printing shop.

You will see then, I trust, that censorship of any variety flies in the face of the experience of all free and democratic countries. I assume there is no doubt in your mind, as there is none in ours, as to the right of the picture to enjoy the same legal guarantees and immunities which the constitution of every state grants to the press.

Have you read any work on the political history of our country? If you have, you surely must have been struck by the fierce jealousy with which each state in the union maintains its attributes of sovereignty. One of the great attributes of the sovereignty of a state is its right to regulate the public health and the morals of its citizens. It is easy to say that federal consorship will do away with state censorship, it may be creditable to your optimism to hope so, but I challenge you to point to a single historic fact or a single legal principle on which such a hope and such a belief can be based.

Until you furnish such proof of your contention that federal censorship will in any way diminish the evils of state and other censorship cannot be taken seriously.

If you believe that federal censorship will destroy what you may consider unfair competition, we beg you to consider that after such unfair competition is removed the Federal Censor Board will begin to operate on your films. It is generally recognized both by the public and by exhibitors that you aim to produce none but clean and wholesome pictures. In spite of your honest endeavor, some of your best pictures were made the subject of condemnation and elimination by the Censor Boards of Pennsylvania and Ohio. Censorship strikes at all films in its effort to maintain itself and to provide a plausible excuse for holding office and drawing salaries.

In conclusion I wish to say that the exhibitors of the country have a very vital interest in this matter. They have a right to speak for themselves, and they furthermore have the right to expect that the producers consult with them before taking such a stand as you have taken. Yours very truly,

Lee A. Ochs.

Cincinnati Exhibitors Meet

Hold Installation of Officers and Discuss Plans for Children's Programs.

AT A REGULAR meeting of the Cincinnati Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, held on March 1, one of the first of importance held since the league's affiliation with the Chamber of Commerce, the recently-elected officers were installed, and will hold the reins for a year. They are as follows: President, F. L. Emmert; first vice-president, A. G. Hetteschеimer; second vice-president, M. Marcus; treasurer, John J. Huss; managing secretary, H. Serkowich; sergeant-at-arms, J. J. Mies.

Several matters of considerable interest were taken up, chief among these being the sore spot which is continuously present with responsible exhibitors who object to paying in advance for paper and service. This requirement is general in this vicinity, as well as elsewhere, and the exhibitors appointed a committee to confer with the exchanges and find out why they cannot be treated as responsible business men.

The matter of arranging for children's programs which can be accessible to every exhibitor was also taken up, on the initiative of Mrs. Huffaker, probation officer of the Juvenile Court, who is also connected prominently with the Women's Civic League and the Women's Club. A special board of censors to pass upon pictures with reference to their special fitness for children was suggested by Mrs. Huffaker. A committee was appointed to co-operate with her in work in this direction.

The League voted unanimously to tender the free use of its screens to the Chamber of Commerce in its campaign on behalf of the rapid-transit bond issue, and a committee consisting of A. Hettesheimer, Lem Miller and H. Serkowich will prepare slides for this purpose. The chief object is to get out as large a vote as possible, and a close tab will be kept on the results with a view to determining to a certain extent the efficiency of slide advertising when conducted intelligently and on a large scale.

At Leading Picture Theatres

Programs for the Week of March 6 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

"To Have and to Hold" at the Strand.

AT THE STRAND theater Mae Murray made her photodramatic debut in a film version of Mary Johnson's famous novel, "To Have and to Hold," a romance of Colonial days in Virginia. Miss Murray was seen as Lady Jocelyn Leigh, ward of King James I of England, who flees to America to escape an undesirable marriage. Wallace Reid played the role of Captain Ralph Percy, a gentleman adventurer in Jamestown. Others in the cast were Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton, James Neill, Lucien Littlefield, R. Bradbury and Robert Fleming. The production of "To Have and to Hold" is one of the most lavish ever made by the Lasky Company.

Other film attractions of interest were the Paramount Pictograph, a new innovation, showing pictures of scientific and educational nature; the Topical Review, the European war pictures, and the latest fashions for women. The Metro Pictures Corporation presented Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in a new comedy. Interesting travel pictures conclude the film part of the entertainment. Grace Hoffman, soprano, and Bruce Weyman, the baritone, were the soloists.

Triangle Program at the Knickerbocker.

"The Moral Fabric," by C. Gardner Sullivan, was given its premiere as a photoplay at the Knickerbocker theater last week. The picture is a psychological drama, produced by Thomas H. Ince and his Triangle Kay-Bee Company, with Frank Mills in the star role and Edith Reeves in the difficult role of Amy Winthrop. Howard Hickman and Louise Brownell completed the cast.

Two Triangle-Keystone comedies, William Collier and company in "Wife and Auto Trouble," and Charles Murray in "The Judge," furnished the lighter vein of entertainment.

The musical program included a violin solo by Margaret Whitaker, and vocal solos by John Bardsley and Miroslave, the Serbian prima donna.

"Out of the Drifts" at the Broadway.

Marguerite Clark in "Out of the Drifts," a Paramount picture, was the star at the Broadway theater for the week. "Out of the Drifts" is a story of the eternal snows in the St. Bernard Pass. The heroine is an unsophisticated little shepherdess, whose innocence and beauty arouse in a dissolute visitor the lowest impulses of his nature. Miss Clark and the supporting company give the picture every advantage of skilled acting, and the pictorial beauties of the Alpine settings have been reproduced with great fidelity.

The Burton Holmes-Paramount travel pictures, "Summer Days Near San Diego," are on the program; also other interesting features.

PATENTS COMPANY TAKES APPEAL.

The Motion Picture Patents Company and the other members of the so-called "moving picture trust" recently took an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, thereby delaying, for the time at least, the decree for an injunction against them, which was to have become on February 24. The appeal was granted by Judge Dickinson, who decided some time ago that the Motion Picture Patents Company and its allied companies were operating in direct violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The final decree, in conformity with Judge Dickinson's opinion, was filed some time ago and was published in full by the Moving Picture World, but was not to have become operative until the date above mentioned, in order to allow the defendants to decide whether or no an appeal should be made.

Triangle Opening of Colonial

Chicago Home of Triangle Pictures Opened Most Auspiciously Under the Direction of S. L. Rothapfel—First News About Opening of the Rialto, New York, and Rothapfel's Artistic Plans.

By James S. McQuade.

THE opening of the Colonial theater, Chicago, with a Triangle program, which was viewed exclusively only by those who had been invited for the occasion, was a most gratifying success. The event took place Saturday evening, Feb. 26, and Chicago moving picture admirers had their first opportunity to judge for themselves of the abilities of S. L. Rothapfel, who had charge of the program, orchestra, stage effects and house staff, and who had been induced by the officers of the Triangle Film Corporation to come on from New York to supervise the opening of the Chicago home for Triangle presentations.

It was, perhaps, just as well that the great representative gathering of Chicago's finest was ignorant of the remarkable career of the man who is known to the trade throughout the country as the Belasco of moving picture presentations, although it might have been better had some of the representatives of the daily press been familiar with it. The fact that hearty, frequent and well-timed applause was given during the presentation was sufficient evidence of the art and skill displayed by Mr. Rothapfel.

Five years ago I heard strange rumors of the doings of a man called Rothapfel in the big Alhambra theater, Milwaukee. He had opened that theater, which seats 2,700 people, with moving pictures, at a time when suitable programs were hard to find, and he was looked upon by wise showmen as a crazy man. But by his new methods, which included a distinct departure from the old—the use of the oldest art in the world, music, to interpret moving pictures, the newest art—he amazed and confounded his critics by filling the Alhambra, big as it was, and holding a long line of people out in front eagerly awaiting their turn to enter. And another innovation that commanded admiration at the time was his use of artistic stage settings to create atmosphere, these being assisted by light effects that produced the desired psychological effect on the spectators.

Then the Alhambra changed ownership, and I next heard of his wonderful artistic success in the Lyric theater, Minneapolis, which seated 1,700 people. Competitors in that city looked on the venture as a forlorn hope; but "Roxie" stuck to his guns (he served five years in the U. S. Marine corps and resigned as petty officer), and succeeded in filling his theater with the best people in the city, from the Governor of the State down. At the Lyric I met him for the first time, in the fall of 1911, in the interests of the Moving Picture World, and through it he was introduced to the trade generally.

Since then he made his big success at the new Strand theater, New York, and is now awaiting the opening of the Rialto, at Forty-second street and Broadway, which has been built specially for him, and of which he is a stockholder.

But to return to the Colonial opening. As the curtain rose, the dimmed lights revealed the orchestra seated on the front of the stage. Back of this was constructed a section of a conservatory that looked out on a lake stretching away in the distance between wooded hills, backed by lofty, distant mountains. Facing the spectators were two massive marble columns, connected with the side walls of the conservatory, which supported the glass roof, artistically trellised with vines. One looked at the lake and the hills and picturesque mountains through the conservatory, the opening between the columns appearing like a large window through which nature's beauties were unfolded.

Between these columns the screen was dropped, creating the impression of looking through a great window at the scenes beyond, when the pictures are projected. This happy inspiration is a nice evidence of the study and development of effects by Mr. Rothapfel. He considers the open stage and the screen at the back all wrong, in the projection of pictures, and that art must remedy the commonplace method.

Mr. Rothapfel directed the music throughout and was vigorously applauded.

The feature of the evening was "Daphne and the Pirate," with charming Lillian Gish as Daphne La Tour and that excellent actor, Elliott Dexter, as Philip de Mornay, the pirate. The entire program, which occupied nearly two hours and a half—just 30 minutes too long, I would say—was received with great approval.

The interpretative music which accompanies the presentation of "Daphne and the Pirate" was adapted and composed under Mr. Rothapfel's personal supervision, with the aid of his staff. Dr. Bodansky, conductor of the Wagnerian operas at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, after hearing this music, said to Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, Mr. Rothapfel's conductor in New York: "The music for this picture is the finest I have ever heard in moving picture work, in which I am very much interested."

During a conversation Mr. Rothapfel told me that his new theater, the Rialto, on 42nd and Broadway, will be opened on Saturday night, April 15.

In speaking of his new house, Mr. Rothapfel became quite serious. "I am going to climb my next step in the art of moving picture presentation," he said. "I am going on a different line entirely. Those to whom I have imparted my ideas, and they are, perhaps, the most artistic authorities on music and effects today before the American public—such men as David Belasco, Daniel Frohman and several others—became enthused when I outlined my plan, and said that it would rival in every way a grand opera presentation.

"I have gathered about me forty of the best musicians that money could secure. I have engaged on my musical staff as director, Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, conductor of the Century Opera and concert master of the Manhattan Opera, the greatest interpreter, perhaps, of Viennese music living today; also Dr. Alfred G. Robyn and Edward Johnson, two of the ablest organists in America. I have given them an organ which is without question the largest and finest organ ever placed in a theater in the history of moving pictures, it being specially designed and adapted for this work.

"I have wholly eliminated the stage in the Rialto; also all scenery. My scenic effects will be created hereafter by means of light and shade. I do not care to disclose any more at this time. I am satisfied that it is going to mark a new era in the art of the presentation of the moving picture.

"My lighting plant in this theater will be, perhaps, the most elaborate ever installed in any theater. It has sixty-eight separate dimming units and the switchboard is approximately twice as large as that of the Strand. The lighting will be carried into the auditorium proper by means of the four colors—red, blue, green and amber, with which I will be able to create any optical effect I desire upon my audience. For instance, should I desire moonlight, the whole auditorium will be diffused in moonlight. Should I desire a psychological climax, I will be able to raise the lights instantly with the swell of the music to any height I desire. Experiments in this line have proved satisfactory and that the effect is irresistible.

"The house management will also have new features and many innovations. I am going to devote myself entirely to my new theater and give up other work that has been piling up so rapidly for me."

Mr. Rothapfel left for Albany, N. Y., on Wednesday, March 1, where he addressed the exhibitors of the New York State League, at their annual convention.

"I am sorry that I could not prolong my stay in Chicago, and have placed the Colonial under the direction of my personal assistant, Alfred de Manby," he said before leaving. "He will remain here as long as I think it necessary, and will then turn it over to some worthy successor. Mr. de Manby will be my first assistant in the Rialto, in the general management. He has been with me throughout my regime at the Strand and later at the Knickerbocker, and I know that he will carry to a successful completion the work he has been assigned to do at the Colonial."

CAVALLIERI TO TRY PICTURES.

Negotiations have been pending for several months for the appearance of Lina Cavallieri, grand opera prima donna, in the films, but up to this time she has refused all offers. Now, however, she has succumbed to a very large offer and will begin work as soon as a scenario written for her by Ouida Bergere has been completed. Miss Bergere will be remembered as the one selected by Pathe and A. H. Woods from among the best scenario writers of the country to adapt the Woods plays for the screen.

NEW THEATER AT DALLAS, TEX.

A new moving picture house will shortly be opened in Dallas, Tex. This theater will be located at 1510 Elm St., right in the heart of the shopping district and will be convenient and strictly modern in all its appointments. Leon Goldman, the owner of this new temple of amusement, has purchased two of the latest types of motion picture projectors and a Gold King Screen which will be installed in the near future.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Drastic Report on Films Shown in Chicago by Committee of the Chicago Political Equality League.

By James S. McQuade.

FOLLOWING the report made Saturday, Feb. 26, by the moving picture committee of the Chicago Political Equality League, a special committee was appointed to make a survey of all moving picture theaters in the city, to work for new ordinances on the question, if necessary, and to consider the police powers of Second Deputy Chief of Police Funkhouser.

The members of the executive board of the league, to whom the report was submitted, adopted the following recommendations of the moving picture committee:

That a special survey be made of the programs following special shows given for children.

That we begin an educational program to awaken the consciousness of the parents who allow their children to attend the "movies" during weekday evenings.

That we insist on light auditoriums in theatres where there is too much darkness.

That we protest against suggestive titles and subtitles, as well as improper billing.

That we recommend for the consideration of the public the patronage of shows which specialize on films portrayed by clean actors and actresses, and which contain no salacious, vulgar, lewd and criminal acts.

That we pass on to other cities some of the information we have secured during this investigation.

That we urge the policy of continued supervision of the South State street shows and such other shows of like nature, with a view of keeping them clean and to positively abolish all that persist in vile exhibitions that have characterized them in the past, and never cease our vigilance.

That your committee be given power to arrange a meeting with the moving picture exhibitors of this city, where the subject may be discussed in a friendly way, with a view of securing their closer cooperation to exhibit films of a cleaner nature.

In her report Mrs. Blanchard, chairwoman of the moving picture committee, said it is her belief that 95 per cent. of the managers use their best endeavors to exhibit photoplays that are fit to be shown. The committee visited 157 theaters, saw 675 photoplays, and 1,738 reels. In nineteen of the theaters ventilation was bad, and in fourteen the sanitation was reported as bad. Forty-three auditoriums were reported as being dark when the pictures were shown.

Of the 675 photoplays inspected, but 34 were classed as "good," 141 were all bad and the rest indifferent!

Chicago's Mayor Sued to Close Sixteen Theaters.

Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson was named in mandamus proceedings, begun Saturday, Feb. 26, in the Circuit Court, to compel the revocation of the licenses of the 16 theaters mentioned in the resolution introduced at a meeting of the City Council, Monday, Feb. 21, the resolution being referred at that time to the Judiciary Committee, as stated in my last letter. Alderman McCormick of the Sixth Ward has brought the action. Attorney Maurice Berkson, representing Mr. McCormick, gives the following explanation of the action:

"Mayor Thompson revoked the Harper Theater license in spite of a petition signed by more than 9,000 persons in the neighborhood, who protested against the closing of the theater. It simply means that if the Mayor revokes one license for violation of the ordinance he should apply the ordinance uniformly and close the other theaters that are operating in violation of the law."

Alderman McCormick is one of several members of the Council who are opposing Mayor Thompson tooth and nail in his policies. At the recent primary election seven out of nine of these opposing members were renominated and only two defeated.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson, when told of Alderman McCormick's action, said: "The bringing of this suit at this time is nothing more than a cheap political move on Alderman McCormick's part."

In the meantime the owners of the theaters involved are the cork and feathers in this political game of battledore and shuttlecock, notwithstanding that they are citizens of repute and that some of them have invested their all in the theaters marked for slaughter.

It is clearly within the power of Mayor Thompson to restore the license of the Harper Theater, seeing that a majority of the members of the Hyde Park First Presbyterian Church and 9,000 citizens of the Hyde Park neighborhood are in favor of such action.

He will show his bigness in doing it, and it is the only easy and fair way out of the muddle.

Selig Will Produce "Historic Indiana."

Robert M. Cass, of Indianapolis, acting with the approval and support of the Indiana State Historic Commission and representing the leading public men in that state, signed a contract recently with the Selig Polyscope Company for the production of "Historic Indiana," a seven-reel film that will preserve the history of Indiana from the time of La Salle to the present day.

Gilson Willets, the well-known author, traveler and photoplay writer, has been engaged by the Indiana projectors of the plan to prepare the history for producing purposes, and the filming will begin in the near future, in Selig's Chicago studios.

Mr. Cass has given out that the Governor of Indiana will request James Whitcomb Riley to prepare the subtitles in verse, and that Meridith Nicholson, Booth Tarkington, George Ade, John T. McCutcheon, and other leading literary and art lights of the Hoozier State will be called on to support "Historic Indiana" by contributing special ideas and suggestions.

When completed, "Historic Indiana" will be presented in every city, town, village and schoolhouse in the state, to foster patriotism and state pride, and to familiarize every citizen born in the state with the rich historic lore to which he or she is heir.

It is hinted that Marguerita Beriza, the well-known grand opera star, late of the Chicago Opera Company and now a member of the Selig acting forces, will be selected to play the leading woman's role in this kinematographic history. If so, Mme. Beriza will be supported by a strong cast of Selig players and by men and women who figure prominently in the history of the Hoozier State.

The estimated cost of the finished production is $100,000.

Chicago Film Brevities.

A very pleasing incident at the Triangle opening of the Colonial Theater was the reading of a long telegram from D. W. Griffith and his associates, Thomas Ince and Mack Sennett, by H. A. Erlinger, leader of the Colonial orchestra. The message was addressed to S. L. Rothapfel and conveyed in happily chosen words the best personal wishes of the great trio and their certainty of a most successful opening. Then the message requested Mr. Rothapfel to accept a baton (which was pulled out from its hiding place by Leader Erlinger at the moment) as a small token of their high appreciation of his fine ability and artistic worth. The incident was a complete surprise to Mr. Rothapfel, as the matter had been secretly handled at the Chicago end by C. F. Hately, personal representative of H. E. Aitken, president of the Triangle Film Corporation. Mr. Rothapfel made an offhand reply, during which he assured the large and intelligent gathering that the Triangle programs at the Colonial would be shorn of anything that might be considered objectionable at all times, and that the theater would be kept a delightful amusement place for both young and old. Since the opening night the attendance has far exceeded expectations, and a most convincing sign of the success of the new regime is shown by the well-attended matinees. The admission for matinees is 15 and 25 cents, the hours being from noon until 7 o'clock in the evening, two matinees being given in that time. From 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock p. m., two presentations are given, the admissions to which are 25 and 50 cents. The program is changed weekly, on Sunday.

* * *

Work on "The Crisis" will be begun at the Selig studio here on Monday morning, March 6, under the direction of Colin Campbell. On Saturday, March 4, the following actors, actresses and members on the director's personal staff arrived from Los Angeles: Bessie Eyton, Eugenie Besserer, Tom Santschi, C. Pierson, P. Machin, A. Le Moyne, R. Campbell, C. Holland, M. Snyder, Al. Green, assistant to Director Colin Campbell, and Cameraman McKenzie. On Monday, George Fawcett and Lionel Atwell joined the company from New York City. Mr. Atwell was the late leading man in the Lillie Langtry (Lady De Bathe) company, and Mr. Fawcett is widely known as one of America's best character actors. Work will be confined to interior scenes at the studio here.

* * *

John F. McCauley, traveling representative of the Enterprise Optical Co., was united in marriage to Miss Josephine Moore, in this city, on Feb. 24. The happy pair left Chicago for an eastern trip immediately after the ceremony. Mr. McCauley is well known by exhibitors throughout the country, and since his connection with the Enterprise Optical Co., he has made remarkable progress with the sales of the Motiograph, it is said. He has closed with quite a number of new houses in the past two months for the installation of the late model of the Motiograph projecting machine.

* * *

O. T. George, treasurer of the Mayfield (Ky.) Woolen Mills, one of the largest concerns of its kind, in a recent letter to William N. Selig requesting some attractive photographs of Selig players, wrote: "It will be the writer's pleasure to place them in our sewing department where they will be recognized by five hundred or more girls. Our interest in the matter is that we prefer our girls should go to the picture shows in preference to other amusements not so productive of good influence." This is the opinion of a hard headed business man, who writes from experience. Now let the "reformers" and censors croak.

* * *

Harold P. Brown, a member of the Middle Western camera staff of the Hearst-Vitagraph News, informs me that baseball fans will have a fine chance to follow Joe Tinker and his Cubs to Tampa, Fla., by means of the International Film Service. Victor O. Kubes, of the Chicago staff, of the Hearst-Vitagraph camera department, will be a guest on the special train that will convey the Cub warriors to that city. Mr. Kubes has seen the Cubs come and go for many seasons, while serving the Hearst newspapers as photographer. He knows all the members of the teams by their first names, and will be in an advantageous position to secure the kind of pictures he wants for the news reels. He will be on hand to take the first pictures of the Cubs in action for the Hearst-Vitagraph News.

* * *

Watterson R. Rothacker tells me that E. H. Spears, chief of the research laboratory of the Rothacker Film Mfg. Co., this city, who is giving a special lecture and educational talk each week in the factory for the benefit of employes, has arranged the following schedule up to and including April 17: March 6—To the camera men on lighting of subject and exposure; March 13—Practical outline of the fundamental points of photography; March 20—Development, and time of development of positive film when prints are made from negatives of an inferior quality; March 27—Proper exposure to be given on positive film from negatives which are contrasty, flat and good; April 3—Compounding of a developing formula; April 10—Toning of positive film and the chemical actions of same, and April 17—The dyeing of positive film. In addition to the foregoing, the technical secretary of the company, Mr. Schoenbaum, formerly technical secretary for Charles Pathe, of Paris, will give a lecture on the subject of factory efficiency to the employes every week.

* * *

John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, arrived in the city Thursday, March 2nd, and after paying Milwaukee a visit returned to Chicago to transact some business here. He returned to New York Friday, March 3. During his stay in Chicago, he expressed himself as follows on censorship: "It is an insult to the film industry to be told constantly that the producers do not know the difference between morality and immorality. That is just what the censors are doing, and they are doing it before the public have a chance to pass on our productions. If this doesn't stop, what we producers may turn out will be reduced to nothing. Succeeding in that, the 'reformers' will begin to censor magazine stories, and then where will your 'freedom of expression' be?"

* * *

The final episode in the series of ten comprising "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," was completed by George Kleine about a week ago at the time of writing. This last whirl of Harry Watson was delayed owing to an enforced vacation of several weeks. What with the rough usage and rugged experiences to which Mr. Watson has been subjected during the production of the first nine of the series, it would appear quite natural if he had taken a vacation of several months for recuperation. Here's to his complete restoration to soundness of limbs and prolonged good health! He deserves the best that good fortune can give him in these respects, for the fun and merriment he has brought to thousands who suffer from too many dark places in their lives.

* * *

The Star and Alcazar theaters on Madison street, this city, and the Lyric on South State street, all-night theaters, have been notified by Police Captain Collins that no feminine patrons will be permitted in the houses between two and six o'clock a. m.

* * *

The American theater, 552 S. State street, and the Trocadero, 414 S. State street, which have been placed on the offending list of playhouses, have had their licenses revoked by Mayor Thompson.

* * *

Alfred Hamburger has just added another theater to his moving picture theater circuit, which now numbers 12. The last theater added is located at Grand Blvd. and Oakwood Ave., and now being erected. It will have a capacity of 1,000, and will be called the Oakgrand, if that tentative name is continued.

* * *

Norman E. Field, who installed moving pictures for J. Calvin Brown at Earls Court, London, has been appointed by Jones, Linick & Schaefer to supervise the opening of Paramount programs at the La Salle Opera House and the Studebaker theater, on Sunday, March 5. Martin Ballmann's orchestra, under Mr. Ballmann's direction, will interpret the pictures at the Studebaker, where Miss Jeanio Fletcher, from Glasgow, and Tom Kenyon will be the soloists. "To Have and to Hold" will be the Paramount feature at the Studebaker, and "Diplomacy" will follow "Poor Little Peppina" at the La Salle.

* * *

Little Mary Miles Minter, accompanied by her mother, was in the city last week. They came on from Florida and spent two days here and then proceeded to Indianapolis, where the exhibitors' state convention was being held. While in the city, Miss Minter appeared at several theaters owned by Alfred Hamburger and the Ascher Brothers, where she made short speeches.

* * *

After a successful run of two weeks at the Fine Arts theater, "The Adventures of Kathlyn" in 10 reels, was taken off Friday evening, March 3. The run excited considerable interest, notwithstanding the great vogue, not long ago, of the Kathlyn series of 27 reels. Numerous letters have been received by the Selig Polyscope Co., regarding bookings for the subject in ten-reel length.

* * *

Messrs. Wessels and Voegeli, managers of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Orchestra Hall, who have for a long time been prominent as the western representatives of top-notch musical artists and of concerts and opera, have announced in their plans for the coming season, which opens May 6, that a diversified film program will be presented, with a complete change each week. Many grand opera favorites will appear as soloists, and Arthur Dunham will conduct the Chicago Symphony Orchestra of 30 members. Many novelties in the form of short moving picture subjects of an interesting type are promised, and the feature pictures will be up to the customary Orchestra Hall standard of artistic excellence and refinement. The best photoplays of the best producers will be selected. These "cinema-concerts," as the management terms them, will be under the managing direction of H. W. Hill, long associated with Wessels and Voegeli and Orchestra Hall, and a devoted student and admirer of moving pictures.

MABEL NORMAND STAYS WITH TRIANGLE.

Rumors that Mabel Normand, one of the original players at Keystone, might make another affiliation in the near future have been set at naught by announcement from the offices of the Triangle Film Corporation that Kessel and Baumann have succeeded in obtaining her signature to a new contract. Miss Normand came east with Roscoe Arbuckle several weeks ago and has been starred with him in two Keystone comedies made under his direction at Fort Lee. Both pieces, "He Did and He Did'nt" and "The Bright Lights," are now released generally to Triangle exhibitors and are meeting with more than the usual success. Arbuckle has started work on a new story at Fort Lee.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

NEW QUARTERS FOR "FLYING A."

American Film Manufacturing Company Plans Elaborate and Unique Administration Offices at Santa Barbara.

DETAILED plans are now almost completed for another addition to the American Film plant at Santa Barbara, to cost between $16,000 and $20,000. The building will be given over entirely to offices and will reach from the present office in the old building to the intersection of Mission and State streets, where a ninety-foot Italian style tower will be erected as the company's main entrance and most beautiful part of the American's group of buildings.

The big tower is to be 30 feet square and its open roof for a lookout will be 250 feet above the beach. The first floor of the tower will be the main office. The second and third floors will also be given over to offices and the fourth floor to the scenario department.

The long one-story structure that will connect the tower with the present American building will have the same exterior of blind arches as the section of building already on Mission street. The offices will be back of these arches and back of the office again will be a wall rising thirty feet above the sidewalk and completely hiding the big glass studio.

The main entrance to the American will be through a massive arched door, above which will be the winged "A" trademark of the company. Building is expected to begin as soon as the spring rains are over.

KALEM FORCES BUSY.

"Helen" Smashes Camera When Speeder Leaps from Track—James Horne Busy with Court Scenes—"Ham" Becomes Wealthy.

The two studios of the Kalem are exceptionally lively this week. Everyone is busy and working at top speed.

A thrill within a thrill was experienced by the players making the latest Kalem release of the Helen series. The Accident at Kalem Studio.

taking of "The Record Run," produced by James Davis, was brought to an unexpected climax when a speeder driven by Helen Gibson jumped the track crashing into the camera and destroying it, and barely missing the director and cameraman who were standing beside it. Miss Gibson "came up smiling" in the midst of the wreckage and was not hurt. The stunt was to have the speeder coming at full speed, and the machine driven by the crooks was to cross the tracks just ahead of it, one of the men throwing out an automobile cushion to throw the speeder from the rails and prevent Helen reaching a point at which to give warning of their escape. The speeder, however, took the matter in its own hands and jumped the rails before the crossing was reached. Miss Gibson jumped clear of it and beyond the camera being reduced to splinters no one was hurt.

James W. Horne has just finished writing and producing a two-reel feature entitled "Justice versus Evidence." The cast includes Ollie Kirkby, Paul C. Hurst, Frank Johnasson, Thomas G. Lingham and Ed Clisbee. The production required the building of a special set of a courtroom fifty feet wide and one hundred and ten feet deep. There were over two hundred extras used in this scene.

Action at Kalem Studio.

"Millionaires by Mistake" is the one-reel comedy produced at the Hollywood Studios of the Kalem during the week that gives Ham and Bud unlimited opportunities for their quaint brand of comedy. Elaborate hotel interiors have been built for the story and an elevator in the lobby served particularly well for amusing situations. The hotel scenes were made at one of Pasadena's most fashionable hostelries.

William Beaudine has completed a one-reel comedy featuring Ethel Teare. Jack Macdermott plays opposite Miss Teare with Victor Rottman in the cast.

INCE BUSY.

Names New Play Which Took Ten Months to Make—Signs Collier Again—Other Newsy Reports.

At Inceville an important decision was reached this week when Ince resolved to entitle his big production, "He Who Returned." This is the working title given the story by C. Gardner Sullivan, its author, more than a year ago, but until this week it was believed the producer would change it when the time arrived for the production's public showing. He has concluded, however, that "He Who Returned" is the most fitting title of all those that have been under consideration. It is intended to release the subject in from ten to eleven reels.

This is the great picture that took nearly a year to prepare for the screen and which will be released soon.

Willie Collier, one of the funniest of comedians, who made people laugh in one of Mack Sennett's films, has again signed with Thomas H. Ince.

Collier's initial appearance on the screen was made in a Keystone comedy. Immediately afterward the comedian was approached by Producer Ince with an offer. He agreed. A story was written by C. Gardner Sullivan, and Collier went to work under the direction of Walter Edwards. This is soon to be released under the title of "The No-Good Guy." Following his sojourn at Inceville, Collier again was engaged by Sennett. The engagement terminated this week and Ince, eager again to star Collier, once more made him an offer, which the comedian readily accepted. C. Gardner Sullivan is now at work on the scenario of the story which will serve as Collier's second Triangle-Kay-Bee vehicle. It, of course, is another light comedy.

A large crew at Inceville is engaged in putting the finishing touches to the set which will be used for the big scenes in the feature in which William S. Hart is appearing under the direction of Charles Swickard. This set will depict the palace and walls of an Aztec city.

It is being built of plaster plaques, modeled by the Ince sculptoring department, and is one of the largest and most unusual exteriors ever constructed. The story, a romance of the sixteenth century, was written by Monte M. Katterjohn.

Aztec Palace.

Harry E. Aitken, president of the Triangle, spent an entire day at the new Culver City studios. He inspected every feature of it, from the diffuser system to the hothouse for the storage of plants and flowers. He said it was one of the most completely equipped studios he had ever seen.

"BLUE RIBBON" KNOT TIED.

Vitagraph Feature, "God's Country and the Woman," Sturgeon's Latest Success, Ready for Premiere.

At last, after battles with the elements, snow barricades, starvation and many other happenings to hinder the speedy completion of a great picture, Rollin S. Sturgeon has finished "God's Country and the Woman."

The Best of Enemies.

The picture shows George Holt and William Duncan shortly after the last scene was shot. The stage has been cleared, and picture playing is over until the next big assignment. William Duncan (left) received the "vanquished villain's" congratulations on his work. Their work in "The Chalice of Courage," "The Wanderers" and finally "God's Country and the Woman" was so excellent that the two biggest leads in the thirty-one-episode serial, "Hearts of Three," have been assigned them.

All the Northern costumes used in the picture just finished were made to order. During the two weeks some forty extra men were at Bear Valley. Some particularly trying cold was experienced.

This big story is in eight reels and will be released April 3 through the V-L-S-E. There are 411 scenes. In Bear Valley alone, where most of the exteriors were taken, over a hundred locations were used, the greater part of them from an hour to half a day's travel from the central camp on the mountainside.

William Wolbert is busily engaged on the production of the serial "Hearts of Three," by Jack London. William Duncan, George Holt, and Carmen Phillips are the "Three" of the title. George represents the powerful opposition to the happiness of the hero, as portrayed by Duncan, and the Spanish heroine is played by Carmen Phillips. Miss Phillips was specially engaged for this serial. She is thoroughly at home in the part she is filling. One odd point about the serial is that no other woman character appears in the plot during the course of the first nine episodes—something most unusual in serials. Otto Lederer is to be seen as Jeffe Politico. The Vitagraph has chartered a yacht and on it a large company will cruise a month in Southern waters.

Nell Shipman, who played in the leading role of "God's Country and the Woman," left on a tramping vacation in company with another young woman after the eight reeler was completed. As a result of getting mixed up with a big poison oak vine she is confined to bed in a dark room in a local hospital suffering greatly. Her sight was at first despaired of, but with careful treatment she will recover.

William Duncan and Nell Shipman.

Work on the wardrobe building has been started, and ground is being broken for the indoor studio to be built at the eastern end of the open air stage. The officials promise us a housewarming soon.

RED ROOSTER HAS NEW COOP.

Pathe Opens New Exchange in Los Angeles—Manager Loper Entertains Many Exhibitors and Friends.

This week the new Pathe home was auspiciously opened on Olive street, in the heart of Film Row. Present to participate in the housewarming were many out-of-town visitors. Mayor James Sams of the famous Rosemary theatre at Ocean Park was on deck. Mr. Buffum of the Pathe News, stood behind the film box and made pictures. He also made a "still" for the World, which is herewith presented.

Pathe's New Exchange.

Manager B. A. Loper was as busy as could be shaking hands with exhibitors, greeting exchangemen who dropped in to say "hello," and trying to give a first showing of "The Iron Claw," the thrilling serial which Pathe is presenting this week. He also ran some scenes from "The Horrors of War." The new home of the Gold Rooster brand is only a step in the progress that is slated for Los Angeles' film colony.

WELL-KNOWN MEN VISIT UNIVERSAL CITY.

Charles E. Van Loan, well-known writer, and Henry James Forman, editor of Collier's Weekly, were visitors this week at Universal City. They were greeted by General Manager H. O. Davis.

Mr. Eorman remarked that "Preparedness seems to be the watchword at Universal City." The visitors were escorted around the big plant and saw many pictures being made. They watched with special interest the making of scenes in "Graft," being directed by Dick Stanton.

Doing Things at Universal City.

Another interesting bit of action was in a scene where a real automobile crashed through a fence and on to a weak bridge, plunging into the water below.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

George L. Cox, well known Chicago film man, paid a visit to the World office this week. Mr. Cox has been in Los Angeles for the past three weeks filming scenes for "Uncle Sam's Babies," a feature picture which he is producing for the Woman's City Club of Chicago. Practically every activity representing children's welfare is portrayed in this picture, Mr. Cox says. An interesting photoplay story has been woven round the theme of how to properly care for children.

In the making of this feature children's institutions have been visited and filmed in New York, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence, Denver, Salt Lake City, New Orleans, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles. The picture will be released to exhibitors at an early date.

* * *

Hobart Bosworth, Director Lloyd Carleton and a company of Universal players are in San Diego this week filming exteriors for "The Way of the World," a screen adaptation from Clyde Fitch's drama.

* * *

L. C. Shumway, producer and player, has joined the Pacific Coast studios of the Universal. His first appearance will be in a leading role in "The Rival Engineers" under the direction of Henry McRae.

* * *

Rupert Julian began this week the production of a five-reel feature from a scenario by Olga Printzlau. The cast includes also Zoe Bech, Francelia Billington, Gordon Griffith, Douglas Gerrard, George Hupp, Jack Holt, Ben Horning, Paul Weigle and Nanine Wright.

* * *

Elliott J. Clawson, formerly of the scenario staff of the Morosco Photoplay company, joined the force of Universal writers this week. His first picture will be a five-reel comedy drama, "Broadway to a Throne," which is to be directed by W. J. Bowman, with Carter DeHaven in the leading role. Mr. Clawson is well known on the coast as a newspaper man, and was for a year head of Universal's Western Publicity Department. Later he was associated with the Masterpiece and the Morosco Companies in the capacity of scenario writer.

* * *

Otis Turner has started production of "Son of the Immortals," a film story from Louis Tracy's novel prepared for the screen by Ruth Ann Baldwin. J. Warren Kerrigan is to play lead, with Lois Wilson opposite, and a supporting cast including Bertram Brassby, Maude George and Howard Holland.

* * *

Norma Talmadge and a company of thirty Fine Arts players have departed for Santa Barbara this week where producers C. M. and S. A. Franklin will film scenes for a current Triangle feature.

* * *

Visitors at the Fine Arts studios this week were Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, and Albert Wiggins of the New York Chase National Bank.

* * *

Director William Bertram, who produced the "Buck Parvin" pictures, has now completed "Snow Stuff," the last of the Van Loan stories to be adapted for the screen by the American Company, and has started work on "Under Azure Skies," from a scenario by Karl Coolidge. Art Acord takes the leading role and is supported by Nita Davis, Lawrence Peyton and Victor LeReno.

* * *

Thomas Chatterton will play the lead in "The Secret Submarine," a new serial which will be started shortly by the American Company. Mr. Chatterton has recently been dircting and playing in "Mustang" pictures with Anna Little and Jack Richardson. "The Secret of the Submarine" series will be directed by George Sargeant. The Mustang brand of pictures will now be directed by Frank Borzage. Anna Little and Jack Richardson will remain with the Mustang.

* * *

Cecil B. DeMille of the Lasky Company departed for the mountains this week for a few days rest and recreation.

* * *

Feodore Raskolnikoff, for a number of years costumer to the Russian Court at Petrograd, has been specially engaged by the Lasky company to design the costumes worn in the court scene of "The Sowers," in which Blanche Sweet is starred.

* * *

We had the pleasure of meeting Harry Lustig, formerly with the Mutual Exchange in Denver, but now in charge of the local Metro branch at 738 South Olive street. He reports good results with the new Metro features, which are showing in nineteen Los Angeles houses. E. J. Lipson, traveling from this office, says Siller & Chapman in Whittier are opening their house under the Metro banner.

* * *

In Oatman, the newest gold mining town, W. E. Taylor is starting a barnlike house with three Metro changes a week.

* * *

Edward Slowman is the latest to join the American forces and has started his work at Santa Barbara with a five-reel feature in which Franklin Ritchie and Winnifred Greenwood are the leading players. The story is by Julian La Mothe.

* * *

"Ramona," the big Clune film, is in her fifth week. Every day there is a line at the big auditorium box office.

* * *

General Manager Whiting of Rolin Phumphilms writes that Mr. Roach has left for New York to confer with the heads of Pathe. Production meanwhile is going on under the direction of Gilbert Pratt, assistant to Mr. Roach.

* * *

G. A. Mauck, president of the Phoenix Amusement Company of Arizona, was a business visitor in the city this week. His concern owns a number of large houses and operates several others. It has recently leased the Columbia, one of the largest and best theaters in the State and will run late pictures in it. They use Metro most everywhere. He says copper has gone up again making money less valuable in that territory.

* * *

Following a prolonged illness during which he was under the care of several physicians, Jack Standing, one of the seven well known brothers of that name, returned to Inceville this week, prepared to resume work as supporting principal in Triangle Kay-Bee features.

* * *

At Redondo last Sunday we met up with Manager Banning of the Majestic theater, apparently the largest in the town. He was making money with the Pathe color picture, "The Beloved Vagabond." His program was balanced by a Rolin Phunphilm. Business was very good owing to the stopping of the rain.

Trade Board Issues Exposition Rules

Promoters Say Number of Contracts Already Signed Insures Success—Diagram of Exhibition Floor.

THE formal contracts for space in Madison Square Garden for the First National Motion Picture Exposition, which will be held from May 6 to 13 inclusive, are now ready for signing. The promoter of the big show, the Motion Picture Board of Trade, Incorporated, promise that it will in every way be worthy of the fifth industry of the United States. The decorations, music and presentation of pictures will be under the supervision of S. L. Rothapfel. Already, the board announces, sufficient space has been reserved to insure the success of the project. Among the stated conditions, rules and regulations are the following:

DECORATIONS—The price of exhibit space includes the use of such decorations and signs as will be provided for exhibitors by the management. These decorations and fixtures must not be taken from the building by the exhibitor at the end of the Show. All sign work, etc., must be executed by the official decorator as determined by the management, and must conform to the uniform idea of color and size. Exhibitors must have copy for their signs, one line only, without descriptive matter, in the hands of the manager, on or before April 25th, 1916. No extra signs of any description will be permitted to be placed in exhibit spaces, except by written consent of the management. All spaces will be provided with suitable floor covering.

RECEIPT OF EXHIBITS—Exhibits will be received at the shipping entrance of the Garden, through a receiving clerk there on duty, any time after 12 o'clock noon, Thursday, May 4, 1916. All goods should be plainly marked, and all charges prepaid. The receiving clerk will have in charge a corps of men to assist exhibitors to place exhibits in their respective places. All exhibits must be in place and ready for the reception to be given to the press at 1 P. M. on Saturday, May 6, 1916.

HOURS OF THE SHOW—The show will open at 2 P. M. Saturday, May 6, and continue on to 11 P. M. that day. From Monday, May 8, to Saturday, May 13, inclusive, the doors will be open from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. daily.

REMOVAL OF GOODS DURING THE SHOW—No exhibit or portion thereof may be removed from the building during the show without the consent of the management thereto in writing.

CHARACTER OF EXHIBITS—The management will prohibit the installation of any exhibit not approved of by it. Distribution by the exhibitors of any printed matter, souvenirs or other articles shall be restricted to within the space occupied by their exhibits.

INSURANCE AND LIABILITY—Insurance of any and all kinds, if desired by exhibitors, must be obtained at their own cost and expense. The Motion Picture Board of Trade of America, Inc., and its agents, assumes no risk, and by the acceptance of this agreement the exhibitor expressly releases said management and its agents, of and from any and all liabiliay, for any damage, injury or loss to any person or goods from any cause whatsoever.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION—Will open Friday, May 5, 1916, at noon, and will be located in the main lobby of the Garden. All mail will be received here and will be distributed to exhibitors as quickly as possible.

FURNITURE, ETC.—Desks, chairs, couches and tables must be furnished by the exhibitor, at his own expense.

EXHIBITOR'S REPRESENTATIVE—During the show any business between the exhibitor and manager shall be conducted through one authorized agent, and through no other person.

ADMISSION—Admission to the show for the public will be 50 cents. No person will be allowed to remain in the building after the closing hour.

REGARDING JOBBERS—Every jobber, agent, retailer or any person other than a manufacturer to whom space is allotted must designate in the contract for space a complete list of names and addresses of all manufacturers whose goods he will exhibit. No other goods will be permitted to be exhibited in said jobbers' space.

ELECTRIC POWER, ETC.—Any extra electric power or special lighting of exhibits shall be subject to the approval of the management, and if so approved will be furnished by the management to the exhibitor free of charge.

All goods must be removed from Madison Square Garden by the exhibitor not later than Monday midnight, May 15, 1916.

PLANET FILM CORPORATION FORMED.

Articles of incorporation were filed with the Delaware secretary of state on March 1 for the Planet Film Corporation, a new company being organized by a group of capitalists headed by a prominent member of the New York Stock Exchange. Details are not available, but it is believed the Planet company will be made up of several now-existing producing organizations, in amalgamation.

The Planet Film Corporation will have a paid-up capital stock of $1,500,000. The officers of the company have not yet been designated, but it is understood the head of the company will be a man of high standing in the film industry.

MOSS "STATERIGHTING."

Disposing of feature films through the medium of state rights sales is the present and future process through which B. S. Moss will place the features manufactured by his concern on the market. The current Moss release is "One Day," the sequel to Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," also screened as a feature by Moss last year, and sold on the state rights plan.

About April 1 Moss will turn out another, "The Undertow," and during this year expects to produce on the average of one feature monthly, selling all via state rights, reserving Greater New York and Northern New Jersey for his own territory.

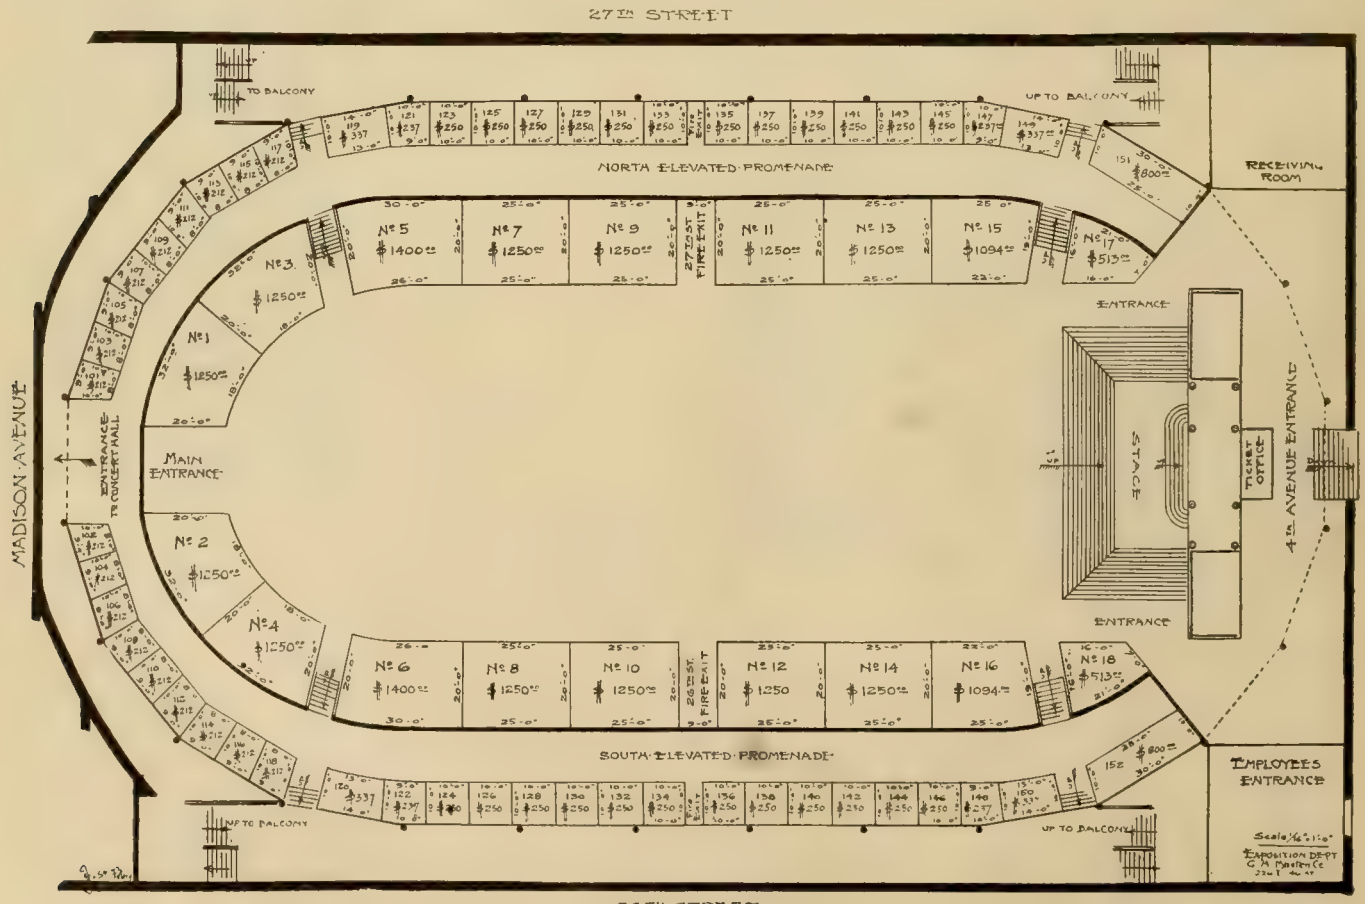

Diagram of Madison Square Garden Exposition Floor for Board of Trade Show.

Universal's New Serial

Called "The Pursuit of Patricia" and Will Be in Ten Episodes —Edith Roberts the Star.

A NEW serial will shortly be launched by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. Edith Roberts, the youngest leading lady with the Universal, will play the leading role, and Robert F. Hill will direct the series. "The Pursuit of Patricia" is the title selected for this series, the story which will appear in Snappy Stories Magazine each month for ten months.

"The Pursuit of Patricia" was written by Reginald Wright Kauffman and Hugh Weir. Mr. Kauffman will be remembered for his great sellers, "The House of Bondage," "Sentence of Silence," and many others. Mr. Weir is the author of the story of "Graft," as well as such books as "The Love Pirates," "Miss Madelyn Mack, Detective," and a great many others. Both these authors are well known for their books and stories and also for the many high-class motion picture plays which they have had produced by the leading film companies. This new serial, the first to be made by the Universal in the east, will consist of ten episodes, one release every two weeks.

Edith Roberts will star for the first time in the new series, which is peculiarly adapted to her unique and charming personality. The story deals with the adventures of a young heiress who must evade her guardian for a period of one year or else marry the man whom her guardian dictates. She runs away, determined to make her own way in the world rather than be forced into such a marriage. The stories deal with the remarkable adventures which befall her and are more human than melodramatic. There is none of the old-fashioned, wild sensationalism which marks so many serials.

Bob Hill, the young director who will put on this serial, is eminently well fitted for the work. He has had a very thorough schooling under Director Lucius Henderson, and since being assigned to a company of his own has produced some wonderful material, such as "The Trail of the Wild Wolf," conceded by all motion picture critics as the greatest snow picture made this winter;; "Cinders," "The Doctor of Afternoon Arm," the story of which will appear in the Ladies' Home Journal with the release of the picture. The supporting company will be chosen with special care, and no money will be spared to make this serial perfect in all its technical settings. Work on it will start at once.

JACK EATON ENTERS PRODUCING FIELD.

Jack Eaton, manager of the Travel Series Department of the Paramount Pictures Corporation since its inception fifteen months ago, has associated himself with C. L. Chester, Inc., in the production of advertising and industrial motion pictures.

Mr. Eaton while connected with the Paramount organization handled the expedition of cameramen in South America, where for a period of twelve months pictures were taken of interesting spots on the continent. Thirty-nine travel releases were issued by Paramount as the result of this expedition, and the interest that they have created throughout the country has received exceptionally flattering comment.

Prior to Mr. Eaton's decision to enter the producing field, he was instrumental in bringing about the affiliations between Paramount and Burton Holmes all of whose wonderful travel motion pictures are now released exclusively on the Paramount program.

"NE'ER DO WELL" BEING STRONGLY BOOKED.

Sol. L. Lesser has consummated a deal with John Cort, whereby "The Ne'er Do Well" will play an indefinite engagement at the Cort theater in Atlantic City. The showing began Saturday, Feb. 26. William Patch, of the Pitt theater, Pittsburgh, has just booked "The Ne'er Do Well" for four weeks or longer for his Pitt theater at Pittsburgh. Mr. Patch is considered one of the liveliest exhibitors in the country, and is very well known through his fight with the censors in securing the freedom of the motion picture on the screen.

METRO BRANCH IN SALT LAKE CITY.

The Metro Pictures Corporation has opened a branch office in Salt Lake City, Utah, where bookings are being made with exhibitors in Utah, Idaho and Nevada. This territory was formerly covered by the Denver branch, but on account of exorbitant express rates it was found necessary to locate in Salt Lake. A. S. Bailey is manager of the new branch.

"Defense or Tribute?" for State Rights

Preparedness Film Now Being Booked in New York and New Jersey.

IT is not necessary to see the five-reel drama, "Defense or Tribute?" which has drawn large audiences to the Park Theatre, Columbus Circle, New York City, to realize that the story of the film is one of the timeliest and most popular that could have been selected.

The inspiration for the scenario of this film came from bloodstained battlefields. The fate of Belgium, of Servia, of Northern France has made many people in these United States think seriously of what may happen to them.

"Defense or Tribute?" may be compared to a doctor whom you go to consult when you are sick. He diagnoses your complaint, prescribes a remedy, and, perhaps, cures you. Then he hands you some advice, telling you to be more careful in the future, to cut out this or the other thing or you'll fall sick again. He preaches preparedness in fact. It is the same thing in "Defense or Tribute?" The deadly parallel, the awful example, are cast on the screen. Nations that once were great were wiped out by the tyranny of might, simply because they didn't arm themselves for the inevitable—the inevitable that is before our very eyes this moment. It is the inevitable that happens.

The picture is in five parts and is released by the Public Service Film Company. It is now on offer to state right buyers, and is ready for booking in New York City and State and New Jersey.

Lucille Lee Stewart

MISS LUCILLE LEE STEWART is a new star of the Vitagraph Company in the Bay Shore, L. I., studios, under the direction of Ralph W. Ince. Miss Stewart has been favorably known to the public for some time, having appeared in Biograph releases when D. W. Griffith was director of that company. She was also a member of the Vitagraph British West Indies Company under Henri St. Lupe. A recent picture which displayed her ability to advantage was as the society woman in "Sins of the Mothers" (Vitagraph). She was chosen by Director Ralph W. Ince to head his main company in the Long Island studios at Bay Shore and is now working on a five-reeler entitled, "Peter God," by James Oliver Curwood. In her support is Huntly Gordon, John Robertson, Richard Turner and Virginia Norden. This will be released shortly by the Vitagraph. It is a drama of the Northwest woods with a vein of action bringing it down to New York, wherein are shown persons in the social and political life whose careers, in the story, blend themselves into a gripping plot with a splendid and surprising ending.

Lucille Lee Stewart.

HOBART HENLEY SHEDS CALIFORNIA DUST.

Hobart Henley, who was chosen for the leading role "Graft," the greatest of the serials produced by the Universal Company, has returned east and will shortly appear in features made at Universal Heights. On his way east Mr. Henley stopped at Milwaukee, where he represented the Universal at a ball and also stopped off at Pittsburg to take in another dance of the film men. He arrived in New York City in time to attend the Movie Civic and Costume ball.

His first production in the east will be in "The Other Man," a dual role, which will be directed by Hal Clarendon. Irene Hunt has been chosen as leading lady for the Hobart Henley feature company.

Latin-American Trade

The Greatest Handicap in our Propaganda to Secure a Share of the South American Business.

The following extracts from a letter sent out by the office of the Bureau of Labor, San Juan, P. R., points out very clearly, we believe, the reason for the lack of success that has so far attended the efforts of our various industries to develop trade with the South American Republics:

San Juan, P. R.

Gentlemen: The whole world knows of the efforts that are being made by American merchants to acquire a share of the markets of Latin America for American products. And, at the same time, the world has to admit that this aspiration, so long manifested, is entirely legitimate, when we think of the enormous benefits that could be derived from the attraction of customers which, in number, exceed 50,000,000.

In our opinion, the transportation of the American products on foreign vessels, the transactions through European banks, the long installments for payment, etc., etc., which American commerce encountered, are of secondary importance as compared with the greatest cause preventing American commerce from getting its legitimate share of this business.

A great many American concerns, in doing business with the countries of Latin America, usually employ the English language; and not only their private correspondence, but their catalogues and their advertisements as well, are always printed in English. This is a very great mistake. Of the people in Latin America there is not even one for every three thousand who can speak English. They only speak Spanish or Portuguese, and these are the languages they exclusively use for everything. Therefore, when those people receive a catalogue or an advertisement printed in English it produces the same effect as if the American people were to receive advertisements and catalogues printed in the Chinese language. Consequently, what the American merchant needs to do is to start a vigorous campaign in both Spanish and Portuguese in Latin America. And not only the correspondence, but catalogues, advertisements, etc., should be printed in those languages. As to the representative travelers, we think it unnecessary to state that they must be men from the very people to whom the merchandise is to be sold.

Naturally, a campaign of this sort must be done in an effective manner, or not at all. And the only way to succeed in such an enterprise is by selecting from among the Portuguese and Spanish-American people a reliable, capable, intelligent personnel, with a thorough knowledge of the business methods of both the United States and Latin America. We realize how the American merchant must feel on facing the great difficulty of finding a personnel of the kind mentioned above; and probably we had felt the same way some two years ago, previous to the establishment in the Bureau of Labor of Porto Rico of this office of a Free Employment Agency. Since this has been done we are in a position to ascertain that this difficulty has entirely disappeared.

We do not doubt but you will agree with us that the propaganda in English should be stopped, and that a vigorous, active, intelligent propaganda must be started in Spanish, if anything is to be accomplished in favor of American commerce in Spanish-America.

F. C. ROBERTS,
Chief, Bureau of Labor,
Per J. FIGUEROA DISDIER,
In charge of the Free Employment Agency.

British and Foreign Films

A Proposal to Stop All Imports of Developed and Undeveloped Negatives or Pictures and also Raw Stock Into the United Kingdom.

LAST accounts that have appeared in London newspapers during the past few days should have been misconstrued in their cabled presentation to the American public or adorned and inflated in the traditional style of two newspapers here, I venture, with a short precis of the actual facts, to reassure readers of the World upon a situation newly precipitated in the trade out of a proposal to totally prohibit the importation of foreign films into this country. First and foremost, let it be remembered that there is nothing yet official or definite, notwithstanding any pugnaciously positive assertions in the press.

It is presumably known in the United States that to assist the British Government in its present Gargantuan task a number of committees to consider and recommend upon special matters affecting national welfare and consolidation have been appointed. Although not necessarily constituted entirely of members of the Lower House, they are Parliamentary Committees with power to command and promote bills for new legislation.

One of the most important of these is the "War Economies Committee," which is now sitting to consider in its multitudinous aspects the conservation of national wealth, particularly in application to preventing the export of gold in payment for imports. Among other recommendations already arrived at is one for the total prohibition of foreign kinematograph films whether developed or undeveloped, negative and positive, and raw stock.

This in a single sentence is the proposal, not yet officially announced, but still it is there maturing, nursed by a certain newspaper house and not without a little support from "within the ranks." Of the latter faction I do not propose to speak. Its machinations since the bursting of the "German-American Film Trust" journalistic bubble have been unveiled to every American agent in town and detailed mention would only give it the advertisement in the New World it so vainly craves.

It does not require the imaginative faculty to be developed to the extent of Jules Verne or Wells to picture what would happen to the British moving picture industry with its 6,000 exhibitions and the population of a large city dependent upon it should the proposal materialize. Nearly 90 per cent. of the films showing today in Great Britain are of foreign make, and of this over 65 per cent. come from the United States. Negatives at present on hand by renters or agents would not at the outside maintain the present rate of supply for six months.

But—and it is a big but—the suggestion has not yet materialized, and if concerted human effort can overcome such an unreasonable measure there is little likelihood of it becoming law. There is no comprehensive trade organization in Britain. It is divided into three distinct camps. But, mothered by necessity, can a stronger union be brought into being to fight the common enemy? Already exhibitors are taking the public in confidence and early signs indicate promise of a staunch, and, let us hope, victorious defensive.

Motion picture men as a class from the most unpretentious theater manager to the wealthiest manufacturer are not those to squeal at trifles. The British trade has met the demands of war cheerfully, ungrudgingly, and without a murmur. First film taxes costing nearly two and one-half million dollars a year, a voluntary ambulance convoy costing well in excess of a hundred thousand dollars, and now a probability of a theater tax exceeding more than both together have been accepted with complacent resignation. A proposal to cut off our supplies is, however, in a vastly different category and will be combated with a strength and vigor hitherto unknown.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

London, February 3, 1916.

John C. Brownell

LIKE a great many of the men who have made a success in film work, John C. Brownell, who is adapting the George Kleine serial, "Phyllis," to the requirements of Miss Billie Burke under the direction of Walter Edwin, had no idea of making a profession of the screen. He began to write scenarios when he was playing in "The Fortune Hunter" at the Gaiety theater more than eight years ago and was delighted to get ten or fifteen dollars a reel for them. Many of these scenarios were used as vehicles for such stars as King Baggot, Florence Lawrence, Tom MacEvoy and Ethel Grandin, and in quite a few of them Mr. Brownell appeared as an actor.

John C. Brownell.

It was not until a few years later that the actor thought of taking up screen work seriously and devoting his entire time to it. Mr. Brownell early in life developed a voice of unusual quality which attracted a great deal of attention in his home town, Burlington, Vt. He was urged to cultivate it and the way was made easy for him. But his passion for the stage and most particularly for the acting of character parts proved even stronger than opera and he soon found himself with a theatrical attraction.

Two years ago, when Mr. Brownell finally decided to devote his entire time to the screen, he found himself facing three offers. One of them required him to go to California to write scripts for Louis Joseph Vance and he accepted that one. Since that time he has been scenario editor of the Eastern Film Corporation, and while there adapted the stage comedy, "The Bachelor's Baby," to the use of Francis Wilson, and wrote several five-reelers. From there he went three months ago to the George Kleine Company, and besides writing several big features was chosen to adapt one of the most important serials ever projected.

Clubwomen Conduct Referendum

Northeastern Ohio League Members Aid in Picking Model Programs—Also Enter Into Credit Arrangement With Exchanges.

THE Northwestern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League is conducting a referendum voting campaign among Cleveland clubwomen in order to aid in the selection of pictures for a series of model programs as requested by the civics and legislation committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

A decision to adopt this method of learning just what the club women want was made at a meeting of the League Executive Committee February 22. B. J. Sawyer, president of the League, was authorized to outline the plan in a letter to the clubwomen, which he did as follows:

"After several conferences between your body and the moving picture exhibitors in which we have tried to find each others' conception of pictures of a certain type and have agreed upon a certain number of old pictures, we have concluded, as picture men, that we can best accomplish your purpose by having your representative committee examine new releases for a week with the following principles in your minds:

"First, that you are not to look at pictures with the idea of criticising any of them. Any picture that does not meet your approval is to be passed on without comment. Each member of the committee is to vote, however, upon any picture, drama, comic or educational, which from her point of view meets the requirements of an ideal program. When you see a picture of any class that meets your approval, immediately note the name of the picture and in order to make no mistake consult with the manager of the theater, who will always be at your service. The pictures that you will examine will be first run pictures, and by seeing them so run will give ample time to make up a program and advertise the same in the neighborhood show.

"If you carry out these instructions in spirit as well as in letter, you will find that we will reach a real understanding.

"We know as exhibitors that you will not find all the pictures that will suit you, no more than they suit us, but looking at them simply to select the good and forget the bad will give us a starting place that will aid us in our work here and in conferences with the manufacturers. Ballots will be prepared for you and at the end of the week the count will be made. No name will be signed to the ballot, simply the name of the picture. You will be presented with admissions to the theaters and every courtesy shown you, for we realize that we can accomplish a great deal by working along practical lines."

C. A. Megown, special representative of the exhibitors' league, is to be in direct charge of the balloting and will supply the clubwomen with the necessary admission tickets.

Exchange and League Men Make Agreement.

Resolutions providing for a credit arrangement between film exchanges and members of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League were passed at the last meeting of the league at its quarters in the Republic Building. The resolution was drafted and recommended for adoption by the exchange committee, of which F. M. Kinney is chairman and William Slim and W. H. Horsey members. The companies agreeing to the arrangement are the General, Universal and Mutual. The arrangement is expected to give great impetus to the growth of the league in Cleveland in that it is of undoubted benefit to theater owners.

The resolution was as follows:

1. Beginning with Monday, February 28, 1916, the following procedure is agreed upon between the General Film Company, the Universal Film Company, the Mutual Film Corporation and the members of the Exhibitors League: The film renting companies above mentioned will extend credit for five days to members of the League in good standing, for example, payment for the current week's service may be made not later than 11 o'clock A. M. Saturday.
2. It is understood by all parties hereto that exchange accounts run as follows: The week starting with a Monday and ending with a Sunday.
3. It is also further agreed that any member of the League wishing to cancel film service shall give the Exchange one week's written notice.
4. It is further agreed by the film exchanges that in case they wish to terminate any member customer's service the customer is to be given one week's notice before cancellation.
5. All members of the Exhibitors' League in good standing shall make application to any one of the above-mentioned film companies for credit, and the film company will ask for credentials before the credit is extended, as per Article 1. The membership card number will be recorded on all film contracts.
6. It is herewith agreed that the secretary of the Exhibitors' League shall keep the exchanges supplied with a list of the members in good standing, and supplement such list, from time to time, with names of new members.
7. It will be the duty of the secretary of the Exhibitors' League to notify the above-mentioned exchanges immediately of the suspension or expulsion of members from the League.
8. It will be the duty of the above-mentioned exchanges to suspend credit, as per Article 1, to any member of the League who may be suspended or expelled, until such time as in good standing and the exchange has been so notified by the secretary of the League.
9. It is also herewith agreed that before a new member is accepted to membership in the League his application must have the indorsement of the committee appointed to act on applications and must be voted on by the members of the organization at a regular meeting. It is further agreed that a credit standing must be established to the satisfaction of the committee appointed to act on applications before a new member can be elected to the League.

Frances Marion

FRANCES MARION, editor of the World Film Corporation's scenario department, is at present working on no less than six original photoplay productions. Miss Marion recently completed "The Feast of Life," for Clara Kimball Young, and "Love's Heaven and Hell," in which Holbrook Blinn is to co-star with Frances Nelson. She is writing "The Eternal Sacrifice," in which Alice Brady will appear, following the completion of "I'll Come Back to You," in which she is now working under the direction of the Frohman Amusement Corporation. Miss Marion is also working on "The Heart of a Savage," and "The Eyes of the Soul," for Miss Young. Early in April this energetic writer will commence an elaborate film play for Gail Kane.

Frances Marion.

Miss Marion began her film career as an extra girl in Mary Pickford's company when Miss Pickford was working on the coast, and she and Miss Pickford became great friends. Her first scenario was a story in which Miss Pickford played under the direction of the Famous Players Film Company. She later wrote several scenarios in which both Miss Pickford and Pauline Frederick were featured and had a hand in many of the productions from the Peerless studio.

At present Miss Marion is adapting and originating stories for the World Film Corporation exclusively and is in full charge of the scenario department of that concern. She has been granted a four weeks' leave of absence, beginning April 1, when she will journey to Curacao, Willemsted, a small port in the Caribbean Sea. During the journey she will construct the scenario contemplated for Gail Kane's third picture on the Equitable program.

Miss Marion is about twenty-three years of age and previous to assuming photoplay work was a newspaper illustrator and special writer.

"NE'ER-DO-WELL" SUIT MAY BE TRIED.

While Judge Mayer of the United States District Court denied the application for an injunction in the case of the executors of the Estate of Charles Klein against the Selig Polyscope Company and Rex Beach, author and producer of the picture, "The Ne'er-Do-Well," he held that the estate of Charles Klein was co-owner in the book by Mr. Beach, and while Mr. Beach was entitled to sell the motion picture rights, the executors were entitled to bring suit for an accounting of the profits received from the picture play.

HENRY MacMAHON ALREADY BUSY.

It is "Hobson's choice." The Henry MacMahon publicity bureau's first important job is to introduce the play of Lancashire life as pleasingly to Bostonians as Frank Wilstach introduced it last fall to New Yorkers. The Messrs. Shubert on Monday, February 27, sent Mr. MacMahon and two assistants to Boston for a fortnight. The publicity man's office is being kept, however, at 321 West 55th street, where bookings are now rapidly making for spring and summer presswork.

Spokes From the Hub

By Marion Howard.

EVERY photoplay lover should see "Behind the Screen" put forth by the Universal with "telling" effect, inasmuch as it takes one inside the lines and shows how it is all done—the setting of the scenes, the rehearsal, the strenuous work of the director, the patience of the cameraman waiting the order to grind and the scene shifting and placing of props. From all that detail we see how the films are made, inspected, etc., and when all is ready we are given a treat in watching the players in the projection room, viewing the finished picture. There in the front row are Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Victoria Forde and other familiar faces, and then we see the title "Getting a Square Meal." At the table in a hilarious scene we recognize J. Arthur Eslow, the genial head of the Universal Exchange here. This made quite a hit when shown at the Fenway theater, which, by the way, has a back drop seen through large small-paned windows, making an effective setting for the orchestra. On the bill that week I saw Nance O'Neil in "Souls in Bondage," a five-part play too full of tragedy to be commended to any one, despite the artistic work of the star. It might well have been done in three reels with profit all round. The apparent martyrdom of Edith Cavell is pictured with fine effect and gives Miss O'Neil an opportunity for a pose most inspiring, her arms held straight out suggesting the cross, her face a picture of resignation and fearlessness.

* * *

"The Strange Case of Mary Page" is making a hit all along the line, according to what I hear from fans outside of the Hub. I wonder if Mr. Walthall, who is nothing if not a scholar, observed the title in Episode Two, when the reporter is made to say "I brought her to Mr. Langdon." Why such lack of grammar in an Essanay? We look for better things, and this eternal "brought" used wrongly gets on my nerves. Another thing which jars is to read in the press that Henry Walthall is a "second Mansfield." "Nay, nay, Pauline," if he is anyone's second he is Booth's, not because he has a serious face and great reserve force evidently, but for his rare art. He never grimaces or struts, and having heard him speak I can say his voice is identical with that of Booth's. Furthermore, he is not of the temperamental sort, and is ever a gentleman before and behind the scenes. There is absolutely no resemblance between him and the late (much admired) Richard Mansfield, in appearance or methods.

* * *

"Just Out of College," introduced Amelia Summerville, the former "Merry Mountain Maid," but now a supple, youthful-appearing woman, doing fine work. Her face films perfectly and her magnetism goes over, for she fills the eye and is in the picture much of the time. For a Frohman Amusement offering and a Sunday release it had a lot of punch to it, and we all enjoyed the college atmosphere of youthful hilarity.

* * *

"The Fool's Revenge" was ever a tragedy, but in the hands of the Fox Company it is doubly so, in the terrible working out of the theme leaving an unwholesome impression. William Tooker, who played the Fool, was well nigh perfect in his delineation, especially in the early part in scenes with his mother, the memory of whose untimely death was awakened by the fiend of a wife, and who had to go on and do his stunt to a houseful of persons unaware of his suffering. Those are the little touches which we like to recall, but shades of Booth and others who played the part—what a way to end the play!

* * *

Well, "The Spider" is some play, and gives Pauline Frederick a double role worth while. Do the Famous Players realize what a strong man they have in Thomas Holding? He is greatly liked here by the regular photoplay patrons and so is Frank Losee, who plays a roue so in contrast to his tender impersonation of the father in "The Old Homestead." The studio scene was most ornate, but the great lesson was that of the mother's sacrifice of all she held dear. This was put on at the Exeter, together with "The Gamble," featuring Harold Lockwood and May Allison. The great wheat fields and the industry there were an object lesson to those unfamiliar with the West.

* * *

Charley Ruggles, who made such a hit in "The Reform Candidate" as Looney Jim, and whom I earlier credited, is to be a guest of honor at the next meeting of the Film Club, for he is here in "Rolling Stones" at the Park Square theater and making many friends.

* * *

Vitagraph has given us a treat here in "The Crown Prince's Double." It is the first time I have noticed Maurice Costello in anything so pretentious or which disclosed his versatility to such advantage. Not once did he fail to keep up the illusion, and the one double exposure scene was great. The romance all through is clean and a delight. Norma Talmadge, who plays the lead, is introduced cleverly. There are many complications, but not over sensational, and the relinquishing of a throne by the hero who prefers U. S. A. and a bride to royalty goes well with the house.

* * *

Along similar lines, though worked out altogther differently, is "Nearly a King," a Famous Players' picture featuring Jack Barrymore, who has now gone to the Metro, where Lionel and Ethel are making good. As Barrymore is a born comedian we expected to see some fun, but nothing in weeks has caused more fun and hilarity than the stateroom scene during a rough sea with a steamer trunk on the rampage and making an entrance to the cabin of the heroine of the story. Although inconsistent and a scream, there was no real horseplay to mar it. Barrymore mounted on a hansom was some sight. His resemblance to the crown prince caused predicaments, and the double exposures were unusually well done. The one novelty in this play is the reading of a scenario done by Jack's valet in which he has featured his master and in the reading the play is worked out. At the close we find him at his desk as in the first reel "delighted" with the scenario, except the ending, for he says "Don't make me a king." That, too, goes over with audiences in this republic.

* * *

"The Prisoner at the Bar," an Essanay offering, is certainly a compelling picture, one to be seen everywhere when managers awake to its meaning and lesson. It appeals to the emotions tremendously, and why not? The courtroom scene is quite as affecting as that in "Mme. X," and has a far happier ending. The novelty of a man telling his own story on the stand and which entirely excuses his crime is something to long remember as an artistic piece of work. It was a sight to watch the faces of the jury who on returning to the room had one word on their lips—"Acquitted," then the words of the young lawyer, who in thanking them said, "God bless you, for he is my father." There was so much told in that short play that it makes us desirous of more of them, for there is too much time taken in small details in some five-reelers. This is the age of condensation.

* * *

Fannie Ward has established herself solidly with the fans everywhere, so we all turned out to see "Tennessee's Pardner," adapted from Bret Harte's story and directed by Wilfred Buckland. In it we found Raymond Hatton, that splendid character actor, named on the bill. Gewilliker Hay. James Neill was the priest and Jack Dean, Fannie's new husband, played Jack Hunter, and played it well. Tales of the Forty-niners are always more or less picturesque and thrilling, and the atmosphere of the Far West was easily produced with California scenery "to burn." "Merely Mary Ann," Eleanor Robson's (pardon, Mrs. August Belmont's) former success, was fairly well done by little Vivian Martin, but on the whole disappointing. There was too much detail and repetition—padding as it were, and it departed somewhat from the story.

* * *

"The Black Orchid" served to give a few thrills. When the title was shown two young things sat up quickly and one exclaimed: "Say, this is the man who shows animals," which tells how well the Selig name is known to fans. I wonder if Kathlyn Williams' life is insured, or if her apparent fearlessness is feigned. There was a fierce snake in the jungle and my companion said he bit the hero's knee (I never look at the vile things—snakes). This incident caused many things to happen, but what is there about a black orchid that is healing, for the man walked about all right in an incredibly short time. This three-reeler starts in well and gives a taste of military life in India, also a cage of animals, some of which Miss Williams actually handles, though I noted the eye of the keeper ever on them and on her. The Sidney Drews put on their "Telegraphic Tangle," done for the Vitagraph, which also gave us "Jane's Bashful Hero," with Edith Storey made up beyond recognition—two good comedies creating wholesome laughter.

* * *

I wonder why it is that we see George Ade's fables of late without credit on the title. However, there is no mistaking his style of humor. "The Fable of Flora and Adolph and a Home Gone Wrong" is one scream, picturing a courtroom with that inimitable Charles Stine as a judge. There is a laugh in every line (pictured.)

* * *

"The Sins of Society," seen at the World Film runoff, ought to be a good seller for more reasons that the featuring of Robert Warwick, who bears a striking likeness to John Craig. It shows the evil of gambling and gives us a look at the exterior of a gambling hell for women. "Handsome Bob" has some swimming to do. There is a good house-boat scene, and the support is excellent all through.

* * *

One of the local theater managers deserves reproof for giving his audiences so much cheap accompaniments to acts on the screen. There are howls, loud yawns, hideous noises and door bangings, etc., which will keep away many of us who prefer to enjoy the films in silence without claptrap devices to emphasize points in the play.

* * *

Another long subject was "Hazel Kirke," giving a fine series of pictures, notably an old mill, and we all thought William Riley Hatch as the father did the best work in the cast, though he was far too old in make-up to be the father of Hazel, and didn't his wife look like Tom Thumb's widow, barring her stature. It was a striking likeness. Bruce McRae as the Squire gave a convincing performance, and I was glad to see Pearl White in a better part than ever. Many old theatregoers went to see the play recalling so vividly its wide popularity as a Broadway success and which toured the country.

Better Laws to Protect Writers

President Hiller, of the Authors' Associated Agency, Talks of Defects and Possible Remedies.

A FEW months ago there was formed by two earnest students of the motion picture drama an association which has already exerted considerable influence for good in the motion picture field. The originator of the idea was Jacob Wilk, formerly publicity director of the World Film Corporation, a position which he prefaced by broad experience in the theatrical world. Mr. Wilk's qualifications for his new enterprise were thus unique, in that he knew exactly the needs of the situation and how to supply them.

At the forefront of the organization there appears L. L. Hiller, the president of the Authors' Associated Agency, Inc., who had had considerable motion picture, literary and commercial experience. Mr. Hiller is a man of well tried business experience and like his associate, Mr. Wilk, correctly apprehends the importance of the scenario in the great world of the motion picture drama.

The Authors' Associated Agency, Inc., has not only disposed of many valuable rights for motion picture purposes, but assiduously searches for and encourages new talent and untried writers, and in many other ways is seeking to advance to a higher plane, the status of the photodramatist.

In the course of these many months' working, much valuable experience and information as to the legal and economic status of scenarios and their writers has come to the Authors' Associated Agency. In particular, Mr. Hiller, the president, was struck by the fact that little or no protection was afforded by existent laws, to the work of the scenario writer. And Mr. Hiller expressed his views to us in an interview which he gave the other day in the company's offices in the Longacre Building, Broadway and 42nd street, New York.

"The story and scenario of the modern photodrama," said Mr. Hiller, "is surely, if slowly, arriving at its proper place among the Arts."

"Just what do you mean by that, Mr. Hiller?"

"The majority of people," replied Mr. Hiller, "as yet fail to realize that a photodrama, and by that I mean the entire script for, let us say, a $20,000 or $25,000 feature, is entitled to as much esteem and respect in the literary, qualitative, economic and artistic senses as a book, a play, a picture, a piece of sculpture, a musical composition. The call throughout the motion picture profession is for the best writings of well equipped dramatic minds. Do you not read, constantly, that such and such a well known playwright is turning his attention to photodramatics The motion picture offers a readier and better market for literary work than almost any other.

"And as to its future, it is clear that the professional position of the photodramatist will be a secure and enviable one, for the simple reason that all present known books and plays will be exhausted, and then the original writer will get his chance. This process of exhaustion and replenishment is going on at this moment. We handle the best work of the best writers and can therefore speak with knowledge.

"But would you be surprised to learn that, so far, the laws of the United States have failed to recognize the importance of the scenario in the literary and dramatic sense?"

"What has the scenario writer to complain of?" was asked Mr. Hiller.

"He has little but common law protection. In existing and proposed laws you will see by reference that the motion picture scenario is dealt with in a very perfunctory manner. You cannot register it and secure protection as effectively as you can a book or play. Congress having failed to realize the value of the scenario in this great business has done it the injustice of having it relegated to an obscure and ambiguous position on the Statute book."

"But it is mentioned and taken care of," Mr. Heller was reminded.

"Inadequately, even if you get the little protection that is given you, it is of trifling value on test. Suppose your scenario of a $50,000 production is infringed. You recover very small penalties, not worth the trouble of going after. Don't you see how signally the makers of our laws have failed to realize the potential value of this kind of literary production? Take the story of any successful play now running on Broadway, and that of 'The Birth of a Nation.' Which, in the monetary sense, is the more important? Box office figures will tell you. Some quite ordinary feature films earn hundreds of thousands of dollars in the usual course of business. Lasgy's recent successful picture, 'The Cheat,' was based upon an original photodrama by Hector Turnbull. The strength of the Lasky Company will prevent infringement, of course, but suppose, now, that Mr. Turnbull had not 'arrived,' and was offering his scenario. He would be justified in feeling apprehensive of its fate, I think.

"Another thing. The copyright office does not help you any in respect of subjective protection. Entirely new stories fare no better than old ones. If you try to patent an old device you are convicted of imitation and confronted with interference from the records. Not so in photoplays. The registration authorities take no trouble in the matter. Is this fair, is it just, is it good business?"

"Just what do you suggest, Mr. Hiller?"

"Adequate protection. The placing of the motion picture drama on the same plane as the painting, the book, the play. At present, it is a subsection, pure and simple, an afterthought, an addition. But when you realize that the scenario, the story, the literary product is the pivot, the basis, the inspiration of the great art of the motion picture drama, you must concede that our suggestion is not unreasonable. Clearly defined laws giving adequate protection would, I am sure, encourage more known writers to enter this field."

"Do you propose taking action in this matter, Mr. Hiller?"

"Assuredly. You have a motion picture board of trade protecting manufacturers, exhibitors and operators associations, all looking for just laws. We are of opinion that the literary man whose brain is his chief, and in many cases his only asset, is entitled also to legislative justice. Look at these copies of the existing and proposed acts for yourself. What we advocate is separate, distinct, unambiguous protection for motion picture plays, wholly or in part, larger penalties for infringement, simplicity in registration formalities, which at present are confusing in their instructions, official examination as to originality of theme, and common law penalties for misappropriation or loss. At present the scenario is often treated by unscrupulous people as a negligible product; it is copied, stolen, mislaid. But that is a delicate point," concluded President Heller, "which I would rather not discuss further."

Scene from "Freddy's Narrow Escape" (Vitagraph).

BRITISH NOTES

THE situation in the British trade with regard to the proposed barrier against foreign films has not assumed any change since last week beyond a countermove by the American manufacturers' representatives in the metropolis. No official announcement has yet been issued either by the Customs or the War Economies Committee.

* * *

American agents in London, however, are not waiting for a measure to be rushed into Parliament at the eleventh hour but are already in conference. Government precedents on the introduction of new issues are a severe warning against procrastination, as the hustled drafting of the recent film tax evinces. With one or two notable exceptions, the entire home trade is resolutely mobilized and the effective work of acquainting the general press and public with the futility of the proposal is well in hand.

* * *

The move by the American agents is due to E. H. Montagu, of the Selig Company, who has given considerable publicity to an alternative suggestion to the government. The suggestion is that all, or most, of the money paid for American films should be deposited straight into the Bank of England and that the government should issue to the American manufacturers five and a half per cent. Exchequer bonds to the amount deposited against each. These bonds would be salable only in America and in no British territory until a year after the termination of war. Mr. Montagu laid this scheme before a general meeting of American agents last week, and although it was not received with unanimous approval it was accorded sufficient support to warrant its submission by Mr. Montagu to the notice of Mr. McKenna at the Exchequer.

* * *

W. Gavayzi King, the secretary of the Exhibitors' Association, does not beat around the bush in tracking the suggested prohibition to the door of Carmelite House, the home of the publications which have consistently slandered the American film, and in a long statement issued by him the other day for the information of the general press and news agencies he drew special attention to the fact that an American film trust—the Harmsworth fetish—is "non est." One of these newspapers, by the way, on Monday declared that there is already a two years' supply of American pictures in the country.

* * *

The newest discoveries of the scare-press, backed up by irresponsible statements from certain cocksure men with "inside information" regarding the designs (alleged) of the government upon the prohibition (also alleged) of the importation of foreign films, have furnished the trade with ample material for discussion during the week—discussion in the sense of spicy gossip for sensation retailers but for departmental heads nothing more than ridiculous rumor, for it is extremely doubtful that there is a single man in the trade in a responsible position who credits the story. The London trade press is today unusually unanimous in its vindication of the foreign film in general, and the American in particular, and points out in one voice to the governmental wirepullers that even a temporary stoppage of our film supply from abroad would be synonymous with the demise of the British motion picture theater.

* * *

The Gaumont Company has acquired as an exclusive the British rights of the "Flying A" serial, "The Diamond from the Sky," and has an extensive advertising plan on hand. It looks as though this and "The Goddess" will be released about the same time.

* * *

The Essanay Company has at last radically compromised, if not entirely withdrawn, the policy instigated last autumn. H. A. Spoor has notified the Exhibitors' Association that he is prepared to book Chaplin films singly as before and without any written obligation on the part of the exhibitor to take other subjects. The Exhibitors' Association has accepted this offer and will consequently remove the ban upon Essanay productions imposed last October. At a time when there are stronger and more dangerous enemies without, the timely settlement of this little internal dispute has given the utmost satisfaction to the exhibiting fraternity, and there can be litle doubt that with the assistance of the firm's newest issues the happy relations of yester-year between Mr. Spoor, exhibitors and renters will be speedily restored.

* * *

It is encouraging to note, when many magisterial minds regard "the pictures" as a prime incentive to juvenile crime, an eminent London psychologist say that the picture film depicting criminals at work does not necessarily give boys ideas for thieving. On the other hand, the portrayal of these exciting things often satisfies the instincts of the boy. The psychologist attributes these recent increases to war atmosphere.

* * *

"The Yoke," a home production based upon a notorious novel, has been blacklisted by the Exhibitors' Association.

* * *

A strong tendency of the moment among British producers is the construction of photoplays around the stories of popular songs, generally those of the highly sentimental order. Half a dozen such are now in process of manufacture or nearing release and have probably been suggested by the success of the Turner film, "My Old Dutch," which broke all booking records for a British film and has been withdrawn, to be reissued later. The same company, under the aegis of Larry Trimble, has just completed another picturesque foundation upon the time-honored ballad of "Sally in Our Alley," which bids fair to be a worthy successor to "My Old Dutch."

* * *

Ruffell's Exclusives, Ltd., the Metro agents here, recently commissioned Adrian Silas, the artist, to paint a few life-size oil paintings of prominent stars in the Metro constellation, beginning with Mary Miles Minter as she appeared in "Emmy of Stork's Nest."

* * *

One of the pet arguments of the few adopted by the general press to minimize the obvious consequences of the alleged foreign film prohibition is grounded on the supposition that there is already in the country sufficient unissued negative to maintain the current standard of supply for three, four or five years, according to the imaginative powers of the different writers. Even assuming this to be correct, the futility of this garbled solatium to the public is at once apparent by the inclusion in the proposed prohibition of raw stock, a product which is manufactured here upon such a small and poor scale that to say it is not produced at all would be only a technical inaccuracy. The Eastman interests, incorporated here as Kodak, Ltd., have a veritable monopoly for the supply of positive stock for printing, only a small percentage being claimed by the five British photographic manufacturers who put out film stock as a side line. The weight of this fact has stimulated an enterprising stock jobber into the premature activity of constructing a syndicate to import camphor from Japan to a factory in London for the preparation of celluloid. Even if he were fortunate enough to secure a regular supply in Nippon, there is the transport difficulty which, with the customary ingenuity of the war-time company promoter, he discreetly omits to detail in his circular. The assumption that American houses here are provisioned for half a decade ahead is pure fancy. Three of the principal houses where I called could not, upon their own admission, release a normal program for more than five or six months, and, allowing for the reissue of past successes, for not more than eighteen months.

* * *

When the proposed measure takes an official shape, that is, if it is endorsed by the War Economies Committee for inclusion in the ultimate Parliamentary bill, the question that will weigh most in the final decision will not, to my mind, bear directly upon these inflexible conditions of demand and supply but will be upon the profits made upon the sale of American films in Britain and the proportion of those profits going to the United States. This point, under proper investigation, might give the hostile press over to furious reflection. Leaving out of consideration the enormous sums and royalties paid by American manufacturers for the visual rights of works of British authors and dramatists, it would be well to first consider what percentage of film profits are remitted to America. The average American feature film sold in the London market as an exclusive (that is, sold outright with a sufficient supply of prints) brings from £2,000 to £3,000. For this the manufacturer may have to supply twenty, thirty or more copies as agreed at the time of purchase, which quite accounts for one-quarter of that amount. The printing of these copies is done in England and the money paid for it remains here. Before the picture has been sold, quite a similar amount may have been expended by the manufacturer or his agent in advertising the picture, in holding trade shows in different cities, in posters, illustrations, synopses and other numerous little incidentals to the launching of a feature upon the film market. And this is before he comes to abstract from the sale of that film a quota of the "profits" in contribution to his annual establishment and staff expenses, or of any outgoing commissions to intermediaries, all of which remain in the country. The gross profits upon the sale of a film often look rosy enough, but when it comes to reckoning up the net profits it is not surprising to find that in some cases about ten per cent. of the original purchase price returns to the manufacturer in the States.

* * *

A representative committee of film importers is holding council almost daily in London, and two statements, elaborating these and other considerations, not so obvious to people outside the trade, have been issued to the daily newspapers. Here is set forth another fact formed from the Board of Trade import returns, which is: that the money held back under a prohibition order would—as near as can be computed on the present scale—keep the war going for three-quarters of an hour. The closing of British moving picture theaters—and the best authorities in our trade are unanimous that it would be the early and ultimate sequel—would mean money lost irretrievably, not only to the private investor, but to the government also. The Exchequer is already in receipt of a substantial sum per annum from the import tariff introduced last autumn, and with the next budget comes a practical certainty of a general ticket tax upon the exhibitor, or an effective revenue-yielding equivalent. These, too, would be swept away in the prohibition debacle, and the representation of revenue interests in any proposals brought forth by the War Economies Committee at least assure "our side" of a fair hearing.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

George Beban with Pallas

GEORGE BEBAN, the well known characterizer of Italian roles, has closed with Pallas Pictures to again appear on the Paramount Program. Mr. Beban's exceptional work in "The Alien," and "The Italian," now appearing throughout the country with great success under the Paramount trademark, has made him immensely popular with patrons of the screen.

George Beban.

Mr. Beban recently created widespread interest when he appeared on Broadway in "The Alien," a combination of motion pictures and dramatic sketch adapted from his well known play, "The Sign of the Rose." Since then the complete photoplay has greatly added to his popularity as a portrayer of Italian characters. Since the age of eight Mr. Beban has been on the stage. As the "Boy Baritone of California" he toured the country, later appearing as end man in minstrel organizations and then in stock. Mr. Beban has reached Los Angeles and is preparing a play written by himself for Pallas Pictures. A telegram received from Los Angeles does not mention the name of his next screen vehicle, but it is believed that it will be a modern drama of Italian theme.

NEW THEATER AT SAND SPRINGS, OKLA.

The Meteor, a photoplay house owned and operated by the Meteor Theater Company, Sand Springs, Okla., was opened at that place on Jan. 8 last. It is equipped with all modern conveniences and fixtures, and has a seating capacity of 250. The theater is meeting with remarkable success since it was opened. The company is composed of J. A. Shogren, C. P. Nesbit, A. B. and R. B. McFarlane.

Edna Hunter

MISS EDNA HUNTER, leading woman to King Baggot of the Imp Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been chosen to represent Personal Beauty in the allegorical film play, "Beauty," which will be ready for the tercentenary Shakespeare celebration. This film will be the first ever made jointly by thirty-five companies, each making a scene or series of scenes to be pieced together and shown for art's sake alone, at what will undoubtedly prove to be the greatest outdoor fete the country has ever known.

Edna Hunter.

Miss Hunter, who has made an enviable impression with the motion picture public, came to the screen after a thorough seasoning on the legitimate stage, where she took part in some of the most noted Broadway productions. She is of a decided and original type of blonde, very popular and well liked, on and off the screen. Her selection for this all important role is a tribute to her ingenuity, versatility and charm which has been of inestimable value to her in attaining her present position in the rank of star photoplay actresses.

WHO'S WHO IN MOTION PICTURES.

Although there is an apparent demand for a volume of real information regarding the personality of photoplay personages, it does not appear that any really intelligent effort has yet been made to fill this demand and the latest, "Who's Who in Motion Pictures" (Henri Armand de Masi, Chicago, $2.50), greatly belies its title.

Mr. De Masi, in his preface, seeks to disarm criticism with apology, but even the haste that he admits is no excuse for the very evident lack of preparation for the publication of a work of this nature and it would seem, in default of exact knowledge, that the publisher had hurried to the press such data as he had collected for the purpose of obtaining a copyright on the title for future use, forestalling the use of the same title by others who may have had such a volume in mind.

Two or three names represent the writers of photoplays, there are less than a third of the producing heads, and the list of prominent players missing might in itself make a reasonably complete catalogue, for surely no book that omits such names as Florence Lawrence, Arthur Johnson, Maurice Costello and others of that rank is entitled to style itself a compendium.

The author announces with pride that no person has been approached for an advertisement or paid portrait, but it is but a small offset to the fact that few persons have ever been approached for information. A book of this sort should contain at least a few important facts about the players noted and an effort should at least be made to gain a representation of the leading players. There are less than seventy leading players noted, and not many more whose names will be recognized by the average photoplay fan. Mr. De Masi may improve subsequent editions. He has plenty of room.

AUTOMATIC MACHINES FOR RIALTO.

The Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company announces that S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto theater, now in process of construction at Forty-second street and Seventh avenue, has placed orders with it for one Twin and one Quadruple motor-driven machine.

A recent issue of the Electrical Review contains an illustrated description of the machine manufactured by this company.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

A Suggestion.

EVERY once in a while we bite a hole out of our desk because some particularly nice piece of advertising cannot be shown in detail since it is on colored stock. We get a striking bill in on blue. It looks great and the display is worth showing in reproduction, but it cannot be done. The actinic values of two shades of blue are not marked. The contrast is not strong enough for a line cut and in a half tone the result is little better than a parody. It would not bother the printer much to slip a couple of white sheets into the stock, and it would make a lot of difference to us and the Recording Angel.

In the same way, a photograph to reproduce well should have strong contrasts of black and white, but plenty of detail in the sahdows, for there is always a certain loss in reproduction and reduction. A post card will reproduce if it is strong, but a postcard that is mostly black and three shades of gray will not make a nice looking cut.

Biographics.

The Biograph monthly memorandum calendar promises to be adopted as a national institution. It just fits the vest pocket because it is built that way on purpose, it gives plenty of space for personal entries, and a lot of good advertising material for the Biograph and good stuff for the exhibitors. Here are some of the good things from the February issue:

The corner grocer has just failed. He carried a fine stock, but his store was dirty and ill ventilated, his window display poor, and he didn't advertise.

It isn't what you pay for your pictures that makes your programs good—it's what you get for what you pay that counts.

Short-sighted economy and wanton extravagance generally meet—on the road to failure.

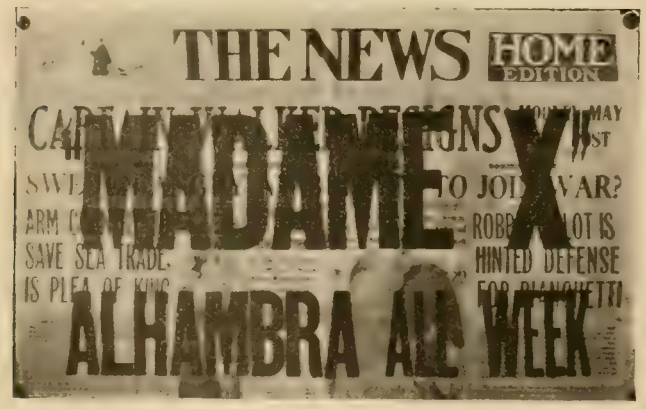
A few years ago people thought anything in four or five reels was a feature. How tastes do change!

Every time an operator "chases" a film through his machine he chases patrons away from the house.

The Biograph booklet is a lesson to the exhibitor. It is advertising that sticks. Do you make your stuff stick, or do you merely print some works on pieces of paper and give them out? Do you merely give your prospect something you want him to read or do you sometimes pay him for his interest by giving it to him in a form he wants. Biograph gives its clientele something it wants, because it can put its own advertising where it can be seen every day for a month. That is the real test of good work.

Imprint Again.

The Alhambra, Cleveland, Ohio, used the imprint idea for "Mme. X," the Pathe-Savage feature. The idea is not new but it works well once and sometimes twice. Arrangements are made to get a special run of one of the editions with the imprint in red ink across the face.



These are given away. The paper can be read through the ink, though in the photograph the red takes as dark as the black. Sometimes it is possible to get out a fake edition, but as a rule it is cheaper to use some regular print.

Program Fronts.

George W. Pryor, of the Bijou, Greensboro, N. C., sends in two programs and says:

I am inclosing you herewith two of our weekly programs, being the first and second issues. As this is our first attempt on getting out a program, I am sure it will appear rather crude to you. If you can offer any suggestions for improvement, same will be greatly appreciated.

You will note that we have no out-side advertisements and do not solicit any. While we know out-side advertising would offset quite a lot of the expense of the program, yet we feel it would detract the value of the program to a great extent. What do you think about it?

The program is a four page, white stock of reasonably good grade (better than merely good enough) about 5 by 7. The house changes four times a week and the middle pages are split between the four programs, giving casts where they may be had. The bank page carries some strong house talk and the prices and hours of performance. The middle pages are nicely laid out but the printer should be spanked. That border on the front and back pages is atrocious and the compositor has the usual country idea that white space should be as carefully covered up as physical nakedness. Not the extra strips of border down the sides of the cut to panel the space. This should be replaced by some straight brass rule instead of border, not more than thre point double rule and a two point is better yet. The idea is not to cage each section of the announcement, but merely to define the page and the rule should be put outside this space only. If there is too much white space between the cut and the type, a short ornamental dash can be used, and if the spaces at the side of the cut are too bare with the rules removed, some long but narow ornament can be used instead of the border. If nothing better can be done, use this, but set it on end.

Probably the rule work does not hurt the program any, but it does look crude and it does not make the program attractive. The date line is lost where it is. It would be better to pull the cut down to let in the house name just above the date, set the date in a type that can be read, and use the "Home of &c.," where it is, but putting the small Paramount and Tringle trade marks either to the side of or below the name.

With the program arrangement as it stands we think that Mr. Pryor is well advised in not selling his back page. He makes it do more good work for the house than the payment for advertising would represent. It is possible to cut out the casts and put the entire program on page three and the house talk on page two, selling the back page, but the program is so good as it stands that it would not be well to change, though there is no ethical reason why outside advertising should not be taken if it is not given the store at the expense of the theatre. There are two good reasons why space should be sold where there is any to spare. It gives the house a certain recognition and the advertisers will help get the programs out, either through actual distribution or by supplying a live mailing list.

Using Rules.

It's been a very long time since we've been able to catch the Lehigh Orpheum, South Bethlehem, Pa., napping. But in a recent issue they use double rule to cut off two films for the same date. Even those who do not know the rules of make-up regard the double line as a cut off and will not connect two paragraphs so separated. A single straight dash that does not cut clear across should be used.

Not Quite.

Movieland, the house organ of the Hulsey theaters in Texas, springs a new one in "Movietorial." We like the old "editorial" better. They have seen the light and the last issue to hand announces that a few outside advertisements will be taken. This is a step in the right direction. The house can do as much for less money or more for the same appropriation and foreign advertising carries a certain stamp of approval. The Hulsey management has the right idea on trade marks and gives the inside back cover to this advertisement:

MOVIELAND 31
HULSEY
QUALITY MARKS
THEY SYMBOLIZE SUPERIORITY.
OLD MILL THEATER DALLAS
OLD MILL IN A CLASS APART QUEEN THEATER HOUSTON QUEEN THEATER DALLAS
THE SIGN OF QUALITY QUEEN
QUEEN THEATER GALVESTON
HIPPODROME THEATER, WACO
To Be Sure Of Always Seeing a Really Good Photoplay
THEATRE OLD MILL
EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE Queen QUALITY DID IT! THEATRE
HIPPODROME WHERE WACO IS ENTERTAINED
All You Need To Know Is That It Is Shown At a Hulsey Theater

How About It?

A valued subscriber writes that he thinks that it would be helpful to the exhibitor to run more news about the paper to be had for films, "especially one and three sheets." How about it? It seems to us that the manufacturers' bulletins give very complete information about paper to be had and if they do not, the exchange generally does. This is your department. Do you mind expressing an opinion? We do mention novelties supplied by the manufacturers, but we do not see that a list of one and three sheets would be more helpful than general advertising schemes. What do you think?

Getting in Line.

The Silver Theater, Waterville, Maine, comes into the house program column with a four pager. It is neatly printed and fairly well set, a green stock 5½ by 8½ printed in black. The front page is the best, carrying an advertisement of its service. Inside the days are named and dated in twenty-four point and each day states the prices, which vary with the attraction. One panel very nicely tells the starting times in this manner:

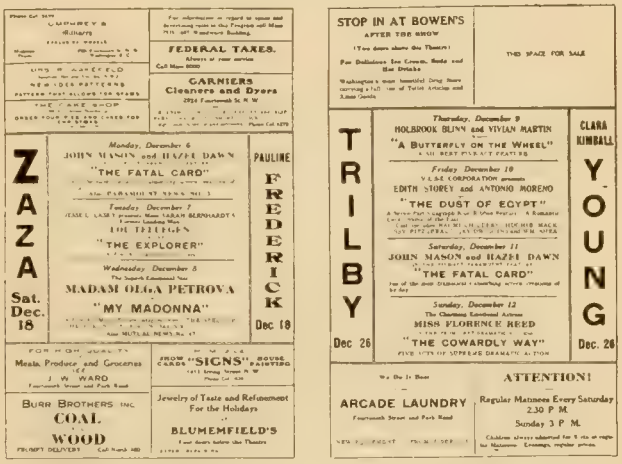
Three shows are given each day
The Matinee starting at 2:15
The First evening show at 7:15 and
The Second at 8:30.

This form seems to be even more definite than a straight time table. For a first issue, the job is particularly well done, but when time permits there should be run in some house talk.

Mary Pickford nights they send a sandwich man around to the Royal about show time. It is not done in a pronounced way, and as the town sticks to a three block business section that is already two layers high, there is not much else that the sandwich man can do.

Wants to Exchange.

The Savoy theater, Fourteenth street, N. W., near Columbia road, Washington, D. C., wants to exchange with other houses issuing programs. Please note. They send in their first three for "knocks and suggestions." The same old stuff. Adverse comment that carries a suggestion is not a knock, but is more helpful than praise for the faulty. Like too many others, they cannot realize that there is a difference. As a matter of fact we do not see much to "knock." The layout is good and the drop legend on either side of the program space helps not a little. About the only suggestion we can offer is that they kill some of the outside advertising and use it for themselves. There is too little information about the house. It is a neighborhood theater and it is to be presumed that the hours of performance and prices of admission are known, but it pays to keep this and other information before the possible new patrons. The printer should be scolded for his front pages. The cut work is not good, but good enough if it has to be run off on a kicker press in a hurry. They used a good grade paper and fine screen cuts, and cannot get much on a hurry job. It would be better to use that front page for house announcement and talk. They run good features. Why not take the space to explain this to the patron? It will pay them as much as they collect from the outside advertisers.



A Good Idea.

The Philadelphia exchange of the Paramount, the Famous Players Exchange, gets out an interesting four page house organ each week. It carries many useful hints on advertising (some of them evidently adapted from Picture Theater Advertising) and it tries to help the houses. One recent suggestion might be copied by other exchanges. It reads:

TO THE OPERATORS

It would be a great help to us in examining films, if the operators WOULD NOT REWIND FILMS returned to us, after the last showing. We thank the operators for their consideration in sending the films back to us, rewound for another showing, but owing to the fact that we examine every print before it leaves this exchange, it would save us much time if they were received here not rewound.

Bill's In.

Bill ("William") Swanson has pretty good eyesight. He can read the handwriting on the wall as quickly as anyone, so he has swung into line with the rest on the children's matinee. Instead of talking about the pernicious influence of the pictures on the child, let's talk about special performances. The Kalem company was a few years ahead of the times when they got out their special releases for children, but the time is coming that will justify the Kalem faith. As a matter of fact, if the exhibitors had then given the Kalem company such support that others would have felt encouraged to follow the Kalem lead we would not hear so much today about censorships. But it is not yet too late to recognize the rights of the kiddies and all over the country this movement is used. Mr. Swanson in his Rex theater, Salt Lake City, will try the stunt as announced in the Swanson Circuit News as follows:

FOR THE KIDDIES

So many requests have been made of the management of the Swanson theaters in Salt Lake for special hours for children that a special day and a special program have been arranged for them.

Beginning next Saturday morning, January 29, at 10 o'clock, at the Rex theater, there will be given two special performances for children. There will be shown a series of motion pictures especially chosen for children and made up of the stocks of several of the exchanges doing business in this city. Every film will be inspected before it is shown to the little ones, in order that nothing may be screened which would be in the least above the head of the average child. There will be animal pictures, comedies, cartoons, travelogues and some simple drama.

For these children's days the admission price will be five cents. There is no possible profit for the theater at this price, the only object being to produce a program that will entertain and instruct the children.

Combination Stuff.

Apparently the Atlanta (Ga.) exhibitors have combined to advertise pictures, not any house or any one picture, but all houses and pictures in general. Here is a sample of the stuff they are using It is three columns wide the length of the page:

You Don't Know What You're Missing If You're Not a "MOVIE FAN"

Everybody knows that old tale about the Man Who Wouldn't Wake Up.

The children would run in and tell him about the beautiful procession that was passing. He'd rub his eyes and say "Um-hm." And then he'd go right back to sleep.

Friend Wife would talk to him about the gay goings-on in the town and what fun the neighbors were having and all that. He would turn over and beg her to let him taken another nap.

So of course, first thing you knew, the Man Who Wouldn't Wake Up came to be a Dull Old Thing. He got fat and soggy. He was behind the times. He didn't know what was going on. He was a regular Sleepyhead.

He didn't know what he was missing.

Do you know there are lots of people in Atlanta today who are exactly where this fellow was—they haven't the faintest idea of what they are missing.

They hear about the "Movies"—"Photo-plays."

They see the gay posters and the shimmer of lights at the playhouse doors. They gather that there's something very entertaining about it all—but they don't Wake Up enough to go after it.

They gather that there's something very entertaining about it all—but they don't Wake Up enough to go after it.

They like plays, they'll tell you—REAL plays; but the price is prohibitive.

They think a ten-cent show can't amount to anything.

Gee Whiz!

Why, Man Alive, you don't know what you're talking about.

Don't you know that to-day you can see the very biggest personages of Stage Life—the stars—the cream—the top notchers—the bigwigs of the drama, of the opera, of the ballet—at their very best in the Photo Picture Plays.

You are of those who think the Movies are a sort of toy business—just as some folks laughed at the telephone and called it a toy. Ditto the talking machine.

These "toys" are serious business today.

The Motion Picture of today is the wonder of the world—you don't KNOW what you're missing if you are not seeing it.

Take SCENERY, for instance. You like scenery?

Your stage actress flutters up and down a paper staircase, is wooed on a papier-mache bridge beside a canvas waterfall under painted pines, and wanders among gardens stuck with calico flowers by the stage carpenter and the property man.

In the Motion Pictures the WORLD unrolls before you.

Your motion picture heroine gallops across the REAL open on a REGULAR horse. She is a Japanese maiden in Old Nippon itself. She is Carmencita in Sunny Spain. She is a mountain lass in the heart of the Blue Ridge and you can all but hear the sigh of the million pines and smell the scent of the moonshine that they're making in a real still.

You see the plays staged in real tropical islands, in far cities and in remote jungles. You go abroad in REAL ships and you view REAL storms. You journey to the gayest cafes of gayest capitals. You visit the heart of the Ghetto and you are whirled across vast prairies. You go under seas with the diver and you are spun through space with the aeroplanist.

You don't KNOW what you're missing—if you're not a Movie Fan.

Wake up—NOW. Show's on—NOW. Take in at least one movie a day and catch up.

If you are that rara avis who has never attended a MOVIE, please write a letter to that effect, addressing it to the theaters appended to this article. They will see that you have a chance to find out what's going on in this wonderful Business-Art that is making the whole world sit up and take notice.

Grand	Strand	Victoria	Alpha
Georgian	Savoy	Alamo No. 2	Vaudette

It may seem strange to you, but there are thousands of people who still think of pictures as they last saw them, ten years or so ago. They read about them and they see them advertised, but they know all about pictures. Back in 1900 they used to see them, but they got so tiresome. These people should be brought back. If the other houses in your town will not come in with you, you can at least do the best you can by yourself. In your own program appeal to those who are not interested and try and get the programs into the hands of these people. Talk to your regulars on the screen with an occasional slide. Appeal to them to do a little missionary work. It will pay you.

Blank Books.

Edmund Reid, of the Palace, Barnesville, Ga., sends in "a list of theaters who show better pictures than the Palace." Of course the book is blank pages inside cut to fit the vest pocket, and serves as a handy memorandum book that will bring a laugh and perhaps a fresh advertisement each time it is used. We wonder if Mr. Reid still uses his one page daily. If he does, we should be glad to receive a few.

Burnish.

The Lehigh Orpheum, South Bethlehem, Pa., is advertising "The Red Circle" with an old cut of Ruth Roland that is lettered with her name and the fact that she is with the Kalem company. If it is desired to use an old cut, perhaps the printer can burnish out the letterting to be removed. If he cannot, take any polished steel point, not sharp, and rub over the lettering. It will break down the points to obliterate the name, and it does not look up to date to show an old cut. Better a black smudge than a white letter confession of antiquity.

Moving Back.

S. Barret McCormick, who ran the photoplay department in the Denver Times when photoplay departments were few and far between, and who later joined the NYMP photoplay staff, has returned to Denver to manage the Princess theater; the Denver home of Paramount. Mr. McCormick is a hustler and we shall watch for his work in his managerial capacity with interest. He was fighting single handed for the ten cent show in Denver when all others said it could not be done. He proved his point then. We wonder what he will do now.

Vitagraph Features.

If you get the advertising matter for the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features you know how complete the material is, but have you noticed their electro advertisements? If you have not, note that they let you advertise your own house and do not force you to overadvertise the Vitagraph if you wish to use their blocks. You have to hand it to Sam Spedon on that as well as on the generally attractive line of paper he offers and the complete press stuff.

Let's Start Something.

Do you remember what a joyous scramble there was for top honors on the Quo Vadis and Cabiria small town record? Some of you must. It got down to a town of eight people and a dog and stopped there. L. J. Scott, of Kansas City V-L-S-E qualifies George C. Johnson, of Platte City, Mo., a town of 783. Mr. Johnson took the Battle Cry of Peace and won an average of thirty-eight cents per head on the showing; matinee and night. That looks like $296.54. The record lies two ways, the size of the town and the money take in. The Birth of the Nation can't compete. Now then, they're off!

It was a bad day; too cold for automobiles to run, and the draw from neighboring towns was smaller than usual, but a reserved seat sale helped a lot. A five piece orchestra was used for the first time in the town.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others It will help you Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid. $2.00

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticized, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is enclosed.

Testing the Plot.

WILLIAM YOCUM sends in a couple of cards on which he has entered a series of tests which he applies to every story he writes. His tests are:

Will it pass the censors?
Is crime properly punished?
Has it a struggle?
Is there a reason for every action?
Are the characters real?
Is there a sacrifice for every victory?
Is it old?
Has it a climax?

These have been marked down as the suggestion came to him. We think that perhaps a better list might be prepared. Suppose we take it in this order:

Is the plot new or novel?

The plot may not be new and yet the treatment may be so novel that the plot is passed. There are few really new plots. There are new possibilities in all old plots if properly treated.

Is it practical?

It is foolish to offer a story that will cost more to produce than it will pring in real money through sales, or to ask for what will not return a profit in added interest in the story.

Will it pass the censors?

Stories that may barely get through are constantly used, but most of these are made by studio writers, who know just how far they dare go. The outside writer stands less chance if there is a question of doubt.

Has it struggle?

No play will count for much that does not aim at an object. And few plays interest unless the object aimed at is obtained only after a game fight. It is not so much the object as the fight that makes a story desirable.

Is there suspense?

You cannot become interested in a story, the outcome of which is never in doubt.

Is it properly motivated?

You must not alone have an object to aim at, the attainment of which is the climax, but your selection of the objective must be reasonable and well founded.

Are my characters well chosen?

Your play people should be vivid personalities and not shadowy character sketches, since you aim to reproduce life; not to draw character. You must arrange that the story is carried by a few essential characters and not bring people on and take them off never to be seen again.

Is my setting correct?

A story of the underworld cannot be given placement in the higher walks of society nor vice versa. The story must suit the characters you use.

Have I held closely to the plot?

It is unwise to introduce a mass of related but non-essential detail. Get a plot that will fill out your footage without padding.

Is my climax correct?

A contrast climax is the logical ending to the story. It must satisfy our sense of the proportions. Crime may not triumph and virtue must obtain its reward, not because crime always is visibly punished or because the reward of virtue is always immediately apparent, but because any other development will produce a play that is at variance with our pre-established standards.

If your plot really does pass this test, you should have a play that will sell, but do not be too lenient in your criticisms.

Hero and Villain.

This sentence occurs in a letter "her statement that the hero (he was really a villain) was unreal, gave me an idea."

Taken with the general text it would seem that the confusion of the critic affected the writer's faith in her judgment. The man could not be a hero because he was a villain. This is a common error. It is loose technique, admitted, for the chief character of the play is not properly the hero but the protagonist while the villain is the antagonist, but if the protagonist is a villain, he is the protagonist, or hero of the play none the less because of his villainous character, and in a play with a safe robber for its protagonist and a detective for antagonist the hero would be a villain and the villain a heroic character.

In play writing the terms "hero" and "villain," do not refer to the moral characteristics of the personages but to their relations in the story. The one on whom interest is centered is the hero, be he saint or sinner and the villain is any person who seeks to defeat the aim or objective of the hero. The detective who seeks to apprehend the safe cracker is arrayed on the side of right, but he is a villain in that he seeks to throw the peter-man in jail and so defeat the aim of the hero which is to retain his freedom. Jesse James would be the hero of a story based upon the incidents of his life, but he would not be an heroic character.

False Values.

Although replying to the synopses sent in response to the "Gymnastics" paragraph in the issue of December fourth entailed a lot of work, we feel repaid because we believe that it has helped many writers. We did not anticipate many good synopses because the question was a trick proposition, but it has served to show many authors the need for founding their stories on facts. Many of them have written their thanks for the comment, but if we had received only the one we reproduce below, we should have felt repaid. It is from a woman writer and she says:

> Last week you passed criticism on a short synopsis for me to the effect that it was too melodramatic, and too forced, also tell me to try writing a note on a cuff with a pin dipped in blood, and see what I got. This latter sounded rather like a roast, but nothing could have brought home the absurdity of it so keenly, and beginning to see a faint glimmer of daylight, I looked over my pile of rejected manuscripts, I find that in every instance I had a good plot with several original angles, but I had completely smothered up my plot with a whole lot of trashy "business" supposed to give punch to the play; as a result, I had all punch (very mechanical punch at that) and very little story. I am beginning to see that the suspense and thrill must come from a situation, carefully led up to, and not from physical action or dramatic incident. A beginner is puzzled by that mysterious word "action," and thinks that to attract attention his work must be of the melodramatic order, and in the words of the old, old story, "it's all wrong." I have ten rejected manuscripts to prove it.

As can be gained from the letter, a message written on linen with blood drawn from the veins with a pin was the big punch. The writer was advised to try writing such a letter. She saw the point.

Like many others she has been writing words and not action. The letter in blood sounds all right and has been used in many old romances, but the sight of such an effort would be laughable and not impressive. An editor, reading the script, would have laughed, for he would read the words into action and the sight of a full grown man stabbing himself with a pin would be funny even without Charlie Chaplin.

Action should possess no mystery for the novice who gets a book and studies it, for the novice will presently find that action is of two sorts, plot and visual and that it is the action of the plot that should be given the greater attention. If the action, the movement of the plot toward the climax is properly planned the visual action; the movement of the players should be in correspondence.

Adding "sight stuff" does not add to the value of the plot. It may even interrupt plot or defeat the author's aims by detracting from the plot value or exposing a situation so ridiculous that the laughter evoked will spoil the entire play, if produced.

The producer may read for sight stuff, but the editor will read for story and the sight stuff that does not rise naturally from the story will probably not get to the producer.

Perhaps you can remember when all Uncle Tom's Cabin companies had two Topsys and two Marks the Lawyer. It was a good advertising point, but it spoiled the drama in spots. It is the same way with material inserted into a photoplay to cover its weakness. If it does not belong in the play, if it is not a part of the structure of the play it is not a thrill but an interruption. It is easy when you know how, but first you must learn how. Too many are working on the wrong track.

Twice At Once.

It is not unusual for writers known to editors to submit the same story in two forms to one editor and get two rejections, but the other day we had a story rejected twice at once. On February 27, 1915, we sent a story to Edison. It returned home December 13 with two rejection slips, one dated August 14 and the other December 11. Twice in the same place and the same time is rubbing it in.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 128.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

What are the evils commonly practiced in the re-winding room? Describe the effect of each. Is it advisable to employ ushers and other inexperienced help in rewinding films? Give full reason for your opinion.

Roll of Honor on Question No. 122.

The Roll of Honor on Question 122 is as follows: Jos. H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; C. W. Tuthill, West Orange, New Jersey; F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas; and L. J. Pratt, Geneseo, Illinois.

Brother Tuthill's reply seems to best serve the purpose of publication.

Reply to Question No. 122.

By C. Wayne Tuthill, West Orange, N. J.

The Question:

In your opinion is the long solid tension shoe, the long sectional tension shoe, or the limber tension spring best? Give reasons for your answer.

The Answer:

The best arrangement for producing tension on the film is the long, solid tension shoe. Following are the reasons for my conclusions:

(1) Its wearing qualities are practically unlimited. (2) It is more easily and quickly cleaned than the sectional or spring tension shoes. (3) It allows of tension being better distributed on the film by reason of the long bearing, which removes all vibration and steadies it before it reaches the aperture plate. (4) It insures that the film at the aperture plate always has the same tension upon it; no matter at what position the framing device may be. (5) It is quieter in operation when having a deposit of emulsion on its surface, being longer and therefore less subject to vibration. (6) It allows of the passage of bad patches, and torn places in the film on which a sectional friction shoe might catch and cause damage.

WAYSIDE NOTES (Continued).

In Utica (Second Part).

In the previous issue, I described the new Utica house of which Henry Lux is manager.

While waiting for Mr. Lux to be disengaged, I watched the projection for almost half an hour, and believe it was the most thoroughly satisfying experience I have had within a year. The music by the orchestra was soft, unobtrusive and thoroughly pleasing. The play was magnificently projected. The speed was such that I did not feel that it would have been possible to in any way improve it. The light containing at no time the slightest trace of shadow, was brilliant, yet soft. All this produced an effect which is best described by the single word "smooth." I wish I could find words to express the beauty of the tout ensemble. It will linger long in memory, and more than that, the city will also linger in memory, because while of course I may be somewhat biased by the extreme friendliness of both operators and managers, still it is a bare, bald-headed statement of fact that here is one town in which criticism is reduced to a minimum, not on one point alone, but on every point having to do with projection; and more than that, here was one house in which criticism was entirely and absolutely absent.

The meeting was at 11.30, and I believe it was attended by every manager and operator in Utica, as well as some from surrounding towns. It was held in the beautiful Club Rooms of the Hotel Utica, and was opened by a buffet lunch, followed by speaking, in which your humble servant took part, followed by short talks from several managers and operators. In this connection we were amused by Mr. Ford Anderson, manager of the Shubert Theatre, who said: "Well, I have been guilty of some of the faults named by Mr. Richardson. We have been so busy making money that I have, perhaps unintentionally, failed to supply those things which I should have supplied to my operators. However, I want to publicly say right now, to my operator, in this presence, that he, in future, has not only my permission but my order to get anything he needs that will improve the results on our screen, or protect the films from injury." And thus, you see, there was some good accomplished in Utica. The meeting disbanded at 3 A. M., but not until practically every manager and operator present had expressed himself as thoroughly pleased with the meeting and voiced a belief and hope that it would bring the operators and managers closer together and establish a more thorough understanding between them.

In Chicago.

Going into the Windy City was in a way like coming back home, because it was there we twisted the crank on an eight hour grind for lo some several years. We have, however, ever since the inception of the department objected more or less strenuously to the methods adopted by the misleaders of the Chicago local and did not know but what we would be "strong armed" as soon as we stepped over the border line of Chicago.

Nothing of that kind happened, however, and considerably to our surprise our reception was most cordial all along the lines, though we did not, of course, call at the office of the local, nor will we ever call at that office so long as the local continues to countenance the present methods of its mis-leaders.

The editor did not have time during his four days' stay in the city to even glance at projection. In fact he did not visit the operating room of a single theater, except that of the Orpheum where he examined the arc controller which is described in a separate article. The entire time was taken up in visiting various manufacturers, examining into the merits of their goods, and dictating descriptions thereof, except for a few hours in hunting up and saying "hello, howdy, goodbye" to old time friends, such as for instance, Levine, general manager of Jones, Linick and Schaefer; Van Ronkel, manager of the V-L-S-E; Joe Morton, president of the Chicago Stationary Firemen, and several others. Our chief trouble was dodging invitations to lunch, dinner, etc. We did not dodge those things because we wanted to, but simply because there wasn't time. Given the time, leave it to us, we are there for the big eats any hour of the day, night, or between the two.

We found Neighbor Hinz, of the Chicago Moving Picture World Office, flying around like a miniature cyclone corralling the business, and as a business getter Friend Hinz is the only original thing that ever happened—or at least he says so, and he is the man who certainly ought to know.

John Bell, of the Bell & Howell Company, was so busy making perforators, cameras, etc., that he had to talk between times as it were. When you talk to Bell he sits on a transformer, holds a camera in his lap, and keeps his right hand on a perforating machine, but Bell is a pretty good scout at that, and incidentally he's the guy who designed and made the first real high class projecting machine ever produced, namely, the Kinodrome, which was used exclusively by the Spoor Company in the days when the Spoor Company maintained a circuit of high-class houses, sending out their own films and their own operators. I might say in this connection that when this was done a film was found to be in first class condition after it had been run for even as much as six months. This by reason of the fact that Spoor only hired the very best available operating talent, and those operators were directly responsible to Spoor for any damage done to the film. Result, practically no damage was done.

We visited the plant of the Northwestern Electric Company, had a very pleasant talk with S. H. Martin, its president, examining into the merits of the Martin Rotary Converter, which same will be fully described in a separate article later on. We also met Mr. Relm, president of the Atlas Educational Film Company, a most affable gentleman, and had a very pleasant visit, incidentally, examining into the merits of the apple of his eye, the Atlas Projector, which also will be described in a separate article.

Now, I want to speak of one gentleman, namely, Sam Levine, general manager of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, who have a string of high class theaters. Friend Levine is the real thing in managers, and if he had things his way the Jones, Linick & Schaefer houses would put on projection, which would make their fortune. Sam knows how to run a moving picture theater and run it right which same applies to any kind of house also.

Now, I wish to speak of something that has been agitating the Chicago Operators' Local Union, the Chicago Council, and the Chicago Federation of Labor for quite some several weeks, though it has finally passed the council by a vote of thirty-seven to twenty-six, and is now a law, and that is the approval of a projection machine having special sprockets, which will allow only of the projecting of special perforated films, all of which are to be non-inflammable, or rather slow burning stock. The Chicago Operators' Union insisted upon there being a licensed moving picture machine union operator in charge of each one of these machines, even though it be equipped with a 500 watt nitrogen incandescent lamp, which will not ignite even an inflammable, much less a slow burning film. The Chicago Operators' Union based their objection primarily upon the fire hazard. For the information of that august body let me say if their leaders had understood their business they could have based this proposition on something that would have been legitimate instead of an utterly ridiculous proposition of that sort. There is no danger—absolutely none whatever—in a machine of this kind when equipped with an incandescent lamp, and moreover, with slow burning film there is no danger with an arc lamp, but, for the benefit of the Chicago local union, the Chicago Board of Education, the Chicago Health Department, and the other gray-bearded, and non-gray-bearded wise ones, let me say that there is a very genuine danger to the eyes of the young of that city if these machines be placed in the hands of incompetent men who do not understand the optical system of a projector, and are unable to properly adjust the optical system to fit the local conditions of the installation, which not only may, but will vary with each separate and individual installation. It is quite possible, however, that the Chicago local did not want to bring this point up because the Chicago local, or at least its leaders, is and always has been opposed to education in the form of projection department, hand-books, etc., and, inasmuch as there is absolutely no other source of knowledge on these points, it may be supposed that the leaders of the Chicago local do not understand the optical system, or know how to match up to the local conditions. This is, of course, good plain talk, but I am free to say that plain talk is in order with an organization which does everything it can to oppose the education of the operator, and most emphatically the Chicago local has done that identical thing, not intermittently, but continuously for six years past, and the amusing part of it is that the Hinky-Dink, Bath-house John Solons of the Chicago City Council soberly considered a danger, which did not exist, but did not know one confounded thing about a danger which was very real and very evident to one who knows. It is to laugh.

The Chicago Federation of Labor is a body for which I have considerable respect, but it might as well butt its head against a stone wall as undertake to oppose the introduction of propositions of this kind into educational institutions, particularly when their objection is based on grounds which are not legitimate.

I do believe, however, that either a competent operator or the machine manufacturers ought to be obliged to guarantee to the school authorities that each individual installation has its optical system so fitted that the eye strain will be reduced to a minimum, and most emphatically the Chicago Board of Education should see to it that this is done, and also see to it that no seat is placed within less than twenty feet of a 16-foot picture or within less than 15 feet of any moving picture of less size. Anything less than this constitutes a crime against humanity and a crime which will react in days to come against future generations. If the Chicago Board of Education wants more information on this particular proposition, this department would be very glad indeed to supply it, and moreover to prove its grounds. We do not deal in hot air, but in facts and in facts which are entirely susceptible of proof.

Our last evening in Chicago was spent at a beef steak dinner held in the "Movie Inn" on Wabash avenue. The leaders of Chicago filmdom were then gathered about the tallow-candle decked, beer case seated table, and fun waxed fast and furious for many hours. The Chicago men are a lively bunch when they get started and (whisper) they are four cycle eight-cylinder electric self starters, too.

In Quincy, Illinois.

In order to renew the scenes of youth I made a detour on my Chicago-St. Louis route, via Quincy, Ill., where a playmate of childhood days, one around whom many memories cluster, has taken up what seems to be her life work and has become president of the Quincy College of Music. Miss Felt was a dear friend in days of lang syne—and still is, for that matter, so I could not resist the temptation to steal one day of the time allotted to St. Louis, and give it to Quincy, even though it involved a very tedious journey on a train which must be a lineal descendant of the "Slow Train Through Arkansas."

Quincy has several theaters, but I actually saw only five of them, namely, the Star, managed by Nelson Schwindler; the Savoy and Gem, managed by A. Padivac; the Quincy, managed by J. J. O'Neil, and the Orpheum, a vaudeville theater, all on Hampshire street.

In the afternoon Miss Felt and I visited the Star and sat through the performance. F. R. Ericson, the operator, did not know I was in the house yet his work was, everything considered, distinctly good. The light was brilliant, and the screen free from shadows, but there were times when a galloping horse moved with entirely superhorse speed. But in the main the work was, as I said, very good. But Friend Ericson's skill was largely negatived by the fact that there were two horizontal seams across the screen, which stood out like wires and in light scenes made a rather absurd effect. Mr. Schwindler had made the mistake of trying to refinish an old metal surface screen with, presumably, aluminum powder, a thing which cannot be done with any degree of satisfaction. The upper section was much darker than the middle one and there was the inevitable super-imposing of direct and diffuse reflection, with more or less resultant haze. I talked with Friend Schwindler, who answered me that he intended installing a new screen soon—well, the "soon" ought' in my opinion, to be changed to "at once," "immediately," or some word meaning the same thing. Operator Ericson is, I am told, a student of the Handbook.

The Orpheum runs an Animated Weekly in conjunction with its vaudeville bill, but the picture is absurdly and needlessly large, not to say huge, that it is anything but brilliant and, either due to dirty or cheap lenses, or carelessness on the part of the operator its definition was very poor. Of course, this latter might be partly caused by the impossibility of properly illuminating such a large picture, especially with considerable light in the auditorium. The Orpheum would get a vastly improved effect by reducing the width of the picture by fully three or four feet. With the same consumption of current, the picture would be far more brilliant and would "stand out" better.

I did not see the other Quincy theaters except to glance into one, the Savoy, I think it was, a very pretty house, nor did I meet any of the other Quincy managers, except A. Padivac, manager of the Savoy and the Gem, a most affable gentleman with whom I would have been much pleased to have had a more extended visit.

(To be continued.)

Shape of the Light Beam.

R. W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal., sends the following exceedingly well written and illustrated article on the shape of the light beam. I would recommend it to the careful study of operators. I believe it coincides with Brother Griffiths' conclusions, but is put in a considerably more comprehensive and easily understandable form:

> In Fig. 1, the crater has a circular shape, from each point of which light rays go out in every direction toward the rear condenser, and since the condenser intercepts only a part of the total number of rays which go forward from the crater, the actual beam which passes through the condenser must have the same (sectional) shape as the condenser surface at that position and be circular (provided the ray be unobstructed by a slide carrier.—Ed.). Consequently each beam which originates at a point on the crater and passes through the condenser has the shape of a circular cone, the apex of which is at the crater, with the base at the condenser. But the entire beam from the crater to the rear condenser is composed of numberless such cones, the sum of whose apexes covers the circular plane of the crater. It is thus very easy to comprehend that the entire beam is practically the shape of a frustrum of a circular cone, whose bases cover the circular crater and the circular condenser. Therefore, cross-sections of the beam taken at any point between the crater and the condenser must and will be circular.

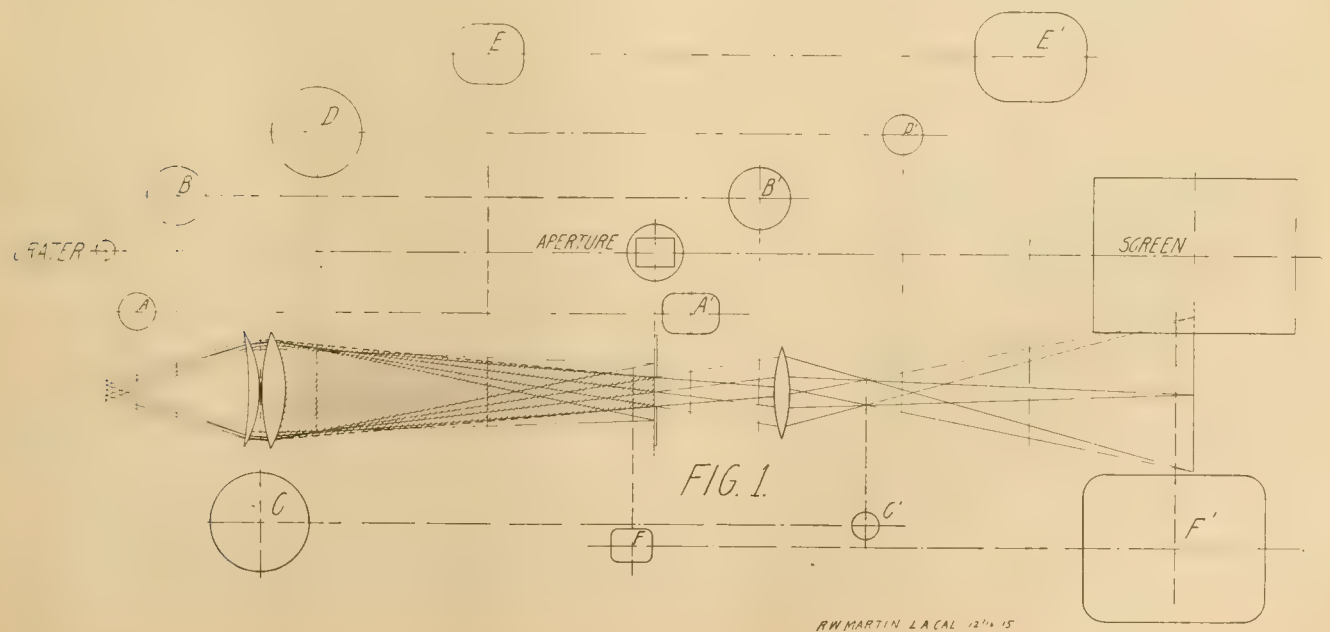

FIG. 1.

Now from the condensers to the aperture plate, the beam is merely a continuation of the one we have just examined. The only difference is that the condenser causes the beam to converge toward the aperture, and it is a well known fact, which any operator may prove by practical experiment, that every cross-section of the beam from the condensers to the aperture is circular (provided there is no slide carrier.—Ed.). Also, the spot at the aperture, which is, or should be, in focus with the crater, must be circular (not necessarily exactly true in practice because the crater is usually somewhat oblong in shape.—Ed.).

But the aperture opening, which is rectangular, by its very shape forces the beam to become rectangular at the aperture plate, and since the part of the beam which actually passes through the aperture is the only part which is operative in forming the picture on the screen; consequently the operative part of the condenser beam must be rectangular at the aperture, though circular at the condensers. The nearer a section under consideration is placed toward the aperture, the more the influence of the rectangular shape is seen; and the nearer a section approaches the condenser the more the influence of the circular shape is evidenced. Therefore, the practical operative beam from the condensers to the aperture has the shape of a prismoid, whose end sections are circular at one end and rectangular at the other; and the sections in between vary from a circle at the condenser, through an oval, to finally a rectangle at the aperture. The operative condenser beam is indicated in Fig. 1 by the hatched portion. Now the beam from the crater to the aperture is primary in function, and the beam from the aperture to the screen is secondary in function, i.e., the relation of the first to the latter is as cause to effect, or as object to reflection. What we mean by this, is that any cross-section of the secondary beam (at any point of the throw) is wholly dependent for its shape upon the shape of a conjugate back focal plane located in the primary beam.

Following this idea in its successive steps, according to the schedule shown in Fig. 1:

(1) The circular crater is focussed as a circular image at the aperture, but is forced to become operatively rectangular by the shape of the opening.

(2) The circular section A is focussed as a circular image at A', but is influenced slightly toward the rectangular shape by the proximity of A' to the aperture.

(3) The circular section B is focussed as a circular image at B', and the distance of B' from the aperture is sufficient to overcome the rectangular influence of the aperture.

(4) The circular section C is focussed as a circular image at C', safe from any disturbing influence.

(5) The circular section D is focussed as a circular image at D'.

(6) The oval section E, so shaped because it is equally influenced by the condenser and the aperture, is focussed as a similar shaped image at E'.

(7) The nearly rectangular section F, so shaped because it is almost entirely influenced by the aperture, is focussed as a similar shaped image at F'.

(8) Finally, the aperture itself, which is a true rectangle, is focussed as a true rectangle at the screen.

Which was to be done

The Right Spirit.

B. J. Fenton, Fernandina, Fla., says:

> The attached letter is in reply to a report of mine with regard to the condition of a film. Now, I don't wish to be understood as holding exchanges to be blameless in the matter of sending out prints in poor condition, but perhaps if operators and managers were more particular to send reports to exchanges instead of just "cussing 'em out" the general result might be considerably better.

The letter referred to reads as follows: "Mr. J. B. Fenton, Fernandina Amusement Company, Fernandina, Fla. Dear Sir—We thank you for your favor of the second, and most assuredly appreciate the information given. Your co-operation will be appreciated at all times, and we only wish that all exhibitors were as careful to represent such conditions, for if they would it would be easier for us to furnish a satisfactory service. With best wishes, we are, Yours very truly, General Film Company, Inc. J. L. Mantelle, Branch Manager, Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 3." I wish to compliment the manager of the General Film Company's Atlanta Exchange on his courteous reply. However, without in any way intending to insinuate that Mr. Mantelle would take any such course, there is ample evidence in my hands that film exchange managers not infrequently made just such courteous reply as this, but confined their action wholly and entirely to the writing of the letter, or letters. It is nice to receive courteous letters in reply to complaints of film in bad condition, but it is much nicer to have no cause to receive them; also what are you going to do with the exchange manager who won't even answer a letter of complaint as to poor condition of film? I also have ample evidence of this being the method in many cases. To sum the matter up, I agree with you that theater managers and operators ought to make regular reports of the condition of films received, but if the condition continues bad, then this report should be sent in duplicate to this department, to the end that we can take the matter up with the powers that be, who are mostly all located right here in New York City, and secure action that will really amount to something. In order to get action, however, it is absolutely essential that either the film faults out out be sent in, together with the name of subject, the date it was received from the exchange and the name and location of the exchange, or, if you send in copies of film reports, then those reports must absolutely contain all that data in order to be of any real value. But the film faults are much the best. When I have them, I have in my hands indisputable evidence of the condition complained of.

Lens Diameter.

C. F. Silveus, Waynesburg, Pa., says:

> I wish to get a new set of M. P. lenses, and am trying to follow out the light ray dope. I find you say that we all should have a large size moving picture lens opening, or at least larger than I have at present. I am not getting as good results as I think I should, and I wish to know what size opening to obtain. The machines are Power's 6 and 6A; 83-foot throw, with an 18-foot 9-inch picture; the lens is 5 inches E. F., which just fills the screen in height, and I think a 5¼ would leave just about enough margine top and bottom. Have been informed that the Gundlach people do not make a 5¼ E. F. in a larger size than 1⅝ opening. Can't they make them larger?

Certainly they can, Brother Silveus, and what is more they should. No, a 5¼-inch E. F. would give you a still larger picture. What you want is probably about a 5¾-inch lens, but the practical thing to do is give the dealer you purchase your lens from the exact distance from the lens to the screen and the exact width of picture you want, always remembering that the height of the picture will be three-fourths of its width, and put it up to him to send you the right lens.

In order to determine the diameter of objective lens opening you require, proceed as follows: Focus your picture on the screen and then measure the distance from the aperture plate to the rear lens of the objective. Having done this, remove the shutter of your machine (so that it won't be in the way) and take off the front plate, then holding an ordinary piece of writing paper inside the mechanism at the exact point the rear lens of the objective would occupy, measure the diameter of the light ray at that point, after the arc has been burning long enough to form a full size crater. You can then see for yourself exactly what size lens opening you require in order to accommodate the beam of light without waste. If it measures, say 4⅛ inches from the rear surface of the lens to the aperture when the picture is in focus on the screen, then your piece of paper must be just 4⅛ inches from the aperture when you measure the diameter of the light beam. Of course if you alter the E. F. of the objective as suggested it will then set a little further away from the aperture and the diameter of the ray will be a trifle more.

"Loosen Up, Don't Wait for a Monkey Wrench."

The foregoing is respectfully dedicated to the careful consideration of theater managers. A very large percentage of managers object perhaps more strenuously to being forced by a union to grant better conditions and better operators' salaries than they do the actual increase in expense occasioned by the change. It is an astonishing thing, but is nevertheless a rock bottom fact, that the foregoing describes the state of mind of many a manager whom the operators' organization has forced into granting increased salaries and better conditions.

Well, in such cases as this the title of this article applies very nicely. The operators' union is the "monkey wrench," and it sometimes becomes absolutely necessary to use the wrench, not only as it is legitimately intended to be used, but also as a sort of bludgeon. This is to be deeply regretted. Up to date the editor of this department does not know of a single instance in which the "monkey wrench" has been used in the endeavor to enforce any unreasonable wage demand. True, during the heat of conflict the managers often declare and believe the demands of the men to be unreasonable, but after these same demands have been granted and in force for six months, and have been accepted as a part of the routine, you don't hear any further talk of "injustice," or "unreasonableness." In fact, unless he is a particularly stubborn specimen, the manager has long since come to the conclusion that the thing really was not so very bad after all.

The point is, however, why wait for the application of the "monkey wrench?" Why not "loosen up" of your own free will and accord, and grant better salaries and conditions? Surely it is no hard or difficult thing to understand that increased salaries bring, at least in the long run, better results, and better results bring more money to the box office. That is a proposition that is childishly simple. It has been pointed out in this department many times, and will probably be pointed out many more times. I have often said, and do firmly believe that justice will not be done the moving picture industry until the moving picture machine operator of our larger cities is raised to the thirty to forty dollar a week basis, with small town men paid in proportion. I have before said, and again repeat that there is still great room for improvement in the projection of moving pictures, AND THAT THE POSSIBLE IMPROVEMENT WILL NOT BE MADE UNTIL OPERATORS' SALARIES ARE SUCH THAT THEY WILL EITHER ATTRACT TO THE PROFESSION, MEN OF SUPERIOR ABILITY, OR ELSE MAKE THE POSITION SUFFICIENTLY ATTRACTIVE THAT THE PRESENT MEN WILL BEND EVERY EFFORT TO IMPROVE

THEIR KNOWLEDGE AND THUS "HOLD THEIR JOB." This being true, and I challenge any intelligent man who is posted on the requirements of modern, practical projection to dispute it, then follows that PURELY AS A BUSINESS PROPOSITION THEATRE MANAGERS OUGHT THEMSELVES TO WELCOME ADVANCEMENT IN OPERATORS' SALARIES, and the betterment of their working conditions. In other words, it is a good business proposition to not wait to have the "monkey wrench" get busy, and force you to do that which should be done purely as a common sense business proposition.

Point Well Taken.

James Shipton, O. J. Parker, Merele Willson, and W. C. Evans, Sherman Texas, append their signatures to the following:

> Find enclosed an article taken from the advertisement of a producing company. (The clipping is a letter from an exhibitor, who after praising the features of the producer says: "I cannot conscientiously see, rest and sit back and wonder how such pictures can be produced on such returns as I am contributing." The exhibitor then speaks of an increase in the price of service, and says he is sending his check for four weeks' service.—Ed.) That sure is one very liberal manager, but what has us guessing is would this same manager be equally liberal should his operator request a 10 per cent raise in salary? (Deep stuff, gentlemen, deep stuff. It's dollars to door knobs his liberality would start back-pedalling forty miles an hour.—Ed.) Take note that this manager says: "I cannot conscientiously see, rest and sit back and wonder. (Some twisting of the good, old English language there.—Ed.) how such pictures can be produced on such returns as I am contributing." Now we wonder if that same manager and other managers have any adequate realization of the fact that those same pictures he is praising must be properly projected to the screen if they are going to be of the highest service to him. We also wonder if the operator employed by this particular manager were putting on high-class projection if he, the manager, would be even one-half as liberal with the operator as he proposes to be with the exchange. Our projection department has often said that managers don't object to paying an added price to the film exchange for something extra good when they are asked to do so, but when the extra good operator asks for an increase—blooy! There's an explosion, an awful howl, and off goes the roof. Mind you, Brother Richardson, this don't apply to all managers, but it does apply to the majority. In closing, we wish you and our department all kinds of success, and wind up by saying that we are still looking for the new Handbook.

As to the advertisement, and your comment thereon, I feel that you have put the matter remarkably well, your comments are clear, concise and to the point. It really is an amazing thing that so many theater managers will cheerfully pay many dollars per week in added price for extra good service, and then put up a terrific fight against a comparatively insignificant, piffling raise of two or three dollars per week in the operator's salary, which cannot but, in the long run, operate to secure improved projection of those pictures. Its a queer old world, brothers, and the process of reasoning as exemplified by some theater managers, on this particular proposition, passeth understanding. We have, for six years, however, been trying to educate Mr. Manager in that one simple thing, and really have had a very considerable amount of success. I hope the day is not far distant when theater managers will come to an understanding of the fact that an increase in operator's salary will in the end return even better interest on the money than an equal sum invested in improved film service.

Real Thinking.

E. I. Wilson, St. Joseph, Missouri, sends in answers to questions 117, 119 and 120, and says:

> If the object of these questions is to make operators get right down and do some real thinking and studying (It most emphatically is, Brother Wilson.—Ed.). then I firmly believe they will accomplish their purpose. Most certainly I never have, since my school days, done so much studying as I have just on these three questions. And now I would like to ask you a question. Have been trying to line my lens system according to Table No. 1, October 16th issue, but on one machine I cannot get my lamphouse back far enough. What I wish to know is this: with an objective working at 3 inches back focus, distance Y, Table 2, is 15 inches (which is all I can get) and distance X, Table 2, is 4½ inches, using one 6½ and one 7½ plano condenser. Do you think I am getting the best possible results under these conditions? I might add that the objective diameter is 1½ inches.

Well, Brother Wilson, your arc is fairly well located, being about a trifle more than 3½ inches from the lens. That part of it is not at all bad, but you are wasting a lot of light at your objective, nor is there any way to get around that proposition and use your present objective lens. With only 15 inches from the apex of the front condenser and the film, you need a lens 2 inches in diameter, and I would advise you to make as advantageous a trade as you can with your exchange and get one, unless you can alter your projector in a way to allow of the lamphouse being brought further back. You have not said what kind of machine it is, therefore I cannot comment on that particular phase of the matter. I think possibly the easiest way would be to get a lens of larger diameter. Your manager should understand that while this will cost something, still every hour he runs, using the present lens, he is wasting light. With the 15 inch distance and a larger lens you would use two 6½ condensers, making sure by measuring, they are 6½ and not 6¾ or 6¼.

There is, however, this objection to the short distance between the condenser and film, viz.: the further back the condenser is pulled the narrower will be the light beam where the shutter cuts it and that, Brother Wilson, is a very important proposition. Perhaps, after all, you might better try to alter your machine so that the lamphouse will go back to at least 20 inches.

Makes Improvements.

S. F. Erskine, West Lebanon, Indiana, writes:

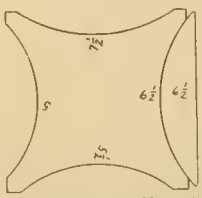
> We have remodeled our theater, the "Banner," putting in a new 8 x 9 x 7 operating room, constructed of cement 4½ inches thick, with all wiring in conduits; also have installed new light fixtures, given the auditorium floor a slope, put in a player piano, and project an 11-foot picture on a 56 foot throw, using a cloth screen and a Powers Six machine, upon which latter we have spent just fifty cents in three years. I run the machine, and my wife sells tickets. We use Mutual service, and the serial "Diamond from the Sky," which is a good one. Run three nights a week at 5 and 10 cents.

I was getting all ready to land on you, Brother Erskine, concerning your statement that you had only paid fifty cents for projector repairs in three years, but it is not so bad after all, because you are only running three evenings per week, or say nine hours per week, which, at the most, would mean 458 hours for a year, or 1,378 hours in three years, which would equal one hundred and thirty-seven ten-hour days. 1,378 hours' run with only fifty cents for repairs is, indeed, a good record, but I am of the opinion that you are very much in need of, at least, a new intermittent sprocket. Worn sprocket teeth don't make for steady pictures, and, moreover, they are very hard on the film. It is hardly right for you to save a few dollars in repairs at the expense of doing comparatively slight, but constant, injury to the films you run. If you will examine your intermittent sprocket, using a condenser lens as a magnifier, I think you will find the teeth to be undercut and very badly worn, probably in a more or less hook shape. As a matter of fact a new sprocket should be installed as soon as the teeth show appreciable wear. It is a duty you and other exhibitors owe to the moving picture industry.

A Condenser Gauge.

R. W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal., contributes the following item:

> Did it ever strike you that the aperture opening itself acts, to a certain extent the same as does the pin-hole lens? It surely does, for I have actually focused the dimly defined image of an incandescent lamp on a screen through a standard size aperture opening.
>
> Here is another one with more meat in it: To find the local length of a condenser lens use the method shown in the sketch. Take a piece of cardboard—a sheet of aluminum is better—and cut out arcs of circles having a diameter of 5, 5½, 6½ and 7½ inches. By using this as a gauge the focal length of a lens may immediately be found, as shown in the sketch.



It seems totally impossible, Brother Martin, that an opening as large as aperture can act to any extent as a pin-hole lens. I don't see how that could possibly be, but pass the thing along to our readers just as you put it.

As to the condenser gauge, why that particular thing was illustrated in the department, in a less comprehensive form, two or three years ago. However, it would be very easy for an operator to make one of these gauges for his own use and keep it in the operating room. I see no reason why it should not work perfectly, unless the difference in refractive index of the glass in different lenses would appreciably affect the result.

THE NEW HANDBOOK
Ready About March 15
720 Pages, 318 Illustrations.
Price $4.00 Postpaid.

Send check, money order or registered currency now and get your copy hot off the press.

THE CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.
17 Madison Ave., New York City

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Waste Recovery in Film Factories (Continued).

WHERE it is not possible to have tanks on different levels, a small bronze centrifugal or rotary pump and electric motor will take care of the solutions nicely. When the upper tank is two-thirds full of hypo solution add sulphuret solution, stirring with a wooden paddle and pausing once in a while to let the precipitate settle a little and take a glass full of the supernatant liquid and add a little of the sulphuret solution to see if there is any further precipitation. If it produces a dark brown cloudy precipitate it is necessary to add more precipitant but if the precipitate is only slightly cloudy or absent the precipitation is complete and the tank should be allowed to settle until the next day when the clear supernatant liquid may be carefully decanted into the lower tank. However, careful you may be you will find that it is impossible to remove all of the supernatant liquid without a portion of the precipitate escaping into the next tank. It is to receive and save this escaping precipitate that the lower tank was constructed. The lower tank is now allowed to settle and the clear liquid allowed to run into the sewer. This precipitation may be repeated until the accumulation of sludge in the bottom of the tank is sufficient to warrant putting it into tight barrels for shipment to the refiner.

If any acid is used in the hypo do not fail to run enough spent developer solution into the tank to make sure that all the acid is neutralized and that the solution is decidedly alkaline. If this is not done the acid will react on the liver of sulphur and foul the whole neighborhood with the abominable odor of sulphuretted hydrogen or hydrogen disulphide which has rotten eggs backed off the boards for fragrance.

Reducing solutions and silver intensifying baths may also be run into these tanks for recovery of their silver content.

What to Use Instead of Metol.

The shortage of metol, which has hitherto been almost universally used in connection with hydrochinon as a developing agent for cinematograph films, has become acute and prices have soared out of sight with only a little to be had at any price.

In Rochester, New York, the other day, the writer tried in vain to obtain even a fraction of an ounce of the precious chemical and there, in the heart of the photographic industry in America, was no metol to be had for love or money.

The research laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Company have been carrying on an exhaustive series of experiments to obtain formulas for developers composed of ingredients manufactured in this country.

Metol is a trade name adopted by its German manufacturer for a coal tar developing agent, and while the patent had expired and a number of chemicals similar or identically the same in chemical composition were offered by various foreign chemical houses before the war as substitutes for Metol Hauf, the Allies' blockade of the German merchantmen has effectively cut off the supply of both metol and its substitutes, and if the photographic business in this country is to continue as it has formerly done we will have to adopt formulas which will be mixed from reagents which are readily obtainable in this country.

There are a number of chemical houses in this country which are now manufacturing hydrochinon in commercial quantities, and it is not improbable that the present state of affairs in Europe will so cut down the supply that it will be impossible to obtain this important chemical. A few substitutes for metol have appeared which are manufactured in America, but they are not chemically the same and most of them require that they be used with caustic chemicals in order to produce the proper results. Caustic alkalies, as ingredients of developing solutions, are far from desirable either in their effects upon the hands of the workmen or upon the gelatin of the emulsion and the celluloid. They produce an excessive shrinkage in the film base and soften the emulsion, producing many undesirable consequences.

Hydrochinon has a reputation for being a developer which gives great contrasts and it is not generally known that, with the proper manipulation, it is capable of great variation in results; that with proper precautions one may obtain results with it that compare favorably with those obtained from any other developing agent or combination of these reagents, and that these results are almost indistinguishable in the finished product from those obtained by other means.

It is true that it requires careful manipulation to obtain images different in contrast and color of deposit from those usually associated with this agent, and that the results sought may be more easily attained with other coal tar developers, but if we cannot obtain these reagents, we can, nevertheless, obtain similar results with hydrochinon by a little more care in manipulation and a variation in the constituent chemicals in the developing solution.

As the temperature of the developing solution has a very great effect in the contrast and density of the silver deposit in hydrochinon development, it is absolutely essential for the attainment of the proper gradation that the temperature of the developer be maintained between 65 degrees and 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

The following formula is calculated for both negative and positive stock.

Make sure that the chemicals used in mixing this formula are of the highest technical purity. Chemicals of the so-called technical grade from different manufacturers often show great variations in strength, and while it is always highly important that all photographic chemicals be of standard purity it is doubly so with hydrochinon, which is very sensitive to a variation in the strength of the sodas with which it is mixed.

Hydrochinon Motion Picture Film Developer.

Dissolve chemicals in the order named:

	Avoirdupois	Metric
Water	10 gallons	40 litres
Hydrochinon	13 ounces	390 grams
Sodium Sulphite (Dessicated)	4 pounds	2 kilos
Sodium Carbonate (Dessicated)	4 pounds	2 kilos
Potassium Bromide	3 ounces	90 grams

USE AT A TEMPERATURE OF 65 DEGREES TO 68 DEGREES FAHRENHEIT.

For negative film developed on the drum, add to the above 1½ ounces (45 grams metric) potassium bromide and develop at a temperature of 62 degrees Fahrenheit.

DO NOT FAIL TO ADHERE STRICTLY TO THE TEMPERATURES GIVEN OR YOU WILL NOT GET THE PROPER RESULTS.

When development is complete immerse in acid short stop composed as follows:

Water	10 gallons
Acetic Acid (No. 8)	32 ounces

if plain hypo is used.

As the prevention of stain is very important, film developed by this formula should be fixed in acid hypo, in which case:

When development is complete, rinse in two changes of water and fix in the following:

Acid Hypo Fixing Solution.

Dissolve completely:

Water	10 gallons
Hypo	21 pounds

Then mix the following acid hardener separately and after it is thoroughly dissolved add it to the hypo solution above:

Water	40 ounces
Sodium Sulphite (Dessicated)	4 ounces
Alum (white, not chrome)	8 ounces
Acetic Acid (No. 8-4)	24 ounces

When this acid hypo solution is run into precipitation tanks for silver recovery, it is highly important that enough spent developer be also run into the recovery tanks to neutralize all of the acid present or the acid will react with the sulphide used for precipitating and produce an awful stench of liberated hydrogen di-sulphide.

When the fixing of the film is complete, wash it thoroughly and immerse for two minutes in a glycerine bath—water, 10 gallons (40 litres); glycerine, 32 fluid ounces (1 litre)—to maintain the flexibility of the film.

These formulas are given in the small unit quantities of 10 gallons each so as to render the calculation of larger quantities relatively simple. Most developing tanks hold very nearly some multiple of ten gallons, thus rendering the calculation for a 20, 40, 60 or 80-gallon tank the simplest kind of mathematical calculation.

By mixing the same amount of chemicals in a smaller quantity of water, a good concentrated stock solution may be mixed for the development of still picture negatives.

The same temperature regulations that obtain for film must be adhered to with plates, tray development requiring a lower temperature than tank development. Raising the temperature increases the contrast and lowering it produces flat results.

The hydrochinon formula for film development is not suitable for the working of development papers such as Velox, Azo, Cyko, Royal, P. M. C. and other developing out bromide and chloride papers.

As most studios do their own finishing of stills for publicity and advertising purposes, the following formula for developing papers will not be amiss:

Water	1 gallon
Hydrochinon	1 ounce
Sulphite of Soda (Dessicated)	2 ounces
Carbonate of Soda (Dessicated)	14½ ounces

To each ounce of this developer as used add one drop of 10 per cent. solution of bromide of potassium or one drop of saturated solution of bromide of potassium to each 3 ounces of developer.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by Clarence E. Sinn and S. M. Berg

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS concerning any phase of the work of the orchestral leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

Mr. Berg would be pleased to hear from those leaders and musicians who are using the Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets which he prepares for the V-L-S-E, Metro, World, Equitable and Mutual feature releases as to their practical usefulness and assistance in playing the pictures. He also invites any criticisms or suggestions from those interested in the work for their improvement for the service of the film.

Musical Setting for "The Discard."

Released March 6 by the V-L-S-E., Inc.

Suggestions prepared by S. M. Berg by special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., music publishers, New York.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of Mutual films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "The Discard" were prepared by S. M. Berg of the New York music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed subtitle (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Doris Wynne, at a French Convent, does not know that her mother, Alys, is an accomplice of "Python" Granitt, international crook. She marries the brother of her school-mate, Kenneth, who shortly after inherits a large amount of money. They go to America, where Granitt with the aid of Alys attempts to swindle Kenneth. After a while Alys gets him in a compromising position, but when she learns that Doris is his wife she tells the police where they can find Granitt and commits suicide, leaving her identity secret.

The theme selected is "My Memory Maid"—Hintze.

Time schedule: five reels (about 5,000 feet), 75 minutes.

Time.		Subtitles or Descriptive Cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening	My Memory Maid—Hintze. (Moderato.) (Theme.)
1½	T	A mother's cares.
3	T	The Duc de Beauvrai—	Entr'act Clarice—Loud. (Valse intermezzo.)
7	T	Unlucky at cards.
7½	T	Alys visits her daughter.	Katinka Selection—Friml.
10¾	T	"I have milked him dry"—
12	T	"What does it matter if I am financially ruined"—	Remembrance—Telma. (Andantino.)
14½	D	When Doris gets letter.
16	T	Keith Maxwell.	Repeat: My Memory Maid (Theme.)
16¾	D	Reception scene.	Melody of the Century—Orlob. (Fox trot.)
18	D	When the detectives board ship.
20	T	"I love Doris as a daughter already"—	Gondoliera—Moszkowski. (Andante con moto.)
22	T	"We will communicate your wishes"—
23	T	Alys weighs her daughter's future—	Repeat: My Memory Maid. (Theme.)
24	T	Alys ponders over a wedding present.
25½	D	The wedding.	Organ solo.
26	T	Keith and Doris receive good news—	Serenade—Kautzenbach. (Allegretto.)
27	T	The Bournes sail to claim their—
29¼	T	Comes To Spend Uncle's Millions. (Newspaper headline.)	Petite Serenade—Horton. (Allegretto.)
32	T	"Thanks old top, I will just have a drink and look on"—	Repeat: My Memory Maid. (Theme.)
33	T	The senora and Doris become great—
34½	T	"I wonder if your husband could attend to some business for me?"	Innamorata — Marchetti. (Valse lento.)
37½	T	"You wanted some Orinoco rubber shares. Here are some."	Basket of Roses—Albers. (Allegretto.)
38	T	"No gold brick will trap a square man."
40	T	Keith and Grant arrive in New York.
41½	T	"The turtle-dove is the easiest bird to snare."	Evening Twilight — Hallen. (Andante.)
44	T	"My husband cares nothing for art"—
46½	T	After the theater.	Evening Quietude — Kretschmer. (Molto tranquillo.)
48½	T	"Granitt is a brute to neglect"—
49¾	D	When Alys lowers window shade.	*Agitato No. 2.
51¼	T	The following day.	Romance — Karganoff. (Andante sostenuto)
52¾	T	"You can fight, but what is to"—
56	T	A meal ticket for life.	Inspiration — Edwards. (Andante.)
57¼	T	The follow-up system.
59	T	Mrs. Bourne, you should know Mrs. Granitt—	Coeur Brise — Pietromarchi. (Valse lente.)
61½	T	When Doris gets telegram.
62½	T	"I couldn't understand why Keith left me alone so long."	Repeat: My Memory Maid. (Theme.)
64	T	Putting on the screws.	Spring Flowers—Wood. (Andante.)
66	T	Every happy wife believes what—
67½	T	"No man wants his mother-in-law around."	Love's Awakening — Danglas. (Waltz lento.)
70	D	When Keith returns to his wife.	Repeat: My Memory Maid. (Theme.)
72½	T	At noon the following day.	Bowl of Pansies—Reynard. (Moderato.)
73¼	T	The Discard.	Repeat: My Memory Maid. (Theme.)
75	T	The End.

Note: For the convenience of readers of the Moving Picture World a price list of the numbers suggested in the above cue-sheet is to be found in G. Schirmer's advertisement on page 1901.

Interpretation.

BY S. M. BERG.

After the special performance of "The Ne'er-do-Well," given at the Candler Theater, February 10, for which the writer had the pleasure of arranging a synchronized score and conducting the orchestra, he was approached by a well-known musician who complimented the appropriateness of the musical setting, but yet severely criticized the liberty taken with the tempos during the performance. In the discussion that followed the point argued was, whether or not a conductor should alter the composer's conception of tempo and expression in the service of the film. In no half-hearted way the writer was informed that he and others were committing a sacrilege in daring to give new interpretations. I trust that I shall not bring down too much criticism on my head, but hope to hear from musicians both pro and con on this important subject.

Motion picture art to-day is the greatest educator of the age as it teaches the lessons of history, art, science, religion and astronomy as nothing else can. When amusing its millions of disciples with stories and romance it has set up a standard of its own and has already created a series of customs and regulations which few dare to break. When a well-known book is adapted, the story is possibly re-written, scenes are dropped and original thoughts are interloped. Last year an excellent film picturization of "Peer Gynt" was produced, but none can say that the story was minutely followed. The same is true of our most popular operas "Carmen," "Manon Lescaut" and "Madame Butterfly," which have been filmed wonderfully though not exactly as they are given on the Metropolitan stage. When the services of some great actor or actress are used in the presentation of an important character some training must be given them to convey the expressions of surprise, pleasure, grief or despair that are different from those employed on the legitimate stage. Shakespeare has been dead three hundred years, but here in New York to-day many of his plays are presented to commemorate his life. Among the many of the great artists in the past who have represented his characters, each has conveyed to his audience his own ideas of interpretation and no two have made the same impression. Speaking of the operatic performances given in the Metropolitan Opera House it is a well-known fact that no two conductors will interpret any certain opera alike, through every scene, action and note has received the composer's idea of phrasing, tempo and expression.

Therefore, if all the customs, habits and interpretations other than those of the music have been differentiated for the requirements of the film why should certain musicians take the stand that it is a sacrilege to change standard compositions to portray dramatic or other scenes. At present music interprets the film. Some day the film will interpret the music, but until that time arrives it is the writer's sincere conviction that no composer will turn in his grave with agony ff when using an andante con moto it is played allegro, an allegretto—andantino, or a moderato—allegro, providing that the newer reading follows the action of the scene and not the caprice or negligence of the conductor. Interpretation is to be used in the broadest sense. On a page of a master's composition we note his instructions, but yet the true musician unconsciously must give it his own interpretation. Let us surmise a student of Spanish descent born in America studying with a precise and methodical German teacher, some Tschaikowsky or Grieg composition. I feel sure that the composer's idea in this instance would not receive very fluent expression. Interpretation must be a matter of temperament and if it be sincere and shows application of study it must be received with respect and admiration even though one differs with its conception. With all the wealth of musical compositions at one's service, how frequently the difficulty arises in finding a composition which will exactly portray the desired character of an action and if some change of tempo were not permissible it would be insurmountable.

A serious attempt has been made during the last six months by certain musicians to write what they call an original musical setting for feature films. The first attempts in some instances were presentable and without gaining any high altitudes were appropriate and fitting. From such a start one hoped that some big results would be accomplished, but in second and third efforts one found repetition with crude attempts to disguise poor arrangement and utter disregard for all musical technicalities. A person, who, within a limited time could compose sufficient music capable of portraying in a fitting manner the action of a feature picture that plays approximately one hour and fifteen minutes, would have enough material for an operetta and there would be no reason for him to dispose of it for the moderate sum of one or two hundred dollars.

Is it not far better to rearrange and adapt with possibly new interpretation some of the almost dormant works of the master-composers than to bother with these pages of musical notes named "original" musical scores for the film?

ALEXANDER E. BEYFUSS MARRIES.

Alexander E. Beyfuss, vice president and general manager of the California Motion Picture Company, has been receiving congratulations during the past week on his success in securing Otis Skinner for a photoplay production of "Kismet." Only a few of his associates knew that his visit to New York was a honeymoon as well as a business trip. When the news leaked out, congratulations of a more personal nature were in order, and Mr. and Mrs. Beyfuss are now receiving their friends at the Ritz-Carlton. The wedding took place in San Francisco on February 17th. The bride was Mrs. Wilhelmina Speer-Hudson of Atlanta, Ga.

UNIVERSAL ENGAGES WRITERS.

The Universal Company has engaged three more scenario writers who have made enviable records in the past. They are Catherine Carr, J. Grubb Alexander and Ella Caldwell. Among Miss Carr's most successful pictures are "The Melting Pot," "Greater Love Hath No Man," "Sealed Valley," "The Master of the House" and "The Whirl of Life." Mr. Alexander is known as a scenario editor as well as a writer, as is Miss Caldwell, who showed her ability with the Vitagraph Company. The scenario department at Universal Heights now numbers eight persons, operating in conjunction with a reading staff of ten in the Mecca Building.

INCE RETURNS WITH "SNOW STUFF."

Director Ralph W. Ince, of the Vitagraph Bay Shore (L. I.) studios, has just returned from Arctic City, Port Henry, N. Y., where he has been taking the final scenes in James Oliver Curwood's play of the North woods, "Peter God," a drama in five reels. Record time was made by Mr. Ince's company in finishing this play for it was completed in less than three weeks. Miss Lucille Lee Stewart is the leading woman with the company, appearing with John Robertson, Huntly Gordon, Richard Turner and Miss Virginia Norden.

JACK ADOLFI ON WAY HOME.

Director Jack Adolfi of the Fox Company, producer of the Zangwill masterpiece, "Merely Mary Ann," has had for sixteen days a company of twenty at Tallulah Falls, Ga., doing his second picture, with Vivian Martin and Harry Hilliard in the leads. Sunday he started back for New York City by way of the Grottoes, where he will do some cave scenes, having completed the exteriors for Mr. Adolfi's adaptation from Corelli's "Thelma."

MANY ARC CONTROLLERS INSTALLED.

Recent installations of Speedco Arc Controllers have been in the following houses: Biltmore and Majestic, New York; Keith's Prospect, Keith's Greenpoint, Monroe, Cumberland and Loew's Fulton, Brooklyn; Loew's, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Strand, Providence, R. I.; Strand and Olympia, Lynn, Mass.; Moore's Strand, Washington, D. C. Another has been purchased by the Scollay Square, Olympia, Boston.

WOULD COMPEL THEATERS TO PAY ROYALTY.

Bill Amending Copyright Act Before Congress Would Force Payment for Use of Music Less Than 42 Years Old.

THERE is now pending in the House of Representatives a bill introduced by Mr. Barchfeld which, if it becomes law, will impose inestimable hardship on the motion picture houses throughout the United States. It will mean, in fine, that no theater may use music that has been issued within forty-two years without paying for that use a daily, a weekly or a monthly royalty. It will make no difference, except in the amount of the sum, whether the house contain but two hundred seats and a piano or a great structure of three thousand seats and possessing an orchestra of forty musicians.

The bill, which was introduced January 5 of this year and numbered H. R. 7624, is now before the committee on patents. It is entitled "A bill to amend section 62 of the act entitled 'An act to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright,' approved March 4, 1909." It reads as follows:

Section 28. That any person who wilfully and for profit shall infringe any copyright secured by this act, or who shall knowingly and wilfully aid or abet such infringement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. * * *

The amendment is included in the last forty-six words of the foregoing section, beginning with "and the terms 'public performance for profit,'" etc. It applies, as will be seen, to motion picture theaters wherein music is used, and of course all theaters have some sort of musical accompaniment for the pictures exhibited on their screens. Here is matter for serious thought on the part of the owners and managers of motion picture theaters. It is interesting to note also the penalties provided for infringement of the provisions of the copyright act. They are set forth in section 28 of the existing law as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Section 62 of the act entitled "An act to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright," approved March 4, 1909, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 62. "That in the interpretation and construction of this act 'the date of publication' shall, in the case of a work of which copies are reproduced for sale or distribution, be held to be the earliest date when copies of the first authorized edition were placed on sale, sold, or publicly distributed by the proprietor of the copyright, or under his authority, and the word 'author' shall inclued an employer in the case of works made for hire, and the terms 'public performance for profit' shall include any public performance in any place of business operated for gain though no direct pecuniary charge or admission fee to such performance is made unless such performance is given exclusively for a religious, chariatable, or educational purpose."

The musicians are doing everything in their power to encompass the defeat of the bill. It has been pointed out that if the bill becomes law it will mean the throwing out of employment of thousands. Representatives of the musicians' organizations are sending word to all members to get in touch with their Congressmen and protest against House bill 7624. It would seem hardly necessary to suggest that owners and managers of theaters should do the same thing—and do it quickly. No time should be lost.

PALLAS PICTURES STUDIOS EXPAND.

The daily increase in the activities of the Pallas Pictures studios in Los Angeles has brought about another enlargement in this film plant. The recent addition to the working space of the stage has necessitated an increase in the property-room space and another building is being erected which will give the studios a little theater in which to examine and exhibit its productions. This in addition to the projecting room which is being kept running night and day.

A staff of operators working in relays is keeping the projecting machines going at all times, this particular department representing an "open all night" establishment. In the laboratory a double shift has also been inaugurated in order to keep up with the work on hand.

Work on the latest Pallas Pictures subject, "Davy Crockett," starring Dustin Farnum is rapidly progressing and this production is expected to be finished shortly. Director William Taylor is especially fortunate in having secured permission to use the estate of Captain Handcock Banning, in Wilmington, a small west coast town, where the Pallas players are at present being filmed. The Banning estate has descended from generation to generation and the old white colonial mansion on it offers a fitting background for various scenes in "Davy Crockett."

"Ramona" Arrives in New York

W. H. Clune, Lloyd Brown and Donald Crisp Bring Big Clune Subject for Metropolitan Showing.

FOUR Los Angeles film men dropped into New York last week. They brought with them a picture that for more than six months was in the making. The picture is "Ramona," adapted from the story of Helen Hunt Jackson. The men were W. H. Clune, the head of the Clune Film Producing Company and the boss of Clune's Auditorium and Clune's Broadway, as well as other houses in southern California—yes, and one of the principal owners of "The Birth of a Nation," which at the present time has "on the road" seventeen companies; Lloyd Brown, general manager of Mr. Clune's many enterprises—a showman and an exhibitor "from top to toe"; Donald Crisp, who directed the making of "Ramona," and Robert H. Pool, publicity manager.

W. H. Clune.

The party came east by way of San Francisco, where a stop was made in order to start things a-humming for the showing of "Ramona" at the Cort theater, in that city, on March 20. Washington City was reached just in time to permit Mr. Clune and Mr. Brown to "make" the Gridiron dinner, where they were favored with seats on the platform. The quartet arrived in New York on the Sunday following — and found a bit of weather considerably different from the brand to which they were accustomed. "You can't step outdoors here," said Mr. Brown at the Claridge, a few days later, "without being reminded that you are away from home. I haven't hit winter weather in five years, and you don't have to be a good guesser to know that I feel it."

The Los Angeles film men have come east to put on "Ramona" in a New York theater. They expect to remain in the east a matter of five or six weeks, until the subject is well under way. At the time this is written, final decision had not been reached as to the house where "Ramona" will be shown to the metropolitan picture-goers. After the theater is selected, several weeks will be required to arrange the stage settings, for the subject will not be shown as a picture solely. It will be billed as a "cinema theatrical entertainment," which will include novelties in staging and musical accompaniment. The music, by the way, will be one of the strong features of the entertainment. Mr. Brown said that in Los Angeles, where "Ramona" was first shown at the Auditorium on February 7 and is still going strong, he used an orchestra of thirty in the pit and twelve on the stage. The musicians were supplemented by a quartet of singers. The softer instruments were placed on the stage.

Lloyd Brown.

Throughout the music there is a strain of the Oriental, a touch of Spanish and a little Hawaiian. The Mission Indians, who bulk big in the telling of the story, are different in character from the Middle Western redmen. The southern California tribes are and have been peaceable. In the extreme lower part of the state, years ago, in the whaling days, a couple of thousand Kanakas from the Sandwich Islands were employed at one of the whaling stations. These intermarried with the local redmen. It is to fit this unusual ethnological strain that Mr. Brown bent his efforts in the selection of his music.

"When 'Ramona' was finished," said Mr. Brown, "we found we had twenty thousand feet of story. It was the tale as outlined in the book. There seemed to be no place in it where we could cut it without doing damage. We went to work with the scissors because we knew it had to be done. When we put it on in Los Angeles, the show ran in the evening from 8 o'clock sharp to 11:45—and no one walked out. We felt we should do better than that and trimmed it so it would be twenty-three minutes shorter—and we did this against the advice of professional critics in whose judgment we had absolute confidence. I am told here in New York that we must close at 11 o'clock or they will walk out on us. I have tried to learn if in the showing of a big subject here anyone has walked out, and they tell me no. I don't know where to cut this story as it stands, and I have been advised to let it go until 11:22 and see how it works out. I am inclined to do that."

"The Birth of a Nation" ran for many weeks at the Auditorium in Los Angeles—something like twenty, if we recall. When Mr. Brown was asked how the initial showing of "Ramona" compared with that of the big Griffith subject, he said that "Ramona," at the same prices of admission, did $400 more business the first week. "There's a line in front of our box office from 9 o'clock in the morning," he added. "One of the things that leads us to believe the picture is a 'go' is the fact that many of those who have seen 'Ramona' are coming back the second and even the third time."

When the Los Angeles men return home they will immediately begin work on a second big subject. It will be "The Eyes of the World," an adaptation of the novel by Harold Bell Wright, one of the "best sellers" of the past two years. It is a story of today.

John Junior, Essanay Star

JOHN JUNIOR, well known Broadway star, and a recent addition to the Essanay family, has left Chicago for a visit to New York. In fact, it might be said that he has left again, as he has cultivated the habit of spending his week-ends in Gotham. Not that he dislikes Chicago, but that he wants to get back to old environments and to see old friends frequently. Being a student of Mr. Bill Shakespeare, Mr. Junior puts it: "Not that I loved Chicago less but New York more."

John Junior.

Mr. Junior starred for several seasons in Broadway productions. He was with William Collier three seasons, with Charles Frohman two, and Dan Frohman one. He played with Arnold Daly in "Steve" and was in the original all-star cast of "Officer 666," which played at the Gaiety Theater in New York. He was the juvenile lead in this production.

He had just finished an engagement with May Irwin in "Number 13 Washington Square" when he came to Essanay. He has played important parts for Essanay in "A Daughter of the City," "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," and took the lead in "A Man's Work" and "Politeness Pays."

Mr. Junior is twenty-six years old, five feet seven inches in height and of athletic built.

"The Ne'er-do-Well" Through Big Four

Sol Lesser Makes Deal With V-L-S-E to Distribute the Big Selig Production—March 20, Probable Release Date.

THE great Selig ten-reel picturization of Rex Beach's famous novel, "The Ne'er-Do-Well," regarded by many as one of the three most notable productions of the screen, which was purchased recently by Sol E. Lesser for $150,000, is to be marketed through the organization of which the Selig Company is one of the component parts—the V-L-S-E. Announcement of the transaction was made by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, following a series of negotiations held between himself and Mr. Lesser, last week.

"Two far-reaching purposes—one, representing the interests of the exhibitors, and the other, Mr. Lesser's—were responsible for this company's acquirement of the distributing rights of 'The Ne'er-Do-Well'," said Mr. Irwin, in discussing the deal. "The first purpose was based on the desire of the Selig Company and the V-L-S-E to follow out its primary policy of giving its exhibitors every opportunity to share in the profits accruing from such extraordinary features as 'The Ne'er-Do-Well' unquestionably is. The second purpose was founded in Mr. Lesser's desire to give the production the widest possible distribution.

"Mr. Lesser found, soon after his arrival in New York, that it would take a year to perfect an organization equipped to handle the inquiries in such numbers as have flooded the wires and the mails since his acquisition of the picture. He was approached by many of the largest and most representative distributing companies, to either buy or handle the picture, with offers which were most tempting to him. Without solicitation on our part, and after full consideration of the entire field, Mr. Lesser decided this organization.

"Both the Selig Company and the V-L-S-E are delighted that Mr. Lesser felt as he did and that therefore we now have this truly great production as an addition to our rapidly increasing number of notable offerings, and also, as I have pointed out, that our exhibitors are to have the benefit of the returns to be gained for the greater pictures made by the manufacturers of this organization, as well as of our general run of productions.

"Unquestionably, this picture will add a far from inconsequential quota in furthering the rapidly growing impression of the profit-making qualities represented by the V-L-S-E program generally, and by the pictures released by the Selig Company, specifically. It is a second 'Battle Cry of Peace' money-maker. Although it has only been exhibited in a few houses, the expressions of enthusiasm which it has provoked among exhibitors has been most unusual."

Mr. Lesser, in talking about his decision to release the picture through the V-L-S-E, said: "I had fully intended to distribute this picture myself, but 'The Ne'er-Do-Well' had been in my possession less than a week when, although I had handled many big subjects and possess a substantial organization, I realized that in this instance I was contracting for an appalling undertaking. Letters and telegrams flooded my office to such an extent that only a national organization of the greatest possible efficiency would hope to cope with the volume of possible business that they represented. It was instantly apparent, therefore, that the best interests of exhibitors and of the picture could only be served through such an organization. My problem was to select the right one from the prominent distributing companies submitting tempting offers.

"From my knowledge of the industry and after a thorough investigation, I felt that none were so proficient or efficient as the Big Four, not only because of the successes which it has already scored, but because of its peculiar high standing among exhibitors generally throughout the country. I know the company thoroughly, and it has seemed to me that the V-L-S-E possesses the confidence of exhibitors everywhere. Consequently, I turned down all the other offers and approached the Big Four, which I knew to be thoroughly equipped to market 'The Ne'er-Do-Well' on the plane of the highest efficiency.

"The picture will be released in all probability by this organization on Monday, March 20, and I am sure the successes which exhibitors everywhere will realize from the cooperation which they obtain from the V-L-S-E in the handling of the production will more than bear out the wisdom of my course."

GOODMAN TO DIRECT "THE IRON CLAW."

Robert Hastings Goodman is directing the new serial, "The Iron Claw," for Edward Jose and the Feature Film Corporation. It is now being released by Pathe, with Pearl White, Sheldon Lewis and Creighton Hale featured.

Clara Kimball Young Back From Cuba

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG has returned from Cuba and is as enthusiastic a press agent for the Island which Uncle Sam took and gave away, as the best people of that wealthy community could desire. Miss Young went to the land of tobacco to be filmed in the new play, 'The Feast of Desire." The exteriors were completed in the vicinity of Santiago de Cuba and near the battlefield of San Juan.

Clara Kimball Young.

The scenario of the new film was written by Frances Marion and the exteriors were directed by Alfred Capellani. His brother Paul was Miss Young's leading man. The story is essentially Spanish and deals with a feminine, dual personality. It is an original drama.

According to Miss Young the promise of wealth for American investments in Cuba are very alluring. "I have advised Lewis J. Selznick, President of the new Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, to establish a permanent studio in Cuba. I believe it will pay for itself. The country is moving picture crazy and has only the badly crippled European producers to draw from. In every large city, and in the smaller ones as well, they yet follow the old Spanish three-part entertainment, and you buy for one, two or three shows as you wish. The introduction of American films and American methods will be agreeably received.

"Havana, if her citizens keep up the pace and treat Americans as agreeably as they have this Winter, will unquestionably become a great American Winter resort. It is estimated that a half million wealthy folk from the States visited there this season. It is a well conducted town, picturesque, interesting and enough removed from our own aspects of civilization to hold the attention of the tourist.

"It is different from the average Latin-American big city because the natives, through our tutelage, have learned to respect themselves and therefore command respect."

CARTOONISTS TO AID ACTORS FUND.

Charles R. MacCauley, famous cartoonist, who is acting as chairman of the Committee on Announcements and Animated Cartoons for the Motion Picture Campaign for the Actors Fund of America, recently held a meeting at which twenty-five of the most celebrated newspaper artists and cartoonists were present. There will be twenty-five famous men on his committee of which the following are a few: Goldberg, Windsor McKay, Tom Powers, Maurice Ketten, George "Newlywed" McManus, Herren, Bray, Clarence Rigley and Glackens.

Mr. MacCauley's plan in the interests of this humanitarian work is as follows:—Each of the famous cartoonists will draw a cartoon or caricature of twenty-five mayors in the twenty-five principal cities of the United States. They will draw and donate their work and also see that it is given the publicity in the various big cities in the United States in the general press and in theaters. It is expected that the work of these celebrated geniuses will amuse and please the public and greatly assist in securing the interest necessary in the projection of the Motion Picture Campaign in which it is expected to collected $500,000 in fifteen weeks.

STRONG CAST PLAYS HORSLEY FEATURE.

The release on March 4 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, of the David Horsley five reel production of Theodosia Harris' story "The Heart of Tara," marks the first appearance as co-stars of two players—Margaret Gibson and William Clifford—who heretofore enjoyed stellar honors individually. Besides Miss Gibson and Mr. Clifford there are in the cast such players as Marvel Spencer, for the past three months a member of Mr. Horsley's regular stock company; Sherman Bainbridge, a recent acquisition from the ranks of the Universal; Marie James, Walter Spencer and Edward Alexander.

"More Keystones", Says Sennett

Will Organize Three More Producing Companies—Makes a Total of Fifteen.

